I need not be at much pains to define my position in this contest. Everybody knows where I stand—where I am to be found. Such as I have been in the endeavour to advance your interests, I still am, and shall continue to be, if you honour me with re-election.

Apart from the consideration of local—city and county—interests, the national question chiefly involved in this contest is "Reciprocity," or free mutual exchange of natural, mainly farm, products, with the United States. I believe that reciprocity of this kind will be of benefit to the farmers of the country, and through their prosperity to all other interests—manufacturing, financial and commercial, as well as to those of the mechanic and workingman.

The round of benefit is natural. Good crops and good markets mean money for the farmer, which spent with the merchants of all kinds, means increased orders for the manufacturer and increased employment to their workmen. Thus Reciprocity, by affording wider and better markets, promises to be a benefit to the whole country and an injury to no class or interest; and is worth trying, especially as the agreement, not being a treaty, can, if unsatisfactory, be cancelled on reasonable notice.

If I thought for a moment that it would hurt any important interest, especially the manufacturing interest, I would oppose it. I am neither an extreme free trader, nor an extreme protectionist. I believe in a reasonable amount of both. High tariff in the United States has lost to Canada ninety million dollars in barley alone. The British Preference as it affects our manufacturers goes as far as desirable in the direction of free trade and I am opposed to, and will oppose, any increase of it. I myself am a manufacturer or interested in manufactures, in a modest way, but, at the same time, to an extent, important to myself and my associates, and I feel that our industries and working men could not stand the keen manufacturing competition of either Britain or the United States.

In this regard, I am in accord with the assurance of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, speaking for the Government, when he gave this pledge, "WE HAVE NOT HURT THE MANUFACTURERS AND WILL NOT HURT THEM," and I applaud the stand of Mr. Fielding in negotiating the Reciprocity Agreement, in refusing to even discuss reciprocity in manufactured articles with the United States.

If you approve, gentlemen, of what I consider the reasonable stand I take in relation to national interests; if you believe, judging from my past record of service to the Riding, that I have the business capacity, the business and parliamentary experience to continue to give you good service, and justify the confidence I now ask you to again place in me, I presume to claim your support.

This is probably the last appeal I shall make to you; for I think I have done my share of service to this Riding and have thereby earned the opportunity to give the necessary attention to my private affairs. I should have persisted in my desire to be relieved had I not felt in duty bound to defer to the earnest solicitation of the friends who have stood by me in the past, and also of a great many of my former opponents, and consented to be a candidate.

Another reason that influenced my acceptance, was, that being of a business turn, I naturally desired to complete work I have initiated, and for which I am in some degree, if the opportunity is given me, responsible. I should like to see the completion of the large new docks for the City of Peterborough; of the retaining wall on our river front in Peterborough; also a new concrete dam at Nassau erected, and a Rifle Range provided for this important military centre.

Trusting that I may be favoured with your effective support, I have the honour to remain, gentlemen, as I have been for the past twenty-five years,

Your Obedient Servant,

BREAD INDUSTRY REVOLUTIONIZED BY ORGANIZATION HERE OF CANADA BREAD COMPANY, LTD.

Company With Its Plants in All the Larger Cities of Canada Will Make Bread Industry One of the Largest and Most Uniform in the Country---Ample Capital to Gradually Secure an Annual Production of 100,000,000 Loaves

That the bread industry is now destined to be one of the most important in the country is indicated by the organization of the Canada Bread Company, Limited, the new big company, which will at the outset, take in five of the larger bread manufacing businesses in Canada and will gradually establish plants in all the larger cities. The business taken over include those of the Bredin Bread Company, of Toronto; Stuart's, Limited, Montreal; George Weston, Limited, of Toronto, known as "The Model Bakery"; W. J. Boyd, Winnipeg, and H. C. Tomlin, Toronto Bakery Company. The benefits that would accrue from a consolidation of this kind have been for a long time apparent to the practical interests in the industry, but quite naturally the large amount of capital required for its operation prevented it being consummated till the assistance was secured of Mr. Cawthra Mulock, the Toronto financier. The capital, which includes $1,000,000 of cash to go into the treasury, will be sufficient to supply the new company with ample working capital to carry out even the extensive programme of its directors. This programme is to erect new modern bread manufacturing plants in all the larger cities of Canada, instal the latest type of machinery, institute systems which will insure the manufacture of bread under the most cleanly and sanitary conditions, and deliver a bread of uniform high grade quality to consumers at the minimum cost.

Most Sanitary Conditions

It should be of interest to consumers of bread all over Canada to learn something concerning the conditions under which bread is now being manufactured as compared with the modern up-to-date systems which already have been instituted by many of the larger baking establishments.

Manufacturing bread in a modern bake-shop is a scientific process. The systematic work begins at the beginning and continues to the end. The moment the flour comes into the establishment it is subjected to a chemical analysis in order to establish its fitness for the end in view. Samples are taken from each of a large number of bags, and a test is made of them in order to ascertain the quantity of gluten and other ingredients they contain. Occasionally these analyses are supplemented by more practical tests; but in all cases the carefulness observed throughout the processes will very shortly cause to be revealed any defects in the flour itself.

Modern Scientific Process

Instead of throwing the flour haphazard into the troughs, in the condition in which it arrives and adding the yeast and water in order to get it into the condition of dough as rapidly as possible, these various steps are only taken in the most systematic manner in the modern bake-shop. After the quality of the flour has been determined, the flour is subjected to a process of sifting and cleaning. It passes through a number of screens and brushes which hold back a variety of foreign matter, a very considerable portion of which is eventually weighed out as bread in the small, carelessly-conducted establishment.

Having been analyzed and sifted, the flour is weighed and emptied into the mixer. By an automatic process the requisite weight of water, as well as the yeast, is added. It may be of interest to state that not only is the temperaure of the water, but also of the flour, the yeast, and even of the atmosphere controlled in such a manner as to produce the best results. Generally speaking, the effort is to maintain the temperature of the ingredients as well as the interior of the buildings, at an average of from seventy-five to eighty degrees Fahrenheit. The mixing is a mechanical process and is carried on by a slowly revolving arrangement which kneads the dough in a much more certain and uniform, not to say cleanly, manner than could possibly be done by hand.

After all, does it not seem somewhat incongruous that, although we object to another person lifting our butter in his fingers or grasping our glass of water by the rim in order to hand it to us, we unquestionably accept the much more intimate association which takes place between the hands of the baker and the article which we have come to call the staff of life? It seems just a little remarkable that while we have demanded so much care in the processes which come under our personal observation, we should so long have consumed bread manufactured from flour of which we knew little enough, and baked in a bakery by a baker under conditions which had we seen them, would have often caused us to foreswear the consumption of bread for a period.

Most Up-to-date Plants

The aim of modern bakeries such as those which will be established by the Canada Bread Company, Limited, is to eliminate all objectionable and uncleanly features in connection with the manufacture of bread. When, added to this, is the very practical consideration that bread manufactured under the proposed conditions costs no more than when manufactured in an objectionable manner—nor will it cost as much—it can easily be seen what a boon the Canada Bread Company may become to the consuming public.

After the dough has been mechanically mixed in the mixer for about ten minutes, it is emptied into troughs and wheeled into the dough-room, where it is allowed to remain for a sufficient length of time to permit the necessary chemical changes involved in the "rising." It is then passed on to the weighing machine or divider. This is a contrivance whereby the operator may control the exact size or weight of the loaf required. A slight turn of the handle moves the gauge in such a manner that the loaf may be increased or diminished the fraction of an ounce. As a further precaution, the operator selects loaves at random every little while, and tests them on the weighing-scale.

It may be interesting to add that experience has established the percentage which must be allowed under given conditions for the moisture extracted from the dough while in the furnace, in order to produce a loaf of given weight. In Mark Bredin's bake-shop, from which this description is in reality taken, a number of loaves were chosen at random and placed upon the scales as a test of how accurately the dividing machine did its work. The loaves were supposed to weigh a pound and a half each. Out of a number of loaves, there was almost no variation, and when all were placed on the scales at once the beam went to an exact balance.

After leaving the divider the loaves are passed on to the moulding machine—all this, remember, without a hand being laid upon them or their ingredients since the flour entered the shop. Aeration and proving now takes place. The loaves are placed in pans and piled in galvanized iron racks and wheeled into a chamber where they remain until the rising process reaches the proper stage. They are then wheeled out and placed in the oven, from which they duly emerge, uniformly baked and ready for the consumer.

Advantages of Modern Ovens

Even in the nature of the oven, the modern process is far superior to the ancient. Formerly the fire was lighted within the open, in the same space to be occupied by the bread itself. After the open had been brought to the proper temperature the fires would be withdrawn and the loaves placed within. Thus, not only would the loaves be apt to absorb any gases which might remain in the oven, but would also be liable to fouling from ashes or cinders, to say nothing of the loss of time necessitated by the fact that between each batch of bread it would be necessary to repeat the process of heating the oven.

In the modern oven the fire is kept continuously going. A wall separates it entirely from the oven which contains the bread. The advantages in the matter of cleanliness over the old oven need hardly be described. In addition to this, the oven can be kept at a uniform temperature and one batch of bread may follow the other without loss of time necessitated by re-firing as with the old-style oven. Nevertheless, it is quite probable that the majority of the ovens still in use are of the old type. They do good work, but cannot continue in competition with the modern article.

Saving in Distribution

Advantageous as are the processes which it is the intention of the Canada Bread Company to adopt in all its establishments in order to produce the choicest quality of bread, the commercial advantages or saving will be due more to economies in the matter of delivery than in the process of manufacturing, considerable as the latter may be. In an effort made recently to determine what saving might be effected in the matter of delivery, a number of enquiries were made. The smaller bakeries, it would seem, look upon two thousand loaves per week as a very fair average for one waggon. Some of them considered eighteen hundred as pretty fair. Mark Bredin, in his modern plant, delivers as high as four thousand, and expressed the view that the Canada Bread Company, taking advantage of the geographical location of the different bake-shops and the distribution of routes, ought to reach an average of not less than four thousand five hundred loaves per waggon per week.

The cost of delivery is one of the principal items in the cost of the loaf to the consumer, and it has even frequently been stated that it is the principal item. The Canada Bread Company, therefore, in this principal item, will be able to effect a saving of from fifty to sixty per cent. over the average small bakery. In addition to this, the shareholders of the company will derive very considerable advantage from the lower price at which contracts may be made with the mills for the purchase of flour. As for the consumers, he will be supplied with bread, manufactured in a clean, light, airy, wholesome building, and by modern, up-to-date machinery, the whole process being performed in a cleanly manner and without being handled by any of the employees until it is ready for delivery to the waggons.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

SAID the girl in love to the man she loved: "I don't think you care so much for me as you used to. Just think! You were in town all day yesterday and you didn't call me up. You know you would never have done that six months ago."

Said the man in love to the girl he loved: "Why, dear, I thought I just told you that I was with Rushworth every minute. You know I was trying to put through that big sale, and that I didn't dare let him get out of my sight for a minute."

Reiterated the girl in love: "I think you would have managed somehow six months ago before you were so sure of me."

Retorted the man in love: "You didn't use to be so abominably unreasonable. Are you always going to be like this?"

Flushed the girl in love: "Yes, when I have so much cause to be. Why? Don't you think you can stand it?"

And there they are with a perfectly good quarrel on their hands and unkind words on their lips and heartbreaks in their hearts, for "to be wroth with one we love doth work like madness in the brain."

And all for what?

All just because the man in love didn't realize that what the girl in love wanted when she said he didn't love her as much as he used to was reassurance—fond, foolish, reiterated, convincing reassurance. And because, instead of these, he gave her cold, logical, sensible reasoning.

Is there—I wonder—was there ever a couple who did not have at least one quarrel along these lines?

Can't you imagine Eve saying to Adam, "When we lived in the garden you used to be with me all the time, and now I seldom see you except at meals. I don't think you love me the way you used to."

And of course Adam answered, "But, my dear, you know I didn't have any work to do then, and now I have to work for my living. I think you are unreasonable."

And poor little Eve; who just wanted to be told that he loved her quite as much, if not more, than ever, went off into the nearby glade to cry her heart out at the coldness of his tone, and Adam went back to his work berating the unreasonableness of a woman.

All of which might have been avoided if Adam had just taken Eve right up in his arms and said, "But, dearest, you know I love you more every day. You are the one woman in the world for me."

And now, you people who still think I'm a man masquerading — can you doubt any longer?

Would I have known this if I weren't a woman?

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON QUESTIONS

AUGUST 13, 1911.

(Copyright, 1910, by Rev. T. S. Linscott, D.D.)

Jehoiakim Burns the Prophet's Book.—Jer. xxxvi.

Golden Text—The word of our God shall stand for ever.—Isa. xl., 8.

1. Verses 1-3—What was the character of Jehoiakim?

2. Why is it that God bears so long and patiently with sinners, and takes such loving pains to save them?

3. What advantage is it to us that men like Jeremiah wrote the history of God's dealing with his people, and that we have these records in the Bible?

4. Who had been the kings of Judah since the death of Josiah, and what had been their characters?

5. Verse 4—What was the chief purpose of the Lord in commanding Jeremiah to write a book, cohtaining what God had revealed to him concerning the sin and coming punishment of Judah?

6. Jeremiah had previously delivered these messages orally and had been tried for his life on account of it; why was it important that they should be written?

7. Why is it necessary that such important messages should always be written?

8. Verses 5-6—Why could Jeremiah not read the roll personally in the temple?

9. If we cannot go personally as missionaries, what is our duty in the circumstances?

10. Why is every Christian in duty bound to be a missionary, either in person or by proxy?

11. Verse 7—God was then very anxious to save these sinners from the doom they were bringing on themselves; how does he show the same anxiety to-day?

12. Verse 8—Which was the more meritorious in the sight of God, Jeremiah or Baruch; the man who writes a book at God's command, or the man who publishes it at his command?

13. Verse 9—The king, the priests and people were rebels against God, yet they proclaimed a religious fast, for they were likely in great national peril. Do the prayers and fasts of the impenitent wicked please or insult God? Why?

14. Verse 10—The Salvation Army and some others take advantage of every public gathering to preach the gospel; is it or not the duty of all the Christian churches to do the same? Why?

15. Verses 11-19—What was the first effect of Baruch publicly reading Jeremiah's book to the people?

16. Which secures the more converts, the direct or the indirect results of preaching the gospel?

17. Verses 20-25—What effect had the reading of the book upon the great men who stood around the king, and upon the king himself?

18. Why did the king have the book burned?

19. What has been the result in all the attempts that have been made to suppress the word of God?

20. What is the effect of sin, long continued, upon the conscience and moral sense?

21. Verse 26—How is it that sometimes God hides his servants from the vengeance of their enemies, and at other times allows them to suffer?

22. Verses 27-32—What resulted from burning the roll?

23. What is always the final result of sinning against God?

RUNAWAY IN SPRINGVILLE CAUSES SOME EXCITEMENT

Considerable excitement prevailed for a time at Springville this morning caused by the running away of a team of horses, owned by Mr. John Morrison, and driven by an employee named Ballantyne. The waggon contained a number of empty milk cans and was making its return trip from one of the cheese factories when the horses, taking fright at a passing auto, bolted in front of Reynolds' store. They wound up their mad career by dashing through the church gate, where they were brought to the ground by coming in contact with the outer shed. The waggon was somewhat badly damaged, but the horses escaped serious injury. A man named Cummings, who had jumped on the waggon, prior to the accident at Kendry's Siding, was thrown into the ditch, sustaining a severe scalp wound and other injuries. He was fortunate, however, in that he sustained injuries of only a minor nature.

THREATENS TO DESTROY SPRUCE FORESTS

Considerable uneasiness and even alarm has been felt by lumbermen and others interested in forest produce, over the depredations in different parts of Canada of the spruce bud worm (Tortrix fumiferana). It was feared that the spruce might suffer a fate similar to that of the tamarack, which was killed by the larch sawfly about twenty-five years ago. As a result, however, of investigations begun by the Division of Entomology of the Dominion Department of Agriculture during 1909, and still in progress, the situation appears to be much more satisfactory and reassuring than was at first considered possible.

The destructive work of the bud worm was first reported two years ago from Vancouver Island, where the Douglas fir was attacked; and from Quebec, where the spruce and the balsam suffered chiefly. In the case of Quebec, the pests were at first confined to the west-central portion of the Province, but during 1910 areas on the east of the St. Lawrence were also attacked. It was this latter circumstance that roused timber owners to a sense of the possible extent of the danger.

While in the caterpillar stage these insects destroy the buds of the spruce and balsam, especially at the tops of the trees. They also bite off the leaves, which, together with the excrement of the caterpillars, cause the tops of the trees to assume a reddish brown appearance. When a large area is attacked it appears as if it had been swept by fire.

As such plagues of air insects can only be controlled by natural means, the Dominion Entomologists visited a number of infected districts for the purpose of discovering a natural remedy that would meet the situation. Various insect enemies or parasites were found that prey upon the bud worm, and these are being used to destroy the pest. As the percentage of important parasites, especially of the minute species which attack the eggs of the bud worm, is unusually large, there is abundant reason for hoping for the extermination of the latter. Judging by previous experiences in studies of this nature, it is not improbable that the insect will be controlled by its natural parasites in the course of a year or two, that is, before it has inflicted any serious damage to the spruce and balsam by repeated defoliation.

Regular Meeting Of Court Chemong

The semi-monthly meeting of Court Chemong, 530, I.O.F., was held in the S.O.E. Hall, Hunter street on Thursday evening, being presided over by Bro. T. C. Rooke, C.R. The Court was favoured with a visit from Bro. G. N. Brown, D.H.C.R., who received a hearty welcome from the members he having been absent from the city for about a year.

Bro. Brown addressed the court in the interests of the Order ,and gave a very interesting account of the progress and prosperity of the Order under the able management of E. G. Stevenson, S.C.R.

The Court made further arrangements for the annual excursion on Labour Day, Monday, Sept. 4th to Idyl Wyld and a number of prizes were announced for the various races, tugs of war and sports. Bro. Brown, to make things still more lively, stated he would give a first and second prize for the prettiest baby under 2 years of age. The excursion will be open to the public and further announcements will be given when full arrangements have been made.

"INDIAN" FINED

A local man was this morning fined $10 in the Police Court for violating the Black List law. He got ten days in which to pay his fine.

Another man was charged with the same offence, but pleaded not guilty. P. C. Meharry gave convicting evidence, but the accused denied that he had tasted liquor. The case had to be adjourned as a result until next Wednesday, when other witnesses will be procured.

A Judge's Opinion of Grape-Nuts

A gentleman who has acquired a judicial turn of mind from experience on the bench out in the Sunflower State writes a carefully considered opinion as to the value of Grape-Nuts as food. He says:

"For the past 5 years Grape-Nuts has been a prominent feature in our bill of fare.

"The crisp food with the delicious, nutty flavour has become an indispensable necessity in my family's everday life.

"It has proved to be most healthful and beneficial, and has enabled us to practically abolish pastry and pies from our table, for the children prefer Grape-Nuts and do not crave rich and unwholesome food.

"Grape-Nuts keeps us all in perfect physical condition—as a preventive of disease it is beyond value. I have been particularly impressed by the beneficial effects of Grape-Nuts when used by ladies who are troubled with face blemishes, skin eruptions, etc. It clears up the complexion wonderfully.

"As to its nutritive qualities, my experience is that one small dish of Grape-Nuts is superior to a pound of meat for breakfast, which is an important consideration for anyone. It satisfies the appetite and strengthens the power of resisting fatigue, while its use involves none of the disagreeable consequences that sometimes follow a meat breakfast." BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION

On Friday an enjoyable evening was spent at his parents' home, on the occasion of Master Harry Jenkins' sixth birthday celebration. Quite a number of friends sat down to Miss Hazel, daughter of Mr. and vocal selections were given by the Misses Lowry, E. Jenkins, W. Jenkins, G. Ego and others. Master Harry received numerous presents, with which the little fellow was very much pleased.

THEY ARE RAPIDLY COMING AROUND IN ITS FAVOUR

Mr. D. B. Wood, Manager of the Wood Milling Company, Hamilton, and a Director of the Dominion Flour Mills Company, said yesterday:

"I have a good knowledge of farmers and farming conditions in these counties, and the fact that reciprocity will not seriously affect the protective principle as applied to manufactured products, but will take down a barrier to all products of the farm, makes it the biggest and best legislation ever introduced in this country. The fact that there are 40,000,000 or 50,000,000 consumers, a large part of them big consumers, of what we grow, and that we are so near them that we can place our goods in their markets within twelve or fifteen hours by express and in twenty-four by freight, is the biggest and best thing ever offered to a producing country like this. The farmer will be greatly benefitted without a shadow of a doubt. All the produce of the farm will increase in value, and every business in every town and city in this country will reap a corresponding benefit because of the increased prosperity that will result from reciprocity in natural products. These are some of the reasons why I am in favour of reciprocity."

PRINTERS' PICNIC WILL RECEIVE BIG PATRONAGE ON MONDAY

Don't fail to attend the Printers' Picnic on Monday. This event, an annual one, never before had the preparation or attention given as this year. Nothing has been neglected in the effort to make Monday's celebration a bumper one and the list of events published a few nights ago will be well contested and certainly much appreciated by the patrons of the excursion. The fare is cheap, the trip is good, and the attendance, as a consequence, should be large.

1—Tots' race, 7 years and under, 25 yards, two prizes.
2—Boys' race, 10 years and under, 75 yards, 1st prise, 75c., 2nd prize, 50c.

UNSELFISHNESS WINS OUT

From Farm and Dairy.

People rarely quarrel over the large and important issues of life. But they will fight to the death about the things that don't matter. In most families there is some small bone of discord which crops up again and again at every meal—a mean, contemptible cause of strife that none agree to bury decently once and for all. Between husband and wife some petty difference gradually grows which touches each on the raw whenever it appears with Jack-in-the-box regularity. A tactful, womanly management in the early stages would prevent the stupendous growing power of these matrimonial bogies.

Maybe a man's temper is a little "short" when he comes home in the evening. No doubt he has faced twenty men with short tempers and small patience in the course of a day. His wife can eternally face one; and it is the privilege of her partnership to soothe and manage a tired man.

After all, unselfishness on the part of the wife is the best weapon to fight an irritable man with; and a man must be a bear indeed if he can hold out against an unremitted course of kindness.

300th Bargain Annex Event
Wednesday, August 16th
An Unique Dept.—The Bargain Annex
Open Wednesdays only 8:15 to 5:30

TO THINK OUT and plan a new and original Bargain idea as applied to the distribution of general merchandise, and to conduct it successfully for 300 consecutive weeks and not experience one solitary failure is an achievement of which we are somewhat proud. One day a week (Wednesday) for nearly 6 years the "Bargain Annex" has been open each and every week, and each and every week crowds have thronged this unique Bargain Department. It has grown so rapidly that it now has its own separate buying department, which is continually feeding it with dependable and seasonable goods at less than they can be purchased for elsewhere. This, in truth, is "The Bargain Annex" whose Three Hundredth anniversary we celebrate on Wednesday, Aug. 16th.

The GRESSMAN Store

A WRESTLE WITH A POLAR BEAR

It was in 1887 that I made my first North Polar voyage in company with Captain Gray on board the steam whaler "Erik" of about 500 tons. Amongst our stores taken on board at Peterhead none excited as much comment and speculation as to its intended use as a strong iron cage in sections, which was deposited in the main hold.

I was delighted with the anticipation of novel and exciting sport on learning it was intended for the reception of a polar bear. The organisers of the expedition hoped that a large bear, if not a fully grown one, might be captured and brought back alive, as liberal offers had been made for such an animal if uninjured. None larger than a cub had ever previously been secured, being looked upon as too dangerous, so that the taking of a big bear indicated plenty of sport and excitement.

LASSOING A BEAR

It was late in June, and we had been four months in the polar seas. Many polar bears had fallen to my rifle, and Captain Gray and I had frequently discussed the best means of taking one alive. From some not very apparent reason the leadership of the enterprise seemed to naturally devolve itself upon me, presumably owing to my keenness in it. After long deliberation, as there was no precedent to guide me, I devised a kind of lasso made out of a "foregoer"—a portion of the harpoon line about 20 fathoms long, constructed of Manila fibre attached immediately to the harpoon.

At the end of this line I made a running loop and tied it with thin twine to the end of a long boat hook, allowing the line from the loop to run through my hand. My intention was to use the boat-hook pole to place the loop over the bear's head, then break the twine connecting the lasso with the boat-hook, lay this aside, and hold the bear by the lasso.

To the conservative minds of the crew this apparatus appeared too "new-fangled" to be of the slightest use. I resolved, nevertheless, to test the gear at the first opportunity.

One afternoon a bear was reported to be swimming from a large floe about half a mile away towards the ship. A boat was quickly lowered, and manned, and I took up my position with my bear-catching apparatus in the bows. On seeing us in pursuit the bear whipped short round, and made for the ice which he had left.

He was too late, however. Gradually the boat overhauled him and got within striking distance. I popped the loop over his head, snapped the twine holding it to the boat hook, and had on my line the heaviest "fish" I ever attempted to land.

How he struggled and lashed the water, churning it into foam, and now and then turned over to gnaw at the rope that held him. But his efforts were of no avail, and his resistance was short-lived. Unfortunately for this bear and myself, I had had the tip of my left thumb taken off by a seal-knife a few days previously. In the struggle with the bear I lost the bandage and my thumb began to bleed profusely. In order that I might tie it up again I handed the end of the line to a harpooner who was standing behind me. After working at the bandage for a couple of minutes I turned round to find the bear drawn up to the ring-bolt and his tongue hanging out of his mouth. The harpooner had hauled him up tight to the bows, and had made the line fast to the thwart!

In response to my hurried orders to "slacken off," the man got the line free after some fumbling, but it was too late; the bear was dead, and no one felt tempted to try artificial respiration upon him. Feeling very much like executioners we towed the carcase back to the ship. It was a male cub a little more than half grown.

AN EXCITING CHASE

The next morning a bear was sighted lying down upon a large "scouce-piece" about a mile across. "Now's your chance, Jackson," said Captain Gray, as he came down into the cabin. So my tackle was again fitted up, two Boats were lowered, and volunteer crews—as it was considered a risky business—were called for and selected.

I started off in command of one boat: the first mate had charge of the second. We pulled round the floe to the further side and there lay in wait behind a ridge of hummocks at the water's edge, the mate's boat taking up a position two hundred yards in our rear. In the meantime a party of men with rifles, which had been landed from the ship, advanced across the ice towards the slumbering bear, shouting and firing in order to drive him off the ice into the water in our direction.

Gradually the shouts and shots came nearer and nearer, and we could see the bear slowly coming towards our boat.

The suppressed excitement became intense as the critical moment drew near. "Steady now, not a word, but keep your oars free!" I whispered, as I clutched my lassoing apparatus more firmly. The bear came to the water at a spot about thirty yards from our boat, and after a casual glance at us, as if he considered us very small fry, splashed in. In a few moments he was sufficiently far on his voyage to enable us to cut him off from the floe he had left.

"Pull away!" I shouted as off we went in pursuit. Five stout pairs of arms strained their utmost for a minute or two before the distance between us and our quarry materially lessened. Our friend in the white coat was a powerful swimmer.

A TOOTH-AND-NAIL STRUGGLE

Once he tried to head back for the floe. But seeing that we were in the way he kept on the course we first had worked out. Gradually we overhauled him, and a spurt placed us within striking distance.

"Hiss!" snarled the bear, as the noose went over his head. Unfortunately a paw became also encircled by it, and off his head it slipped. I had to fit up the noose again and the chase had to be renewed. This proved rather longerr than the first one, and a good half-mile was covered before we again overtook him. This time the noose did not slip, and I hooked him quite securely. Then there was an uproar! All the lions, tigers and bears in the Zoo might have been suddenly let loose to judge by the noise made by that one bear; and I felt as if I were tied to an earthquake. First he dashed forward with the utmost impetuosity, and then on being pulled up by the rope, returned to the boat, seised the gunwale with his teeth and tore at the woodwork. He quickly demolished the canvas which covered the harpoon gun, and it was only by quick manœuvring that I saved the gun itself from going over the side.

Next he tried to free his neck by hauling himself up by the gunwale, and I really feared we should have him on board soon. The men in the bow end of the boat began to retreat towards the stern. I pommelled his paws with an oar to make him let go, but in vain.

Then someone conceived a brilliant idea, and a wet swab was passed to me. With this I struck him in the face. The effect was magical; he dropped back into the water as if a bullet had hit him. A heavy oar he didn't mind a bit, but a wet swab was too horrible and barbarous — something quite outside the pale of civilised warefare!

The wet swab, however, soon lost all its terrors for him, and he became as indifferent to this as to the oar. Several times matters became extremely critical. With the boat listed over almost to the point of capsising by the weight of the bear hanging on the gunwale, and his gleaming teeth and furious eyes within three feet of my face as I stood in the bows, any slight mistake or momentary loss of presence of mind would have enabled him to take possession of our craft and to completely turn the tables on us.

CAGED AT LAST

After half an hour of this tooth-and-nail struggle his tremendous strength began to give out, and his desperate efforts relaxed. Then the second boat, with the mate in charge, came up, and from that a second noose was passed over his hindquarters. Thus he was rendered secure both fore and aft, and placed quite at our mercy.

Slowly we returned to the "Erik," which steamed towards us. On-coming alongside a "strop" was passed round the bear's body, and up in the air he went by means of tackle rigged from the mainmast, like so much baggage or a bale of wool, and was dropped safely into the iron cage which had been fitted up in the main-hatch. The movable bars in the top were then secured, and the most exciting bit of sport I had ever been engaged in was over.

"I thought he would have eaten the lot of you!" was Captain Gray's exclamation as I came on board.

The bear was a huge male, and from knowledge I have since obtained of other bears by accurate weighing, I estimate he must have scaled nine hundred and fifty pounds.

Our capture behaved like a lap-dog during the rest of the day and gobbled up pork cracklings the cook threw to him as if he had been accustomed to dine on board ship all his life. His apparently gentlemanly and "nice" behaviour was the subject of general comment; but these illusions were rudely dispelled the following morning. A great uproar on the main-deck was heard about seven o'clock, and one of the mates rushed into the cabin, exclaiming that the bear was loose on deck. Hurriedly tumbling into a coat, up I went with a rifle, to find that the animal had forced his head and shoulders through the top of the cage and that a number of the crew were up the rigging, as they expected him at any moment to take charge of the ship.

Not wishing to shoot him, I seized a capstan-rod and hit him a heavy blow over the head, which caused him to drop back into the cage. Then I took up a coal hammer, and whenever he placed a paw on the top bars which were bent like wire, I brought the hammer down upon his claws, and so kept him in check until spars were lashed over the aperture he had made by crumpling up the bars, and he was again secure.

One of the sailors had played a hose upon him. He objected to a bath, and proceeding to try the cage all round like a monkey, found that the top was weak.

A LUCKY ESCAPE

On the following day when the captain of the "Hope," which was sailing in our company, came on board to see our capture there was more excitement. Captain Gray very rashly walked about on the top of the cage, which was nearly level with the deck, to show our friend off, fell, and a foot slipped through the bars. Instantly the bear seised it. I jumped down to the Captain's assistance and both my legs slipped through, so that the bear had quite a nice larder within reach.

Fortunately a sailor in the "'tween deck" punched him in the mouth with a broom-handle, making him release the captain's foot, and enabling us to take ourselves into a place of safety. This experience quite cured Captain Gray of playing the part of bear-tamer.

Happily, the bear had fixed in the foot only the canine teeth on one side of the jaw, and so had not got a firm hold: but those teeth had torn through the flesh, and the Captain was lame for two months afterwards. He had a lucky escape, as he might have had his leg torn off had the bear secured a firm grip. Without further excitement our prise was safely landed at Peterhead in September, when he again nearly broke loose in being removed from the ship.

An Interesting History of the Stoney Lake Navigation Company

The Stoney Lake Navigation Co. started business with a "Fairy," and its history reads like a fairy tale.

"Success through co-operation" seems to have been the motto followed by this organisation—father and four sons—who have stood shoulder to shoulder during the twenty-six years of expansion.

In the early eighties Mr. P. P. Young and his brother "Con." were engaged in the lumbering business, and had to depend on a small steamer from Lakefield to do their towing, which was not always available owing to the heavy traffic in logs; so, in eighty-five the Young Bros. purchased from Mr. Polson of Rice Lake a little steamer called the "Fairy."

It may be of interest to note that her first engineer was William Scollard, the present popular Captain of the "Stoney Lake."

After a season of towing she was put into winter quarters at Lakefield.

Early the following spring Mr. Young received a letter from Lakefield, saying that his boat would not be allowed to leave Lakefield without a qualified crew.

Now a "qualified" crew implied the carrying of passengers, which had not been attempted up to this time. This suggested to Mr. Young that there must be something in the passenger business, so, having been forced into it, the "Fairy" became the little scorn from which the present splendid business has grown. The twenty-five years of expansion were not all smooth sailing, however.

The "Cruiser," the first boat on these waters, originally built by Thos. Gordon, passed under the control of Messrs. Wright and Eden, who, later on, dissolved partnership, Mr. Wright taking over the "Cruiser," and Mr. Eden building one of his own called the "Dawn."

Mr. Eden had certain well-defined peculiar ideas about the construction of a boat, which manifested itself in a high bow and stern. After a few years it was decided to increase her length. As she lay, cut in two, an old Scotchman was asked which end he would save. His answer was to the point: "Thraw awa' baith ens'," said he.

All those who recognise this old boat in its present form will see that the advice of the venerable Scotchman was followed in the case of the stern, at least, for the dark green tug that now tows gravel for the Bishop Construction Co. to Burleigh Falls certainly possesses a somewhat pretentious bow.

The "Cruiser" succumbed to fire, and was followed by the "Sunbeam," at first a side-wheeler, but, later on, owing to her unsuitability in negotiating the rocky channels of Stoney Lake, was converted into a screw steamer by Captain White. Her next owner changed her to a tug, renaming her "Alexander." She now does similar duty for Mr. Carew, the lumberman of Lindsay, under the name of "Arthur C."

Captain Reynolds next appeared with the "Golden City," but she suffered the same fate as the "Cruiser," being burned at Lakefield wharf. Sad to relate her owner was drowned shortly after from a canoe near Buckhorn.

A new and much larger steamer was planned to replace the "Golden City" by the son of the late Captain Reynolds, but owing to some peculiar settlement with the insurance companies she finally passed under the control of the Mossom Boyd Co. of Bobcaygeon, and the "Empress," as she was called, formed a link in the chain of steamers operated by the Trent Valley Navigation Co., plying between Bobcaygeon and Lakefield.

Ever since the building of the "Mary Ellen" in eighty-five, which was the first serious effort to bid for the passenger business, Mr. Young has ever kept in mind the maxim: "To get the business you must give the service," and has concentrated the Company's attention on Stoney Lake business, instead of scattering their energies over a long stretch of waterways, with the result that the residents of Stoney Lake have come to rely on them for a prompt and continuous service.

After nine years' faithful service the "Mary Ellen" was rebuilt and renamed the "Majestic," her dimensions being considerably increased.

Another nine year period of growth rendered necessary the acquisition of the "Stoney Lake," one of the finest steamers plying the waters of the Trent Valley Canal. She was built by the Bertram shipbuilding firm of Toronto, her hull being of steel, ninety-six feet over all, and a nineteen-foot beam. She is equipped with a powerful searchlight, and is lighted throughout by electricity.

The following year business had become so great, especially in the excursion line, that they were forced to safeguard their interests by the purchase of still another steamer. This time the "Empress" came within the fold. She, also, is of steel construction, though built on speedier lines than her sister the "Stoney Lake."

Two years passed by and the "Majestic" was entirely rebuilt and renamed the "Isinda," part of the steering wheel being the only thing saved as a relic from the old steamer. Nothing but the very best material entered into her construction, being built exclusively of blue oak obtained from Deer Bay.

Three first-class steamers may make a fine appearance, but the personality of the crews appeals most strongly to an appreciative public. No factor enters so largely into the continued success of this Company as the manner in which the officers of the boats get into touch with their customers, as they meet them year after year.

The completion of the Trent Valley Canal from Lake Ontario to Georgian Bay will present another epoch in the local steamboat business, and if the tourist trade increases as it has in recent years, this Company will undoubtedly meet the demand and branch out to still further greatness.

Unionists Voted For Veto Bill Rather Than Have New Peers Created

LONDON, August 12.—There will be no creation of "puppet" peers, as the four or five hundred noble Lords, whom the Liberal Government would have created had the Parliament bill been rejected by the Upper House on Thursday night, were dubbed by the Unionists.

When their strength came to the test of the vote, the no-surrenderites were found to be less numerous than they claimed to be. Thus, in the view of the Liberals, the will of the people has been made to prevail.

In the view of the Opposition, the "outrage upon the King and constitution" has been completed.

"To-day," says the Daily Mail, "the flood gates of revolution are opened, and the two chamber Government is swept away. The only satisfaction is that the power of imposing a brief check on reckless legislation has been retained by the Lords.

"The Ministers have made the King their unwilling agent in a coup d'etat, but the battle for British liberty has only just begun. Under the lead of Mr. Balfour, the Unionists will close their ranks for a supreme effort to restore the balance to our constitution, punish the outrage on the King and repeal the Parliament bill."

Whether or not this prediction will ever be realised, the chief fact of the moment is that the responsible leaders of both sides are heartily glad that the present phase of the so-called constitutional crisis has ended where it has.

MAJORITY WAS SMALL

The vote on the measure came on Thursday night, when the Veto bill was passed by the Lords by the narrow majority of 131 to 114. By this vote the House of Lords decided to accept what the Liberals contend is the will of the people, and adopted Viscount Morley's motion not to insist upon the Lords' amendments to the Parliamentary bill, which practically limits the power of the House of Lords to a two years' suspensary veto, and vastly increases the prerogatives of the House of Commons.

The great constitutional struggle, which began when the House of Lords nearly two years ago rejected the Budget of the Right Hon. David Lloyd-George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, is ended, for a time at least, with the greatest change to Great Britain's working constitution since the passage of the Reform bill.

VOTING LASTED AN HOUR

The process of voting consumed nearly an hour, and the result trembled in the balance until the last moment. The "die-hards" mustered in greater strength than the prophets had anticipated, and the Government owes its victory to the votes of between twenty and thirty Conservatives, who threw in their lot with the Liberals to save their own caste from loss of prestige by a great increase in its numbers, and the King from the necessity of the exercise of the Royal prerogative, from which everyone believes he was most anxious to be saved.

The Archbishops of Canterbury and York and nine Bishops lined up with the Government, although the ecclesiastical lords generally keep aloof from party questions. The Bishops of Bangor and Worcester went with the Halsburyites, the "last-ditchers."

It was noticeable that the highest ranks of the nobility furnished the fewest supporters of the Government. The Dukes of Norfolk, Leeds, Marlborough, Newcastle, Northumberland, Somerset, and Westminster voted with the Opposition, while the remainder abstained from voting.

"DRINKING THE HEMLOCK"

"Drinking the hemlock" had become an historic phrase in past months, and the gathering in the ancient chamber to witness this memorable humiliation was worthy of the occasion. Peeresses, Ambassadors and Commoners packed the galleries, and a group of Privy Councillors, exercising the prerogatives of their position, sat upon the steps of the throne. The benches, aisles, and floor were crowded.

Lieutenant-Colonel Arthur Lee, speaking in the House of Commons on Thursday, said this would be a black day in England's history if the House of Lords accepted the Veto bill, and the House of Commons cut adrift from the traditions of centuries to bestow salaries upon its members. Apparently the sentiment of the peers was in full accord with this description of the occasion. Lords frequently forgot the oppressive dignity which customarily marks the proceedings in the Upper Chamber, and fought for a hearing with the strenuousness of an American Congressman who has cherished a public building bill and sees the last hours of the session slipping past.

The Earl of Halsbury once went as far as to make a formal motion that one of his supporters be heard in preference to one peer who favored the Government.

When the voting began Lord Lansdowne withdrew to a position behind the throne, but his followers watched the issue eagerly. The bishops on both sides walked through the tellers first. A thrill of excitement marked the appearance of each notable, but none was greater than when Lord Rosebery appeared as a supporter of the Government.

As soon as the result was known several members of the Commons rushed from the galleries and into their own chamber, and whispered the news to the members. A great cheer followed the announcement of the Government's victory.

WHAT OF THE FUTURE?

The question of the hour is what effect the decision will have on the future fortunes of the Conservative party. Viscount Morley's definite announcement that enough Peers would be created permanently to swamp the Upper House if the Government did not prevail apparently swayed a few wavering Peers and decided the issue.

DIARY OF A CONSTITUTIONAL REVOLUTION

Nov. 30, 1909—Finance bill rejected in the House of Lords by 350 votes to 75.

March 29, 1910—Mr. Asquith introduces three resolutions: (1) That the Lords should have no word in the control of national finance; (2) that bills which have been carried in three successive sessions should become law without the consent of the House of Lords; (3) that Parliaments should be quinquennial.

April 4, 1910—Sir Robert Finlay's amendment in favor of a reform of the Lords rejected by 357 votes to 251. Money bills resolution carried by 339 to 237, Veto resolution by 301 to 246, and Quinquennial Parliament resolution by 334 to 236.

April 14, 1910—Parliament bill founded on these resolutions introduced.

May 6, 1910—Death of King Edward.

June 17, 1910—First meeting of the Conference between the Government and the Opposition leaders on the House of Lords' question.

Nov. 10, 1910—Last meeting of the Conference followed by an announcement that it had failed to come to an agreement.

Nov. 20, 1910—Parliament dissolved. General election. Government obtained a majority of 126.

Feb. 22, 1911—Parliament bill read a first time by 351 to 227.

May 29, 1911—Parliament bill read a second time in the House of Lords without a division.

June 28, 1911—Lords go into committee on Parliament bill. Amendments altering the whole character of the bill, and increasing the power of the Lords, carried.

July 20, 1911—Parliament bill, as amended, read a third time in the Lords without a division.

August 8, 1911—House of Commons rejects Lords' amendments, makes some minor alterations, and sends Parliament bill back to Lords.

August 10, 1911—Parliament bill is passed by House of Lords, as sent up from the Commons, by vote of 131 to 114.

NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

Saves Worry, Saves Money, Saves the Hair

If you want to free your head of dandruff and stop falling hair, you must sooner or later resort to Newbro's Herpicide.

By using Herpicide first you save yourself worry, which is desirable, you save money, which is a consideration, and you save your hair, which is the most important of all.

Why not profit by the experience of Mrs. S. A. Lee, of 110 South 4th St., Richmond, Va., who writes:

"Four years' residence in India ruined my hair until it was but two inches long and very thin. I tried everything in Europe and America without benefit until I was induced to use Herpicide. My hair is now long, soft and silky and natural color, while before it was quite gray. My friends never tire of admiring my hair."

Mrs. Lee's story is a typical history of hair troubles. After everything else fails Newbro's Herpicide brings relief. It would be just as effective if used first.

Newbro's Herpicide kills the dandruff germ and prevents falling hair. It stops itching of the scalp almost instantly. No matter what the claims of others, Herpicide is the only genuine original dandruff germ destroyer.

Elopers Traced By Press Men

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., August 11.—Walking arm in arm up the walk to the house of Mrs. Joseph Harris in this city, after an evening spent at a local theatre, Mrs. John Edward Paul Geraghty, who was Miss Julia Estelle French, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Tuck French, the millionaire society people of Tuxedo, N.Y., and her husband, who was recently a chauffeur in Newport, were confronted by newspaper men last night and admitted their identity.

The young couple, who had eloped from Newport and were married at Central Village, Conn., were dumbfounded when the newspaper men met them. The young couple arrived in Springfield Wednesday afternoon on a train from Worcester. They got off at the Oak Street Station in this city, and took a taxi-cab to the residence of Joseph Harris, carpenter and builder, whose wife is an aunt of young Geraghty. There they spent the night and day, and last evening went to a local theatre.

Young Mrs. Geraghty made a brief statement: "I love my husband; of course, I love Jack," she said, "and whatever my parents or relatives may try to do to break up our happiness will prove unsuccessful. I am very fond of my husband and love him truly. You may say that, and I guess that is all for now."

Neither would say what their plans were, although it was indicated at the house where they are staying that they intend to make it their headquarters for the present.

A WEAK CHESTED BOY

"My boy Frank seemed weak-chested, and took a very severe cold," writes Mrs. D. Stevens, Ninga, Man. "The many medicines used did not seem to benefit him, until we tried Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine and found it to be exactly what was wanted to cure him." No treatment is so thorough and effective as a cure for croup and bronchitis.

BURIED IN A GLACIER

A broken alpenstock bearing the carved name "Dr. J. Bean, Baltimore," has, the London Chronicle says, just been found by a Chamonix guide in the ice of the Glacier des Bossons, which "flows" down direct from the summit of Mont Blanc to the valley of Chamonix. The find recalls the most terrible accident in Alpine history, when eleven climbers perished on the summit of the Great White Mountain in violent snow-storms which lasted a week.

In September, 1870, Rev. G. McCorkindale, of Glasgow, and two Americans, Dr. J. Bean, of Baltifore, and Mr. Randall (both elderly men with little experience of the Alps), set out from Chamonix with eight guides, and safely reached the summit in doubtful weather. Hardly had the descent commenced when the snowstorm started, and not one of the eleven climbers was seen again alive. A strong force of guides some days later found the bodies of five victims, including the clergyman and Dr. Bean, but the other six were never found, having most probably fallen into crevasses. It is now thought, owing to the discovery of the broken alpenstock, that the bodies of the six climbers, who have been buried in their tomb of ice for the last forty-one years, have reached the end of the glacier, which travels at the rate of about 500 feet a year, and are not far from the surface of the ice at the lip of the Chamonix valley.

DEBATE WILL BE KEEN.

Hon. Mr. Lemieux Meets Bourassa at St. Hyachinthe To-morrow.

Montreal, Aug. 12.—Everywhere there is plenty of comment preparatory to the selection of candidates. Beyond that, however, the surface is calm as neither side is divulging anything of real importance.

The joint meeting Sunday next at St. Hyacinthe, when Henry Bourassa, the Nationalist leader, will reply to Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux on the naval policy and reciprocity programs of the Government, promises to be a big affair. It will be a keen battle of wits, as both men are able speakers. So great is the interest, that special trains will leave Montreal to accommodate the crowds who like to listen to wit and repartee.

Le Devoir, Mr. Bourassa's paper, announces it hears a gang of toughs will endeavor to break up the meeting, and recalls certain past gatherings wherein stones were hurled on the platform. The meeting will most likely be lively enough, but as to violence it is not expected it will go beyond words.

Half a dozen speakers will be heard before Mr. Lemieux is to make his long-expected attack on Henry Bourassa, and the Nationalist leader, will, it is promised, be in fighting form and so will the Minister of Marine.

Lemieux Nominated.

Perce, Quebec, Aug. 12.—At the Liberal convention held here Thursday, Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux was unanimously chosen as the Liberal candidate. Mr. Perron made a strong speech on reciprocity and the marine bill.

The Conservative convention, held at Grand River, nominated W. A. E. Flynn, advocate, of Perce, as Conservative candidate in Gaspe County.

Sin of Hon. Charles Murphy.

Ottawa, Aug. 12.—Rev. Father Forget, of Embrium, Russell County, yesterday declared that the reason that the French people of that constituency could not support Hon. Chas. Murphy was that the Secretary of State had in 1900 signed the petition presented by leading Irishmen of Ottawa to Rome, calling for the conversion of Ottawa University into an English-speaking institution. Father Forget said he spoke not only for himself but for the whole body of the French-Canadian Educational Association of Ontario. Officers of the latter, however, declare it is taking no part in politics. Alleged copies of the petition to Rome are in circulation in Russell[illegible]

Fierce Electric Storm.

Woodstock, Aug. 12.—A fierce electric storm visited this section between the hours of 12 and 1 o'clock Thursday night and considerable damage to the crops was done.

During the storm, the fine barn belonging to A. W. Huntley of West Oxford, was struck by lightning, and despite the efforts of the owner and a party of the A.O.U.W. members who were returning from Woodstock to Ingersoll at the time, the building and contents, including the entire season's crop, were destroyed.

Several surrounding buildings were saved as a result of hard work by a bucket brigade. Mr. Huntley had just threshed on Thursday and lost everything. There was $500 insurance on the building, but none on the contents.

James Tully, a man 72 years of age, and well known in and around the Town of Ingersoll, was found dead in the barn of R. Crotty at an early hour yesterday morning. Heart failure is supposed to have been the cause of death and no inquest will be held.

Clifford at Montreal.

Montreal, Aug. 12.—Private W. J. Clifford of Toronto, the hero of the Bisley meet, winner of the King's and Prince of Wales' prizes, returned to Canada by the steamer Victorian last night. Private Clifford returns with over $2,000 in prize money and a cabin full of cups, medals and badges.

Commenting on his trip, he said that the only thing of which he had to complain was the interference of some of the inexperienced range officers, who had evidently not mastered the whole book of the somewhat complicated Bisley rules. He said that he had been somewhat handicapped in the King's, especially by range officers, who took objection to his using the low position.

In this match, he said, a range officer stood over him at every shot and timed him with a stop watch, which naturally proved somewhat disconcerting. Apart from this, however, he had a royal time.

Private Clifford will not proceed to Toronto until Monday night, as by doing so he would anticipate the big civic reception prepared for that date.

At a meeting held yesterday morning at the Point Aux Trembles ranges by the P.Q.R.A., it was decided to give a dinner this evening at Cooper's to Private Clifford.

SUSPECTS JAILED

Confessed Slayer of Frank Tarro Tells Long Story to Detectives, and as a Result Eight Italians in Toronto's Foreign Quarter Are Locked Up—Detectives Hold Suspected Places—One is a Woman.

Toronto, Aug. 12.—Following upon the information given to Inspector of Detectives Duncan by Frank Griro, self-confessed murderer of Frank Sciarone or Tarro, eight Italians were arrested in a raid on three York street resorts by pretty much the whole detective force yesterday afternoon.

The prisoners up to date are: Joseph Rapola, a barber, 174 York street; Joseph Muselino, boarding-house keeper, said to be an influential member of the Black Hand; Jim Vecari, roomer at 160 York street; Mrs. Mary Clark, lives at 160 York street; Raffaio Raffale, 146 Christie street; Salvatore Sciarone, or Tarro, brother of murdered man; Sam Carollo, and Joseph Delzini.

Griro, who was committed for trial upon the murder charge in the Police Court yesterday, at the request of W. A. Henderson, counsel for the defence, made a long statement regarding the killing of Tarro, and the workings of the Black Hand in Toronto, to the inspector after his surrender Thursday night, and it was upon this and other information given that the arrests were made yesterday. All the prisoners but Joseph Rapola are charged with vagrancy.

Rapola, who is an Italian barber, with a shop at 174 York street, is charged with selling the gun which killed Tarro to the murderer on the morning of the killing. He says that he received $10 for it and that Griro came to his shop, saying that his own gun was out of order and that he wanted to buy Rapolo's because it would be sure not to fail. Rapola says that Griro was always telling him that he intended to shoot someone, but that he did not say so on the morning that he bought the revlover. The penalty for selling such a weapon when the purchaser exhibits no permits from the police, is a fine of from $25 to $200, or six months imprisonment, or both. The seller may also be deported.

The other eight are believed to be connected with the Black Hand more or less closely and are charged with vagrancy.

Joseph Muselino is 32 years of age. He has been in this country for several years and is a naturalized citizen. When the police descended upon his fruit store and boarding-house at 160 York street, they found him and several others there. A number of vicious looking knives and stilettos made of filed were found, which Muselino says belonged to his boarders. In the fruit store were found only three bunches of bananas and a box of macaroni. The police believe that this store is not a real one. Muselino declared that if not wanted he would go to the States or to Italy. He said that he made his living from his boarders' fees.

Jim Vecari, who lives at this house, is a sickly looking lad. He says that he has an order from the city for admission to the hospital and that he has not worked recently through ill-health.

Ruffino Raffaele was picked up at the same place, but says he lives at 146 Christie street. He is believed to have been engaged in the white slave trade. He is 22 years and single.

Mrs. Mary Clarke says that she lives with her husband at the Muselino house.

Outlaws Honor Earl Grey.

Montreal, Aug. 12.—The Canadian branch of the Royal Caledonian Curling Society will make a unique presentation to Earl Grey as a souvenir of Canada and a token of appreciation for the interest he has taken in the game.

In former years these presentations have taken place in Montreal when the Governor-General passed through on his way back to the Old Country, but this will take place in Ottawa as soon as His Excellency sets the date.

The souvenir will be a jewelled curling stone in miniature, the stone part being made of a Canadian pearl weighing some thirty-six grains. An address by Rev. Mr. Barclay will accompany the jewel.

Gladys Terryberry Home.

St. Catharines, Ont., Aug. 12.—Fred Wilson and 15-year-old Gladys Terryberry, whom he lured away from her home here three weeks ago arrived in St. Catharines, from Ann Arbor, Mich., yesterday morning at 3 o'clock, in charge of an officer. In the Police Court, Wilson, in answer to the charge of abducting a girl under 16, said he wanted to see a lawyer and was remanded for a week.

Both Wilson and the girl spent the remainder of the night in the cells. The girl was examined by the magistrate in private court. Wilson who had been working as lock-tender up to recently, tramped for five years.

Indemnity Was Paid.

London, Aug. 12.—The indemnity of £184,627 (approximately $900,000) awarded by King George as arbitrator, to the United States in settlement of the Alsop claim against Chile, was paid at the American Embassy yesterday by Augustin Edwards, the Chilean Minister to Great Britain. The money was tendered last Wednesday, but some question as to the rate of exchange was raised and the transaction was not completed. The differences were subsequently settled.

Hold Twelfth In Montreal.

Montreal, Aug. 12.—There was a preliminary meeting Thursday of the members of the Orange Order to consider the holding of a procession and demonstration next year on July 12th. It is a good many years since there was an Orange demonstration on the streets here, and the meeting Thursday night mostly talked of the scheme [illegible]

WAITERS ARRESTED

Fifty-Seven Stewards For No Apparent Reason Suddenly Withdraw From the Hash Distributing Business and Coldly Look On—Five Vanloads of Police Await the Ship's Arrival In Montreal.

Montreal, Aug. 12.—Fifty-seven men, comprising the entire contingent of first and second-class stewards on board the Allan liner Victorian, were arrested and driven to jail on the arrival of that vessel from Liverpool yesterday afternoon. Their arrest was due to the fact that they had refused to perform their duties at Rimouski, and during the voyage up the river from that point. The entire fifty-seven were taken into custody without a blow being struck and without any signs of trouble, and seemed somewhat surprised that the company should have called in shore law to settle the difficulty.

The trouble started when the vessel arrived at Rimouski yesterday morning and the stewards refused to put the mail ashore. This has been a grievance for some time and was the cause of some little trouble last year, but since the spring, when the Allan liners took to putting all the mail, except that for the Maritime Provinces ashore at Quebec, the amount handled at Rimouski has been so small as not to cause trouble.

The mail was put ashore with some little delay, but both at breakfast and at lunch time, the stewards refused to serve meals to the passengers and watched them in scornful silence. The chief steward, the second steward, and four stewardesses did their best to satisfy the passengers. The cooks and the third-class stewards did not take part in the movement.

The officers of the ship sent word ahead and when the vessel arrived here at 6.30 p.m., five police patrols, loaded with constables, were at the docks. The stewards were taken into custody without trouble. The only sign that anything unusual had taken place was the fact that the passengers carried their own hand baggage, while sailors handled the heavier stuff.

The authorities of the Allan line office say they cannot understand what caused the men to act as they did, as their wages were raised only two months ago and at that time they expressed themselves as satisfied.

"It must be an echo of the dock strike on the other side," said one official.

Three Canadians Named.

Ottawa, Aug. 12.—The Canadian section of the International Waterways Commission has been appointed under the new treaty. It consists of Sir George Gibbons, London, Aime Geiffrion, K.C., Montreal, and A. P. Barnhill, St. John, N.B. The United States will also appoint three members. The commission will have jurisdiction over all matters relating to the International waterways of the two countries. Sir George Gibbons is the only reappointed member of the old commission.

Still Hot In Germany.

Berlin, Aug. 12.—The heated term continues unabated throughout Germany, and during the past few days the temperature has been higher than before. Deaths from sunstroke are reported from all sections. A water famine threatens some districts where the brooks are drying up. The thermometer in the side streets of Berlin yesterday registered 99 in the shade.

4,000 Thrown Out of Work.

Biddeford, Maine, Aug. 12—The Pepperell and Laconia Cotton Mills of the Pepperell Manufacturing Co. will shut down September 2 and will resume work September 11. The corporation employes 4,500 operatives.

London, Eng., Aug. 12.—It is expected that the House of Commons will rise about Aug. 16, necessitating an autumn session, beginning about Nov. 1. Hamar Greenwood, M.P., and his wife will sail for Canada and the Far East on Aug. 20.

Niobe Enquiry.

Ottawa, Aug. 12.—Deputy Minister Desbarats issued a further statement yesterday afternoon in which he characterized as false stories said to have emanated from Halifax, one to the effect that Commander McDonald, of the Niobe had surrendered his sword to Admiral Kingsmill, and the other that officers of the Niobe had been to a ball in Yarmouth the night of the accident.

"If Commander McDonald left his sword behind him it was because he found it inconvenient to carry it," said the deputy.

An enquiry into the accident is being conducted, but pending its outcome there will be no action against anyone. "I have yet to receive evidence that any officers of the Niobe were to blame."

Woman Stonebreaker Pardoned.

Iola, Kansas, Aug. 12.—Upsetting the decree of Judge Smeltzer of the Iola Municipal Court that Mrs. Reese should work outes a fine imposed on her last Monday on the rock pile, like a man, Mayor Boltinger pardoned the woman at noon yesterday. He ordered her release yesterday afternoon, thus ending a controversy of four days' standing between the judge, the street commissioners, the police, the public of Iola and some of the public outside as to whether it was indelicate to compel a woman to don bloomers and break rocks.

Body Discovered on Beach.

Grimsby, Aug. 12.—The body of Charles Rossecal, who was drowned in Lake Ontario off Grimsby Beach on Friday evening, Aug. 4, came to the surface yesterday.

Coroner Alexander of Grimsby was notified and directed that an inquest was unnecessary. Rossecal's friends in Berlin has been notified and are expected here this morning.

CROP BULLETIN.

Dominion Record Shows Promise of Big Yield.

Ottawa, Aug. 12.—The condition of field crops in Canada is presented in a bulletin of the census and statistics office issued yesterday for July 31, and shows good averages for all provinces as well as for all crops. Fall wheat was hurt by the hard winter in Ontario, but fared better in Alberta. The estimated yield is 23.94 bushels for the former province, and 27.89 bushels for the latter. The total estimated yield is 17,706,000 bushels.

The condition of spring wheat at the end of July was 90, for the whole of Canada, being 85 to 95 in the Maritime Provinces, 80 to 89 in Ontario and Quebec, 90 to 96 in the Northwest provinces and 85 in British Columbia.

Oats and barley have an average condition of 88 for Canada, 85 to 95 in the Maritime Provinces, 85 to 90 in Ontario and Quebec, 88 to 100 in the Northwest provinces, and 87 to 99 in British Columbia. Rye, pease and beans range from 76 to 84 in Canada, and buckwheat 81.85.

Mixed grains have a condtion of 86, which is 14 per cent. less than last year, and flax is 91, which is nearly 20 better. The average of corn for husking is 85, and of potatoes 85.54—being in each case a little higher than last year.

Potatoes, turnips, and mangolds range from 81 to 85, or about the same as a year ago.

Hay and clover, and alfalfa are 80 to 85, which is a little lower in each case than last year. Corn for fodder has an average condition of 87, sugar beets of 79, and pasture of 79. The eastern provinces are lower than the figures quoted for the whole of Canada, and the western provinces are higher. The highest averages are given for Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. Sugar beets have a condition of 81 in Ontario and Alberta, where they are grown to supply the sugar factories.

THE BOOM IS COMING

THE Porcupine Goldfields has, in our own opinion, had its slump, and according to conservative mining men the big boom is coming—September 15th is the date set by them. We predict that when this date is reached, the present market prices on:

HOLLINGER—REA MINES—DOME EXTENSION—SWASTIKA—VIPOND—PRESTON—EAST DOME—FOLEY-O'BRIEN—PEARL LAKE

will be increased at least 25 per cent. When gold stocks begin to go up they increase in value more rapidly than any other kind of securities. Our advice is, "Buy any of the above mentioned stocks immediately at market."

Our special Canadian Weekly Market Letter will keep you posted on the Porcupine and Cobalt districts.

Sent free upon request.

We will be glad to execute orders for the purchase or sale of active, listed mining stocks, either for cash or on margin of 33 1-3 per cent., and will accept certificates when properly endorsed, as collateral margin against purchases.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS.

ANY PERSON who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties.—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts, a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3 per acre. Duties—Must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption six months in each of six years from date of home stead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

BLACK CHAMPION WILL FIGHT IN SEPTEMBER

On July 16 Jack Johnson and Bombardier Billy Wells signed public articles to fight for the heavyweight title.

The men will fight late in September and probably in the open air. A record crowd is expected at the contest. Already a scandal has been brewed, the story being that Johnson will lose to Wells. If he does, the gamblers will clean up a fortune, for the odds are five to one on the black panther. Wells isn't conceded a chance, even by bred-in-the-bone Englishmen.

Johnson is hog fat. He weighs 280. He fought Jeffries at 210. That the Wells fight is a joke to him is shown by the fact that Johnson's theatrical contracts will keep him busy well into September and that aside from sparring with Monte Cutler, which does not make him perspire, he isn't exercising.

The articles signed in public call for $40,000, the richest purse ever offered in England, to be split 65 per cent. to the winner and 35 to the loser. So confident is Johnson, apparently, that he did not stipulate $30,000. win, lose or draw.

Wells is two inches taller than Johnson, weighs 195 and can hit like a mule's kick, but he lacks the experience he should have to meet a man of Johnson's caliber, unless the stories circulated are true.

Butler To Race Lou Scholes

The aquatic sports to be held on Lake Ontario in front of the Canadian National Exhibition grounds this season make up a wonderful program. There's the L.Y.R.A. regatta to fill the waterfront with its hundreds of yachts and the fleetest craft on the lakes to take part in the international races for the Fisher and George Cups. There's the wonderful Argonaut eight pitted against the pick of the crack oarsmen in New York; there's Butler, champion of America, in a race with Lou Scholes, who won the Diamond Sculls at Henley. There's war canoe races, the most spectacular and exciting of aquatic competitions and there's motor boat races. No such aquatic pprogramme was ever before presented to the Canadian public.

GRADUAL DECLINE OF BATTING AVERAGES

Since the pitchers of the National and American Leagues have settled down to work there has been a gradual decline in the batting averages. Many of the athletes who were hitting the ball around 350 per cent. have tumbled, many of them dropping out of the .300 class.

The American League, according to the last batch of unofficial figures, has thirty-five men in the .300 class, while the National has only twenty. Either the Americans have the cream of the batsmen or the National possesses wonderful pitchers, superior to those in the younger organisation. The latter point is advanced by several critics who can see nothing good in the American League. They may be right, but the National League holds few better twirlers than Russell Ford, Walter Johnson, Joe Wood, Ed Walsh, Doc White, Jack Coombs, Chief Bender, George Mullin, Ray Collins, Ed. Karger, Yean Gregg, Ed. Plank, and a few others. To be sure Karger was passed up by the Cardinals and made good for the Boston Red Sox, but Earl Moore and George Suggs had but indifferent success in the American, only to blossom out as stars in the other organization.

In the matter of batting averages the two major leagues present the greatest contrast of years. Every club in the American League save Washington and the Browns is batting better than the Pirates, who lead the National. Think of six teams in one league being better batsmen than the leader in the other, but that is the way they stack up.

Two American League clubs, the Athletics and Detroit, as a team hit better than .300. Not since the days of Brouthers, Cap Anson, Ed. Delehanty, Roger Connor, and that crowd of fence breakers has a major league club pummelled the ball so extensively. A mark of .260 was big a few years back. The Pirates lead the National with nine points above that figure and the remainder of the clubs trail along behind, as they did in the days of yore.

Another theory advanced to explain the harder hitting in the American is that the National League does not use the same lively ball, although the spheres are made in the same factory.

The records of first basemen and outfielders this season show the big difference between the lively and the old balls. More fliers and fewer grounders are being hit this season, and a big percentage of the grounders travel so fast they go through the infield for safeties.

First basemen seldom made less than 10 putouts a game last season. This year the records show first basemen making 5, 6, and 7 putouts day after day. Hal Chase made two putouts in a recent game at Cleveland

LANGFORD EASY WINNER

NEW YORK, AUG. 12.—Sam Langford, the Canadian negro, won from Jim Smith, in the fifth round of a scheduled ten-round bout at the Fairmount A. C., the referee stopping the bout after Smith had gone to the floor for the count of nine. Smith was practically out when the bout was stopped; he was on his feet at the finish, but staggering, and to all appearances without ability further to protect himself.

Both men seemed to be in fine condition as they enetered the ring, although Langford was apparently not trained down anywhere near to the weight of Smith, outweighing his opponent by something like fifteen pounds. Langford took the lead at the start, Smith's right and left swings not landing, while Langford twice uppercut the Westchester man, and also got in some additional hard smashes, and one of Smith's swings, which finally landed on Langford's head, had no appreciable effect on the Bostonian. In the second round Smith clinched several times at close quarters, and Langford pounded him in the stomach, the white man being apparently unable to protect himself.

Smith had ben lauding occasionally on Langford's head, and in the third round finally got to his adversary's body. At the end of the round however, Langford was in fine trim, while Smith had a gash over his left eye, which bled profusely. In the fourth round Smith sent a hard left to the body and a right to Langford's head. Langford then rushed him to the ropes, and Smrus, overborne by the Canadian negro's attacks was being pummelled almost at Langford's will. He was taking a gruelling punishment, but still standing up to it. One of Langford's jabs reopened the cut in Smith's face. The round was all Langford's and the bell found Smith groggy.

When the fifth round started Smith came up seemingly all right, but for his bad eye. He swung rather wildly, but one of his blows landed on Langford's head and another on his body. These stung Langford, who went at Smith like a wild man, sending in rights and lefts which staggered Smith, and then with a left hook to the jaw sent him to the floor. Smith rolled over on his back, but came up at the count of nine. He staggered to the ropes and Sam was ready to go at him gain, but Referee Joh wved the Bostonian away and stopped the bout. Smith's handlers jumped into the ring and escorted him to his corner.

BASEBALL NOTES

Raymond Boyd, Ottawa's star pitcher, has been sold to the Cincinnati club.

Youngstown has a great hitter in Joe Phillips. He is leading the O. P. league in batting.

Umpire Ralph Frary, who was tried out in the National League this season, has returned to the North-Western League.

Pitcher Cecil Ferguson, who was sold to Memphis some time ago, is still in Boston, working out in the Rustlers' yard.

Rumour has it that Des Moines will be dropped from the Western League and will be given a berth in the Three I League.

Portland has a great team this season, and the Oregon City has a fine chance to win the Pacific Coast League pennant.

Manager Steve Flanagan of the Brockton team says that in Hearkisen he has the star outfielder in the New England League.

President Carson says that the Central League will play out its schedule, and that no further changes in the circuit are contemplated

The Eau Claire and La Crosse teams of the Minnesota-Wisconsin League recently played nineteen innings, La Crosse copping the game, 1 to 0.

The Boston and the St. Louis Americans and the Cincinnati Nationals are all bidding for Pitcher Will Kirwin of the Danville Three-I League team.

The Augusta team has been taken over by the directors of the South Atlantic League, and will be known as the S. A. L. team the balance of the season.

From a Southern League scribe: Mother Ryan—you remember the dear old girl—dropped in yesterday. Too high-priced for the Cotton States—that's how she explains the harsh rattle of a can at her heels.

San Bernardino, Santa Barbara, Ventura, Oxard, Venice, Doyles, and San Diego, Calif., have organized a winter league, and will open the season after the closing of the major leagues. Quite a number of big leaguers have agreed to join the organizations.

The day of loafing for Kelley's men did them a world of good, for they have been playing steady ball for the last three weeks. The men welcomed the day-off.

McIntyre, who was down South at Charlottesville with Torontos this spring, and now with London, held Guelph to three hits in the Canadian League. It was his first start in two weeks. Bob McWhirter was robbed of a home run on a weird decision at the play by Umpire Groney.

Detroit can beat every team in the American League on the series except their "jiag"—New York. On Thursday New York defeated Detroit in a loose fielding, hard hitting game, by 12—5. Bauman, the New England recruit, whom Hughey Jennings is banking on for a regular in 1912, played second base, taking Delahanty's place. He played a fine game. His only hit was a triple.

The New York National League Club within five days will receive either $300 from the Marion Club, of the Ohio State League, or the title to the services of Player Meehan, of the latter club. The National Baseball Commission yesterday entered judgment by default in these terms against Marion, the dispute being over alleged non-payment for Meehan's contract, which was purchased from New York in September, 1910.

With the return of President Navin of the Detroit Baseball Club, from the East yesterday, it was announced that work on the new $300,000 concrete stands at Bennett Park would commence shortly after the close of the playing season. The new stands will seat 20,000 people.

William Douglas, a pitcher of the Mason, Ga., club, who has won twenty-four out of thirty-one games this season, will join the Chicago American Club here on September 1, it was announced yesterday.

Ty Cobb has set another world's record by scoring 100 runs in 96 games. What this means is realized when you remember that last year he was the only man in the American League to score 100 times in the entire season of 154 games. He made 106 runs last year, and the nearest men to him were Lajoie, of Cleveland, and Speaker, of Boston, with 92 each. Now Cobb, who has been going like a whirlwind all of this season, has already scored as many runs as he did all of last year, and the year is only about two-thirds over. Cobb has scored over 100 runs in each of the last three seasons. He did not do so in 1907 and 1908 because he was batting behind Sam Crawford and driving Sam around more often than he scored himself. In 1909 Jennings changed the batting order of the Tigers, and placed Cobb in front of Crawford. That year he scored 116 runs.

Pretty nearly every day gives the National League pennant outlook a different tinge, but the events of the last few days favour a race between the Cubs and Pirates down the stretch. This impression is subject to revision.

Marty O'Toole, the $22,500 pitcher, has been beaten three times since Pittsburg paid the record price, too. Reproductions of photographs of the check for $22,500 have been going the rounds of the sporting pages.

New York Herald.—Isn't anybody going to stop that man "Ty" Cobb? Only got on bases four times. Went to bat with a bandaged left hand, slammed out a triple, then a single, waited for four balls, was safe on an error, stole two bases—"to be continued in our next."

From Pittsburg comes the news that Manager Fred Clarke will work from the bench in future; that Honus Wagner will likely lead the National this year, his present hitting average being .363, and that Marty O'Toole will join the club any day now.

SPORTING NOTES

SPEED HELPS

Johnny Kling was not specific when he said the New York Giants might win the pennant on their speed, but his observation was keen, as the following base-stealing records of six of the Giants' regulars taken from the most recent figures will convince you: Devore 34, Murray 34, Shodgrass 33, Herzog 32, Merkle 29, and Larry Doyle 24. Such speed is a great factor in a pennant race.

HARD TO SWALLOW

Of all the rot that was ever handed out this offer of Manager Morgan to give $1,000 for every round that Champion Wolgast stands before K. O. Brown in the ring, is the limit. This fellow Morgan is "four-flushing" and he knows it. In a straight up and up contest Wolgast would beat the slant-eyed youth to a frazzle, and it would be only a matter how long the affair would last. In "little old New York" they will gobble anything but gullible as they are, they can hardly swallow this latest yarn. Brown hasn't anything but a punch and an awkward style, and any time he has gone the limit with a good man it is a cinch that it was a "frame."

McGINLEY IN HARD LUCK

Jim McGinley's usefulness as far as Toronto is concerned is pretty nearly over. The veteran was batted hard yesterday though it is conceded that had he been anyway lucky the Indians would not have secured their five runs in the first innings. Umpire Guthrie got him in a hole on the first batsman and a triple resulted. Then a pop-fly fell safe and another drive took an awkward bound when a double play seemed certain. McGinley has been of great service to the club in the past but the indications are that he has reached the end of his tether.

NOW FOR BALTIMORE

Now comes the tug of war. Toronto opens a five game series with Baltimore to-morrow and the contest will have a great bearing upon the chances of the two teams. The birds are going along pretty well just now but Manager Kelley figures that if his pitchers stand up that the Leafs will take at least 3 of the 5 battles, if not more. Vickers and Dygert are the most reliable pitchers on the Baltimore staff and they have not been able to do much with the Kelleyite this season. South-paw Frock may prove the real stumbling block but he is inclined to be erratic and the Toronto's are not much afraid of him. Rudolph will open the ball to-morrow while Backman and Teareau will officiate in the double header on Saturday.

CREDIT FOR THE DONS

The real heroes of the Henley regatta this year were Fred Lepper, L. A. Willis, W. B. Crawford, F. H. Carter and "Eddie" Shea, all members of the Don Rowing Club. The first four are the members of the Don crew which won the junior four in record time, while the fifth man is the coach of the Dons. Remember these boys have not had even a roof over their heads since the first of July, and have been forced to do their rowing in borrowed boats, and yet they went out and won the junior championships in record time and then rowed a good second to the Argos' senior four when they lowered the mark for the fours yet one more notch. The Dons themselves are singing the praises of Shea, to whom they say all the credit for their victories are due. It was Shea who, with the spectacle of the ruined clubhouse at his feet, got the boys out in their borrowed shell and kept them at it in spite of the difficulties and discomforts such as dressing behind hedges, that took all the pleasure away and made it a business. No showers for the Dons, and only the crudest rub downs on the sand for the boys who went out in a boat which had not been off the rack for several years, and trimmed Hamilton in record time. Shea is a quiet chap, but he has that magnetism which not only enables him to overcome all difficulties himself but which draws other hardy spirits around him ready to do whatever he commands. Shea may not turn out oarsmen with the finish that Vivyan Nicholls gives his crews, but the crews that have been under Shea's charge are in good condition and can be relied on to row until they drop in their places, and what more can one ask?

MEDICINAL QUALITIES OF FRUIT

From Farm and Dairy.

Ripe apples eaten raw and thoroughly masticated are excellent for digestive troubles.

The pear shares the medicinal qualities just recited, and in addition, is somewhat more easily digested by weak stomachs than is the apple. The quince is only used in the form of preserves, as a rule. It is said that owing to its excessive astringency when raw, it is employed by the peasantry of Europe to stop hemorrhages by placing slices of it on wounds.

The curative powers of the grapes are established facts, as the history of the "cures" in which the vine plays the chief part, testifies.

Rhubarb, owing to the large proportion of oxalic acid that it contains, is a capital anti-scorbutic. In the case of minor forms of scurvy it acts as a curative. The young plant, when stewed and eaten at breakfast, is of great assistance to the constipated. Its laxative qualities in general are well known.

Bananas should be used with caution by the constipated.

The fig possesses laxative powers of a high order. This is also true of dates and tamarinds

Peaches, apricots, and nectarines have marked laxative effects.

STRIKE IS SETTLED

Carters and Dockers Have Already Been Settled With and Then Lighter Workers Get a Ten-Hour Day and 25 Per Cent More Pay Serious Outlook Passes Away—Supplies Are Now Moving.

London, Aug. 12—The strike of dock men, lightermen, coal porters and car men, which for several days has seriously disturbed all business in London and resulted in a shortage of foodstuffs, coal, petrol and other necessities, was ended last night with the settlement of the lightermen's dispute. The men were conceded a ten-hour day and an increase of about 25 per cent. in wages. The situation had become so critical that troops were held in readiness at Aldershot and other places to proceed to the capital and intervene.

Last night the strike committee issued a manifesto congratulating the men on the signal victory obtained and declaring the strike ended.

The dispute of the carters and dockers already had been settled and yesterday there only remained a compromise with the lightermen to bring about a return to normal conditions. Until a late hour last night it was doubtful whether an agreement would be reached and both Home Secretary Churchill and Sydney Buxton, president of the Board of Trade, cancelled their week-end engagement in order to remain at the Board of Trade where conferences looking to the ending of the strike had been in progress. It is now expected that all the men will resume work on Monday.

The evening in London passed quietly. There were no street disturbances and owing to police protection the transfer of meat and other foodstuffs by the circuitous underground railway connections from the depots to the markets had been effected. With the supplies thus secured it is expected that the people will feel less inconvenience to-day.

The Home Office last night issued a circular to the chief constables throughout the country calling attention to the provisions of the law dealing with intimidation and molestation in trade disputes and instructing them how to act.

City's Trade at Standstill.

Liverpool, Aug. 12.—The strike situation here continues critical. The attempts of the Lord Mayor and others to arrange a settlement of the trouble failed, and the trade of the city is at a standstill. The coaling of the steamer Teutonic was stopped by the strikers. A conference later took place between the managers of the White Star Line and the leaders of the strike in an endeavor to effect a compromise, but it was without result.

Conflicts between the police and strikers occurred in various quarters of the city Thursday night.

Sheridan Is Captured.

Orillia, Aug. 12.—Arthur Sheridan, charged with the murder of Ross H. Ford at a country dance in North Orillia on Wednesday night, was lodged in jail here at noon yesterday. Sheridan was captured near Washago by two farmers who detained him and telephoned to Orillia for help.

Chief Reid brought the prisoner to town, and he will come up for examination before Police Magistrate Clark. At the inquest held yesterday afternoon a post-mortem was ordered to be made, and an order for the burial of the body this afternoon was issued. The only witnesses examined were the chief of police and the undertaker, who testified to bringing the body to Orillia. The inquest will be resumed on Monday.

There was intense excitement when Sheridan was brought into town.

Search For an Heiress.

Paris, Aug. 12.—A search is being made in France for an Englishwoman who is an heiress to considerable property.

Twenty-five years ago an English girl of fifteen, named Crosskill, came to Paris to live with an uncle whose name is unknown. Her mother had just been killed in a railway accident, and the girl's father, Walter Crosskill, a carpenter by trade, went to Canada, where he lately died intestate.

It is his daughter who is now being sought for to receive the estate. Nothing was ever heard of Miss Crosskill after she came to Paris, and the search, which has extended over two continents, has so far proved fruitless. She would now be a woman of about forty.

Met Terrible Death.

Montreal, Aug. 12.—Orville Larose, a carpenter, living at 737 Aylmer street, met with a terrible death at 11 o'clock yesterday morning, when working on a gallery at the back of the residence of Mr. L. Fortin, 91 Fifth avenue, Viaville.

Larose lost his balance and fell from the gallery, which was on the third storey, to the court below. When picked up he was in a dying condition, as his skull had been fractured. He died in the ambulance on the way to the hospital. Larose leaves a widow and four young children.

Wife-Beater Gets the Limit.

Montreal, Aug. 12.—"I am forced to give you the maximum sentence," said Judge Bazin to Raoul Niverville, charged with beating his wife, "six months hard labor. I am sorry that the law will not allow me to make the sentence more severe, because you certainly deserve it. I should like to see you given the lash."

Sir William at Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Aug. 12.—Sir William Mackenzie has arrived in the city to negotiate with the city for the sale of the Winnipeg Electric Railway.

Pope Much Better.

Rome, Aug. 12.—The condition of Pope Pius took a decided turn for the better yesterday afternoon. So well satisfied were the Vatican physicians with the improvement that they predicted a recovery within ten days, barring unforeseen complications.

Following this encouraging declaration, Cardinal Merry del Val, the papal secretary of state, who has remained constantly near the Pope since the latter's illness, definitely decided to go to his villa at Montemario next Sunday for the remainder of the summer.

SALARIED NOBLES.

Chancellor Lloyd-George Issues List of Pensioners.

London, Aug. 12.—Mr. Lloyd-George has furnished a list of those members of the British House of Lords who are in receipt of salaries or pensions out of public funds.

Under the head of salaries are included those of various Cabinet, judicial, and Household offices which are given in ordinary books of reference. The Duke of Argyll receives a salary of $5,500 as Governor of Windsor Castle, the Bishop of Oxford $508 as Chancellor of the Order of the Garter, the Bishop of Ripon $35 as Clerk of the Closet, Lord Mansfield $485 as Usher of the Order of the Thistle, and the Duke of Hamilton $2[illegible] as Hereditary Keeper of Holyrood Palace. Eleven peers receive army pay and allowances.

Under the head of pensions, Lord Knollys receives $6,500 a year, and Lord Suffield and Lord Stamfordham $2,500 a year. Six peers draw pensions amounting altogether to $80,000 for naval and military services. The political pensions are: Lord Cross, $10,000, and Lord Balfour $6,000. Six peers draw naval pensions, and 32 draw military pensions. Twelve peers have pensions for civil services.

Portuguese Troops Rebel.

Lisbon, Aug. 12.—In consequence of insubordination in the 17th infantry, quartered in this city, 18 sergeants were arrested and imprisoned in the fortress yesterday. A part of the 17th infantry at Beja planned a mutiny under the leadership of a sub-lieutenant, who, upon being denounced, committed suicide by cutting his throat.

Peterborough as a Residential City

PETERBOROUGH is an ideal city from a residential point of view. No place of its size in Canada offers its citizens so much in this respect as does Peterborough. Charmingly situated, with well laid out streets, the majority of which are nicely shaded by beautiful trees, with a happy, industrious, sociable and democratic population of eighteen thousand people, the Electric City is indeed a "homey" city. Blessed with a pure water supply (typhoid fever is happily nearly always absent) Peterborough is noted for its healthful qualities. She has a splendid sewer system, a radial railway extending over the principal sections of the city, and beautiful parks. The religious needs of the inhabitants are well looked after by over two dozen handsome churches of almost every denomination, while the educational facilities rank with the best in Canada. In addition to the public schools, there is a magnificent Collegiate Institute, with a splendid staff of teachers, a Provincial Normal School, and a well equipped business college, while the Peterborough Conservatory of Music affords every opportunity for a musical education.

Peterborough has a paid fire brigade, splendidly housed in a fine new station, and equipped with the best of modern fire fighting apparatus. A complete electrical alarm system has been installed, and there is ample fire protection.

The city is well provided with hospitals, having three fine institutions, Nicholls Hospital, St. Joseph's Hospital and the Queen Mary Isolation Hospital, the latter only recently completed.

The amusements of the people are well looked after. Peterborough has a commodious and pretty Opera House, at which are seen during the season a great many of the best of the metropolitan successes, and in addition a number of theatoriums.

There is a large skating and hockey rink, and a big curling rink, for the benefit of those who are devotees of the various winter pastimes. Riverside Park, a charmingly situated grounds, with a grandstand, and surrounded by a good track, is an ideal spot for athletic pastimes, as is Nicholls Oval, the latter thrown open for the use of the public at all times.

From an economical point of view, Peterborough with its comparatively low tax rate, naturally appeals. Its stores can bear comparison with those of cities many times its size, both in the excellence of their stock and in their buildings.

Almost everything that man requires can be purchased in Peterborough's stores and as cheaply as the larger cities, while of course in the matter of butter, eggs and farm products generally, the advantage is all on the side of Peterborough.

No city in the Dominion is more favoured than Peterborough in the matter of summer resorts. The city is situated on the Otonabee River, itself a beautiful winding stream offering unlimited facilities for boating, bathing, fishing and camping. Twenty miles away in one direction is Rice Lake, a large body of water noted for its fishing and shooting. This is easily reached by excellent steamer service from Peterborough, and an opportunity is given the citizens to spend the week-ends at this beautiful spot.

Six miles away in another direction is Chemong Park, a magnificent summer resort nestling on the shores of Chemong Lake. Here a very large number of Peterborough people have summer homes, where they spend the warm weather. The easy accessibility of this resort makes Chemong Park very popular with business men, who send their families to the park for the summer and who are able to get out each evening and return in time for business. A motor-bus service between the city and the park renders this easy of accomplishment.

Then there is Stoney Lake, known as the gem of the Kawartha Lakes, a beautiful body of water, studded with some 900 islands of different sizes, and upon the larger of which have been built handsome summer homes. Stoney Lake is only a score of miles from Peterborough and is easily reached by boat through the Trent Canal, or by train to Lakefield, and then by the boats of the Stoney Lake Navigation Company, which make three trips daily from that point. Hundreds of Peterborough people spend the summer, or at least a part of it, at Stoney Lake. Like Chemong, it is very convenient for business men who have to return to the city during the week to attend to business.

It will be seen from this brief resume of the summer resorts in the immediate proximity of the city that Peterborough is an ideal city to live in for people who appreciate the pleasure of getting back to nature for a period each year. A few short hours takes one away from the heat and noise of the city into the bright lands and happy waters of the lake district, where business worries are for the time being at least forgotten in the beauties of nature.

MAITLAND AVENUE, ALL OF WHICH HAS BEEN BUILT UP RECENTLY

THE ELECTRIC INSTALLATION CO., LIMITED

Though only established for the past five months in Peterborough, the Electric Installation Company, Ltd., has been and is playing a very active part in the installation of electrical apparatus and the wiring in a great many places of business and residences throughout this Electric City of Canada. They have taken some large contracts for their work, and is rapidly becoming a large institution, under the able and aggressive management of Mr. J. A. Ash, who is well and favorably known in this city as a practical electrician, and who gives employment to four expert men to assist him in the execution of his many duties.

The office and warerooms are situated at 293 George Street, where a splendid assortment of electrical appliances are displayed in large quantities.

The head office of the company, however, is in Belleville, Ontario, with Mr. W. R. Ostrom as its general manager, who has guided this firm through a very successful career, whose business has always been carried on in a most careful and straightforward manner. Mr. Ash is a firm believer in the city's advancement, and is a hard worker for its future progress.

FRANK MARINO

We take exceptionally great pleasure in mentioning the name of Mr. Frank Marino, whom we consider to be one of our most worthy citizens. Though Mr. Marino is not a native of this country he came to Canada thirty-six years ago, and has proved himself to be a very worthy and well respected citizen ever since.

He is a native of Italy, being born near Naples, and he established himself in business in Peterborough four years ago. His clean and up-to-date store is situated at 383½ George Street, where he carries a full line of staple groceries, fresh fruits, confectionery, cigars, cigarettes, tobacco, peanuts, soft drinks, etc., etc., and he has a large business in all these lines. He is a very pleasing and obliging man to all his customers, and is untiring in his efforts to cater to all his patrons in a satisfactory manner, and supply them with the very best goods that can be purchased in this or any other city.

McDERMID & JURY

We find a great many people to-day who are discontented with their lot in life, and instead of getting busy they begin to tell us how much easier it was for their forefathers to make money and how impossible it is for they themselves to get rich, or even make a living. These, of course, are lazy people, as there is greater opportunity for a man to-day in this young and prosperous country than there ever was before.

For instance, who would have thought that any firm but a bank, manufacturing concern, or wholesale house would establish branches all over the country? Yet we find they have, but they have been established by men who are up and doing and who are possessed with a little more than the usual amount of energy.

One of the foremost of these firms is that of McDermid & Jury who, though only having been established for the past five years, have built up a wonderfully large and still growing business, with eight branches scattered throughout this part of the country, viz., Lindsay, Oshawa, Bowmanville, Collingwood, and two in Toronto, besides the Peterborough store, which is located at the corner of George and Charlotte Streets, where the best of everything is to be found in the drug line. They are also termed prescription specialists, as both members of the firm are graduates of the Ontario College of Pharmacy, and are careful and reliable chemists, Mr. Jury being a member of the council of above-mentioned college.

In the Peterborough establishment, where they carry a full line of druggists' sundries, confectionery, Rexall, preparations, kodaks, etc., they employ three expert clerks, who are always most courteous and obliging to all their patrons.

This firm also make a specialty of finishing amateur photography. They are undoubtedly the most up-to-date firm in the country in this line, and have proved their worth by the large patronage they now enjoy.

PETERBORO' TYPEWRITER AND OFFICE SUPPLY CO.

The necessity for a company doing business exclusively as the above was so much needed that several gentlemen of this city opened an office on Water Street, and found the business so successful that it was eventually moved to 159 Simcoe Street. The business was acquired two years ago by Mr. W. F. Nelson, who is owner and manager of the said business. He found it necessary to move into larger quarters, and was fortunate in securing the premises formerly occupied by the Bank of Nova Scotia, at the corner of George and Charlotte Streets.

As the name indicates, they are dealers in all kinds of office supplies, the principal typewriter handled is the celebrated light touch Monarch. In addition to the leader, they handle the Oliver, Fox, Empire, and, in fact, every make of typewriter. The public also has the opportunity of receiving typewriter ribbons, carbon paper, etc. on the coupon system.

PUBLIC STENOGRAPHY

This is of great benefit to people not owning typewriters, but who have occasional work that requires to be typewritten. Contracts are taken by the week, month, or year at reduced prices.

STOCKS AND BONDS

Messrs. Chas. Head & Company, members of the New York and Boston Stock Exchanges, being desirous of establishing a branch office here, entered into negotiations with Mr. Nelson, whereby arrangements were made that a wire connection was completed between New York and Peterborough, Mr. Nelson being their representative. This also is of great benefit to investors, as the market is always at their command. This office is located in part of the building formerly occupied by the Bank of Nova Scotia, corner George and Charlotte Streets. All business is attended to promptly.

The company is in a position to deal in mining stocks on cash basis.

T. R. KENNEDY

The handling of groceries and provisions is one of the most important branches of business carried on in any city. All corners of the earth are brought under contribution to furnish these productions and their facilities for distribution to consumers offered by merchants engaged in this trade are annually becoming more extensive and complete in every detail.

One of the most reliable stores in Peterborough in this trade is that of Mr. T. R. Kennedy, located at the corner of Lake and Aylmer Streets. The business was established seven years ago, and from its inception has enjoyed a liberal patronage. The stock of goods is comprehensive and well selected, and embraces everything in the way of staple groceries.

Mr. Kennedy came to Peterborough from Toronto. He is highly respected in business circles, and the prosperity of his business can be justly attributed to the able manner in which its affairs are conducted.

JOHN HILL

The grocery business has assumed to large proportions in Canada, owing to the ever growing period which our country is going through at the present time. The tremendous influx of humanity requires ever increasing importations of groceries and other staple commodities to keep pace with the remarkable consumption of foodstuffs.

Peterborough during the past decade has grown beyond all expectations. It is for this reason that our grocery establishments are among the best of our retail interests, because competition is so keen.

One of our bright, attractive, and well kept groceries is that of Mr. John Hill, 315 George Street. Mr. Hill is a dealer in dry goods, groceries, boots and shoes, wholesale confectionery, and gum. All of these articles are stocked in abundance, in addition to china, crockery and glassware. The store is a prettily decorated one, the light showing off the goods to the best possible advantage. Two assistants are employed to fill the wants of the customers, and one delivery wagon is kept busy on the roads.

Mr. Hill established this business six years ago on his arrival in the city from Moonstone, where he had previously been engaged in the general store business. He is a courteous and civil man, one who is deserving of patronage.

D. H. KERNEGHAN

Peterborough, the Electric City of Canada, has been heralded far and wide on account of its wonderful natural facilities for manufacturing concerns; and due to this reason, as well as to the progressive spirit of our business men, the city of Peterborough has located within its midst a number of very large concerns of this kind. The city is also very fortunate in having a very creditable class of retail stores, whose proprietors are ever untiring in their efforts to oblige and please their many patrons.

And foremost of these men is Mr. D. H. Kerneghan, who conducts one of our most up-to-date grocery and provision stores, which is centrally located at 682-684 George Street, and is well and favorably known as the noted north-end grocery. This store, which is well stocked with the very highest quality of goods and is the acme of cleanliness, was formerly conducted by Mr. E. F. Mason, but in March, 1910, the business was purchased by Mr. D. H. Kerneghan, who is a native of Peterborough, and who has always taken a very keen interest in municipal affairs, and is at present a member of the City Council. The phone number is 331, and all orders coming in this way or left in care of the proprietors of the store are given the most careful and prompt attention, and deliveries are made to all parts of the city. In addition to Mr. Kerneghan's undivided attention to business, he also employs two expert clerks to assist him, who, like Mr. Kerneghan himself, are very civil and obliging, and do their utmost to please at all times.

CENTRAL LIVERY STABLES

Eighteen months ago a thorough horseman, in the person of Mr. James Akey, opened the Central Livery Stables in the city. The business was carried on at 183 Hunter Street for nearly a year. The business, however, soon assumed gigantic proportions, which made his stabling facilities too small for the growing business; so eight months ago Mr. Akey was forced to move into the spacious quarters he now occupies at 421 Chambers Street. This address is the home of fifteen horses, which are readily noticed on the streets each day, as they are always in the pink of condition and well groomed.

The stables also boast of many handsome, easy-running carriages, which, all in all, make the most attractive turnouts.

Mr. Akey has lived many years in Peterborough, and is prominent among horsemen. He is not only fond of horses, but an expert in the keeping of them. Telephone 749.

T. G. ROBINSON

Peterborough, which has been growing by leaps and bounds in the past few years, promises to be one of the most thriving cities in the province of Ontario, or in fact, the Dominion of Canada, in the very near future, and this growth and the city's present state of progressiveness and prosperity has not been due entirely to the many facilities offered to manufacturing concerns as an inducement to locate here, but is largely due to the progressiveness of our many business men, who are full of optimism and are very public spirited.

Foremost among this type of men in our beautiful city is Mr. T. G. Robinson, who conducts a well appointed and well stocked grocery and provision store, which is located at 262 Simcoe Street, and is connected with Bell phone 288.

Mr. Robinson, who is a native of Peterborough, has been established here for the past four years, and during that time has enoyed a very wide patronage from all parts of the town. He carries a full and well assorted line of the highest class choice family groceries and provisions, and deliveries are made with the greatest care and promptness.

Mr. Robinson is most civil and obliging to all his customers, and is one of our most highly respected citizens.

A. E. MICKS

Probably no man in Peterborough has played a more active part in building up the city and making it what it is to-day than Mr. A. E. Micks, whose business has been established here for the past twenty years in the hardware and plumbing business, and who is one of our most highly respected citizens. Mr. Micks has been located in his present premises at No. 212 Hunter street, for the past four years, though the business was carried on for fourteen years on Hunter street, just east of George street.

In addition to this vast experience in the business, Mr. Micks conducted a large store in Sunderland before establishing here, though he is really a native of our city.

In addition to his hardware business Mr. Micks handles a full line of the celebrated Stirling Jewel Ranges, also steel ranges, coal and wood stoves, Jewel and Admiral Furnaces. Another branch of his extensive business is in tinsmithing and plumbing, roofing, eavetroughing, etc., etc., in which he has built up an enormous trade. Employment is given to five expert men, but during the busy season he frequently has occasion to nearly double his pay roll. Mr. Micks is a hard worker in the interests of the city, though he sticks close to business, and is most obliging to all his many patrons.

M. STOREY

Mr. M. Storey, who is a native of Peterborough, and has been established in the livery business on Chambers street for the past four years, conducts one of the finest stables that are to be found in any part of this country, and is certainly deserving of the patronage of all who are in need of the services of the horse. Both the horses and the carriages turned out by Mr. Storey are the best in the city, and in addition to this he has ample room for the boarding of horses, where everything is modern and up-to-date, and where the most sanitary conditions exist. In addition to the close attention Mr. Storey gives to the wants and requirements of all the horses, he also employs the services of two expert men who like Mr. Storey are equally familiar with the great care needed in attending to the horse. Some idea of Mr. Storey's capability in this respect may readily be seen in the fact that the Dominion Express Company entrust the care of their horses in his hands. He has made a great many friends in the surrounding country for his courteous and obliging manner and his untiring efforts to please all his customers. Mr. Storey is the son of one of Peterborough's well known business men, Mr. James Storey, who is agent here for the Farmers' Union, Mutual Fire Insurance Company, of Lindsay.

PETE SIMONS

The business men of Peterborough certainly could not be making a mistake or go very far astray by patronizing a tailor who has this as his motto: "A perfect fit guaranteed," "Fine Tailoring a Specialty." Such is the motto of Mr. Pete Simons, one of Peterborough's best known business men, who conducts a merchant tailoring business at 397½ George street, over Madill's drug store, where he carries a full line of imported and domestic suitings, overcoatings and trouserings, in stock for his many well satisfied patrons to choose from. Mr. Simons is a son of the late Pete Simons, who lived in Peterborough for over fifty years, and was a well known cutter and tailor. The present proprietor of this business, Mr. Pete Simons, learned his trade from his father, and in 1907 he established himself in his present place of business, having had over 25 years of experience in the business before starting out for himself. Mr. Simons is a native of Peterborough, and is also well and favourably known to thousands of people. He is an expert tailor and has some of the best trade of the city. He is a member of the Journeymen Tailors' Union of America, and he employs three expert tailors, who are likewise Union men. Next time you are in need of clothes look over Mr. Simons' stock, and you will not be disappointed.

C. N. BROWN

Mr. C. N. Brown, the well and favourably known flour and feed man of 139 Simcoe Street, bears the enviable reputation of being the oldest flour and feed dealer in Peterborough. This business was established many years before he took it over in 1889. He is also widely known by the older as well as the newer residents of this city, as he was born in Peterborough in 1856.

Mr. Brown's store is up-to-date in all respects, carrying a large stock of flour, the greatest of all household necessities, feed,, binder twine, and pressed hay. He also buys and sells seeds of all descriptions, and in this branch of his business has developed a large and growing trade.

A specialty is made of Five Roses and Purity Flour, both celebrated brands of Canadian manufacture of the highest quality for household use.

Mr. Brown's popularity practically knows no bounds. He is a member of the Masonic Order and one of the most enthusiastic curlers in the city. He has won many friends through his engaging business manner. Two helpers are employed by him to assist in the conduct of his business.

HIGGINS' HARDWARE CO.

This business was established a good many years ago in Peterborough and has steadily extended in keeping with the growth of the city itself, until at the present day it ranks among the foremost of our retail hardware interests.

Although Mr. Higgins has been identified with the business for many years, he was not the founder of it, but had conducted it successfully for several years as its sole proprietor, previous to entering into partnership with Mr. A. P. Brown, who came into the business as a partner four years ago.

Both gentlemen are experienced in the hardware business, Mr. W. R. G. Higgins having been in the business for so long in Peterborough and Mr. Brown was in a similar business in Mordon, Manitoba, prior to his locating in this city. The store is modern in all its appointments, carrying a large stock of up-to-date hardware of both the shelf and heavy varieties, including mechanics' and farmers' tools, paints, oils, glass, stoves, tinware, hot air furnaces, roofing, eavetroughing, and materials for metal work. Employment is given to four expert tinsmiths in the tinshop.

The Messrs. Higgins & Brown are well and favourably known in the city and surrounding territory, and have contributed their share to the welfare of the community.

R. G. DETCHER

A man of straightforward dealings and reliable workmanship is Mr. R. G. Detcher, general blacksmith, horseshoer, and carriagemaker, 200 Water Street, as well as being an expert in the trade of his choice.

Mr. Detcher, who is by birth a Peterborough boy, established his business in the city in March of this year. He employs two men, who are, like himself, expert blacksmiths, horseshoers, and carriage workers.

Mr. Detcher has been in this business nearly all the time he has been in business, or practically from his childhood. He superintends all work himself, and in many cases personally carries out work of a more intricate nature. He is in every way capable of handling any task which comes within his calling.

Mr. Detcher is making new friends through his new establishment very fast, for he is an out and out expert.

Peterborough as a Home City

THE care of the boulevards, or the grass grown part of the roadway lying just outside the sidewalks, is of late years becoming more general in Peterborough. In some sections the same care has been given to the boulevards, as the lawn, for a number of years, and this example has certainly had the effect of stirring up those slower to adopt an innovation, to a feeling of emulation, with a most satisfactory effect upon the appearance of the city.

Large sections of the best residential districts now present the uniformly neat and well cared for appearance that such methods always give.

Nothing gives a richer touch to the work of the landscape artist than a beautiful stretch of close cut, trim edged grass, and where the boundaries of the boulevard are sharply defined by sidewalks and cement gutter, the velvety grass plot enclosed, is a most pleasing sight.

It is gratifying to note the extensive growth of the movement for a more beautiful Peterborough. In this direction, teaching may do much, but example is the great incentive to fall in line, and keep our fronts equal to those of our neighbours.

Pleasure driving is rendered much more enjoyable when it is possible to pass through streets that are bordered by well-kept grounds that look just what they are: evidences of prosperity and a progressive people. Peterborough now has miles of streets that are the equal in this respect to the finest to be found anywhere, and every year the work is being taken up more generally, and the satisfaction derived from the continued improvement is a great source of pleasure to the citizens generally. The man with a taste for a model home finds genuine recreation and rest from business cares, while he assists nature to beautify his home surroundings. The rattle of the lawn mower becomes almost as pleasant a sound as the hum of the mosquitoes at the summer camp. A harmonious view from a hammock or well placed seat on the home grounds, that is always available without a dusty car drive, or hot trip to the summer resorts, even compares very favourably with the land and water vista one finds there. This city has exceptional advantages for an all-the-year-round residence. A steady, even temperature in winter makes that season liveable, and in summer, no matter what the season is like, it is practically a summer resort, with magnificent watering privileges, and sight seeing trips always available, equal to any on the continent. What wonder then that the citizens develop considerable pride in their city, and do their part to make it the city beautiful.

In the matter of parks and recreation grounds, Peterborough is well supplied for present needs, and with the additional properties which it is hoped to secure in the near future, to provide pleasure spots for rapidly filling up new sections, this should be the city of parks.

Jackson Park, a gift to the city by the Nicholls Estate, is a very fine natural beauty spot, that only required roadways, bridges and a little clearing up to make it the ideal resting place for hundreds of over-heated city residents at any time. It is also used in winter as a sporting grounds, with ice rinks, toboggan slides, hill coasting and snow-shoeing. Nicholls Oval and Nicholls Park West, are also the gift of the Nicholls Estate. The Oval is a very large and beautiful tract lying alongside the river, at a desirable point. It is skirted by a lovely gravelled driveway of about a mile and a half or more, and it would be hard to find such a noble extent of pleasure grounds anywhere. The sporting field with its oval racetrack, is used by the Tennis Club, and the different ball clubs as a practice ground, and as it is kept in ideal condition, it is greatly appreciated by those on pleasure bent. The western part of the park, which has been called Inverlea Park, is a splendid pine grove, in its natural condition, the ground being thoroughly cleaned up and the view of the river unbroken fron any part of it.

Victoria Park, the property of the County, is the shadiest spot in the centre of the city, and is much frequented. It is nicely cared for and has flower beds, fountain and clean gravel walks, with considerable seating capacity for hot day resting spots.

Central Park is more open than the others, and has not the same care, but surrounded by some of the city's finest buildings, it is being gradually levelled and worked into shape to become a big beauty spot for the central portion of the city.

Riverside Park is the place where the games and sports are held. It is well situated close to the centre of the city, and is often taxed to its capacity to accommodate the crowds that frequent it when some good attraction is announced.

At the corner of Park street and Charlotte street there is a shady corner set apart for a resting place for tired citizens, and another at the corner of Park and Hunter streets provides an acceptable breathing ground. These little corners are greatly admired by all, and visitors and newcomers remark on the touch of nature they give to the otherwise stereotyped city surroundings. A trip around town by carriage or auto discloses the fact that an agricultural people or people with a love for nature, inhabit it to a great extent, judging by the hundreds of flourishing gardens that seem to be everywhere, each spot of verdure adding its mite to the general effect of beauty with which Peterborough is richly endowed.

SAMUEL FINEBURG

If you are in need of a pair of boots or shoes made to order, which are guaranteed to wear well and keep their shape, or if you have any repairing to be done, then call on Mr. Samuel Fineburg, whose place of business is situated at 187 Simcoe Street, and who is an expert in his chosen trade. He has had a great many years' experience in this business, and he turns out nothing but the very highest quality of work, and he has built up a large business on this account.

Mr. Fineburg is a native of Russia, though he is a naturalized Canadian. He has spent twelve years of his life in London, England, seven years in Toronto, and for the past year he has been established in this city, where he is recognized as a worthy and well respected citizen. He also sells new and second-hand boots and shoes, which he keeps in stock, which are the very finest grade, also second-hand clothes; and it would pay the citizens of Peterborough to visit Mr. Fineburg's store and see the quality of these goods, which are sold at most reasonable prices.

JOHN SPEER
WHEN YOU GET IT AT SPEER'S, IT'S GOOD

A great many people in every city or village imagine that the grocer or any other merchant whose store is not located on the main street of the town does not handle the best quality of goods. Now, this is a most serious mistake. The grocer whose store is not on the main street is in nearly every case able to give better prices and better goods than the man on the main street, for the simple reason that his rent is not quite as high and competition is more keen.

In Peterborough, we have a number of stores that are not just situated in the centre of the town, who give better service in every way than do some of our main street stores. And foremost among these establishments is the store of Mr. John Speer, which is located at 53 Hunter Street East, where he deals in fancy groceries and provisions, confectionery, stationery, butter and eggs, etc., and is connected with Bell phone 1162. As Mr. Speer buys his goods for cash, therefore his patrons receive the benefit of close prices. All the goods handled are of the highest standard, and though he has only been established for the past year and three months, Mr. Speer has won the confidence of a great many well satisfied customers, and his manner is most civil and courteous.

He is a native of South Dummer, and is a son-in-law of one of our most respected citizens, Mr. F. Hamilton, who is also one of Peterborough's business men.

JOHN KERR

In every town we find the housewife who purchases daily household needs from some one particular grocer, perhaps not as a matter of choice, but on account of having dealt with him for years or possibly because she knows him to be thoroughly reliable, and also knows from experience that the goods he handles are of the very best quality.

In Peterborough we have many up-to-date stores and reliable merchants, and we point to Mr. John Kerr as one of them, who is one of our most popular and well respected citizens.

He is a Canadian by birth, and has been established here for the past sixteen years, catering to the many wants of his large patronage in the grocery business. Mr. Kerr is a most reliable and conscientious man, and carries nothing but the very best grade of choice family groceries, also flour, feed, etc., etc.

The store, which is kept neat and clean, is centrally situated at Number 95 Hunter Street East, and is connected with Bell telephone 528. From this store orders are filled promptly and with accuracy. Mr. Kerr is a great worker for the advancement of the city, and is a firm believer in Peterborough"s future development.

R. A. ELLIOTT & CO.

While many have invested large sum of money in stock companies and mining propositions—with few, if any, coming out ahead at the end of the game—yet no other form of speculation ever received such impetus or assumed such gigantic proportions throughout the length and breadth of Canada as speculation in real property, and with the very greatest justification. Money invested in real estate always has money's worth to show for itself, whereas, on the other hand, if the company don't prove good and the mines don't pan out, all you have is a handful of worthless papers.

It is indeed a poor man who does not own a piece of Canada, the most fertile country in the world, and for whom the very greatest future is in store. There is no reason for any man not owning a piece of property, with ruling conditions as they are, and sales systems, which enables any man who has a mind to, to own his own land.

We always have on hand some special bargains in vacant lots and houses in all parts of the city, also farm land. Western property is also made a specialty by this firm, being large dealers in farm and townsite lots in the West, which have been turned over and large profits made in a short time by the purchasers. At the present time the above firm have secured the sole agency for the first subdivision in the townsite of Hardisty, Alberta, a divisional point on the C. P. R. line running from Saskatoon to Edmonton. Already the C.P.R. have spent $300,000 in machine shops, round houses, stores, coal chutes, besides 25 miles of sidings. Seventeen freight train crews come and go daily, besides the passenger trains, which means a large pay-roll every week. Then the beautiful Battle River flowing by affords an ample supply of water for all purposes when required.

These lots have a frontage of 50 feet by 120 feet, and will be sold for the sum of $100.00, on terms. Don't delay, as a decided advance is looked for at any time.

ALEX. WALKER

The blacksmith has always ranked among our finest types of men, not only in physique, but through the important part he plays in everyday life, through his industry and the practise of his trade, which, if he is an expert blacksmith, must necessarily have taken many years of work and study to obtain to the high rank of proficiency which in many cases he occupies.

Mr. Alex. Walker took over this business one year ago last January, and established a shop and well equipped forge at 464 Aylmer Street, which premises he now occupies in the conduct of his business, which embraces general blacksmithing, horse shoeing and carriage repairing, and special order work in all manner of conveyances. Mr. Walker excels in all these lines, and his many tried patrons are evidence of his ability.

Mr. Walker's original home is in East York, but since coming to Peterborough has made numerous friends, who will always use their influence to keep him here for good.

PRIMEAU BROS.

The barber business situated at Hunter Street, and belonging to Messrs. J. and J. H. Primeau, is one of the oldest, if not the oldest, barbering stores in the city of Peterborough. It was established as long ago as 1872. The exact date is Feb. 14th of that year. It was first of all located where Mr. Lynch's drug store now stands, but that building having been burned down many years ago the business was transferred to the present premises.

The Messrs. Primeau have always been noted for the smart and cheerful manner in which they attend to the wants of their customers and for the cleanliness of their store and appliances.

They are natives of Peterborough, and take great interest in the advancement and prosperity of the city. Mr. J. Primeau is a member of the Separate School Board, and although his business takes up the greater part of his time, he cheerfully lends his aid in looking after the requirements and comfort of the younger generation in Peterborough.

WATER STREET, SHOWING PART OF VICTORIA PARK

PETERBOROUGH CANDY WORKS

What is more delicious and refreshing during these hot summer days than a dish of wholesome, well-made ice-cream or a cool glass of ice-cream soda or phosphate made by experts at the store of the Peterborough Candy Works, which is centrally located at 382 George Street, where nothing but the best ice-cream is used in the preparing of these cooling beverages? At the back of the store there is a very handsomely furnished ice-cream parlor, with a seating capacity of fifty, and is as cool and airy as possible.

In addition to their ice-cream, which is manufactured on the premises and is sold both wholesale and retail, this store is the headquarters in Peterborough for chocolates, bon bons, and fine grade confections. This business was established about two years ago by J. Haggis & Co.

Mr. Haggis is himself an expert in the business, and previous to coming to our city he conducted two stores in Berlin, Ontario. But Mr. Haggis, seeing the great opportunities that Peterborough had to offer, decided to locate here, and he has been well rewarded by a large patronage, and his business is growing rapidly each day. He is a very progressive business man, possessed with the highest sterling qualities.

METROPOLITAN LIFE INSURANCE CO.

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, with magnificent head office buildings in New York City, bears the distinction of being the largest insurance company in the world. The company was founded in 1862, and during the fifty years of its life, under the guidance of the greatest insurance experts in America, it has developed into one of the greatest financial institutions on the globe.

Mr. John Hegeman, president, and Mr. Haley Fiske, vice-president, are men of world-wide reputation and experience, having given up their lives to the study of conditions affecting life insurance, which enables the company to give protection to the family of every man at as low a cost as possible.

Twenty years ago the company opened an agency in Peterborough, the citizens availing themselves of their protection to so great an extent that Peterborough was made the district headquarters six years ago.

Mr. John Rothwell, superintendent of this district from Gananoque to Toronto, including the former, is a man of vast experience in the insurance business. Mr. Rothwell came to Peterborough from Bridgeport, Connecticut, where he represented this company, having been superintendent for the same company for Western Ontario, with headquarters in London, previous to going to Bridgeport.

In the past six years he has become well known throughout the district of his jurisdiction through his wonderful personality and pleasing manner.

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. have assets of over $313,000,000, outstanding insurance $2,215,000,000, the total amount of insurance sold last year being $432,907,697. These figures will convey to our readers the magnitude of this great corporation. This year the company inaugurated a free visiting nursing system for the benefit of all the holders of their industrial policies.

The present year has been one of the greatest in the history of this district. Out of four hundred districts operated by this company, the Peterborough district was third in the total volume of business. By June 17 of this year, the district had its entire year's apportionment and stood No. 1 for the entire country. The company employ twelve thousand men in all, thirty-two of whom are engaged in this district under Mr. Rothwell.

Mr. Rothwell is a man who inspires confidence and one who has won an enviable reputation for reliability. Since his coming to Peterborough, the company's business in the district has been marked by unprecedented gains

BRUCE PATTERSON

No matter how well dressed a man is, if he is in need of a shave he looks untidy and badly groomed. In Peterborough, as well as in every other city or town, there is always at least one good, reliable barber; and in our city we can boast of having one of the best shops of this kind to be found in any part of this country.

This shop is conducted by Mr. Bruce Patterson at 176 Charlotte Street, who is an expert in his trade, and in addition to himself he gives employment to three most capable barbers, who are always most courteous and obliging to all the patrons. All the most up-to-date and sanitary appliances have been installed, and the many customers are assured of the very best work. Cigars and tobaccos are also handled for the convenience of the patrons of the shop. Another feature of the business is the hot and cold baths, which are much appreciated by the people.

Mr. Patterson has been a resident of our city for the past twenty years, though he has only been established in his present business for five years. He has done a good deal for Peterborough's advancement, and is very popular among all classes.

MURRAY MILLER

Mr. Murray Miller, whose place of business is more generally known as the bicycle repair works, and which is centrally located at the corner of Queen and Hunter Streets, is recognized by all as the most reliable place of business of its kind in this city. He repairs guns, locks, cutlery, auto sundries, scissors, saw filing, skates, etc., and all general repairing, which is done with the greatest accuracy and promptness.

A SCENE IN JACKSON PARK

Mr. Miller, the enterprising and progressive proprietor of this large and still growing business, is a native of Peterborough, and is held in high esteem, both in business and social circles. He established this business three years ago, and being an expert of exceptional ability, he has enjoyed the patronage of many from all parts of the city. He has installed all the latest and most modern equipments for the turning out of good work.

M. J. HICKEY

Quality and durability in cloth when it is cut and made into a suit by an expert tailor with years of experience, stamps the man who wears the suit as the neat, regardful business man who meets with success.

Mr. M. J. Hickey, who has been one of Peterborough's oldest tailors, established his business at 434 George Street, over twelve years ago, where he is still engaged in business, and making clothes for our well-dressed men, that are so frequently seen on the main thoroughfares of our city.

A large stock of the best imported cloths, tweeds, serges, and Cheviots, and a complete stock of fancy vestings, are on hand at all times to select from. About twelve assistants are always employed to turn out the good garments for which he has won such a substantial reputation.

Mr. Hickey has resided in Peterborough for many years, and in that time has become very popular. He is a member of the Hibernian Society and the T.A.S. He is always ready at any time to lend a hand towards the community's advancement.

MAITLAND & MOORE

Experts in roofing are exceedingly difficult to find in any community, that is, capable roofers who do nothing else but roof work and who know their business thoroughly from long experience.

We are fortunate in having in Peterborough the establishment of the Messrs. Maitland & Moore, roofing experts, who give all their time to this branch of construction. Their business was formerly conducted on Simcoe Street, where they first established it nine years ago. Their business has grown considerably in that time, however, and this spring found them located in the larger quarters.

The firm is composed of Mr. G. O. Maitland and Mr. A. Moore, both boys of long residence in the city. They put on all kinds of roofing, such as the felt, gravel, iron and slate varieties, and gladly furnish estimates. They personally superintend all the outside work which is executed by their numerous expert men.

These gentlemen can point with pride to many roofs of houses and public buildings which have been made by themselves, and roofs which have defied the elements for many a long year.

D. F. DRUMMOND

A business which has been established for the past fourteen years and is known by every farmer in the County of Peterborough is the one conducted by Mr. D. F. Drummond, whose warerooms are located at 135 Simcoe Street, connected with phone 554.

Mr. Drummond is agent for the celebrated Massey-Harris farm implements, also Gould, Shapley & Muir windmills, etc., etc.; and he also deals in harness, robes, and blankets, buggies, sleighs, and cutters, and in fact, almost everything used by the farmer. Mr. Drummond has been identified with this business for fourteen years. Eleven years ago the business was taken over by Drummond & Duffus, and one year ago Mr. Drummond took it over; and it has been conducted under his able administration ever since. It is the largest business of its kind in this part of the country, and Mr. Drummond, who has stuck closely to business, is well and favourably known throughout the whole county. He has built up a very large patronage through his untiring efforts to please his customers, and is highly respected by all who know him.

W. J. GRADY

The residents of the south end of Peterborough are fortunate indeed in having a most up-to-date and reliable grocery store with which to deal. This place of business is centrally located at the corner of Lansdowne Avenue and Lock Street, and is owned and conducted by Mr. W. J. Grady, who is a man of sterling qualifications and straightforward in all his business dealings.

He is a native of Peterborough, and is well and favourably known throughout the city and the surrounding county. His business has been established here for the past three years, and during this time he has built up a large trade owing to the fact that he has made it a rule from the beginning to handle nothing but the very finest grade of groceries, and the store is kept as clean as could possibly be wanted. He gives employment to two people who, like himself, are most courteous and obliging to all the patrons. One year ago it was decided upon to open a branch post office for Claraday, and Mr. Grady had the honour to be chosen to act as postmaster for that station, which position he now devotes his attention to, as well as the discharging of the duties of his other business. He is a highly respected citizen and a thorough business man, who has done much for the city's advancement.

A fine ice-cream parlour is located in rear of store, where the people of the surrounding district are served with refreshing soft drinks, ice-cream and cakes of the best quality. This parlour has a seating capacity of twenty, and is on the direct route to the boat livery.

B. McGILL

Any merchant who makes it a hard and fast rule to handle nothing but the highest class of goods is certainly deserving of a large patronage. And it is due to this fact that Mr. B. McGill, who conducts an up-to-date grocery store at the corner of Aylmer and Lake Streets, has built up such an enormous and still growing business.

Mr. McGill, who is a loyal Canadian and a well respected citizen of Peterborough, established himself in his present business six years ago this August, and during that time has received a very liberal patronage from all parts of the city. He is a dealer in choice groceries and provisions, which are all up to the standard as regards quality; and the store, which is well stocked with all staple lines, is as neat and clean as could be found anywhere throughout the Dominion. When orders are left at the store or ordered by machine phone 372 they are executed with the greatest care and promptness.

Mr. McGill is most obliging to all his customers, and has always endeavored to give good goods and fair treatment to all who deal at his store.

COLEMAN BROS.

There is no other retail firm in Peterborough that has so greatly come before the people's notice in a short space of time as Coleman Bros., society caterers and confectioners. These five enterprising brothers are Britons by birth, although for the past seven years they have resided in our midst. Five years ago they opened their store at 426 George Street, which is so widely known to everyone in the neighbouring vicinity for the quality of their products, all of which are manufactured on the premises.

The Messrs. Coleman are all expert bakers and confectionery men, having spent years of apprenticeship in this line in their native land. In addition to themselves they employ a staff of eleven to assist in the manufacture of the goods which have built up for them an enviable reputation.

The store is an elegantly furnished one, among the handsomest in our city, a large banqueting room with seating capacity for sixty guests, being an attractive addition. The business is steadily assuming such proportions that a change will very soon become necessary to make greater accommodation at the banquet tables.

All of the delicious cakes, buns, and bread, in addition to ice-cream, are made on the premises under the direct surveillance of these progressive brothers. A beautiful soda fountain has been installed, which pours forth the cool, delightful drinks which are so very necessary to all our people during the oppressive evenings of the summer months.

A great future is in store for the Messrs. Coleman. Their interests are in the city's advancement as well as in their business. They have done much for our city in different ways, and are always ready to give her yet another "boost."

W. C. TULLY

Of the many well-known and popular grocers in this city, too much cannot be said of Mr. W. C. Tully, corner George and Sherbrooke Streets. Although Mr. Tully has only been established in this store for two years, he is well known to all our citizens, for he has been engaged in the many large grocery establishments here all his life, and has constantly come in contact with our purchasing public.

Mr. Tully's lifelong study of conditions and wants in the grocery line places him in a splendid position to cater to the requirements of our people. His store is undeniably up-to-date in modern equipment and decoration, in addition to his shelves being well stocked with the best that money can buy, which is in a fresh condition at all times. Choice groceries, provisions, fruits, vegetables, and confectionery his vast experience enables him to buy and sell at ridiculously low figures. Two assistants are employed in this clean and handsome store, which assures buyers at this popular emporium prompt and efficient service.

Mr. Tully was born in Scott's Corners, where he lived for many years. In politics he is a strong Liberal and supporter of the present government. He is a shrewd business man, and his store is a credit to the community.

A. G. DICKSON

Of the many engaging proprietors of retail establishments in this city, of which we are all so proud, too much cannot be said of Mr. A. G. Dickson.

Mr. Dickson is a dealer in domestic, American, and foreign dry goods, having established his business at No. 395 George Street over twenty years ago. He is a native of Scotland, having come to Canada forty years ago from near Glasgow, where his old home is situated.

The store is well appointed in every respect, and handsomely decorated, and the tasteful manner in which the goods are displayed lend to make up one of our finest retail places of business. A staff of ten assistants, well known for their civility, are in attendance, ready to show the goods to all comers and assist them in making selections.

Mr. Dickson is one of our best known and popular business men. He has done much for Peterborough, and in fact for Canada. He fought for the rights of this, his adopted country, in No. 5 Company of the Queen's Own Rifles at Ridgeway in 1866.

MISS E. M. ALLAN

An establishment which has been in existence for the past twenty years, and which during all that time has been recognized as the leader of its kind in Peterborough, is the millinery parlour which is now conducted by Miss E. M. Allan at 372 George Street, and which gives employment to about fifteen of the most expert milliners in this country.

Though this business was originally established twenty years ago, Miss Allan, who has had good experience, only took it over about six and a half years ago; but during this time she has built up a wonderfully large business and her many patrons who come from all parts of the city and county rank among our society leaders, and are ever ready to sound their praises for the high-class work turned out by Miss Allan.

The store, which is most handsomely appointed and well stocked with all the finest and highest grade of millinery, is the largest store of its kind in Peterborough. Miss Allan has always made it a rule to keep in touch with the very latest New York and Parisian fashions, and she quite frequently goes abroad to study these designs, a thing which is greatly appreciated by her customers.

R. J. WOLSTENHOLM

It is quite true that Canada is possessed of untold quantities of both coal and wood, but if we depended upon ourselves to supply our own needs in this respect, what would be the result ? No, we must depend entirely upon the dealer to supply us with both, and we must or should select a dealer who is well and favourably known for his honesty and reliability in giving us the very best coal and wood that it is possible for him to procure.

The citizens of Peterborough are fortunate, indeed, in having a man of this type in the person of Mr. R. J. Wolstenholm, whose place of business is centrally located at 195 Charlotte Street, where he carries on a very extensive trade in coal and wood and is patronized by the leading people of our city. This business has been established for twelve years, and during this time has become one of the largest of its kind in the town. In addition to this. Mr. Wolstenholm conducts a first class up-to-date livery business, and turns out nothing but the best horses and carriages, and employment is given to two expert men to assist the proprietor in discharging the many duties of his business.

Mr. Wolstenholm was formerly in Business in Midland, Ontario. He is one of our foremost citizens, and is highly respected in this community.

G. W. HALL

There is no more popular barber shop within the limits of this city than that which is conducted by Mr. G. W. Hall in Charlotte Street.

It is in an establishment of this kind —up-to-date in all respects— that that smooth, refreshing shave is given, that is obtained from only a practised hand.

Mr. Hall is a former resident of Lindsay, Ontario, where for many years he was engaged in this same business.

He is himself a thorough and capable barber, with a vast experience in the very necessary but difficult tonsorial art.

This shop is modern in every way. The equipment is unsurpassed in Peterborough, having the latest devices for the comfort of the customers, in addition to facilitating only expert workmanship.

There are three chairs, in which the best work is done, and two assistants, besides the proprietor, to insure against long waits.

Mr. Hall established this business four years ago, having at that time put in a large stock of cigars, cigarettes and tobaccos.

He is an enterprising and progressive man. His many lifelong customers are evidence of his work and the civility of his assistants.

F. D. PILLSWORTH
PICTURE AND ART STORE

Considering the short space of time he has been here, Mr. F. D. Pillsworth, who established here three years ago has become well and favourably known in Peterborough. His bright and well appointed store at 346 George Street is connected with both Bell and machine phones 149, which is known as Pillsworth's Picture and Art Store, and who enjoys a large patronage from all parts of the city.

Mr. Pillsworth's store is handsomely arranged and displays a full line of high grade pictures, picture frames, picture mouldings, picture novelties, etc., etc., also art wood stamped for burning, art brass stamped for piercing, and all kinds of art novelties, picture framing, gilding, and finishing is also done in a most satisfactory manner by capable employees.

In addition to this business Mr. Pillsworth also conducts the Peterborough Messenger Service, employing nothing but courteous and civil boys, who call for and deliver parcels to and from all parts of the city, for which a reasonable charge is made.

Mr. Pillsworth's progressiveness did not stop at this, but decided to also establish the Peterborough Mercantile and Collecting Company, through which he makes collections of book debts for various firms at a very low rate of percentage. This enterprise has been a great benefit to the business men of the community, as all the subscribers are furnished with mercantile reports based on the propriety of giving credit to the buying public of Peterborough and surrounding district .

Mr. Pillsworth is a native of Port Hope, though he spent two years in business in Winnipeg. He is much esteemed in this city, and since coming here has made many friends both in business and social circles.

YEOTES BROTHERS

In Canada to-day we find that some of our most enterprising and progressive business men are natives of Greese. These men have come to our country, unfamiliar with our ways and methods of doing business: and in nearly all cases are unable to speak the English language . Yet it is no time before they acquire the language, also understand our many peculiarities, and succeed in their various business enterprises as no other men can expect to do in so short a time. They are also noted for their pleasing and courteous manner extended to all their patrons.

An example of this type of men may be found in the firm of Yeotes Bros., who have been established in Peterborough for the past six years; and whose place of business is located at 337-339 George Street, where they conduct an up-to-date cigar store, where all the finest lines of cigars, cigarettes, and tobacco are always kept in stock. In connection with this store they also run a first-class billiard parlor and pool room, which is well patronized by the best people in Peterborough. The tables are always kept in perfect condition and the cues and balls are of the very finest quality.

They also conduct a shooting gallery, which affords great amusement for many people. Shoe-shining and a private and nicely arranged shoe-shine parlor for ladies, and hat cleaning is another feature of this business. They clean your hat while you wait, and their charges are most moderate. Six men are employed to look after the wants of the many customers. One of the brothers, Mr. Louis Yeotes, is the manager of the firm. They are all well respected and well liked citizens.

Mr. Louis Yeotes in 1908 went home to Greece and served fourteen months in the Regular Army, and came back to Peterborough in the month of May, 1910. He is now qualified as a full-fledged soldier, and is ready at all times to fight not only for his native land, but also for Canada, his adopted country.

WM. E. LECH

Of all the attractive stores in Peterborough, probably none are better known to our citizens than that of Wm. E. Lech, 366 George Street, which bears the sign of the tiger. This is without question the finest store in the city, and the quality of the goods which are sold in this establishment is the best that money can buy anywhere.

Mr. Lech is a dealer in furs and hats and caps, being sole representative in Peterborough for many famous lines of manufacture which have become famous throughout the world on their merits of quality and durability.

The proprietor opened this business at 366 George Street in 1909, after having spent the intervening time since 1882 in the same business. He is a capable and experienced man in the manufacture of fine furs, and an expert in the detection of inferior skins.

Mr. Lech handles only the highest class of goods in his spacious store, the goods being displayed in an attractive manner, which makes a visit to his store a never-to-be-forgotten pleasure. The civility of the clerks in attendance is a feature of this establishment—nothing is a trouble or bother in the way of satisfying a customer.

Mr. Lech has had over thirty years' training in his present line of work, his many satisfied customers being evidence of his ability to give the best value in goods of the last fashion and exclusive design.

PETERBOROUGH MUSIC CO.

There is possibly nothing in the world that is more pleasing to all kinds and classes of people than good music. Even though you cannot play a note yourself, you are nevertheless enchanted with the sound brought forth by well made and properly tuned musical instruments.

In Peterborough, we are fortunate in having the firm of the Peterborough Music Company, who deal in nothing but the very best and highest quality of all kinds of musical instruments, including pianos, organs, etc., and all kinds of musical goods. This business is one of the most reliable of its kind in the country, having been established for the past twenty-six years, and during this time has built up an enormous and still growing business.

The handsome warerooms are situated at 404 George Street, and are conducted by Mr. J. P. Cunningham, who is an expert, and who has won the confidence and esteem of hundreds of patrons throughout the city, as well as the surrounding country. If you have not already installed a piano in your home, it would pay you to see Mr. Cunningham, so that he may explain to you the merits of the goods he handles, and you may also depend upon it that anything you purchase from him will be the best, and you will get the greatest values for your investment.

MINICOLO BROS.

Among the many merchants of Peterborough none are more highly respected and esteemed by this community that is Mr. N. Minicolo, the enterprising proprietor of Minicolo Brothers, whose place of business is located at 160 Hunter Street, connected with telephone 337, and dealers in choice fruits and confectionery and the very finest quality of vegetables, fish, and canned goods, etc., etc.

This firm sells both wholesale and retail, and during the thirteen years which they have been established, they have built up a wonderfully large business, being patronized by citizens from all parts of the city. Deliveries are made to all parts of the city, and they take the greatest care in selecting the very best fruit for their customers.

Mr. Minicolo is a native of Italy, though he has lived in Peterborough for the past twenty-five years, and during this time has become very widely known and very popular among all classes. He is most courteous and obliging to all his patrons, and is conducting his business along the most upright and honest principles.

JONES BROTHERS

There is possibly no business in any city that is more greatly appreciated or more liberally patronized than a first-class, up-to-date livery. And in Peterborough the citizens are fortunate indeed in having a livery of this kind located at 193 Simcoe Street, cannected with phone 186, and conducted by Jones Bros.—Messrs. Fred E. Jones and E. W. Jones—both men of sterling qualities, and who understand the care of horses thoroughly, and who have always realized the importance of conducting their business along straightforward principles.

These gentlemen have lived in Peterborough for the past twenty-four years, and have had fifteen years experience in this business, though it was only on May 1st of this year that they formed a partnership. They enjoy a large patronage from all parts of the city for their hacks, victorias, buggies, surreys, and buses, etc., which are always turned out in the best of shape; and the twenty-four good roadsters kept by them are a pleasure to drive behind. Besides their own close attention to business, they give employment to four expert horsemen, who give their careful and undivided attention to boarding horses, of which they have many. This is one of the finest liveries in this or any other part of the country, and this is proved by the large and successful business that the Messrs. Jones are carrying on.

W. G. MORROW

Possibly one of the most useful business men in any town or city is the general blacksmith, providing he understands his business thoroughly and turns out nothing but the very finest work. And this certainly applies to Mr. W. G. Morrow, who is a capable and conscientious general blacksmith, whose forges are located on Water Street, where he is liberally patronized by the people of Peterborough and the surrounding country. He is an expert in carriage repairing, horse-shoeing, etc., etc., and gives employment to an assistant who, under Mr. Morrow's supervision, does the work allotted to him in a first-class manner.

Mr. Morrow is a native of Durham County, and was formerly in business there. But in 1902 he realized the opportunities that this city had to offer, and decided to locate here; and during his nine years of business career in Peterborough he has become one of our most popular and highly esteemed citizens. His shop is well equipped with all the most modern appliances, and has built up a very large and still growing business through the good work he does, and his straightforward manner to all his patrons.

JAY'S

Samuel Jay, whose place of business is located at 388-390 Aylmer Street, is a dealer in new and second-hand goods, including clothing, boots, rubbers, furniture, stoves, etc., and in fact, nearly everything in the way of wearing apparel and house furnishings. This business has proved itself to be a great benefit to all classes of people in Peterborough. By handling both new and second-hand goods, he can therefore satisfy the wants of his many patrons.

Mr. Jay owns the property on which his store is situated. The stores is an exceptionally large one, being three stores made into one, and there is ample room to display the large stock which is always kept on hand. Mr. Jay is a native of Sheffield, England, and came to Peterborough from that country six years ago; and five years ago he established this large business in its present quarters in a very small way, but his enterprising and progressive methods have made him one of our most successful merchants to-day, and he is deserving of the greatest credit. He now has two clerks to assist him in his duties of attending to his patrons. Mr. Jay and his clerks are most obliging and are untiring in their efforts to please.

A. E. DIXON

Mr. A. E. Dixon, well-known barrister and solicitor, is one of our popular and highly respected members of the legal profession in this city. Mr. Dixon graduated from Osgoode Hall in 1889. Ever since his graduation he has practised in the profession of his choice in Peterborough.

During the twenty-two years of his business career his clientele has constantly increased. He has made many friends through the able discharge of the affairs of others who entrust the documents requiring expert legal scrutiny in his charge.

In 1818 Mr. Joseph Dixon, at he age of five, was brought to this settlement by his parents, who were one of the first five families to settle on the spot which is now the famous city of Peterborough. These first pioneers settled and built their log cabins on the banks of the Otonabee. on the spot which is now marked by the Peter Hamilton factory.

Mr. Dixon is a son of the late Joseph Dixon, who resided in Peterborough for so many years. Mr. Dixon himself was born in this city. He is well known, and very popular. He is a member of the Foresters and Oddfellows and is well up in both orders.

J. T. O'CONNEL & CO.

Mr. J. T. O'Connell is a native of the city and a figure of great prominence in the trading of realty and as an authority in valuations of real property and its market activities, and one who is in touch at all times with conditions affecting values in this community and the surrounding country for many miles. Since the establishment of this business in 1884 the proprietor has constantly obtained to greater and higher degrees of proficiency in realty speculation, so that to-day he ranks high in public confidence and favor.

Mr. O'Connell deals in all kinds of properties, including houses, lots, gardens, farms, wild lands, and places of business, in addition to having properties for sale, exchange, or for rent. He collects rents, pays taxes, and manages estates generally for his large clientele.

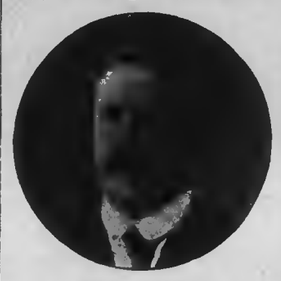
Mr. O'Connell has few equals in the display of shrewdness and foresight, being a man of strong principles and remarkable capabilities of discernment. For upright and reliable dealing we point to Mr. O'Connell as a master in this art.

MISS M. KING

A good dressmaker in any community is greatly sought after, and good dressmaking is certainly the word that should be applied to the establishment of Miss M. King, who is located at 374½ George street, who is an expert in her particular line of work, and has had several years experience, having learned the profession from some of the best dressmakers in this country. She has been established in Peterborough for about five years and during that time has had the honour to do work for the best people in the city, all of whom are at all times ready and anxious to sound their praises for the well fitting dresses which they receive from her.

Apart from the fact that she is recognized as an expert, she also draws a great deal of business owing to her most reasonable charges. She executes all the work as promptly as possible, and has always endeavoured to deliver the work on the day it is promised to be done.

Miss King is very progressive and enterprising. She is always equipped with the latest New York and Parisian fashions, and is capable of making any kind of dress that her many patrons desire—"and make them well." On account of her splendid work, she has built up a very large, and still growing, business.



CHAS. RISHOR

A prominent figure in Peterborough's business circles is Mr. Charles Rishor, well known wholesale grocer, of 206 Simcoe Street. Five years ago Mr. Rishor took over the old-established business of Mr. Cartson, for whom he had been travelling for ten years.

The present proprietor has had an unlimited experience in the grocery trade, and is at all times in touch with the conditions affecting the market and causing it to fluctuate.

This establishment ranks among the foremost of our large enterprises, and the business has extended so rapidly under Mr. Rishor's capable and progressive management that it has been found necessary to erect new premises, which are now in the course of construction.

The present warehouse is a spacious one, well appointed and equipped with the most modern facilities for handling the large stock, which consists of every known commodity of luxury and necessity in groceries.

There are few indeed, if any, merchants in Ontario who do not know Mr. Rishor personally and sound his praises, not only for his business methods, but for the reliability of his shipments, and along the lines of accommodation.

Mr. Rishor has resided in Peterborough now for a quarter of a century, and is well and favourably known to all who come in contact with him. He provides employment for several of our people, and altogether is considered one of Canada's leading wholesale men.

GEORGE R. RECORD

Two of our most popular establishments for the care and welfare of both ladies' and gentlemen's clothes are those conducted by Mr. George R. Record, 173 Simcoe Street, and My Valet, 204 Charlotte Street. In both of these establishments only expert work is done, promptly and moderately

Mr. Record opened the business four years ago; and on looking over his plant it is easily discernible that he is assured of ever increasing success, because his plant and equipment for cleaning, pressing, and repairing are of the most modern type.

Samples of ladies' dresses which have been treated by his process are on exhibition, and they are a revelation to all who see them. The most delicate goods of fine texture are treated in a most able and satisfactory manner, and are turned out as good as new.

Mr. Record, who is a native of Peterborough, has had much experience in this business. He employs eight people in the shop, all of whom are expert in their own branches of the business. The proprietor was formerly engaged in a similar business in Minneapolis ,U.S.A., where he obtained great experience in the use of modern machinery.

Mr. Record is a believer in this city's future, and turned homewards from the United States to participate in it.

GEORGE WALFORD HATTON

An eminent figure in the legal profession in Peterborough is Mr. George Walford Hatton, barrister and notary public, 397½ George Street.

Mr. Hatton is a native son of this community, who graduated from Osgoode Hall in Toronto in 1880, and started practising law here in 1882, having succeeeded his father, the late D. G. Hatton, who came to Peterborough from Port Hope amongst the earliest settlers. The present Mr. Hatton's father was the first police magistrate here, and also the chief promoter and stockholder in the Peterborough Water Co., which institution sold out its plant to the city nine years ago.

Mr. G. W. Hatton is the solicitor for the Bank of Ottawa, in addition to many other large corporations who entrust their affairs which require legal attention to him, he being a man of sterling integrity and many admirable qualifications.

He has always been a lover of clean amateur sports, having done much to further the interest of the rising generation along these lines. He has been president of the golf, curling, football, cricket, and hockey clubs in Peterborough, and has always won notoriety as a fair and just settler of all disputes.

All his inclinations bend Peterboroughwards. He has done much to further the city's interests—having lately devoted considerable time in soliciting subscriptions and working for the installation of the People's Chimes, a thing which has proved to be a great success; and his efforts in this respect have been greatly appreciated by all our citizens. Great things are expected of him in the future.

Mr. Hatton has been a consistent Conservative all his life time, and has been urged on several occasions to contest the constituency in both the Dominion and Provincial Houses; but his ambition, apparently, does not lie in that direction.

EAST CITY BAKERY

We find to-day the whole world over hundreds upon hundreds of people who are suffering from indigestion, and our worthy physicians tell us that this is due to either one of two things, "Eating our food too quickly, or eating badly cooked food, which is made of inferior quality." So we must be careful therefore in selecting a baker who understands his business and who has a reputation of using the very best flour, and whose bread, cakes, pies, etc., are well cooked. We are glad to say that in Peterborough we have several first class establishments of this kind, and one of the leaders is Mr. J. W. Boorman, who is the proprietor of the East City Bakery, whose plant and well appointed store is centrally located at 55 Hunter street East, where nothing but the best flour is used, and the very finest quality of goods are turned out and delivered promptly to all parts of the city.

Though Mr. Boorman has only been established here for about one year he has already built up a very large trade and a still growing one. Mr. Boorman naturally understands the requirements and wants of his many patrons, as he is himself a native of England, where the very best of food stuffs are consumed. Employment is given to five people, who are all experts in their line of business. The East City Bakery bids fair to be one of the largest and a leader of its kind in this city.

If you are in need of a good baker, and one who never fails to deliver all orders promptly, call up phone 1295. or call at the office, 55 Hunter street East, where they have two delivery wagons which are kept busy all day long, and see for yourself the neat, clean premises, and you will be convinced. Mr. Boorman has shown his progressiveness by having installed a very handsome electric sign over his store, this being the first and only electric sign in East City.

PETER CARNIVAL

Italy being noted for its fruit, the natives of that sunny country naturally understand the care of fruit much more than we Canadians, and this is in all probability the reason why the fruit market in Canada is practically controlled by Italians, who have proved themselves to be our best citizens. In Peterborough we are fortunate in having a reliable fruit dealer, Mr. Peter Carnival, whose up-to-date store is situated at 305 George street, and he also has another branch store in the city. Mr. Carnival came from near Naples, Italy. He has been in Canada for the past nine years, and is well liked by all who know him. His stores are kept in the most clean and sanitary way, and are stocked with the very finest grades of high quality fruit of all kinds. He also handles groceries and confectionery, and he receives a liberal patronage from all parts of the city. Mr. Carnival is most obliging and gives his patrons the benefit of securing from him the best fruit on the market at the closest prices.

MRS. G. BROWN

Any modern, clean and attractive lunch room that is catering to the wants of the farming community who buy and sell in Peterborough, is deserving of liberal patronage; but there is one lunch room in the city that will continue to do business on merit, no matter what accommodation may be had for the farmer elsewhere.

The lunch room of Mrs. Brown plays an important part in the life of the farmer when he comes to the city to do business as does the lunch counter for the city man in his every day work.

Twenty-seven years ago, Mrs. G. Brown, who is a native of Berwickshire, Scotland, established a lunch room at 398 Water street; during these long years the best lunches and refreshments have been served daily to many of our farmers.

Many people can be accommodated at these dainty tables so large is the seating capacity in this popular lunch room.

Mrs. Brown is a kind, motherly woman, and one who takes the best care of her many patrons, and is always anxious to please everyone who comes in contact with her.

J. W. EDWARDS

The public—whose total consumption of meat of various kinds is tremendous, depend entirely upon the butcher to serve them with fresh meat, and in cases of not infrequent occurrence, the butcher abuses the trust which the people place in him, in order to protect himself from loss, and sells stale meat, which is the direct cause of much sickness.

Of the many popular butcher stores in the city, few, if any, are better known and more frequently patronized than that conducted by Mr. J. W. Edwards, of 421 George street.

Since the opening of this store, Mr. Edwards has won the confidence of his customers, not only through the quality and freshness of his stock of tender meats, which are properly hung but by the cleanly condition of his store and business fixtures.

Mr. Edwards was born in Worcestershire, Eng., and previous to locating here three years ago, had had many years' experience in the butcher business. He employs only civil attendants, including his son Mr. L. Edwards, all of whom are known for their courteousness and affable manner, and his wagons call for and execute all orders daily.

T. B. MANIECE

The grocer who handles nothing but the purest of high grade goods is bound to succeed, and especially so if he sells the best goods that the market affords at the lowest prices, and it is certainly due to these facts as well as to his courteous and obliging manner that Mr. T. B. Maniece has succeeded and has built up such a wonderfully large business in the sixteen years that he has been established here. The store which is neat and clean, and is well stocked with the purest of choice groceries and provisions, is centrally located at 99 East Hunter street, and connected with phone 569, and all phone orders are given the most careful and prompt attention.

The patrons of this store are among the best people of our city, and are ever ready to sound the praises of this store, which has the reputation of being one of the leaders of its kind in Peterborough. Mr. Maniece, who is a native of this town, has done much for its advancement, and though he sticks close to business he is always prepared to do anything within his power to assist the city in its continued progress and prosperity.

W. H. HAMILTON

Possibly the oldest grocery business in Peterborough, and one of the most up-to-date and reliable in every way, is the one which is now conducted by Mr. W. H. Hamilton, centrally located at 138 Simcoe Street, where nothing but the very highest grades of teas, coffees, staple and fancy groceries are handled, both wholesale and retail.

Mr. Hamilton entered as a clerk in 1883, purchasing the business in 1893. Although it was originally established in the year 1833, and has only been under three managements all these years, during all this time it has been recognized as the most modern store of its kind in our city.

Mr. Hamilton has been a resident of Peterborough all his life, and is held in high esteem by all our citizens as one of our most reliable and progressive business men.

The tea and groceries stocked in this store and in their spacious warerooms are of the very highest grade, and they make a specialty in the roasting and grinding of coffee, for which there is a very large demand from all parts of the city, the coffee being roasted in an electric roaster, the only one of its kind in the city.

Mr. Hamilton, who is a most public spirited man, has done a great deal for the city's advancement, and is a good worker for its future progress.

Mr. Kennedy was also in the retail meat and provision business in this city for thirteen years. But two years ago he sold out to S. A. Oke, so that he could devote his undivided attention to the shipping trade.

T. ANTHONY

Some people imagine that unless a store is situated on the main streets in the centre of the city that that store could not possibly handle the best of goods. But this is a very great mistake, as some of the most reliable merchants move from the main streets into the less busy parts of the city to avoid high rents, and can therefore sell to their patrons cheaper; and they in nearly all cases handle as good, if not a better class of goods than do the other stores.

This instance is cited in the case of Mr. T. Anthony, who at one time conducted a store on George Street, but decided to move to his present quarters at 91 Hunter Street East, where he carries on a very extensive and successful business, dealing in canned goods, fruits, vegetables, confectionery, etc., etc., and conducts a most up-to-date and first-class store, which is heavily patronized from all parts of the city. He is assisted in his store by a civil and obliging clerk.

Mr. Anthony has lived here for many years, and is one of our most popular and highly respected citizens, and has done much for the city's advancement.

A. SWARTZ

With prevailing high salaries and good wages, which every branch of human service commands, it is only natural that the good housewife takes even a greater pride in her home. The unprecedented good times double her purchasing power—this is one of the chief reasons for Peterborough's beautiful homes.

The stores, too, carry such complete stocks of everything for the house and home that it is not necessary for anyone to leave the city in order to obtain the best that money can get at the lowest cost.

The Elite, 432 George Street, was opened by Mr. A. Swartz three years ago, after having a wide and varied experience in house furnishings and dry goods . This establishment enjoys the patronage of the same element as its name symbolizes. Goods from his choice stock are continually being received into Peterborough's best homes. He handles a complete stock of dry goods, millinery, and house furnishings, including carpets, rugs, curtains, chenile, tapestry, oilcloths, linoleums, and ladies' and gentlemen's ready-to-wear clothing.

Mr. Swartz is a native of Austria, an authority on tapestry. He has won the greatest confidence through the quality of his goods and courteous attention.

MR. H. P. KENNEDY

H. P. KENNEDY

One of the best known of our business men in Peterborough is Mr. H. P. Kennedy, who has been identified as a live stock shipper in this city for the past 22 years.

Mr. Kennedy's former home was in the Township of Otonabee, just outside the city; but he has been a steady resident of Peterborough for the past seventeen years, and recognizes Peterborough as his home town . He started this business in a very small way in 1890, and he now enjoys the very enviable position of being one of the heaviest operators at both the Union Stock Yards and the Western Cattle Market, Toronto, as is shown in the Toronto daily papers; and in fact, Mr. Kennedy for the past fifteen years has been recognized as one of the heaviest operators in Canada.

From the year 1897 to 1908 inclusive he was a heavy shipper of feeding cattle to the United States, having a market with the large feeders in Ohio, Kansas ,Virginia, and other leading feeding centres. For the past few years Mr. Kennedy has established offices at the Union Stock Yards and the Western Cattle Market, both of Toronto. While he spends about four days per week on Toronto and Montreal markets he still makes his home in Peterborough as it is, and has been the established centre for his country trade, having established agencies in most of the towns in Midland District East and West of Peterborough. Some idea of the extensive shipping that is done by Mr. Kennedy may be readily seen when we mention here that his weekly shipments average from forty to fifty car loads of live stock.

W. G. LENDRUM

Photography in Peterborough has attained to the very highest possible proficiency, chiefly because of the competition of experts in the art, so many of whom are established in this city, the work turned out from these bright studios being unexcelled in grace, perspective, development, and in the printing from negatives by the photographers of any city in Canada.

A photographic artist in this city, who ranks high among the profession and one who enjoys the patronage of many people, is Mr. W. G. Lendrum, whose studio is situated at 170 Charlotte Street.

Mr. Lendrum is an old resident of the city, with fourteen years' experience to his credit. He opened his business here ten years ago, and has since made rapid progress and introduced many new methods to his business.

He does the actual photography himself and employs three expert assistants, who treat the negatives and retouch them where it is necessary, to turn out the beautiful results in carbons and platinums for which his studio is now famous.

All styles of amateur work are executed promptly. In addition to doing work for amateurs, he has a very attractive stock of the newest and most modern supplies for amateur photographers, including cameras, kodaks, films, plates, and all accessories.

Mr. Lendrum has earned a wide reputation through his ability; and his business is constantly growing in accord with his reputation

Unique Features of Civic Rule

PETERBOROUGH has features in its system of government that are peculiar to itself. Some of them have been tried for many years and have been found to be very useful. One of the features and one that has recently been put in operation, is the election of the Alderman for a term of two years. They represent Wards, and two are elected by each Ward, but they are elected for two years, one retiring each year. Thus, half of the Aldermen and the Mayor go before the electors each year. The object of this system is to provide for less frequent changes in the personnel of the membership of the Council, and a retention of experienced members, with the result that there will be more continuity in the policy of the Council with respect to public questions and public works. This system was put into force with the beginning of this year.

Another feature is the Peterborough City Trust. The Trust is administered by five Commissioners, who are appointed by the Council for a term of five years each, but so that one retires each year. The Trust was first created in 1861, and Mr. James Stevenson, who recently passed away, was the last of the original Commissioners in that body. When first created, the Commissioners were appointed for life, and the change to the five years term was made in 1908. The Commissioners collect from the Council the sums necessary for the interest and sinking funds on all City debentures. They pay the interest to the debenture holders and pay off the debentures when they fall due. They are thus trustees for the debenture holders and are bound by law to collect from the Council the sums needed and to properly invest the sinking funds until they are required to take up the debentures. They also own in trust the real estate that belongs to the City. The market block, the Hilliard farm, and other real property owned by the City is vested in them, and they rent the properties not needed for civic uses and collect the rent. The revenue they receive from these sources, after paying for the maintenance of the buildings and other expenses, is applied on the debenture interest payments and reduce the amount that would otherwise have to be placed on the rates for that purpose. This Trust has been proved to be a useful one.

Another feature is the Water Commission. There are three Commissioners in this case, and they are elected by the people and hold office for three years, one retiring each year. In the regular law, the Water Commissioners are the Mayor and two Commissioners, elected each year, but the special provisions of the law which applies to Peterborough excludes every member of the City Council from the Water Commission and provides for the election of three in the manner stated.

The Queen Mary Hospital Board—the Board that manages the isolation Hospital—is the creation of the City Council, and not of the Legislature, as are the other Commissioners referred to. This Board is composed of the Mayor, the Chairman of the Property Committee of the City Council and one member elected by the physicians of the City. This Board was established this year when the hospital was completed.

Another Board created by the Council is the Central Charity Board. Since the 1st of February, 1897, the Council has not given any charitable aid directly or through any of its committee or members, but makes a grant each year to the Board, which administers the municipal charity fund. This Board is composed of a representative from each church and one each from the William Hall Poor Trust and the Children's Aid Society. The Council is represented only by the Relief Officers.

In common with all other cities in Ontario, there is a Board of Police Commissioners, consisting of the Mayor, the County Judge, and the Police Magistrate, and also a Court of Revision and a Board of Health, the members of which are appointed by the Council.

Peterborough's Growth

PETERBOROUGH'S progress from the position of a hamlet to that of a flourishing City has been steady. The growth in population has not been uniform; there have been periods when, in response to dullness throughout the business world, the increase has not been as great as in other periods, but there has been steady progress. The advancement of the City during the past decade has been most marked, and when the results of the census are made known, it will, most probably and almost certainly, be found that Peterborough's ratio of increase of population since 1901 has been greater than that of any other City in Ontario, with the possible exceptions of the Provincial and Dominion Capitals.

This is gratifying, and is incontestable evidence of the solid foundation of industrial and business success upon which the prospects for the future are based. An examination of the results of the census for the past half century shows the facts plainly. Between 1871 and 1881 the increase in the population of Peterborough was 47.7 per cent., from 1881 to 1891 it was 42.6 per cent., and from 1891 to 1901 it was 15.6 per cent. This was an average for the three decades of 35.3 per cent. But in the period of ten years just closed, from 1901 to 1911, the increase in population has been 62.9 per cent., or close to double the average increase of the previous three decades.

This rapid growth in population has been principally caused by the industrial development. The growth of the City has naturally attracted trade from more distant localities, and this again has assisted in building up the City, for when the larger demand has drawn more sellers to the improved market, it has augmented the trade done and called for more people in the City to do the trade. While this is true, and some of the growth of the City is attributable to this feature, the industrial development has been the great factor in the expansion and increase of population. New industries have been added, quite a number of them, and the existing industries have been greatly enlarged, giving employment to many workmen and adding to the population.

The growth of the City in the past ten years has been most gratifying, and it is going on. There is every reason to expect the steady, even rapid, increase to continue. From its inception, Peterborough has steadily progressed, and the conditions and advantages which have caused this steady advancement will continue to operate with increasing force. The past of the City has been gratifying; its future is bright with prospects of greater things to come.

C. E. SMITH

In the past few years the city of Peterborough has grown very rapidly, so that to-day we find ourselves in a thriving and progressive city of nearly 20,000 inhabitants. This is largely due to the fact that Peterborough has been able to offer splendid facilities to manufacturing concerns to locate here, but credit is also due to the enterprising and progressive manner in which our business men have worked in the interest of the city.

As well as new industries locating here we have had a good many business men in other lines establish themselves among our ranks. One of the most recent of these men is Mr. C. E. Smith, who, on July 1st of this year, took over the old-established business of Mr. R. McWhinnie, dealer in fine boots and shoes, rubber goods, etc., etc. This business was established thirty-five years ago, and during all these years has borne the enviable reputation of being one of the finest stores of its kind in the Dominion.

C. E. SMITH

Mr. Smith gives employment to five expert salesmen, who are always most courteous and obliging to the many patrons of this store. It is a foregone conclusion that Mr. Smith will continue to administrate the management of this business just as successfully as did his predecessor, as he has had years of experience in the shoe business, formerly being identified with one of the largest wholesale distributing houses of boots and shoes in Eastern Ontario. He has the best wishes of our citizens for a continued prosperous career.

THE TORONTO SAVINGS AND LOAN COMPANY

Of the many great Canadian financial institutions who are represented by large branches in Peterborough, probably none have played a more prominent part in the upbuilding of this city than the Toronto Savings and Loan Co., whose head office is in George Street of this city.

This large corporation was engineered some years ago by the Hon. George A. Cox of Toronto, and who has ever been the Peterborough public's chief benefactor. Identified with the directorate of this company are a number of men of wide repute for their business qualifications, and men who are recognized as authorities in matters pertaining to high finance.

The directors are: Hon. Geo. A. Cox, President; W. G. Morrow, Esq., and Richard Hall, Esq., Vice-Presidents; Peter Hamilton, Esq., A. C. Cox, Esq., and D. W. Dumble, Esq., Directors.

This company has an authorized capital of $2,000,000.00, with $1,000,000 paid up, a reserve fund of $72,000, or 72 per cent. of the paid up capital, total assets of $3,355,504.40, and surplus resources of $1,789,477.71. These figures indicate the strength of the company, and bespeak the thorough efficiency of the management and directors. The company's total liabilities to the public amounts to only $1,566,026.69. Their agents in Great Britain are the Messrs. Finlayson, Auld & Mackechnie, of Glasgow, and the Bank of Scotland, 30 Bishopgate Street, London, E.C., are their bankers in the British Isles, while the Canadian Bank of Commerce are the Canadian bankers for the company.

The Toronto Savings and Loan Co. pay 3½ per cent. interest on savings accounts, with interest compounded four times each year. Accounts may be opened with one dollar and upwards, subject to withdrawal by cheque.

The affairs of the company are entrusted to Mr. W. G. Morrow, vice-president and managing director, who has proved himself a clever administrator of the company's affairs, being a man of untiring zeal and energy, in addition to being the progressive Mayor of this, "The Electric City."

HALL, MEDD & DAVIDSON

In Peterborough, where the legal profession is so strongly and well represented, no firm of legal lights occupy a higher position in the respect and confidence of our people than Messrs. Hall, Medd & Davidson, barristers and solicitors, with offices over the Bank of Commerce.

The firm was originally established as Stratton & Hall in 1888. The late Mr. Stratton was a brother of the Hon. J. R. Stratton, who at the present time is our representative in Parliament. In 1904 the firm, Hall, Medd & Davidson became the successors of Stratton & Hall.

Mr. Hall is a native of Victoria County, and a graduate of Osgoode Hall, in Toronto, having been prepared for that institution at Peterborough Collegiate Institute. Mr. Medd was born in Millbrook, where he is equally well known and respected, and where he practised in addition to Toronto for a number of years before entering this firm.

Mr. Davidson is a purely Peterborough boy, having practised for five years in Durham, Ontario, after his graduation from Osgoode Hall and previous to entering this firm.

Mr. Hall was Liberal member for Peterborough in the Dominion Parliament from 1904 to 1908, during which period he served the interests of our people in an able, aggressive, and very satisfactory manner. Mr. Hall retired from politics in 1908 for business reasons.

During the time that Mr. Hall was member for West Peterborough, he was instrumental in establishing the Peterborough Armouries, and in having the Ontario Government transfer to the Dominion Government all the lakes and waters tributary to the Trent Canal with a view of conserving the waters and providing a more even and uniform flow in the Trent Canal system. The success that has attended this conservation scheme is now being adopted in the waters tributary to the Ottawa River.

Mr. Hall was also instrumental in giving an increased impetus to the construction and completion of the Trent Canal ,and great improvements were made during his term to the parts of the canal already constructed by having wharfs and docks built upon the line of the canal for the accommodation of the public and by having the maintenance and operations of the swings upon the bridges at Bensfort, Hales, Lock Street, Nassau, Young's Point, Burleigh Falls, and Buckhorn taken over by the Dominion Government from the County of Peterborough, thereby relieving the latter of an annual expenditure of over $4,000.00 a year.

This firm are corporation solicitors for many of our leading industries, including the Royal Bank, Otonabee Power Co., Colonial Weaving Co., and others. They are all successful business men, possessing high legal qualifications. They are respected by, and have the confidence of, a large and increasing clientele.

MISS E. SMITH

One of the most up-to-date and well-equipped manicure and hairdressing establishemnts to be found in this part of the country is the one conducted by Miss E. Smith, located at 523 George Street, and is well patronized by all the society of Peterborough.

Miss Smith formerly conducted her business at Number 567 George Street, but in May ,1910, she opened up her present place of business. She has had a great deal of experience in this work, having learned the business in the United States, though she is a native of London, England.

Miss Smith gives employment to two experts, who are kept busy all day long. If hairdressing is an art, then Miss Smith can undoubtedly claim the title of an artist, as she is one of the finest hairdressers and manicurists in Canada; and the fact of her having so many well satisfied customers is proof of this statement. A visit to this establishment, and you will be convinced of her many capabilities and her thorough knowledge in this her chosen profession.

G. R. McCREA

There are few men in Peterborough with a greater reputation for reliable and straightforward dealings than Mr. G. R. McCrea, manufacturer of buggy tops, at Number 464 George Street.

Mr. McCrea has been a citizen of Peterborough for many years, having resided for thirty years in our midst since his arrival from Beaumontville, which is his native sod.

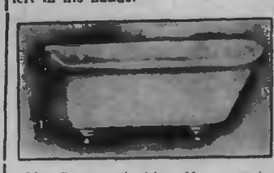
Fifteen years ago he opened his establishment in George Street, where he makes buggy tops of quality, putting the best materials into his products ,which is reason for the durability by which these tops are known.

Mr. McCrea has had many years of experience in this trade, and is a man familiar with the usage most tops get. It is little wonder that the buggy tops from his shop hang together much longer than most others, and hold their shape until they are absolutely worn out. Few business men have met with greater popularity in this district on the merits of their work, and Mr. McCrea is constantly making new friends.

Mr. McCrea does not by any means devote all his time to making buggy tops, but he also does a large amount of work in manufacturing tops for automobiles, gasoline launches, and special tops of any kind; and the people of Peterborough need not send to Toronto or elsewhere for these goods, as Mr. McCrea can suit you just as well, if not better, than anyone else.

GEO. A. BRENTON

One of the most capable plumbers in this city is Mr. Geo. A. Brenton, who is located at the corner of Queen and Hunter Streets. Though he has only been established here since December, 1909, he enjoys a large patronage from all parts of the city. He is a native of Peterborough, and is well known throughout the county, although he served his apprenticeship with one of the leading and most progressive firms of Toronto. He gives employment to an expert plumber, who is kept busy at all times attending to the many jobs which are left in his hands.



Mr. Brenton is himself a practical plumber, steam and hot water fitter, and who is ever ready to furnish estimates on all work, either large or small, and is most courteous and obliging to all his patrons. Mr. Brenton uses nothing but the very highest standard quality of goods in all his work, and he guarantees satisfaction. He is an energetic and progressive business man of sterling qualities, and is well thought of by our citizens.

A. MOFFAT

Because a man is a barber it does not assure you that that man is an expert in his work and can give you a clean, smooth shave under most sanitary conditions. But in Mr. A. Moffat, whose well appointed, clean, and up-to-date shop is located at East Hunter Street, we find a thoroughly experienced expert barber, who can be relied upon to do the best work that can be expected of a barber.

His shop is equipped with all the latest sanitary appliances for the health and comfort of his many customers. He has been established in this city for the past two years, and has built up a large business, and previous to opening his shop in Peterborough he conducted a similar business in Marmora, which is his native home. There is no long waiting at this shop, as Mr. Moffat has three chairs, where expert barbers execute all work promptly, though with the greatest care and attention. Mr. Moffat has made many friends in Peterborough, in both business and social circles, and is recognized as one of our most successful and active business men.

THE SOLID CEMENT DAM OF THE PETERBOROUGH HYDRAULIC POWER COMPANY, LIMITED

R. BEGLEY

Mr. R. Begley's furniture establishment of 380-382 Water Street, is among the foremost of our stores which handle all varieties of furniture exclusively, including art furniture and that of the general household varieties, and furniture of still lighter quality, in order to meet the requirements of his many customers, who are members of all the different classes of our trade.

The store is as familiar to everyone as the market clock, as is also his reputation for reliable dealings. He is a man experienced in the furniture business, a single glance at his spacious warerooms will afford proof of this fact. Every article of furniture is of the highest obtainable quality, from the very best factories, for the prices asked.

Mr. Begley, who is a native of Belleville, established this business eighteen years ago. In this time he has developed a large and growing trade through honest dealings and right prices.

B. HUDSON

There are a number of artists in Peterborough, but nearly all follow the camera, with the exception of Mr. B. Hudson, the portrait artist, in Brock Street.

Mr. Hudson is an artist of the first degree, talented and most skilful in the execution on canvas of all things beautiful which seemingly present themselves to the artist's eye solely and chiefly because the trained eye of a master sees beauty in nature which he brings forth to gladden the heart of man, with the aid of his palette and brush.

Mr. Hudson makes portraits in oils, crayons, water colors, sepia, and pastel, making a specialty of oil color work, in addition to pyrography, of which he is a master. He is also an instructor in these delicate arts and a teacher possessing the greatest patience. He is a taxidermist of great capabilities; a glance at his windows is convincing.

Mr. Hudson is a native of Peterborough, and has been in this profession for forty years in this city. Many homes in the city boast of his masterpieces. He is an artist with an eye for the beautiful.

D. C. LAMONT

Mr. D. C. Lamont, who is manufacturers' agent, with warerooms located at 309 George Street and connected with phone 266, is rapidly becoming widely known to the citizens of Peterborough and to the farmers throughout the county on account of the celebrated agencies he handles, such as the new Empress steel ranges, Chatham kitchen cabinets, Connor's ball-bearing washers, davenports, Capital separators, and the automatic Triumph vacuum cleaners, etc., etc.

Though Mr. Lamont has only been established here since December 1st, 1910, he has built up a large and growing business in all these lines for which he has the exclusive agency. The vacuum cleaners, which are of exceptionally good quality, can be obtained on easy terms, such as weekly or monthly payments, and Mr. Lamont also takes contracts of any size for cleaning your store, house, factory, etc. ,with his wonderful sanitary system.

Mr. Lamont is a native of Toronto, though he spent several years in the hardware business in Western Canada. Since coming to Peterboro he has made a host of friends in both business and social circles, and is held in high esteem by his fellowmen.

T. C. YONGE

An establishment that ranks well among the grocery establishments in George Street north is that of Mr. T. C. Yonge, grocer, at 521 George Street. Mr. Yonge is a popular man who has made many friends through his business. He has always lived within the county limits, and is therefore widely known.

His store is modern in every requirement and clean; his shelves are stocked at all times with fresh groceries of a high standard, including groceries, meats, fruits, and confectionery. He established his business over two years ago, and with the assistance of a civil clerk, has supplied fresh food in many Peterborough homes daily.

Mr. Yonge is a progressive citizen. His store is connected with a Bell telephone. When in need of the best groceries, at the lowest cost, call 1348.

WM. JACKSON

Though the lunch rooms located at 245 George Street, conducted by Mr. Wm. Jackson, have only been established for the past year, yet they are well patronized and very much appreciated by the citizens of Peterborough. This restaurant serves well prepared dishes of everything in the way of food, and also the most delicious ice-cream and ice-cream sodas.

Mr. Jackson sells both wholesale and retail. Two courteous and obliging clerks are employed to give Mr. Jackson assistance in the store, which is well appointed and as neat and clean as a new pin. Mr. Jackson has lived in Peterborough all his life and is esteemed by all his fellowmen, and is also recognized as one of the finest cooks in this part of the country. He has had several years' experience as cook on Government works. Anyone who has not already tried this lunch room ought to do so, as there is no better to be found anywhere in this city ,and the cooking is the finest in town. A large new additional store has been added to the premises, which was lately occupied by Albert Talbot butcher store, which has been turned into a lunch room. Splendid board is given at six meals for one dollar.

FANNING'S STEAM LAUNDRY

The people of Peterborough are very fortunate indeed in having such a first-class laundry as Fanning's Steam Laundry to do their work, especially household work, for Mrs. Fanning, who is the proprietor of this business, makes a specialty of household laundry, and makes a special cheap rate for same.

This business was established twelve years ago, and is located at 285½ George Street, where all the latest machinery has been installed and the laundry throughout has the most sanitary appliances, and for these reasons it has the patronage of hundreds of people from all over the county.

Mrs. Fanning has collecting agents in Lindsay, Sharbot Lake, Chemong, Kaledar, and Pontypool, and employment is given to ten people. Both Bell and machine phones are installed in the laundry, and both numbers are 353, and any business transacted over the phone is given most prompt and careful attention.

Mrs. Fanning, who is a native of Saginaw, Michigan, has had many years of experience in the laundry business, which means good work turned out by the laundry. She has built up a very large and still growing business.

THE ALLIN ICE CO.

One of the greatest necessities during the summer months is an adequate supply of pure ice, such as is always cut and stocked by The Allin Ice Co, 214 Aylmer Street.

Ice is a thing that is seen on every table at each meal during the summer days. It makes the products of the dairy the more healthful and appetizing, such as butter, milk, and cream, etc., besides being an article of commercial value to many business houses, including hotels, dairies, fruit and fish establishments, grocery stores, and butchers, in addition to many other lines of business that are of too frequent occurrence to bear mention.

Mr. J. F. Allin is the proprietor, who has resided in Peterborough for over thirty years, and is well known to not a few of our prominent Peterborough people. The firm gives employment to eleven men, in addition to five wagons which are constantly seen on the streets delivering ice to many of the residential as well as business places.

The business was established over ten years ago, and has won the confidence of the many patrons who enjoy the benefits of a pure ice supply. The ice is cut by the firm during the winter months from the neighboring lakes, whose waters are noted for their purity.

JAS. MURTY

Possibly one of the most unique, up-to-date, and well-appointed stores in Peterborough is the one conducted by Mr. James Murty, which is centrally located on Hunter Street, opposite the Oriental Hotel, where he is a dealer in the very highest quality of stoves, tinware and lamp goods, and also makes a specialty of roofing and eave-troughing, for which work he is pleased to give estimates; and he guarantees all work to be executed promptly. He has the agency for Moore's superior lines of stoves and ranges.

Mr. Murty established this business in a very small way twenty-four years ago, and to-day he enjoys the enviable reputation of being the leader in his line of business in Peterborough, and has an extensive patronage from all parts of the city. This is due entirely to the handling of the very finest standard grade of goods, and his straightforward methods of transacting all his business dealings.

He is a native of the city, and has spent practically all his life here. In addition to his almost individual attention to business, he has also taken a keen interest in the advancement of the city, and is at present an active mmber of the Separate School Board, and is held in high esteem by his fellowmen.

Mr. Murty held office as president of the Central Milling Company of Peterborough up to the time they sold out to the Campbell Milling Company.

Peterborough's Retail Trade

THE growth of manufacture, and the multiplication of varied industries in Peterborough, have naturally contributed to the importance and growth of the retail trade of the city. It is conceded that the number and character of the retail stores of a city, serve as an indication of its prosperity, and are signs which indicate its vitality and progress. Certain it is that on its principal thoroughfares, Peterborough can boast of retail stores that indicate its rapid growth in a commercial sense. Enterprising men from all over the Dominion have been attracted to Peterborough by its many facilities for brisk trade, and its opportunities for establishing a successful retail business. All round the city, east, west, north and south, are prosperous villages which are within easy reach, that look as a matter of course, to Peterborough for their supplies.

Within the past three years rapid strides forward have been made in the number of the local retail stores, and new firms have sprung up each year, adding to the trade resources of our city.

The variety of wares carried by our retail stores is very extensive, embracing every line of goods to be found in the more populous cities. The enterprise of our merchants is well known all over Canada. They are a reliable class of business men, always ready to introduce any new idea that will make for the advancement of the whole community. The reputation Peterborough's retail stores have made for the city is known all over Canada, and it is not surprising that their advertising is closely scanned and their window displays much admired and highly complimented.

Peterborough As an Athletic City

PETERBOROUGH has always been noted as a good sporting town, and the story of the city's athletic career is indeed a proud one. In almost every line of sport at some time or other in the history of Peterborough have her representatives brought her fame and glory by their exploits, and probably no place in the Dominion comparing with Peterborough in size has had such a glorious all-round record.

In the early days Peterborough had a champion cricket team whose deeds, were renowned throughout the province. Then came the burst of the Peterborough lacrosse team into fame, and many were the victories that the local devotees of the game carried off. Of late years lacrosse has fallen off in Peterborough, having been superseded by the game of baseball. Peterborough has to her credit half a dozen Rugby championships, including the intermediate and senior championships of the Ontario Rugby Football Union, and the intermediate championship of the Dominion. Peterborough's hockey club has had a grand record, with three junior and two intermediate Ontario championships, and the city is in the first flight of the hockey centres of Ontario. Peterborough soccer teams, too, have on many occasions carried off the Midland League championship, and to-day the Canadian General Electric team is playing a match in the series for the Ontario championships. In baseball, Peterborough generally more than holds her own. The nines representing this city have captured the Midland League title three or four times, the team of 1911 being the last to win this honour.

Peterborough's curlers and lawn-bowlers are not behind the followers of other sports in their wins, and for the last two years this city has carried off the District Curling Cup. In addition to these club victories Peterborough has produced a large number of individual athletes who have brought fame to their native town by their exploits. Perhaps, no smaller sized town in Canada has turned out so many sterling athletes who have made a name for themselves in the sporting world.

In the matter of facilities for sports, Peterborough is well served indeed. The hockey players are looked after in a fine brick rink with a large ice surface, and splendidly lighted, with seating accommodation for twenty-five hundred spectators. The rink is one of the finest in the province. The curlers have a home of their own on Charlotte street, with seven sheets of ice, and with comfortable, commodious club-rooms. The curling rink is brilliantly illuminated with a Siche gas system, and no curling club anywhere in the district has such splendid quarters.

There is no lack of grounds for the accommodation of the followers of the summer and autumn sports. Riverside Park, an enclosed grounds situated on the banks of the Otonabee River, affords an opportunity for baseball, lacrosse, and football, while there is a fine cinder track, five laps to the mile, for running events. For games, where no admission charge is made, the city's public athletic grounds, Nicholls Oval, is admirably adapted, while there are other grounds in different sections of the city that can be pressed into use. The lawn bowlers have a beautiful lawn and tennis courts at the corner of Aylmer and Brock streets, while the golfers are provided with a splendid links at the grounds of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club, who have a pretty club-house situated on the edge of the Trent Canal.

Peterborough has always been famed throughout Canada as a splendid sporting town and continues to hold its laurels in this respect. The manufacturers of the city appreciate this healthy condition of affairs, as experience has taught them that it is an easy matter to induce permanency among the employees in a city where athletics flourish. The men are satisfied to remain in a town where there is always something going on in the world of sport, and for this reason Peterborough is very popular. Her athletes have won for her a lasting reputation, and it is an unusual year when a championship of some kind does not come to this city.

D. BELLEGHEM'S AMBULANCE

The largest as well as the most modern and attractive furnishing house in Peterborough, is that conducted by Mr. D. Belleghem and his two sons at 188 to 190 Hunter Street West. Mr. Belleghem operates a large four-storey factory in the rear of his handsome warerooms, which is equipped with the newest and most modern machinery, all of which is run by electric power.

The warerooms are attractive and handsome in all their appointments, the furniture of guaranteed high quality being attractively and artistically arranged. The stock includes all varieties of furniture, including art furniture, and, in fact, furniture of al descriptions, to suit all purses. This store is the home of all medium grades of furniture, special order work, and all interior finish, which are the products of their factory.

Mr. Belleghem took over the business from Mr. Tanner in 1878, and since that time his business has been marked with success, largely through reliable dealings. He is now very ably assisted in the conduct of his large business by his two sons, both of whom are also widely known in this district, Mr. W. T. Belleghem being the capable manager of the furniture department. Mr. Belleghem operates a beautiful equipment of all necessities for funeral engagements; in this department he also excels. His sons are both registered embalmers, and they personally superintend the direction of funeral ceremonies; the solemnity with which they are conducted has often been a subject for praise.

A more recent asset to their fine new equipment of rolling stock is a handsome new electric-lighted ambulance—steel-gray in colour, and fitted with air cushions throughout, every known article for the comfort and safety of the patient being installed This ambulance is handled by experienced men, whose care and civility has always been a matter for comment.

Mr. Belleghem and his sons are men of worth to the community, and have always countenanced any good movement for the advancement of ou city

ALEXANDER & MILLER

Within a comparatively short period of time electrical energy has revolutionized nearly all other systems for purposes of illumination, and in thousands of cases systems of transportation and power for purposes of industry.

Every day newer and greater uses are being found for electricity, and each year brings forth the fruitful results of scientific solutions which enable us to devote its use to greater advantage and to many new contrivances which it would be impossible to operate without this wonderful liquid.

In connection with electrical installation no firm enjoys a greater reputation in Peterborough than Alexander & Miller, electrical contractors, 438 George street. In 1895 this business was established in Peterborough by Messrs. Alexander & Miller.

Messrs. Alexander & Miller are one of our old reliable firms, evidence of their ability may be seen in a great many of our brilliantly illuminated places of business, and our many handsome residences, for which Peterborough has won an enviable reputation.

Mention may be made of some of their larger contracts, all but one of which have been completed.

The firm are at present engaged in installing a lighting system at the Peterborough Lift Lock, having a large force of men engaged in the work.

They installed the lighting system at the Kirkfield Lift Lock, and in the branch establishments of some of Canada's foremost banking houses, in Peterborough and outside, as well as some of our best hotels, public buildings and factories.

Both Mr. Alexander and Mr. Miller are progressive business men, and men of sterling worth and integrity. They employ many men, and in this connection have done much for Peterborough.

W. N. GRAHAM

In the past few years the City of Peterborough has grown very rapidly, owing largely to the fact that this city has offered splendid advantages to our manufacturers, and we therefore have secured some of the best manufacturing concerns in the country. In addition to this a large number of merchants have opened up here to cope with the increase of population, and one of these is Mr. W. N. Graham, a dealer in books, stationery, confectionery and cigars, and whose place of business is centrally located at 210 Charlotte street. One of their specialties is post cards, and which consist of the most up-to-date lines, for which there is a very great demand made upon him by the hundreds of tourists that pass through our city during the summer months. All the latest books are always kept on hand, and the confectionery and cigars are of the very best grade having a large assortment of all the best imported and domestic goods. Mr. Graham, who is a native of Peterborough, is a thoroughly progressive and enterprising business man of good standing, and his motto is "Something new all the time." And this is quite correct, as Mr. Graham spares no energy to keep abreast with the times. One clerk is employed to assist in the duties of this large and still growing business, for which Mr. Graham deserves great credit.

J. J. SHADGETT

People who are desirous of having any commercial painting done usually find their way to the office of Mr. J. J. Shadgett, whose place of business is located at the corner of Charlotte and Aylmer streets, opposite Robinson's Livery. Mr. Shadgett, who is an expert sign, carriage and decorative painter, has been established here for the past seven years, and he enjoys the patronage of hundreds of people of this city and the surrounding country. He is a native of England, and it was there that he learned his trade before coming to Peterborough. Mr. Shadgett conducted the same line of business as he is at present engaged in, in Lakefield, but he was not slow to see that Peterborough offered far greater opportunities for him, so he decided to establish here, and since that time he has had a very successful career, and his first class work has kept him constantly in demand, and his business is still a large and growing one.

A very large number of the carriages which appear on the streets of our city have been painted by Mr. Shadgett, and he has an enormous business in sign painting as well. All patrons are assured of good work when left in his hands as his motto is "All work guaranteed." The phone number is Bell 443, and all orders are executed promptly. Repairing and carriage trimming are also given special attention.

FISHING AT PETERBOROUGH

Mr. David Oliver and the 25-lb. 'Lunge Caught in the Otonabee River.

MRS. M. REHILL

On July 15th of this year, Mrs. Rehill, who has so successfully conducted a grocery business at the corner of McDonnel and Aylmer streets for the past year found that her sore was too small to cope with the very great increase in trade, and decided to move to larger and more up-to-date quarters, which are centrally located at 57 George street, being 20x32 ft. The store is stocked with the best grade of groceries that is possible to be had, and it is due to this fact that Mrs. Rehill has built up a large business and enjoys the patronage of the best people in this city. In these days of keen competition it is rarely one finds a lady competing so successfully with the sterner sex, as does Mrs. Rehill.

She knows the grocery business from A to Z, and all who visit her store will find her willing and anxious to supply them with all that is best in the grocery trade.

B. HEARD

In these days of advanced science, and with remarkable rapidity in which the germ scare has spread, the public seek to deal with stores which they know to be conducted under healthful and sanitary conditions.

Wholesale facilities have become so perfect that goods should always be new and fresh on the shelves of the retail store.

This is true in the case of B. Heard's establishment on the corner of George and Sherbrooke streets.

Mr. Heard is a dealer in staple and fancy groceries, provisions, fruits, vegetables and confectionery, of many years experience. Two years ago he established this up-to-date and popular store, after having studied the grocery business from behind the counters of many of our best grocery houses.

The store is well kept and modern in its appointments, bright and airy, the articles of both luxury and necessity being displayed to the very great advantage.

Mr. Heard is a son of this city, and has lived here nearly all his life. He is well known and highly respected through his business capacity, shrewdness and foresight. He is a large property owner, having in this connection done much for the city's improvement and beautification.

THE PETERBOROUGH BOOK-STORE

The Peterborough Book Store, which is undoubtedly recognized as the leading store of its kind in this part of the country, and which is centrally located at 417 George Street—connected with phone 285—is now, and has been for the past two years, conducted by Trebilcock Bros., who are successors to A. H. Stratton & Coy., who originally established this business in 1881. But since the present proprietors took over the business they have made a great many improvements, and the store is now up-to-date in every respect; and in addition to their own individual attention to business, they give employment to four expert clerks to assist them in looking after the many wants and requirements of their large patronage.

Both Mr. Fred. and Mr Paul Trebilcock are natives of Toronto, and previous to locating here they were engaged in selling goods on the road. Mr. Paul Trebilcock travelled for the largest stationery house in Canada, and Mr. Fred. represented a leading dry goods firm, and through that business, which is a study of human nature, they can adapt themselves to all kinds and classes of people, and they are most courteous and obliging to all their patrons, and are held in high esteem by their fellowmen. Their business is both wholesale and retail, and they deal in all the latest books and fine stationery, and are large importers of fancy goods, wall papers, cornice poles, window shades, room moulding, and picture moulding, etc., etc. And in all these lines, which are of the finest quality, Messrs. Trebilcock have built up a very large and still growing business.

The Messrs. Trebilcock have recently secured the agency for Canada's largest wall paper house; and Mr. Fred. Trebilcock is on the road selling these goods which will make another shipping concern in Peterborough.

FRANK WHITE

It is an old saying that if you deal with a merchant who understands his business you will be almost sure to get fair treatment and good goods. In Peterborough we can rightfully boast of having a goodly number of this type of men amongst us in various different lines of trade. But in the flour and feed business there is no man who deserves more patronage than Mr. Frank White, whose store is centrally located at 368 Water street, where he deals in Rolled Oats, Flour, Feeds, Grain, Seeds, Hay, Straw, etc., etc., and he has the agency for the celebrated and widely known "Ogilvie's Flour." Mr. White established this business on November 1st, 1910, though he has had over 20 years' experience in this same line before starting out on his own account. He is a native of Peterborough and very well known and very well liked throughout the whole country. The goods he handles are of the very finest grade, and he has built up an enormous business even in the short space of time he has been established. In the store he is assisted by three employees, who are most obliging and courteous. The telephone number is 839. Mr. White is a progressive business man, and is a firm believer in Peterborough and her continuing progress.

W. H. ANTHONY

The requirements of men who are constantly on their feet, working in a rough country, are better understood by an old soldier who has marched in the Canadian Northwest than by any other type of man, particularly when the soldier is a capable and practical shoemaker, as is the case of Mr. W. H. Anthony, of 303½ George street.

Mr. Anthony has made boots in Peterborough for the past forty years, although he has only been for five months in his present quarters.

He is a native of Belleville, but came to Peterborough over fifty-five years ago.

His business was established on his return from an expedition to the Canadian Northwest with Lord Wolseley, after having suffered a year's privation and having his endurance tested to the utmost.

Mr. Anthony makes lumbermen's, miners' and prospectors' boots, for which he has created a great demand in British Columbia and Cobalt, in addition to the Middle West.

Though he is getting on in years he still takes the same interest in his business, and works himself, in which he shows an undying spirit of progressiveness.

A. READ

Peterborough has always been noted for its excellent hotel accommodation and the men who conduct these places are recognized as good, shrewd business men of sterling qualities, and one of the foremost of this type of men is Mr. A. Read, who six months ago established an up-to-date Temperance Hotel at 201 Hunter street, which ever since it was opened has received a very liberal patronage from all parts of the country. This house is noted for its cleanliness and comfort in every way, it being equipped with seventeen handsomely furnished bedrooms, also two parlours for the use of its guests. Another big feature of this house is the dining room, where the best of food is served by civil and obliging waitresses. The house is lighted throughout with electricity and is equipped with hot and cold water and in fact all the most modern improvements, and the rates are remarkably low at $3.50 to $5.00 per week. Mr. Read is a native of Mount Julian and was engaged in the grocery and dairy business in that place before coming to Peterborough. Since coming to Peterborough he has proved himself to be one of our most worthy citizens, and has become very popular with all who know him.

J. J. COCKS

Satisfaction guaranteed and delivery of goods to all parts of the city. This is the motto of Mr. J. J. Cocks, who conducts one of the finest and cleanest grocery stores in Peterborough. This business was established six years ago by Mr. Cocks, who is a native of Peterborough, and gives employment to three civil and obliging clerks.

He is a dealer in a full line of high class staple groceries and provisions, also the very best blends of high quality teas and coffees. The store is well stocked with the best that the market affords, and his many patrons are assured of good goods, fair treatment and prompt delivery. The store is centrally situated at the corner of Dublin and George streets, and is connected with Bell phone 506 and Machine phone 231. Mr. Cocks is an expert in his chosen business and through his able and courteous administration, he has built up an enormous patronage. He is a great believer in the city's welfare and future prospects and he has done much in the past in the interests of the city

YOUNG & VANDEWATER

In a city of this size, which is in the centre of a wonderful farming district, it is always necessary that the farming implement industry be at its best, so that the soil throughout the district may be tilled properly with the newest and most modern machines to thus ensure a good crop, on which the city actually depends.

For the past six years Mr. Young has conducted this business, and last autumn Mr. Vandewater became his partner, further carrying on the old established business, which has been a land mark on Water street, for years, and where the people of this district have been supplied with farming implements of quality and durability, including McCormick's agricultural implements, Perrin, Fleury and Cockshutt riding and walking ploughs; also the famous Canadian potato digger, vehicles, and harness, twine, robes and blankets, and, in fact all manner of farm supplies.

In all these lines, only goods of high grade and best manufacture are sold. A large stock of many varieties of implement is always kept on hand for the selection of prospective buyers.

Both Mr. Young and Mr. Vandewater are well known for many miles, both far and wide, for their integrity and the class of goods they sell. They are business men of foresight, and are leaders in their own line.

Cheer up!

Here's a Good Hired Man

You will be surprised at the amount of labor a manure spreader will save you. Try one and learn its true worth. We handle the Corn King. There is no better machine made. This machine has a return apron, convenient levers for throwing the machine in or out of gear, and it will spread barnyard manure of all kinds, commercial fertilizers, lime, ashes, salt, etc. A year's use will convince you that it is a good investment, and you will be willing to admit it's the best hired man you ever had. Drop in. Examine this machine. Compare it with others now upon the market. Let us explain the many excellent features found in its construction. Get a catalogue.

Shop in Peterboro Why?

If people would only stop and think, and try and see things from the other fellow's standpoint: sometimes, there would surely be some difference in their actions. For instance, the confirmed out-of-town shopper, who thinks he or she is doing better by following this course, is an example. But are they really doing any better? It is extremely doubtful, as any of our merchants can quickly show if asked. After reading some good advertising from a big City establishment, the idea is formed that certain goods can be bought cheaper at that place than they can in the local stores. They take it for granted that what the advertisement says is correct, and do not compare the prices and goods with those of the same quality in the local stores. If these careful shoppers would just take the home merchant into their confidence, show him the advertisement, and let him bring out the same identical line of goods and quote his price, we venture to say that the revelation would astonish them. This particular feature of out-of-town shopping has been personally investigated by the writer, and it was found that what the big city store quoted as a special inducement was no better, and often just a little higher in price, than the home merchant sold the same thing for in the regular way. In the same way, the catalogues of the big departmental stores were examined ,and often because the reader was unacquainted with the prices at home, the items listed appeared cheap. Investigation again revealed the fact that the same articles are sold cheaper by the home merchant than the prices they are quoted at in the finely illustrated catalogues.

There is a reason for this condition of affairs; and it leaves the advantage with the smaller town merchant every time. All business must show a profit, or they go down. The big stores are not going down, therefore they sell at a profit. The profit is that part of the price an article is sold at, after deducting the cost and the expense of selling. The cost is practically the same in every case, but the selling expense differs very greatly. The home merchant does only his legitimate local advertising, and confining himself to a stated figure he has a certain percentage to add to his cost price before adding the parts which represents his profit. Against this very reasonable outlay, put the enormous expense of hundreds of thousands of costly catalogues, thousands spent in postage, and hundreds of thousands spent in large newspaper advertising contracts, and think of the big percentage that must be added to the cost in order to cover the tremendous advertising bills. The customer must pay all this; no one else puts up the money for this great outlay; and this undoubted fact shows that the smaller home merchant can, and actual comparison proves that he does, sell cheaper than the big City concerns. Then, if the goods can actually be bought cheaper at home, what other reason is there for buying out of town?

Is there a better selection? Surely not. The combined stocks of all the local stores offer a really much finer and better assorted selection of goods than any single establishment could get together. The reason is that each merchant tries to have something different to that handled by his opposition, and he usually succeeds; so that there are perhaps seven or eight quite different assortments to select from at home, and only one at the big store. Then it can't be the selection. Is it that people are naturally inclined to run after the distant object that looks so fine when a long way off, only in many cases to prove a very disappointing thing when it comes to hand? Remember that instead of a brief printed description, which is all you have from the out-of-town merchant, you have at home several smiling, good-natured, business men, glad to show you their goods, willing to let you run around from one place to another until you find what suits you, and you actually inspect the article before you buy. What a difference, and how greatly in favour of the shopping at home habit.

Then there is another question or two. What business do you want to support? Whose business is it to your interest to help build up? What does shopping at some out-of-town store mean to Peterborough? In fact, are you a booster or a knocker? What would complete loyalty to the Peterborough merchants really mean to the growth of the city? What the merchant is to his City is worth considering. He pays the large bulk of the taxes; he is expected to, and does, forward every movement for the betterment of the City, even at large personal expense; he has to cough up donations for every little local spread; he gives his support to sporting meets, picnic programmes, takes stock in new industries for local advancement; subscribes to anything and everything that he thinks will give Peterborough a boost; spends his time at public meetings, on committees, or perhaps as Mayor or Alderman, helping to advance some Peterborough interest; indeed, it is owing to the untiring efforts of the business men, and them alone, that any move is made that builds up the Electric City, enlarges its borders, increases the population, and advances the value of real estate, showing that our merchants are the backbone and the boosters of the City. A knock at the merchant by sending your good money away to do for some other city what you ought to be doing for your own, is therefore at the same time a knock at yourself. You want your property to increase in value, and yet, by sending your custom out of Peterborough, you are doing all you can to keep its value down, while the home merchant whom you pass by, is bending every effort to make it more valuable.

It is a most unfair and shortsighted policy to pay as much or more for goods in the out-of-town store because, for want of a fair comparison, the idea is entertained that goods are cheaper elsewhere. It has been proven so, time after time; just try it next time; take the dazzling out-of-town offer to your home merchant, and he will quickly disillusionize you. Don't knock! Boost!

BENJ. SHORTLY

The business of harnessmaker and saddler at 373 George Street, conducted by Mr. Benj. Shortly, was established forty years ago. This store is one of the largest and finest in Peterborough, and is an easy winner as the best establishment in the city in which to procure first-class material and workmanship.

Besides his harnessmaking and saddlery department, this stock includes a high-grade class of leather goods—trunks, valises, ladies' satchels, purses, and all kinds of small leather articles are to be found in his store in a large variety.

Mr. Shortly, besides being a shrewd business man, has found the time and inclination to give his services in the municipal affairs of the city. He has served three terms on the Town Council, and besides being chairman of the Board of Trade for threee years, has also been managing director of the Cemetery Company.

Mr. Shortly is not a native of Peterborough. He was born in Montreal, coming here many years ago, and building up the business he now so ably controls.

Expert men in this line of work are employed to turn out the work for which he is known, and for which there is an increasing demand. Mr. Shortly is noted for his unfailing courtesy and attention to the wants of his many customers.

NUGENT DRUG CO.

An old establishment with a splendid reputation is the Nugent Drug Co., in George Street. It is one of the finest stores of any kind in the city and can be compared favourably with any store of a similar nature, which may be found anywhere in Canada.

Mr. A. J. Johnston, the proprietor, is well known and highly respected throughout the surrounding country. This store is in every way most attractive, not only in the decoration of the interior, but in the articles offered for sale. They have a most complete stock of pure chemicals, from which prescriptions are compounded with accuracy, in addition to every known remedy and preparation, and full line of high quality druggists' sundries.

In the optical department, which is under the direction of Mr. A. A. Fowler, who is a practical chemist of high degree, every appliance has been installed for testing weak eyes, and for grinding glasses to correct the faulty vision.

Mr. Fowler has studied optical work for many years, and his efforts have been crowned with success, for he has the confidencee of many of our people who would not trust any other oculist to prescribe for them.

The Nugent Drug Co. has rapidly come to the front through the progressive management of the proprietor, Mr. Johnston. There are few, if any, stores that enjoy the confidence and patronage of so many of our best people as the Nugent Drug Co. Mr. Nugent's celebrated preparations are put up at this store exclusively, having won on their merits a wide reputation.

C. B. ROUTLEY

Mr. C. B. Routley is one of our oldest merchants, having dealt honourably with people of Peterborough for over thirty years past. He came to this city at an early stage of his life from Kingston, which city is his own old home town.

The place of business he conducts at 379 George Street, where he has endeavoured to serve honestly and the best of his ability the people of this community during that period, has served thousands of homes with wallpaper of excellent design and harmony of colour, room mouldings, window shades, all kinds of crockery, fancy goods, trunks, and valises. All of these articles form a most attractive stock at all times.

Mr. Routley takes contracts for the supply of materials for interior decoration, and has supplied these for many of Peterborough's finest buildings. Seven clerks and two wagons are employed by him to wait on customers and execute all orders. Some Fifteen years ago he opened a branch at 262 Queen Street, Toronto West, where a strictly wallpaper business is carried on; and which has also proved to be a great success.

Mr. Routley is a man of wide experience in this line of business ,having been engaged in similar business in Kingston before he came to Peterborough. He has been of practical assistance to the community in many of her progressive movements, and has ever had the interests of the city at heart.

Mr. Routley has made several trips to England and France for the sole purpose of procuring goods at manufacturers' first cost ,of which he always carries a full and well assorted stock, which is not surpassed by any of the largest stores of Canada. His efforts have apparently been appreciated by our citizens, as he still holds one of the best businesses of the city. Mr. Routley is a man of strong personality, and is held in high esteem both in his business and social circles.

THOMAS HOOPER

Twenty-two years ago Mr. Thomas Hooper established his first confectionery store in Peterborough at 327 George Street. The business has kept in line with the community's progress. Under his personal direction the business has extended and increased by leaps and bounds until it now ranks among Peterborough's very foremost retail interests.

Five years ago a branch store was opened at 414 George street, and since that time another establishment has been acquired at 601 George Street. The latter branch is better known as the bakery, as it is here that the majority of the baking is done.

Mr. Hooper supplies many homes in Peterborough with fresh bread and cakes, pies, and buns, daily, having five wagons employed in this department of his business. Over 30 employees form an efficient staff, including expert bakers, candy makers, and salespeople.

INTERIOR VIEW OF ONE OF T. HOOPER'S CONFECTIONERY STORES

The candies, as well as the other commodities, are all manufactured under the most sanitary conditions, care being taken of cleanliness before all other conditions.

Mr. Hooper enjoys our community's best patronage, which is evidence of the quality of his goods. He is a firm believer in Peterborough's future, and his success in business is but a reflection of his Old Country training. He has had the sole agency for 20 years of Ganong's chocolates, sole agency for Moir's chocolates, of Halifax.

A. BROWN & CO.

In the past few years the city of Peterborough has grown by leaps and bounds, which is due largely to the splendid opportunities and advantages offered to manufacturing concerns by this city, but is also due in a large measure to the progressive spirit put forth by our business men, who have worked hard to make this city what it is to-day—one of Canada's manufacturing centers.

One of the foremost of these boosters is the A. Brown & Co., who are real estate brokers, land valuators, etc., and also handle all kinds of fire insurance. This business was originally established by Mr. A. Brown twelve years ago, with offices now centrally located at 408 George Street, where they enjoy a very large patronage and have built up a large business, which is constantly growing from year to year. This business has grown so rapidly that on July 1st of this year Mr. Brown saw it necessary to take in a partner to assist him in the management of the affairs of the office, the result being that Mr. H. W. Gillespie joined him at that time.

Mr. Gillespie is a well-known figure in this city, being a brother of Mr. Geo. A. Gillespie, who is a large buyer on the cheese board, and who was past president of the Peterborough Board of Trade.

Mr. Brown is also well and favourably known, both in and out of the city, and is held in high esteem by all who know him. Both Messrs. Brown and Gillespie are natives of Peterborough County, and are taking a keen and active interest in the city's future progress.

LADIES' HAIR WORKS

One of our oldest establishments in Peterboro that always interests the ladies of this city, as well as many of the men, is the Ladies' Hair Works at number 424 George street. The business has been conducted here for a number of years by Mrs. M. J. Byrne, who originally established the business after having spent many years in study, which has been obtained from some of the great authorities in this line of business.

The Ladies' Hair Works always carries a large stock of the latest and most fashionable hair goods, such as wigs and switches, as well as having the best facilities for the manufacture of these necessary articles from the natural hair of the customer, in fact every known article of necessity for the coiffure is always kept on hand, including toilet preparations for treatment of the scalp.

A number of employees expert in this line of business are in readiness at all times to serve the interests of the customers, by placing at their disposal expert opinions on style, and durability of goods.

Although Mrs. Byrne's business was started on a considerably smaller scale, the business has constantly increased, and been extended under her capable and aggressive management.

In addition to the local trade, Mrs. Byrne has the patronage of a great many people residing in nearly all parts of Canada, even as far west as Calgary, Alta.

ROYAL ART STUDIO

Many new branches of business have been established in Peterborough during the past decade, in addition to the new arrival of many professional men, and artists who have had long experience in art in many of the great cities of America and Europe.

To our mind an artist is not solely a genius who can copy things of beauty as depicted by others, but one who possesses a trained eye and sees beauty in nature that is passed by unnoticed by hundreds of people, and one also who possesses the ability to bring the beauty of such a scene to the notice of others by a correct reproduction of it on canvas or on paper, or by photography.

The Royal Art Studio was opened in Peterborough over two years ago by Mr. R. Farthing, who came to Peterborough at that time from Plymouth, England, where he had years of experience in photography with Messrs Heath & Stoneman, photographers to His late Majesty King Edward and the Duke of Edinburgh.

Mr. Farthing's studio is situated in Hunter street. At this studio the work is done that has won for him the fame he deserves for he is an adept in pose, grace and deportment, and his work in both carbons and platinums is of the finish of an artist of proficiency.

Mr. Farthing has made a success in our city and his future progress is assured by the class of work he turns out, and the calibre of the man himself.

PETERBOROUGH HYDRAULIC LIFT LOCK

DAVIS-THOMPSON CO., LTD.

For half a century the people of Peterborough have been placing their insurance through what is now "Davis-Thompson Company Limited." In 1859 this agency was established by Hon. Geo. A. Cox, and the present firm are the successors of the founder. The Davis-Thompson Company, Limited, has handsomely fitted offices at No. 433 George Street, where they do a general brokerage business in fire, accident, life, guarantee, automobiles, motor boats, boiler and plate insurance. They represent the leading British, Canadian, and United Stated companies, and do without doubt that the largest business of any agency in Peterborough. They are also agents for the G.N.W. Telegraph Company and the Canadian Express Company.

Mr. W. J. Thompson, the vice-president and managing director of the company, is a recognized outhority on insurance matters, and has made a life study of everything pertaining thereto. He is a prominent in the commercial and financial circles of Peterborough, and has always taken an active interest in public affairs. He is a thoroughly progressive man and is heartily in accord with any movement looking to the upbuilding of Peterborough. He is prepared at any time to give information in regard to insurance in general and in regard to the many companies which he represents in particular.

R. S. PARKS

In Peterborough, as is the case in every other city, the housekeeper trys to locate a reliable grocer with whom to deal; and the reason Mr. R. S. Parks, who conducts a grocery business in the west-end at 125 Rubidge Street, has built up such a large patronage from all parts of the city is because the citizens have found him to be one of the most reliable in the city in his line.

Mr. Parks, who is a native of Canada, came to Peterborough from Cannington on April 19th, 199, and started the business he is at present engaged in, and his business is constantly increasing. His store is clean and up-to-date in every respect, where all orders are executed an ddelivered most promptly and in a most satisfactory manner. He deals in the very finest quality of groceries, provisions, vegetables, etc., also school books and small wares, etc. ,etc., and his store is connected with phone 480.

Mr. Parks is a man of wide experience in the manufacture of cheese, having spent five years in this line as a cheese maker in the fourt hline of Smith Township, and seven years in Manchester.

Mr. Parks, though never having taken any public part in municipal or political affairs is nevertheless keenly interested in the affairs of the city, and has done a good deal for the advancement of Peterborough, and is a firm believer in the city's future.

G. A. GOHEEN

The large grocery and butchering establishment at from 196 to 198 Rubidge Street conducted by Mr. G. A. Goheen is one of the finest stores of a similar character in the city.

This business was established about ten years ago by the present proprietor who has had a wide and varied experience in general store business which enables hi mto sell at very close prices for cash . This attractive store is a popular resort for many women whose duty it is to purchase the articles of household necessity each day.

This establishment has become widely and favourably known through the quality of the goods obtainable there which includes choice groceries of all descriptions, provisions, fresh meats of all kinds, boots, shoes, and tinware, for which he has built up a large business and won an enviable reputation for honest and reliable dealing with the public.

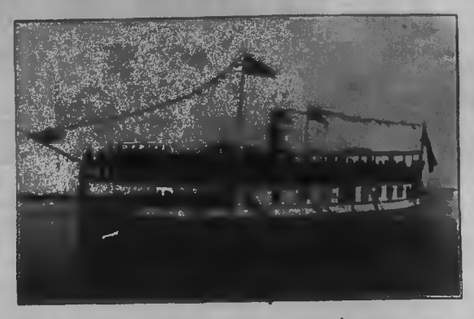
Mr. Goheen is one of the foremost citizens, and ranks high among his business associates. He possesses deep intellectual qualifications, and through his able administration his business has assumed gigantic proportions.

E. PEMBERTON

Canada can readily boast of a goodly number of things, but we do not make a pretence of trying to boast of knowing the shoemaking business. We have to give credit to our Old Country brothers i nthis respect, as they are recognized the world over as the finest shoemakers in the world. Though we have a number of experienced Old Country shoemakers in Canada, and it is true they are getting the largest bulk of the trade, because they understand their business from A to Z.

We are forunate in having a man of this stamp in Peterborough in the person of Mr. E. Pemberton, who is a practical and experienced boot and shoe repairer, located at 134 Rubidge Street, where he carries on a very extensive business, chiefly because he is reliable in every sense of the word, and is an up-to-date shoemaker.

Mr. Pemberton is a native of England, in which country he learned his trade . Since coming to Canada, he has spent four months in Toronto in this line of work, and has been established here for the past three years. Mr. Pemberton makes a specialty of hand-sewn work, and can be entrusted with all kinds of work in his line. If you are in need of shoe-repairing of high quality, call and see Mr. Pemberton, where all work is guaranteed to give satisfaction.



PETERBOROUGH AND LAKE SIMCOE NAVIGATION CO'S STEAMER—GENEVA

PETERBOROUGH AND LAKE SIMCOE NAVIGATION CO.

Early in the year of 1911 this company was formed to take over the business and equipment of the Otonabee Navigation and various other interests which were controlled by them. The officers of the Peterborough and Lake Simcoe Navigation Co. include the Messrs. E. H. Mason, president; Robt. Hicks, vice-president; and Robt. Pinchin, general manager and secretary-treasurer; and Mr. William Thompson, of Orillia.

The company operate six passenger steamers on the Trent Canal and Kawartha Lakes.

Steamer Geneva, making regular trips between Peterborough and Rice Lake, taking in Harwood and Hastings as points of call.

The Lintonia, connecting with the C.P.R. at Bobcaygeon, runs to South Beach, via Pigeon Lake, Buckhorn Lake, Deer Lake, Lovesick Lake, Stoney and Clear Lakes.

With the completion of the Trent Valley Canal, the company intend giving a thorough service from Lake Simcoe to the Bay of Quinte.

The company's boats combine safety with speed and comfort, a condition which lends to make a vacation spent on the Kawartha Lakes even more enjoyable.

M. H. HALPIN

The residents of Peterboro are wholly dependent upon their grocer to supply them with first quality goods and unless they have confidence in their dealer they never feel just sure whether they are getting this class of goods or not. But when a man has been established in one line of business in any city for a period of thirty years you may place the utmost confidence in him without the slightest fear. Mr. Mr. H. Halpin is one of our business men who enjoys this enviable reputation, and is one of our most highly respected citizens. Mr. Halpin is a general grocer who has built up an enormous trade, which is due entirely to his progressive and enterprising spirit, and the fair treatment which at all times. The store which is he has extended to his many patrons heavily stocked with all the latest and best quality of staple groceries, fruit, vegetables, canned goods, flour, etc., is handsomely appointed, and is centrally located at 39 George street, corner of Perry street. Mr. Halpin, who is a native of Peterboro, has done a great deal for the advancement of the city, and at one time acted as the city's License Commissioner.

JOHN KYLIE

A business man of prominence and high rank in this community, and one who enjoys the confidence and patronage of our people both in the city and surrounding country, is Mr. John Kylie, dealer in Boots, Shoes, and Rubbers of highest quality—located at 139 Hunter Street.

This up-to-date, attractive place of business is well known to all our citizens, and is one of the foremost in the public confidence, enjoying a large patronage from some of our best people.

Mr. Kylie carries large stock of footwear of famous lines and exclusive styles, all of which are tastefully displayed in a manner whoch shows off the quality of the goods in their true light.

This store has been in operation for ten years. During this period it has extended remarkably under the energetic management of the engaging proprietor, who is also ably assisted by his two sons, John Joseph and Frank Kylie.

Mr. Kylie is highly respected in both business and social associations, and is a man of high standard and principles. He has done much for the advancement of the community, and the county of Otonabee, in which he was born.

S. A. OKE

We feel that it would be safe to say that of our entre poipulation there is not an individual who is not familiar with the Meat, Fruit and Vegetable Market conducted by Mr S. A. Oke at 340 George Street.

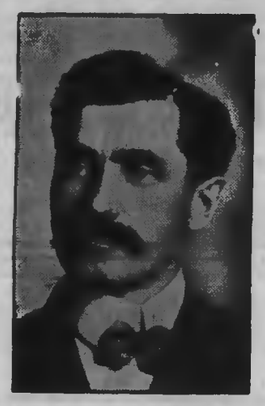
This store is the leading one of its kind in this city, and Mr. Oke enjoys the major proportion of our best people's patronage. Mr. Oke, who is one of the oldest residents, took over this business from Mr. A. P. Kennedy two years ago, and after making extensive improvements, his place of business has become famous as the home of delicious fruits and tender meats.

A staff of eight employees is kept busy in this large store to meet the requirements of the patrons; three delivery wagons are also on the road to call for and execute all orders.

Mr. Oke originally came from Port Hope, and conducted an extensive fruit business here for many years. His many former customers followed him into his new premises, which is evidence of his affable manner and courteous treatment. He is a director on the Board of the Industrial Exhibition, a member of the Knights of Pythias, and secretary-treasurer of the Sons of England. In consideration of his valued services, the Sons of England presented him with a gold ring this spring . His services to the city have always been as valuable as they were to his lodge. Some day he will be rewarded by the city.

THE ONTARIO COAL CO., Ltd.

The winter comfort of Peterborough citizens, in addition to the readiness with which power can be generated either the use of poor coal, or mismanagement of the stove or furnace. The former trouble is overcome by dealing with a reliable firm who can supply first class coal. The latter by applying for and then following the instructions for burning coal as supplied by the Ontario Coal Co., of 150 to 160 Aylmer streets. They handle one grade of anthracite coal only., viz., the famous D. and E. Scranton coal, better known locally as "Occo" Scranton Coal. The trade mark of this company, the "Coal Bag," is well known to all our citizens. Mr. G. K. Rackham is the president and managing director of the company, and one who is well known to the people of this community. He has resided here for years, and is one of the many popular officers of the 57th Regiment.



G. A. GILLESPIE

A most useful business in a farming community is a dealer in dairy supplies such as is conducted by Mr. G. A. Gillespie, 140 Simcoe Street. Mr. Gillespie deals in all kinds of machinery to lessen the labor of the dairymen.

Canada is a remarkable producer of dairy products. Ontario, as compared with the other provinces, is even greater; yet Australia and New Zealand are even greater producing countries than Canada, for the simple reason that the farmers have a superior education in dairying and cooperate with one another to so great an extent that millions of pounds of dairy produce are shipped from these countries yearly to the great markets of Europe.

Mr. Gillespie has engaged in this dairy machinery business in order to facilitate the farmers in this industry, not only through the sale of implements of quality, ability, and durability, but by placing absolutely at the farmers' disposal his great fund of information which years of study in dairying has given him. He also deals in produce, such as butter, cheese, eggs and seeds, the seeds being sold retail, the former wholesale in large quantities. This business was opened one year ago, the proprietor having previously been engaged in the grocery business with Mr. White for eight years.

Mr. Gillespie was born in Otonabee township. Previous to coming to Peterborough, he was engaged in the butter and cheese making industry.

Probably no figure is better known in Peterborough than Mr. Gillespie, as he was for three years in the City Council, and for two years President of the Board of Trade. He is a popular man among all classes, and is continually making new friends through his present business.

OFFICE OF THE ONTARIO COAL CO.

in our large factories, depends equally as much upon the coal supply, as the durability of power plants and general heating apparatus. If the coal supply is not satisfactory, the entire works of these industries are severely handicapped ,insofar as it is a waste of time and money to endeavour to consume poor fuel in the engine room, as it will not supply sufficient heat. The same thing applies to residential comfort during the months of the year belonging to Jack Frost. It is of frequent occurrence that consumers of poor fuel complain of a cold house, after having consumed twice the amount of coal which heated the house during the preceding winter. This comes from

THE ROY STUDIO

There is no surer or greater way of obtaining notoriety than that which is the desired result, obtained through expert workmanship and satisfaction in the minds of an ever-increasing custom.

This is true of the Roy Studio, at 140½ Hunter Street. The Studio was established 16 years ago by Mr. R. M. Roy, who is a native of Belleville, Ontario, and a finished artist in photography. Mr. Roy is assisted by his son, Mr. Fred L. Roy, in the conduct of the business, the son being a valuable assistant, well up in detail of every branch of the business.

The Studio in itself, and including the drapings and splendid exhibitions of the work of these talented men, whose work spells grace, is among the finest it has ever been our good fortune to look over.

Mr. Roy produces wonderful results in commercial and view photography, in addition to giving thorough treatment to amateurs' work. He handles amateur supplies and cameras of the highest obtainable quality. This studio is the home of Roy's famous souvenir postcards

Mr. Roy has done much for Peterborough in the sixteen years of his residence here, having served the interests of our people faithfully in the distribution world-wide of views of and commerce pertaining to Peterborough and vicinity. Their work is eagerly looked for in the Christmas number of our paper each year, as they always contribute the large plate of Peterborough's newest generation. Too much cannot be said of the Messrs. Roy in singing the song of their praises .

MRS. T. DARRAH

A great many of our readers are no doubt unfamiliar with the fact that one of the most comfortable boarding houses in the west-end of this city is located at 122 Park Street, and is conducted by one of the most obliging ladies in Peterborough in the person of Mrs. T. Darrah, who opened this establishment on January 1st, 1910, which is connected with phone 1108, and is up-to-date in every respect.

Mrs. Darrah came here from Marmora, and since coming to this city has made many friends. Appreciation for her hard work in running her house in a cleanly and most satisfactory manner is shown by the large patronage she enjoys. This house has accommodation for fifteen steady boarders at a moderate rate of $4.00 per week. There are fourteen rooms, and everything is modern and sanitary. Bath, with hot and cold water, and a phone has been installed for the convenience of her guests.

The dining-room is as clean as a new pin, and the best of meals are served. The dining-room has a seating capacity of twenty.

Mrs. Darrah is ably assisted in the management of the house by her two daughters who, like their mother, make splendid hostesses.

THE HOME FURNISHING CO.

The proprietors of the Home Furnishing Co. are men of experience in the house-furnishing business as previous to locating and establishing their popular store in Peterborough they were engaged in a similar business in New York and other places, of which they made a decided success.

These gentlemen located a store at 208 Charlotte Street. This store is the home of good quality goods, which are sold at close prices, either for cash or on a credit basis.

The store is well kept and heavily stocked with a great variety of attractive articles. Five employees look after the customers in attentive fashion. Their sales comprise many articles of everyday requirements, including every known article of necessity and luxury for use in the well-kept homes or for the stylish ladies and gentlemen we see every day on our city streets.

This firm give special offers very frequently that it might be well to look for in the Examiner. Every time a sale is advertised ,much money is saved by the public.

Although these gentlemen have only recently enlisted in our business ranks, they bid fair to rank among the foremost in business circles in the future.

J. McMARTIN

The people residing in McMartinville do not find it necessary to come to Peterborough to buy their groceries, since Mr. J. McMartin established his up-to-date grocery business in that town three years ago, where he carries a full and well assorted stock of high-grade staple and fancy groceries, confectionery, fruits in season, flour and feed, etc., tobaccos, cigars, cigarettes, etc., etc.

Mr. McMartin has lived in that district practically all his lifetime, and is well and favourably known throughout that district as well as in all parts of Peterborough. The town of McMartinville got its name from this old family, who have done a great deal for the advancement of that district.

Shortly after establishing this business, Mr. McMartin was appointed postmaster for that district, in which capacity he has served the public honestly in every respect. The store is under the direct management of Mrs. McMartin, who is recognized by all who know her as one of the most courteous and obliging ladies in that community ,and has a host of staunch friends.

H. B. RYE

What is more delightful during the hot days of the summer months than a cool ride in a motor launch, rowboat, or canoe on a nice, shady river?

This kind of enjoyment is very popular in Peterborough, where excellent accommodation is offered at H. B. Rye's boathouse, at the end of the car line, where he has a fine stock of boats and canoes for rent, either by the hour, day, week, or month, at very moderate charges; and also stores 80 boats and 40 motor launches in his spacious boathouse for private owners.

Though Mr. Rye is a native of Kaipara, New Zealand, he has lived here for the past twenty years, and seven years ago he established his present business, which has proved to be a great success, and is heavily patronized by all our citizens.

Mr. Rye is a practical boat and canoe builder, having had years of experience in this line. During the winter months Mr. Rye manufactures paddles, for which he has always found a ready sale.

CANADIAN FURNISHING HOUSE

It might be safe to say that one of our most progressive and enterprising business men in Peterborough is Mr. M. Fine, who is the proprietor of the above mentioned Canadian Furnishing House, whose well equipped and handsomely arranged store is centrally located at Number 311 George Street, where he deals in highgrade ladies' and gent.'s ready-made clothing, millinery, and the best qualities of all kinds of house furnishings.

Mr. Fine, who is a native of Canada, has been established here at the above address for nearly two years; and even in this short space of time his store has become very popular among the best class of people in the city as well as some of the country people, who rely upon the Canadian Furnishing House for their purchases.

This store has an exceptionally large stock of goods to choose from; and you may rest assured that all goods purchased at this house are the very best that money can buy.

Mr. Fine understands the business from A to Z, as he was formerly in the same business in Belleville, Ontario; and both he and his assistant are most civil and courteous, and are untiring in their efforts to please their customers.

The business is constantly extending under Mr. Fine's capable and progressive management, whose long experience in this business enables him to give high quality in furnishings at the lowest possible cost. His store has already become widely known for fair treatment, honesty, and reliability being the manager's motto. The stock is selected from the products of the biggest American and Canadian houses, whose lines are of the most celebrated manufacture.

MICHAEL S. DONOGHUE

City Horseshoer

One of the oldest places of business of its kind in Peterborough, the Electric City of Canada, is the horse-shoeing forge which is located at 395 Aylmer Street, where the best horseshoeing in the city is done.

This business is one of Peterborough's old landmarks, having been established here for the past fifty years. Although the present proprietor, Mr. Michael S. Donoghue, has only been here for the past six years, he is very well and favourably known all over the city and surrounding country. He is a native of Peterborough, and is highly respected by his fellowmen.

Before coming to Peterborough, Mr. Donoghue was for seven years in the same line of business in Ennismore, where he had a large trade. Mr. Donoghue is a very capable and reliable horse-shoer, and he gives employment to two experts as well. Since opening up his business here, he has enjoyed a large patronage ,and his customers always express satisfaction at the splendid work that Mr. Donoghue turns out.

JOHN REYNER PIANO CO.

The John Reyner Piano Company, though only having been established three years ago, is recognized as one of our leading and most reliable and up-to-date businesses, which is centrally located at the Grand Opera House block, George Street, and owned and managed by two of Peterborough's most highly respected business men, Mr. John Reyner and Mr. W. H. Cunningham.

This firm are dealers in all kinds of sterling quality musical merchandise, and also do tuning and repairing in all branches of the business, Mr. Reyner being an expert tuner and tone regulator of pianos, reed and pipe organs for the past 25 years, having had vast experience in some of the best and largest establishments, both in Canada and the United States; and their business has grown with tremendous leaps and bounds, due entirely to their own progressive and enterprising manner and their straightforward methods of transacting all dealings with their many well-satisfied patrons who are scattered throughout all parts of the city and the surrounding country. They represent the largest manufacturers in Canada, the Karn pianos, Karn player pianos, Karn reed organs, Karn pipe organs, the Morris pianos, Morris player pianos, the finest and best in every style and finish. The Karn piano gives its buyers all the best that a piano can give, the result of skill, care and honesty of construction, matchless merit. The customer buys it, secure in the knowledge that it will prove itself to the limit of satisfaction.

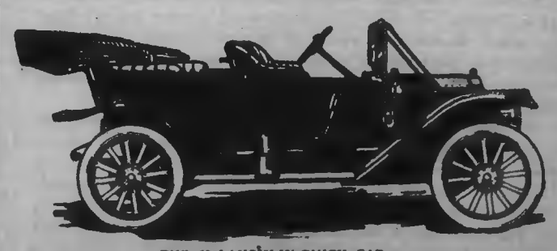
The former premises of the Reyner Piano Co. were located at 171 Simcoe Street, but owning to the increase in business, they were compelled to move to larger quarters to cope with the demands made upon them. Both parties being practical musical men, with many years of experience and expert salesmen, are held in high esteem both in business and social circles by all who know them, and the public are cordially invited to call and inspect their beautiful stock of instruments, whether they purchase or not. Pianos from $40 to $500, and organs from $10 up.—The John Reyner Piano Co., Grand Opera House Block, George Street, Peterborough.

McLAUGHLIN-BUICK MOTOR CARS

An establishment of more recent occurrence in Peterborough, and one which is to play a most prominent part in pleasure circles throughout this part of Ontario, and in commercial life in the city, is the McLaughlin-Buick Motor Car Co. of Oshawa, Ontario, who established a branch of their business in Simcoe Street about one year ago.



THE McLAUGHLIN-BUICK CAR.

The Peterborough branch and sales rooms occupy a handsome new building of red brick construction, where six expert mechanics are already employed. The head office and factory are in Oshawa, Ontario, it being in this factory where these cars, celebrated throughout America for their durability and completeness of construction, are made. Of all the numerous makes of Canadian-made motors, no doubt can be entertained as to the McLaughlin-Buick motors being motor car perfection.

The local branch is conducted under business, both through the head office and in their local garage. Many, indeed, have been the sales effected through this branch of either cars of their own manufacture or the Welch cars, or Oldsmobiles, for which they are Peterborough selling agents.

This fact is being demonstrated over and over again in each day's the management of Mr. Trevor G. Murton, who is an experienced man in motor construction. Mr. Murton is a native of Oshawa, having been connected with his present employers for the past three years. His experience has been wide indeed in this business, having been engaged in a similar position in Buffalo and other parts of the United States for several years.

Mr. Murton is a most pleasant man to meet, and lives up to principles of high standard of his occupation. And all those contemplating the purchase of a motor should not fail to let him point out the many great merits of the car for which he has received the very highest praises.

THE PETERBOROUGH SHOW CASE COMPANY

Four years ago the Peterborough Show Case Company opened their doors for business at 709 Water Street, where an extensive and still growing business is conducted in the manufacture of show cases of all descriptions.

The plant is thoroughly equipped with the latest designs of machinery for carrying out the construction of show cases with the greatest perspective and elaborate design. The products of this factory include Silent Salesman show cases, store fixtures, wall cases, shelving, high grade cabinet work, such as china cabinets, kitchen cabinets, writing desks, bookcases, medicine cases, and tables, all of these articles are made to order, and are executed by only skilled workmen. They also dealin British plate-glass and British plate mirrors, besides repairing and refinishing furniture, upholstering an dpicture framing. For any work of this nature phone 1153.

Mr. W. Theobald, the progressive manager, has resided in Peterborough for the last twelve years, in that time having become widely known. He is an expert in the handling of wood-working machinery, therefore well qualified to be at the head of this concern.

J. E. LILLICO

The people of Peterborough as well as people all over the country are always anxious and ready to give their patronage to an honest and reliable dealer and it is for this reason that the business conducted by Mr. J. E. Lillico has gone ahead with such leaps and bounds.

Mr. Lillico is recognized as one of the most straightforward and up-to-date business men in Peterborough; and though he has only been established for about two years he enjoys a large patronage from all parts of the city.

His store, which is well appointed in every respect, is centrally located at corner Charlotte and Park Streets, which is connected with both Bell phone 492 and machine phone 207, where he deals in choice family groceries and provisions, also fruits and vegetables. His store is kept in a most cleanly manner, and all the goods handled by him are of finest

Peterborough's Taxes

MUNICIPAL taxes is a subject that comes home to every ratepayer, and it is one that has an important bearing on the prosperity of a city, for a high rate of taxation tends to discourage building and investment, and to retard industrial growth, while a low rate encourages building, attracts investments, and is an attraction for industries. It is one of the inalienable rights of a ratepayer to grumble at the rate of taxation, and that right is used more or less in every community—not excepting Peterborough. Yet in comparing the tax rate here with the rate in other cities—and it is by comparisons that the level of a tax rate is ascertained it is found that the rate in Peterborough is low. The rate on the dollar is low compared with other places. When one sees rates of 24 to 30 mills collected, our rate of 22 mills does not loom large.

But it has been objected to this comparison that the rate of taxation does not tell the whole story, for the rates of assessment compared with the actual values must be known before the value of the comparison can be admitted. Very good. Then take another comparison. The values of property will be higher or lower according to the size of the city, and in a smaller town or city the values should be lower and in a larger one higher. So that if the amount of taxes collected per head of population is taken for a basis of comparison, we would have one that would eliminate any question of a high or low assessment and a basis that would give a fair comparison.

A recent Government report shows that the rate of taxation per head for municipal (exclusive of school) purposes in the sixteen cities of Ontario, varies from $2.71 to $13.96. The city with the $2.17 rate was the only one in Ontario that had a lower rate than Peterborough, while the other fourteen cities all had a higher rate, and the sole one that was lower secured that rate by a fortunate investment in a steam railway that is operated by the C.P.R. at a large profit. Then taking the combined taxation for all municipal and school purposes, there are only three that have a lower rate per head than Peterborough (including the one that owns the Steam Railway), and all the others have a higher rate per head of population.

The tax rate in Peterborough is somewhat higher than it was a number of years ago. As a place grows the municipal services have not only to be extended but a different class of service has to be given. For instance, it is not many years since the first of the present system of sewers was laid, and the first concrete sidewalk constructed in Peterborough. Now there are many miles of each. But with all the new services that have been inaugurated and extended, and the improvement of old services, such as the fire department, the municipal rate of taxation is only 2.16 mills higher than it was ten years ago, and the rate of taxation for municipal purposes per head of population is lower than it is in every City in Ontario but one.

There is comfort in these facts, and they should encourage the citizens of this progressive city to have even greater faith in their home community and to look for even larger advancement for the municipality in the years that are ahead.

W. A. SANDERSON & CO.

We boast of many fine stores in this community, as well as many establishments that originated years and years ago. It is these older ones that have so materially assisted us in our growth, in addition to having formed the backbone of the town since the early Seventies .

One of these stores that has always added very greatly to the attractiveness of our many places of business is that of W. A. Sanderson & Co., watchmakers, jewellers, and opticians. This business has been in operation since 1876 , having been established at that time by Mr. W. A. Sanderson.

Nine years ago, Mr. W. E. Wasson who had been identified with the business for twenty-three years, took it over, and has since conducted it for himself at 367 George Street.

Mr. Wasson is a practical man at optical work and watchmaking, years of his life having been devoted to the study of these branches of his work. He is an extensive importer of clocks, watches, silverplate, jewellery and diamonds; a large, beautiful and well assorted stock is kept on hand for the selection of his many patrons.

Four experts and salesmen are in attendance to execute the wishes of the customers. Repair work is promptly executed.

Mr. Wasson is a son of Peterborough, well known and popular throughout the district.

W. J. KENT

There are very few drug stores in Canada which can claim what this store claims—that is, an establishment of over fifty years; and during all these years it has borne the enviable reputation of being one of the most reliable in the country

This business is located at 402 George Street, which is Peterborough's main thoroughfare, and is now in charge of Mr. W. J. Kent, a very capable chemist and druggist, and who is a graduate of the 1898 class of the Ontario College of Pharmacy. Mr. Kent is successor to H. S. Macdonald, and prior to his taking over this business on October 1st, 1910, he spent about ten years in this same line of business in Ottawa, Ontario.

Mr. Kent has made a great many friends since he established himself in this city, and he enjoys the patronage of the best people in the town. His motto is: High-class drugs dispensed accurately; and people may depend upon it that this motto means every word that it says. The telephone number is 66, and all prescriptions sent in over the phone are attended to promptly.

H. LeBRUN & CO.

The City Clothing Store at 396 George and 143-145 Hunter Street is one of Peterborough's landmarks; it has borne the sign of the Golden Horseshoe, that is familiar to all our citizens, for many years.

The business was established by the late H. Le Brun in 1873. Although the business has not always occupied the fine premises it now enjoys, it always was such as to bear all the earmarks of reliability and quality.

Mr. Joseph Picard is the present proprietor, having been a partner of Mr. Le Brun's for many years. He has been connected with the business in all for over thirty-eight years, and bears the distinction of being the second eldest business man on George Street. He was born in Lanorau, Quebec in 1851, and although he is getting on in years, he is still in harness and takes the utmost enjoyment from the administration of his own affairs.

PETERBOROUGH MARBLE WORKS

The oldest and one of the most reliable firms dealing in marble is that of the Peterborough Marble Works, established in 1846 by Mr. S. A. Moore, who is the oldest man in this line of business in Canada, and during all these years he has enjoyed the enviable reputation of being a leader in his chosen work.

This firm, whose office and works are located at the corner of George and Charlotte Streets, is now under the able administration of Mr. T. W. Moore, a son of the founder of this business, who, like his father, is an expert and practical man, having years of experience to his credit.

Two large shops are maintained in Belleville, Ontario, where all the rough work is done and shipped to Peterborough to be finished, where nothing but the finest grade of work is turned out by five expert employees.

Mr. Moore deals in marble and granite, and manufactures the finest line of monuments to be had in this or any other part of the Dominion of Canada. Mr. Moore has built up a very large and still growing business, which is due to good work and fair dealings with all his patrons, and he is highly respected by his fellowmen.

RENEWING OLD ACQUAINTANCES—

THE LAYING OF THE CORNER STONE OF THE PRESENT MARKET HALL OVER TWENTY YEARS AGO

T. BRIGHTMAN & COMPANY

In looking up statistics of the city of Peterborough, we find that we have more old-established business houses here than in any other city in Canada of its size, and all these firms have enjoyed a very successful career, until to-day they have grown to be some of the largest industries of their kind in the Dominion. One of the foremost of these old-established houses is that of the T. Brightman & Co., with large warerooms centrally located at 412 Aylmer Street, connected with phone 59, and P.O. box being 530.

This business was originally established over eighty years ago by the late Sheriff Hall. Walter Patterson succeeded him, and after that came Mr. J. Patterson, who conducted the business for some time. Still another change was made in the management of its affairs when the present enterprising and progressive proprietor, Mr. T. Brightman, took charge fifteen years ago. He has guided the business along on straightforward methods, and to-day is recognized as one of our leading and most successful business men. He is a dealer in hides, wool and leather, which he ships to all parts of the country, and does an enormous trade.

Mr. Brightman, who is a native of America, is an expert in his line of business, and he gives employment to four expert men to assist him in executing the duties of so large a business. He is a great worker for Peterborough's advancement, and is a much respected citizen.

JAS. SUTHERLAND

One of the best known retail merchants in Peterborough is Mr. James Sutherland, not only as owner of the general grocery store at 323 George Street, but as a local preacher for the Methodist Church in this city.

We do not doubt but that he is known to every individual in this community either by those who have come in contact with him in a business way or those who have heard the truth in his eloquent Scriptural deliverances.

Mr. Sutherland has been engaged in the grocery business for twenty years, having established this business at that address with which we are all so familiar. This store is well situated in George Street and kept in such an up-to-date and clean way that it commands the attention of all who pass. He deals in choice groceries, teas and coffees, canned goods, fresh domestic and foreign fruits, and carries a large, fresh stock of general groceries of necessity and luxury.

This store ranks among our principal groceries, its condition at all times being a reflection of his Old Country training. For Mr. Sutherland is a strong Scotchman, born in Aberdeenshire, who came to Canada over forty years ago. Previous to engaging in the grocery business he was an expert bookkeeper in the Examiner Office. He has made a great success of life in Peterborough, and is always ready to participate in movements for her advancement.

F. HAMILTON

Possibly the shoemaker in any town or city is kept busier than any other merchant, and especially so if he is an expert and has won the confidence of the people. In Peterborough we have an expert and highly respected man in this line of business in the person of Mr. F. Hamilton, whose handsomely appointed store is located at 93 Hunter street East. Mr. Hamilton has been recognized for many years as the leader in this line in Peterborough. He was born in Ireland though he has resided here for the past fifty years, and in fact has lived on Hunter street East for forty-five years. He established his present business over twenty years ago.

Mr. Hamilton carries a full stock of the very finest quality of high grade shoes and boots, shippers, rubbers, etc., etc., and he makes footwear himself that he will guarantee, and he has recommendations from hundreds of well satisfied customers. If you are in need of good footwear, and fair and courteous treatment, then it will pay you to visit Mr. Hamilton's store. Mr. Hamilton's father, who was a native of Scotland, fought in the Battle of Waterloo—an honour which the present Mr. Hamilton must naturally be proud of, for there are mighty few if any men in Canada to-day that can make this statement of their father.

Peterborough as an Excursion City

PETERBOROUGH has had in her history a variety of names applied to her, all of them more or less fitting. She has been known as the "Plate Glass City," on account of the very handsome store windows, the "Electric City," the "Lift Lock City," and the "Porridge City." Of late years she has earned another name and might fittingly be called the "Excursion city." Few towns in Canada, within the past few years have been the Mecca of more excursions than has this city. The possession of the biggest hydraulic lift lock in the world no doubt has been a big factor in the bringing of many excursionists here, but even without the drawing power of the big piece of cement work on the Trent Waterway, Peterborough has a host of attractions to offer the sight-seer, and makes an ideal objective point for excursions, for which its accessibility renders it convenient.

The City's splendid parks are of invaluable assistance in entertaining her many visitors. Jackson Park, in the northwest part of the city, a magnificently wooded piece of ground, with a pretty stream babbling through it, and an artificial lake, with Japanese bridges to add charm, is a splendid spot for picnic parties, especially for children, and no more suitable location for Sunday school picnics could be found. For excursions which include in their programme a list of athletic sports, there is available Nicholls Oval, a large grassy sward surrounded by a splendid track, offering facilities for every line of sports. This magnificent grounds is always at the free disposal of visitors. Both of these parks are reached by the cars of the Radial Railway Company, as are the other breathing spaces of the city, Inverlea, Central and Victoria Parks.

To the sight-seer Peterborough affords other advantages in addition to the celebrated lift lock. Here the excursionist may see the largest cereal mill in Canada, the biggest electrical works in the Dominion, the home of the famous Peterborough canoes, and other big industries. One of the Provincial Normal Schools is situated here, and is well worth a visit. The Victoria Museum contains many interesting relics that should be seen, and there are many other attractions that serve to bring visitors to Peterborough.

Good hotel accommodation is not lacking. The city's splendid stores afford every opportunity to the excursionist to purchase to advantage, and the council of Peterborough always receive with open arms any excursions, delegating the Reception Committee to give a proper and cordial reception to all visitors.

MUNRO HOUSE

The Munro House, in Hunter Street, is among the most popular of our many hotels. It is safe to say that the "Munro" is the leading dollar-and-a-quarter-a-day house in Peterborough. This house has been running in the city for many years; the accommodation is in every respect first-class.

The interior is well furnished and decorated, nothing having been overlooked that is essential to the comfort of the many guests that are sheltered in this popular hostelry in a year. The dining-room has ever been a feature on which the management have been congratulated. It is large and airy, polite waitresses, and the food is even better than could be expected for the low rate of one dollar and a quarter a day.

The proprietor, Mr. R. J. Munro, is an experienced man in the hotel business, having conducted this house for the past eleven years, and had previously had a wide knowledge in the art of catering to the transient public.

WINDSOR HOTEL

Very few people can find any fault with the hotels of our city, which fortunately are conducted by a very able body of business men.

And among these hotels is the Windsor, located at 144 Brock Street, whose enterprising and progressive proprietor is Mr. A. T. Johnston, a native of Toronto, and who has been in Peterborough in this business for about five years. This hotel is one of the most comfortable houses to be found in this or any other part or the country. The bedrooms are neat and clean and equipped with the most modern and sanitary appliances. The dining-room is handsomely furnished, where the best that market affords is served to all its patrons. The bar, which is another feature of this hotel, is stocked with the finest imported and domestic wines, liquors, and cigars, where most civil and obliging bartenders are in readiness to attend to the many patrons.

Mr. Johnston has had several years' experience in the hotel business in Toronto previous to coming here, and he is recognized as one of our most highly respected citizens; and since coming to Peterborough he has made a host of friends and is very popular amongst all classes.

MAPLE LEAF HOTEL

The best evidence that a good hotel man can have of the success of his management is the firm hold which he maintains on his patrons by furnishing accommodation and table service of a first-class character. When a hotel proprietor has catered to the public for a quarter of a century and over, and still numbers among his guests a goodly representation of the farmers and others of the community, it speaks well for the manner in which he has conducted his house.

Now this is the case of one of our most highly respected citizens, Mr. Geo. Lipsett, who has been for the past 28 years, and is now, the popular proprietor of the Maple Leaf Hotel on East Hunter Street, which is by far the oldest hotel in Peterborough, having been originally established in 1860.

This house contains 25 rooms, all well furnished and modern in every respect, lighted with electricity, and has bath, hot and cold running water. At the rear he has stabling accommodation for 50 horses and driving sheds as well; and the rates at a most moderate figure of $1.00 per day.

Now with all these splendid accommodations to offer the public, Mr. Lipsett was unfortunate enough to lose his license, though he always served the people in an honest and straightforward manner, and is well thought of by all who know him.

Mr. Lipsett is the sole owner of this hotel property, and therefore is compelled to reside here and pay heavy taxes, and has a large family of small children, and is one of our most respected citizens.

DOMINION CAFE

In every town, city, or village there are always restaurants to give accommodation to the travelling public, but in no city in Canada is there a restaurant of any kind which can surpass the Dominion Cafe, which is located at 338 George Street, Peterborough, and is conducted by Mr. Ging Hum, its enterprising proprietor.

This is a Chinese restaurant, and has been established here for the past five years, and is well patronized by everyone in the city. It is noted for giving the best meals in Canada, which are prepared by expert cooks, and which are served in a very clean and dainty manner. It is open day and night, and they are kept very busy at all times, especially in serving the excellent Chinese dishes which they can prepare at the shortest notice. The restaurant is handsomely equipped and contains a seating capacity of thirty-five, and in addition to this it has four private dining-rooms, which are elegantly furnished in the most up-to-date and modern style. There is no long waiting, as all dishes are served very quickly by courteous and obliging waiters.

Cigars and tobaccos are also served for the convenience of their patrons. If you have not already tried this cafe, then do so to-day, and get the best.

GRAND HOTEL

One of the most modern, as well as one of our best, hotels in Peterborough that caters almost entirely to the patronage of the farmers, is the Grand Hotel in George Street, conducted by Mr. Nixon, who understands the wants of the farmer, and whose establishment affords every facility for the farmer's comfort and the comfort of his horses.

Five years ago Mr. Nixon remodelled his house, and refurnished it throughout, so that at the present time it ranks among the finest hostelries in the city. The hotel contains many beautifully furnished and handsomely decorated rooms, while the dining-room is a feature to be met with in no other hotel in the city, the rates being only one dollar and a quarter a day.

The house is illuminated by electric light, hot and cold water being always obtainable. The large yards and stables are probably the best in Peterborough, where capable and willing yardmen take care of the horses entrusted to them.

The bar room is also up-to-date in every requirement of the law—the best in foreign and domestic wines, liquors, and spirits of all kinds being served at right prices by smiling bartenders.

Mr. Nixon is one of the most popular proprietors in the city. He is a good business man, with always a warm handshake and a warm heart for his many patrons.

THE C. P. R. TEMPERANCE HOUSE

The city of Peterborough has grown very rapidly in the past few years, and the consequence is that a number of business men have opened up new places in their various lines of business to accommodate the increase in population.

And one of these men is Mr. G. Foster, who conducts the well-known C.P.R. Temperance House, which is located just across from the C.P.R. Station, therefore making it very handy for the travelling public. This house contains 18 well furnished rooms, and is lighted with electricity, and has all other modern conveniences. Though it has only been established here for the past two years, under the able management of Mr. Foster it has become widely known and very popular among all classes of people. Tobaccos, cigars, cigarettes, and soft drinks are sold, in which a large business is done. The rates of this house are $1.00 per day, or $3.75 per week.

The dining-room is large and airy, where the best of everything is served.

Mr. Foster is a native of Port Hope, though he is a well-known figure in town, having lived here for many years, and is highly respected by everyone, and has proved himself to be a very worthy citizen.

ORIENTAL HOTEL

Of the many hotels and hostelries within the bounds of Canada that afford excellent accommodation for the travelling public, none are more popular or afford greater facilities for the comfort of travellers and tourists than the Oriental Hotel in Hunter Street of this city.

This comfortable establishment, which is lacking in nothing which adds to the comfort of transients, is admirably situated in the heart of the business district, within a few minutes' ride in the free bus, which is operated by the management, of both the Canadian Pacific and Grand Trunk Railway stations.

The hotel proper is a handsome four-storey brick structure, 100 by 150 feet, containing beautifully furnished rooms to accommodate over two hundred people. Rooms with baths may also be obtained at the low rates of two dollars and two and a half a day. The rotunda is exceedingly comfortable, the floor being handsomely tiled, the many palms which adorn this reception hall tend to make it more artistic and restful. The entire building is steam-heated and electrically illuminated, in addition to the dining-room, which is one of the greatest features. Several waitresses are in attendance on the tables, where tasty delicacies abound having previously been prepared by an expert chef.

Mr. George N. Graham, the popular proprietor, is known far and wide in Canada by the many transients who have received such cordial and attentive treatment at his hands. He is not only a capable and experienced host, but a genial good fellow as well as well.

Mr. Graham is assisted by his son, Mr. C. G. Graham, better known as "Chris," who is the progressive manager. "Chris" is known in amateur sporting circles in many parts of Canada, having a splendid reputation for clean sportsmanship, and as a celebrated hockeyist.

Ample amusement is obtainable in the billiard room of this house, which is under the management of the proprietor's younger son, Mr. Arthur Graham, who is a champion billiard player, and who is always glad to place his knowledge of the science at the disposal of beginners.

Mr. Tommy McDonough, the chief clerk, is also well and favourably known to the many commercial men who patronize the hotel.

Mr. George N. Graham has built up a strong reputation and an ever growing popularity through his impartial treatment of his many guests. He has done much for the advancement of the city, and is a consistent booster for the future of the community.

MONTREAL TEMPERANCE HOUSE

The Montreal Temperance House, though only having been established for the past twelve months, is recognized as one of the best houses of accommodation in this city. The enterprising proprietor is Mr. James Head, a native of Hertfordshire, England, who has had a wide experience in the hotel business, having formerly conducted the Peterborough House on Hunter Street.

Mr. Head gives accommodation for boarders by the day or week at a very reasonably low rate. The rooms are exceptionally neat and clean, and the dining-room is large and airy, and affords the best meals to be had in the city. The lunch rooms, which are heavily patronized by the citizens and the farmers from the surrounding country, are open all hours. Fruit, confectionery, tobacco, and soft drinks are also handled, and generally speaking, Mr. Head has had a very successful career, which is due entirely to his able administration of the affairs of his house, and his congenial and obliging manner; and he is respected and well liked by all who know him.

AMERICAN HOUSE

Peterborough has always boasted of having more tourists pass through the city during the summer months than any other city in Canada; and this statement is quite correct. With Stoney Lake and many other summer resorts so adjacent to the city we therefore see thousands of the travelling public each year, who are ever ready to sound their praises for the first-class hotel accommodation in Peterborough.

And amongst the leaders of these hotels is the American House, which is centrally located at 189 Hunter Street, where the best of everything is to be found. This house has twenty-five handsomely furnished guest rooms, with all the latest improvements, and the dining-room, which is a large, airy room, is unsurpassed by any in the city; and the waiters are most courteous and attentive. Ten people are given employment in this hotel. Another great feature of the house is the attractive and well stocked bar, where is served the very finest foreign and domestic wines, liquors, and cigars, also imported and domestic ales and porters.

Mr. Samuel Long, who is the enterprising proprietor of this up-to-date hotel, only took over the business about the middle of May, but even in that space of time he has shown and proved his ability to run a hotel, and has made great progress.

ALBION HOTEL

In the past two years the temperance workers have agitated local option and the reduction of liquor licenses all over different places in the United States and this was brought about largely through the hotel men infringing upon the laws of the country, but mostly by men who were not capable of running a hotel, and were, perhaps, a little too greedy for the almighty dollar, and it has naturally reflected itself upon the man who has always tried to, and is doing his best, to conduct a first class hotel within every requirement of the law. In Peterborough, however, we are blessed with some very capable and highly respected business men who are running their hotels according to the law, and are well known and liked by all who meet them, and we take great pleasure in mentioning the name of Mr. P. Hogan, proprietor of the Albion Hotel, who is foremost in the list of this type of men.

Mr. Hogan is a native of Douro, but he has been established here for the past twenty years, and has won the respect and confidence of his fellowmen throughout the whole country. The hotel consists of twenty well furnished rooms, and has modern conveniences throughout. The dining room is bright and airy, where nothing but the best is served. Another feature of this house is the well equipped bar, which is stocked with the finest grade of all imported and domestic wines, liquors and cigars, also foreign and domestic ales and porters.

Though Mr. Hogan has made a great success of his business financially it might be said that he has made every dollar of it through fair and upright treatment to his patrons, in which he has made thousands of good friends, and he is deserving of the greatest credit.

HOTEL NATIONAL

One of the best-equipped as well as one of the most modern hotels in this city is the Hotel National in East Charlotte Street. The building is in itself one of the handsomest in Peterborough. The furnishing of the interior is exquisite in all its appointments, having been tastefully decorated throughout in harmony with the furniture and accessories.

hotels, admirably situated, and excellent accommodation is afforded visitors and commercial men during their stay in Peterborough. The seventy rooms are always neat and clean, in addition to being comfortably and handsomely furnished.

Excellent service in the large dining-room, where the best the market affords appear in abundance on the snow-white tables, is a thing which makes life in a large hotel worth living. The best imported and domestic wines and liquors are stocked in the bar, where attentive bar-tenders are always in readiness to look after the welfare of its patrons.

Mr. D. B. Dennison is the proprietor, and is a capable and pleasant host, having nearly twenty years' experience in catering to the wishes of the most exacting guests. Mr. Dennison was formerly in business in Coldwaer for many years, but since his coming to Peterborough has made many friends through his popular establishment. Too much cannot be said of the Hotel National—the meals are the best in the city, the rooms large and airy, lighted by electric light, with hot and cold water in the bathrooms which adjoin, the rates for these rooms being $2.50 per day.

MONTGOMERY HOUSE

Peterborough, very fortunately, is blessed with unequalled hotel accommodation, which is an admirable qualification and a powerful attraction to visitors and transients to visit our beautiful city. This city is unsurpassed by any other in the Dominion for the excellence of hotel accommodation.

Of the many popular hostelries situated in Peterborough, that are known and commented upon throughout Ontario, not only among commercial men, but tourists as well, for their admirable facilities, low rates and greatest comfort, none are better known or more popular than the reliable Montgomery House.

This Hotel has recently been remodelled throughout, which makes it one of our foremost places of comfort and good living.

Mr. F. Montgomery is the engaging proprietor who established the business over one year ago, having come here at that time with twenty-one years' experience in the hotel business from Parry Harbour.

The large bright dining room is a feature of which the proprietor is most proud. The many tables, snow white, are always overflowing with the best the market affords.

This house is lighted by electricity, supplied with hot and cold water, and a handsomely decorated bar, where several popular bar-tenders are employed to serve the fine domestic, foreign wines and liquors, which are well stocked.

Over forty rooms are at the disposal of visitors, handsomely furnished and well kept. A staff of twelve employees is kept for that purpose.

Mr. Montgomery is an attentive host, whose greatest interest is to satisfy even the most exacting guests. Already he has won great praise for the manner in which he conducts this popular house, and has made many friends through its establishment.

KING GEORGE HOTEL

With Stoney Lake and many other summer resorts close by, the city of Peterborough has many hundreds of tourists here during the summer months; and Peterborough has always been noted for its splendid hotel accommodation for this travelling public. Foremost among the hotels of this nature is that of the King George, which is centrally located at 172 Simcoe Street, and is within five minutes' walk of either the G.T.R. or C.P.R. Stations. This hotel was established under the name of the Montreal House about 32 years ago, but was only taken over about one year ago by its present enterprising and congenial proprietor, Mr. J. B. Larocque, who is a native of the Province of Quebec, and who has had 22 years' experience in the business; and who is untiring in his efforts to look after the comfort of his many guests, who are always ready to sound their praises of Mr. Larocque and his employees for their ever courteous treatment.

This house has 22 rooms, which are equipped with the latest improvements. There is electric light and hot and cold water throughout the hotel, and the dining-room is possibly one of the greatest features. It is a large airy room, where the best of everything is served by pleasant waiters. The bar is also very attractive, being handsomely fitted up, and is stocked with the very finest grade of all imported and domestic wines, liquors, and cigars, also foreign and domestic ales and lagers.

The rates are most reasonable at $1.50 per day, considering the excellent accommodation at the disposal of all guests. Mr. Larocque will also make a weekly rate to anyone desiring it.

L. POTVIN

The confectionery business conducted by Mr. L. Potvin at 426 George Street is one of the oldest in Peterborough. It was established by Mr Potvin about twenty-five years ago, and it owes its present success entirely to Mr. Potvin's unique enterprise and business qualities.

Mr. Potvin handles an up-to-date refreshment room in connection with his confectionery business, also a bakery; and he is undoubtedly one of the most thriving business men in the city.

Mr. Potvin is a French-Canadian, a native of Peterborough, and he is always ready to lend a hand when the interests of Peterborough are concerned. His bakery department is run by three experienced bakers, who supply a large section of the Peterborough public with dietary articles of the highest standard.

In the store itself two courteous young ladies attend to the wants of Mr. Potvin's many customers.

Mr. Potvin is widely known in Peterborough and the county, and is highly respected by everyone for the honest and upright way he conducts his business, and for his many other good qualities.

F. B. DOUPE

Every property owner in Peterborough, whether he owns a house, a store, factory, or building of any kind should thoroughly realize that the appearance of his property is benefited one hundred per cent. by having it freshly painted at least every five years by an expert painter and decorator.

In Peterborough we have one of the finest experts in this work to be found in any part of Canada in the person of Mr. P. B. Doupe, who is a contract painter, decorator and paperhanger, with office and workshop located at 364 Mark street, where he gives constant employment to ten men, who, like himself, are experts in their work. During the busy season he has occasion to nearly double his payroll.

Mr. Doupe has had twenty-one years' experience in his chosen trade, the last twelve years as a contract painter. Though he has only been established in his present quarters for about two years, he has done remarkably well, and is liberally patronized by many from all parts of the city. He is ready at all times to furnish estimates for either large or small work, the small work being given just the same careful and prompt attention as the larger contracts.

Mr. Doupe is a native of our city, and a much respected business man of sterling qualities. His office is connected with Bell phone 1160 and machine phone 321.

THE LOUIS MENDEL STUDIO

Possibly one of the greatest professions of this wonderful age is that of photography, and without doubt one of the leaders in this profession is Mr. Louis Mendel, whose studio is located at 374½ George Street.

Mr. Mendel, who was born in Germany thirty-two years ago, came to Peterborough about eight years ago, and from that time on he has made a great success of his work, and his services are greatly appreciated by his many patrons, who rank as the leaders of society in our city.

Mr. Mendel opened the Louis Mendel Studio about five years ago. Many splendid samples of his work are to be seen hanging in a picturesque manner about The Studio.

Some idea of the class of work Mr. Mendel does will be seen when we mention here that he has been awarded a certificate by the Wyoming Valley Camera Club in Pennsylvania, also gold medal at the 19th annual exhibition of the Toronto Camera Club, and in 1910 some of his work was hung in the London Salon at London, England, this latter one being a very great honour to Mr. Mendel, as only the work of great men in their profession is ever hung in the London Salon.

GEORGE BALL

It is an old saying that it is not the clothes that make the man. In this day of well-dressed people, good clothes go a long way in the estimation of the ruling classes towards the formation of their opinion as to a man's capabilities and character. A business man must absolutely be well clothed to command the respect of his associates, who always are dressed in an up-to-date and stylish manner.

Mr. Geeorge Ball, custom tailor, 307½ George Street, is an old resident of Peterborough who has been engaged in the tailoring business in the city for twenty-five years. He has resided here for forty years, having come to Canada from County Durham, England, which is his native land, and where he learned his trade.

Mr. Ball is a first-class tailor, his many enthusiastic patrons being proof of his ability. He bears the distinction of being the oldest tailor in this city. He has been in the City Council for two terms, and was in charge of the market for a considerable space of time. Mr. Ball is in every way abreast of the times, not only in business, but in other circles as well.

Some Municipal Services

THIS being the year in which the Dominion Census is taken, one's mind naturally goes back ten years to the time when the last similar enumeration was made. And in looking back that length of time, considerable improvement can be seen in municipal services. The first of the present sewer system was begun in the late years of the former decade, and very little concrete sidewalk had been constructed previous to 1900. Yet there has been, up to the close of the last year, over $385,000 expended in these two services.

A complete sewer system is one of the requisites for a healthy community. More attention is paid to sanitation every year that comes, for it has been impressed upon the authorities and the people that only by paying attention to sanitary requirements can diseases be kept down, and epidemics avoided. That Peterborough is awake to this requirement and that in this particular it is as progressive as it is in others, is shown by the fact that it has over twenty-seven miles of common sewers, to which about 2,400 connections have been made from premises.

Good sidewalks are necessary for the comfort and convenience of all citizens, and there is no class of sidewalk equal to that made of concrete. The concrete sidewalks that have been constructed in Peterborough are well built, the first that were laid, as well as the last, showing no signs of wear, and that they will last many years beyond the twenty years they were calculated to serve, seems certain. And Peterborough has over fifty miles of this class of sidewalks, the exact length at the end of 1910 being 51½ miles. Very little of the wooden walks is left, and they will soon disappear, and every street be served on both sides with the best class of concrete sidewalk.

A profitable as well as serviceable utility owned by the city is the waterworks system. This utility was purchased in 1902 from the Peterborough Water Company, an enterprising company that had begun the construction of the works in 1882, and had operated them for twenty years. There are now over 35 miles of water mains on the streets, on which 240 fire protection hydrants are set, and from which 3,014 services are taken. The revenue from the system has increased from $22,957 in 1902, the first year of its operation by the city, to $39,389 in 1910, although in the meantime several reductions had been made in the rates.

Another municipal service that has been greatly improved is that of fire protection. The last decade, and the later years of it, saw a new, commodious and handsome fire station erected, the department equipped with new and modern appliances, and perhaps the greatest advance—a fully paid staff of officers and firemen engaged, and the fully paid department established. In addition the waterworks mains have been rapidly extended, and many hydrants set on them, as well as in many places on older mains, thus increasing the efficiency of the fire protection, for the waterworks has excellent pressure.

This reference to some of the municipal services shows that they are keeping pace with the growth of the city and aiding in its progress.

Peterborough's Municipal Finances

IN municipal government, the finances of the municipality is one of the most important subjects dealt with, and it is one of supreme interest to the citizens, for in the carefulness of the management and on the soundness of the position in this respect very much depends. Peterborough's finances are in a very satisfactory condition. The gross debt of the municipality, as given in the last report of the Auditor, is $1,361,108, and was represented by debentures for that sum outstanding. This amount of liabilities is, however, offset, and more than offset, by assets to the amount of $1,715,494, showing a clear surplus of assets over liabilities of $354,386.

This is a very satisfactory showing, but it is not all. Of the assets, a large part is represented by valuable property, such as the Schools, civic offices, and fire hall, which, if not revenue producing, are revenue saving; for if the city did not own them rents would have to be paid for the accommodation. When that is said, still more and of greater importance is left to be said. Included in the assets are properties that are directly revenue producing, and that are a source of income. The City owns land in the whole business block enclosed by George, Water, Simcoe and Charlotte streets. On this block it owns places of business which are rented, and other portions of the land are leased and bring in a good revenue. It also owns a block of business places in the East Ward, and they are rented. The Hilliard farm is part of the assets, and while a portion of it is occupied by the Children's Shelter, the City procures gravel from another part, and about fifty acres are rented. Then the Waterworks, which represent $490,000, are revenue producing, and not only pay the operating expenses and interest on the capital, but are also setting aside a sinking fund for the redemption of the debentures, so that the City will acquire this valuable property free of cost. Again, of the assets, $216,000 is invested in sinking funds, which bring in revenue, and include a mortgage for $22,400 on the railway between Peterborough and Port Hope on which six per cent. is paid—a wise investment of a former generation.

Some municipalities have got into financial difficulties by not safeguarding the sinking funds raised for the purpose of paying off debentures, and using them to meet current expenses. Such a course leads to bankruptcy, but it has been followed in some cases and legislative readjustments, and in some instances compromises, have had to be resorted to. Far from being in any such position, Peterborough has all its sinking funds intact, and in addition a surplus of $35,686 more than is required. The Auditor reports that the City should have had at the end of 1910 $220,844 in sinking funds, while it actually had $256,530, showing a surplus of $35,686. Holders of Peterborough debentures are in an enviable position, and the citizens can view the financial situation of the municipality with satisfaction.

PARKER'S DYEING & CLEANING WORKS

A firm that has been established for over twenty-five years and enjoys the enviable reputation of being unequalled for the class of work it does is the Parker's Dyeing and Cleaning Works, which is centrally located at 177-179 Charlotte Street, and whose proprietor is Mr. R. M. Beach, who has had twenty-five years' experience in this line of work, and therefore understands every little detail connected with the business.

Mr. Beach is a native of Peterborough, and is very well known both in business and socially throughout the whole county, and since he took over this business he has more than doubled it; and owing to the ever-increasing demands made upon him by his many patrons he has been forced to nearly double his plant and also install some of the latest machinery—one of which is the new French dry cleaning machine, which is the latest twentieth century invention, which turns out a maximum quantity of the best quality of cleaning at a minimum cost of production, which has proved a great advantage to their patrons.

This is one of the most up-to-date firms in Peterborough. It gives employment to twenty-five people in this city; and some idea of its extensive operations can be seen in the fact that it has sixteen agencies scattered throughout Ontario, and the business of each agency is increasing each year owing to the first-class work turned out by this wonderful establishment; and Mr. Beach, who is always ready to please his customers, is deserving of the greatest credit for his progressiveness and his splendid business methods.

PETERBOROUGH CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

One of the most popular figures, both in and around Peterborough, is Mr. Rupert Gliddon, musical director of the Peterborough Conservatory of Music. Mr. Gliddon has resided in Peterborough for the past thirteen years, in that time having become a favourite of the public in the position he occupies as bandmaster of the 57th Regiment, which appointment he has ably conducted for twelve years, and is appreciated to the fullest measure by the many lovers of music in the district and throughout Ontario where he is also widely known.

Seven years ago Mr. Gliddon established this institution, which gives instruction in harmony and melody. A staff of sixteen patient and expert teachers being employed to impart their knowledge to the pupils, besides himself, who has given up all his life in the search of a broader knowledge of music, of which he is now a master. His assistants are all clever musicians, who display remarkable talent. Such celebrated artistes as Mrs. Rogers Collins, Miss Choate, the celebrated violinist, winner of the Earl Grey Medal in Toronto; Mr. Harry Field, now of Dresden, Germany; Mr. August Wilhelmi, have at various times been connected with the teaching staff of this institution.

Mr. Gliddon is a director well qualified to direct the affairs of this college, and to lead the band, having done much in the past seven years to raise the musical standard in this city.

THOS. KINNEAR & COMPANY

Wholesale Grocers.

In the fall of 1904, Messrs. T. Kinnear & Co., Wholesale Grocers, of Toronto, decided that their rapidly increasing business in Eastern Ontario demanded special facilities for distribution, and after careful consideration concluded that Peterborough was the most favourable point at which to plant their new branch.

Mr. Thomas Kinnear, the head of the firm, is a great believer in the motto: "Do it now," and by February 1st, 1905, the new business was in full swing.

The success which rewarded this enterprise was so generous and spontaneous that the warehouse they had rented soon proved inadequate, and before the year was out plans were under way for the erection of the substantial and up-to-date building at the corner of George and Dalhousie Streets, which T. Kinnear & Co. occupy to-day.

Since starting here the growth of their business has been phenomenal, each year breaking the record of its predecessor with unfailing regularity, which is a fine tribute to the commercial advantages of our city, as well as to the esteem in which this firm is held by its customers.

Messrs. T. Kinnear & Co. have been in the wholesale business for nearly half a century, and their business now is one of the largest in this line in the Dominion.

The Peterborough Manager, Mr. Robert Ross, is the kind of man one would naturally expect to find associated with Mr. Kinnear, for Mr. Ross has the same faith in the square deal and the "Do it now" policy, and at the same time does not forget to hustle for business. By his untiring energy and upright methods he has earned and enjoys the respect and confidence of the business community.

The success of this business is another example of the advantage of being on the spot, and shows that the business men of Peterborough and the surrounding country appreciate the saving in freight and time effected in delivery.

HOPWOODS, LIMITED

Through the establishment of Hopwoods, Limited, exclusively wholesale smallwares and drygoods specialties dealers, a long felt want in Central Ontario has been filled. Two and a half years ago Mr. W. J. Hopwood, president, and his two sons, H. W.

W. J. HOPWOOD

Hopwood, secretary, and J. L. Hopwood, who is a director of the company, established their business on the corner of Simcoe and Water streets. They employ a large staff of salespeople and seamstresses in this house of quick deliveries, which has been opened with a view to permanency.

This firm are jobbers of smallwares and drygoods specialties of quality and right price, their ever-growing business being evidence of their ability to meet all demands, and to win the confidence of the retail merchants throughout Ontario by carrying out their agreements to the letter.

Mr. W. J. Hopwood, founder of the firm, was originally a Peterborough boy, having served his apprenticeship

T. KINNEAR AND CO'S WHOLESALE WAREHOUSE

here with the old firm of Cluxton & Henderson. He is well known in many parts of Canada, having been on the road for years with the Gordon McKay Co. of Toronto, and many other firms of a smaller nature. He has over twenty-five commercial travellers' certificates, and during his long term of office as an expert salesman his calls were eagerly looked for and anticipated by merchants throughout Ontario. Mr. Hopwood was for two years president of the Commercial Travellers' Benefit Society, which only goes to show the exalted position he occupied in the minds of his fellow salesmen. He is a man of sterling integrity, and one who is ever gaining in prominence in the city. Electrobrand, the trademark of the house, is becoming a standard of quality with the trade all over Canada.

Mr. J. L. Hopwood, director and sales agent of the company, has had a special experience in this line of business. After graduating from Harboard Collegiate Institute, Toronto, he spent three years as assistant on the road with Mr. W. J. Hopwood, and afterwards represented Messrs. Greenshields, Limited, in Western Ontario for five years. He is as well known in the trade as the senior member of the company.

Mr. H. W. Hopwood, although still acting as secretary of the company, and having personal supervision of their accounts, is at present residing in Sudbury, where he is vice-president and secretary of G. W. McFarland, Limited, one of the largest trading companies in New Ontario. He is well known in the trade as an expert accountant, having spent four years with Messrs. Jenkins & Hardy, of Toronto, and about the samt length of time with Mr. W. R. Morris, of this city, and having during that time audited the accounts of some of the largest manufacturing companies in Canada.

J. E. BELCHER

Standing prominently among the business men of Peterborough who have put forth their energies to the upbuilding of this community, both from a business and social standpoint, is Mr. J. E. Belcher, architect and civil engineer.

Mr. Belcher is a native of Ireland, who graduated from Trinity College, Dublin, at an early age; and following in the footsteps of his father, who was a distinguished architect, entered the profession of which he has made a life-long study. For many years he has resided in Peterborough, during that time having erected many buildings of a business as well as residential variety, in addition to many public buildings, which have won for him the greatest praise.

Mr. Belcher has held the position of County Engineer for a great number of years, and has always discharged his duties in a faithful and honourable manner.

THE J. C. TURNBULL CO'Y.

The J. C. Turnbull Co. is one of the old reliable houses where the best in both staple and fancy dry goods are always to be had. The store, which is widely known and well patronized, was established by Mr. J. C. Turnbull in 1880. In 1901, however, the present proprietor, Mr. F. J. Might, took over the business. He is a man well qualified to conduct a business of these proportions, having had years of experience and given up much of his time to the study of his business when he was engaged by Mr. Turnbull.

The store is well equipped and heavily laden with a well varied stock of staple and fancy dry goods, house furnishings, millinery, and mantles. They also excel in their dressmaking department. The large store might well be termed a departmental store, as they carry nearly all lines, with the exception of groceries and boots and shoes. A staff of fifty people are required to wait on the large custom that frequents this popular store, all of whom are civil and anxious to please. A specialty is made of ladies' wear and house furnishings, a large and attractive stock of these articles being always on hand.

Mr. Might is a member of the Board of Trade, and is a man whose judgment in many cases has been of great worth to the city. He was born in Durham County, near Millbrook, where he is still widely known and very popular.

W. M. WOTTEN

Ranking among the first-class grocery stores in the city is the establishment conducted by Mr. W. M. Wotten at 207-209 Stewart Street.

Mr. Wotten opened his store four years ago, after having fifteen years' experience in the grocery and general store business. He came here from Enniskillen, Ont., where he was in business for several years. His stock comprises a fine assortment of groceries, provisions, meats, confectionery, ice-cream, and soft drinks.

Mr. Wotten makes no pretence of selling cheaply, but makes a boast of the quality of all goods that leave his popular store, as he sells only the best goods the market affords. He has always taken a keen interest in the movements of the civic administration, and in politics in general.

SUN LIFE ASSURANCE CO., OF CANADA

The Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada, with head office in Montreal, Quebec, ranks among the strongest and safest of Canadian life assurance companies, in addition to bearing a clear and honourable reputation for honest dealings and a speedy adjustment of all claims during the whole forty years of its life.

The company was established in 1870, and ever since its origin it has been greeted with cordiality on every hand, not alone through the personalities of the men behind it and the company's representatives, but also for the benefits and protection they place at the disposal of every man.

The officers and directors are: Robertson Macaulay, president; S. H. Ewing, vice-president; T. B. Macaulay, managing director; and the Messrs. J. P. Cleghorn, Hon. Raoul Dandurand, J. R. Dougall, Abner Kingman, J. McKergow, Wm. Nirks, H. Warren, K. Hale, H. S. Holt, Chas. R. Hosmer, form a strong, capable directorate.

The company have over $143,800,000 of current assurances, the total income of the company amounts to over $9,000,000.00 yearly, the assets are considerably over $38,000,000.00, while the surplus, according to the Dominion Government standard, is over $5,000,000.00. These figures will give you an idea of the strength of the Sun Life Assurance Company.

The popularity of the company is mainly due to its liberality to the policy holders, inasmuch as 95 per cent. of the total profits earned is paid to participating policy-holders, and the results are said to be unexcelled by any company doing business on the continent.

Satisfied policy-holders are the best advertisement that a company can possibly have, and this is the principal reason why the Sun Life of Canada has outstripped in business all its Canadian competitors.

Mr. W. H. Hill, who is well known throughout Central Ontario, opened the Peterborough branch of the Sun Life in 1883, having previously served for a number of years in the teaching profession. Mr. Hill's district of operations comprises the whole of Central Ontario, having a large staff of employees. He is a man of experience, and one who is thoroughly posted on all matters pertaining to life assurance. For years he has resided in Peterborough, and has contributed a great deal of zeal and energy to the welfare and progress of the community. Few men in the city have served in as many public offices, and few have served with as great acceptability. He has been a member of the Board of Education for 24 years, hon. secretary Nichols Hospital, has been Water Commissioner ever since that office was instituted on the Board of the Horticultural Society for many years, 15 years on the old Public Library Board, and is president of one of Peterborough's leading industries, the Peterborough Canoe Coy.

W. H. HILL

R. G. STURGEON & CO.

Many plumbing and heating show rooms are in evidence in Peterborough, but all of these are perhaps surpassed by the elaborate new show rooms recently opened at 202 Charlotte Street by R. G. Sturgeon & Co., expert plumbers and heating engineers.

Mr. Sturgeon employs a staff of expert mechanics in their respective trades, in the execution of all work which is entrusted to his care. He is a man well known in these parts, as well as all over Ontario, having lived in the city for many years. In this attractive show room an excellent stock of plumbing fixtures, steam and hot water boilers, and radiators, valves, pipe, and fittings is always in evidence.

Mr. Sturgeon is an expert on septic tank construction, and a man who really furnishes estimates and plans gladly. He handles Blaugas, as a specialty, and is always glad to explain its many merits for good light and cooking qualities as well as its safety.

The proprietor was born in Owen Sound, Ontario, and learned his trade through apprenticeship in Toronto, which he began in 1887, and of which he is now a master. He possesses the greatest qualifications for designs and invention; his skilful work is readily seen and distinguished in many of our homes.

After becoming a qualified journeyman he travelled for five years in all parts of the States in search of experience, starting at the very bottom of the shop and working to the top. One of his great masterpieces was in Philadelphia, where he installed a

ANCIENS ETABLISSEMENTS HOUEDRY FILS CO.

This large establishment, with a capital of $140,000, was incorporated in October, 1910, and took over the old-established business of the Messrs. Houedry & Son, with head offices in Dol De Bretagne, France. A branch of this institution was opened fourteen years ago in Peterborough. This city being the centre of an important grain growing district, we are indeed fortunate in having a branch of this great business in the city.

The Anciens Etablissements Houedry Fils Company are grain dealers on an extensive scale, their operations being almost entirely devoted to peas and beans. The company conducts three branch houses in Africa, two in France, and two in Canada, the Peterborough plant covering two and a half acres of ground, on which entirely new buildings are now in the course of construction for storing their grain, which is obtained from the best markets in Canada, which they export in immense quantities to France. Through their local agency they import seeds from France, which they supply to the farmer, and at the time of maturity they buy the crop at prevailing market prices.

Mr. E. L. Houduce, who is the general manager of this great concern, is a native of St. Malo, France, and is at the present time in the city superintending the work on the new building. Although he is only twenty-four years of age, he is a very clever business man, and has already won the confidence of not a few of our citizens during his sojourn in our midst.

Mr. J. Etiennoul has resided in this city for many years, having formerly represented the Messrs. Houedry & Son. He is widely known throughout the surrounding farming community for many miles, and is highly respected by all who have come in contact with him.

M. T. BUTCHER

DEALER IN

Furniture, Stoves, and Household Effects

This place of business is a good place to furnish the home at a moderate cost. While the business has only been about eight years in existence, Mr. Butcher, commencing business with no capital, the business has gradually increased, until now you can find at his place of business a large and varied stock of goods suitable for the general public.

Mr. Butcher also does business in the way of buying Furniture, Stoves or other Household Goods, from anyone leaving the city, or wishing to exchange for other goods.

When wanting anything in the line of Household Goods give him a call.

COL. CLEGG

WELL DESERVED PROMOTION

E. B. CLEGG

Amongst the promotions that have been recently announced in the active militia of Canada, is that of Major E. B. Clegg to the command of the 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers, with the rank of Lieut.-Colonel. Lieut.-Col. Clegg succeeds Lieut.-Col. Arthur Stevenson, who is transferred to the Reserve of Officers.

The promotion of Major Clegg to the command of the 57th Regiment has been received with great favour by the officers and men of all ranks, by the officers of the sister corps of the Peterborough Garrison, and by the citizens generally. Although the official announcement of Major Clegg's promotion has only recently appeared in orders, it comes as no surprise to those who have been actively in touch with local militia matters. As a matter of fact the transfer of the stores was made last spring, and Major Clegg has been acting in command during the past drill season.

By the promotion of Lieut.-Col. Clegg to the command of the Regiment, Major G. W. Bennett will step up as second in command, and Major Mills, who has held the brevet rank of major, will become junior major on the staff.

Promotions in the active militia of Canada are much more rapid than they used to be. Up until a few short years ago an officer commanding a regiment might hold on to his command for a great many years. When the five year term of command was introduced it had a tendency to stir things up somewhat, and it has afforded more encouragement for young men to enter the militia and seek promotion. It must be borne in mind, however, that of the last three officers commanding the 57th Regiment not one remained in command for the full limit of five years. For various reasons, private and otherwise, they resigned and made way for their seconds in command. In fact, the promotions in the 57th Regiment have been exceedingly rapid during the past ten years.

Lieut.-Col. Clegg, as already stated, is a very popular officer, but he justly deserves the popular position he holds amongst the military men of the district. Like every officer who rises to command a regiment, Col. Clegg likes to look back and be able to say that he came up from the ranks. Lieut.-Col. Clegg joined the 57th Regiment when it was first organized into a city battalion in 1885. He was then simply Eddie Clegg, a full fledged private in No. 2 Company in command of Capt. Wm. Langford, who later attained the rank of Major. For nine years he served in the ranks and then in 1894 he accepted a commission in No. 2 Company. In 1896 he came into command of his company, with the rank of Captain. In 1907 he became junior major, and now after twenty one years' service he assumes command of his Regiment with the rank of Lieut.-Colonel.

During all these years Col. Clegg has rendered valuable service to his Regiment. He has always displayed a high degree of enthusiasm, has given a great deal of his time to the interests of his corps, and is one of the best informed men on military matters there is in the district. Under Lieut.-Col. Clegg's command there is every reason to believe that the 57th will continue to prosper, and that it will stand as one of the best of the city corps of the Canadian Militia.

Industrial Enlargements

A GLANCE around at the industrial establishments in Peterborough shows that nearly all of them have been enlarged in the past year or two. If one went back a little further say, the decade just closed every factory in Peterborough would be seen to have outgrown its former capacity and to have put on additions. Last year the Quaker Oats Company had two large additions erected. To the south of its elevator a large building was constructed which cost about $100,000, and to the north a new elevator of the most approved form of cylinder concrete construction was built, also costing $100,000. These two large additions added considerably to the capacity of the mills and to the facilities for handling the immense importations of grain and output of manufactured cereals.

The Canadian General Electric Company built a large addition to its machine shop, and equipped it with modern expensive machinery. The machine shop of this industry is about 900 feet long, and with its crowded floor and galleries is a hive of industry, the dimensions and activities of which cannot be comprehended unless seen.

A considerable addition was made to the factory building of Messrs. B. E. Ackerman Son & Co., and the enlarged capacity has resulted in an increased employment of workers and of output of harness and saddlery.

The Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Co. also last year made considerable extensions to and improvements in its premises. An addition was erected and portions of the building were re arranged so as to facilitate the business of the Company.

Another company which last year enlarged its capacity was the Peterborough Canoe Company. It erected a large building called for by the growing demand for its launches and smaller boats.

Other industries which have been enlarged within a short time are those of The G. Walter Green Co. and the George Matthews Co.

The Peterborough Furniture Company, finding new premises desirable, sold its building to The Peterborough Lubricator Co., a new industry, and erected the building which it now occupies on Hunter Street East.

VIEW OF GEORGE STREET, PETERBOROUGH, LOOKING NORTH

An entirely new factory—a new industry in Peterborough—is just completed and begun operations, namely that of the Bonner-Worth Company, in which worsted yarns will be manufactured. The building erected by the company is a creditable one, and the company has begun operations with highest prospects for a prosperous and growing career.

Another new factory building about completed is being erected by The Canadian Canoe Company. This industry found the building it had occupied, and in which its business had rapidly developed, too small for its business, and purchased land on Rink Street, where it is completing commodious premises.

A brief survey of the past year shows that Peterborough is advancing industrially, and that its factories are prosperous and continually outgrowing their capacity and making enlargements. Some of them began in quite small buildings and the additions which have been made have multiplied the original capacity several times. Other enlargements are contemplated—for one, Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons purpose increasing their capacity and output—and there is every reason to expect the continuance of the prosperity of the industries and of the city.

PETERBORO'S MAIN STREET

There is one feature of the City of Peterborough that cannot pass unnoticed, and that is the character of its business section. George street, the main thoroughfare, with the business sections of Hunter, Simcoe and Charlotte streets, presents a more up-to-date city appearance than will be found in any other city of a similar size. With exceptionally fine fronts, handsomely dressed windows, and a well lighted street, the business section is attractive both day and night.

There is probably in none of the smaller cities closer competition than we have in Peterborough, with the result that the shopper gets his merchandise of good quality and at close figures. The drygoods section of the retail trade in Peterborough is particularly aggressive and up-to-date; in fact all of the goods which they sell.

Peterborough's stores are exceptionally well stocked with all classes of articles of every kind, including those of both luxury and necessity, and no buyer need leave the city to have his wants filled.

The city being so situated, in the centre of a splendid agricultural district, and the key to the Trent Valley Canal—the most beautiful of inland waterways—and being so fortunately situated as to be the distributing centre for the whole of Central Ontario, enables our merchants to buy their goods in the large quantities, which enable them to meet trade opposition from all other sources.

Taking into consideration our up-to-date stores, the vitality of all branches of trade, the close proximity to the beautiful Kawartha Lakes—which makes the city an ideal one for permanent residence—and the golden opportunities offered to manufacturing interests, our readers will agree that these combined advantages are seldom found to exist outside our old home town—Peterborough.

The many hundreds of tourists who pass through the city, are invariably agreeably surprised by the nature of our stores, and the pleasing spectacle which George street presents to the new-comer. No less are they pleased with the civility and consideration of the store employees.

Peterborough's retail trade will progress with every move of the city and the merchants with their up-to-date methods of business, should continue to hold the trade of this centre as in the past.

As a Wholesale Centre

WITH her splendid location and shipping facilities, Peterborough seems unmistakably destined to become a great wholesale centre, and ultimately the chief distributing point between Toronto and Montreal. No Eastern Ontario city or town offers greater advantages as a location for wholesale businesses, and already this has been recognized by a number of enterprising firms who have established branches here. The reason for their coming to Peterborough is not hard to find. Peterborough is the centre of a network of prosperous smaller towns and equally prosperous farmers, and thus there is a very large field that must be covered. A central distributing point is a prime necessity, and no place offers the same facilities for this work as Peterborough. Situated on the Trent Canal, on the main line of the C.P.R., and on important branches of the Grand Trunk, with the Short Grain Route of the C.P.R., now nearly completed, coming almost into the city, there is ample shipping accommodation, and above all never any lack of cars or anything in the nature of a car famine, a point that is appreciated by shippers. Few places in the eastern part of the province are so fortunate in this respect, and certainly none that combine splendid shipping facilities with such a large local and district demand. The location of the city makes it possible to supply the eastern part of the province 24 hours ahead of goods shipped from Toronto.

Peterborough is glad to welcome wholesale houses and to encourage their erection in her midst. Although the city is growing steadily and rapidly, there are still available in advantageous locations, some splendid sites for wholesale warehouses, convenient to the railway lines, and affording every facility. That is, these sites are available at the present writing, but judging by the manner in which they are being snapped up, a few years will see a considerable difference in the situation.

Peterborough already has three wholesale grocery warehouses. The firm of T. Kinnear & Company, of Toronto, a couple of years ago erected a fine three storey brick warehouse on George street, a few yards north of the Canadian Pacific station, with a siding at the rear which gives ample shipping accommodation.

Perkins, Ince & Company, also of Toronto, have a splendid warehouse on Charlotte street, near the Grand Trunk station, and they, too, have a siding of their own running alongside their building. The third wholesale grocery warehouse is conducted by Mr. Charles Rishor in a commodious building on Simcoe street, within easy distance of the two stations.

The importance of Peterborough as a distributing point has been recognized by the well-known drygoods firm of Greenshields & Company, of Montreal, who have recently opened a wholesale branch in the new block of the J. M. Greene Music Company, of Charlotte street.

The wholesale hardware business is represented by the Peterborough Hardware Company, who last year had constructed on George street, just south of the Kinnear building, a commodious three storey cement building, in which they are now carrying on a wholesale trade.

Still another line of business is carried on in a wholesale manner in Peterborough, the W. B. Hamilton Shoe Company having realized that Peterborough's growth and situation make this city a profitable and advantageous field, a short time ago established a wholesale branch of their business here. Mr. J. E. Firth is the firm's representative in Peterborough, his headquarters being at the corner of Simcoe and Water streets.

Ald. James Edgar, George street, is a wholesale dealer in paper goods, and finds Peterborough a suitable location for such a business, while Mr. C. L. Stevens, George street, carries on a wholesale confectionery and candy business, making this city the distributing point for a large territory. Mr. W. J. Hopwood has a wholesale drygoods specialties warehouse at the corner of Simcoe and Water streets.

Peterborough affords openings to wholesale men in other lines of business, and believes that such firms establishing branches here will have every reason to congratulate themselves upon their forethought in coming to this city, the leading industrial and business centre of the Midland district.

JOHN JAMES

Few grocery stores in Peterborough are better known or have a greater reputation for honourable dealings than Mr. John James, general grocer, at 332 McDonnell Street. Mr. James, who is a native of Perth, Ontario, has resided in Peterborough for the past fifteen years and engaged in his present occupation, which has been marked with success, twelve years ago.

The store in its equipment is all that could be desired by the most exacting customers, being clean and well kept in all its departments. The stock in-trade comprises a full line of fresh general groceries, flour, cured meats, cigars, and tobacco.

Mr. James has had a wide experience in the grocery business, and the brightness of his store and well varied stock are but a reflection of his early training. He has built up a large business through his civility to all his customers and through his present personality. He is a property-holder in the community to a considerable extent. In this respect he has added a material quota to Peterborough's advancement.

GEORGE EVANS

Evidence of hard work, progressiveness, and capability shows itself to a marked extent in the person of Mr. George Evans, one of the leading tailors in this part of the country, whose handsome and well appointed store is centrally situated at 166 Hunter Street, where this business has been carried on in a most successful manner for the past twenty-two years, it being originally established by Mr. A. M. Laidlaw; but in March, 1907, it was taken over by its present proprietor, and from that time until now its patronage has continued to increase with rapid strides under the able administration of Mr. Evans, who is recognized as a leader in his business in this city, where he gives employment to twelve expert tailors, who turn out nothing but the highest quality of work. The main floor in this store is devoted to the displaying of goods which are the product of all the best Scotch and English woollen mills.

Mr. Evans is a native of Peterborough, and was connected with Mr. Laidlaw when he first started the business; and it is due entirely to his own hard work and progressive and enterprising disposition that he is at the head of Peterborough's leading establishment, and is held in high esteem by his fellowmen.

R. J. SODEN

A business of high rank and good status in this city, in addition to being the home of high quality in stationery and good literature, in journals and books, is that conducted by Mr. R. J. Soden, bookseller and stationer, at 369 George Street.

Mr. Soden established this business six years ago, and ever since its beginning it has occupied the large, bright and spacious quarters it now occupies, which are so well known to all our people.

The stock is large, attractive, and well varied, and includes books, stationery, pictures, leather goods, wall papers, room mouldings, picture frames, china, glassware, and toys, all of the highest possible quality for the low prices asked.

Mr. Soden was formerly in business in Montreal before engaging in business here, and was for a long time assistant treasurer of the Continental business for Drummond, McCaw & Co., of the Canada Iron Furnace Co., which position caused him to reside in London, England, for some years. On his return to Canada Mr. Soden built a large blast furnace in Midland, Ont., for a syndicate, which he managed for four years.

Mr. Soden's handsome store has done much in the beautification of George Street, and he has done considerable for the community's welfare. He gives employment to six helpers, and in this respect has rendered a service to our people.

REAL ESTATE SOLD OR EXCHANGED AND ESTATES MANAGED

Though only established for the past three years, Mr. James Middleton, who is a real estate dealer, with offices located at Number 421 George Street, has won the confidence of the community for his upright and honest dealings with his many patrons.

This business was originally established by Middleton & Blewett, but later on Mr. Middleton decided to carry on the business under his own name, which he did, and since that time has made a great success. He is very well known by his fellow-citizens, and is one of the most progressive business men we have in our city to-day. He is a native of this county, and has played an active part in municipal politics, having been councillor and Reeve of Smith Township for twenty-three years.

Mr. Middleton deals in all kinds of farm and city property. During his real estate career, he has put through some very large deals and managed several large estates in an efficient manner. He is a great worker for the advancement of Peterborough, and has always maintained great faith in the city's possibilities and future growth and prosperity.

J. J. DUFFUS

About one year ago Mr. J. J. Duffus, who is one of our foremost business men, decided to establish the agency of the celebrated Russell and Ford automobiles in Peterborough, and during this short space of time Mr. Duffus has met with great success, and his business has far exceeded his expectations, and it is due entirely to the fact that he was far-sighted in selecting the best agencies in the country. He also has the agency for the Northumber pianos in which he has done quite a splendid business.

For eleven years Mr. Duffus was well and favorably known to the citizens of Peterborough and to the farmers of the surrounding country when he was in business with Mr. Drummond on Simcoe Street dealing in farm implements. Mr. Duffus has fine showrooms at 380 George Street, connected with phone 256, where he is always obliging and willing to show to you and to explain to you the merits of his agencies. But owing to the fact that the business has outgrown the present premises, Mr. Duffus has decided to select more spacious wareroomes, and if he cannot get a building suitable he will build an entirely new place to be used as sales rooms, automobile garage, and repair department.

Mr. Duffus has always taken a keen and active interest in the affairs of the city, and he served a number of years in the City Council. He is a thorough business man, and public-spirited citizen, and a firm believer in the city's future advancement.

Mr. Duffus, through years of reliable dealings with the people of this district, attributes his success in a large measure to his strong connection with our best people, having won a reputation for fairness and honesty, which is evidenced by the fact that each and every customer seems absolutely satisfied with the treatment accorded them at his hands.

The Russell, for one who wants an absolutely high class, positively up-to-date, beautifully designed automobile, appeals to the most fastidious. It is designed on the foremost leading automobile in America, and to one who knows a motor car, it appeals to him at sight as being one of the most comfortable, powerful and durable cars on the market. Only the best of materials are selected for its construction, and owing to the fact that this car is purely a Canadian car throughout, is manufactured in Toronto, therefore the buyer of a Russell is certain of getting prompt service in the way of repairs or parts.

The Russell Motor Car Co. also use in many of their cars the celebrated Silent Knight motor, which is an exclusive company have the sole right to use this engine in Canada.

The Ford.—This car is recognized the world over as the best buying proposition that has ever been offered for sale. It appeals to the business man from a business as much as a pleasure standpoint. It is certainly one of the most reliable motor car propositions that has ever been introduced. Its lightness of weight is made possible by the use of vanadium steel throughout in its construction. This insures economy in gasoline and oil, and makes it possible to get double the mileage on one set of tyres.

The special Ford Magneto, which is attached to the fly wheel of this car to produce electric current, is without doubt the best ignition system ever incorporated in any car. After three years of use in the Ford Model T car, it has proved beyond doubt at all times serviceable, never having experienced a particle of trouble, notwithstanding the fact of its having been installed in very nearly 100,000 Ford Model T cars.

C. R. BANKS

The most popular store in Peterborough among those of our citizens who are partial to outdoor sports and exercise is the Banks Bicycle and Sporting Goods Co., located at 324 George Street. This business was established four and a half years ago by Mr. C. R. Banks, who had been previously engaged in a similar business in Galt, Ont.

The popularity of this store, under the Market clock, is due as much to the quality of the goods as it is to Mr. Banks' charming personality. All manner of requisites for the enthusiastic sports are kept in stock, the store being full to overflowing with sporting goods of many reliable makes.

Mr. Banks specializes in the Peterborough bicycle and E.M.F. thirty and Flanders twenty motor cars. Everyone knows, or those who do not know ought to know, all about E.M.F. motors, as they are so frequently seen on our streets. Mr. Banks having sold seven to prominent men of this city last year. The Peterborough bicycle is another machine which the people were not backward in finding out the merits of, for last year over one hundred were sold to people in Peterborough. This low-priced, high grade bicycle is built for Mr. Banks, purposely to stand the strain of the roads in this neighborhood. A number of experienced hands are employed in the repair shop to insure prompt and nothing but expert workmanship.

Mr. Banks is even looking further ahead, and is on the eve of opening an automobile livery. Many other lines of goods are always on hand, including motor boats, fishing tackle, hockey, baseball, and sporting goods.

The proprietor himself is an indulgent and conscientious man, both qualities having won for him an enviable reputation. He is a business man of sterling worth, and one who is making a success of business in Peterborough.

A. A. GOODFELLOW

[illegible] Nassau 520 Water [illegible] have a very clean and up-to-date store, which is generally known as The Tea Grocery. The business, though only having been established since March of this year, has made a good credit of itself. The enterprising and obliging proprietor of this business is Mr. A. A. Goodfellow, who has had a good many years' experience in the trade, and therefore understands the wants and requirements of the many patrons who reside in all parts of the city. Mr. Goodfellow had the honour of being postmaster, which duties he fulfilled with great satisfaction in connection with his general store, which he conducted for many years at Fraserville, Ont., and after retiring from that work he decided to go farming, which he did, and in March, as mentioned above, he established himself in his present business, and has made a great success right from the start. He deals in high-class groceries, provisions, fruits, confectionery, etc., etc., which include a well assorted variety, and his patrons are assured of good goods, fair treatment and reasonable prices, with prompt deliveries made to any part of the city. Mr. Goodfellow is a native of this county and has made a host of friends in this city since locating here. If you are in need of pure goods and guaranteed satisfaction call at this store or phone 1120, and your order will be executed promptly.

A. PETERS

Of the many fine stores in Peterborough which the visitor notices on every hand, no doubts are for a moment entertained as to the prominent part which the grocery establishments play in the everyday life of our citizens. Our grocery stores in the city are more numerous than any other branch of retail trade, and yet individually they rank among the most attractive emporiums that cater directly to the thrifty housewife.

Occupying a very prominent place among the foremost of our grocery establishments is the store of Mr. A. Peters at 120 Aylmer Street. Mr. Peters established this business eight years ago, after having moved to this address from Charlotte Street, where he was previously engaged in the grocery business for eight years.

The store is modern and well appointed throughout, the shelves being at all times heavily laden with the very choicest lines of staple and fancy groceries, flour, provisions, foreign and domestic fruits, and confectionery, all of which are the best the market affords. The store is well kept and spotlessly clean, which goes to imbue confidence in his customers as to the reliability and wholesomeness of the goods he sells; and those in need of good groceries could not do better than phone 1146.

Mr. Peters hails from the County of Lennox near Napanee but has resided in this city for the last twenty-five years. In that time he has been closely identified with many public movements for the advancement and greater development of this community which now ranks high among the manufacturing cities of Canada.

SINGER SEWING MACHINE COMPANY

It might safely be said that every woman in the civilized world to-day has heard of the wonderful Singer sewing machine, which is used by thousands upon thousands of women all over the country. These machines are undoubtedly the best and most reliable machine of its kind on the market to-day.

A branch of this wonderfully enterprising firm was established in Peterborough about 20 years ago. The management of this district, which includes Keene, Millbrook, Campbellford, Hastings, and Norwood, is in the hands of Mr. J. W. Stuart, who is an expert in this business, and who is a thoroughly up-to-date business man. He has been manager of this district for the past five years, and since taking hold of the business here he has built up an exceptionally large and still growing trade. He is a native of Lakefield, and was formerly in the sewing machine business in that town.

Among the newest departures in sewing machines, which are always on exhibition at Mr. Stuart's warerooms, is the hand Singer, sold at $3.50 for travellers and children, and the machine darner for mending stockings or garments on the machine. They come in two sizes, at $1.25 for two.

All kinds of sewing machine repairs are executed at this establishment, as well as a full line of repair parts for all modern makes of machines are kept in stock.

Mr. Stuart has been fortunate in having surrounded himself with an expert assistant, Mr. C. B. Coates, who acts as assistant manager, and who is of great benefit to the company. Both Mr. Stuart and Mr. Coates are well known and are highly respected on account of their straightforward methods of doing business. The agency is located at 347½ George Street.

J. T. DONOGHUE

With prevailing conditions as they are and as competition in every line of business becomes keener every year, it is owing to this fact that the people are often supplied with inferior goods at lower prices. But people who know buy for the sake of good quality rather than quantity.

Among the best kept stores in the city is that of Mr. J. T. Donoghue, grocer, corner of Rubidge and Sherbrooke streets. This store meets the demands of many homes of all classes in the south west portion of the city, and supplies these homes with the very choicest groceries, meats, fish, vegetables, foreign and domestic fruits in season, and confectionery.

Ten years ago Mr. Donoghue, who has lived all his life in Canada, established this business, in which he has been very successful owing to his splendid knowledge of the grocery business, of which he has given up many years to study. He has always lent his support to any movement of nature to benefit Peterborough, and is highly respected by many of our citizens.

Mr. Donoghue handles only the best class of goods, including such celebrated lines as Redpath's sugar, Heintz's 57 varieties, and Machonachie's goods of England, and Royal Household Bread Flour.

THE STANDARD CO.

There are a great many necessities in the home which are required by members of the large family, and these articles, which are more frequently garments of necessity, must be obtained regardless of the condition of the family purse.

The Standard Co., of 430 George Street, fill a longfelt want in this regard, as they are credit outfitters for home and family. In this bright store is a large stock of well assorted articles for the home and family, including ladies' and gentlemen's ready-to-wear clothing, furs, house furnishings and furniture. Any or all of these lines may be obtained on the credit system. It is not necessary to wait until your ship comes in.

The store is well appointed in all respects, handsomely decorated, and stock of the highest quality of lines of celebrated manufacture, are attractively displayed. The store has recently been thoroughly modernized in its interior decoration, having been newly painted and papered. The premises, which were formerly occupied by the Garden Printing Co., are well known to all of our people.

Mr. Harry Zacks, who is the capable manager of the Standard Co., is an expert in this business, with years of experience. He is a courteous man, with an affable manner, who caters to all classes of trade, and makes allowances for all conditions and circumstances of his customers. He is noted for his honesty and reliable dealings.

PETERBOROUGH OPTICAL INSTITUTE

A great many people whose eyes are affected one way or another imagine that an optician, whoever he may be, can give relief and permanent cure. Any reasonable person knows that this is not the case, but that it is far wiser to see an expert from the beginning rather than to consult a man that is not reliable. In Peterborough we are proud to say that we have a thoroughly capable and reliable optician in the person of Dr. J. W. Browett, who has built up a large and still growing practice, which is due entirely to his thorough knowledge of his profession, and his ever ready willingness to oblige all his patrons, of which he has a large number from all parts of the city and country.

Dr. Browett enjoys the enviable reputation of having graduated from the Ontario College of Pharmacy, a specialist in refraction of the eye, Doctor of Optics of Pennsylvania State College, Honour Graduate of the Philadelphia Optical College, Graduate of the Spencer Optical Institute of New York City, Graduate of the Optical Institute of Canada, and Demonstrator of the Ophthalmic College of Montreal. Dr. Browett has had a great number of years successful optical practice in both Canada and the United States, and is recognized as one of the most experienced and most reliable opticians. He gives post graduate courses throughout Ontario, and teaches opticians modern methods of eye examination, the fitting of artificial eyes, etc., etc. His offices are centrally located at 332 George street, which are connected with Bell phone 1221, and machine phone 7. His offices are handsomely arranged and most up-to-date in every respect. Dr. Browett, since his establishment here five years ago, has done a great deal for the advancement of the city, and he is held in high esteem both in his professional and social circles, and is constantly making new friends.

PETERBOROUGH STEAM LAUNDRY

Many people who are particular as all people should be in regard to sending out their clothes to be washed, to an establishment where the clothes of many other homes are concentrated for the same purpose ask the question, Are the conditions under which the clothes are washed, dried, and ironed, sanitary?

This is a question deserving of much deep thought and careful consideration on the part of our citizens.

This business was established 25 years ago by the late Mr. Parker, and six years ago Mr. Hetherington took over the business for himself. In order to insure sanitary conditions, the services of an expert were secured by Mr. Parker twenty years ago in the person of W. P. Hetherington as foreman.

Mr. Hetherington has had many years' experience in the laundry business, and since the time he first came to this city till the present day, including his having taken over the business some time ago, he has been credited by our citizens for the good work he does with the quickest possible despatch.

Although he is a native of Millbrook, his interests are in common with this city. He provides work for nearly thirty of our people, and employs two wagons to call for and deliver parcels.

F. CLARKE & SON

THE STORE OF QUALITY

Of the many well-known jewellery establishments in this city whose windows lend to the beauty of our streets too much cannot be said of the store conducted by the Messrs. F. Clarke & Son, watchmakers and jewellers, at the corner of George and Brock Streets. The business was opened five years ago by Mr. G. F. Clarke, who learned the business in Peterborough, and who had been engaged in the same line of endeavour in Warkworth for the past twenty-five years.

This popular store is among the very best of our jewellery stores, carrying a splendid stock of jewellery and precious gems.

The Messrs. Clarke are expert watchmakers, engravers, and opticians, having every facility for the correction of weak vision. Their assortment of wedding and engagement rings is unsurpassed in any other store. The store is connected by machine phone, which makes this establishment within easy reach of everyone in the city.

The Messrs. Clarke have won fame throughout the district through the quality of their goods and durability of repairs executed by them. Mr. F. R. Clarke is the head of the business, under whose progressive management it has been put upon a solid business basis. This firm are specialists in diamonds and gold and silver, carrying a large stock of costly diamonds of extraordinary brilliance, which are sold by this firm even in New York. They also carry a full line of Canadian manufactured sterling silver souvenirs in plain silver and enamel colors.

THE EVENING EXAMINER, PETERBOROUGH,

Peterborough as a Manufacturing City

SATURDAY, AUGUST 12, 1911.

Our City of Peterborough Edition

THE EXAMINER takes some pride in being able to issue this comprehensive business edition of the City of Peterborough. The number of retail business establishments referred to will be a surprise to our citizens, and furnishes ample evidence of the growth of Peterborough's varied business interests. The preparation of the business sections of this edition, covering sixteen pages, has been in charge of the Messrs. B. B. and A. W. O. Stewart, gentlemen of wide experience in producing similar editions in Vancouver, Winnipeg, Welland, San Franscisco, and other Canadian and American cities. All the business notices have been supplied by them. The original articles and introductions were supplied by different correspondents familiar with their subjects. The Roy Studio furnished the greater number of the photo-engravings, which form such a very interesting feature of the edition. The "Examiner" did all the mechanical portions of the work, and our readers will be the best judges of the merits of that work and the value of the undertaking.

Manufacturing Advantages

AS a location for manufacturing industries, Peterborough has all the essentials and accessories, and has them in a superior degree. It has electric power, and plenty of it. Powers have been developed on the Otonabee River and connecting waters, and others are being developed. Abundant hydro-electric power is available, and as fast as it is called for 30,000 horse power can be furnished. This power is supplied to the industries at low rates and on advantageous terms that are attractive to manufacturers.

It has the best shipping facilities. The location of the city is an advantage in this respect, as it is centrally situated, and between the two great business centres, Montreal and Toronto. It has both the great Canadian railways, the Canadian Pacific and the Grand Trunk, which branch out from the city in seven directions. These give direct connection with all parts of Canada, and with the markets of the world. Being on the lines from the Northwest to the seaboard, it is in an excellent position for shipping in either direction. The Trent Waterway, which will soon be completed to Lake Ontario, gives water communication for 150 miles, and will stretch from Lake Ontario to the Georgian Bay, furnishing navigation to all ports. Direct and quick railway communication by different railway systems and to all parts, and with railway siding accommodation, places Peterborough in an unexcelled position for shipping, which will soon be further improved when supplemented by navigation with the completion of the waterway.

Labour conditions, which are an important factor in manufacturing, are favourable for industries in Peterborough. General expenses are low, especially in comparison with the larger centres, and the city is one in which mechanics like to live. The comforts and convenience of living are all present, as well as the facilities for amusement and pleasure, and at moderate expense. These conditions make labour readily obtainable.

Sites for industries, admirably suited for the purpose, with railway connections, are obtainable, and in sizes to suit the requirements of any class of industry.

All other conditions, some of which are referred to in other articles in this number of the Examiner, are favourable for manufacturing, such as excellent fire protection, and the requisite municipal services.

These conditions, which are improving, have attracted and built up the numerous, large and prosperous industries that are now doing business in Peterborough, and are available for the use of new industries. It is the policy of the city to encourage and facilitate the erection of industries, and enquiries from manufacturers are welcomed at the City Hall.

THE NEW BONNER WORTH FACTORY

CANADIAN MACHINE TELEPHONE CO., LTD.

Peterborough, the Electric City, can boast of many fine industries and as being the home of many branches of the largest corporations in Canada. Some of these industries are unique in that their products represent the brains of inventive genius. It was fitting that the Electric City should be the first city in Ontario to grant a franchise to an independent telephone company, and that this independent company should install in the City of Peterborough the first automatic system in the Province of Ontario. We refer to the Canadian Machine Telephone Company, Ltd., whose local offices are on Charlotte Street.

This automatic system (the Lorimer) is without doubt one of the most remarkable inventions in use to-day. The fact that a subscriber from his telephone can connect himself with another subscriber without the assistance of any human agency at the Central Office, would not have been credited as being possible a few years ago. This method enables private business matters to be talked over the machine telephone with absolute safety, as there is no danger of conversations being overheard.

As already mentioned, Peterborough had the distinction of having the first operating automatic telephone exchange established in Ontario, and since this exchange has been operating it has attracted world-wide attention, having been visited and inspected by many of the most prominent telephone engineers of the United States and telephone engineers sent specially by the Governments of Great Britain, France, Germany, Sweden, Australia, and other countries. The Exchange here has so far been operated by the company more as an experimental and demonstration plant than a commercial exchange, but plans are now maturing for the full development of the system, and Peterborough, which was the first to grant an independent franchise, may soon expect to rank first in Canada from a standpoint of telephone developemnt and telephone service.

The example set by Peterborough has been followed by other places, and the Canadian Machine Telephone Company has been granted franchises and is operating plants on a successful commercial basis in Brantford, Burford, St. George, Lindsay, and East Toronto. Automatic plants have also been made and sent to France and Italy, and specifications have been submitted for an exchange for the British Government for installation in London, England.

Associated with the Canadian Machine Telephone Company during the past three or four years has been the Canadian Independent Telephone Company, Limited, a larger corporation with wider interests. The management of the business of both of these companies is in the hands of Mr. F. D. Mackay, formerly of Peterborough. The Canadian Independent Telephone Company has built up a very large business among the rural companies and telephone systems throughout Canada. At the factory of the Canadian Machine Telephone Company on Dupont Street, Toronto, are manufactured not only the automatic switchboard and telephones, but a full line of magneto telephones, such as used on farm lines and small local systems. In addition to manufacturing telephone equipment, the company also handles everything necessary on the way of material for the construction of a telephone line, including bolts, cross arms, insulators, wire, etc.

A good many readers may not be aware of the development which has taken place in connection with rural telephones throughout Canada. The Peterborough district has not been as active in this regard as other parts of the Province. When it is known that there are to-day over 500 independent local systems throughout Ontario representing an investment of close on to $4,000,000, some idea will be secured of the extent of this rural telephone development. In this connection a clause taken from the "Report of Ontario Railway and Municipal Board for 1910" will be interesting:

"Whereas five years ago there were less than two thousand telephones in farmhouses in Ontario, to-day there are approximately 460 systems owned by provincially incorporated companies, co-operative associations, partnerships and individuals operating nearly 50,000 telephones and representing a capital investment estimated at $1,000,000. Ninety per cent. of these systems, which do not include those of the Bell Telephone Company, were organized by farmers, who of their own initiative have established this service and furnished most of the necessary capital, not so much with the object of earning dividends, as from a desire to provide themselves with what experience has demonstrated to be a necessary adjunct to modern farm life."

This same report makes a very interesting and brief classification of these systems, and for the information of our readers in this district, we quote this classification of these systems as follows:

1. Systems operated by individuals, partners and incorporated companies, charging rentals varying from $5.00 to $15.00 per annum. Where the rental is under $10.00 the subscribers usually purchase their own telephones at a cost of from $13.00 to $18.00.

2. Co-operative systems, each subscriber paying his share of the cost of the plant and an annual assessment of from $1.00 to $5.00 to cover the cost of maintenance and operation. In some cases no assessment is made, each subscriber being responsible for the maintenance of his part of the system.

3. Separate party lines of two stations and over, the subscriber building the necessary pole line to the nearest main line of the Bell Telephone Co. and paying a rental of from $8.00 to $12.00 per mile per annum, for a wire to the "Bell" switchboard. The subscriber also purchases his telephone from the company, and pays an annual rental, usually $5.00 for local service at the exchange where the line terminates.

4. Systems built under "The Local Municipal Telephone Act, 1908," which provided that upon the petition of the subscribers, being ratepayers, the municipality furnishes by the issue of debentures, the cost of the system, each subscriber repaying his proportion in ten annual instalments of principal and interest, in addition to the cost of maintenance and operation. There are 15 of such systems in operation at this date, the largest of which is that of the municipality of Brussels, with nearly 600 telephones at an assessment of $11.36, including the cost of operation and maintenance. The lowest assessment is that of the township of Rochester, viz., $6.44 with 222 subscribers.

The Canadian Independent Telephone Company or the Canadian Machine Telephone Company will gladly furnish fuller information in regard to these systems, and the methods adopted in organizing local companies. If a municipality is considering the matter of establishing a telephone system, the companies' engineers will gladly furnish any advice in regard to plans or operation of a proposed system.

The Canadian Machine Telephone Company in a sense may be called the pioneer of the Independent telephone movement in Ontario, and in its association with the Canadian Independent Telephone Company has played a very material part in the development of these rural systems throughout the Province.

MAYOR W. G. MORROW

A citizen of Peterborough who has contributed a material quota to its development and improvement, both through his connection with one of of its most necessary enterprises, and also through his services to the municipality in public places, is Mayor W. G. Morrow.

In business, Mr. Morrow is vice-president and managing director of the Toronto Savings and Loan Co., which institution has played a most prominent part in the advancement of this city.

He has occupied the Mayor's chair on two occasions—in 1910 he was the choice of the electorate, although he was opposed, and in 1911 was re-elected by acclamation. He was a member of the Council prior to his election for three years, in that time having acquitted himself of his duties in an able and honourable manner.

His Worship has won the esteem and confidence of the whole community of Peterborough by his unfaltering fidelity to their interests. Much of the progress that has been noticeable about the city has been due to his wise suggestions, and to the able manner in which he has guided its destinies while he has occupied this important office.

The Mayor has observed these sterling and high qualifications that have made him trusted and popular in other in the management of his private business, and is noted for always according everybody that has had business relations with him the utmost courtesy. He has been in business in Peterborough for many years and is widely known.

THE RAPID TOOL CO., LTD

In this handsome industrial issue of our paper, which we take great pride in publishing, we have mentioned a large number of our various business interests, and some of our largest manufacturing concerns, and as we consider that the Rapid Tool Company, Limited, is playing no small part in our industrial circles, we are therefore showing in this article the magnitude of that thriving and progressive institution. This company was established in 1897, and has since that time up to the present day been engaged in the manufacture of The "Rapid" Auger Bits, car bits, etc., which product they ship from coast to coast, with representatives stationed at Winnipeg, Vancouver, Amherst, N. S., Montreal and Toronto. From June 1st, 1909, up to June 1st, 1910, this company turned out 104,370 Bits, and from June 1, 1910, up to June 1, 1911, they nearly doubled this output, having turned out 201,468 Bits, and during the last year they have more than doubled their sales.

The officers of the Company are all well known business men. Mr W. G. Ferguson is president, Mr. D. J. Lundy, secretary-treasurer, and the enterprising and progressive manager is Mr. Thomas M. Rees, who is a native of Cardiff, Wales, though he has lived in Canada for over five years. He has been identified with this Company for over fourteen months, and previous to that time was engaged as Chief Inspector for the Canada Cycle and Motor Company, of Toronto. Mr. Rees has had eighteen years experience in mechanical engineering, his apprenticeship alone covering five years at marine engineering, and two years at electrical engineering. Though this Company have already made such rapid strides of progress, their future for the coming year looks even still more prosperous.

E. H. MANN, CHEESE BOX FACTORY

Mr. E. H. Mann, who has for so many years been identified with the lumber and cheese box industries in Peterborough, took over the factory on the C.P.R. tracks near George Street, which had previously been conducted by Mr. Arnet.

Mr. Mann has installed some very fine new machinery, which materially increases his output of cheese boxes, which are in constant demand in all parts of Central Ontario. The factory at present day some of the largest lumber mills in the Dominion are located in this city.

Four years ago a company was formed to take over the business of Mr. E. H. Mann, who had successfully operated a large lumber mill for many years.

The company is under the direction of Mr. Thomas McGeachie, who came from St. Catharines as a thoroughly experienced man in the manufacture of sash, doors, blinds, grilles, and interior finish. These essentials in construction form the products of the mills at 167 Dublin street.

Since the new company took over the plant and equipment, many new and more modern machines have been installed which enable the management to turn out even better work, at a considerably reduced cost in the manufacture. The plant itself is quite extensive, where twenty men are employed on the wood-working machines.

Mr. McGeachie is a man of worth in the building community, his long experience placing him in a position to give sound advice. His great fund of information which years of study have made his, is always at the disposal of those who seek reliable information and insight into the true state of building conditions.

BIRD'S EYE VIEW OF CENTRAL PARK SHOWING ARMOURIES AND COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE

PETERBOROUGH CEREAL CO.

Of the many prominent industries of which Peterborough boasts, not a few, ranking among the foremost in the public's estimation is the Peterborough Cereal Company, Limited, manufacturers of the celebrated brand of Reindeer flour, the greatest of all household necessities, which is a leader to-day in the flour market.

This concern was established in Peterborough in 1905, and after the well-remembered fire of 1908, Mr. J. W. Meyers and his son, Mr. B. H. Meyers purchased Mr. Meldrum's interests, and have since conducted the business for the company. They are both millers and grain merchants, buying coarse grain from the farmers which they ship to all points in Ontario, Quebec, and the Maritime Provinces, after having been cleaned at the mill. They have had a wide experience in milling in Listowel, Ontario, where they were previously engaged in a similar pursuit.

Mr. J. W. Meyers, it might be said, has practically given his entire life in the search of greater knowledge and experience in the production of grains into cereal products. The company's products include the following brands of favourite flour: Reindeer, Five Thistles, and Mikado for bread and Perlwiss and Delight for pastry. These products are shipped in mixed cars throughout the different provinces mentioned above, along with the feed which is manufactured in their feed mill. This feed mill is one of the largest of its kind in the Dominion of Canada. It is equipped with the most modern machinery for making crushed and crimped oats, corn meal, and cracked corn, and a variety of other clean feeds. Another striking feature about this institution is the cooperage, in which they manufacture their own barrels. Like the mill, it is thoroughly equipped with the most modern and up-to-date machinery.

Both the cooperage and the mill have a daily capacity of three hundred and seventy five barrels, exclusive of the feed mill.

The company gives employment to thirty-five hands, nearly all of whom are experts in their own departments. Several travellers are kept on the road taking orders for Reindeer flour for which there is a steady and ever-growing demand. Both Mr. Meyers and his son are well known to, and highly respected by, the trade throughout the country, and have built up a solid business on honest and straightforward principles. They are also very popular in the city and surrounding country.

MANN LUMBER CO., LIMITED

If Peterborough does not actually owe her birth to the lumber industry, at least she owes her welfare to it, through many years of unimpeded progress in her history this business has been the strongest thread of life to which she clung. This business from year to year has constantly increased and been developed, until the present day some of the largest lumber mills in the Dominion are located in this city.

Four years ago a company was formed to take over the business of Mr. E. H. Mann, who had successfully operated a large lumber mill for many years.

The company is under the direction of Mr. Thomas McGeachie, who came from St. Catharines as a thoroughly experienced man in the manufacture of sash, doors, blinds, grilles, and interior finish. These essentials in construction form the products of the mills at 167 Dublin street.

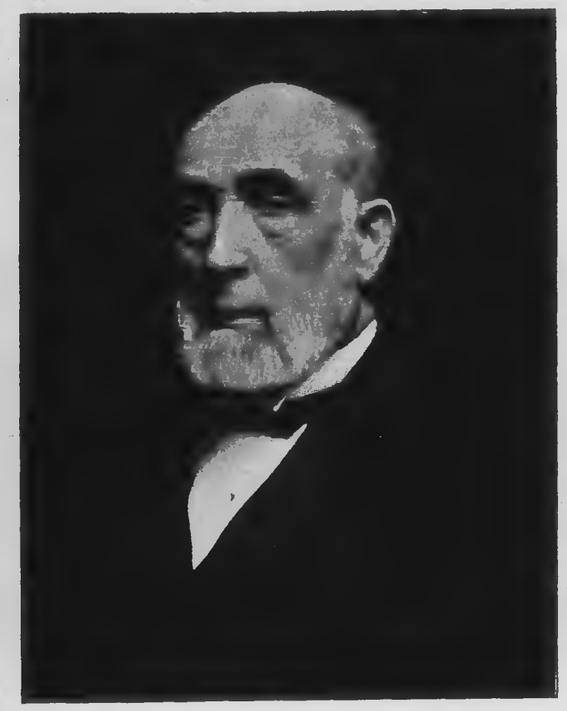
Since the new company took over the plant and equipment, many new and more modern machines have been installed which enable the management to turn out even better work, at a considerably reduced cost in the manufacture. The plant itself is quite extensive, where twenty men are employed on the wood-working machines.

Mr. McGeachie is a man of worth in the building community, his long experience placing him in a position to give sound advice. His great fund of information which years of study have made his, is always at the disposal of those who seek reliable information and insight into the true state of building conditions.

PETERBOROUGH CREAMERY

Much of the origin and spreading of contagious and incurable disease is due to a supply of impure milk or dairy produce. Milk, scientists claim, is one of the greatest foods for humanity, and yet one of the worst and most dangerous foods, if it is not absolutely pure. It is of not infrequent occurrence that milk containing germs is sold to the people after passing a rigid examination of the inspectors.

Seeing an opportunity of building up a tremendous business in pure milk and dairy products, Mr. Peter Dearsham established the Peterborough Creamery six years ago at 377 Aylmer Street. The business was continued by him until last year, when Mr. G. A. Gillespie, who is an expert dairyman took it over and is doing an ever-increasing business in manufacturing butter and cream. Fresh, pure cream and buttermilk are sold both wholesale and retail from this establishment, where four expert men in the dairy business are constantly employed to make the cream and butter which has made Mr. Gillespie famous. All new machinery has recently been installed, including a modern refrigerator plant, which will double the output of this popular establishment.



SENATOR GEORGE A. COX

THE life sketch of Senator Cox, who is acknowledged to be the Prince of Financiers of Canada, makes intensely interesting reading, particularly to Peterborough people, who knew him during his thirty years' residence in the Electric City. He knew Peterborough when it was a small place of no consequence, and he lived in this city until it had become a good manufacturing centre, leaving it only when he himself and his great financial interests had completly outgrown his surroundings. The following extracts from a life sketch of the Senator, which was run in a late issue of Toronto Saturday Night, cover the leading features of his strenuous life:

His first job of any outward importance was that of telegraph operator. Mr. H. P. Dwight, the father of Canadian telegraphy, remembers well the first time George A. Cox took to the wire. According to his story—if one recalls his words correctly—the Senator was plugging away at bootsoles when Mr. Dwight put him at the keyboard on the line of the Montreal Telegraph Commpany. He would then be a lad of sixteen. When he was eighteen he went to the keyboard at Peterborough.

How long he spent at telegraphy is not stated. But long before he began to show any real symptoms of financiership he had begun to be the finest agent in the system of Canada Life, and a live wire in the public affairs of Peterborough. There is probably not a factory in Peterborough to-day whose history Senator Cox does not know. He belonged to the town before it had a factory. He coud buy up most of the City of Peterborough to-day without much embarrassment to his financial system; probably would do so—if it should be a good investment.

Seven years he was Mayor of Peterborough; convincing proof that even in his young days the Senator did not lack public spirit. Peterborough was a cordwood town then. The market square was the forum.

The Mayor of Peterborough from 1864 to 1871 was a practical man. He was also a temperance advocate, a non-tobacco user and in most respects practised all the abstinences that make average good copy for newspaper biographies of a moral turn.

However, when he had got enough of the chief magistracy in the cordwood-cattle town, George A. Cox took a shy at the Legislature. He was defeated, and twice again he tried to break into the House of Commons, failing the last time by the narrow margin of sixteen. Years before that, however, he had begun to demonstrate that he could manipulate and organize and promote outside of politics. Seven years after he had quit the mayoralty of Peterborough he became President of the Midland Railway, which in those days was just about next to the headship of the Grand Trunk. There was no C.P.R. then. The Grand Trunk was the only real railway system in Canada—and it apparently became obvious to Senator Cox—who forty years later gave birth to the Grand Trunk Pacific motto, "Cox can't wait"—that the Grand Trunk ought to justify its name. Anyway it was Mr. Cox who engineered the amalgamation of four little jerkwater lines into a system which with its enhanced operation value was sold to the Grand Trunk; about which time Mr. Cox set his eyes on the west and joined a syndicate that tendered for the construction of the C.P.R.

From that era of expansion down to the present, Senator Cox has concentrated his energies on straight finance. One of the most practically commercial men in Canada he had a brain that was able to think in clearing house dimensions. Before the C.P.R. was finished he was President of the Central Canada Loan and Savings Co., and a director of the Western Fire and Marine Insurance Co. But this never interfered with the agency of the Canada Life.

As a life insurance agent, Senator Cox has a fifty year record unparalleled on the American continent. He has never got so high in millionairedom and management of financial companies that he couldn't stop to conquer a man that seemed diffident about insuring his life. The number of policies written by the Senator's own hand from 1861 until now if laid end to end might reach from Peterborough to Toronto—the track he took in 1888 when it became evident that the factory town of Easertn Ontario, though quite interesting enough for Mr. Cox to live in the rest of his days, was no place for the centre of financial systems. They say that down in Ottawa the Senator still keeps a vigilant eye on the insurance interests of his friends. He is a plain, practical man. No talent of his was ever wrapped in a napkin. He believes in work. As a worker he has been and still is a marvel to other financiers. His grip of finance has in it a good deal of what is called wizardry, but the magic of the thing is never far removed from the personality of the Senator. Had he gone into politics on the Commons end he might have been a powerful minister; but he might not have had either the record-breaking career from depositor to shareholder, director, and till two years ago President of one of the greatest banks in Canada. He was made a director of the bank in 1885; Vice-President in 1888, and President in 1890, which in the story of banking careers in Canada is perhaps without parallel. But his connection with the Bank of Commerce was merely a sideshow to his half a century of constructive statesmanship in the Canada Life—with the Central.

A. BLADE & SON

Flowers, like music, have languages of their own, and many people who are lovers of nature could live in solitude for the remainder of their lives, providing they were surrounded by flowers, which are nature's beautiful but silent companions.

Visitors go into ecstasies over the blooms on display in the establishment of the Messrs. A. Blade & Son, at the corner of Park and Dublin Streets. The stock-in-trade includes the choicest cut flowers—roses, carnations, lily of the valley, and chrysanthemums, in season—in a bewildering profusion of pale and glowing tints. Few realize the infinite pains that have been taken in their cultivation. Only those who have been privileged to visit the flowers under the four thousand three hundred square feet of glass in Park Street, owned by the Messrs. Blade, can form any definite idea of the time and trouble expended and the expense entailed in providing artificial heat to coax the plants into bloom. This business was established over thirty years ago by Mr. A. Blade, who is an experienced florist and caters to the local trade in superior flowering and decorative plants, decorations for weddings and social functions, and making a specialty of funeral designs.

Mr. Blade is assisted in the management of his business by his son, Mr Percy Blade, and five expert greenhouse men, all of whom are at the present time engaged in the erection of a new store house, which will add an additional seven hundred feet of glass to their equipment.

MOHER BROS.

Possibly one of the best signs of Peterborough's prosperity and progressiveness lies in the fact that nearly every day of the week we find new businesses established, and they all seem to make a success from the start.

One of the most ambitious of these firms is that of Moher Brothers, which was opened for business on June 1st of this year. The firm is comprised of Messrs. J. J. Moher and R. J. Moher, both natives of Peterborough, and are thoroughly experienced and practical men in the line of business they carry on, which is an automobile and bicycle agency and supplies. They also do general repairs and are expert brass workers. They have secured the agency for the famous Hupmobile of Detroit, which is known far and wide for its durability and other merits; and its price, which is so very reasonable, has made it exceptionally popular among the lovers of automobiles. If you are anticipating the purchase of an auto, you should by no means overlook calling on Moher Bros., who are at all times only too glad to demonstrate the merits of this wonderfully cheap and serviceable Hupmobile, which is sold with a guarantee for life.

The bicycles they handle are the best that can be secured. The Messrs. Moher have even in the short time that they have been in business sold a number of Hupmobiles, which have become very popular in this city. They also have the agency for the Pierce-Arrow and Rio automobiles. The Pierce car is recognized as the best car in America.

Both the Messrs. Moher are well and favourably known throughout the city. Mr. J. J. Moher was foreman for several years in the brassfinishing department of the Canadian General Electric Co. of Peterborough, and Mr. R. J. Moher was identified for about five years with one of the largest and wealthiest manufacturing concerns in Canada, the International Marine Signal Co. of Ottawa. They are both courteous and obliging to all their patrons, and have a large future ahead of them in this city.

C. YOUNG & SON

Insurance brokers of wide repute for honest dealings and speedy adjustment of all claims are the Messrs. C. Young & Son of 378 Water Street.

Mr. Young, who is a native of Young's Point, established this business ten years ago, and has won the confidence of our people to so great an extent that he has a very large and growing business in fire, life, accident, marine, and plate glass insurance.

Mr. Young is inspector of the Standard Life Assurance Co., and represents many additional companies, including Law, Union, and Rock of England Union Assurance Co. of England, Phoenix Assurance Co. of England, Imperial Guarantee and Accident Co., Globe and Rutgers Marine Insurance Co., Canadian Plate Glass Insurance Co., Gore District Mutual Co., Rimouski Insurance Co., Merchants' Insurance Co., Ontario Insurance Co., and Hamilton Insurance Co.

Mr. Young is very ably assisted in the conduct of his business by his son, Mr. Leo F. Young, who has been identified with his father in insurance work for several years. They understand insurance from Alpha to Omega, any kind of insurance being safe and well placed in their hands.

ED. HICKEY

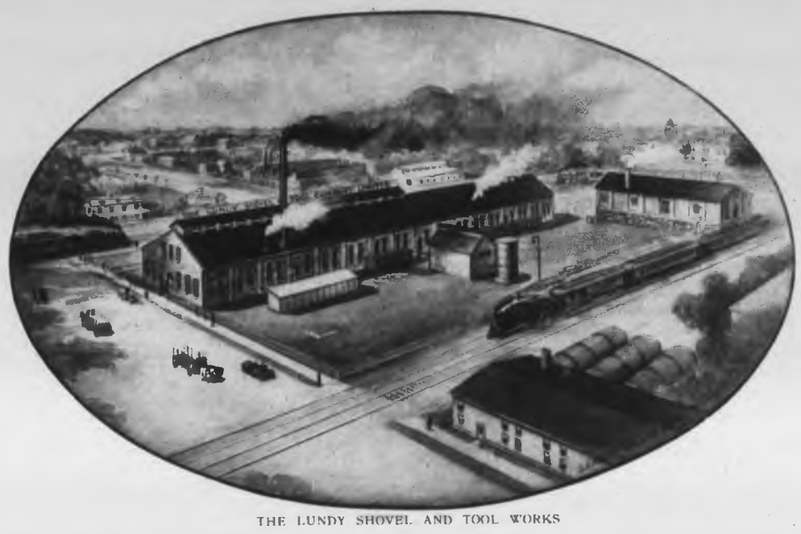
We are glad of having the opportunity of pointing out to our readers in this industrial issue of our paper the wide experience which is back of Mr. Ed Hickey, Peterborough's well-known high-class ladies' tailor, whose up-to-date establishment is situated at 158 Hunter Street, where he has been established for the past two years.

Mr. Hickey has been in this business for twenty years, and is recognized far and wide as being a leader in his chosen trade. In addition to doing all the high-class work of this city, he also has a number of other patrons residing in Toronto, Ottawa, Port Hope, and many other Canadian cities and towns, where his work is greatly appreciated. The goods and materials handled are of the very finest imported quality, and the work he turns out is the very best that can be procured anywhere. This is the only ladies' tailoring business in this city where the work is done by expert men tailors, and all work is guaranteed to the entire satisfaction of his many customers. Mr. Hickey is a native of Peterborough, and has become very popular on the merits of his work.

STEWART HOUSE

Because a hotel is not equipped with a liquor license it does not mean that that house is not up-to-date. But on the contrary that hotel can keep possibly a better class of people who are opposed to the sale of liquor.

One of the temperance hotels of Peterborough which has always had a large patronage is the Stewart House, which is situated at 69 Hunter Street, where accommodation is given to 30 guests, and a dining-room seating capacity for about 40 people. This house is lighted throughoute with electricity, and is first-class in every respect, the rates being $1.00 per day, and a weekly rate of from $3.50 to $4.00. It has also a stabling accommodation for about 100 horses. The enterprising proprietor is Mr. H. Stewart, who though only having charge for about two years, has become well and favourably known in both this city and the surrounding country.



THE LUNDY SHOVEL AND TOOL WORKS

LUNDY SHOVEL AND TOOL COMPANY, LTD.

The Lundy Shovel and Tool Company, whose works are illustrated above, is a comparatively young firm, having taken over in July, 1910, the buildings and plant erected and recently occupied by the Peterborough Shovel and Tool Company.

This extensive plant has been further increased during the past year by the purchase of some of the most modern machinery used, and the introduction of most up-to-date methods for the manufacture of shovels.

The judicious management of Messrs. D. J. Lundy, President; G. W. Lundy, Vice-President; E. P. Clarkson, Managing Director; J. D. Lundy, Secretary-Treasurer, and G. N. Baker, Superintendent, together with an extraordinary good feeling existing between the members of the firm, the official staff, and the workmen employed, augurs well for the future prosperity of the firm.

Every kind of shovel used in the Dominion of Canada is manufactured on the premises under an efficient Superintendent and an experienced class of workmen, who have all been specially trained in the various processes through which the steel passes before becoming a finished article.

The manufacture of shovels by the welded process is almost exclusively used in these works, and the opinions of experts prove that shovels manufactured in this way are far superior to any other make of shovels now on the market. The constant repeat orders that are being received prove the truth of this assertion.

The firm contemplates opening up an export trade and to this end have already orders for shipment of goods to South Africa. They are also negotiating for the establishment of agencies in China and Japan, and from reports already received a very extensive and profitable business can be worked up by this means. As the export trade deals chiefly with the lighter class of goods special machinery has been installed to meet the competition, and goods for this class of trade can be turned out in large quantities.

The location of these works cannot be improved on. Situated as they are, in close proximity to the C. P. Railway, the G. T. Railway, the shipping facilities are very great, and as a large stock of the various goods are always carried, prompt shipments can be assured.

Illustrated catalogues may be had on application, and any information will be gladly given to intending purchasers on application to the office on Stewart street.

GEORGE MATHER

Peterborough being the centre of a great surrounding farm country, it is natural that a large business should be done in the handling of grain and produce, and because of this it is just as natural that eight years ago Mr. George Mather should have established himself in the grain business, with offices on the corner of Charlotte and Aylmer Streets, and with warehouses and elevators centrally located in the rear on the sidings of the Grand Trunk Railway system.

He is a dealer in grain and clover seed, which is shipped to numerous points in Canada, as well as abroad. Being identified with the business for many years he is always in close touch with the grain markets, and those, therefore, who sell to him are always pleased with prices received and the generous treatment accorded in other respects.

Mr. Mather has developed a large and growing trade, and credit is due him in many ways for having brought the City of Peterborough before the notice of the outside world as a great centre for farm produce of the highest grade.

His circular issued recently to the growers of peas and clover, with reference to the part concerning the destruction of weeds, is worthy of the attention in all seriousness of every citizen—farmer and civilian alike. Anyone interested in the weed evil should read this article, as it contains a lot of information of value and importance, especially to the farmer. Mr. Mather will be pleased to supply copies of the same on application.

THE PETERBOROUGH LOCK MANUFACTURING CO'S ESTABLISHMENT

PETERBOROUGH LOCK MFG. COMPANY, LTD.

One of the foremost industrial enterprises which give Peterborough a recognized position as a manufacturing centre, and build up its fortunes locally is The Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company, Limited, and the extensive and imposing works of the Company, extending from 186 to 206 Simcoe street, are a source of pride to the citizens as one of the principal means from which they derive their prosperity.

This business was established about twenty years ago, and for a period owing to the general trade depression, met with indifferent success. Twelve years ago it passed under the administration of shrewd and enterprising men, who realized its capabilities for development, and from that time on, its progress has been remarkable. Today over one hundred and fifty employees are constantly engaged in its operations, and its goods are well and favourably known in every quarter of the Dominion from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Its products include locks, latches, hinges, handles, escutcheons, and, in fact, everything that is applied to the hanging and securing of every kind of door, to the equipment of the most elaborately artistic mansion or palace of business.

It is up-to-date with the latest developments of invention, both in artistic designing and in practical utility, and its products are maintained at the highest standard of excellence. The popularity, not less than the worth, of its output is demonstrated by their almost universal use throughout the Dominion.

The officers of the company are men widely and favourably known in the world of financial and industrial enterprise, and it is small wonder that under such guidance The Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company has achieved its present successful position in the ranks of Ontario's industrial enterprises. They are: Honorary President, Hon. Geo. A. Cox, Senator of Canada, and one of Canada's most noted financiers; President, Hon. J. R. Stratton, former Provincial Secretary of the Province of Ontario; Vice-President, Mr. W. G. Morrow; Secretary-Treasurer, Mr. E. H. Howson.

During the past two years over fifty thousand dollars have been expended in enlarging the buildings and in placing new machinery, and the company is better than ever prepared to supply its customers with goods of a finer finish, more up to date, as well as more promptly.

The promptest attention given to all correspondence. Address:

The Peterborough Lock Co.,
Peterborough, Ont.

P. J. GRADY

Without doubt the best aerated waters, ginger ale, lemon sour, and all kinds of soft drinks, including brewed ginger beer, are manufactured by Mr. P. J. Grady at his up-to-date plant at 583 Water Street. There is nothing in Peterborough or any other town that can touch Grady's products as regards purity and cleanliness. This business was established by Mr. P. J. Grady on June 9th, 1906, and right from the start has made a great success. The plant is equipped with all the latest machinery, and one of the big features is the up-to-date stone filter, which he had installed at considerable cost, which will filter about seventy gallons of water per hour.

The factory itself is the acme of cleanliness. The wall- and floors being cement are easy to keep clean, and it is a pleasure to the visitor to see the sanitary conditions under which these products are made. Employment is given to three expert men. Deliveries are made promptly to all parts of the city. They also ship a large quantity of goods to Chemong and Stoney Lake, where their goods are much appreciated.

Mr. Grady is a native of Peterborough, and is well and favourably known throughout the city and surrounding country. He has built up such a large business that he is now contemplating enlarging the factory in order to turn out more goods, and therefore meet the demands of the public, who all use Grady's Drinks.

WEST-END GREENHOUSES

One of the most modern and up-to-date conservatories in the city which supplies cut flowers and floral decorations for all kinds of social functions is the West-End Greenhouses at 547 Park Street.

This establishment has been in operation for the past 25 years, and through evolutionary movements in the application of newer scientific methods, this house has attained to a remarkable degree of proficiency in flower culture. They supply all kinds of cut flowers, including roses, carnations, chrysanthemums, etc., to the citizens through Mr. Porter S. White, who is their city agent. They also make a specialty in decorating for all kinds of entertainments, in addition to being in an unexcelled position to execute beautiful and original funeral designs.

Two years ago, Mr. W. C. Mead took over this business. He has a wide and thorough knowledge of the business, having been engaged for ten years in a similar occupation in Toronto. Their plant is efficient in every detail, and the hothouses comprise over 8,000 feet of glass.

ARTHUR REID

Two years ago Mr. Arthur Reid established his popular boat and canoe livery at the G.T.R. bridge, and his business adventure has proved a decided success. The business at present is conducted on a small scale, but the proprietor intends to extend his business and increase his equipment materially for the next season. He has ten boats and canoes for hire, all of which are perfectly safe and seaworthy.

Mr. Reid, who is a native of the county, has seen considerable of the world, and was for several years engaged in the fence business in this neighborhood. He was appointed bridge signalman for the G.T.R. five years ago, a position which he has filled faithfully and honourably, which is a credit to himself.

T. Q. QUARTERMAINE

A citizen of note in Peterborough, and one who has served the interest of the people faithfully in various public capacities, is Mr. T. Q. Quartermaine.

Mr. Quartermaine has resided in the city for many years, and is well known to many of the readers of this sketch. He is a native of Oxford, England, and graduated from that celebrated University at the age of seventeen. For the past thirteen years he has been secretary of the Board of Trade, and at the present time is Mr. Hayes' assistant in the office of the city engineer.

Mr. Quartermaine has a large clientele for whom he audits, and opens sets of account books, having had a vast experience in this work, and by nature he has a decided partiality for complicated figures.

SENATOR GEORGE A. COX

the Canadian General Electric, the Toronto General Trusts and the National Trust Co., as links in the chain.

Most of these financial webs the Senator has woven since he came to Toronto and began to be the efficient local genius of King street. He has been twenty-three years in Toronto, which is three years less than he spent in the interests of Peterborough. He is now the prince of financiers in Toronto. Nobody disputes his title. He has earned it. From the legendary bootshop and the telegraph shack in Colborne to the apex of middle Canada finance, is a series of sequences in the evolution of a great career and a remarkable personality, such as few men in this country have the privilege of making. Senator Cox has all the marks of a big Canadian figure. First of all, because his hold on the commercial and financial life of the country dates back to the cordwood days when he himself was a pinched-up plain man making his way. He has had the rare privilege of seeing within his lifetime the genesis and evolution of most of the great commercial, political and industrial forces that transformed Canada from a land of toboggans and river drivers and bush farmers into a land of hope for the Empire.

He is not more of a powerful figure on King street, Toronto, than he is in the Senate Chamber at Ottawa, and in the offices of Victoria College in Queen's Park. For many years he has been one of the pillars of the Methodist College. He has all his life been a strong supporter of the Methodist Church. At present he is the wealthiest millionaire in what has been somewhat flippantly called the church of millionaires on Sherbourne street. There he is an even more familiar figure than he is in Ottawa, and almost as conspicuous as he is on King street. Up till a few years ago he frequently remained to prayer meetings after the regular services. He is a striking example of a man who in the subtle and complex cobwebberies of finance is able to keep his front unchanged and openly unchallenged to the church. In this he is an example of uncommonly common sense. There is no vital teaching of the church that Senator Cox does not believe in as practically as the preacher. There is no preacher to whom he cannot talk as easily as to any of the financial magnates on King street.

Pursuing Success

A SHORT TALK WITH BOYS. BY F. G. H.

"Say, Mister, can you give me a job?"

"Well, my boy, what can you do?"

"Oh! anything."

Such was the opening of a conversation I had with a boy who one day broke unceremoniously into my office, without even a "By your leave."

On asking the boy what he meant by "anything" we discovered that "anything" in this case had come to mean "nothing in particular."

After discussing the subject at length we both agreed that the best thing for the boy to do was to return to school and better fit himself for a "job."

If a boy is to succeed he must know some one thing, and be able to do it. He must have his brain and hand so trained that he can adapt himself to whatever presents itself to him.

My advice always to a boy is to follow up his school and college studies just as far as his means will allow, even to taking his university degree and college course. Not for the things he will learn at school and college, for there will be many he will forget, and many he will never use, but because of the training of brain and hand he will be all the better fitted for whatever trade or profession or business he afterwards follows.

I know there are boys who, for various reasons, are unable to complete their school education. Upon these boys I would urge the necessity of learning a trade, or of starting in a business in which they will have an opportunity of quick advancement. If these boys are wise they will consult those who know them best and are most interested in their welfare before deciding upon the line they will follow. These boys, if they are to succeed, will not waste their spare time. They will set aside a certain definite portion of it for study. They will attend evening classes that will not only help them in their particular line, but in a general way, by making them familiar with other subjects, and enlarging their interests. If they cannot find evening classes in the subjects they require there are always the correspondence schools that offer instruction in almost every conceivable line.

So much for mental equipment and training. There are other matters just as important to which the boy who is to succeed must give attention. He must care for his body. He will do this by taking part in legitimate sports and physical training. He will play the game for the fun of it and for the health it brings. From sports in which teams contest he will gain more than the joy of the sport. he will learn the value of co-operation, he will learn to work with others. He will also learn at times the disappointment of failure and how to come up with a smile, and a determination to do even better next time.

To take proper care of his body the boy who seeks a success will cultivate no bad habits that will injure or destroy the functions of any of the organs of the body. he certainly will leave cigarettes strictly alone. Nowadays it is hard for a boy to get employment if he has the yellow stains on his fingers. Many men have the mental equipment, but having failed to care for their bodies find when some special strain comes they are not equal to the occasion.

"Clothes do not make the man," is a true saying, but they do indicate something of the character of the man who wears them. We are judged by our appearance. The boy who is to succeed will dress himself suitably for his work. He will not be slovenly, neither will he be a fashion plate. He will conduct himself as a gentleman always, courteous and polite, always anxious to please, always willing to learn.

And with all other good habits the boy who is to succeed will cultivate the habit of accuracy. If asked for information he will be exact, and not use such words as "I guess," "about," or "I think so." He will know, or if he does not know he will find out the information required. The necessity of this habit of accuracy cannot be emphasized too much, it is of real importance.

There are other conditions for success but the most important consideration of all is the question of character. A boy may have all the ability imaginable, he may have a perfect physical make-up, he may appear to be a gentleman, but unless he is developing a character that will stand the test of all the temptations that come to the youth of to-day, he will fail and fail miserably.

WM. SCOTT CO., LIMITED

Systems of modern warehousing have in the past few years been revolutionized by the establishment throughout the Dominion of cold storage plants of large capacity. This applies generally in all parts of Canada, and in Peterborough in particular, as we have demonstration of this fact every day in the cold storage plant of the Wm. Scott Co., Ltd., in Hunter Street.

So great has become the demand for cold storage warehouses that this now large cooling plant had to extend their capacity three years ago and equip the entire works with new and more modern machinery, the old style systems of refrigeration having become impracticable through the remarkable progress of scientific refrigeration.

The plant of the Wm. Scott Co. is not by any means the largest in Canada, but is undoubtedly one of the most complete of its kind in the Dominion. The building is large and commodious, the basement being utilized as a fruit and cheese room, while the first and second storeys are used for storing eggs. The top floor is the actual freezer, where dressed meats and poultry are kept in a frozen state for a great period of time without the goodness of the flesh being in any way destroyed or without loss of their strength, for which they are consumed by humanity. The building, as well as the entire works and system, are all that are desired by the provision of the law; and the methods of handling the goods which are stored in the freezer are sanitary and cleanly above everything else.

Few people seem to realize the remarkable saving an establishment of this kind means to them. It used to be that in times of plenty no natural products could be conserved; but this has been changed through scientific refrigeration solely. In these days of plenty now, these commodities may be saved and put on the market when they are scarce at a low cost, thus saving much money for everybody.

This company is doing good for the farmer as well as the citizen, and great credit is due to Mr. Scott for opening this great business in this city. By so doing he has served the citizens and farmers a good turn. May he continue and prosper!

THE GEO. MATTHEWS CO., LIMITED

One of the most progressive industries in Peterborough, and one which has done more than its share towards the advancement of this, the Electric City of Canada, is the George Matthews Co., Ltd.

Originally established in Lindsay, Ontario, in the year 1868, it was from that time up to 1882 one of the leading industries of that city. It was then considered advisable to remove to Peterborough, which they did. The same principles of cleanliness and purity were continued, and the success was even greater than before. As the name of Matthews became more widely known it became a standard of merit and a guarantee of good goods. The consequent expansion of business, which had already grown to large proportions, necessitated the formation of a joint stock company, and in 1894 incorporation was secured with a large capital stock.

The factory of this giant concern is located on George Street on the main line of the C.P.R., with which road it is connected by private sidings. The entire plant occupies several solidly built brick buildings, which are equipped throughout in a most modern and scientific manner, absolute cleanliness prevailing throughout their entirety. The hogs are received daily direct at the factory and are killed, dressed, and prepared for the market under Government inspection, the meat being handled under the most careful supervision.

The sale of Matthews' "Rose Brand" meats extends all over Canada and Great Britain, where all the pure food laws are most stringent. One particular equipment of this modern packing house is the modern refrigeration equal to about 100 tons of ice per day.

The George Matthews Coy. give employment to over one hundred skilled and well paid men, and have experienced travellers on the road looking after the business. The officers of the company are gentlemen occupying prominent positions in the life of the province. They are George Matthews of Lindsay, president; W. E. Matthews of Ottawa, vice-president; and Mr. T. F. Matthews of Peterborough, secretary-treasurer.

Thus this giant concern, operating also in Hull, Que., and Brantford, Ont., is in the hands of capable business men—shrewd, honest, and progressive—who quite appreciate the fact that the utilization of the most modern methods for the handling of business always makes for advancement. A great portion of the retail business in pork products in Peterborough is done through the three handsome retail stores of the company. These stores are located at No. 356 George Street, corner Brock and George Streets, and corner of Sherbrooke and Park Streets. These stores, like the packing-house, are immaculately clean and sanitary. They are fully equipped with large ice chests, patent cutting blocks, and marble-topped counters. A complete stock of all pork products is provided fresh every day, and deliveries are promptly made by the company's own delivery wagons. In addition to the products of the packing-house, these carry a splendid assortment of canned goods in glass and tin, put up by the world's canners, and pickles and condiments to suit every taste. The Matthews retail stores are models of their kind, and have the confidence of the particular housekeepers of the city.

THE CAMPBELL FLOUR MILLS CO., LTD.,

West Toronto - Peterborough

The Central Milling Co., which flourished in this city for a number of years, and which has on every occasion been counted one of our foremost industries, is no more. Within the past few weeks the Campbell Flour Mills Co., Ltd., of Toronto took over the business, plant and equipment of this large business, and added it to their own already giant mills, which will make the Campbell Milling Co., Ltd., rank among the greatest industries in "Manufacturing Canada."

THE GEO. MATTHEWS CO. PACKING HOUSE

The chop feeds of corn and oats made by these mills are used in all parts of America, as are the famous brands of flour which are the principal output known and used throughout America and the continent.

The plant of the Campbell Flour Mills Co., Limited, in West Toronto ranks in efficiency with the greatest milling companies of the world; the latest and most modern machinery has been installed to grind the natural grain products of Western Canada into their celebrated brands of flour, under the superintendence of experienced millers, all of whom are considered authorities in the milling business.

Mr. Archibald Campbell established this business many years ago, and is now assisted in its administration by his three sons. Mr. Campbell is a man of deep business qualifications and shrewdness, and has the benefit of being a practical man as well.

He has built up an enormous business, which continues to grow, through his honourable business methods.

The Peterborough branch has a capacity of four hundred barrels a day, a large portion of which is consumed in Ontario, proving that the quality of their goods is appreciated by the public in general.

Mr. J. W. Cornish manages the local mill, being an expert miller himself. Although Mr. Cornish only came to the city in this capacity last March, he is well known throughout Central Ontario as the proprietor of the Lakefield Milling and Elevator Co. He is a smart business man of worth and integrity.

EST. OF ALFRED McDONALD

One of the oldest establishments in Peterborough, and one which has contributed to a remarkable degree in the upbuilding of this city, is the saw and planing mill and box factory in George Street, which was started on a comparatively small scale by the late Alfred McDonald many years ago. The business was ably conducted by Mr. McDonald for many happy years, in that time having extended and increased.

At the time of his death, the business and plant passed into the hands of his administrators, Mr. John Crane, Mr. F. A. Peck, and Mr. John Duignan, who is the manager of the ousiness at the present time. These gentlemen are all well and favourably known in Peterborough and popular with all classes, possessing keen business propensities and sound judgment.

The premises and equipment are all modern in the appointments pertaining to a lumber industry. Evidence of their up-to-date facilities and methods of handling the products may be gathered from the immense volume of lumber, shingles, lath, boxes and shooks, sash, doors and blinds, which run into millions of feet yearly.

This firm ranks among the very foremost of our industries, and no doubt can for a moment be entertained as to the importance of this industry to the community, either in the past or in the future. The company gives employment to over one hundred of our citizens in the sawmill factory and more than double that number of men in the woods.

Too much cannot be said of Mr John Duignan, under whose direction the business has obtained to a high standard of proficiency. He is one of our most capable business men, and one who has won the respect and confidence of the Peterborough people. This company have timber holdings which will last ten or fifteen years at the present rate of cutting.

ESTATE OF A. McDONALD, PLANING MILL

J. M. GREENE MUSIC CO., Ltd.

The J. M. Greene Music Co., Ltd., is a popular resort for all the citizens of Peterborough who are partial to music, as it is at this great new store in Charlotte Street where the very best in musical instruments are obtained.

This firm has been in operation for some years, having been located formerly in the Grand Opera House block in George Street. The company is composed of Mr. R. C. Braund (president), J. T. Braund (vice-president), and Mr. J. M. Greene (secretary and general manager). These gentlemen might all be called Peterborough boys, as they have resided in our midst for many years and are all men of sterling worth to the community.

Last February the company moved into the handsome structure they now occupy, so great was the volume of business transacted under Mr. Greene's direction, who knows this business from Alpha to Omega, that the old stand was found to be inadequate. The interior of the store, as well as the exterior, is extremely handsome, and the stock comprises every known harmonious instrument, all of which are most tastefully displayed.

This company are exclusive agents for, and carry a large stock of, Buescher true tone band instruments, violins, guitars, banjos, phonographs, and records, fine strings and instruction books, New Scale Williams and Heintzman & Co. pianos, and the celebrated Davis sewing machines; in fact, everything in music and musical merchandise.

Mr. Greene, the well-known and popular manager, has lived in Peterborough for twenty years, having been previously engaged in the grocery business. He is a business man of high calibre, and has won many friends in both business and social circles.

JORDAN BROS

Beautiful flowers surely yet mysteriously cast a joy over every home not only through their fragrance, but through their beauty, which makes them the very chief factor in both interior and exterior decoration. By means of careful study on the part of men brought up in the art of floral culture, propagation, and other evolutionary movements, the prolific propensities of bulbs and plants have been treated so as to make each plant produce more actual blooms at a much reduced cost. Cut flowers today, therefore, are not a luxury that adorn the tables of the rich alone, for science has brought their cultivation to such a state of proficiency that they are easily within the reach of all.

One of our leading firms who specialize in cut flowers, floral designs, and funeral decorations, as well as plants for the home, and wedding, dinner party, and altar decorations, is Jordan Bros., 428 George Street, with greenhouses at 39 Argyle Street.

This old-established and reliable firm is composed of Mr. D. Jordan and Mr. S. Jordan, both gentlemen having years of experience in greenhouse work. They opened this business in Peterborough over fifteen years ago.

Part of their success is probably due to their having both been born in the Emerald Isle, the native land of some of our greatest Generals and soldiers.

These brothers are aggressive business men, who have met with repeated success. They employ six people to assist them in their work steadily and in this connection have done much towards Peterborough's growth and prosperity.

H. ZACKS

It is becoming more common every day, particularly with medical men, to localize their endeavors to certain parts of the human anatomy. In every day business it is becoming common for business men, more particularly those in the clothing business, to specialize and excel in one particular line of trade.

In years gone by the dry goods stores handled ready-to-wear clothing as a side line, but in recent years the demand has become so great, created through the perfection of manufacture and durability and cheapness, that a man, even with years of experience, finds himself confronted with a serious problem to keep pace with the time.

Mr. H. Zacks, dealer in ladies' and gentlemen"s clothing, is among the foremost of our merchants who handle ready-to-wear garments exclusively. This business was established three years ago at 442 George Street.

The proprietor has had years of experience in the clothing business, which places him in a unique position. He is thoroughly posted at all times on prevailing prices, and carries a large and beautiful stock of clothes of exclusive design and pattern. His long study of ruling conditions in this branch of commerce enables him to give his customers the very best in ready-to-wear clothes at the lowest cost.

J. W. CAREY

Every person should take just as much care in selecting a reliable dealer when about to purchase a pair of shoes as they would select a first-class tailor to make them a suit. The cause of all sore feet is from badly fitting and poorly made boots or shoes. And why pay for these kind of boots when you can get the best in the land at the same price if you will only patronize Mr. J. W. Carey, whose place of business is situated at 450 George Street, where he is a dealer in and manufacturer of high-class, good wearing and neatly made boots and shoes, both for ladies and gentlemen, which are made of the finest quality box calf, dongola and vici-kid.

In addition to keeping goods of his own manufacture in stock, Mr. Carey also makes shoes to order, in which branch of his business he is well patronized by all the leading people of Peterborough. He also stocks rubbers, overshoes, and sporting shoes.

Although Mr. Carey is a native of Barrie, Ontario, he is just the same as an old resident and business man of our city, and is held in high esteem in both business and social circles. He has been established here for the past thirty years, and is now giving employment to two expert men to assist him in his store. Repairing is also done on the premises, which has proved to be a great convenience to his many well satisfied customers.

WALTER M. ROEBUCK

For the past three years many of our people have been provided faithfully and honestly with good groceries by Mr. Walter Roebuck, who established himself in business at that time on the corner of Water and Smith Streets. This popular store is probably better known to the citizens of Peterborough as the Inverlea Grocery.

Mr. Roebuck is a native of Midland, Ontario, who spent several months about five years ago in the retail hardware business in Midland and Barrie on the road in connection with a large hardware house in Belleville, in which capacity he had ample opportunity to study the conditions of dealing with the public, which experience makes him an expert business man and a pleasant one with whom to deal.

His store and stock is all that could be desired—always clean and a prevailing air of wholesomeness unexcelled in any other store. The stock includes fancy groceries, provisions, patent medicines, confectionery, tinware, graniteware, paints and stationery, making a specialty of butter and eggs, and in addition many articles of household utility and necessity are to be found in abundance and of well varied quality to meet the demands of all purses. Although he has only resided in Peterborough for the past three years, he is already widely known and popular among all classes. He employs a number of assistants besides himself, who lend their services to the conduct of the business, which has been a success ever since its establishment.

W. BLACKWELL

A professional man of long residence in this city, and one who has been closely identified with the city's progress for the past twenty years, is Mr. W. Blackwell, architect, with offices at 372½ Water Street.

As a younger man, Mr. Blackwell was articled with Mr. Walter Strickland of Toronto, under whose instruction such men as Sanford Smith, Mr. Bird, Mr. Symons, and Mr. Band attained to fame as architects in Canada. Mr. Blackwell is a qualified architect of the first water. Many large public as well as business and residential buildings have been erected by him in Peterborough, all of which pay tribute to his ability. He has done considerable work for the Dominion Government in this locality in addition to having erected several fine edifices in Winnipeg and other large Canadian cities. Mr. Blackwell is a native of Peterborough and is well and favourably known throughout Central Ontario and many points in Eastern and Western Canada.

CURTIS BROS.

Peterborough, commonly known as the Electric City of Canada, can boast of a number of large industries which have located here within the past few years. But possibly one of the oldest manufacturing concerns in this city is that of Curtis Bros. on East Smith Street, which was originally established over fifty years ago by Mr Mark Curtis, the father of the three sons who are at present at the head of this enormous business manufacturing red and white brick and drain tiles.

The present firm consists of three brothers, Mr. Charles, A. E., and George Curtis, who are all experienced in their lines of work, who have had the business under their control for the past twenty-five years.

Some idea of the magnitude of this business may be seen in the fact that they give employment to sixty skilled men, and their two brickyards cover an area of about 25 acres of land, and no less than 11 teams are employed for delivery of the products of this mammoth firm. It may safely be said that two-thirds of the buildings of Peterborough and the farmhouses adjacent to the city are built of brick manufactured by Curtis Bros. The output of this plant amounts to about four million bricks each season, and about four hundred thousand drain pipes. Two thousand three hundred cords of wood is burnt each year in the manufacture of this firm's products. As well as doing such an enormous local business, this firm also make extensive shipments to Ottawa and Montreal and other outside points. A portable sawmill is conducted on the premises, where contracts will be taken for custom work. Messrs. Curtis Bros. are good boosters for Peterborough, having done much for the city's advancement.

A. E. CURTIS

J. J. TURNER & SONS

One of our oldest established and most reliable business houses in Peterborough is that of Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons

The business was established by Mr. J. J. Turner himself in 1874, and has increased and extended constantly till the present day, when it occupies an exalted position among Canadian manufactories.

Mr. Turner is a capable, enterprising and progressive business man, with the deepest of intellectual qualifications, and although he is getting on in years he still holds the reins and guides the business to ever increasing progress and prosperity. Born in England in 1850, he came to Canada as a young man and engaged in the business on a small scale, which was destined to become only the foundation of his fortune. He has always enjoyed the enviable reputation of being able to adapt himself to all business circumstances, and grasping available opportunities which present themselves to so many, and which are taken advantage of by so few people.

Mr. Turner has been a city councillor, and through his remarkable industry, which gives employment to over seventy people, has contributed much to the community's welfare and progression.

The firm of J. J. Turner & Sons is composed of Mr. J. J. Turner, founder of the business, and his four sons, viz., Mr. J. J. Turner, Jr., who was an alderman in the Peterborough Council for several years, was born in London, England, and Reginald H. Turner, Achilles W. Turner, and Weber F. T. Turner, all natives of Port Hope. The four Messrs. Turner all take an active interest in the business and assist their father in the direction of the business, and execute his wishes in further business extension.

Four travellers are constantly on the road selling the products of this industry, which are shipped the length and breadth of Canada, United States, England, and South Africa. The productions comprise nearly all kpown articles which can be made, from bunting and canvas, which form the greater part of their output. They also specialize in the making of electric and all illuminated signs, in addition to having a staff of expert signwriters employed for less expensive publicity. Tents, awnings, sails, flags, tarpaulins, coal and feed bags are made on the premises under the most careful supervision by employees expert in their particular line of work. The firm have recently executed a contract for six thousand Union Jack flags for the Ontario Government

In addition to the above articles, a large stock of contractors' and lumbermen's supplies is kept on hand, besides canoes, paddles, boats, etc., horse blankets, woollen rugs, waterproof horse and wagon covers, and other goods for which they are exclusive agents. Others than those who wish to purchase tents may be accommodated, as a large number of complete camping outfits are kept on hand for rent

We consider the firm of J. J. Turner & Sons among our foremost industries, and point to Mr. Turner in this issue in evidence of what may be accomplished by any man who will.

PETERBOROUGH MATTRESS CO.

In 1868 nearly half a century ago the Peterborough Mattress Co. came into evidence, in that time having developed a wonderful trade through strong business principles and ideals, and the quality of goods which are put into their products by the expert mattress makers which they employ.

This business, which now occupies the spacious structure at No. 7 East Hunter Street, was taken over four years ago by Mr. J. C. Ellis and J. H. Ellis, under whose capable administration the business continues to forge ahead upon the same solid basis. Ten employees are kept busy in this large factory in the manufacture of mattresses of all kinds, woven wire bed spring, pillows, etc., and in making over old mattresses so as to be as good as new, and renovating feathers.

Mr. Jas. C. Ellis, who bears the distinction of having been born in Manilla, is on the road during the major portion of his time, while Mr. Howard Ellis supersedes to the management in Mr. Ellis' absence. The partners are both men of worth to this community, who take a great interest in the affairs of the city. They are untiring in their efforts to extend their business, and are constantly winning new friends on their merits.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE
NEXT TO THE FACTORY OF J. J. TURNER & SONS

In the erection of the Grand Opera House, Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons, large manufacturers in Peterborough, filled a long-felt want by our enthusiastic playgoers. This theatre is operated by the Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons, who have been successful in getting this popular playhouse on A. J. Linall's best circuits. Taking this into consideration, also the handsomely decorated interior and large seating capacity, all of which go together in making it the very finest opera house between Toronto and Montreal.

The building was constructed five years ago. Since that time many thousands of people have seen the world's greatest tragedians in drama and comedians in musical farce. The house in itself is up-to-date in all its beautiful appointments; the equipment and accommodation facilities are unexcelled, every care being taken in the building of the house that an adequate supply of well-heated and spacious dressing-rooms be available for the use of the artistes.

The Grand Opera House has won a good name for the class of performances which it produces; and even greatest results in this connection are to be witnessed this coming season.

COUGHLIN'S MONUMENTAL WORKS

In these days of advanced art, the public are becoming more artistic in the decoration of their homes, realizing at last that a thing of beauty is a joy for ever. In consequence, many articles of lasting variety adorn the walls and mantels in our homes. Places where the refinement and greater respect of our people of today is more noticeable is in the many cemeteries throughout the country, where beautiful monuments are erected to mark the last resting-places of loved ones departed.

Each year the public are becoming better educated, and superior education, in consequence, brings with it respect for the dead; and everyone now has the ambition to erect a lasting tribute to the honour and glory of relatives departed.

Eighteen years ago Mr. John Coughlin, of Belleville, moved his business to Peterborough, and located at 214 Hunter Street, where a tremendous business is carried on in the manufacture of monuments, tablets, and memorials, of artistic and symmetrical design, from foreign and Canadian granites and American and Italian marble.

This business, which is now forty years old, employs twelve expert marble cutters in the Peterborough works, where the very newest electric and pneumatic power machines have been installed. This is the only monument factory, outside of Toronto, in Ontario. Mr. Coughlin's experience in the design of memorials, of which he is a master, places him in a splendid position to help his many patrons make selections. He executes the ideas of his customers with a remarkable accuracy, and from this branch of his work has been the recipient of many testimonials.

This firm is prepared to erect monuments in all parts of Ontario, including New Ontario. It is the largest plant in Central Ontario for the manufacture of granite and marble monuments.

Mr. Coughlin has become widely known throughout Ontario through execution of all orders which are filled with the greatest care and precision in both business and social circles, and is constantly making new friends.

PETERBOROUGH ICE CREAM COMPANY

Peterborough's newest industry is the Peterborough Ice Cream Co., which is only a few months old, having only been established on June 1st of this year, in connection with the Peterborough Creamery.

Although the industry is still in its infancy, a large and advancing business is being done. The people are all using a large quantity of ice cream each week of the summer, and judging from the first few weeks' business, it is this company's ice-cream that will be more generally used by the people of this city during the present summer months.

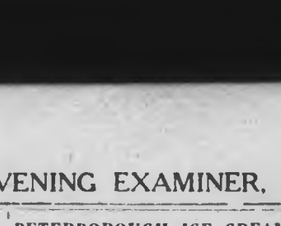
Separate factory rooms have been given this new company, where the delicious pure cream, ice-cream, is made under sanitary conditions, in modern freezers, by electricity. The demand has become so great for these products that special men have had to be engaged in order that its manufacture shall have undivided attention. The demand has no doubt been partly created through the reputation of the creamery, purity and cleanliness having always been the motto.

The Peterborough Ice Cream Co. is yet another success to be credited to Mr. G. A. Gillespie.

PETERBOROUGH MACHINE COMPANY

For many years this city was without adequate facilities for repair work in all kinds of machinery. Up to eight years ago, when the Peterborough Machine Co. opened their plant in George Street, repairs could be made in the city, but with no degree of certainty or quick despatch.

It is of frequent occurrence in large factories that a slight breakdown ties up the entire works, and if repairs cannot be promptly executed, it means loss of both time and money. Automobile and motor boat tourists must have facilities whereby they may negotiate quick repairs and get along on their journey.



This business was established by Mr. E. K. Wilson, who has been connected with and studied the intricacies of machinery for the past twenty-one years. They manufacture tools, dies, and do experimental work, in addition to the manufacture of automobile parts and general repair work.

Mr Wilson learned his trade with the Wm. Hamilton Co., for whom he worked for some years. He afterwards was engaged by a large firm in the United States, for whom he travelled in Europe for ten years, installing machinery of their make.

He is one of our most progressive citizens, equal to all occasions and circumstances. Employment is given to fifteen men, and in this respect he has done much for our community.

MR. H. CALCUTT

CALCUTT BREWING & MALTING CO'Y

With the connoisseur there is no beer, ale or porter that gives the same satisfaction as that brewed by the Calcutt Brewing and Malting Company. This brewery was established by Mr. Harry Calcutt, and in 1898 incorporation was secured from the Ontario Government.

The Brewery is located on Lake Street, and covers nearly three acres. The buildings are of stone and brick and are four storeys in height. There is a complete and thoroughly equipped ice plant and one of the most modern bottling works. The machinery throughout is of the most modern types, and only skilled labor is employed. The business done covers the whole county of Peterborough, and the absolute purity of the Calcutt output accounts for the large growth of this business, in the development of which one factor, unalterably fixed from the beginning to the present day, has been the absolute determination to produce as fine a porter, lager, or ale as it is possible to do.

The officers of this enterprising company are composed of Mr. H. Calcutt as president and Mr. H. G. Logan, secretary. Both these gentlemen are well and favourably known in this city and the surrounding country for their straightforward methods of transacting all dealings with their many patrons.

WM. HAMILTON CO., LTD.

The William Hamilton Company, Limited, is one of the oldest manufacturing plants in Peterborough, and ranks with the oldest established firms in Canada.

The business was founded in 1856 by the late Mr. William Hamilton. Started originally as a small jobbing shop, it has grown until at the present time it is shipping goods of its manufacture to all parts of Canada.

The Company's specialties are sawmill machinery and water wheels, and steel tank work. They make only heavy sawmill machinery for stationery mills, and a great deal of their machinery is used in the largest mills on the Pacific Coast for cutting the immense logs found there. They have also supplied a great deal of machinery for use in all the lumbering districts in Canada and Newfoundland. Their sawmill machinery enjoys such a good reputation even among their competitors that the firm have supplied considerable machinery to United States manufacturers, who have had contracts to equip sawmills in Canada.

They also build the well known Samson turbine water wheel, and have installed it in a great many plants. Locally the wheel is used by the Otonabee Power Company, the Peterborough Light and Power Company, and the Peterborough Water Commissioners. They are supplying the hydraulic equipment for the hydro-electric plant now being installed at Auburn by the Midland Construction Company, and have just completed one of the best running plants of its size in Canada for the Simcoe Railway and Power Company, from whom the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission are purchasing the electrical power they are furnishing to Midland and Penetanguishene.

They are also building spiral case wheels for high heads and are the only firm in Canada who design and build their own spiral case wheels. Their wheels of this type have given results fully equal to the best turned out by European builders, who have for a long time been considered the leading turbine manufacturers in the world.

This company, with their long experience are able to supply machinery of the highest grade, and that their product has always been of the best is fully proven by the length of time they have been able to sell it, and by the large number of satisfied customers who form a very important part of the company's assets.

ADAM HALL, LIMITED

In the past few years the city of Peterborough, which is known far and wide as the Electric City of Canada, has made most rapid progress, this being due, to a very large extent, to the great opportunities the city has offered to manufacturing concerns in the way of power and shipping facilities. But it is also due, in a large measure, to the progressive spirit put forth by some of our leading business men, who have at all times done their utmost for the city's advancement, and which has been a lasting benefit to this community.

One of the foremost of this type of men is Mr. Adam Hall, a native of Peterborough, and a well-known and highly respected business man of sterling integrity. Thirty-three years ago Mr. Hall established a retail house-furnishing business on George Street which, through his able administration was guided through a very successful career.

But in October, 1910, he gave that business up and established the large foundry, which is known as the Adam Hall, Limited, where they manufacture a very superior line of steel ranges and heaters, which are used principally by lumbermen, hotelmen, and railway contractors. In addition to this they also carry on a very extensive heating, plumbing, and metal work business, and altogether they give employment to forty-five skilled mechanics. The steel ranges and heaters are known far and wide on their merits, this firm shipping their products from coast to coast, and they are still building up a much larger business.

The officers of the firm are: Mr. Adam Hall, president and managing director; Mr. W. T. Hall, who is a son of the founder, has charge of the heating, plumbing, and metal work, and Mr. A. L. E. Hall, another son, has full charge of the foundry and steel range department. All these gentlemen are practical men, and are making a great success of this enterprise.

Mr. Adam Hall, the president of the company, has done a great deal for Peterborough. He served the people faithfully for four years in the City Council, and is a thoroughly public-spirited man. He is identified with several other large concerns, both in and out of the city, and is held in the highest esteem by all who know him.

QUAKER OATS COMPANY

The mills of the Quaker Oats Company are located in Peterborough on Hunter Street. This is one of the best equipped and most successful milling plants of like character in the world. Every facility which experience can suggest or capital supply is at the disposal of skilled labour in the various departments. The sanitary conditions surrounding the production of the famous Quaker oats, Quaker puffed rice, Quaker puffed wheat, Quaker flour, and feeds are ideal. Visitors to the mills, while interested in machinery and labour-saving devices employed, invariably become enthusiastic in their praise of the perfect order, cleanliness and system everywhere apparent. That is why Quaker oats and other equally famous products have won against the competition of the world. The reason is that this company go to extremes in cleanliness. The materials are chosen from the best grown on the continent. The national character then reflects the wholesomeness, the goodness, the excellence of the national cereal food- appetizing, satisfying Quaker Oats.

REAR VIEW OF THE PLANT OF THE QUAKER OATS COMPANY

The entire Peterborough plant comprises seven different buildings—two immense elevators for the storing of grain, a cleaning house, covering 4,000 square feet of ground, and seven storeys in height, a drying house occupying 4,500 square feet, and two warehouses, five storeys in height, one of them being 245 by 80 feet and the other 280 feet by 60 feet. The capacity of the plant is 1,000,000 barrels annually, the mill running full time. Five hundred people are employed in the mill, and seventeen travelling salesmen represent the Canadian branch and its eight sales offices.

This giant concern is incorporated under the laws of the State of New Jersey, with a capital of $9,000,000 preferred stock and $5,500,000 common stock, and is in the hands of men whose financial and business judgment is a matter of common knowledge throughout the industrial circles of the continent.

CANADA MALLEABLE AND STEEL RANGE MFG. CO.

Aout one year ago a branch of the Canada Malleable and Steel Range Manufacturing Company was opened for business in Peterborough, their local premises comprising handsome quarters and showrooms at 331 George Street. The company's head offices and factories are situated in Oshawa, Ontario, and claims the distinction of being one of the largest and oldest industrial concerns in Canada.

This firm manufactures the celebrated Canada's Pride, Canada's Ideal, and Kitchen Pride ranges, for coal, wood and gas. These ranges, which are constructed of only the very best material and sold from coast to coast in Canada, England, and Buenos Ayres, may be obtained on terms to suit the convenience of all customers, are sold only through their own stores, thereby saving the consumer the middleman's profit.

These ranges were placed on the market in response to a demand for a range combining the sterling qualities of malleable iron and steel construction, airtight, unbreakable, unwarpable, designs attractive, perfect cookers and bakers, economical, and all the latest modern improvements. These ranges are made of the best blue polished steel and malleable iron. Polished steel requires no blacklead-ing or japanning, and has the best surface and easiest to keep clean.

The occasional application of a cloth keeps it bright and retains all of its original blue lustre. All the doors, frames, tops, anchor plates, short centres, lids, dampers, etc., are made of malleable iron. Malleable iron will not warp, crack, or break like cast iron, and with ordinary care will last a lifetime. Watch for their exhibit on the Peterborough Exhibition Ground next month.

Mr J. Pethick, who has been with this company for many years, is the progressive local manager. In markable equipment of modern and up-to-date machinery which enables them to manufacture many varieties of woollens of the very highest grade and quality. Their products comprise many brands of celebrated worsteds, tweeds, beavers, ladies' dress goods, and ladies' cloakings, for which there is a keen and growing demand throughout the length and breadth of Canada. Employment is given to about two hundred woollen workers, which reflects the prominent part this institution has played in Peterborough's development.

Mr. Kendrey, who is a native of Oshawa, is one of our leading citizens, and has taken a keen interest in politics. He is highly respected throughout this neighborhood, and has the interests of his men very deeply at heart.

W. R. MORRIS

Peterborough is fortunate in having the services of Mr. W. R. Morris, chartered accountant, 375 Water Street, as he is the only chartered man in Peterborough. Mr. Morris graduated and received his certificate in 1903. During that year he came to this city from Smiths Falls, where he formerly resided

For many years his services had been retained by a large firm in that town, but seeing a golden opportunity in his own professional work in Peterborough, he readily availed himself of it, and at the present day he enjoys the satisfaction of former hard work. He has a very large clientele, among them being many of our largest interests, both in the mercantile and industrial pursuits.

Mr. M. E. Shaver is an assistant of real worth, having studied accounting for many years, and being a man of executive ability, he is thoroughly capable of following up and putting into operation the intricate systems which are the product of his employer's brain.

Mr. Morris has made unusual headway in his profession for so young a man. At the present time he cannot be more than thirty-five years of age, which is unusual in the profession of his choice.

NEW WAREHOUSE OF THE QUAKER OATS COMPANY

H. T. MILLARD

The people of Peterborough are fortunate in having Mr. H. T. Millard within their midst, whose place of business is located at 225 Hunter Street in "Metherall's Old Stand," where he conducts an up-to-date sporting goods store and bicycle livery. He is the agent for the celebrated Ivanhoe bicycles, and is dealer in all kinds of sporting goods such as bicycle sundries, skates, etc., etc., and he also does an extensive repairing business, including gasoline engines, typewriters repaired, lawn mowers sharpened, and guns repaired; but he makes a specialty in bicycle and automobile work. In this work the services of an expert are employed.

Mr. Millard is also scales adjuster for the County of Peterborough, an appointment which he certainly never would have received had he not been thorough in his work.

In his bicycle livery business, Mr Millard has always made it a rule to turn out nothing but the best, and when the rider leaves the store he may feel assured of safety so far as the bicycle is concerned.

Mr Millard is a most reliable business man in every way. He is a native of Montreal, and established this business about five years ago. Anyone requiring the services of Mr. Millard will do well by calling up phone 1256, where all inquiries will be attended to promptly.

DIAMOND WIRE MATTRESS COMPANY

The city of Peterborough has been for the past few years and is still becoming the manufacturing centre of Eastern Ontario, and this is due almost entirely to the splendid advantages and facilities which this city has and is now offering; and it is due also in a large measure to the progressiveness of our various business men, who are always ready to boost for their home town, and have made the city what it is to-day—a leader of industry. In the past few years this city has been fortunate in securing some very large and prosperous manufacturing concerns whose products are shipped from coast to coast, and some of them to all parts of the world.

One of the more recent industries to establish within our midst is the

MR. H. H. SMITH

Diamond Wire Mattress Company, which was opened for business in April of this present year, with offices and factory centrally located at 214 Hunter Street, whose affairs are under the able administration of one of our most up-to-date and progressive business men.

Mr. H. H. Smith, who is a thoroughly experienced man in his business, having spent seven years of his life in this work in Toronto before coming here. This firm are manufacturers of high grade bent springs, coimp rots, divans, folding beds, etc., and make a specialty in manufacture is connected with phone 716, and the of upholsterers' springs. Their office factory is one of the most up-to-date of its kind in this county. In addition to manufacturing the wire springs they also manufacture the woodwork for all their beds on the premises

One of the greatest features of this concern is the patent which Mr. Smith has just received, a vermin-proof metal binding, which is used in the manufacture of all their beds, and which is the best thing of its kind on this continent. They have built up a very large patronage all over the country and have great future prospects.

A MANIFESTO

Ottawa, Aug. 15.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier and R. L. Borden left Ottawa last night for Simcoe and London, where they will open their campaigns to-night. The Prime Minister, who will have with him Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, the new Minister of Marine and Fisheries, and Alex. Smith, former Liberal organizer for Ontario, left by the Grank Trunk at 6 o'clock and goes straight through to Simcoe, where Hon. Geo. P. Graham and Hon. Mackenzie King will join him.

Mr. Borden left at 11.20 by C.P.R. for Toronto. He will have Hon. J. J. Foy, Attorney-General of Ontario, and a number of Western Ontario members with him in London. Mr. Borden stays in Ontario, but Sir Wilfrid Laurier leaves Simcoe for Three Rivers, where he speaks on Thursday.

Mr. Borden yesterday issued a manifesto to the electors of Canada, in which he voiced the position of the party and replied to the Premier's pronouncement of a few days ago. It says in part:

"The objections to that compact are profound and abiding. They may be thus summarized:

"It shatters the ideal and the hope of reciprocity within the Empire. The President of the United States has avowed that the main purpose with which he sought the treaty was to prevent the consolidation of the British Empire.

"It reverses the policy of Canadian nationhood, which sought to bring together the provinces of Canada by intercourse and commerce over east and west lines of transportation; and it stultifies the unexampled sacrifices of a half century which the Canadian people have cheerfully made for that high purpose.

"It is a direct and serious menace to our international lines of water communication and to our ocean shipping as well as to our Canadian Atlantic ports that have been constructed and equipped at such enormous cost to the country.

"It abandons the policy of improved trade relations with the British people, our best customers, and centres our hopes on the American people, our strongest competitors in the markets of the world.

"It will destroy the distinctive character and reputation of our staple products, which will henceforth be merged in those of the United States, and will be known as American rather than Canadian products.

"It exposes our natural resources to the depredations of the gigantic trusts which have already secured control of those of the United States.

"It will encourage the export of our raw material and unfinished products for manufacture abroad instead of at home.

"It will establish conditions and relations from which it will be extremely difficult and even impossible to retreat, except with the consent of the United States or under terms dictated by her."

Will Oppose Pugsley.

St. John, N.B., Aug. 15.—The Conservative convention held here last night, nominated Dr. J. W. Daniel and R. W. Powell, M.P.P., to oppose Dr. Pugsley and James Lowell, M.P.P., respectively, for the City and County of St. John in the coming election.

Other Nominations.

Inverness, Que., Aug. 15.—At the Conservative convention for Megantic County yesterday afternoon, Dr. J. E. Beaudet of Thetford Mines was nominated.

Cookshire, Que., Aug. 15.—The Conservatives of this county yesterday nominated Fred. Dromwell.

Sherbrooke, Que., Aug. 15.—Frank McRae, who as a Conservative ran against Sir Wilfrid Laurier several years ago in Drummond, Arthabasca, was yesterday chosen as Liberal standard-bearer for this district.

Mr. Alex. Weatherston was nominated by East Northumberland Liberals.

Two Tragedies.

Grimsby, Aug. 15.—Two tragedies occurred in this district yesterday. The first was the burning of the fine barns of Homer Carpenter of Fruitland. A spark from a threshing engine set fire to the straw. The loss will be in the neighborhood of $5,000, partially covered with insurance.

The second accident of the day was when the little three-year-old daughter of Harry and Mrs. Taylor, living one mile south of Beamsville, fell into a cistern at noon yesterday and was drowned. The child stepped on to a rotted board covering the cistern.

Germany Protests.

Berlin, Aug. 15.—The Berliner Tageblatt protests against the United States admitting duty free, certain Canadian products prior to the ratification of the reciprocity treaty by Canada, as a direct infraction of the German-American trade agreement.

Morocco Again.

London, Aug 15.—Great Britain has ordered the Mediterranean fleet to Tetuan, Morocco. France has also ordered three first-class warships to Cass Blanca. The Moroccan question seems to be assuming an ugly phase.

It's Going to Be Hot Again.

Toronto, Aug. 15.—Get ready for another hot wave. Yesterday marked the beginning of it. At 8 o'clock yesterday morning the mercury was at 74. The maximum temperature on Sunday was 78. Thunderstorms occurred in the Maritime Provinces, Quebec and the Northwest, but Ontario remained dry. "The outlook is for more summer," says the observatory officials with a grin.

West and southwest winds will probably prevail for the next few days and with the atmospheric conditions as they are at present there will be some warm days in August.

Forest Fires In Nova Scotia.

Halifax, N.S., Aug. 15.—Tremendous forest fires are raging on the southwestern shore of Nova Scotia, from Port Clyde, Shelburne, to within eight miles of the Town of Liverpool. The fire has been burning for two or three days, but Sunday and Monday burst out with greater virulance. At Port Clyde twenty-five buildings were destroyed.

Whites and Chinese Fight.

Fresno, Cal., Aug. 15.—Two persons were killed, two mortally wounded, and others sustained less serious injuries Sunday night in a fight between whites and Chinese at Hanford, California, according to advices received here from the King's county sheriff.

CLIFFORD WELCOMED

Canadian Sharpshooter Who Won the King's Prize Gets an Enthusiastic Reception in Toronto

A CASE OF SILVER

Toronto, Aug. 15.—Private William J. Clifford of the 10th Royal Grenadiers, winner of the King's Prize and the Prince of Wales' Prize at Bisley, was accorded a typically Canadian welcome on his arrival home last night. Fully an hour before his train was due at North Toronto station, groups of people were beginning to congregate in Yonge street, and on the approaches to the station.

The train drew into the station at five minutes past eight, and Clifford alighted and shook hands with the principal officers present.

So soon as the greetings were over, Clifford was escorted to a decorated carriage which was drawn by men of his company, his wife, mother-in-law, and his son were accommodated in another decorated carriage, and then the procession was formed and marched to Queen's Park, via Yonge street, Queen street, and University avenue.

Crowds lined the entire route and they stood quietly until the carriage containing Clifford came by. Then they broke into storms of cheers.

On reaching the band stand in Queen's Park, Clifford was carried up the steps by members of his corps, and then Ald. McCausland opened the proceedings with a brief speech paying high tribute to the skill and training of the man who had won both the King's Prize and the Prince of Wales' Prize.

Mayor Geary, then addressed the crowd. Speaking was made a little difficult by the enthusiastic cheering of the people and by the band playing "The British Grenadiers," and "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," at frequent intervals.

During the presentation was made, Col. Stimson, who commanded the Canadian team at Bisley, gave a brief address. He said it was the first time on record, that one man had carried off both the King's Prize and the Prince of Wales' Prize. Clifford had competed with 1,158 entrants for the King's Prize, and had to shoot on three successive days under varying conditions.

Then followed the presentation. The city's gift consist of a handsome case of table silver, standing about four feet high. A plate on the case bears the following inscription: Presented by the Mayor and Council of the Corporation of Toronto to William J. Clifford, winner of the King's Prize and the Prince of Wales' Prize at Bisley.

In returning thanks for the gift and the reception given to him, Clifford, in a very brief speech, said that he had won with a moss rifle. His last few words were lost in the cheers of the crowd.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

The British Commons has decided not to adjourn until strike troubles are ended.

Mr. Hugh Guthrie denies the report that he has any intention of retiring from politics.

Three young people from Carleton Place were drowned in Mississippi Lake, their canoe capsizing while being towed behind a launch.

Rev. Hugh McGuire, of Chicago, reputed to be the premier Catholic educator of the American priesthood, is dead at Hamburg, Germany.

Fire at Chester Park, an amusement resort on the northern boundary of Cincinnati, destroyed many amusement building at a loss of $175,000.

The steam barge Mary Louise, loaded with a cargo of wooden boxes, was sunk near Brewer's Mills on the Rideau River, and is in bad shape. All the crew escaped.

Percy J. Potter, a Kingston mason, had a miraculous escape from death when he fell a distance of 25 feet off a scaffold at Odessa. He only suffered a severe shaking up.

The C.P.R. statement for the year ending June 30 shows a surplus of nearly twenty-eight million dollars. The usual quarterly dividend were declared by the director.

An important meeting was held at the old Methodist chapel at Hay Bay—which is described as the mother church of Methodism in Canada. It is to be taken over and preserved.

The crew of seventeen men of the French fishing schooner Leon E. Mihe, were brought into St. Pierre, Miq., on Sunday by the French bark Saint Brieuc and reported the loss of their ship.

Harvey Harbutt, a well-to-do farmer, aged about 40 years, who lived near Jennette's Creek, Kent County, committed suicide by throwing himself into the creek a mile above the iron bridge.

High Constable Green of Guelph arrested two men in Drayton, who had in their possession a complete set of burglars' tools and dynamite. They gave names of J. B. Austin and Bert Willard.

A Kingston youth, 18 years of age, tried to desert his 18-year-old bride by joining the Canadian navy. After he had passed as a single man, his wife appeared on the scene just in time to prevent his leaving.

A true bill charging murder in the first degree was returned by the grand jury of the Chesterfield (Va.) Circuit Court yesterday against Henry Clay Beattie, jr., of Richmond. He will be tried for his life as the alleged murderer of his wife.

CRISIS IS SERIOUS

Great Britain Facing a Bad Situation—Little Hope of Averting the Railway Strike

MORE DISTURBANCES

London, Aug. 15.—Last night there appeared little hope of averting a great railroad strike, which probably will be accompanied by a general lab or revolt that will have a tremendous effect on the trade of the United Kingdom.

At a meeting held in London yesterday by the managers of all railroads having terminals here it was resolved that the time had arrived to resist the men's encroachments. The managers contend that the men by striking will violate the agreement arrived at after the railway troubles of 1907 under which all disputes were to be referred to conciliation boards or an arbitrator. This agreement, they say was to run until 1914, unless either side gave notice of its termination which has not been done.

Yesterday's meeting was unanimous that the only way to terminate constant dislocation of business would be to take a firm stand and refuse all concessions to the men. One manager in an interview after the meeting expressed the fear that there will be grave troubles on all the railway systems of the country before the present week is ended. He said the railroads were preparing to run the best services they could under the circumstances, with the aid of police protection for their employes who are still willing to work.

Sectional strikes of railway men were declared last night at Manchester, Liverpool, Sheffield, and other places. Some of the railway lines already have given notice of their inability adequately to handle freight traffic.

Declared General Strike.

Liverpool, Aug. 15.—The strike committee at 12 o'clock last night declared a general strike of all transport workers, including the railway men, who, up to the last, had refused to go out. The strike will be effective on all the local steamboats and the Mersey ferries. Seven thousand lockers struck last night at Birkenhead.

During the day the lockout threatened by the shipowners became effective, and 30,000 men were refused employment until they decided to abide by the terms of a recent agreement.

There has been much disorder in both Liverpool and Birkenhead throughout the day, and the police were constantly in conflict with disorderly crowds. Last night the plateau in front of St. George's Hall, where the rioting started Sunday, became impassible because of the great crush of workmen. There were frequent stampedes, following the efforts of the police to disperse the crowds.

Glasgow Tramway Strike.

Glasgow, Aug. 15.—The tramway strike situation has improved perceptibly, and is likely to collapse altogether. A majority of the men have agreed to return to work and submit their dispute with the municipality to the arbitration of the Board of Trade.

Fired on Mob.

Liverpool, Aug. 15.—The troops were compelled to fire on a mob of strikers here early yesterday morning. Bayonet charges also were made upon the disorderly element.

Fatal Heat In Germany.

Berlin, Aug 15.—The hot wave has claimed many victims. Sunday was the hottest August 13 since the establishment of the weather bureau in 1848. The local observatory reported 99 degrees Fahrenheit in the shade but the shade temperature in the streets was about 97 degrees. At Frankforth-on-the-Main it was 95 degrees.

In this city 34 cases of sunstroke, four of them fatal, were reported. A cab-driver became insane because of the heat.

Several fires, due to spontaneous combustion, occurred. A number of forest fires broke out in the vicinity. A great conflagration is raging on the moors at the Belgo-German frontier. Soldiers of both countries are fighting the fire. Despite the intense heat railway traffic is enormously heavy owing to the fact that the schools will open to-morrow. It is estimated that 50,000 persons returned from Baltic and North Sea resorts on Sunday.

Put Out Fire With Feet.

Toronto, Aug. 15.—On Saturday night at 10 o'clock at Bathurst and Bloor streets there was some excitement when a Bathurst car caught fire with a crowd on board.

The passengers got off in a hurry, and it was found that the vestibule was badly damaged. The motorman and conductor stamped the flames out with their feet, and the car being disabled had to be pushed to the barns by another car.

Zionist Movement.

Basel, Switzerland, Aug. 15.—The Zionist Congress, believing that the retirement of David Dofinshu as president of the organization offered an opportunity for changes in the rules and statutes of the organization, decided yesterday that a college composed of seven members henceforth shall manage the Zionist movement.

McCurdy Has Accident.

The McCurdy accident left fifteen or twenty strands of high power electric wire to the Chicago Yacht Clubhouse dangling among 20,000 spectators in the free seats.

A heavy police guard immediately surrounded the wires and tried to drive the crowd away. Electricians declared that any of the wires carried sufficient power to cause death. McCurdy was not hurt.

Rene Simon in his monoplane sank to the waters outside the crib just off Harrison street. The hydroplane assisted him to arise and he got safely into the air. Again his motor refused to work and the monoplane dropped to the water again, this time overturning. Simon was uninjured and got free from the monoplane and held on to it. A motorboat went out for him.

Lee Hammond, an entrant in the water crib race, fell into the lake in the last lap. Two launches, which were patrolling the course, went out to his rescue.

Insurance For Durbar.

London, Eng., Aug. 15.—During the past week or two a number of insurances have been effected in Lloyd's in connection with the Coronation Durbar at Delhi.

The uncertainty of the political situation at home and abroad has led to fears that the Durbar may have to be abandoned altogether. Accordingly this risk underwriters in Lloyd's are issuing policies at 10gs. per cent., covering only the risk of abandonment. In a few instances policies have been issued at 30gs. per cent., covering against an abbreviation in the date, but very few insurers are willing to take this risk, as it is considered that by no means unlikely that royal health conditions may make a temporary postponement of the Durbar advisable.

To Tempt Death Again.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Aug. 15.—Captain Karl Lardie, Chesterfield, who last September successfully navigated the whirlpool rapids in the motor boat Ferro, arrived here yesterday to arrange another trip through the current in his [illegible] Niagara. He had a [illegible] and felt confident of success. Lardie's new boat has five [illegible] beam, and with the exception of two circular hatches is decked over. She measures four feet from the crown of her deck to the bottom of her keel, and is propelled by a 12 horse-power engine, with a speed of a little better than nine miles an hour. The after hatch is the [illegible] cockpit. When the Niagara starts on her perilous journey through the rapids her forward hatch will be [illegible] so sealed, while the after hatch will be fitted with a covered hood with an opening for the navigator's head and arms.

CHAPTER XXVIII

CAPITULATION

When Sheldon emerged from among the trees, he found Joan waiting at the compound gate, and he could not fail to see that she was visibly gladdened at the sight of him.

"I can't tell you how glad I am to see you," was her greeting. "What's become of Tudor? That last flutter of the automatic wasn't nice to listen to. Was it you or Tudor?"

"So you know all about it," he answered coolly. "Well, it was Tudor, but he was doing it left-handed. He's down with a hole in his shoulder." He looked at her keenly. "Disappointing, isn't it?" he drawled.

"How do you mean?"

"Why, that I didn't kill him."

"But I didn't want him killed just because he kissed me," she cried.

"Oh, he did kiss you," Sheldon retorted, in evident surprise. "I thought you said he hurt your arm."

"One could call it a kiss, though it was only on the end of the nose." She laughed at the recollection. "But I paid him back for that myself. I boxed his face for him. And he did hurt my arm. It's black and blue. Look at it."

She pulled up the loose sleeve of her blouse, and he saw the bruised imprints of two fingers.

Just then a gang of blacks came out from among the trees carrying the wounded man on a rough stretcher.

"Romantic, isn't it?" Sheldon sneered, following Joan's startled gaze. "And now I'll have to play surgeon and doctor him up. Funny, this twentieth century duelling. First you drill a hole in a man, and next you set about plugging the hole up."

They had stepped aside to let the stretcher pass, and Tudor, who had heard the remark, lifted himself up on the elbow of his sound arm and said with a defiant grin:

"If you'd got one of mine, you'd have had to plug with a dinner-plate."

"Oh, you wretch!" Joan cried. "You've been cutting your bullets."

"It was according to agreement," Tudor answered. "Everything went. We could have used dynamite if we wanted to."

"He's right," Sheldon assured her, as they swung in behind. "Any weapon was permissible. I lay in the grass where he couldn't see me, and bushwhacked him in truly noble fashion. That's what comes of having women on the plantation. And now it's antiseptics and drainage tubes, I suppose. It's a nasty mess, and I'll have to read up on it before I tackle the job."

"I don't see that it's my fault," she began. "I couldn't help it because he kissed me. I never dreamed he would attempt it."

"We didn't fight for that reason. But there isn't time to explain. If you'll get dressings and bandages ready, I'll look up 'gun-shot wounds' and see what's to be done."

"Is he bleeding seriously?" she asked.

"No; the bullet seems to have missed the important arteries. But that would have been a pickle."

"Then there's no need to bother about reading up," Joan said. "And I'm just dying to hear what it was all about. The Apostle is lying becalmed inside the point, and her boats are out towing. She'll be at anchor in five minutes and Doctor Welshmere is sure to be on board. So all we've got to do is to make Tudor comfortable. We'd better put him in your room under the mosquito-netting, and send a boat off to tell Dr. Welshmere to bring his instruments."

An hour afterward, Dr. Welshmere left the patient comfortable and attended to, and went down to the beach to go on board, promising to come back to dinner. Joan and Sheldon, standing on the verandah, watched him depart.

"I'll never have it in for the missionaries again since seeing them here in the Solomons," she said, seating herself in a steamer chair.

She looked at Sheldon and began to laugh.

"That's right," he said. "It's the way I feel, playing the fool and trying to murder a guest."

"But you haven't told me what it was all about."

"You," he answered shortly.

"Me? But you just said it wasn't."

"Oh, it wasn't the kiss." He walked over to the railing and leaned against it, facing her. "But it was about you all the same. You remember, I warned you long ago what would happen, when you wanted me to become a partner in Berande. Well, all the beach is gossiping about it; and Tudor persisted in repeating the gossip to me. So you see it won't do for you to stay on here under present conditions. It would be better if you went away."

"But I don't want to go away," she objected, with rueful countenance.

"A chaperon, then—"

"No, nor a chaperon."

"But you surely don't expect me to go around shooting every slanderer in Solomons that opens his mouth?" he demanded gloomily.

"No, nor that either," she answered with quick impulsiveness. "I'll tell you what we'll do. We'll get married and put a stop to it all.—There!"

He looked at her in amazement, and would have believed that she was making fun of him had it not been for the warm blood that suddenly suffused her cheeks.

"Do you mean that?" he asked unsteadily. "Why?"

"To put a stop to all the nasty gossip of the beach. That's a pretty good reason, isn't it?"

The temptation was strong enough and sudden enough to make him waver, but all the disgust came back to him that was his when he lay in the grass, fighting gnats and cursing adventure, and he answered:

"No; it is worse than no reason at all. I don't care to marry you as a matter of expediency—"

"You are the most ridiculous creature!" she broke in, with a flash of her old-time anger. "You talk love and marriage to me, very much against my wish, and go mooning around over the plantation week after week because you can't have me, and look at me when you think I'm not noticing and when all the time I'm wondering when you had your last square meal because of the hungry look in your eyes, and make eyes at my revolver belt hanging on a nail, and fight duels about me, and all the rest—and—and now, when I say I'll marry you, you do yourself the honour of refusing me."

"You can't make me any more ridiculous than I feel," he answered, rubbing the lump on his forehead reflectively. "And if this is the accepted romantic programme—a duel over a girl and the girl rushing into the arms of the winner—why, I shall not make a bigger ass of myself by going in for it."

"I thought you'd jump at it," she confessed, with a naivete he could not but question, for he thought he saw a roguish gleam in her eyes.

"My concept ion of love must differ from yours then," he said. "I should want a woman to marry me for love of me, and not out of romantic admiration because I was lucky enough to drill a hole in a man's shoulder with smokeless powder. I tell you I am disgusted with this adventure tomfoolery and rot. I don't like it. Tudor is a sample of the adventure-kind—picking a quarrel with me and behaving like a monkey, insisting on fighting with me—'to the death,' he said. It was like a penny dreadful."

She was biting her lip, and though her eyes were cool and level-looking as ever, the tell-tale angry red was in her cheeks.

"Of course, if you don't want to marry me—"

"But I do," he hastily interposed.

"Oh, you do—"

"But don't you see, little gril, I want you to love me," he hurried on. "Otherwise, it would be only half a marriage. I don't want you to marry me simply because by so doing a stop is put to the beach gossip, nor do I want you to marry me out of some foolish romantic notion. I shouldn't want you—that way."

"Oh, in that case," she said with assumed deliberateness, and he could have sworn to the roguish gleam, "in that case, since you are willing to consider my offer, let me make a few remarks. In the first place you needn't sneer at adventure when you are living it yourself, and you were certainly living it when I found you first, down with the fever on a lonely plantation with a couple of hundred wild cannibals thirsting for your life. Then I came along—"

"And what with your arriving in a gale," he broke in, "fresh from the wreck of your schooner, landing on the beach in a whale-boat full of picturesque Tahitian sailors, and marching into the bungalow with a Baden-Powell on your head, sea-boots on your feet, and a whacking big Colt's dangling on your hip—why, I am only too ready to admit that you were the quintessence of adventure."

"Very good," she cried exultantly. "It's mere simple arithmetic—the adding of your adventure and my adventure together. So, that's settled, and you needn't jeer at adventure any more. Next, I don't think there was anything romantic in Tudor's attempting to kiss me, nor anything like adventure in this absurd duel. But I do think, now, that it was romantic for you to fall in love with me. And finally, and it is adding romance to romance I think—I think I do love you, Dave—oh, Dave!"

The last was a sighing dove-cry as he caught her up in his arms and pressed her to him.

"But I don't love you because you played the fool to-day," she whispered on his shoulder. "White men shouldn't go around killing each other."

"Then why do you love me?" he questioned, enthralled after the manner of all lovers in the everlasting query that forever has remained unanswered.

"I don't know—just because I do, I guess. And that's all the satisfaction you gave me when we had the man-talk. But I have been loving you for weeks—during all the time you have been so deliciously and unobtrusively jealous of Tudor."

"Yes, yes, go on," he urged breathlessly, when she paused.

"I wondered when you'd break out, and because you didn't, I loved you all the more. You were like Dad and Von. You could hold yourself in check. You didn't make a fool of yourself."

"Not until to-day," he suggested.

"Yes, and I loved you for that, too. It was about time. I began to think you were never going to bring up the subject again. And now that I have offered myself you haven't even accepted."

With both hands on her shoulders he held her at arm's length from him and looked long into her eyes, no longer cool, but seemingly pervaded with a golden flush. The lids drooped and yet bravely did not droop as she returned his gaze. Then he fondly and solemnly drew her to him.

"And how about that hearth and saddle of your own?" he asked, a moment later.

"I well-nigh won to them. The grass house is my hearth, and the Martha my saddle, and—and look at all the trees I have planted, to say nothing of the sweet corn. And it's all your fault anyway. I might never have loved you if you hadn't put the idea into my head."

"There's the Nongasela coming in around the point with her boats out," Sheldon remarked irrelevantly. "And the Commissioner is on board. He's going down to San Cristoval to investigate that missionary killing. We're in luck I must say."

"I don't see where the luck comes in," she said dolefully. "We ought to have this evening all to ourselves just to talk things over. I've a thousand questions to ask you."

"And it wouldn't have been a man-talk either," she added.

"But my plan is better than that." He debated with himself a moment. "You see, the Commissioner is the one official in the islands who can give us a license. And—there's the luck of it—Dr. Welshmere is here to perform the ceremony. We'll get married this evening."

Joan recoiled from him in panic, tearing herself from his arms and going backward several steps. He could see that she was really frightened.

"I—I thought—" she stammered.

Then, slowly, the change came over her, and the blood flooded into her face in the same amazing blush he had seen once before that day. Her cool, level-looking eyes were no longer le el-looking nor cool, but warmly drooping and just unable to meet his, as she came toward him and nestled in the circle of his arms, saying softly, almost in a whisper:

"I am ready, Dave."

The Air Is Germ Laden

In the Springtime—Disease is Ready to Make You a Victim When the Blood is Thin

Rich, Red Blood is the Greatest of Germicides—You Can Get the Blood Right by Using

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD

When the blood is rich and red, when it is largely composed of red corpuscles, there is little chance for disease germs. They cannot thrive in the system which is filled with good blood.

But in the spring the blood is generally thin, weak and watery. It lacks the vitalizing red corpuscles and you become an easy prey to the germs of disease which seem to lurk everywhere at this time of year.

You can fortify yourself against the germs of disease by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This great restorative treatment forms new, red corpuscles in the blood, makes the blood rich, red and healthy.

Weakness, tired feelings, stomach derangements and disorders of the nervous system soon disappear when Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is used.

This medicine cures by the building-up process, and for this reason its benefits are lasting. Nearly everybody needs something in the spring to enrich the blood and tone up the system, and it would be impossible to get a more satisfactory spring tonic than Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

KING AND IRELAND

His Majesty Will Visit the Emerald Isle Again Next Spring

So pleased was King George with his recent visit to Ireland that he has already set a date for his next visit to the Emerald Isle. It will take place in the spring of next year. It is the King's present intention to spend about a fortnight in the Sister Isle, a week of this time being devoted to Dublin, and the remainder to brief visits to several of the larger provincial centres, such as Belfast, Waterford, and probably Cork. While the King is in the Irish capital a Court and a Levee will be held there, and it is his intention that these shall be annual ceremonies in the future. The lists of those anxious to appear at Courts or levees in London during the season grows longer every year, and it is a difficult problem to provide for the reception of all the applicants. However, King George has solved the difficulty by determining that for the future he will receive his Irish and Scottish subjects in their own capitals. It is expected that this will work very well and that it may be possible to reduce the number of London Courts each year from four to three.

THE GREATEST ASSET

Queen Helene of Italy Says Children Make the Nation

Queen Helene of Italy is always doing gracious things for children.

"I love them for themselves," she once said, "but at the same time they are the greatest asset a nation possesses." Her Majesty has just established a number of new creches, which are under her personal supervision. "I drop in any moment to see how my children are getting on," she tells those in charge. It is no uncommon thing to find Queen Helene with an ailing child on her lap. At frequent intervals she gives big open-air parties to poor children and makes her own family come and play with the guests.

THOUSANDS OF EMPTY HOUSES

Berlin Householders and Speculators Have Gone Too Far

In its desire to overshadow any other city in Europe in rapid development, the City of Berlin has greatly overreached itself, and houseowners and speculators who a year or two ago could not put up buildings fast enough, are now bitterly complaining because they have to pay taxes on their new built houses while they find it impossible to tenant them. There are at present more than 65,000 flats standing empty in Berlin and its suburbs, according to an official report just issued. Of these flats 23,987 are in Berlin itself and over 21,000 of them consist of two rooms and a kitchen intended for working families. The workingmen, however, are more and more adopting the system of building small houses for themselves outside the city limits, and are encouraged to this by building societies, railroads and trolley companies alike. If the movement continues to grow, in a few years all the "Hinterhauses," that is to say tenements in the rear of the palatial buildings that line the main streets of the city, and which are all visitors ever see, will be empty, and the well-to-do people will have to pay enormous rents to make up for the loss on the empty houses in their backyards.

Tommy's Joke

"On one hand," said the teacher, pointing a long finger to the map on the class-room wall, "we have the far-stretching country of Russia. On the other hand—what do we see on the other hand, Tommy?"

"Warts!" hazarded Tommy, hopeless with fright.

His Thirtieth Child

MESSAGE JOYFUL FOR THE SIN-SICK

The Master Speaketh Balm For Wounded Hearts—Comfort for Sorrowing.

August 13.—Pastor Russell of Brooklyn Tabernacle took for his text to-day the words of Jesus, "Let not your heart be troubled; ye believe in God, believe also in Me" (John xiv, 1).

As usual there was a good crowd and closest attention given throughout. The speaker said in part:—

The world does well to keep up a cheerful, outward demeanor—to "drive dull care away" to the best of its ability. Nevertheless, there is great force and weight to St. Paul's words to the effect that "the whole creation is groaning and travailing in pain together, waiting" for Messiah's Kingdom and its long-promised blessings to lift the curse of sin and death and to restore to mankind the smile of the Father's favor. Reason though they may that there is no personal God—that there is merely a blind god of nature, an evolutionary force, etc., nevertheless, deep down in the heart, men believe that there is a God. Almost unconsciously the mind attributes to Him Wisdom, Justice and Power—but little of Love or sympathy with humanity and its frailties.

This very intuitive knowledge of God is closely associated with many human troubles. As the root of nearly every trouble, perhaps deep below the surface, is sin — disobedience to recognized principles of righteousness, and a fearful looking for of retribution, and uncertainty as to what it will mean. This is true, not only of many Christians, but frequently true also of others who have made no profession, who have taken upon them no solemn vows of obedience.

This troubled heart condition does not always show upon the surface. Sometimes the troubled heart is in the theatre to try to forget its troubles. Sometimes its owner is immersed in sinful pleasure-seeking, in endeavor to drown some haunting grief. Sometimes relief is sought through intoxicating liquors or narcotics; sometimes in suicide. Sometimes the troubled one is on the stage. One cannot surely know that the merry laugh and witty joke and cheery song do not come from a troubled heart. We are sure that they do, in many instances, for frequently those who have been indulging in merriment have committed suicide a few minutes thereafter, leaving messages that their hearts had been severely burdened, while outwardly cheerful.

We have much sympathy with these sorrow-laden hearts. As a race we are walking through "the valley of the shadow of death," day by day. On every hand we have reminders of this—grief, disappointment, headache, heartache, etc. If we are measurably free from pain ourselves, yet have sympathy, we are pained in the interest of others. If none of our own dear ones has recently died, the great Enemy, Death, has laid hold upon the home of a neighbor, a brother, and he is bereaved and a reflex shadow falls upon our hearts; and further, the thought comes that our home may be invaded by the great Enemy which has already swallowed up twenty thousand millions of our race—and that by Divine permission, because we are sinners—and because sinners are unworthy of everlasting life.

In our troubles we, sooner or later, realize the lack of human sympathy or, at least, its impotency. Feeling our helplessness, we instinctively look to our Creator. In the hour of trouble remarkably few doubt the existence of God. As Jesus said, "Ye believe in God." But as we look to the Almighty for protection and consider Divine Justice and realize our own weaknesses and shortcomings, the heart of man fails. How could he think that the Omnipotent One would have interest in or care for such a worm of the dust as he feels himself to be? How could Divine Justice look with any sympathy upon the course of selfishness which he recognizes stretches out behind him in full view of the All-Seeing Eye?

"The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom," is the inspired Message. Surely many have this beginning of wisdom come to them at some period in their life's experience. But such a fear is the start to wisdom only when it leads the fearful one to greater carefulness of living and to a desire for the Heavenly Father's approval. If this be the leading of the fear, it is indeed the precursor of, the leader to, wisdom. As proper fear or reverence for the Almighty comes in, it acts as a restraint upon sin. It tends to make one more thoughtful, more careful, more wise, in seeking for a better way.

Jesus addressed the words of our text to Jews who, under the instruction of the Law given by Moses, had learned of Divine righteousness and the Divine requirements of all those who would come into harmony with Him. They believed in God. They recognized His Justice. They were desiring to be His people; they had heard of Jesus; they had traveled with Him as His disciples. In a general way they believed in Him. To a large degree they accepted Him as the promised Messiah and yet they found it difficult to exercise a fulness of faith. Probably there are many in this same attitude of mind to-day—some in this audience and some in the larger audience of millions which will be reached by this sermon in the public press. I would like to bear home upon the hearts of these the very Message that Jesus gave to those who heard His Voice: "Let not your heart be troubled, ye believe in God; believe also in Me."

Hear Him saying to us to-day, You already believe in the Creator and His Justice. You already have the reverential fear. You already desire to draw near to God. You have heard that He has sent His Son into the world. You have heard that this is a manifestation of His love and sympathy for you. You have heard that while you are condemned as imperfect, as criminals, as unworthy of eternal life, Divine provision has been made for your recovery through the Redeemer. As you believe in the Father's Justice which condemned you and which justly holds you at a distance from Him as unworthy of His favor, so now believe also in Me. Believe that the Father hath sent Me. Believe that it is His Love for you that prompted the sending. Believe that His Justice and Love will co-operate for your eternal comfort and blessing, if you will accept the Divine terms.

The Father knows your heart troubles. He wishes the burden to be there until you shall appreciate its weight—until you shall be ready to cry to Him that you are sin-sick, weary, troubled, and above all, hungering and thirsting for righteousness and desiring reconciliation to Him—the smile of His Face. He has not waited for all of this to take place before making provision for you. He has anticipated your needs, your longings, your necessities. He has already provided the Redeemer, who is Mighty to save. If Divine Justice is exacting to the last degree, believe that Divine Love, as represented in the Redeemer sent of God, is equally exhaustless, boundless — sufficient for all your needs. If you will accept of this, the Divine arrangement through Christ, your heart troubles may be at an end. You will still have troubles in the flesh, weaknesses, aches and pains, but your heart will be joyful and happy in a fellowship Divine with the Father, through the Son.

Ah! says one, I have heard of God and of Jesus and of the invitation to reconciliation, but I know not how to proceed. To whom shall I go? How can I gain a hearing in my case to obtain the blessed assurance, Thy sins are forgiven thee; go and sin no more. Which church shall I join? To what priest shall I confess?

First of all, my brother, or sister, allow me to rejoice with you that you have come into the condition where you are seeking and knocking for the opening of the storehouse of Divine favor, because "He that seeketh shall find and to him that knocketh it shall be opened." Continue, then, to seek and to knock and very soon the blessings will be yours. See first, whether or not you are seeking the proper blessing. You want forgiveness of sins that are past. You want the assurance of Divine love and care. You want the Heavenly Shepherd to take you for one of His sheep and look after your interests, both temporal and eternal. If so, good. You are seeking the very thing that God is pleased to give. Many are seeking something else—seeking to have some of self-will and some of God's will, some of sin and some of righteousness. They seek in vain until, in purity of heart, they seek that which God is willing to give.

All of God's gifts are by grace. None of us could claim them on the grounds of justice or merit. We cannot keep God's perfect Law, not because it is too exacting, but because we are fallen. We were born in sin, shapen in iniquity; in sin did our mothers conceive us. Be our wills ever so strong, our flesh is weak. The Divine arrangement of this Gospel Age is adapted to this very condition and is open for the honest-hearted, the sincere penitents, the ones fully determined for righteousness.

You need not come to any earthly priest but, as the Master said, go to the Father, in secret, in private. Go not in your own name or merit or worth, but in the merit of the Redeemer. Go Scripturally, claiming Him as your Advocate and appealing in His Name for the forgiveness provided by Divine mercy—to cover all the sins of the past and provide for all the imperfections unwillingly yours for the future—even to the end of the way. Coming thus, Jesus becomes your Priest, your Advocate with the Father. "We have an Advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ, the Righteous" (I. John ii, 1). "Let us come with courage to the Throne of grace that we may obtain mercy and find grace to help in every time of need" (Hebrews iv, 16).

What will you say to your Father as you present yourself in the name of Jesus, do you ask? In prayer tell Him that you are sick of sin and desirous of His righteousness, in every way. Tell Him of your appreciation of the glorious qualities of His Character and of your desire to be as much conformed to that Character as possible. Tell Him that you know you have nothing worthy of His consideration, except the merit of Jesus to be imputed to you, which will be the covering for your imperfection. Tell Him that you present your all thus justified by faith, that the merit of Christ may be imputed; that you desire to be a living sacrifice—to be faithful unto death to Him to His Message in the Bible and to all who are, with you, following in the good way to the Kingdom.

Those who have acted upon the above directions of the Lord's Word and who have thus been accepted of the Father and begotten of the Holy Spirit, are thenceforth New Creatures in Christ Jesus. To them "old things have passed away and all things have become new." Their souls are not troubled, because they have passed from death unto life, from Divine disfavor to Divine relationship, as sons of God—and "If children, then heirs, heirs of God and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ, if so be that we suffer with Him, that we may also be glorified together" (Romans viii, 17). Those who reach this blessed state are no longer heart-troubled. They will have troubles from the world, the flesh and the Adversary, but withal they have rejoicing—"The peace of God which passeth all understanding" ruling in their hearts.

But the end is not yet. The body has been separated from the will. The will has become identified with Christ and represents the New Creature which will not be perfected, and in its new body, until the groaning and travailing of the present time, as the Apostle teaches, the flesh must be considered and treated as an enemy because of its weakness, its fallen condition. A struggle, a battle, must go on continually to the end of the course. "Be thou faithful unto death and I will give thee a crown of life." The faithfulness of the New Creature, the will, will be judged by its loyalty to the Divine will and its strenuous endeavor to keep the body under—to be dead to the flesh and to the world and to be alive to the will of God. Every day should make us more alive as New Creatures and more dead as old creatures.

In this way we are, as the Apostle puts it, mortifying or deadening the flesh and being quickened or energized or made alive in spirit. This is the resurrection process for the New Creature—the death process for the old creature. It is a matter, as the Apostle explains, of rejoicing in tribulation, knowing that the trials and difficulties of the present time, under God's providence, are working out for the faithful a share in that "far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory" promised to the Elect, the Bride of Christ—a share in the Kingdom which shortly, through the power of the First Resurrection, will be exalted to glory and dominion over the earth. This is the spiritual Seed of Abraham which, during Messiah's Reign of a thousand years, is to bless Israel and, through Israel, all the families of the earth (Galatians iii, 29).

We cannot give this message to the world, even as Jesus could not do so. It is better for the world that their hearts should now be troubled to a considerable degree. Those who are in the most dangerous position, perhaps, are the ones who have no troubles in the present life and, therefore, no incentive to seek the great Burden-Bearer and fellowship with the Father through Him. Jesus said of such, Woe unto you that are rich! for ye have received your consolation. Woe unto you that are full! for ye shall hunger. Woe unto you that laugh now! for ye shall mourn and weep. Woe unto you when all men shall speak well of you! for so did their fathers to the false prophets" (Luke vi, 24-26).

At the present time we have 1,200,000,000 that in no sense of the word are called by the Lord, and therefore have had no opportunity of responding to that call. With the thought that has prevailed for centuries, that these uncalled millions are doomed to eternal torture, the hearts of God's people have been very sorely troubled, and infidelity has been very greatly assisted into a denial of everything pertaining to Christian faith. All agree that it would be very unreasonable for the Creator of those 1,200,000,000 to expose them to the danger of eternal torment, and not give them the slightest opportunity for hearing of the only terms of salvation from it.

But when we get the correct, the Scriptural view of the matter, we see that the penalty upon those 1,200,000,000 is, "Dying thou shalt die," and that in this particular they are not different from their fathers, who were under the same curse, or sentence of death—the Adamic condemnation.

We see from the Scriptures, too, that our Lord Jesus "by the grace of God, tasted death for every man"—to be testified in due time" (Hebrews ii, 9; I. Timothy ii, 6). Jesus, therefore, tasted death for all these 1,200,000,000 and for all their forefathers. He has given the ransom-price for their sins as well as for ours, the Church's, and as resultant blessing must come to them as well as to us.

The coming blessing is a rescue from the sin-and-death conditions in which they were born; an opportunity for rising out of those conditions of degradation, up, up, up, to full perfection of nature, and all that was lost through Adam's disobedience. This work of Divine Grace, we see, is to be accomplished for the world during the Messianic Age, when Christ and the Elect Church will constitute God's Kingdom, with power and great glory for the blessing of the world.

The Wall of the Victim.

"You can't get somthing for nothing," said the man who affects proverbs.

"No," answered the easy man; "I can't, but the people with whom I do business seem to manage it every now and then."

A Mean Dig.

Mrs. Bragg—I gave quite a nice little luncheon the other day. Didn't Mrs. Jenkins tell you?

Mrs. Sly—No.

Mrs. Bragg—Strange! Why, she was one of my guests.

Mrs. Sly—Yes; she told me that.

A Financier.

"Tommy, what did you do with that penny I gave you for taking your medicine?"

"I bought a bun with one halfpenny, ma, and I gave Jimmy the other one to drink the medicine for me."

Who Kissed Me?

A Series of Mysterious Happenings and the Explanation Thereof.

By Philip Questin

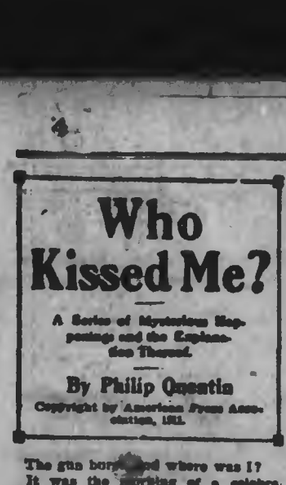
Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

The gun burst—and where was I?

It was the morning of a celebration, and I was ordered out with four guns of the battery to fire a national salute. I pulled the lanyard which fired the twentieth shot. There was an explosion, not especially in front of the gun, but all over, and I was lying on my back unconscious.

The next thing I knew I felt a soft bed under me, but I couldn't see anything. My eyes were bandaged. I remembered the salute and the explosion. It occurred to me that I had lost my eyesight. I asked if any one was in the room, and a man's voice answered. He told me that the surgeon attending me had ordered that no light should, for a few days at least, be permitted to enter my eyes. I was in a house where I had been carried after the accident. I was to be taken home that afternoon. The man assured me that I was not much hurt and my eyes would come out all right.

My informant went out soon after this, leaving me alone. I did not feel much pleased over what had happened—indeed, I was pretty low spirited. I lay brooding over the matter, and so sure that my sight had not been destroyed, when suddenly I felt two lips pressed against mine. It did not occur to me at once to reach for the person who kissed me, and when I did I was too late. A figure clad in woman's apparel slipped through my hands.



"I HEF THE STRENT CAR GIRL."

It was very nice of whoever had kissed me, even if it were taking an advantage of a blind man. It certainly turned the current of my thoughts into a pleasanter channel. I called, asking who was in the room, but received no answer. The person must have gone out very softly, for I could not hear the slightest sound. I lay wondering what woman had taken sufficient interest in me to kiss me. Was it from motives of pity or because she had been especially attracted to me? I was inclined to look at it as a freak of some mischievous chit to set me wondering. After all, it must have been something of a temptation for her to kiss me since she could do so without being found out.

I was removed to my home, but it was several weeks before I was permitted to go out with my eyes uncovered. I asked to be shown the house where I had been carried after the accident and found it an eminently respectable residence. I went in to thank whoever had received me and found an elderly lady who congratulated me upon my recovery.

Now, what I had really gone there for was to find out who kissed me. But how? Could I tell the lady that I had been surreptitiously kissed while defenseless in her house, thus giving away whoever had done the deed? I sat a few minutes talking with my benefactress, but thinking of the secret I wished to discover till I considered it about time to withdraw, disappointed at being no wiser than when I had come. I was a good deal of a boy then and not competent to push such a matter. I was nineteen. The lady who had succored me was past forty, and I was quite sure she had not been the kisser.

A year passed. One day I was riding in a street car when a young lady got in. When the conductor came round for her fare she opened her pocketbook and looked surprised at seeing no change there. She was about to get out of the car when I asked her to let me pay her fare for her. She consented with a very sweet smile, and I handed the conductor the money.

"Will you please give me your address that I may repay you?" she asked.

"To send a nickel would be more trouble than it is worth," I replied. "The matter is of no consequence, I assure you."

"You are very kind. I will accept the amount, trusting that I may some time have an opportunity to return the favor."

I should have liked to go on with the conversation, but considered that it would be presumptuous for me to do so. The girl made no further remark, so the conversation dropped. She got out before I did, and I should have been glad to join her, but would not for the world have taken advantage of so small a matter as lending her a nickel to force an acquaintance.

I had forgotten the episode when one day I received an envelope containing a theater ticket. It was not marked complimentary. It had evidently been purchased at the box office. I went there and asked the ticket seller if he could remember who bought it. He looked at it and said that he could not. I went away wondering who had favored me, but feeling sure that the person would turn up in time.

I went to the play hoping that I would have my curiosity satisfied before the evening was over, but I did not. I saw no one whom I suspected in the audience, and no one made himself or herself known to me. I had fancied that I might receive a pleasant surprise in seeing some old friend take a seat beside me who would turn out to be the donor of the ticket. The seat on either side of me was filled with persons I had never seen before. A young man sat on my right, a middle aged lady on my left. Each was with another person, but no one of either couple did I know or had even paid any attention to me. I went home mystified.

One evening I was putting on evening dress to go out when, slipping my hand into the right pocket of my dinner jacket, I felt a little oblong package. Withdrawing it, I took off the paper in which it was enrolled and found a pasteboard box with a jeweler's name and address on the cover. Opening the box and removing a layer of cotton, there on another layer glistened a gold scarf ring.

How did the box get into my pocket? I pondered over the matter with no success. Then I remembered that I had last worn the dinner jacket at the theater on the night I had used the mysterious ticket. It occurred to me that the young man sitting on my right could have slipped it into my pocket. But why should he have done so? He was a stranger to me and had manifested no interest in me during the evening. Indeed, he seemed to be entirely absorbed with his companion, a very pretty girl, I remembered.

The scarf ring was a plain band of gold with a peculiar setting of five jewels. In the center of a square was a diamond.

One day while visiting a picture gallery, passing from one room to another, I met the street car girl face to face. I had my scarf ring on, and her eyes fell upon it before they struck my face. She raised them and at once threw out the red signal. Bowing her head, she attempted to dive past me. But I had had enough of this mystery and sprang directly in front of her.

"You have returned the loan of a nickel," I said, "with a theater ticket, and you placed this scarf ring"—

"I did not."

"I mean a young man who sat in the next seat to me placed it there by your request."

"I wished to repay an obligation."

"You repaid it tenfold."

Then like an electric shock another inference struck me. I determined to risk all on a hazard.

"But you have given me something more delicious than these," I said, looking her in the eye. "When I was blindfolded"—

The blood in her cheeks that had partly subsided again flamed up, and she made another dive for freedom, but I headed her off. I knew she was the girl who had kissed me.

Well, it was all out, and I told her that nothing would satisfy me but a full statement of the case from the time of the bursting of that gun at the celebration that had suspended consciousness within me and enabled her to carry on this succession of surprises. She told me that I might call upon her and she would satisfy my curiosity. I made the call without any delay, and this is the story she gave me:

"The house to which you were carried was and is occupied by my aunt and uncle. I went there shortly after you were taken in and, seeing a crowd about the house, was in dread lest something had happened to some one of the family. My aunt told me of the explosion of the gun and your arrival. A doctor was then with you, washing out what had been blown into your eyes, and when he left the room he reported that you were in a more critical condition than afterward turned out to be the case.

"I volunteered to go in and look out for your needs, and my aunt, who is a very nervous woman, was quite willing to accept my services in your behalf. When I saw a young soldier lying there grievously injured looking so handsome"—

"Cut it out," I interrupted.

She continued her story, smiling—"I felt pity in my heart. Then it occurred to me to puzzle you with that kiss.

"When I met you in the street car I pretended I had no change that you might pay my fare. I knew where you lived and sent the theater ticket as a return for your favor. The young man who sat on your right was my brother and commissioned by me to drop the scarf ring into your pocket. There, you have my confession. The whole thing has been done for fun."

I concluded that a girl who would take all that trouble for fun might not be hard to win by the object of her amusement. I acted on this opinion and found it to be correct.

Lambs ranged at from $6.90 to $7.50; sheep, $3.50 to $4 per cwt.

Hogs.

H. P. Kennedy quoted $7.50 for hogs, f.o.b. cars at country points.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Aug. 14.—The cooler weather, coupled with a little better demand from the few buyers present, caused to-day's cattle market to be more active and slightly stronger in price. There is still demand from packers for supplies, as the effect of the cooler weather has not made itself felt in the way of much added demand from retailers as yet, and consequently there is very little buying from these sources.

Receipts of cattle at the West End Stock Yards to-day estimated at 740 head; northwest steers were 50c off, at $4.50 to $5; eastern steers steady, $5.35 to $5 for choice; good, $5.05 to $5.20, fair, $5.25 to $5.35; grass bulls for canning, $3.50 to $3.75.

Northwest cows and heifers were steady, with best at $4.75, and others at $4 to $4.50; eastern cows, best, were about 25c stronger, at $4.75 to $5 for best, $3.75 to $4 for good, and poor to medium at $3.75 to $3.25.

To-day's receipts of sheep estimated at 400; prices stronger, with old sheep selling at 4½c per pound, and lambs at 6c to 6¼c per pound, according to size.

Hogs receipts estimated at 1100, with prices steady. Selects (long run), at $7.50; heavy fats (short run), $6.50, and sows, $5.50.

Estimated receipts of calves, 250; prices firm, at $4 to $10 each, according to size.

New York Live Stock.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—Beeves—Receipts, 3439; steers, fat cows and fat bulls, strong, medium and common bulls, weak to 10c lower; thin cows, slow to lower; steers, $4.60 to $7.35; bulls, $3.75 to $4.85; cows, $1.50 to $5.

Calves—Receipts, 3700 head; market, steady; veals, $8.50 to $9.50; culls, $4 to $6; grassers and buttermilks, $3.50 to $4.50; common westerns, $4.25.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 7925 head; sheep, barely steady; lambs, ctive, but 25c lower; some, 35c lower; sheep, $3.25 to $4.25; culls, $1.50 to $2; lambs, $4.60 to $7.40; culls, $4 to $4.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 6934; market, higher at $7.60 to $8.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, Aug. 14.—Cattle—Receipts, 20,000; market strong to 10c higher. Beeves, $5 to $7.70; western steers, $4.10 to $6.40; stockers and feeders, $4.50 to $6.40; cows and heifers, $2.20 to $6.15; calves, $4.50 to $8.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 34,000; market 5c lower; light, $7.30 to $7.80; mixed, $7 to $7.75; heavy, $6.90 to $7.65; rough, $6.90 to $7.10; good to choice hogs, $7.10 to $7.70; pigs, $4.10 to $7.70; bulk of sales, $7.15 to $7.60.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 25,000; market strong; native, $2.50 to $4; western, $3 to $4; lambs, native, $4 to $7.25; western, $4.75 to $7.25.

In every way,
Who never is content to rest
Or waste a day,
May not succeed in getting high,
Men may not cheer when he goes by,
But it is sure—as sure as fate—
That he will fail
To ever have to mow the grass
Of any jail.

PURPOSES OF COMPANY

Canada Bread Company, Limited, has acquired as going concerns the plants and the businesses of the Bredin Bread Company, Limited, of Toronto; George Weston (The Model Bakery) of Toronto; H. C. Tomlin (Toronto Bakery) of Toronto; Stuarts, Limited, of Montreal, and W. J. Boyd of Winnipeg. In the case of Boyd the real property is excluded, but a parcel of land in the city of Winnipeg, about two acres in extent, is substituted. The first three companies have been in operation for almost thirty years, and the last two for close to twenty years. They have all grown from small beginnings till they are now among the largest in their respective fields in Canada. The combined output of the companies at present is, approximately, 600,000 loaves of bread per week. It is intended by extensions to the present plants and the erection or the acquisition of new plants, to forthwith increase the output of the Company to one million loaves per week, with other extensions to follow in the other large cities at a later date.

POSITION OF BONDS

For full particulars reference may be made to our prospectus, which is accompanied by a letter from Mr. Mark Bredin, the Vice-President and General Manager of the Company. We draw attention to the following points:—

1. The present $1,250,000 of 6 per cent. First Mortgage Sinking Fund Thirty-year Gold Bonds are secured by trust deeds to Guardian Trust Company, Limited, Toronto, constituting a first mortgage on all the property, real, personal or mixed, now owned or hereafter acquired by the Company, as more fully described in said trust deeds. In the trust deeds it is specially stipulated that of the $1,250,000 cash being placed in the treasury, the sum of $650,000 shall be held by the Trustee, to be used only in the redemption of bonds or in investment in additional plants and real estate, thus increasing the fixed assets under the mortgage. A Sinking Fund of 1 per cent. is operative from August 1, 1911.

2. The assets of the companies already taken over stand in excess of all liabilities, and without any allowance for good will, trade-marks, etc., at $941,422.70. There has also been placed in the treasury $1,066,221.00 of cash which, besides furnishing funds for the purchasing or construction of additional plants, will provide ample working capital.

3. The earnings of the present plants, as per certificate of Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co., after allowing for depreciation, amounted from April 30th, 1910, to April 30th, 1911, to $107,916.14, to which may be added $35,000, being interest at the rate of 3½ per cent. on $1,000,000 cash in the treasury pending its employment on extensions. It is estimated that, with the economies to be effected, the earnings on these plants will shortly amount to $180,000 a year, or nearly two and one-half times the bond interest.

4. With the extensions that it is proposed to effect forthwith, the company by the end of its first fiscal year should be in a position to show earnings of $260,000 a year, equal to three and one-half times the interest requirements on the bond issue, and with all the additional plants that will be provided with the cash now in the treasury the earnings should steadily gain to over $450,000 a year, or more than seven times the bond interest requirements.

5. The company, with its plants situated in the larger cities of the different Provinces of Canada, will be in an exceptionally favourable position to benefit by the marked economies that will be possible in manufacturing, and more especially in distribution, and all the time will be turning out a more uniform product under the most sanitary conditions.

6. The practical men who have made the different companies particularly successful will be identified with the management and direction of the new company. Mr. Mark Bredin, who is probably one of the most successful bread manufacturers in Canada, will occupy the position of Vice-President and General Manager, while the services of the heads of four of the different companies taken over and of an efficient representative of the fifth have been secured to the company.

SUBSCRIPTIONS

Subscriptions should be made on the form accompanying the prospectus, and are payable as follows:—

10 per cent. on par value on application and 88½ per cent. on par value on allotment.
98½ per cent.

OR

In installments as follows, in which case interest at the rate of 6 per cent. will be charged from date of allotment:—
10 per cent. on par value on application.
12½ per cent. on par value on allotment.
25 per cent. on par value on 1st Sept., 1911.
25 per cent. on par value on 1st Oct., 1911.
26 per cent. on par value on 1st Nov., 1911.
98½ per cent.

Upon final payment by the subscriber for all the Bonds allotted, Guardian Trust Company, Limited will deliver the Bonds, together with fully-paid-up shares of the Common Stock of the Company equivalent at par to 25 per cent. of the par value of bonds allotted.

Application will be made to list the Bonds and Common Stock on the Toronto Stock Exchange.

Copy of the trust mortgage and legal opinion of A. M. Stewart, and certificates of Price, Waterhouse & Co., and Canadian-American Appraisal Co. are open to inspection at the offices of Guardian Trust Company, Limited, Toronto.

Prospectus and application forms may be obtained from, and subscriptions should be forwarded to

RIFLE AND TOMAHAWK

Indian Family Preserve Story of Massacre in Which Hudson Bay Factor Fell a Prey

A rifle and tomahawk being presented to the Ontario Government, have an interesting story attached, which is related in a letter to an official of the T.N.O. Railway, on whose right-of-way the weapons were discovered. Says the writer, another official:

"Relative to the curios which I gave you on your recent trip over the Porcupine branch, namely the remains of an old Queen Anne's rifle, and an ancient Indian tomahawk, found at where our ballast pit and camp No. 3 are situated, would say that I have gathered the following information.

"On the west shore of Frederick house Lake there still remains a family of Indians named 'Buffalo,' the only survivors from the old Hudson Bay fort, which was once located where camp No. 3 now stands. The history of this fort, as handed down from generation to generation in their own crude manner, comes from this Indian family.

"Frederick Barber, a Hudson Bay factor, whom Frederickhouse Lake and Barber's Bay are called after, had his post or fort as above mentioned. He lived there for years surrounded by a small colony of Indians, who brought their furs to this post, and in return got all their supplies for their hunting season. Barber became progressive as far as getting fur is concerned, and consequently the Indians were living fairly well. The Indians got good prices for their furs, and encouragement brought them far east and west on hunting ground. It seems that they encroached on the hunting ground of the Abitibi Indians, and in the spring, following the year of the big fire, the Abitibi Indians in force crossed over on snowshoes to Frederickhouse Lake and by surprise, with jealousy foremost in their minds, and a thirst for blood, killed Frederick Barber and all the Indians possible. The 'Buffalo' family are the only ones who survived.

"The date of this war, or fight, is not known in this country, except that it was in the spring following the big fire. These poor ignorant Indians do not know what dates are, and time their dates from some memorable event, which possibly played havoc with them or their families.

"The Queen Anne rifle and tomahawk were found on the shore just above the water line. You will note the extreme length of the barrel of the gun Imagine the length of this gun when full length with the stock. History tells us that such guns were given to the Indians when they brought in to the Hudson Bay posts enough beaver furs, which when piled up on the floor, would reach as high as one of these guns."

EMERALD ISLE AND ITS HUMOR

Stories Gleaned From Irish Life—Honest Pat and the Glass of Whiskey

Although not always a wit, the average Irishman is usually a humorist—if unconsciously so at times. The story which Sir Robert Ball, the astronomer, tells of the jarvey who was sent to meet him at a railway station, and who ultimately apologised to Sir Robert for keeping him waiting, adding, as an excuse, that he had been told to look for a "distinguished-looking gentleman," is fairly familiar to most of us.

And Mr. Ramsay Colles, in his delightful book entitled "In Castle and Court House," which comprises his reminiscences of thirty years in Ireland, supplements this story with one or two others which illustrate the humor of the Man in the Street in the Emerald Isle.

"It is ten to one," says Mr. Colles, "that the first car-driver one strikes on visiting Ireland is as truly a born humorist as was Mark Twain. Sir George Moyers was fond of telling a good story about a jarvey who used to drive him to Glenageary at night. One cold night Sir George, having paid the fare, handed the jarvey a glass of whiskey, and on being given back the empty glass, said, 'Well, Pat, isn't that good whiskey?'

"'Begorra, yer honor,' said honest Pat, 'I forgot to taste it!'

"'Another jarvey, on being asked the same question, replied, 'Faith, it's made a new man of me, and shure, he's thirsty, too!' "

Another jarvey story concerns a callow youth who, having successfully qualified at one of the great military schools in England, was sent to Richmond Barracks, Dublin, to commence his career as a soldier. On arriving in that city he took an outside car and directed the driver to the barracks.

"Richmond Barracks, all right, Captain," said the jarvey, as he started on a trip for which the legal fare is sixpence, but for which a shilling is usually tendered.

"What is the fare?" asked the "Captain."

"Well, Colonel," said the driver again, in a tone of voice which precluded the idea of any attitude save that of profound respect for the exalted person he was driving, "the meanest of thim gives me half a crown."

There are a number of amusing stories, too, concerning other celebrities. One concerns W. E. H. Lecky, the great historian, who one day went into a second-hand bookshop kept by one Michael Hickie. "Lecky came into the shop with a volume he had picked off the improvised shelf outside, and asked: 'What do you want for that?' It was a shabby-looking copy of the Bible. Hickie pulled his beard meditatively and said, 'One shilling.'

"'It's not worth a shilling,' said the man, emphatically, 'I'll give you sixpence for it.'

"Upon this Hickie Awoke, and shouted 'Get out of my shop! Any man who says that the word of God is not worth a shilling won't stop here!' Hickie was not religious; he told me afterwards that he had mistaken Lecky for a clergyman!" "

"My friend, John Fergus O'Hea, the artist," says Mr. Colles, "told me a rather amusing story of Irving.

"When Irving paid his first visit to Ireland he was called upon by O'Hea, who wished to make some lightning sketches of the great actor. Having made a few thumbnail portraits, O'Hea said:

"'May I ask, Mr. Irving, if you can give me a photograph? It may assist me in completing these sketches.'

"'Certainly,' replied Mr. Irving, producing a couple of dozen photographs of himself; 'you can have which you like' O'Hea chose a photograph, and then, as he was taking leave, said, 'Will you add to your kindness, Mr. Irving, by signing this photograph?'

"'With pleasure,' said Irving; and taking up a pen he wrote across the foot of the photograph: 'To my very dear friend——' He paused, and, turning to O'Hea, asked in the charming manner which all lovers of Irving will recall with a sigh, 'What name did you say?' "—Tit-Bits.

THE CROWN PRINCE ALFONSO OF SPAIN

Much excitement has been caused by the hysterical grief displayed by the little Crown Prince over the loss of his mother, who is accompanying King Alfonso on his visit to England for the race week at Cowes. The little Prince is irreconcilable and has cried himself into a state of physical illness that has called for the attendance of the Court physician. It was thought that the Queen would have to be recalled in order to avert a severe attack of nervousness, but the hurried arrival of an old nurse saved the day and made secure the long-looked-for vacation for the Queen among her countrywomen.

SLAYS HIS WIFE.

Laborer Beat Woman to Death In Toronto.

Toronto, Aug. 15.—Because there was a can of beer and a bottle of whisky on his table at 254 Claremont street, but no fire in the stove and no supper ready for him when he arrived home at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, Edward Wilkie, 33 years of age, an American laborer, is in the cells at the Esther street station, charged with murder of his wife, whose body lies in the city morgue.

When Wilkie arrived home, he says he found his wife drunk and when he asked for his supper, she abused him. A quarrel ensued and the police came in to make peace. Later the quarrelling was resumed and about 11.30 last night, the woman was heard screaming for help. Policeman Smith (88) forced an entry and found Wilkie pinning his wife to the stairway by the throat. Blood was running from her nose and mouth.

The policeman separated them and the woman demanded that the husband be locked up and charged with assault. There was considerable discussion, and Smith was just about to leave with Wilkie when the woman collapsed. Dr. Webster of College street was called, but when he arrived life was extinct. Wilkie admitted to the police that he had struck his wife with his fists, but said that he had used no weapon. There are two daughters, 14 and 16 years of age.

DESERTING RAINBOW.

Cruiser's Men Tempted by High Pay In the West.

Ottawa, Aug. 15.—R. J. Lang, secretary of Naval Department, when seen regarding the statement that 46 men had deserted from the cruiser Rainbow on the Pacific coast, stated that these desertions had been going on ever since the cruiser went to Esquimalt station.

Higher pay elsewhere is given as the reason.

"It is not an uncommon thing for men to desert from warships on the Pacific coast, even in large numbers," said Mr. Lang.

"It has been done on imperial ships stationed there time and time again. You see, wages are high on the coast, and as the naval department is naturally unable to pay prevailing rate, the men desert and obtain work elsewhere at more money. I do not know off-hand the total number of men who have deserted from the Rainbow since she went to the Pacific coast, but would say that 45 or 50 was approximately correct."

Drowned While Bathing.

Barrie, Aug. 15.—Hezeaks Gray, an Englishman, 27 years of age, came to his death by drowning while bathing in Kempenfeldt Bay at Fisherman's Point on Sunday morning about 11 o'clock. Gray was accompanied by Dalton Dunsmore, a young lad 14 years of age, and a son of his employer, who, being familiar with the water in that vicinity, warned Gray against going out too far, as there are some deep holes around there. They had not been in the water long before young Dunsmore heard a splash and on looking around saw his companion struggling to reach the shore. Being unable to swim himself, Dunsmore called to some campers along the shore for help, but before assistance could reach him Gray had gone down for the last time. His body was afterwards recovered in about ten feet of water.

The young man's only relatives are an aged mother and a brother, who live in England. He had been employed ever since coming to Canada by W. H. Dunsmore, a farmer, living a short distance from Barrie on the Penetang road.

Plucky Italian.

Toronto, Aug. 15.—With the shreds of his right arm which had been torn away above the elbow hanging from his sleeve and the blood gushing from severed arteries, Joseph Steele, 26 years of age, an Italian employed at the Port Credit Brick Works, stepped up to his foreman and shamefacedly remarked that he was afraid he would have to quit work for a time. He was rushed to St. Michael's Hospital in A. W. Miles' motor ambulance, where it is thought that he will recover although very weak from loss of blood. His arm had been caught in the belting of some machinery at the plant.

Payment of Members.

London, Aug. 15.—By a vote of 96 to 128, the House of Commons yesterday passed a resolution appropriating $1,250,000 for the payment of members salaries for the coming year. This action was taken pursuant to the resolution passed Aug. 10, providing for an annual salary of $2,500 for each member of the House of Commons. This is a radical departure from the principle of gratuitous public service, which hitherto prevailed in the Commons.

Suspect Cholera Cases.

Ottawa, Aug. 15—The health branch of the Department of Agriculture has received advices from Grosse Isle to the effect that there are 37 cases of suspected Asiatic cholera on the incoming steamer, Lake Erie, and a large number of suspected smallpox cases on the German vessel Wittinland. Both vessels are now at Grosse Isle and will be held there till the medical officers of the department have an opportunity to investigate and report. Should the reports prove to be well founded, all the steerage passengers of both ships will be held in quarantine at Grosse Isle for an indefinite period.

Politics Hot in Spain.

Paris, Aug. 15.—Vague rumors of political troubles in Spain are afloat here. They cannot be confirmed and appear to be based chiefly on the absence of definite news to the contrary from Madrid, where the censorship of press despatches has been particularly strict since the mutiny on board the Spanish battleship Numancia.

A New Record.

Chicago, Aug. 15.—By flying the 296 miles from St. Louis to Chicago, and in an actual flying time of 5 hours 43 minutes, yesterday, Harry N Atwood of Boston believes he has set a pace which will result in his flight by aeroplane from St. Louis to New York and Boston.

LAURIER'S OPENER

Simcoe is En Fete in Honour of the Presence of the Premier Who Makes His First Speech of the Campaign To-night

BIG CROWD THERE

Special Wire to The Examiner.

SIMCOE, ONT., AUG. 15. — The weather cleared off about noon, and the outlook for the Laurier opening is good. His train arrived half an hour late, jammed to the doors by villagers who entered all along the line. In spite of the threatening weather this morning, the crowds poured into town in a continuous stream. The hotels are running at full capacity, and the streets are lined with rigs and automobiles. Simcoe is ablaze with decorations, causing much favourable comment.

SOLDIERS KILLED IN EXPLOSION

Examiner Special.

KARS, RUSSIA, AUG. 15.—Twelve soldiers were killed when the cannon with which demonstrations were being made, exploded. The officer in command later tried to kill himself because of the accident.

OUTPUT IS AWAY HIGHER

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, AUG. 15.—The Department of Agriculture report places Canada's output of wheat this year away above last year's.

WILL NOT VISIT INDIA

Special to The Examiner.

LONDON, AUG. 15.—According to an English paper, King George is not likely to attend the Delhi Durbar, owing to the famine which will follow the unprecedented dry weather in India.

RECIPROCITY IS A WINNER IN WESTERN PROVINCES

Mr. Frank Conroy Who Has Just Returned From a Long Trip Through the West Tells the Examiner of Some of His Observations--Little Chance for the Anti-Reciprocity Candidates.

Mr. Frank Conroy, of Peterborough, has returned from Edmonton, where he has been looking around and about. In an interview with an Examiner reporter, Mr. Conroy says that no country in the world that he reads about, is growing as rapidly and is as apparently prosperous, as Canada is from Manitoba to the Rocky Mountains. During the early spring and summer, Mr. Conroy has been in nearly every important town in the west, and says the growth is remarkable, even wonderful. Villages and towns are growing like mushrooms and everybody seems to appreciate the conditions of the country for money making. Railroad construction is going on in all directions and the farmer is satisfied as long as his transportation facilities are being improved. Everything in the west depends upon the farmer—in fact the same may be said of the east, as it is the annual crop that makes the wheels of industry revolve.

"How about reciprocity, Mr. Conroy?"

"I don't believe there will be a candidate elected opposed to reciprocity. Everyone is favourable to the agreement and there is no question of doubt that Laurier will be sustained."

"What about the crops, Mr. Conroy?"

"The crops as far as I could see were, commonly speaking, great—one of the finest harvests the west has ever seen. Grain men in Winnipeg predict a $300,000,000 crop. Just think of it. When this money gets scattered into our merchants' stores and permeates into our manufacturing establishments through increased orders for manufactured goods, what a prosperous time the working men and mechanics are going to have. The towns of the west are growing remarkably. The great agricultural district gives confidence to the English moneyloaner. Sewers, sidewalks and waterworks are being constructed everywhere. I am very enthusiastic over the prospects of the west. Then, so far as Ontario is concerned, so far as I can hear, there is more than an average crop, and of course, Ontario is the banner province of them all, and Peterborough is growing and developing as fast as any of the older towns in the older provinces.

"What do you think about the elections in Peterborough, Mr. Conroy?"

"Well, I only arrived home on Sunday, and I am not able to speak as definitely as some others, but if what I hear is any criterion of the result, I think Mr. Stratton is sure to be elected, as everybody I meet talks Stratton. He is the best man for Peterborough, and what helps Peterborough the most is what the people of Peterborough are particularly interested in more than they are in party.

Mr. Conroy ran across many Peterborough people in the west, including Col. E. B. Edwards, Fred Whitcroft, Hugh Hall, formerly of Smith, Bert Dolan, the Mullen brothers and many others.

ENTHUSIASTIC RALLY AT MR. STRATTON'S COMMITTEE ROOMS

Mr. Stratton and his friends are entering into the contest, with a spirit and energy developed by the brightest certainties of success. The campaign is going with the swing of victory. Support is coming even from previously opposing quarters in strong volume, and the prospects for a victorious campaign were never brighter in any previous election campaign.

There was a large attendance of enthusiastic workers at Mr. Stratton's committee rooms Saturday night, much organization work was done, and bright and confident addresses were made.

Mr. A. Macfarlane, the head of an important manufacturing industry, spoke of the encouraging nature of the campaign in the city and country. He pointed out the great progress Peterborough had made while Sir Wilfrid Laurier had been in power. He also dwelt on the help the government had been to the industry with which he was connected and said none of the working men in his employ had any reason to complain of the treatment by the government, which had always taken a deep concern in promoting the interests of every class of the community. It would be to the interests of Peterborough, to elect a supporter of a live government and be represented by a live representative, who had done more for th town and county of West Peterborough than all the membmbers of the opposition party put together. And all signs showed that Mr. Stratton was the man that West Peterborough wanted for a representative.

Mr. Stratton, followed, and first dealt with the progress of the campaign, and urged his friends to give attention to the matter of registration in order to bring the vote up to the highest possible figures and make his victory more assured.

In all the twenty-five years of his campaigning, he never had a more encouraging canvass at the opening of the fight. He had received, and was every day receiving, promises of support from unexpected quarters—men in large numbers who had previously opposed him, were pledging him their support. He found that the respectable and solid element of the electorate were giving him their support. The thinking workingmen were with him and the business men who consulted their best interests were also with him. Both had had such continuous prosperity under the government he supported, that they recognized that it would be a bad thing to vote and work to change either the government or the representative they had. He was delighted with the prospects of success, that were improving every day as the canvass progressed; and he was satisfied that at the close of the contest, Mr. Burnham would discover that he and his platform were not what the people of a live, progressive and level-headed riding wanted.

Mr. J. J. Hartley spoke briefly of the duty of the working men to consult their own best interests by supporting Mr. Stratton. He had been the best friend either the working man or any other man in the city had had. He had done more for the city and county, had procured more improvements and advantages, which they could only appreciate by pausing and reckoning them up, than any previous representative. The workingman and people of Peterborough would be blind to their own interests if they were led astray to vote for the shadow and to neglect the substance. There was not one man in the city or county who, deep down in his heart, did not think that Mr. Stratton would make the best representative.

Mr. J. F. Thornton, insisted that reciprocity would be a great benefit to all classes; it would equalize and steady prices and be to the advantage of both producer and consumer. The farmer would get what was coming to him, and the consumer would get his share of benefit from enlarged trade He could not at that time go into details, but with the agreement adopted, things would right themselves.

During the evening a good stroke of organization work was done, and the meeting adjourned full of encouragement and fight.

Mr. G. N. Gordon said that what pleased him most was the fact that the young men of Peterborough who are anxious to see it go ahead and prosper were the class that he found supporting Mr. Stratton in his canvass, and he was certain, as the campaign progressed, they would find that the majority of the young men in Peterborough were in support of a live candidate, such as they had in their committee rooms to-night. He said that since he took hold of the Secretaryship of the Organization he was surprised at the hearty co-operation in every direction. The young men seemed to appreciate what the older electorate knew, that there never had been a representative in West Peterborough, who had given the same thought, care and encouragement for the promotion of the welfare of Peterborough as had Mr. Stratton. Whether it was on the rivers, or on the lakes, or in the city, monuments were being built that would stand for ages, showing the thoughtfulness of the Member, in providing for the wants of his constituents. There never was a time in the history of the country that he knew, when everything was so prosperous. The farmers were prosperous. The working men were prosperous, the factories were all running full time, the wages were higher than they had ever been, and he felt satisfied that these things would all be appreciated on September 21st, when an opportunity was being given to the electors of West Peterborough to cast a vote. Mr. Gordon urged every Liberal to see that his name was on the Voters' Lists and that his friends were got out to register on the Registration Day.

ECZEMA AND SORE EYES

"My daughter suffered from inflamed eyelids and eczema on her head," writes Mr. H. W. Lear, Port Planford, Nfld. "The child was in a bad state and suffered greatly. The doctor failed to help her and on recommendation of a friend, I used Dr Chase's Ointment, which made a complete cure. With a grateful heart I write you this letter."

VERDICT RENDERED

Note Discovered Since Last Meeting of the Jurors Reveals the Fact That the Deceased Did the Deed

WITNESSES EXAMINED

The adjourned inquest in the Harrison case came to an abrupt finish last evening, at the town hall, when after only half-an-hour's deliberation the Jury returned with the following verdict:

"We, your jurors on the inquest on the body of Emma Victoria Harrison do agree that the deceased came to her death on the 21st day of July, 1911, at her home in North Monaghan, and that her death was caused by strychnine poisoning, in what manner and by whom the poison was administered is unknown to this jury."

During the period which elapsed since the last meeting in connection with the inquest, a note, with Mrs. Harrison's signature affixed, was discovered in a work box, which had been used by her, by little Bobby Harrison. It was very badly written, but the part which was made out by the Jury, read to the effect that she was tired of life, and would meet her husband in Heaven. She also asked him to take care of the children, telling at the same time what she intended doing.

A GREAT CROP

A letter, received by Mr. W. H. Dunsford, manager of the local branch of the Bank of Commerce, from Mr. R. H. Leary, of Peterborough, who is now in Saskatoon on a business trip, will be read with a good deal of satisfaction.

Mr. Leary says: "There is the prospect for the best crop this country has ever seen, and it would be an awful calamity should frost come before harvest, which should begin about Aug. 25th and 30th."

Team Of Runaway Horses Create A Pandemonium On Aylmer Street Saturday

Horses Scared at Passing Auto--Five Persons Injured as a Result, One of the Party so Seriously as to Warrant Her Removal to Hospital in Ambulance.

Injured.

Robert Jones, bad scalp wound and gash in side of neck.

Mrs. Robert Jones, severe shaking up, several minor injuries.

Mrs. Lelah Jones, aged lady, badly cut about head. Condition critical.

Miss Viola Jones, minor injuries.

Miss Ethel Jones, 6 years old, daughter of Mr. Robert Jones, right arm broken.

Time—4.30 Saturday afternoon.

Scene of accident—Aymler St.

Cause—Team of horses, frightened by a passing automobile, ran away.

Above are the names of those who were injured in the disastrous runaway, which took place in this city on Saturday afternoon. It is generally conceded by eye witnesses of the incident that it was one of the most sensational escapades on the part of a team of horses that has been seen in this city for some time, and that the havoc wrought was not greater, is little short of miraculous.

Mr. Jones, together with the other members of his family, had all but concluded their day's business in the city, and were making a call at the Peterborough cream ry on Aylmer street preparatory to leaving for their home, which is in Mount Pleasant. While in the building the horses became frightened at a passing auto and commenced to make off with their load of human freight. The driver, on hearing the commotion, rushed out of the building to stop the infuriated animals, but without success. He was badly injured in the attempt.

The horses proceeded down Aylmer street at a terrific rate and when opposite Dr. Greer's residence, the vehicle was overturned and the four occupants were precipitated onto the roadway, sustaining injuries as above described.

With the able assistance of several of the firemen, the unfortunate visitors were assisted into Dr. Greer's residence. Dr. Greer being away at the time, Doctors Marshall, Young and McCulloch were summoned and first aid to the injured was rendered.

The injuries sustained by Mrs. Lelah Jones were of such a serious nature as to warrant her immediate removal to the hospital. Belleghem's ambulance was summoned and she was removed to Nicholls hospital. It has since been learned that she is making satisfactory progress towards recovery and that no serious results are anticipated.

The rest of the injured were removed to their home in Mr. Brightman's auto.

The horses were captured near the C.P.R. station and together with what remained of the rig were held at the fire station until arrangements were made for their return to the owner.

To Mr. Richard Rourke belongs the credit of stopping the runaways who, in their mad career, were endangering the lives of pedestrians.

FORMER PETERBOROUGH BOY IS AMONG FIRE SUFFERERS

About the most cheerful loser in Oscoda is Joseph Turcott, whose foundry and machine shop, stock, fine residence recently completed and practically everything he had, went up in smoke. He has started to rebuild on the old site. The family is living in tents. The horse and buggy was saved—in fact the horse saved Mrs. Turcott, who drove across the bridge when the structure was afire, then through Au Sable and down the railroad track to safety. She rescued several little children who would undoubtedly have perished, as the mother was unable to take care of them all. From affluence to catch-as-catch-can existence is a mighty fall, but it is only the experience of many people in the two towns. The next morning after the fire Mr. Turcott told H. N. Loud he could furnish the Loud Company any casting then and there. Such is the spirit of the man—the spirit of many there.

The above article, which appeared in a recent issue of the Alpena Evening News, Michigan, refers to the terrible fire which resulted in that section. Mr. Joseph Turcott, whose name is mentioned as one of the losers, is a son of Mr. Francis Turcott, of this city. Two brothers and one sister reside here. They are, Thomas and Albert and Mrs. LaFonte.

CAVAN FARMERS FAVOUR ADOPTION OF RECIPROCITY

The Liberals of East Durham are very enthusiastic over the results of the recent nominations. They are particularly well pleased to know that Warden Kelly has been chosen to represent the riding in the coming election, and announce their intention of supporting him to a man. He is well and favourably known throughout the district, having for a number of years taken an active part in municipal affairs. His reputation and principle is looked upon, by all who know him as being irreproachable. The candidate is a strong advocate of reciprocity. He believes in working for the general welfare of the masses.

The farmers, as a whole, as far as this district is concerned, are unanimously in favour of the adoption of the pact, and are doing all in their power to bring about the desired result.

Mr and Mrs. William Finney and child of the 12th line, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Kennedy on Sunday.

Mr and Mrs. Matthew Gardiner of Midland, Mich., are visiting his brother, Mr. J. W. Gardiner, of Cavan, after an absence of twelve years.

Rev. Mr. Clarry of Cavan Circuit, has returned from a two-weeks' vacation.

Mr. Melville Carr leaves for the West on Wednesday.

Harvesting is pretty well under way in this section. Another couple of weeks of fine weather will see the major portion of it finished up. The crop is about the average.

Mr. and Mrs. John Boney have returned from an extended tour throughout the West.

GETTING READY FOR THE BIG CHEMONG REGATTA

At an enthusiastic meeting of the cottagers of Chemong Park, held at the Chemong Hotel on Saturday evening, arrangements were made for the annual regatta, which will be held this year on Thursday afternoon, Aug. 24th, and which promises to be the most successful in the history of the event. The 57th Band will be in attendance both afternoon and evening, providing music for the dance in the pavilion at night. A number of entries have already been received and a record attendance from outside points is expected, as all the other resorts will send large contingents to swell the crowd and entry list as well. There is a big prize list with capable committees in charge of the different events. The following officials and committees were selected on Saturday evening:

Starters—Messrs. V. Eastwood, L. M. Hayes, W. H. Hopwood.

Clerk of the Course—H. Wolff.

Park Committee—Messrs. W. J. O'Brien, J. Benziger, D. Deabecker, G. McCarter, Popham and Jobe.

City Committee—Messrs. J. Patty, C. Hill, F. L. Roy.

ANNUAL 99c WASH DRESS SALE

Once a year we get a factory lot of Wash Dresses that we sell for 99c. each. Last year's lot (about 200) was sold on a Thursday morning and the lot lasted just 2 hours. This year we put them on sale in the "Bargain Annex" to-morrow (Wednesday). A fair representation of the entire lot is shown in our centre window. Although there are many styles we have not room to display.

In addition to the samples we are offering about 50 from our regular stock, so as not to disappoint any one; of course first choice is best. Every dress is worth two, three and four times the sale price. Sharp at 8.15 they go on sale in the Annex, at only 99c each.

Positively no telephone orders accepted for these dresses.

MR. KERR'S MEETINGS

The Liberal Candidate in East Peterborough is Meeting With Great Encouragement Everywhere

LAKEFIELD, WARSAW

Mr. F. D. Kerr, Liberal candidate in East Peterborough, held an enthusiastic meeting of his supporters at Lakefield on Friday night last. The chair was occupied by Mr. Richardson of Norwood, secretary of the Peterborough Liberal Association. Mr. Kerr and Mr. George A. Gillespie, of Peterborough, delivered addresses upon the benefits of reciprocity, and there was displayed by those present, a determination to place Mr. Kerr at the head of the poll on September 21st next. Mr. Kerr's supporters are getting well organised in Lakefield village.

On Saturday evening a meeting for organization purposes in Mr. Kerr's interests was held at Warsaw. There was a splendid turnout of farmers from the township of Dummer, and the various divisions of the township were fully organized. The chair was occupied by Dr. Munro of Warsaw, and the meeting was addressed by the Liberal candidate, Mr Kerr, and Mr. Edward Hawthorne. Reciprocity appears to be a very popular issue in Dummer and the Liberal candidate is meeting with much encouragement in that township.

Mr. Kerr, accompanied by Mr. Edward Hawthorne, and Mr. Richardson of Norwood, are holding meetings at Haultain, Apsley, Lasswade and Clydale this week.

BOWLERS MAKING A SHOWING

The Peterborough rink of lawn bowlers, who are playing the annual tourney of the Ontario Bowling Association at Toronto, are meeting with success so far in the big event, in which 121 rinks are competing. The Peterborough rink, which is skipped by R. M. Waddell, in the preliminary of the Walker competition, defeated Skip F. J. Lightbourne's St. Simon's rink by 18 to 9 and in the first round triumphed over the Canadas quartette, captained by Dr. Paul. They are playing in the second round of the Walker competition to-day.

Three Bad Storms

LONDON, ONT., AUG. 15.—London was visited by three terrific electrical storms this morning, disorganising the fire alarm and doing other damage.

WAS FINED $10

A black-lister was fined $10.00 for being drunk yesterday. He pleaded that he only got a little wine and had not tasted liquor since put on the list.

Another man, charged with being drunk, was let go. It was his first time, and he was not on the list, so he was given a warning.

WEDDING BELLS

BEST—CHOWEN.

A quiet wedding was solemnized at George Street Methodist Church on Saturday morning, when Mr. Roy P. Best, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Best, and Miss Hazel E. Chowen were united in marriage by Rev. J. G. Brown.

The couple were unattended. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful presents.

SUTHERLAND—NICHOLSON.

A pretty wedding was solemnized on Friday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Nicholson, 108 Alcoin avenue, Toronto, when Miss Catherine Nicholson, second daughter of Mr. Alex. Nicholson, of Skaitiness, Scotland, was united in marriage to Mr. William Sutherland, eighth son of Mr. James Sutherland of the same place.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. R. M. Davidson, of St. Paul's. Mrs. Miller played the wedding march.

The bride was given away by Miss Kennedy, and was becomingly gowned in a white silk dress with hat to match.

The couple will take up their residence at 573 Bolivar street, this city.

IT IS FOR YOU.

To those who say that the Canadian Government Annuities Scheme is of benefit to those only who can take advantage of it while they are young, it may be pointed out that the benefit is equally as great for old people. The following example will illustrate this. A widow, 75 years of age, who had been spending a portion of her capital each year, which was deposited in the Post Office Savings Bank, as well as the interest, found to her horror that she had but $1,500 left. She was without relatives, and she suddenly realised what her fate would ultimately be if life were spared to her for a few years longer. But when the cloud was darkest, the silver lining appeared. A friend told her of the Canadian Government Annuities Scheme, and her feelings may be imagined when she was informed that her $1,500 would yield her for the remainder of her life, no matter how long she might live, an income of $225.90 a year. Isn't that better than the old-age pension scheme of pauperisation. With the pension system unthrift and extravagance are encouraged. With the annuities scheme there is thrift and the annuitant only receives what he has earned—12 per cent. interest on his premiums.

Full information concerning this great scheme may be had on application to the Superintendent of Canadian Government Anuities, Ottawa. Postage free.

CANADA'S WAY THE BEST.

The Examiner has received the following letter from Mr. Burnham, the Conservative candidate, and cheerfully gives it space and prominence by placing it upon the editorial page:

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—I must ask you to allow me the privilege of correcting a very serious error made by you in your otherwise fair-spirited criticism of my address to the electors. You say that while I declare in my address that I am in favour of State-pensions for the old, I seem to be unaware that annuities are in existence already. Let me say, in reply, that annuities and state-pensions are in no sense the same thing. Annuities must be paid for by the idividuals receiving the annuities, whereas state pensions are not insurance as annuities are, but are the providing wholly by the state of funds for the maintenance of old people in their old age. They are a perfect God-send to the poor and take the place of uncertain charity, and they leave people their own masters as well. People who can pay for annuities are not poor. The system I advocate is wholly new to Canada, and I hope to have a hand in bringing it into play notwithstading your gloomy forecast in that respect.

Yours, etc.,

J. H. Burnham.

The Examiner claims that it has made no error, let alone "a serious error" in pointing out that what Mr Burnham called for in his address —state pensions for the aged"—had already been met by the Dominion Government Annuities system. Both are the same in object, but radically differ in the means by which the object is attained. In this is the kernel of the matter. The tendencies and incidental results of, are far apart and opposite. The state aid pension scheme is pauperising and degrading in its tendencies. It encourages unthrift and extravagant and shiftless habits; it tends to pauperize its recipient; the pension is doled out like a charity; it breeds dependence.

The annuity under the Canadian system is paid as a due, received as a right. It is earned interest on an investment; it is the fruit of thrift of habits of saving. It begets independence of spirit; it encourages good and steady habits. The saving and deposit of amounts to constitute a capital to earn an annuity forbid extravagance and waste of income on trivilous pleasures, or on drink, or other vicious indulgence. Preparing for an annuity, under the Canadian system, makes the man so preparing for an annuity a good, useful citizen, with necessarily good habits, and it must, in course of time, make the citizenship of Canada thrifty, ready, independent in spirit and a strength, to the state.

The pensioner, under the State-pension system is, in effect, a parasite feeding upon the industry and earnings of others; he may have spent his days of strength—his earning days—in dissolute practices and have spent his earnings in riotous living; but he enjoys, at the expense of the industrious, as much advantage as if he had been sober, steady and thrifty.

On the contrary, the recipient of a Canadian Government annuity is a a producer of capital; he owes no part of it to others. He owes it to the practice of many of the component qualities of a good citizen, to his industry, economy, self-denial, independence of spirit, and sane, steady, sober habits. One is dependent, the other self-reliant.

A live, progressive government has provided, and has in operation, all that Mr. Burnham only dreams of.

While the end is the same, the infinitely superior and uplifting means provided by the Canadian system makes it, on the whole, infinitely better. Mr. Burnham says that "people that can pay for annuities are not poor"; but they would be poor if they did not practise the saving encouraged by the Canadian Annuities system. Of course the state, or country, must look after the destitute. Now, the wisest way is to prevent poverty. If the Canadian Annuity system were applied for a generation there would be no poor in old age, except from illness or misfortune, and the number of poor would be so reduced that their maintenance would represent a comparatively trifling burden.

THE NE TEMERE DECREE

Considerable agitation and indignation have arisen over what is known as the "Ne Temere" decree, the first words of a promulgation of a decree issued by the authorities of the Roman Catholic Church relating to the solemnization of matrimony. The words "ne temere," being the first words, give the distinguishing name to the promulgation and are like, of course, the rest of the document, Latin. It is claimed that this decree operates to the interference with the laws of the land, making invalid and subject to annulment marriages, especially those between Roman Catholics and Protestants, not celebrated in accordance with the canons of the church.

Church Synods, Conferences, Presbyteries and other organisations have dealt with the alleged undesirability of the decree. It has been taken up by secular brotherhoods and has been made, by party politicians an engine of attack on the Dominion Government, though the Dominion Government has no more authority to deal with it legislatively than a village council.

Mr. Geo. Taylor, M. P., on behalf of the Conservative Opposition, sought to embarass the Government by demanding that the Government enact legislation to make nugatory a decree that it was claimed interfered with the solemnization of matrimony and the validity of the marriage bond solemnized under legislative authority. Sir Alan Aylsworth, Minister of Justice, replied to the effect that the matter was ultra vires of the Dominion Parliament, and that it was a matter that fell within the legislative competence of the Provincial Governments, consequently the Dominion Parliament could take no action.

Though this opinion was given by one of the highest legal authorities in Canada, it was doubted, of course, by those whose object was to cast discredit upon the Liberal Government; yet it is an opinion, backed up and endorsed by the very highest authority on constitutional, or any other law, and the final court of appeal in matters of interpretation, the judical committee of the Privy Council of Great Britain. Here is the proof that Sir Alan Aylsworth was right, in regard to the question of jurisdiction regarding the "solemnization of marriage" in Canada.

Sir John Bournet, K.C.M.G., LL.D., D.C.L., in his "Manual of the Constitutional History of Canada" quotes this opinion of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council on this subject. In the edition of 1901, (Copp, Clark & Co., pp. 134 and 135, will be found the following:

"The same eminent authority (the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council) has, in another judgment, expressed the following opinion:

"That it must have foreseen that some of the classes of subjects assigned to the provincial legislatures unavoidably ran into and were embraced by some of the enumerated classes of subjects in section 91 (defining the powers of the Dominion Parliament); hence an endeavour appears to have been made to provide for cases of apparent conflict; and it would seem that with this object it was declared in the second branch of the 91st section "for greater certainty, but so as not to restrict the generality of the foregoing terms of this section' that (notwithstanding anything in the act) the exclusive authority of the Parliament of Canada should extend to all the classes of subjects enumerated in that section. Notwithstanding this endeavour to give pre-eminence to the Dominion Parliament in cases of a conflict of powers, it is obvious that in some cases where this apparent conflict exists, the legislature (the British Parliament) could not have intended that the powers exclusively assigned to the provincial legislature should be absorbed in those given to the Dominion Parliament. Take, as one instance, the subject of marriage and divorce, contained in the enumeration of subjects, in section 91. It is evident that solemnisation of marriage would come within this section; yet 'solemnisation of marriage in the province, is enumerated among the classes of subjects in section 92, (defining the exclusive legislative powers of the province), and NO one CAN DOUBT, notwithstanding the general language of section 91, THAT THIS SUBJECT (solemnization of marriage) IS STILL WITHIN THE EXCLUSIVE AUTHORITY OF THE LEGISLATURE OF THE PROVINCES.

The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in concluding this section of its judgment, says:

"It could not have intended that • • • the general power should override the parliamentary one • • • It could not have been the intention that a conflict should exist, and, in order to prevent such a result, the language of the two sections must be read together, and that of one interpreted, and, where necessary, modified by that of the other.

It is here shown, by an authority that none can contradict, that legislation regarding the solemnization of matrimony is under the EXCLUSIVE (meaning the sole) authority of the Provincial Legislatures.

If, therefore, Mr. Taylor, M.P., or any of the lesser or greater partizans of the Conservative party—Mr Sexsmith ,or Mr. Burnham, or any others who may regard the Ne Temere decree as a menace and a wrong against, and an outrage upon, Canadians, want to get legislative redress they are applying at the 'wrong shop' when they try to drag in and embarass the Dominion Government, which has no shadow of authority for dealing with it. They should apply to the Conservative Government of Sir James Whitney, which has full authority to right the wrong. Hon. J. J. Foy, Attorney-General, is the man to officially take action in the matter. Let the agitators proceed to bother Sir Jmes Whitney, or Mr. Foy, that is if they are honest in their expressed desire to have a great wrong righted —if they are not simply seeking to make political capital by demanding from the Dominion, corrective legislation, which it has no power to grant.

DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT.

LENGTHENING THE SEASON IN INTERESTS OF THE CONSUMER

The benefit of reciprocity to consumers on both sides of the line may be stated in four words: It lengthens the season.

We talk of early fruits and vegetables in this country as luxuries.

But why should tomatoes and strawberries be regarded as luxuries at one time of the year and necessaries at another?

Why should they be found at one time only on the rich man's table, and at another time on the table of rich and poor alike?

It is simply a question of price, and the price is largely due to the tariff.

The removal of tariff taxes tends to place rich and poor on the same level, and to give to all the benefit of variety in food, and of a free use of the enormous resources of the continent of North America.

Nature and Providence have spread a bountiful table for the inhabitants of North America.

Between the Peace River and the Gulf of Mexico there is an immense variety of climate and soil.

Hard wheat grows best in Saskatchewan and Manitoba; corn grows best in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Missouri, nd Kansas. Vegetables and fruits grow best at one season or the year in Ontario, at another season in the Middle States, at nother season in the Southern States.

It stands to reason that we shall all have more food and better food if we avail ourselves freely of all the varied and abundant food resources of North America.

The farmer's interest is not to starve the housekeeper, but to stimulate the consumption, and thus stimulate the production of food.

If vegetables and fruits are made more easily obtainable by the lengthening of the season, if they are eaten in greater variety and abundance, the demand, will iacrase, and the farmer will be benefitted.

The Canadian farmer and the American farmer are not natural enemies. They are allies and co-workers in the splendid work of supplying Canada and the United States with nourishing and wholesome food.

When, because of the season, the Canadian farmer cannot supply the demand, he is not such a dog-in-the-manger as to be angry because the American farmer is able to do so.

The breakfast cereal man emphasizes not only the peculiar merits of wheat, corn, and barley.

He aims to stimulate the consumption of grain, and he has been eminently successful.

The general effect of reciprocity in food will be to enrich the tables of all the people, and especially of the poor, all over Canada and the United States.

The poor man will get the food cheaper, but the producer will be far more than compensated by the increase in consumption, by the widening of the market, and by the lengthening of the season.

Restrictionists talk as if there were a fixed consumption of food, so that if the Canadian farmer sells a little more the American farmer will sell less, and vice versa.

This is absolutely wrong.

Reciprocity will make new business for the farmers on both sides of the line.

It will add variety to our bills of fare, make us all a better nourished people, increase the consumption of food, and so enlarge the farmers' market.

CANADIRN GENERAL SOCCER TEAM MEET THEIR WATERLOO AT RIVERSIDE

Baracas a Great Team but Score of 4---1 Greatly Exaggerated Their Superiority---Over 500 Enthusiasts Witnessed the Struggle Between the Two Crack Teams.

There were about 500 football enthusiasts gathered at Riverside Park on Saturday to witness the first of the semi-finals for the Ontario championship between the Baracas team of Toronto and the C. G. E., twice champions of the Midland League and present holders of the "R. R. Hall" cup, emblematic of the Championship of Peterborough County.

The visitors were a big, husky bunch, and took the eye at once, as a likely lot. They looked in the pink of condition. The locals trotted on to the field to the accompaniment of an encouraging cheer, but seemed lacking the weight and inches of their doughty opponents.

The C. G. E. won the toss. Baracas attacked from the kick-off, but did not become dangerous, and the Peterborough boys gradually found their feet. They had their share of the game and made several nice combined runs into the visitors' half of the field, but met a solid defence. Give-and-take was the order of the day, until the home team went off in line and some fine passing along the right wing resulted in Corless scoring with a fine oblique drive. First blood to the C. G. E. was greeted with a hurricane of whoops and yell that must have been heard in the South End. This reverse put the visitors on their mettle, and both teams set to work with renewed vigour. An exciting melee in the home penalty area resulted in Hull being visited with the extreme penalty of the law, for handling. It appeared to be an accidental foul, but, after consulting his book of rules, to the amusement of a section of the crowd Referee Fitzgerald awarded Baracas a penalty kick. Bingham hit the cross-bar with a furious shot, but the joy of the C. G. E. supporters was short lived, for in the ensuing mix-up one of the visitors banged the ball through, in spite of a valiant attempt to save on the part of Morarity, who deputized Jones in goal.

The C. G. E. buckled to now in great fashion and attacked vigorously for a while. Corless pressed the visitors' defence so hard that the left-back tripped him inside the fatal area. The resultant penalty kick was taken by George Miller, who missed the goal completely, much to his own disgust as well as that of the crowd. After this let-off the Baracas took up the running and did most of the pressing until half-time was called, with the score 1-1. Baracas had enjoyed rather the better of the later stages, but on re-commencing the homesters put good heart into their work, and simply swarmed round their opponents' goal, and were good value for a score.

With a little luck at this period they might have put the result beyond doubt, but in the last half hour of the game the superior weight and training of the Toronto boys told its tale, and when two runs up the field yielded as many goals the C. G. E. seemed to tire perceptibly. About five minutes from the end the visitors scored No. 4. This point was registered from what was, in the opinion of most people, an off-side position, but it was half-marked by the Referee and the locals retired beaten to the tune of 4-1.

The Baracas have a fine team, and must be awarded the palm upon their victory. They were fast and clever, and sound from stem to stern. The team that beats them will have some pretensions to class. Their crack centre-half, Bingham, was a shining light throughout, but by no means overshadowed Allan, of the C. G. E., who was the man of his team, and had no superior on the field. This Rufus-haired boy played a dandy game for the whole ninety minutes. Corless and E. Dawson were the best of the forwards and bothered the big backs of the Baracas more than a little, and the backs also played well. In goal, Morarity played well, and made many good saves, being in no wise blameworthy for the shots that beat him. W. Dawson and Pagett were both hurt and their play suffered in consequence. All round, it was a fine game and the dimensions of the crowd tend to show that football, in this town, can demand its share of patronage when the stuff served up is of the right class.

Mr. W. A. Milburn retired from the management of the Club a fortnight ago, and went west on Saturday morning. Mr. Billie Patterson has taken over the triple duties of Secretary-Treasurer-Manager, and certainly got through lots of work in a very creditable fashion, arguing well for his future reign.

The boys are confident of putting up a much harder fight when the teams meet again on Saturday, Aug. 19th, on the Rosedale ground, Toronto. They anticipate no repetition of Saturday's score, and may surprise the Baracas boys. A practise match will be held on Wednesday night, after which the team will be picked for the next game.

TRIVIAL THINGS OVERLOOKED

From Farm and Dairy.

There is an inherent tendency in mankind to go out after the things that loom up big in the mind's eye. In doing this the more trivial things which are as important in the long run are often passed by. We farmers show it too in the conduct of our farms. The bigger things in agriculture, such as horse raising, cattle raising, etc., receive our attention in preference to what are usually considered small side lines such as poultry. A loss of 50 hens by some disease is not looked upon as of very great importance, while a sick cow will claim our first attention, and we will put forth our very best efforts to secure her recovery.

Yet 50 hens, well cared for, will yield a larger profit than one cow. We farmers, somehow, do not seem to think so, and the result is a large falling off in the supply of poultry and eggs. Indeed, the situation in business has become acute. Not only has Canada given up exporting eggs, but does not produce enough to supply the home market. This should not be. It is possible to treble the products of eggs and poultry without in any way lessening the output from the other branches of the farm. Every farmer keeps poultry of some kind, and if the same attention were given to housing, feeding and caring for the poultry as is given to other branches of farming there would be a different story to tell.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

AN old aunt of ours paid a visit last week, and during her stay told me the following little story about my grandfather which I venture to think worth repeating.

Grandfather's oldest son was in his early youth a ship's carpenter.

His first long voyage was to Calcutta. He was gone several months, and when it came time for him to return, grandmother, of course, began to make all sorts of preparations. Days before the ship was due she began to plan how they would all go down to the wharf to meet John, and what they would have for dinner, and all the dear delicious details of his homecoming.

During this planning, grandfather was strangely unenthusiastic. "I wouldn't plan too much, mother," he would urge. "Suppose the ship is late, or something."

Grandmother thought all this very strange, for grandfather was n't usually a wet blanket; but she laid it to an unsuspected streak of superstition, and let it go at that.

When the ship was actually sighted in the harbour, grandfather acted even more strangely than before. He didn't want grandmother to lay out the "boiled shirt" she had ready for John, and he wouldn't even let her go to the wharf with him.

So he went alone to meet John. And by and by he came back in a carriage with John with his leg in a plaster cast and his young face all pale and wan and thin, and then, of course, the whole story came out.

It seemed that some months before, grandfather had gotten word from a vessel, which came direct from Calcutta, instead of by a roundabout route, as John's ship did, that John's was about to sail with all on board except the ship's carpenter, who had had some kind of an accident and had to be left behind. And John was the ship's carpenter.

As a matter of fact, the report had been correct about the accident, but not about John's being left behind. He had risen out of bed in the hospital the day the ship sailed and insisted on being taken home.

And all these months grandfather had been bearing that anxiety alone.

All the family asked him why he didn't tell them, and he just said, "What good would it have done? I would have told you if you could have helped; but you couldn't. It would have made you worry."

Do you know, that story is as inspiring to me as a story of real physical heroism.

I felt a new respect for and pride in my grandfather when I heard it. And more than that, a new shame for my own weakness in sharing anxieties.

That is why I have repeated this bit of family history to you.

"What good would it have done?" said grandfather, simply.

What good does it do for any of us to darken someone else's heart with the anxiety that is overshadowing our own?

Ruth Cameron

Information Wanted Regarding Friends Of Late Wm. Blanchard Who Was Killed In Montreal

The Chief of Police is in receipt of the following letter from the Dominion Bridge Co., Montreal, re the death of one Wm. Blanchard, who was killed in the works a short time ago, and who, it has been learned, was employed at the Hydraulic Lift Lock during the course of its construction, boarding at the Albion Hotel, East City, while here.

The police authorities have taken the necessary steps to acquire the information requested, but so far their efforts have been futile, other than the information stated. It is said that Blanchard came originally from Montreal, and when he was through at the Lift Lock returned to that city, where it was supposed that all his friends were, but according to this information he has, or had, friends in this vicinity.

Montreal, Aug. 11, 1911.

Chief of Police, Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,—On the 8th and 10th inst. I wired you as per copies of letters enclosed herewith, and understand from your reply of Aug. 8th, that Wm. Blanchard had no family or relatives in Peterborough. After wiring you, on the 8th, I ascertained, from an old notebook of the deceased, that at some time or other he lived at Westwood, Ont., and would be pleased if you would be willing to locate relatives for us. The only information that I have been able to gather, is, that he has a sister residing somewhere near Peterborough, on a farm, which belonged to Blanchard, and also that he had a young son about 6 years old, the mother being dead.

If you should be fortunate enough to locate this family, or any of his relatives, we would be pleased to have you advise them that we buried his body yesterday, and as there is some of his personal property, in the shape of some clothes, as well as some wages, we would be pleased to receive their instructions as to disposition.

Trusting that we have not caused you any inconvenience by our persistent wiring and writing you and hoping to receive some information shortly, which will be of some use to us.

Yours faithfully,
Dominion Bridge Co.
(J. W. Doyle)

GOOD SHOWING MADE IN MATRICULATION EXAMS

The following obtained full Junior Matriculation standing:

The following obtained partial Junior Matriculation standing:

Phyllis Denne, Willie Harstone, Harry Leahy, John Marsh, Robena Montgomery, Willie Stewart, Genevieve Sullivan.

Wallace Armstrong passed the examination for entrance into the School of Pharmacy.

Only three students from the local Collegiate, who tried the Junior Matriculation in whole or part, were unsuccessful. This is a very creditable record.

Two local boys, Harold Lees and Ernest Porter, who were not in attendance at the Collegiate, completed their Junior Matriculation examination:

Telephone Line To Kawartha Park Advantage To Business Men

The tenth of August was red-letter day at Kawartha Park, for, on that day she emerged from the isolation of the past and came into touch with the outside world.

The Bell Telephone Co. have been busily engaged for several days in constructing a branch line from the Burleigh road through to Kawartha Park Post Office, which has been connected on the toll line, running from Lakefield to Burleigh.

This is the last of a series of connections this Company has been making recently in the vicinity of Stoney Lake.

The writer, during a trip last summer, over the Trent Valley Canal failed to find any section of this great waterway so well supplied with telephone connection as Stoney Lake.

Commencing with Burleigh Falls as the principal points of the lake-ites, Mt. Julian, Viamede, Crowe's Landing, Gilchrist Bay, McCracken's Landing, South Beach, Young's Point, Kawartha Park and Juniper Island, are connected with Lakefield from which place conversations may be had with any point in Ontario, Quebec, or the United States.

Men of large business interests are beginning to realize more and more the desirability of being close to a telephone in case of emergency at headquarters.

Ever since the opening of the Post Office, two seasons ago, Kawartha Park has forged ahead, until now there is a good-sized settlement in and around Sandy Beach. In fact it is this excellent bathing ground and the never-failing supply of sparkling water at Kawartha spring that makes this section so popular.

Business men from Peterborough find it a great advantage to have their summer homes here as it is the first point of call on Saturday nights, and the last on Monday morning, thus leaving them as long as possible with their families and friends.

Victim Of Drink Needs Orrine

Drink cunningly destroys the will power, and while the drunkard wants to do what you tell him, he wants a thousand times more the drink that he craves. Medical treatment is necessary. Orrine destroys the desire for liquor, so that the drink will not be missed and restores the patient to health.

This remedy is thoroughly scientific and is so uniformly successful that it is sold with a guarantee to refund your money if after a trial it has not benefitted. Booklet free on request. The Orrine Company, Orrine Building, Washington, D.C. Sold in this city by Wm. Madill.

THE ANNUAL STONEY LAKE REGATTA YESTERDAY BROKE ALL RECORDS

A GRAND SUCCESS

JUNIPER ISLAND, STONEY LAKE, AUG. 14.—Never in the long history of the Stoney Lake Cottagers' Association has there been a more successful regatta than the one held under the auspices of the Association on the course off Juniper Island today. From every point of view the 1911 regatta must be set down as the banner one, all records, in point of attendance, being smashed, while the events have never been more warmly contested or marked by such a large entry list. The entire population of Stoney Lake seemed to have gathered at Juniper Island this afternoon, and the number was augmented by the two big excursions from Peterborough, and by the crowds who came up on the regular trips of the 'Stoney Lake' and 'Water Lily'. The Empress carried two hundred and fifty from Peterborough on an excursion under the auspices of the Catholic Foresters, while the 'Geneva' brought a big crowd under the auspices of Lansdowne Lodge, Sons of England The fact that it was Civic Holiday in Lakefield and Peterborough made possible the attendance of an unusually large number of visitors. They found plenty of amusement and entertainment, the arrival of the Stoney Lake colony, in every variety of craft being a feature that was worthy the trip alone. There were scores of launches of all sizes and speed, most of them with a "tail" of canoes and skiffs, white-winged sail boats, canoes row-boats, even the slow, but comfortable punt, were utilized in bringing the crowd to Juniper Island and this assemblage of the fleet was responsible for a vividly interesting picture.

The weather conditions could scarcely have been improved. A blue, cloudless sky overhead, the sparkling lake, ruffled by a light breeze from the south west, and brilliant sunshine streaming down over the scene, showed that the weatherman was determined to be an ally of the Association. The wind, while perhaps a little light for the skippers of the sailing craft, was voted ideal by the other contestants. The open sailing race provided a surprise in the defeat of Harold Knapman's 'Cygnet,' by the 'Independent,' owned by J. C. Eakins. The 'Independent,' a new boat on Stoney Lake, followed the 'Cygnet' home at the East End regatta last Wednesday, but the tables were turned to-day, when the Independent," well handled, won by a comfortable margin. It was a pretty race all the way. Complaint was made that the Independent had fouled a buoy, but Mr. Knapman did not protest the race. The 'Cygnet' had captured the event in the three preceding years, winning outright the cup presented by Hon. J. R. Stratton, who has again donated a similar trophy.

Today's events also saw a defeat for Jack Roxborough, in the canoe sailing. A loss for him is about as uncommon as for the 'Cygnet,' but the East End sailor lost to-day, having to be content with third, although he made a close bid for second, losing to Mr. Russell by a couple of feet. Rice won the race by a safe margin, being helped by Roxborough making a mistake in the course.

T. C. Elliott's boat captured the dinghy sailing event, after a nice race with Ross Cameron and L. Hall.

The Power Boat Races.

There was great interest in the motor boat races on account of the presence of so many speed marvels. One of the outsiders, in the person of Jack Robinson, of Toronto, succeeded in turning the trick in both the open and handicap events with his thirty-two horse-power flyer "Marco," which showed a grand burst of speed. There were six starters in the open race, O'Brien's "Idler," Goulais' "Sifroy," of Peterborough, "Beatrice," owned by J. H. Caster of Peterborough, Mr. Gordon's two Lakefield boats, and Mr. Boyd's boat from Bobcaygeon. The Beatrice, the 50 h.p. boat, was not in good working order, when the gun was fired and was left at the post. The race was easy for the Marco, who breezed home in 3.40 minutes in front of Mr. Boyd's boat. The Sifroy was third.

In the handicap event, in which the "Marco" started on scratch the Toronto boat had no trouble in cleaning up, winning handily with the Sifroy second and one of Gordon's boats third. The races were far the best motor boat races held at Stoney Lake.

The lengthy programme—there were twenty-eight events in all—was run off in splendid style, with no delays to mar the enjoyment. Every contest filled and nearly every race was a battle, there being some very close finishes in the boys' tandem, in fact it was a dead heat for first place, and in some of the other races the finish was almost equally as close. Space will not permit of an extended reference to each of the different events but the summary of the results will show the winners. Nearly all the aldies' event were very close, a feature being the ladies' tandem canoe, in which two little girls, Marjorie Eakins and Laura Willoughby won second place by a remarkable exhibition of paddling, giving the winners, the Misses Sanderson, a hard fight for the honours. The men's fours was a race all the way, in which there was a fight in nearly every event, and the programme was never more interesting, better contested, or better managed.

In the evening the presentation of prizes took place in the pavilion, this part of the programme being in charge of Messrs. Henderson and Acton, in the absence of Hon. J. R. Stratton, who was unable to be present. The different winners were received with enthusiastic applause, when they came to the front to receive their well-won prizes. Afterwards a most enjoyable dance was held for which delightful music was supplied by the orchestra of the Grand Opera House, Peterborough. The orchestra, which was also present on Saturday evening made a big hit with the crowd by its splendid playing. There was a large crowd in attendance on both occasions.

Campaign In Country Opened Last Night At Zion Hall, North Smith

Mr. Stratton opened his campaigning in the country in North Smith last night. Zion hall was well filled by an intelligent and interested audience. There is no mistaking the strength of reciprocity sentiment in Central Smith. The great mass of the farmers feel that wider trade opportunities will benefit them, and through them every interest of the community. Mr. Stratton was cordially welcomed and received many assurances of support from persons who had not previously favoured him with their support.

J. H. Garbutt, dep.-reeve of Smith occupied the chair and in his opening remarks spoke of the advantage of the reciprocity agreement. He felt that no farmer, who consulted his own interests, could afford to oppose the agreement; in fact, he believed that if the electors of West Peterborough consulted only the best interests of the riding, they would elect Mr. Stratton by acclamation; instead of that, we had a contest which could have only one result, the triumphant election of Mr. Stratton. Everybody knew him; he had been brought up in the county He had represented West Peterborough a long time and he believed that there was no better man in the riding to represent it. Everybody could freely approach him, always sure of a courteous reception and a prompt and business-like attention to whatever matter he wanted promoted in the interests of the riding. He was sure that the people could and would make no mistake in electing Mr. Stratton.

Mr. W. H. Meldrum, showed how the reciprocity agreement would benefit the farmer in relation to the better marketing and better prices for his many crops, wheat, oats, barley, etc It would give a new market and at prices that would make the large growing of such crops a profitable industry to the farmer, as it was before high United States' tariff shut Canadian farmers out of their nearest market. The other industries of the country would be also benefitted. The manufacturers, at first hostile, were coming to see the benefits of better trade and the milling industry, which he knew something about, were strongly in favour of it. (Applause.)

Mr. Stratton followed in a pretty full elaboration of the benefits of the trade agreement. He first cleared the ground for his remarks in dealing with the clap-trap crisis that had been raised to mislead the electorate, create prejudice and withdraw attention from the real issue of the campaign, which was the trade agreement. Those who raised these cries, could not show either the farmer or the working man anything but benefit and advantage from the trade agreement; so they attempted to becloud the real issue by raising the race and creed cry to deceive and mislead the electorate, the same cries, only set in a different key, that had been used every election for the past 25 years, and had been condemned by a broad-minded electorate who had decided to think for themselves.

Mr. Stratton then went on to deal with the trade agreement and showed how it would benefit the farmer, and through his prosperity, every class of the community. The farmer supplied, through the wealth derived from the sale of his produce, the annual crop of cash capital that kept the whole commercial and industrial world moving. The money provided by the farmer kept every wheel in every factory on the move. The farmer spent his money with the merchant, with merchants of all kinds; this created a demand for manufactured goods, and this in turn led to larger orders to the factories of all kinds to supply these goods. This meant more manufacturing activity, more employment and greater distribution of wages. It was a fact that the capital to operate manufacturing industries were obtained from the banks. Every manufacturing establishment in the country, every day in the year, had to go to the banks for money to keep the enterprise going. Where do the banks get their money? It all came from the farm in the first place. Therfore it was plain that the more the farmer prospered, the better his crops, the better his market and the better his prices, the better it was for all the great round of industries and interests depending upon capital for the setam to keep them in operation. In this regard, the reciprocity agreement would be a great benefit. Mr. Stratton then went on to show how it would help the farmer, by giving him a larger market and better prices. It would open a profitable market for crops that heretofore it had not been a paying thing thing to raise. One crop was the barley crop. It was known that the high duty that shut barley, out of the United States, had lost to the farmers of Canada a trade of ninety million dollars in barley alone. The reciprocity agreement took the duty off barley and opened a market of ninety millions, a market that would almost double the price of barley. It was argued that barley raising would impoverish the soil to the detriment of the dairying interests. Corn has been on the free list for years, and under the old reciprocity agreement, a farmer could buy two bushels of corn for the price of a bushel of barley. But the farmer could see these things for himself, could see the advantage. Mr. Stratton went on to deal with other advantages of more extended and facilitated trade that would come from the adoption of the trade agreement.

The meeting, which was a most successful one, closed with cheers for the King and the candidate, Mr. Stratton.

GRANDMOTHERS' BEAUTIFUL HAIR

Color and Beauty of the Hair Preserved with a Harmless Remedy Made from Sage.

Druggists everywhere comment on the fact that they are selling large quantities of sage for making old-fashioned "sage tea," such as was used by our grandmothers for promoting the growth of their hair, making it fluffy and beautiful and restoring its natural color.

The demand for this well-known herb for this purpose has been so great that one manufacturer has taken advantage of the fact and has placed on the market an ideal "sage tea," containing sulphur, a valuable remedy for dandruff and scalp rashes and irritations, called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy.

The manufacturers of this remedy authorize druggists to sell it under guarantee that the money will be refunded if it fails to do exactly as represented.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.

As Hon. George P. Graham put it at Brockville: "Did you ever hear of the removal of taxation on food increasing the cost of living?"

PRINTERS' ANNUAL PICNIC A SUCCESS

The Printers had a big time yesterday at their annual picnic to Idyl Wyld. The steamers Otonabee and Manita sailed shortly after eight from the Wolfe street wharf under a glorious sun. The large number in attendance was significant of the importance of the occasion, and all enjoyed themselves thoroughly.

The excitement started at the C. P. R. tracks before the boats pulled out. The "banana man" was going over the track with his push cart trying to get to the wharf, and the wheels stuck fast in a hole. The C.P.R. express was coming over the bridge, and the owner of the cart was in a clandorum. The jolly printers, who were near by, and are always ready to extend a helping hand, came forward and released the cart before the oncoming train had reached the crossing..

The weather man being very considerate, the sail was a pleasant one. Those well versed in dancing displayed their talent to a nicety, while others enjoyed the views of the beautiful river banks from the upper decks.

The music was ably rendered by Messrs. Gardner, Ellam and Tucker. Idyl Wyld was reached shortly before half past eleven.

After dinner had been participated in at Idyl Wyld the fun commenced. There was no time for melancholy. Oh, no! All were full of mirth, and many games were indulged in. Probably the most important item on the programme was the baseball match between the printers and the Mark street A. C., the latter beating the former by 9-7, thus winning a good box of cigars. There were many brilliant plays in the weeds and trees and the game was exciting all the way.

The drawing contest for the set of dishes presented by Hon. J. R. Stratton was won by Charlie Hardwick of the C.P.R. ticket office. The lucky number was 106.

Shortly after the conclusion of the sports the return trip was commenced and Peterborough was reached about nine o'clock.

Altogether the outing was the most successful and pleasant that the printers have yet had. The day was all that could be desired, the sail most pleasant, the large crowd good humoured, the sports keenly contested, and not the slightest accident to mar an ideal outing.

TIRED-OUT KIDNEYS

Kidney troubles are so frightfully common because the kidneys are so easily upset by overwork or excesses of eating and drinking. Cure is effected not by whipping them on to renewed effort, but by awakening the action of liver and bowels by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney Liver Pills. This rests the kidneys and makes them well. Backache and urinary disorders then disappear.

The Reciprocity agreement saves the people from those who would monopolize their food supply.

DIED IN WEST

Mr. Thos. H. Burnham Passes Away at Fort Francis

The death occurred at Fort Francis on Sunday night last of Mr. Thomas H. Burnham, son of Mr. Z Burnham, of Otonabee. The late Mr. Burnham succumbed to an attack of blood poisoning.

The news of the death of Mr. Burnham, who was popularly known in Peterborough, as Tommy Burnham, will be very sincerely felt by a wide circle of friends. For a number of years he was a valued member of the staff of the Peterborough Hardware Company, Limited, and his good nature and his quiet disposition, made him one of Peterborough's most popular young men. About six years ago, Mr. Burnham moved to Fort Francis, where he was connected with one of the leading hardware establishments of that district.

The deceased was 37 years of age and was unmarried. He leaves to mourn his demise, his father and mother, two brothers, Messrs. Mark of Otonabee and George C., of Toronto, and two sisters. The funeral will take place here but the particulars have not yet been arranged.

DON'T BE DECEIVED

Newbro's Herpicide is the Only Original Remedy

Just because you happen to see or hear the statement somewhere that another preparation will kill the dandruff germ, stop falling hair and is just as good as Herpicide, don't be fooled and allow yourself to be swindled out of your money.

You want Newbro's Herpicide, the remedy that has been tried, has stood the test of time and now has more satisfied users than all other similar preparations combined. An attempt to sell you something else is merely another effort to profit from the good name established by the only genuine dandruff germ destroyer.

Herpicide kills the dandruff germ, and prevents falling hair. It stops itching of the scalp almost instantly.

It may be claimed that other hair remedies will do the same things, but Herpicide really does them. Its years of success prove this.

Send 10c in postage or silver for sample and booklet to The Herpicide Co., Dept. R., Detroit, Mich.

All druggists sell Newbro's Herpicide. Applications may be obtained at good barber shops. McDermid & Jury are special Agents for Peterborough. One dollar size bottles are guaranteed.

HISTORIC HOUSE WILL BE SOLD

The historic house at Broadstairs, where Charles Dickens lived, was offered at auction at Messrs. Knight, Frank and Rutley's rooms, when, after a number of bids, which nearly reached the reserve price, the property was withdrawn at $30,000. The house, which is the property of Mr. Thomas Barry, will be reoffered at Broadstairs, when there will also be offered for sale the interesting furniture and contents of the house, including Frith's well known picture "Dolly Varden," which was painted for Charles Dickens, and a replica of which is in the South Kensington Museum. According to the catalogue, before Dickens lived at Bleak Hous, Wilkie Collins was in residence there. At that tim it was known as Fort House, and was renamed Bleak House by Dickens. Here he wrote some of his most famous works, and it is believed that "David Copperfield" was almost entirely written in the small study which faces the sea. Outside this study is a panel-painting by Miss Dickens, and various articles of furniture once belonging to the great novelist are still there.

Newsy Notes From Buckhorn

The fishing here is excellent, and several good catches have been made by the visitors. On Tuesday night, the guests all took part in a corn roast which was a real treat. Mr. and Mrs. Hahlen and Mrs. Huges rendered several duetts, which were well received. The corn was supplied by our most excellent host, Mr. Pearson.

On Wednesday night, some more of our sports and mirth loving friends got up a progressive euchre party with suitable prizes for the different winboobs prize, was carried off by Miss Cusk, the second by Mr. Holmes, of Peterborough, and the third and best prize of all, commonly known as the booby prize, was carried off by Miss Horsefield, also of Peterborough.

Thursday morning one of the best catches that has yet been made in these waters was brought in by Mr. Ira. J. Bothwell of Lindsay, who caught and landed a lunge weighing 23 1-2 lbs. Mr. Bothwell, being a little green at the fishing business, had to call on Mr. R. Long, with whose assistance he landed his prize. Mr. Bothwell feels very proud of his catch and boasts that it is the fisherman and not the bait, that catches the fish.

On Friday evening, the guests of the Windsor house, spent a very enjoyable evening, dancing and singing being the order of the evening, after which all sat down to a sumptuous repast.

The following are guests at the Windsor: Mr. and Mrs. Walden, Toronto; Mr and Mrs. Hughes, Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. (Dr.) Frederick, Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. Cottrell, Peterborough; Miss Lusk, Hamilton; Miss Jennie Wilson, Peterborough; Miss M. Maxwell, Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. R. Long, Peterborough; Mr. J. Bothwell, Lindsay; Mr. F. Elliott, Lindsay; Mrs. McKee, Peterborough; the Misses Horsefields, Peterborough; Mr. Frank Roberts, Peterborough.

A SUCCESSFUL BARN RAISING

Mr. Michael Perdue, of Ennismore, whose barn was burned on Tuesday, July 11, has, with his usual energy and optimism, completed building a new barn on the foundation of the old building.

The timbers for the new structure were hauled on Tuesday, July 18th, the raising work taking place on the following Tuesday, July 25th, and the barn was completed on Tuesday, August 1st. This quick work could not have been done without the kind co-operation of the neighbours residing in Ennismore and East Emily, who turned out in large numbers and spent two days hauling and placing the timbers in position.

The thanks of Mr Perdue are coming to those who, by their kindly assistance, were benefactors indeed, and they are cheerfully given in these columns.

It is interesting to note that four phases of this incident happened on successive Tuesdays and if this coincidence was not a factor in the happy termination of a great loss, it certainly did him no harm, as he is once again ready for a bounteous harvest and more than ever assured of the good will and generosity of a sympathetic circle of neighbours and acquaintances.

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Extension to Tunnel Bay Dock, Brockville, Ont.," will be received at this office until 4.00 P.M., on Monday, August 21st, 1911, for the construction of an extension to Tunnel Bay Dock at Brockville, County of Leeds, Ont.

Plans, specification and form of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained at this Department and at the office of J. G. Sing, Esq., Chief Engineer, Confederation Life Buildings, Toronto; and on application to the Postmaster at Brockville, Ont.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent (10 p.c.) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,
R. C. DESROCHERS,
Secretary.

OBITUARY

SUSAN JANE WHITE

After an illness of only one day's duration, Mrs. Susan Jane White, wife of Mr. John White, of 95 Aylmer street, passed away on the morning of Sunday last.

The deceased was the daughter of the late Andrew Dean Argue, and was born in Cobourg. She had, however, resided in Peterborough for a considerable period, and had throughout that time been an ardent member of St. Paul's Presbyterian church. The news of her sudden death came as a severe blow to all her relatives. The esteem in which she was held by her many friends was made manifest in the beautiful display of flowers.

In addition to her sorrowing husband she is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Jackson, of Hamilton, and Misses Mabel, Sybil and Vera at home, and one son, Percy. Her loss is also mourned by three sisters, Mrs. Hamilton, Toronto, Mrs Salisbury, of Cobourg, and Mrs. Love of Picton, and three brothers, Joseph of Toronto, William of Peterborough, and Andrew of Cobourg.

The funeral took place this afternoon from the family residence, 95 Aylmer street, to the Little Lake cemetery, at 2.30.

WILLIAM McCAMUS

A former well known and respected Peterborough citizen passed away at Lindsay yesterday in the person of Dr. William McCamus.

The deceased, who had passed his three score years and ten, was born in Cavan. For some few years he practised in Peterborough afterwards going to Bobcaygeon where he practised as a druggist. He had previous to his decease resided in Lindsay for some time.

He leaves to mourn his loss one son, William Edward of the Philippine Islands.

The funeral will take place at Bobcaygeon to-morrow afternoon.

CURATE OF ST. JOHN'S RECEIVES A CALL

Rev. Charles Carpenter of St. John's church has received a call to the rectorship of Santa Fe, the capital of New Mexico. The charge is a very important and remunerative one calling for advanced talents in its incumbent.

This call to Mr. Carpenter is a strong tribute to the capability of the reverend gentleman, whose admirable aggressive parish work and marked pulpit ability, has endeared him to the congregation of St. John's.

Mr. Carpenter has not announced his intention of accepting the position, and in event of his so doing, his loss will be deeply regretted, not only by the members of St. John's, but also by a large circle of friends and acquaintances, who look upon him as a gentleman of sterling worth and ability.

Sentence Passed on Local Barber

The sentence passed by all the particular men who have patronized Mr. Percy Lynch in his newly opened Tonsorial Parlour in rear of Payne's Drug Store, Simcoe St., is that the service is one of the finest to be had in these parts. The famous Stark system of Face Massage and Shampooing is used exclusively and therefore the shaving public receive full value for their money and more. Prompt attention and high class work at all times regardless of time or numbers is bringing this one time popular barber shop to the front fast. Mr. H. Hicks, a young local barber of well known ability, has been added to the staff and the increasing trade is assured there will be little waiting. Shop is thoroughly remodelled and fan cooled. One trial will convince you.

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY

The beautiful and impressive ceremony of reception and profession into the sisterhood of St. Joseph took place this morning at Mount St. Joseph, Right Rev. Bishop O'Connor being the officiating prelate, assisted by the Rev. Archdeacon Casey, Lindsay, and Rev. W. J. McColl, rector of St. Peter's Cathedral. The following priests were present in the sanctuary: Rev. E. J. Devine, S. J., Montreal; Rev. M. J. O'Brien, D.D., Sacred Heart Church, Peterborough; Rev. P. J. McGuire, Downeyville; Rev. Fr. Quilty, Douglas; Rev. P. J. Kelly, Norwood, Rev. D. B. Casey, Campbellford, Rev. J. J. Guiry, Lindsay; Rev. J. V. McAuley, Sacred Heart Church, Peterborough; Rev. J. J. O'Brien, and Rev J. J. McCarthy, St. Peter's Cathedral.

At 9 o'clock there was a procession of the clergy from the main building of the convent to the chapel of the Sacred Heart, headed by Rev. Fr. Kelly as crossbearer. Arrived in the sanctuary, the Mass of reception was said by his Lordship the Bishop, at the conclusion of which the reception sermon was delivered by the Rev. Fr. Devine, S. J., of Montreal, who has been conducting the exercises for the sisters preliminary to the retreat. He compared the order in the Catholic Church to the army of a great nation. While the regiments of which the army is compared have their own colours, uniforms and traditions, still they are all fighting for the honour of the flag. The case is parallel in the army of the Church. Hundreds of sisterhoods each bearing its own uniform, glorying in its own traditions, are at work in every corner of the world teaching youth, caring for the sick, harbouring the orphan. The Sisterhood of St. Joseph, of which the contingent at Peterborough forms a part, is active in Africa, Asia, Europe and America. On this continent alone it numbers between five and six thousand members, and this number is continually increasing. The preacher echoed the sentiments of the clergy and laity present in wishing the new recruits to the sisterhood a long and fruitful career.

The following young ladies were received into the community:

Miss Agnes Moran (in religion Sister Mary St. Leo).

Miss Margaret Pimberley of Eganville (in religion Sister Mary Dosithea).

Miss Martha Mhusk of Douglas (in religion Sister Mary Hilary).

The ceremony of reception was followed by the yet more impressive function of the solemn profession of Sister Mary Leonia, who, having completed her period of probation as a novice, this morning pronounced her final vows and was admitted into the Community of St. Joseph as a professed Sister. The beautiful Chapel of the Sacred Heart, decorated for the occasion with the exquisite taste characteristic of the sisters, made a splendid setting for what is always a peculiarly impressive picture. The candidates for admission, dressed in snowy white, with white wreaths and carrying white boquets, attended by tny little maids of honour, knelt at special purple-draped prie dieus, and at the conclusion of Rev. Fr. Devine's splendid discourse, made their request for admission as prescribed by the rule. In this and the ceremony of profession that followed the outstanding feature was a fact hatt is sometimes lost sight of—that in becoming Sisters of St. Joseph she young ladies did so at heir own special request. Again and again they petitioned the Bishop to clothe them in the holy habit of the sisterhood, and it was only after their request had been seconded by the Rev. Mother Superior that the Bishop received them into the community. The ceremony was rendered still more beautiful by the singing of the sisters' choir, always a pleasing feature of such functions at Mt. St. Joseph.

Afterwards the Bishop, clergy and friends of the sisters were entertained to lunch by the community in the spacious dining room of the new wing, just completed, and which renders Mt. St. Joseph one of the most commodious and well ordered religious houses in Ontario.

POST CARD COLUMN

In airing himself on political and religious questions on Saturday, I see that Mr. Burnham, the Conservative candidate, availed himself of the columns of the 'Times 'and discarded those of the "Review" which has hitherto been the accredited organ of the party. Poor old "Review"! Is is degeneracy?

Use Common Sense.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir — I believe in common sense, in common sense in trade matters as well as in any other business. We are paying millions in subsidiary steamship lines, to build up trade with foreign countries. Yet we have a market of ninety millions at our very doors, and they put on a tariff to keep us from trading here without cost, but with a splendid prospect of profit. I ask is this common sense? Would any farmer or business man act so foolishly in connection with his own business.

Yours truly,
FARMER.

ADDRESS OF MR. STRATTON TO THE ELECTORATE

Electors of the West Riding of Peterborough

GENTLEMEN,—

At a largely attended mass meeting of the electors, on Saturday, I was selected as candidate to contest the representation of the Riding in the House of Commons. I accepted the responsibility of the position and hereby respectfully solicit the favour of your votes and support.

I am well known to you all, for during a representative service of West Peterborough, practically extending over a period of twenty-five years, I have many times come into contact, directly and indirectly, with every elector of the Riding.

In the past I have been honoured with your confidence, and I have earnestly striven to deserve it. In the discharge of my parliamentary and, especially of my representative duties, I have tried to consistently recognize and live up to the fact that I was the representative of the whole people, and in duty bound to serve the interests of all collectively and individually, whether their support had assisted, or their opposition had resisted, my election.

I need not refer to my record to specify what I have been privileged to do in the promotion of the material, moral and social welfare of West Peterborough. My work in this regard, be it little or great, is known to you all. You all know whether or not I have been a faithful servant of the people, whether the Riding is better, and in what respects, from my having been your representative.

I need not be at much pains to define my position in this contest. Everybody knows where I stand—where I am to be found. Such as I have been in the endeavour to advance your interests, I still am, and shall continue to be, if you honour me with re-election.

Apart from the consideration of local—city and county—interests, the national question chiefly involved in this contest is "Reciprocity," or free mutual exchange of natural, mamly farm, products, with the United States. I believe that reciprocity of this kind will be of benefit to the farmers of the country, and through their prosperity to all other interests—manufacturing, financial and commercial, as well as to those of the mechanic and workingman.

The round of benefit is natural. Good crops and good markets mean money for the farmer, which spent with the merchants of all kinds, means increased orders for the manufacturer and increased employment to their workmen. Thus Reciprocity, by affording wider and better markets, promises to be a benefit to the whole country and an injury to no class or interest; and is worth trying, especially as the agreement, not being a treaty, can, if unsatisfactory, be cancelled on reasonable notice.

If I thought for a moment that it would hurt any important interest, especially the manufacturing interest, I would oppose it. I am neither an extreme free trader, nor an extreme protectionist. I believe in a reasonable amount of both. High tariff in the United States has lost to Canada ninety million dollars in barley alone. The British Preference as it affects our manufacturers goes as far as desirable in the direction of free trade and I am opposed to, and will oppose, any increase of it. I myself am a manufacturer or interested in manufactures, in a modest way, but, at the same time, to an extent, important to myself and my associates, and I feel that our industries and working men could not stand the keen manufacturing competition of either Britain or the United States.

In this regard, I am in accord with the assurance of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, speaking for the Government, when he gave this pledge, "WE HAVE NOT HURT THE MANUFACTURERS AND WILL NOT HURT THEM," and I applaud the stand of Mr. Fielding in negotiating the Reciprocity Agreement, in refusing to even discuss reciprocity in manufactured articles with the United States.

If you approve, gentlemen, of what I consider the reasonable stand I take in relation to national interests; if you believe, judging from my past record of service to the Riding, that I have the business capacity, the business and parliamentary experience to continue to give you good service, and justify the confidence I now ask you to again place in me, I presume to claim your support.

This is probably the last appeal I shall make to you; for I think I have done my share of service to this Riding and have thereby earned the opportunity to give the necessary attention to my private affairs. I should have persisted in my desire to be relieved had I not felt in duty bound to defer to the earnest solicitation of the friends who have stood by me in the past, and also of a great many of my former opponents, and consented to be a candidate.

Another reason that influenced my acceptance, was, that being of a business turn, I naturally desired to complete work I have initiated, and for which I am in some degree, if the opportunity is given me, responsible. I should like to see the completion of the large new docks for the City of Peterborough; of the retaining wall on our river front in Peterborough; also a new concrete dam at Nassau erected, and a Rifle Range provided for this important military centre.

Trusting that I may be favoured with your effective support, I have the honour to remain, gentlemen, as I have been for the past twenty-five years,

Your Obedient Servant,

J. R. Stratton

MESSAGE TO PARTY

Sir Wilfrid Sets the Key-note for a Vigorous Campaign—Reciprocity is the Ground for Fighting

DEFINES THE ISSUE

Simcoe, Aug. 16.—There is no place in Canadian citizenship for the faint heart. This is the militant message with which Sir Wilfrid Laurier thrilled Liberalism in opening his national campaign for larger markets.

The Prime Minister carried the war into Africa from the very start. By unanswerable evidence he established the desire for reciprocity that has prevailed at Ottawa among all leaders. "We are now appealing to our judges, the people, and you can have it to-morrow if you want it," he told his audience. "Let's have it," came back from the crowd, amid a roar of cheers.

The farmers had gathered in thousands, and they felt their hour of victory was at hand. Twice a spontaneous outburst came from a man who shouted: "Can't stand it any longer; let's have three cheers for Laurier." He got them, and they were rousers.

Sir Wilfrid was not blind to the insidious cries of the opponents of his cause. He answered the bugaboo of annexation completely, and by lighthearted and skillful irony blew away the bubble generated by Opposition hot air.

He repudiated the suggestion that closer trade relations with the United States might lead to annexation, and with some bitterness said: "Let Mr. Borden answer for the Tories; I will answer for the Grits." Further on he said: "The talk of annexation is beneath the contempt of serious people."

He claimed that the leaders of public thought in Canada for the past forty years had favored reciprocity with the United States, hence it was natural that this policy should be adopted by him. The present Conservative leaders he called renegades.

He held that the agreement with the United States could be terminated on a day's notice, and that it would not interfere with the action of Canada should Great Britain make advances to us in the matter of mutual preferential trade. If it did, then so much the worse for the agreement with the United States. If the attitude of Great Britain regarding preference changed at any time, Canada would be ready to meet the change.

The effect of the favored-nations' treaties was very slight, he said, claiming that the countries that would be brought into competition with Canada were of little importance, and the goods they sold Canadians did not interfere with Canadian products.

The fact that John Carlton, who for 25 years represented Norfolk in the House of Commons, was the champion all his life of freer trade relations with the United States, and had his home in this town made Simcoe a fit place for Sir Wilfrid Laurier to utter his battle-cry in favor of reciprocity.

The issue of the campaign was reciprocity between Canada and the United States. He believed the agreement was a measure mutually beneficial to both countries, but he did not hesitate to say that it was more beneficial to Canada than to the United States.

If any man in public life in Canada had given his mind to this question of reciprocity with the United Sattes, that man was Sir John A. Macdonald. He was the Moses of the policy of reciprocity, but like Moses he was not destined to see the promised land. It might not be that he, Sir Wilfrid, would be the Joshua that would carry the people of Canada to that goal.

A voice: "Yes, you will."

He said that the United States was prepared to go further than Canada in the matter of letting down the bars. They were prepared to go all along the line. "We could not go that far. We stand for stability of tariff and no revision until after study. We were prepared at all times to have reciprocity in natural products."

It was said if this agreement was adopted it would lead to annexation. How would it? He would like to discuss this question frankly and with common sense. How would it come about that the United States would annex us? There could be only two ways, either by violence or by persuasion. No one had ever heard that it was the intention of the U. S. to annex Canada, war had not been declared. Would the reciprocity agreement render so much benefit to Canada that we would be seduced from our allegiance?

"I will tell Mr. Borden this, if he will answer for the Tories, I will answer for the Grits."

The meeting was called to order at two o'clock by Mr. H. M. Mowat, president of the Ontario Reform Association, Toronto. He spoke briefly, congratulating Simcoe and Norfolk on being chosen for the opening meeting in the campaign, and extending thanks for the honor done him, as president of the reform association by being chosen chairman.

The first speaker was Hon. W. A. Charlton, brother of the late John Charlton, and present Liberal candidate in Norfolk. He told of the reluctance with which he had accepted the nomination. His friends had reminded him that it was his duty to go into battle. He had met Hon. S. H. Blake on the train, and he had told him that it was his absolute duty to go into the campaign now and support Sir Wilfrid, and Mr. Fielding and prevent a change of Government that might be made in favor of Mr. Borden.

Fatal Wreck Near Berthier.

Berthier, Que., Aug. 16.—Two were killed and one seriously injured when two Canadian Pacific freight trains crashed together at St. Cuthbert's, sixty miles from Montreal, yesterday morning. The collision, which was head-on, occurred as two heavy freight trains were passing through Cuthbert Station. What the cause of the collision was is still unknown. The dead are: Fireman Lesueur, Brakeman Lefebvre of Three Rivers. Engineer Caisse of Bethier was injured.

Jap Volcano Active.

Tokio, Aug. 16.—Asama-Yama, the volcano in the Island of Hondo, was in eruption yesterday, and it is feared that about thirty mountain climbers, including several foreigners, have been killed.

Little Progress Made.

Paris, Aug. 16.—In semi-official circles it is declared that Mr. Cambon, French ambassador to Germany, and the German Foreign Secretary, Alfred Von Kiderlen Waechter, have not made serious progress toward reaching an accord on the dispute between France and Germany over Morocco. While the bases of the discussion have not yet been defined, it is said that the slow progress toward an agreement is due to Germany's unwillingness to grant France sufficient compensation in return for part of the Congo, which she expects France to cede to her.

HE HAS A HARD TASK

Mr. Borden Begins His Work of Opposing Reciprocity--Addresses 2000 People at London Last Night.

HIS CRY TO ELECTORS

London, Ont., Aug. 16.—Mr. R. L. Borden began in earnest last night his uphill fight to convince the people of Canada that reciprocity means the severing of the Imperial tie, the commercial and political absorption of the Dominion, and—but not incidentally—to convince a skeptical people that their crying need is a Tory regime at Ottawa. Mr. Borden has set himself a heavy task, but he faced it valiently, even hopefully. Backed by a platform crowded with stalwarts and encouraged by an audience of two thousand people, he laid heavy hands upon the reciprocity agreement.

He assailed the Government condemning the attitude of Sir Wilfrid and his colleagues in acceding to President Taft's request. He contradicted the argument that reciprocity had been the hope of all parties in Canada for forty years. Reciprocity was a seduction and designed only to promote the interests of a political party in the United States.

He inveighed against secret diplomatic tariffs, and declared that the Canadian tariff policy should be worked out by Parliamentary control. "Then, and then only," he declared, "can we preserve and maintain the true fiscal independence and autonomy of the Canadian nation. And above that let us take no steps which may weaken or imperil the ties which unite us to our world-wide empire, dowered with the imperishable memories of a glorious past and crowned with the confidence and hope for a still more splendid future."

"Our strong determination," he declared, "is to preserve our freedom of action and thus to work out our destiny, which, affirmed here by our own voice and along our own lines, will most assuredly win the respect of our neighbors, who have given their own inspiring example." That the national appeal was stronger than the citation of figures regarding prices and profits, spurious speculations and the like, was manifested by the oft-recurring applause that greeted every reference to the development of a Canadian type.

"If we are to follow the laws of nature and geography between Canada and the United States, the whole trade would flow south to north, and from north to south. We have done everything possible by building canals and subsidizing railways to bring the trade from west to east and east to west so as to bring trade into British channels. All this we have done, recognizing the principle of the great advantage of forcing trade within the British Empire. There is no boundary line except a purely conventional one over the whole territory of North America. Their habits are the same as ours, and therefore we are induced to trade and cannot help it by the force of nature. But so far as legislation can influence trade, we have done everything possible to push our trade towards the British people as against the American people.

"There was a time when we wanted reciprocity with the United States, but our efforts and our offers were put aside. We have said good-bye to that trade, and we now put all our hopes upon the British trade.

"Does the Prime Minister also realize that twelve foreign nations with an aggregate population of three hundred millions and an enormous production of agricultural and animal products will also have access to the free Canadian market. Canada will receive no reciprocal advantages from these countries; and the United States producer will not be exposed to the same competition.

"If Canada can be neutral when Great Britain is attacked," he said, discussing the navy, "why cannot Britain be neutral when Canada is attacked?"

Wm. Gray, president of the London Conservative Association, was in the chair. He spoke briefly, directing attention to the dominant move before the country. Major Beattie spoke briefly.

A warm reception was accorded to Hon. Adam Beck. Mr. Beck did not trespass at length upon the time of the audience, but he felt he would not be doing his duty as a Conservative and a representative of the City of London if he did not come forward and lend his hand to help Mr. Borden in the fight against reciprocity. The Conservative leader was able to rise above party bias and deal with such questions on a statesmanlike basis.

Rather Burn $12,000 Boat.

Boston, Aug. 16.—Rather than pay the $500 annual tax imposed by the U. S. Government on all foreign built vessels, Lindsey Loring has directed that his boat, the Eelin, be burned at her dock in South Boston. Everything of value has been stripped from the boat, including her 20-ton lead keel, her masts and rigging.

The Eelin was built at Southampton in 1899, and was brought to this country as a racing boat. She was 96 feet long and valued at about $12,000.

Two Nominations.

St. John, N.B., Aug. 16.—Restigouche Conservatives yesterday nominated W. S. Montgomery, mayor of Dalhousie, as candidate in the coming elections and Kent County Conservatives selected F. J. Robidoux as their standard-bearer.

TWO MORE VICTIMS

Aviation Claims Young Bird-Men in Chicago—One Aviator Falls 500 Feet and is Drowned in Lake Michigan

DEFECTS IN MACHINES

Chicago, Aug. 16.—Two aviators, William R. Badger of Pittsburg and St. Croix Johnstone of Chicago, both young men, lost their lives at the international aviation meet here yesterday. In dying, both revealed the frailty of the craft in which two-score more aviators were curving and gliding about the air, with scarcely a pause for the deaths of their contemporaries.

Death in both cases was due to unexplained accidents, probably the result of unsuspected defects in the mechanism of the machines, and was in no way caused by carelessness nor lack of responsibility of the drivers.

Badger, a wealthy youth, careened to his death in a pit in the aviation field. There had been a flaw in one of the wings of the propellor of the Baldwin machine which he drove. Centrifugal force broke the propeller, upset the delicate equilibrium of the machine, and Badger dashed 100 feet to the bottom of the pit, his neck being broken.

Johnstone fell 500 feet under his engine and was drowned as the result of an equally unsuspected defect. Caught under the heavy engine in the Moisant monoplane, he was carried deep into Lake Michigan, and his body was not brought to the surface until an hour later.

Badger lived for 45 minutes after he had been extricated from the remains of his engine. He did not recover consciousness and died almost at once after he had reached a hospital. His death was the first serious accident of the meet, although 36 flyers have dipped and glided here for three days.

St. Croix Johnstone's wife saw her husband fall, but she was told that he had been rescued and rushed to the hotel to meet him. His father, Dr. Stuart Johnstone, had left the grounds twenty minutes earlier.

REIGN OF TERROR.

Liverpool is Filled With Troops and Rioters.

Liverpool, Aug. 16.—A reign of terror exists here, and troops are pouring into the city with the object of putting down disorder. A special guard has been detailed to protect the landing-stage of the transatlantic steamers, which, it is asserted, the rioters have planned to destroy by fire.

Five prison vans, escored by fifty Hussars, which were carrying riot prisoners from the Police Court to Waltham Jail, were attacked yesterday afternoon by 3,000 members of the roughest class in Vauxhall street, who tried to rescue the prisoners. The mob attacked the soldiers with missiles of every description, and in defending themselves the Hussars fired. At first blank cartridges were used and then ball cartridges. In this affray two were killed and many persons severely wounded.

The troops then charged the mob with drawn sabres and cleared the street. So daring were the rioters that one of them tried to unhorse an officer, who was obliged to use his revolver, wounding a man severely in the head.

Another but less serious affray, in which the troops again were compelled to fire, took place in Bond street. Only a few persons were wounded here.

In each case, before the troops were ordered to fire, many of their number had their faces streaming with blood from injuries caused by stones and broken bottles thrown by the rioters.

Before enforcing the general strike order the strike leaders have decided to allow the railroad companies twenty-four hours in which to agree to meet the representatives of the employes and discuss their grievances.

RISING INEVITABLE.

Portuguese Republicans Anxiously Await Royalists.

Lisbon, Aug. 16.—These are anxious weeks in Portugal. The men forming the Provisional Government are doing their constructive work upon the Republic in a singular confusion of distrust, extreme idealism, the hostility of old interests, the disappointed hopes of new elements, and the sober determined disinterestedness of the few. The monarchists have a secret organization within the country, and are openly conspiring without. The nobility and many of the wealthy men of Portugal support the monarchical principle.

Something like $100,000,000 has been withdrawn from the country in capital or through the sale of properties since October of last year.

The monarchists have a military organization in Spain, with abundant funds, stores of arms, ammunition artillery, and various equipment. It seems as though an attempted invasion and rising could not be indefinitely delayed. The monarchists have invested so largely and have raised such hopes that they must make an attempt even under great risks. They contend that they have the support of the Jesuits.

PIUS X. HOLDS HIS OWN.

His Holiness Now Seems to Be Convalescing.

Rome, Aug. 16.—The cool air of the early morning helped to freshen the Pope, who when he was visited by his physicians appeared to be no worse than yesterday. Prof. Marchiafava, the consulting doctor at the Vatican, explained that the pontiff's restlessness during the night was due perhaps to the fact that he had slept longer than usual the afternoon before. Moreover the restlessness might be described as impatience at an invalid life, which is really a symptom of convalescence.

An incident amusing to some but annoying to the sisters of the Pope is related. The sisters, who have been besieged by newspaper men and photographers, have become unapproachable to those wishing information regarding the pontiff's condition for public uses. Late Tuesday a reporter disguised as an inspector for the Gas company, entered their home, and after examining the metre and the pipes, humbly inquired about the Holy Father. The sisters, mistaking the man for a devout individual anxious for the pontiff's health, answered candidly. A few hours later they were chagrined to see every word they had spoken published in the Giornale di Italia.

The next morning a genuine clerk from the Gas company's office, who had not read the Giornale di Italia, visited the home of the sisters, and was overwhelmed by a torrent of Venetian remonstrances. The unhappy clerk retired hastily, discomfited and at a loss to know how he had given offence.

Shot By His Brother.

London, Aug. 16.—Accidently shot by his elder brother with a 22-calibre rifle on July 22nd, Victor Lee, the young son of Charles H. Lee, the general manager of the Canada Spice and Grocery Co., died in Victoria Hospital at five o'clock Tuesday. The accident occurred at Thorndale, while the two young boys were out shooting rabits, when the younger brother rushed in front of the gun to pull away his dog. As he did so the rifle was accidentally discharged, the charge entering the boy's right side.

Stewards Acquitted.

Montreal, Aug. 16.—The case against 57 stewards of the Allan liner Victorian charged with "disobedience to lawful commands" was yesterday dismissed by Judge Lost, who held that the men had been illegally arrested, as the police had no warrants. The men thereupon filed past the captain saluting him, and reported for duty.

TWO LOVES

A Story Showing What Dress Has to Do With the Affections

By Karl Sommers

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

When the Revolutionary war broke out the men who collected to fight on the patriot side came from the farm, the workshop, the country store—indeed, from the then few simple avocations in which the colonists engaged. They were soldiers neither in training nor dress and were looked upon by the British well drilled and handsomely uniformed officers and men with the contempt regular troops entertain for a mob.

One day—it was in 1778—a regiment of American patriots were marching along a road in the vicinity of Elizabethtown, N. J. It was in the spring following the memorable winter when Washington's army suffered at Valley Forge. Not only were the leaves sprouting under the warm rays of the returning sun, but news had come that France was to send an army to help the colonies. Nevertheless the regiment marching through New Jersey was a tatterdemalion lot. They were all hungry, and whenever they passed a house where a patriotic farmer's wife would bring out a pail of milk and a few loaves of stale bread they would fall out of the ranks, if there were ranks, to satisfy their appetites.

At the gate of one of these farmhouses stood a girl of seventeen, who had been sent out by her mother with a tin pan full of doughnuts. The cakes were nearly all gone as well as the men who had taken them when a young soldier, very pale and with large, deep sunken eyes, bespeaking illness, approached the girl, laid his musket against the fence and sat down on the mounting stone before the gate. There was one doughnut left in the pan, which the girl offered him, but he was too ill to relish it. He sat for a few minutes resting his head on the palms of his hands, his elbows on his knees, then, casting a

But there was something that troubled him far more than his trembling limbs. He wore little of that which is the pride of a soldier—uniform—and what there was of it was torn and soiled. A young girl was looking at him sympathetically with a pair of tender brown eyes, and to leave her he must expose his rear, and from a hole in the seat of his trousers protruded a portion of his shirt tail. How could a soldier expose such ignominy? But while he stood deploring the necessity of doing so a darkness came before his eyes, he tottered, and the girl caught him before he fell.

It was several weeks before the young soldier, Abner Wicks, was well enough to leave the farmhouse, and when he was bis departure was made painful from the fact that he must leave his heart with the little girl who had nursed him. True, her mother had done the greater part of the nursing, but the daughter had done the loving. Lucy Barton was of an age when love comes easily and from many causes. In this case it arose from pity. Abner was but a year older than she, and he loved her because her eyes were brown and because she pitied him. It was a love that might be broken as easily as it had come or might endure when both, with locks white as snow, should totter arm in arm together.

One morning Abner took up his musket to go and rejoin his regiment. His moving away was not so embarrassing as it would have been a few weeks before, for Lucy's mother had patched the seat of his trousers. Nevertheless there was nothing in his appearance to inspire such admiration as is often given a soldierly man in a becoming uniform.

Abner had waved his hat—not his handkerchief, for he had no handkerchief—from a crest a short distance from the farmhouse and had passed out of sight when a vision of another kind appeared in the direction opposite from that in which he was going. A British general and his staff, all on horseback, came caracoling toward the farmhouse. Their coats were scarlet, covered with gold lace, and the sun glittered on their brass buttons and their side arms. Here surely was something admirable for the eye to rest upon. There was not a rip in any man's uniform, not a rusty spot on any saber, not a tarnished bit of lace.

They trotted on up to Farmer Barton's house, and the general, calling Mrs. Barton—the farmer was at Valley Forge—asked if there was a creek or a spring near by. She told him there was a brook farther on, but if he wished water only for the party he had with him she had a-plenty in her well, to which he was welcome.

During the brief chat Lucy, who stood by her mother and was looking with admiring eyes at the group of equestrians whose chargers were impatiently pawing the ground, could not help contrasting their appearance with that of those ragged Continentals who had passed the house a few weeks before. There was in the party a blue eyed, flaxen haired young Britisher with real English roses in his cheeks, who sat on his horse admiring her simple country beauty, and she thought how different he was from the boy who but a few minutes before she had watched retreating down the road, the two prominent objects in his dress being the patches—one square, the other round—in his seat and especially noticeable from their color being different from that of his trousers and from each other.

It is a blow to our ideas of human constancy to contemplate the change that immediately came over Lucy Barton's heart, for she immediately withdrew it from Abner and gave it to the young British aid-de-camp. And yet in view of the circumstances can we blame her? The contrast between the Continental's garb and the British regular's red coat, buff breeches, high top boots and resplendent decorations was too much for the seventeen-year-old Lucy, who had thus far seen men dressed only in the linsey woolsey of the period.

The British general concluded to remain a few days where he was, making his headquarters in the Barton farmhouse. In three days Captain Arthur Claverly made a greater inroad upon Lucy's heart than Abner Wicks had made in three weeks. True, the Britisher had no use for her heart, but a common sense view of the situation had no place in either of them. At the end of the three days he rode away, gayly kissing his hand to the little girl who looked after him. She had looked after Abner with the same longing, but a longing that sprang from a different source. She had pitied him; young Claverly had dazzled her.

Three years passed. Lucy Barton remembered her two lovers with their two very different uniforms. The Britisher engaged the larger part of the thoughts she gave to both, but in Abner's forlorn appearance there was always something that caused little ripples to pass over her heart. Moreover, she was now twenty years old and had become deeply interested in the struggle between what were now the United States and England.

Then there were passings of American troops southward horse, foot, dragoons, artillery. They were going to Yorktown for the last campaign of the war. One morning before dawn light the watch in Philadelphia who called the hour announced that the British army had surrendered. The news spread all over the country and reached the Barton farmhouse.

Not long after this the American troops began to pass Barton's moving northward. It was late in October and the leaves had fallen from the trees. One evening Lucy Barton, returning from milking, heard a clatter of horses' hoofs behind her and turned just in time to see the general and his staff who three years before had spent some days at her home gallop past. Their heads were bowed in mortification, for they were paroled prisoners of war going to New York to return from there to England. Lucy saw among them the young officer who had so quickly taken her heart from the Continental, but he failed to recognize her.

A week later a regiment of United States infantry marched northward by the house and with a very different mien. Their heads were held high, their step was springy, their whole appearance triumphant. At their head rode their colonel, a youngster who had attained the command only a short time before and in passing through Philadelphia had purchased a brand new uniform. He was Abner Wicks, who had for three years been rising in rank and had especially distinguished himself during the fighting at Yorktown. He had resolved that if he while yet a soldier should again see Lucy Barton it should not be under such demeaning conditions as before.

As Lucy's British lover did not recognize her, so she did not recognize Abner. Indeed, he looked so brave and strong and proud in his new uniform that she was about to give her heart for a third time to a soldier who this time was not only finely dressed, but a victor, when the young colonel threw himself from his horse and, in the exuberance of his joy, took her into his arms before the whole regiment.

So ended the story of this love which in its incipiency had no other inducement than a tattered uniform, but which after the two were married and settled grew each year they lived together till it absorbed all their being. Yet lovers go on year after year taking their chances upon such small reasons, but who shall say that those marriages that are better considered turn out happier?

Spring Finds the Human System

Loaded With Impurities Which Cause Pains, Aches and Feelings of Fatigue

When the Liver and Kidneys Are Overworked and Break Down Get Them Right by Using

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

In the spring the human system is loaded with poisons which has accumulated as a result of artificial winte rlife. There has been too much breathing of poisoned indoor air, too little outdoor exercise, too much eating of heavy, indigestible food, especially too much meat and too little fruit.

The liver and kidneys struggle to overcome this condition, but the task is too great for them and they get sluggish and torpid, fail in their work and often become diseased themselves.

given them by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. There is no great mystery of how these pills purify the blood and take away the acuse of tired, spring feelings, backaches, headaches, bodily pains or derangements of the digestive system.

If the blood is to be purified the liver and kidneys must do it. And they will if you awaken their action by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

It will not take long to get these blood filters into working order if you as this treatment. A few hours will bring improvement and you will learn how to keep these organs healthy and active. One pills a dose, 25c. a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co. Toronto, Ontario.

OTTUMWA WOMAN CURED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Ottumwa, Iowa.—"For years I was almost a constant sufferer from female trouble in all its dreadful forms; shooting pains all over my body, sick headache, spinal weakness, dizziness, depression, and everything that was horrid. I tried many doctors in different parts of the United States, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done more for me than all the doctors. I feel it my duty to tell you these facts. My heart is full of gratitude to you for my cure."—Mrs. HARRIET E. WAMPLER, 524 S. Ransom Street, Ottumwa, Iowa.

Consider This Advice.

No woman should submit to a surgical operation, which may mean death, until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

This famous medicine, made only from roots and herbs, has for thirty years proved to be the most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women residing in almost every city and town in the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. Her advice is free, confidential, and always helpful.

DEFIED THE COMMODORE.

Pinkham Was Insubordinate, but He Saved Vessel and Crew.

Reuben Pinkham, a native of Nantucket, made his first trip as third lieutenant on the ship Potomac, which crossed the north Pacific, a region little known to naval vessels in the early thirties. Pinkham had been on several whaling voyages and was familiar with those waters. The author of "The Island of Nantucket" says that one day, near sunset, he had the watch, while the commodore was pacing up and down the deck.

Suddenly Pinkham gave the order, "Man the weather braces!"

"What's that for?" asked the commodore.

"We shall have wind in a moment."

The commodore went to the lee rail and scanned the sea and sky. "I see no signs of wind," he returned. "Let the men leave the braces."

The crew dropped the ropes.

"Keep hold of the braces, every man of you!" called out Pinkham, and the men resumed their grasp. The commodore flushed with anger and exclaimed in peremptory tones:

"Let the men leave the braces!" and again the braces were dropped.

"Don't any of you dare to drop the ropes!" shouted Pinkham, shaking his trumpet at the crew, who once more took hold. Just then the wind dropped entirely; not a breath stirred.

"Taut, taut! Haul, all of you!" called Pinkham, and the ponderous yards swung to reversed position. The wind came out of the opposite quarter and struck the ship like a sledge hammer. The vessel staggered, shook the spray from her bows and dashed ahead. The commodore disappeared into his cabin without saying a word.

Presently he sent the first lieutenant to relieve Pinkham, requesting to see the latter immediately. When Pinkham entered the cabin the commodore said:

"I consider that I am indebted to you for all of our lives, but I will tell you frankly if that wind hadn't come I should have put you in irons in two minutes."

FEES FOR ITS FLASHES.

San Salvador Uses a Live Volcano as a Lighthouse.

The republic of San Salvador is the only government on earth that collects lighthouse fees on account of a volcano that it owns and without the slightest cost of upkeep.

The volcanic beacon is about eight miles inland from the port of Acajutla, and its pillar of cloud by day and its fire sky by night are visible for many miles out at sea. It bursts forth every seven minutes and is just as accurate as any revolving light that warns mariners of danger in any part of the world.

This volcano has been keeping up this seven minute series of eruptions ever since any one can remember. It is a favorite amusement of visitors to sit by the hour during the lazy afternoons and, watch in hand, to time the eruptions till they tire of the occupation and fall asleep. No one has ever caught the volcano napping, however.

Every vessel that puts in at Acajutla has to pay its lighthouse fee. There is no other lighthouse than the volcano, but that is a sufficient excuse for the government of Salvador to make a charge for its services. The explosions that accompany the eruptions sound like detonations of heavy charge of dynamite, but fortunately they are not sufficient to shake the ground perceptibly more than about a mile or two from the summit of the crater.—Pearson's Weekly.

The Fountain at the Corner.

Beranger is best known for his bacchanalian songs. One night he was at supper with Dumas the elder. The younger Dumas, who was present, was passing through his college course and at that period was exhibiting those characteristics which unfortunately developed in later life. Noticing that Beranger had drunk only water, he somewhat indiscreetly asked, "Where do you obtain, M. Beranger, all the wine which we find in your songs?"

The poet's reply was, "From the fountain at the corner, my boy, and you would do well to make that the source of your inspiration."

UNMANNED MOTOR BOATS

Experiments Which Give Some Indication of Possible Future War Methods

Tests of the efficiency of an unmanned motor-boat, steered and controlled by wireless telegraphy from the shore, took place recently on the Wannsee Lake, near Berlin, in the presence of a large number of military and naval officers, engineering experts and foreign naval and military attachés.

The unmanned motor-boat was towed to the middle of the lake, about a mile from the shore, and then the captain gave a succession of orders, which Herr Wirth carried out by transmitting electric waves from the apparatus ashore to the receiver on board. In this way he started the motor, then stopped it, drove the boat ahead or astern, to starboard or port, and caused it to describe intricate figures on the water, such as the letter "S" and the figure "8." The boat, which cruised backwards and forwards for a distance varying from one to two miles from the apparatus whereby it was controlled, executed each order with absolute precision. A special naval correspondent writes: "A group of experts watched with astonishment the movements of this phantom ship, and drew conclusions regarding marine battles of the future in which torpedo-boats, controlled by wireless telegraphy, may be hurled with forty-knot speed at battleships and sink them. It is still too early to prophesy how far this invention will take us because it has only just emerged from the laboratory, and has not undergone many practical tests, but sooner or later capitalists will finance Herr Wirth's discovery, and then unmanned vessels of various sizes will be constructed in large numbers." Further tests will take place on the Wannsee Lake.

HOLIDAY FOR THE EYES

A Rest of a Day Once a Month is Necessary

Everybody should give his eyes a day's holiday at least once a month. An experienced house-surgeon of a well-known London eye-hospital gave this advice in a lecture. "In the present age," he said, "we experience far more eye-strain, owing to increased reading habits and multitudes of glaring lights, than our forefathers did, and we suffer more from headaches. Therefore, give your eyes a holiday as frequently as possible. Give them a day's absolute rest and the relief the next day will be most refreshing. When taking an eye-holiday a room with green wall-paper is a good place to rest in if one cannot get to the country amid Nature's green fields and trees. Green rests the eyes more than any other color."

"NIGHT OF THE DROP"

An Interesting Ceremony Among the Natives of the Nile

News comes from the Soudan that the flood water of the Nile is starting to come down from the Abyssinian hills. The "night of the drop" has already been celebrated in Upper and Lower Egypt, and the first water from the Blue Nile will soon reach Assouan. The "Night of the Drop" is a great festival among the natives, for it is believed that on this night a drop from heaven falls into the Nile and causes its rise. This superstition has been handed down from the times of the ancient Egyptians, who said the drop was a tear from the goddess Isis. Thousands of natives spend the night on the banks of the river anxiously watching the sky, in the hope that their future happiness will be assured to them by a glimpse of the drop in its descent into the river. It is at this time of the year that a remarkable spectacle is to be seen at Khartoum. The city is situated, as most people know, at the junction of the White and Blue Niles, the former of which comes from the Central African Lakes and the latter from the Abyssinian hills. When the flood water of the Blue Nile joins the main stream, it does not amalgamate with it, but for a very long distance one can see the muddy, dark red water from Abyssinia flowing side by side with the white limpid water of the White Nile.

DOCTORS TELL HOW "CUTICURA" CURED SKIN DISEASES

One says, "I have Great Faith in Cuticura Remedies." Another, "They Always Bring Results."

"I wish to let you know of a couple of recent cures which I have made by the use of the Cuticura Remedies. Last August, Mr. ——— of this city came to my office, troubled with a severe skin eruption. At first I could not understand the nature of the case. I finally traced it to his occupation, as he was a painter and decorator. It was dermatitis in its worst form. It started with a slight eruption and would affect most parts of his body—thighs, elbows chest, back and abdomen—and would terminate in little pustules. The itching and burning was dreadful and he would almost tear his skin apart, trying to get relief. I recommended all the various treatments I could think of and he spent about fifteen dollars on prescriptions but nothing seemed to help him.

"In the meantime my wife who was continually suffering with a slight skin trouble and who had been trying different prescriptions and methods with my assistance, told me she was going to get some of the Cuticura Remedies. But as I did not know much about Cuticura at that time, I was doubtful whether it would help her. Her skin would thicken, break and bleed, especially on the fingers, wrists and arms. I could do nothing to relieve her permanently. When she first applied the warm baths of Cuticura Soap and applications of Cuticura Ointment she saw a decided improvement and in a few days she was completely cured.

"I lost no time in recommending the Cuticura Remedies to Mr. ———, and this was two months ago. I told him to wash with warm baths of the Cuticura Soap and to apply the Cuticura Ointment generously. Believe me, from the very first day's use of the Cuticura Remedies he was greatly relieved and to-day he is completely cured through their use. I have great faith in the Cuticura Remedies and shall always have a good word for them now that I am convinced of their wonderful merits." (Signed) B. L. Whitehead, M.D., 108 Dartmouth St.,) Boston, Mass., July 22, 1910.

As though in confirmation of this most convincing statement, G. M. Fiber, M.D., Big Pool, Md., writes: "My face was afflicted with eczema in the year 1897. I used the Cuticura Remedies and was entirely cured. I am a practicing physician and very often prescribe Cuticura Remedies in cases of eczema, and they have cured where other formulas have failed. I am not in the habit of endorsing patent medicines, but when I find remedies possessing true merit, such as the Cuticura Remedies do, I am broad-minded enough to proclaim their virtues to the world. I have been practicing medicine for twenty years, and must say I find your Remedies A No. 1. I still find the Cuticura Remedies as good as ever. They always bring results."

"UNDER THE WEATHER"

Why We Don't Work Well When It is Wet and Gloomy

Most of us know, in a general way, what to be "under the weather" means.

Gloomy, rainy weather brings depression, just as spring sunshine means light-heartedness. Scientists have of recent years been turning their attention to this interesting question of the effect of the weather upon our moods and actions, and they can show lots of curious results that most of us would never have guessed at.

The weather, for instance, has a decided effect on the work of bank clerks. Inquiries have been made from banks as to the number of serious slips made in computation—slips, that is, which are not corrected immediately, but only discovered next day. And the results of the inquiry are curious.

Most blunders are made in foggy, muggy, or excessively hot weather. The most accurate work is done in calm, fine weather, provided the barometer is not too high. For when the barometer is very high the work suffers. A very high barometer brings a tense, energetic feeling which, it is suggested, makes the clerk drive confidently on with his counting, instead of taking his usual care.

In the Bank of England the influence of the weather is recognized. Certain important books are never entrusted to the clerks on gloomy, foggy days, or very hot ones.

Practically the same results are shown in the case of typists, though, owing to the more sensitive nervous organization of women, the results are more marked. Typists and bank clerks alike, and, indeed, most workers, benefit by windy weather. The higher the wind is the better, for wind brings into the stuffy air of cities that brain-clearing gas, oxygen.

Few people feel as energetic on damp days as they do on dry. The reason is that the earth is constantly radiating forth electricity into space. The damper the air is the less well it acts as a conductor to this electricity. It is this electricity that gives our physical and mental energy the keen edge we miss on damp days.

A study of over 12,000 assault cases at the police courts shows that there is a steady rise in number from January to August. Temperature and fighting go together. But on the very hottest days assault cases are few. People are too limp.

Suicides increase in number from January to August, too. But for suicides the very hottest days are the worst. The number that take place in April, however, is curiously high ... year—almost as high as ... August figures, a fact for which all sorts of fanciful explanations have been given. One is that when no practical results come from the new hope that comes to even the most hopeless with the bright days of early spring, despair sets in again more bitterly than ever.

Statistics compiled from schools show that it is on hot, muggy days that boys do the most inaccurate work, and are most restless.

Calm, cold days are the best, from the teacher's point of view. Wind brings an amount of physical energy that makes discipline harder to keep. On dull, cloudy days behavior is good, but less work is done than usual. Girls, however, though afterwards they change decidedly in this respect, do not seem to be affected by the weather at all.

It was only recently that the manager of a great northern firm declared that on a day that was either very wet, or very hot, or very close, the work of the three thousand men under him went down at least five per cent., both in quantity and quality.—Answers.

CARL AHRENS

A Canadian painter of Canadian scenes

A obliging young parson was driving home one evening after making his pastoral calls, when he overtook a young woman of his congregation, the maid-of-all-work at a farm which he would pass, so he offered her a place in his carriage. The offer was gladly accepted and they chatted pleasantly all the way to the farm gate.

"Thank you, sir," she said as she got down.

"Don't mention it, my dear girl. Don't mention it," he told her politely.

"No, indeed, I won't," she assured him.

A "window" was pierced near the Jungfraujoch, to give passengers on the wonderful Jungfrau Railway, while in the tunnel, a superb view of the Guggi Glacier. Unfortunately, the presence of snow obscured the view at the opening ceremony. The Jungfrau railway is being extended from Eismeer, above Grindelwald, its present terminus, to the Jungfraujoch, 3,090 feet above sea level, and thence ultimately to the summit. The new "window" is on the far slope of the Monk, at an elevation of 10,800 feet.

LOOK AFTER THE BOYS

They are Worth Far More than Farms or Business

From our experience and observation we are fully convinced that the average church is not doing its duty by its boys, says the Christian Guardian. Boys are not hard to win, but they need very sympathetic Christian shepherding. This applies not only to cities, but to every part of our rural sections. There are men who spend more time training their colts than their boys. There are others who are, apparently, more interested in caring for their orchards than in looking after their children. Because the boy is well and strong it does not follow that the father has done his whole duty. The boy needs sympathy and companionship as much as he needs education and food. And if he does not find it in his own people, he will surely seek it elsewhere. Our boys are worth more than our farms and our business; yet the farm and the business are robbing the boy of a father's helpful comradeship, and no amount of hoarded wealth can ever atone for such a loss.

A Poor Weak Woman

As she is termed, will endure bravely and patiently agonies which a strong man would give way under. The fact is women are more patient than they ought to be under such troubles.

Every woman ought to know that she may obtain the most experienced medical advice free of charge and in absolute confidence and privacy by writing to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, R. V. Pierce, M. D., President, Buffalo, N. Y. Dr. Pierce has been chief consulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y., for many years and has had a wider practical experience in the treatment of women's diseases than any other physician in this country. His medicines are world-famous for their astonishing efficacy.

IT MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG, SICK WOMEN WELL.

The many and varied symptoms of women's peculiar ailments are fully set forth in Plain English in the People's Medical Adviser (1008 pages), a newly revised and up-to-date Edition of which, cloth-bound, will be mailed free on receipt of 50 one-cent stamps to pay cost of mailing only. The Souvenir certainly does eliminate furnace bothers

(NEW IDEA SERIES)

SOME folks dread the winter—because of the furnace troubles it brings

Antiquated heating systems are certainly a nuisance. Dust and ashes, sometimes deadly gas fumes, all over the house. Or hot air like a breeze across a desert waste—poisonous, dry, health-destroying air. All because conservative manufacturers would not consider New Ideas in heating.

The SOUVENIR furnace makes the hot air system the healthiest, cheapest and best.

It's built right—A solid, one-piece iron fire-pot—tested and selected iron at that—and flanges on the outer side to increase radiating surface.

The grate is simplicity itself—ashes easily dumped by a simple turn of the lever.

No place for clinker troubles.

From ham ring to dome every SOUVENIR furnace is perfect.

The SOUVENIR Furnace is made in Hamilton, the steel centre of Canada, by

The Hamilton Stove and Heater Co. Limited

Successors to Quiney-Tilden Company

Every buyer of a Souvenir Furnace is presented with a legal bond on date of purchase, guaranteeing heaped against cracks or breaks of any kind for 5 years.

MARVELS OF THE SIGHTLESS WAYFARER

INTUITION, Almost a Sixth Sense, an Accute Perception, Enables a Remarkable Blind Man to Thread His Way Unscathed Through Swarming Thoroughfares with Only a Cane as His Guide.

There Is Sure To Be Some One Who Will Help Him Cross the Streets.

JOHN C. FOWLER.

Stepping Off the Curb.

Walks Up and Down Street Until He Finds Some One Who Will Direct Him.

Coming Down the Steps.

JOHN C. FOWLER, author of this novel narrative, has been blind since birth. Born in Lowville, N. Y., where his father keeps a store, he attended the School for the Blind in Batavia. He determined, contrary to his friends' advice, to obtain a college education. Not only did he gain this at Syracuse University, but he was graduated in three years, magna cum laude, got the key of the Phi Beta Kappa Society, and earned every cent of his expenses meantime. In his fourth year he won the degree of master of arts, became an assistant in the German department and did brilliant work both in class recitation and in typewritten form. In addition to his qualifications as a university instructor, he once made his living by tuning pianos, a which he is wonderfully skilful. But his greatest asset in life is a happy, kindly disposition, a big, hearty laugh, and optimism enough for two ordinary men.

SCARCELY a day passes but some one says to me, "How do you get about so well? Aren't you afraid of getting hurt?"

For a blind man, as well as for a good sea captain, "navigation" is both a science and an art. Like the captain, the blind man walking along must study his course pretty carefully, and finds himself in trouble if he does not know every minute "just where he is at." In so far as a blind man "navigates" scientifically his methods can be explained, but there is also a sort of art in the matter, which comes only by experience, and for which it is difficult for him to account.

The sea captain can consult his unerring compass whenever he wishes to find out in just what direction he is going, but most blind people have no sure method of determining direction. Some there may be who have a sense of direction superior to that of the average person, but this is extraordinary. So far as a compass is concerned a blind person is generally without one.

The seaman has his instruments for determining location by reckoning his latitude and longitude, and these the blind person possesses in the shape of the general public. If he does not know just where he is he asks somebody. Almost anybody can be made to serve as an Astrolabe, but an intelligent boy who is acquainted in the locality answers the purpose the very best, for the boy is pretty sure to know the details so indispensable to the blind "navigator," and wastes no time in giving advice and offering suggestions, but quickly and politely answers the questions put to him, or gives the assistance needed. Besides, a boy is interesting in and of himself. Boys as a rule are accommodating, and when I am in difficulty in the street I count myself lucky if I meet a boy just then.

The questions one puts to people under such circumstances are like these: "Pardon me, what is the next corner up ahead?" "Is this the six hundred or the seven hundred block?" "Young man, do you know where Mr. A—— lives on this street. No. 421, I think?" "Can you tell me how many blocks further on Hickory street is?"

When there is no one on the sidewalk whom I judge to be promising I usually wait a moment on a corner till some one comes along, or walk on a block, or even back for some distance, until I meet some one. Sometimes a blind person in a strange neighborhood is compelled, like anybody else, to ask for information at some one's door. People make pretty good "instruments of reckoning" if one has sufficient knowledge to use what they tell him, and is willing to tell them just what he wants.

The seaman has his maps by which to judge his course, and likewise the blind man needs a reasonably complete map of the place where he is in order to get about much. A captain's charts are on paper, but a blind man must carry his maps in his head, and frequently they get blurred and illegible. He has a sort of mental picture of his city or village, which includes the principal streets and as many that are not principal as he can remember; the stores, churches, schools, theatres, public buildings, street car lines, and whatever else will enable him to ask intelligent questions of his friends or of people in the street. In a neighborhood where he does not possess this general sort of map inquiry is almost impossible, and "navigation" is too uncertain and difficult to be agreeable.

A seaman steers his ship with a rudder, and to help in steering himself a blind man usually carries a cane. Some use a heavy cane, but personally I prefer a light, "sporty stick," because it is not quite so awkward and does not tire the arm so much. I carry the cane usually in my right hand, and use it to locate the right edge of the sidewalk along which I am going. In this way I am always ready to pass people going in the opposite direction from my own, and I am certain that I cannot leave the walk on the left side so long as I am near the right edge, so that I have to calculate only for the right side.

If I do not get in too much of a hurry, and pay strict attention to the business in hand, I have ordinarily no excuse for not following the right side of the walk if I tried to keep in the centre of the sidewalk I should have to be careful on both sides of me, which would be difficult, besides having the serious problem of "turning out" for people. Of course, my feet tell me just when I have left the sidewalk, and if I cannot tell exactly what has happened my cane helps me to "get located" again. When I am looking for some irregularity, like a step up or several steps down, I carry the cane slightly ahead of me, but this is not so helpful and does not look so well because a cane is generally not so held.

Value of the Cane.

On a residence street the cane helps in locating houses. With it he "wearer" can feel the walks leading to the houses as they leave the main walk, and can discover their width, whether there are steps leading up to the house, whether there is a terrace or a fence or a hedge, and all sorts of similar details necessary to locate a particular house. When the house or crosswalk to be located is on the left side I carry the cane in the left hand, but this remains an annoyance, in spite of practice. In snowy weather, or when a sidewalk or crosswalk is covered with loose dirt, I can sometimes locate myself by means of the sound when I rap with my cane, but many blind people like to carry a cane as quietly and naturally as possible to avoid attracting attention.

A successful navigator on the ocean must have a well trained "weather eye," and so must a blind person walking in the street. The things he must notice are "too numerous to mention"—the material of which the sidewalk is made, and its slope, evenness and width, whether it is built up high or in a depression, whether the street and the cross streets are paved, whether there is a street car line, whether the street is built up, and if so, whether the buildings stand far apart or close together, near to the street or somewhat back, how high the step is at the curbing of the different corners—all sorts of details like these. One is on the lookout also for smells. Nearly every kind of establishment—grocery, drug store, book store, bakeshop, lunchroom, barber shop, shoe store—has its own odor, which a blind person looks for as soon as he enters a place to make sure that he is right, and by which he can sometimes locate places from without, though generally not so very accurately. Naturally odors help least in winter weather.

Of course one has to keep one's ears open to hear pedestrians or street cars or men digging up the street, or anything else unusual.

Blindness does not seem actually to sharpen the senses, but it often calls into play senses which are seldom noticed or used. A blind person can usually count the trees and telephone poles and other similar objects as he walks past them without touching them, and he notices when a building stands close to the street. He can distinguish a long passage from a square room and can locate doorways along a passage when they are deep, sometimes distinguishing by this same sensation whether the door is open or shut. He can sometimes perceive a hand held near his face or head.

Many persons often make use of this same sense in getting about in the dark. The probable explanation seems to be that external objects, like a tree or a wall, intercept the air currents and this is felt by the nerves of the face and head. The wind interferes with this sensation out of doors, and wrapping up the face and head is highly detrimental to it. This sense is, at the best, generally not unerring, and its use requires more or less strict attention. Unless one is walking carefully it is not sufficient to avoid collision with an unexpected object, but it is nevertheless a fact and is often of real value.

Blind people do not often locate things by counting their steps, as is so popularly supposed, for one takes shorter or longer steps under different circumstances, depending upon one's mood, the weather, the sidewalk and whatever is going on at the time in the street, and the endless numbers of steps which he would have to remember would make it impossible.

The sun and the wind I have not found valuable as a means of locating myself in the city. They vary constantly, especially when interfered with by buildings, and a town is not always laid out by geometry or with regard for the points of the compass. In the country these might often help.

In addition to these means of getting about which a blind person possesses he has the same faculty for narrow escapes enjoyed by everybody else. I suppose that most men going about in the streets of a city come near to collisions and perhaps to injury every day, but escape without serious mishap. The same sort of coincidences as protect other men also work together for the good of blind people. A blind man walking along the street is likely to attract the attention of many people, no matter how much he may regret it, and if he runs into danger some one near by is pretty sure to warn him or come to his rescue with personal aid. Then, too, everybody takes pains to give him the right of way for the good of all concerned, and he comes to rely more or less upon this generosity of the people, though he tries to keep out of the way as much as he can.

Avoidance of Risks.

A blind man who is wise is always careful not to take any unnecessary risks, for he knows that he above all others must avoid being permanently injured. Many blind persons do not cross a busy corner diagonally, but cross first one street and then the other where this is possible, thus avoiding the necessity of keeping out of the way of other lines of traffic at once. Where several streets come together, or where the streets do not intersect at right angles, the difficulty of crossing at the corners accurately and gracefully is increased, but constant repetition brings success and confidence. In extremity it is not often necessary to do more than hesitate a few moments at a busy corner to bring some one to the rescue, which, however disagreeable, is better than being hurt.

Tact, on such occasions, the wiser ones among blind people try very hard to cultivate, and though people are often very far from understanding the real situation they are very accommodating in offering assistance. As a matter of fact few of the many blind people I have known who go about alone have been hurt. Many life insurance companies insure blind people on the same terms with others, considering them good risks.

Blind people are perhaps not so easily disconcerted as others by a fall or a jar. I have sometimes known a blind person, after falling a distance of four or five feet, to pull himself together and proceed as if nothing had happened, none the worse for his misadventure except as to his wounded vanity. Steps downward and other unevenness which would give other pedestrians a disagreeable "jar" he holds of but little account, and one of the amusing and sometimes annoying things which people do to help him is to make a great ado over "a curb." I suppose that a blind person, though he tries to acquire a normal carriage, habitually and unconsciously carries his body in readiness to receive any jar of this kind, which he has often no way of preparing for.

A step upward or a series of two or three steps downward is not so easily managed, and for these a blind man must calculate carefully. If I have a companion I like to walk with him in such a way that he is just enough ahead of me to step up or down a fraction of a second before I have to take the trouble, so that I have an instant's warning of what is to happen without his being obliged to stop conversation to tell me. A blind person depends in this way upon a companion without effort, and anybody very soon comes to adapt himself to the blind person's needs without thinking about it. Some blind people are said by seeing friends to be unusually sure footed.

I am often told that I "ought not to go about alone." Those who tell a blind person this are not discerning. Experience has repeatedly shown that, however many accommodating friends one may have, the choice lies between going alone and going very little. Somehow your friends are never going anywhere when you want to go, and a blind man, like any other American, "wants what he wants when he wants it." People are either indisposed or busy.

If a blind person engages in any sort of business, as most of them are trying to do, he must go to the places where work calls him, just as others have to do. The ability to go about alone, in and of itself, goes far to produce a feeling of independence and equality with others so essential to every one in the pursuit of happiness. Some one engaged in educational work among the blind has said that the three things necessary to the happiness of the blind are intelligence, self-maintenance and the ability to move about gracefully and unabashed among other people.

Like his counterpart, the sea captain, the blind man finds that "navigation" brings into play all his resources. He must ever be intent upon the business in hand, quick and alert for every detail, communicated to him by whatever avenue of perception he possesses. Added to the mere difficulty of arriving safe and sound at his destination is his ever present consciousness of his awkward appearance, which tends only to dissipate his already slender resources, to "rattle" him, in popular phrase. Contrary to popular belief, he is very often unable to recognize friends and acquaintances who greet him, and of those who happen to pass him without speaking he remains in blissful ignorance. There often seems a "great gulf fixed" between him and his fellow men on the street, over which he would gladly build a wide and strong bridge.

"Go Straight Ahead."

People often misunderstand his situation, tell him to "go straight ahead," when that is just what he is making a herculean effort to do, offer him information which he does not at all need, and pass scrooby by when their assistance is indispensable, ok try to give him directions without knowing where he is trying to go.

Certainly he ought not to be annoyed, but rather amused, at these things, but sometimes at a moment of embarrassment or difficulty he is really at a loss to know just how to deal with such a situation, and often lack of tact is mistaken for impoliteness on his part. All these things together make "navigation" fatiguing, and glad am I when some genial acquaintance going my way "rides with me" until one of us has to "get off," where our ways separate.

So, with the general public for instruments of reckoning, with his charts before his mind's eye, with his cane as a rudder, with a good "weather eye" for details and by a good deal of application to the work in hand, the blind man navigates his ship, and most people seem to agree that, after all due allowances for his disadvantages have been made, he does pretty well.

SNAILS SLOW EVEN IN DYING.

A WELL known naturalist living in Connecticut tells the following incident to illustrate how slow snails are even when it comes to dying.

"About fifteen years ago," says he, "I made a collection of snails and put them in one of my cabinets. The other day in cleaning I came across these snails. I then decided I would clean the shells. I placed them in a basin of warm water to soak and left the room. I returned in about an hour and to my great surprise found the snails crawling around the bottom of the basin. These shells had been handled hundreds of times during the fifteen years and to my knowledge never showed a sign of life.

"You see," he continued, "I was then very much interested and I looked up some authorities on the subject. I was surprised to learn that the snail can live on indefinitely without breathing an atom of fresh air, although it is an air breathing creature and has lungs and a heart.

"The common land snail retreats into his shell on the approach of frosty weather, and the mouth of the shell is sealed by a secretion which is of a silky texture and absolutely impervious to air. In this condition it is plain that he is deprived of three of the four elements of life, air, water and nourishment.

ADDRESS OF MR. STRATTON TO THE ELECTORATE

Electors of the West Riding of Peterborough

GENTLEMEN,—

At a largely attended mass meeting of the electors, on Saturday, I was selected as candidate to contest the representation of the Riding in the House of Commons. I accepted the responsibility of the position and hereby respectfully solicit the favour of your votes and support.

I am well known to you all, for during a representative service of West Peterborough, practically extending over a period of twenty-five years, I have many times come into contact, directly and indirectly, with every elector of the Riding.

In the past I have been honoured with your confidence, and I have earnestly striven to deserve it. In the discharge of my parliamentary and, especially of my representative duties, I have tried to consistently recognize and live up to the fact that I was the representative of the whole people, and in duty bound to serve the interests of all collectively and individually, whether their support had assisted, or their opposition had resisted, my election.

I need not refer to my record to specify what I have been privileged to do in the promotion of the material, moral and social welfare of West Peterborough. My work in this regard, be it little or great, is known to you all. You all know whether or not I have been a faithful servant of the people, whether the Riding is better, and in what respects, from my having been your representative.

I need not be at much pains to define my position in this contest. Everybody knows where I stand—where I am to be found. Such as I have been in the endeavour to advance your interests, I still am, and shall continue to be, if you honour me with re-election.

Apart from the consideration of local—city and county—interests, the national question chiefly involved in this contest is "Reciprocity," or free mutual exchange of natural, mainly farm, products, with the United States. I believe that reciprocity of this kind will be of benefit to the farmers of the country, and through their prosperity to all other interests—manufacturing, financial and commercial, as well as to those of the mechanic and workingman.

The round of benefit is natural. Good crops and good markets mean money for the farmer, which spent with the merchants of all kinds, means increased orders for the manufacturer and increased employment to their workmen. Thus Reciprocity, by affording wider and better markets, promises to be a benefit to the whole country and an injury to no class or interest; and is worth trying, especially as the agreement, not being a treaty, can, if unsatisfactory, be cancelled on reasonable notice.

If I thought for a moment that it would hurt any important interest, especially the manufacturing interest, I would oppose it. I am neither an extreme free trader, nor an extreme protectionist. I believe in a reasonable amount of both. High tariff in the United States has lost to Canada ninety million dollars in barley alone. The British Preference as it affects our manufacturers goes as far as desirable in the direction of free trade and I am opposed to, and will oppose, any increase of it. I myself am a manufacturer or interested in manufactures, in a modest way, but, at the same time, to an extent, important to myself and my associates, and I feel that our industries and working men could not stand the keen manufacturing competition of either Britain or the United States.

In this regard, I am in accord with the assurance of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, speaking for the Government, when he gave this pledge, "WE HAVE NOT HURT THE MANUFACTURERS AND WILL NOT HURT THEM," and I applaud the stand of Mr. Fielding in negotiating the Reciprocity Agreement, in refusing to even discuss reciprocity in manufactured articles with the United States.

If you approve, gentlemen, of what I consider the reasonable stand I take in relation to national interests; if you believe, judging from my past record of service to the Riding, that I have the business capacity, the business and parliamentary experience to continue to give you good service, and justify the confidence I now ask you to again place in me, I presume to claim your support.

This is probably the last appeal I shall make to you; for I think I have done my share of service to this Riding and have thereby earned the opportunity to give the necessary attention to my private affairs. I should have persisted in my desire to be relieved had I not felt in duty bound to defer to the earnest solicitation of the friends who have stood by me in the past, and also of a great many of my former opponents, and consented to be a candidate.

Another reason that influenced my acceptance, was, that being of a business turn. I naturally desired to complete work I have initiated, and for which I am in some degree, if the opportunity is given me, responsible. I should like to see the completion of the large new docks for the City of Peterborough; of the retaining wall on our river front in Peterborough; also a new concrete dam at Nassau erected, and a Rifle Range provided for this important military centre.

Trusting that I may be favoured with your effective support, I have the honour to remain, gentlemen, as I have been for the past twenty-five years,

Your Obedient Servant,

J. R. Stratton

HAVELOCK

HAVELOCK, Aug. 15.—Messrs. Stan Holcombe and Ross Wilde spent Sunday last at Belleville.

Mr. Forest of London, Ont., has taken the position of foreman of the car repair department in place of Mr. Crawford, who has been transferred to West Toronto by the C. P. R.

Mr. and Mrs. Cain and family of Buffalo, N.Y., are camping at Chase's Landing, Belmont Lake.

Mr. Fred Fry of Toronto was in town on Monday last on business.

The Trent Bridge Regatta, advertised to take place on Friday, Aug. 11th, has been postponed until the following Wednesday, Aug. 16th. From the present outlook the affair this year bids well to be even better than the one held last year, which is saying a great deal. Last year's regatta was such a success and was so largely attended that it was decided to make it an annual affair. Aquatic sports of all kinds will be held, canoe and boat races and swimming matches being the principal features of the day's sport. The Campbellford band will be in attendance and excellent music will be provided for dancing at the newly erected pavilion on Wight's Island. Dancing will be in order during the afternoon as well as evening. The chief contest will be held in the evening over practically the same course as last year, that is, above the bridge, where an excellent view of the proceedings can be secured by spectators, both on the bridge and from either shore.

Mr. Browning of Cobalt is the guest of his brother, Mr. Browning of town.

Mr. Benor of Campbellford was in town on Monday last.

Mr. Hurford, student at Oak Lake, took the services in St. John's Church Sunday last in the absence of Rev. C. W. Holdsworth.

Miss Birdie Farmer of Watertown, N.Y., is the guest of Miss Eva O'Brien.

Miss Roxy MacKelvenie of Peterboro was the guest of Miss Stella Armstrong last week.

Miss Minnie McWilliams is spending a vacation at Crowe Lake summer resort.

Miss Pearl Johnson of Toronto is spending the summer months with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Johnson, Preneveau.

Miss Violet Vivian of Midland is the guest of Mrs. (Dr.) H. C. Kindred.

Mr. Garnet Barlow has returned from visiting with friends at Belleville, Shannonville, and Trent River.

Mr. Henry Holcombe left last week to visit his daughter, Mrs. Chas. Wilde of Baldur, Man.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Barnett are visiting with friends at Kingston.

Mrs. A. O. Sawyer returned home from Peterboro on Thursday last. She was accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Ronald McKee, and baby, who will spend a few weeks in town.

Miss Elsie Taylor of Saskatoon is the guest of Mrs. D. L. Somerville.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Deegan and baby spent last week at A. Wight's summer resort, "Cedar Isle," Trent River.

Mrs. Henry Glendenning of Manilla is the guest of Mrs. Chas. Fanning.

Mr. Bruce Greenly, late of the Bank of Hamilton, Toronto, has been engaged on the local staff of the Bank of Toronto here.

Mrs. Jos. Watson and Master Ernest are enjoying an extended holiday with friends at Orangeville, Caledon, Toronto, and Cleveland, Ohio.

Mr. T. Scott left last week for Minneapolis, Minn., where he will be engaged for the next year or so in the flotation of a fire insurance company.

Reeve Knox has proclaimed Wednesday, Aug. 16th, as Civic Holiday.

Miss Flossie Chiles of Peterboro is the guest of her sister, Mrs. J. V. A. Coon, at their cottage, "Kill Kare," Round Lake.

Mrs. Lockwood and daughter, Miss Annie, and Mrs. Farley were the guests of the latter's daughter, Mrs. P. J. Wright, last week.

Miss Petrie, who has been the guest of Mrs. Warren, Preneveau, the past week, has returned to her home at Brucefield.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Chiles and Mrs. J. V. A. Coon spent last week at Niagara Falls attending the Grand Lodge meeting of the I.O.O. and Rebeccas—Mr. Chiles as delegate for the local Oddfellows and Mrs. Coon for the local Rebeccas.

Miss Cora Monahan left last week for Toronto, where she will attend the millinery openings.

The marriage took place at Campbellford on Monday last, Aug. 7th, of Miss Emma Naucaveon to Mr. Jack Linton.

A number of citizens attended the regattas at Stoney Lake and Crowe Lake on Wednesday last.

Miss Mae Coon of Peterboro is a guest at "Kill Kare" Cottage, Round Lake.

Messrs. Jas. Thompson and J. A. Sexsmith delivered addresses at the Stoney Lake Regatta on Wednesday last.

Mr. W. Kennedy of Toronto was a recent guest of his uncle, Mr. Alick Rose, "Never Ready" Cottage, Trent River.

Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Howell of Toronto were recent guests at Preneveau.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown and Miss Whitmore of Toronto are the guests of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Brown.

The Council met in the Council Chamber on Monday, Aug. 7th, at 8 p.m. Present—Reeve Knox, Councillors Phillips and Weese. Minutes of last meeting were read and approved. Moved by Phillips, seconded by Weese, that the following accounts be paid: Joseph Catarack, carting, $3; Electric light for July, $75.41; Wm. Corneil, ——. Moved by Weese, seconded by Phillips, that the collectors time for returning the roll be extended to August 21st, 1911. Council adjourned.

Miss Mary Seeney has returned from a short vacation with friends at Brockville.

HASTINGS NEWS

Special to The Examiner.

HASTINGS, Aug. 14.—The excursion to Peterboro per steamer Rainbow on Wednesday last was a grand success in every way. The party left the wharf here about 7.10 a.m., arriving in the city shortly before noon. After taking in the sights and doing some shopping, the company embarked for the homeward trip, when they arrived all safe and sound about 9 p.m., feeling delighted with the day's outing. Financially, the committee are pleased to announce, everything was very satisfactory.

The sacrament of the Lord's Supper was observed in the Methodist Church on Sunday morning, the Rev. T. H. J. Anderson officiating. The financial district meeting of the Campbellford district was held in the same church on Thursday, quite a large representation of the clergy being present.

A number from this section attended the funeral of the late Julian Fife of Otonabee on Monday last, and much sympathy is expressed for the family who were so suddenly bereaved.

The farmers in this district are busily engaged in harvesting and threshing peas, and report a fairly good yield.

Wednesday past was duly observed as Civic Holiday in town, and the citizens spent it in various forms of amusement.

Miss Marley Fife of Edmonton has been a guest at the home of Mr. Duncan Fife.

Miss Helen Edmison of Toronto is holidaying at the home of her brother, Dr. Edmison, town.

Union services will be held for the following three Sabbaths in the absence of the pastor of the Presbyterian Church.

Miss Althea Hess left last week for her home in Wooler after a pleasant visit with friends here.

Mr. Lew. Gilchrist has returned to his home in Detroit after a short stay at his former home in Hastings.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Foster and Mr. and Mrs. J. Marks of Norwood were in town on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Beavis are rejoicing over the birth of a son.

Mrs. Case and son of Chicago, have been visiting her sister, Mrs. Jas. Fleming.

The contract for the concrete walks has been let and work will be begun shortly.

A number of the ratepayers attended the Conservative Convention in Warkworth on Friday last.

Mr. J. Anderson of Elora has been a guest at the home of his brother, Rev. T. H. P. Anderson, parsonage.

SAGEINE CURES DANDRUFF—IT IS SOLD WITH W. J. KENT'S GUARANTEE OR MONEY BACK

Dandruff is a hair destroyer and SAGEINE is the only preparation that will positively kill the destructive little germ. SAGEINE will bring life and beauty to dull faded hair and make it grow in thick and luxuriant. Sageine grows beautiful hair, soft and fluffy. It is a most delightful dressing; it is not a sticky or greasy and is daintily perfumed. Get a large bottle to-day from W. J. Kent, only 50c. We know you will realize how well you spent the small amount.

OPPORTUNITY

Master of human destinies am I,
Fame, Love and Fortune on my footsteps wait;
Cities and fields I walk,
I penetrate deserts and seas remote,
And pass by hovel, mart and palace.
Soon or late I knock unbidden
Once at every gate;
If sleeping, wake; if feasting,
Rise before I turn away—
It is the hour of fate, and they who follow me
Reach every state mortals desire,
And conquer every foe save death;
But they who doubt or hesitate
Condemned to failure, penury and woe
Seek me in vain and uselessly implore;
I answer not—and I return no more!

German Deal Over Persia.

Paris, Aug. 16.—The Matin says that Germany and Russia are about to sign an accord over Persia, in which Germany will abandon political interests in the northern half of Persia, and abstain from asking for railroad and telegraph concessions. Russia, the paper says, by the compact will agree to unite in the future the Russian railroads in Persia with the German Bagdad Railroad, and also extend the open door in Persia to German commerce and industry. The Matin adds that the accord will not affect the triple alliance.

Empire Trade Commission.

London, Aug. 16.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—In the House of Commons Lloyd-George, in the absence of the Premier, informed Mr. Page Croft that the royal commission to enquire into the Empire's resources and trade development had not yet been appointed by the Colonial Secretary, who is negotiating with the Dominion Governments regarding its composition.

As Greenwood Sees It.

London, Aug. 16.—Hamar Greenwood, M.P., writes to The Westminster Gazette giving, as he says, the broad facts of the situation in the Canadian election. As usual, he says, Quebec is the key of the situation. The only hope of the Conservatives to defeat Laurier here is to join the Nationalists who are advocating Canadian independence and no party. "Surely," exclaims Greenwood, "this situation ought to make the wildest imperialism in England pause before accusing Laurier of lukewarmness in imperial matters."

Greenwood concludes that the motto of Canadian Liberals is Laurier and larger markets, and the Opposition of the English-speaking Canadian Conservative party to the reciprocity bill is based on the presumption that reciprocity makes for annexation to the United States.

Killed by a Convict.

Pensacola, Fla., Aug. 16.—News has reached here of a tragedy in Lee County, Florida, Saturday night, resulting in the deaths of Mrs. Weeks, wife of the postmaster of a small Lee county town, and Willie Williams, an escaped convict and serious injury to a son of Mrs. Weeks.

Williams, who was serving a life sentence on a convict farm near the Weeks' home for the killing of two white men, six years ago, escaped from the convict farm, together with three other life term prisoners Stealing four horses, they rode to the Weeks' home, supposedly for the purpose of robbery. Thinking that it was her husband returning home, Mrs Weeks went to the door. There she was confronted by Williams, who immediately opened fire, the woman being killed instantly.

Tenders For Tubes.

Toronto, Aug. 16—The Board of Control authorized the city engineer yesterday to advertise at once that tenders would be called for on Sept. 21 for the tube system. Controller Hocken moved it, and after some discussion it was passed.

The controllers wanted the matter published far and wide so that all possible contractors would know about it. He wanted all the European and United States contractors to have time to prepare their tenders so they would be in by October 15.

BROKEN-DOWN NERVES

HOPELESS CONDITION CURED BY "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

MILFORD HAVEN, ONT., Aug. 20th, 1910

"I was a complete invalid, three years ago, with Stomach Trouble, Constipation and Broken-down Nerves. I could not sleep at night and my Doctor did me very little good. I was almost helpless until I began to take "Fruit-a-tives" in small doses. I have taken about three dozen boxes in all and, Thank God, to-day I am well and strong—able to do my own work—and have a baby fifteen months old, and six children in all.

I would not be without "Fruit-a-tives" in the house, and I can highly recommend them to anyone suffering as I did."

MRS. D. GUINEY.

Nervousness is not a disease in itself, but is the result of some of the vital organs becoming diseased. In Mrs. Guiney's case, her nervous condition was caused by a very weak stomach and torpid liver. "Fruit-a-tives" strengthened her stomach—helped digestion—made the liver active—and cured Constipation. Then her nerves became well.

If your nerves are "all unstrung", take "Fruit-a-tives". 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial size 25c. At all dealers, or from Fruit-a-tives Limited. Ottawa.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Very severe storms were reported at London, Ont.

Hon. Charles Murphy was nominated in Russell by a unanimous convention.

The troops fired on the mob in Liverpool, killing two and wounding many.

James Cooke, otherwise "King Cook," of McGill University, is dead, aged 85 years.

P. C. Larkin may be appointed a member of the royal commission to investigate trade.

Hon. Wm. Paterson was nominated by the Brant Liberals at a convention held at Paris, Ont.

Owing to drought and impending famine in India the Delhi durbar may not take place in December.

The Duke of Connaught will preside at a dinner given to the Canadian artillery in London on September 5.

Edward Wilkie and Frank Perry were charged with murder as a result of Mrs. Wilkie's death in Toronto.

Mrs. William Downing of Lucan, Ont., was so severely burned by the explosion of a gasoline stove yesterday that recovery is impossible.

One hundred and fifty delegates, representing nearly every part of Canada and the United States, attended the opening session of the biennial convention of the Order of Scottish Clans at Boston yesterday.

Western Harvesting.

Winnipeg, Aug. 16.—If the authenticity of the Canadian northern crop can be accepted, harvesting will be general throughout Western Canada within one week. The weekly crop report issued yesterday was most optimistic, predicting in some areas a yield in wheat of from thirty to forty bushels per acre. Generally speaking, the report forecasts general cutting earlier than other reliable sources. It claims that the yield, while not uniformly abnormal, is better than last year in all districts. Special press representatives in the western fields claim that it will be between two and three weeks before cutting is general in Saskatchewan and Alberta. It is estimated to-day that 15,000 harvesters have arrived and been placed since the first of the month.

Col. Astor's Bride-To-Be.

New York, Aug. 16.—It became the opinion of some Fifth avenue modistes to-day that Miss Madeleine Force, the young fiancee of Col. John Jacob Astor, is to be very economical in the arrangements for her wedding trousseau. It was learned on the avenue that she and Col. Astor drove in a taxicab to five shops Monday afternoon, where the young woman made it plain that $1,000 would be the limit of expenditure for her wedding finery.

In contrast to the $20,000 which a recent society girl is said to have spent on her trousseau, including $2,500 for a single gown, it was said that Miss Force objected to a $250 creation which one modiste showed her, and found one at a shop further on which pleased her just as well for $100.

Sandy Hook.

Owing to heavy gales in March, 1804, Sandy Hook was completely separated from the mainland and became an island.

Dew.

Dew forms under a cloudy sky quite as much probably as on clear nights, though the deposition may be slower. Wind, however, nearly always checks the process.

PETERBOROUGH WEDNESDAY AUGUST 16 1911

PETERBOROUGH BOWLERS IN THE LAST EIGHT FOR THE BIG TROPHY

Won Their Games in the Second and Third Rounds Yesterday and Have Made a Splendid Showing So Far.

PLAYING TO-DAY

At the time of going to press no information as to the result of this morning's game in the competition for the Walker Trophy, at the Dominion Bowling Tournament, in Toronto, in which the Peterborough rink has reached the last eight, had been received. Their opponent to-day was Skip Kelt of Toronto.

Yesterday the Peterborough quartette won two victories over two formidable rinks. In the second round of the Walker competition they met Skip William Phillip, of the Canadas and were victorious by the big score of 17 to 8. In the fourth round they were hooked up with the rink skip by J. H. Kernahan, of St. Catharines, and came out of the contest with the St. Kitts' scalps firmly tucked to their belts, thus reaching the last eight out of the hundred and twenty-one rinks which started in the competition. The Peterborough rink, which is being skipped by R. M. Waddell, has as its others members, J. H. Renwick, Chas. Seymour and D. H. Moore.

END OF ENGINE HOUSE JAMMED OUT

When the Lakefield Engine Was Backed Too Far—No Person Hurt—A Narrow Escape

BAD SMASH

A rather serious accident was the attraction for a large crowd at the G.T.R. station last night, when a locomotive was backed through the end of the engine house, immediately below the station.

It appears that the station hands were in the habit of carrying the waste paper to the engine house and burning it in the engine, and last night the assistant baggage agent was putting the paper into the engine and the caretaker told him to turn on the draft. He misunderstood the directions of the caretaker, who was at the time standing on the rear end of the top of the tender, and pulled the throttle, with the result that the engine backed right through the end of the building, breaking about half of the end out. The caretaker had a narrow escape, as he was right at the end of the tender, which went through the wall.

It was the Lakefield train, engine No. 2038, and a gang of men managed to get it on the rails and out of the debris before it was due to leave this morning, and it made its regular trip.

The accident occurred just before the nine o'clock train came in, and afforded some excitement to the crowd at the station

HONOUR MATRICULATION EXAMINATIONS

The results of the Honour Matriculation examinations, just announced, indicate that the remarkable showing of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute pupils in other examinations this year, continued in these tests. Following are the successful pupils:

BOY BADLY BURNED

Sad Accident at Lindsay on Saturday

LINDSAY, AUG. 16.—A distressing accident occurred on Saturday when the three-year-old son of Dr Sutton, Victoria avenue, was severely burned It appears that the little fellow got hold of a match and managed to light it. The small flame caught on his dress and in quick time the child was a mass of flames. He ran out in the open air where his mother was and Mrs. Sutton succeeded in putting the fire out, but not until after the child as well as the mother were badly burned.

The little fellow was seriously burned about the chest, his hips and nose, and this morning his condition was serious. Mrs. Sutton's hands and arms were badly burned.

PEOPLE AT SIMCOE CHEER FOR RECIPROCITY

One of the biggest "Hits" which the Premier has made in a long day was the climax of his history of the reciprocity negotiations at Simcoe yesterday afternoon. "Now the question is for you to answer, do you want it?" he cried and there was an instant yell.

Then his hands spread wide, he asked the help of Ontario to put an end to the race prejudice being created in Quebec by certain factions. That was too much for one grizzled man in the crowd.

"Can't stand it any longer," he continued. "Lets cheer," and they did cheer."

South Ward Bard Gives Impressions of the Campaign

The cannons are rattling their thunderous roar;
The battle is raging as never before;
From Quebec to Vancouver the foemen are flying,
The antis are scattered, in thousands they're dying.
Brave Laurier stands at the head of his troops,
As smiling, the ranks of the Tories he routs;
And orders his men to be brave in the battle,
To round them, as cowboys would round up their cattle.
On his flag, large and bold, is the word "Reciprocity,"
Which means to our country much greater prosperity.
Then, citizens, rally around that dear standard,
Let go with the winner to fight in the vanguard;
No laggard, no coward, we want in our rank;
But heroes, to advance, to attack, to outflank,
To do and to dare, and fatigue to endure—
The country is with us and victory is sure.
We'll open our gates, down our barriers we'll hew,
Shake hands with our neighbours, as neighbours should do;
What is good for the one must be good for the other,
Then we'll live and we'll love, just as brother and brother.
These lines that are written include Peterborough:
Especially the antis that hanker and worry,
To show them the state that their party has got in;
While triumphant we rally around Mr. Stratton;
He has served us so well in the years that are gone;
Great credit to him for the work he has done;
We will not, we could not get one in a hundred
To do what he's done, while others blustered and blundered.
Then haul in your anchor, advance with the tide,
Cast your votes for the man you have trusted and tried,
And shout with the victors, for good times and Stratton, Reciprocity means trade we are bound to grow fat on.

SERIOUS CHARGE IS MADE

Local Man is Accused of Having Received Goods Which He Knew to Have Been Stolen

AN ADJOURNMENT

A man named Joe Anderson, who works for a farmer near Fraserville, was fined $2.00 in the Police Court this morning for being drunk and disorderly in a public place.

"Sunny Jim" Wilson came back again. He will spend 20 days on the hill for the usual offence—drunkenness.

J. Doig was arraigned on a charge of receiving stolen goods, namely 300 pounds of copper wire, the property of the C.G.E. and selling same to Louis Florence, junk dealer. He pleaded not guilty, and elected to be tried by a jury. Some evidence was taken, in order that he might be sent up for trial, but there was not sufficient, so the case was adjourned for eight days, till Aug. 24th.

Detective Newhall, Thos. Walden, foreman on the construction work of the new power line, and John H. Allen gave evidence; also Louis Florence. Walders and Allen recognised the wire as being similar to that with which they were working. A lot of similar evidence was taken, but none was sufficient to send Doig up for trial. The case was adjourned in order that Florence's bookkeeper might be present.

ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING IS HELD IN SMITH

Mr. Stratton Warmly Received by the Electors at a Meeting in the Temperance Hall, Fourth Line---Benefits of Reciprocity Are Convincingly Shown by Reeve Graham, Mr. John Riddell and the Candidate.

A largely attended meeting of the electorate of Smith welcomed Mr. Stratton at the Temperance Hall, Communication Road, on Tuesday evening. A number of ladies graced the meeting by their presence.

Mr. T. H. Graham, reeve of Smith, occupied the chair and spoke of the benefits he believed reciprocity would bring to the community generally. He believed that every farmer, irrespective of what his political views might be should vote for reciprocity in natural products of the farm, as it would not only be beneficial to himself, the farmer, but to the manufacturer, mercnant and workingman as well.

Mr. John Riddell, formerly a farmer of South Monaghan, but now a resident of Peterborough, and a member of the Cheese Board, dealt elaborately with the benefits of reciprocity to the country in the days gone by and he hoped for and anticipated even brighter things from the present pact. The farmer must get a market for his products and there was not any use in subsidizing steamships by the million and paying agents in foreign lands to look up markets when they had ninety millions of people at their doors with open mouths ready to be filled. Opposition speakers could oppose the agreement all they liked, but every producer appreciated what it was to have a market in which to sell. He pointed out that the Cheese Board of this district, composed of Liberals and Conservatives alike, approved of the agreement because there was a better market for cheese across the line than there was in the market 3,500 or 4,000 miles away. This was the time when the agriculturalist could afford to drop his politics and vote for his own best interests. He was as good a Protestant as any man in the county of Peterborough and would not sacrifice his Protestantism or his religion for any party, but he had no sympathy with the underground methods that were being used for political purposes with the object of defeating Mr. Stratton. The latter was not going to be beaten by any such clap-trap. Mr. Riddell had more confidence in the sound, common sense of the people, and he was just as satisfied of Mr. Stratton's ability to look after Protestantism as well as any of those who were secretly endeavouring to use Protestantism as a lever to help Mr. Burnham.

Mr. Stratton, in his address, dealt with the question of the action of the Opposition in Parliament with regard to the pact, and explained the agreement, showing the advantages it would bring to all classes of the community. He showed how it would not injuriously affect, but on the other hand would benefit the manufacturer, that it would give greater employment to working men, supplying him with more constant work and better wages that it would not increase the cost of supplies for his table, and that it would give a wider market to the producer, who would have three markets instead of two.

After thoroughly explaining the agreement, Mr. Stratton took up the question of Mr. Burnham's underground methods and pointed out what they might expect. He showed that the No Tenure was a matter that came under the jurisdiction of the Provinces, and that Mr. Whitney and Mr. Bradburn and Mr. Thompson had the power to legislate in the matter if they so desired, but that it was outside the jurisdiction of the House of Commons, and it was only because the Legislature of Ontario failed to act that they were attempting to blame the Government of the Dominion. Mr. Stratton pointed out how Mr. Taylor, Conservative member of Parliament sought, during the past session, to embarrass the Government by demanding that the Government enact legislation to make nugatory the decree, and the speaker showed that the Minister of Justice in reply, pointed out that it was a matter that came within the jurisdiction of the Provincial government, and that the subject of the solemnization of marriage was still within the exclusive authority of the different legislatures.

Mr. Stratton's address was enthusiastically received, and there is no doubt that the township of Smith will give Mr. Stratton a much larger majority than it did at the last election.

The meeting closed with cheers for the King, the chairman and the candidate.

CLAIM THAT THEY WERE FORCED TO DRINK

Special to The Examiner:

KANSAS CITY, MO., AUG 16. — Mary J. Behart and Annie Laughlin commenced a suit against the Missouri Pacific railway for fifty thousand dollars to-day, charging that while waiting for a train they were forced to drink whiskey by a station agent and porter. One was a Sunday school teacher and had never touched liquor before.

SOME POINTS FROM THE PREMIER'S SIMCOE SPEECH

It would have been a crime against civilization not to have listened to those advances from our neighbours, not to have accepted the opportunity of wider reciprocal trade with them.

Reciprocity has become law in the United States, and we can have it to-morrow if the Canadian people will approve it. Will you have it or not?

The Conservative party have turned their coats, and are now opposing what they advocated for forty years.

If the farmers are to be benefitted all sections of the community will be benefitted, because agriculture is the foundation of Canada's prosperity.

If I were privileged to address an American audience I would tell them "We want to trade with you, but if the price we are to pay for it is the sacrifice of our manhood, keep your trade, we will have none of it."

This talk of annexation is simply beneath the contempt and beneath the attention of serious people.

We stand upon our manhood. We will trade with our neighbours and make a good thing out of it. And if they will not trade with us we can get along without them.

If the British people change their fiscal policy and give us a preference we are ready to meet them. I say more: that the present arrangement is no interference, is no obstacle against it, and we will bring it in.

The advantages of reciprocity are so obvious that they need no reiteration. But the more thoroughly they are discussed the clearer they appear.

This agreement constitutes a bond of peace and harmony and of friendship between the two nations.

Reciprocity will not only be a powerful factor in the material prosperity of our country, but it is an advance towards that higher civilization which recent events have shown to be within the range of practical politics.

GETS TWO FIRSTS AT COBOURG

Mr. Stratton's Horses Carry Off Prizes in the First Day's Events of the Big Open Air Horse Show—Midget's Success

BIG CROWD PRESENT

COBOURG, AUGUST 15—The greatest crowd ever present at the first day of the Cobourg Horse Show was on hand to-day, and the 1911 show promises to break all records in point of success. The crowd included a large number from Peterborough, while the 57th Regimental Band of Peterborough, provided delightful music. The entries were well filled, there being many horses from a distance.

In the runabout class, with eight entries, first prize went to Mr. Stratton's "Midget" driven by Mr. Breen. Midget is a wonder. When she is in the show ring and going she is not the same mare she looks on the street. She gets away quickly and very fast.

In the ladies' single turnout "Perfect Dream," driven by Mrs. Ardiel, with the good looking William Hopper as footman, carried off first prize. This year at the spring horse shows "Perfect Dream" has been first at Toronto, first at Ottawa, first at Montreal and now first at Cobourg. This turnout is recognized as being the best lady's turnout in Canada, and as a matter of fact, harness was never placed on a more perfect lady's mare than "Perfect Dream." Nothing frightens her. Any one who can hold reins can drive and for a lady's mare none with more perfect action or more ease in driving, was ever harnessed.

Other Peterborough owners made a splendid showing at Cobourg. Mr. Wm. Reid's entry took third place in the district harness class. In the runabout class, won by Mr. Stratton's "Midget," "Dr. Raymond," owned by Mr. H P. Kennedy, of Peterborough, was third, while in the pony class, "Gladiken" owned by Gladys Graham, of Peterborough, carried off a third prize.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unparalleled."

WEDNESDAY, AUG. 16, 1911

APT AND PROPHETIC.

Mr. Arthur Hawkes, of the British Born campaign, who quoted Grey's Elegy at a political meeting the other night, is understood by The Toronto Star to be preparing one for Mr. R. L. Borden for use on the night of September 21, and it is suggested that this might fill the bill:

"The ballots toll the knell of tax on hay,
The lowing herd will enter duty free,
The plowman homeward plods his weary way,
He voted Grit and disappointed me."

IMPOSSIBLE TO RESIST.

Hon. G. E. Foster in the House of Commons, March 15, 1898. (Hansard, 1898' vol. 8, page 194.)

"I say to hon. gentlemen opposite: Suppose the United States had put a clause in their tariff act saying the very moment Canada makes natural products free the United States will make them free, would we not have a pressure which it would be totally impossible for us to resist?"

Is not that the very situation in Canada to-day? The United States has made the offer of free natural products, (the same offer Sir John put in the National policy act, and Mr. Foster kept there.) Can the Conservatives afford to resist the pressure of the people of Canada for its acceptance?

BRITISH CONNECTION A LE BOURASSA.

The Review still flaunts in big letters at the head of its first page: "Borden and British connection." This cry, like some other Conservative campaign cries, is abjectly meaningless and unbecile.

Mr. Borden does not stand for British connection any more than anybody else.

As a matter of fact, Mr. Borden is pursuing a policy tending to create national disunion in Canada and consequent weakening of the tie of British connection. He is playing the game of treason. He is lending aid and countenance to the organization of a French Canadian party, the so-called "Nationalist" party of Quebec, led by Mr. Bourassa.

Now, Mr. Bourassa and his policy are at variance with everything British and is everything but "National."

The so-called "Nationalist" movement is purely sectional—parochial and limited. Its ultimate aim is the establishment of a French-Canadian Republic on the banks of the St. Lawrence.

Mr. Bourassa and his "Nationalist" movement have nothing common with any Canadian Briton, either Liberal or Conservative. Apart from their open hostility to British connection they are openly anxious to down Laurier. The destruction of Laurier is the only common bond between Nationalist and Conservative between Mr. Bourassa and Mr. Borden—and Mr. Burnham. If they could accomplish this by working together, as they are doing, in this election, they would rejoice together. The Ontario Conservative allies of Mr. Bourassa —including Mr. Burnham and the "Protestant Protective Association" —would throw up their hats in the air to mingle with the red-republican liberty-caps of the Quebec "Nationalist" sans culottes."

"Anything to beat Laurier" is the slogan, the war-cry common to the fire-eating, anti-British, anti-Imperial French "Nationalists," and the fire-eating ultra-British, ultra-"Protestant" Ontario Conservatives backing Mr. Borden in this unholy alliance, this unpatriotic pact.

This is the pact Mr. Borden and all honest, true-hearted Conservatives should oppose, and not the reciprocity pact, if they want to prove that "Borden stands for British connection."

"Anything to beat Laurier" has been Mr. Borden's policy for a long time. In the Drummond-Arthabaska bye-election, last year, won by Mr. Gilbert, the Bourassa-"Nationalist" candidate by the foulest, fiercest anti-British appeals that ever disgraced Canada, Mr. Borden passively applauded him and what he stood for—in imitation of Saul of Tarsus at the martyrdom of St. Stephen, "he stood by consenting," and held Bourassa's coat, while he and his candidate stoned Laurier.

Now, Mr. Borden and the Conservative leaders—some of them—are playing the same game. They not only forestall opposition to Bourassa and his candidates, but refuse to put straight Conservative candidates in the field against Liberals, and publicly and positively give the Bourassa —anti-British Bourassa — candidates their sympathy and support.

This is done by, and in the interests of, the party, or a wing of the party, who declare that "Borden stands"—head and shoulders above everybody else—"for British connection."

No more dangerous thing could happen to British connection than the success of the Bourassa—"Nationalist"—anti-British and anti-Protestant schemes of Mr. Bourassa—to kill Laurier because he is too British, too pro-Protestant, too pro-Orangist, aided by Mr. Borden and his Ontario coworkers, who seek to kill Laurier because he is un-British, a Roman Catholic, and French Canadian.

In the improbable and incredible event of Mr. Borden winning power in this election — by the help of Mr. Bourassa and his conspirators against British connection—what will Mr. Borden do with Mr. Bourassa?

Mr. Bourassa hates Sir Wilfrid Laurier because Sir Wilfrid refused him a cabinet position. He will demand the same of Mr. Borden. Can Mr. Borden refuse pay to the man who "delivered the goods?" Mr Borden may "stand" for British connection," but he stands for what no patriotic Canadian will stand for. An alliance with the declared French-Canadian enemies of everything British and Imperial, with the same object as his own—"Anything to beat Laurier."

Such inconsistency suggests the sea sickness sensation.

A FALSE ALARM.

We now have the manufacturing interests—at least some of them—opposing the reciprocity agreement. They do not oppose it because it affects the tariff on manufactured articles. They could not do so because it does not injure any manufacturing industry. It is the policy of the present Liberal Government to stand by and protect the interests of manufacturers.

Sir Wilfrid declared in parliament: "WE HAVE NOT HURT THE MANUFACTURERS AND WILL NOT HURT HIM.

Hon. Mr. Fielding, finance minister, refused to consider reciprocity that is, free exchange of manufactured articles. Mr. Taft, on behalf of the United States, wanted to include in the negotiations, reciprocity in manufactured goods. Mr. Fielding said:

"No; we will discuss reciprocity in farm products because we believe that the farmers of Canada can compete with those of the United States, but we will not talk of, or think of, free trade in manufactured articles, because we believe that the Canadian manufacturers could not successfully compete with the more highly specialized manufacturing system of the United States." Therefore the reciprocity agreement only provides for free exchange of farm products.

Many manufacturers have seen this and are beginning to change their attitude. They note that manufacturers are not adversely affected by the agreement and see that the increased prosperity that will come from the increased prosperity of the farmer will help the manufacturers and all who are dependent upon them for employment.

Manufacturers all over the country are changing their attitude and coming out in favour of reciprocity.

Mr. Borden's right hand man in Halifax, Mr. Howard Smith, who stood by him and helped him win his election in 1908, is out and out in favour of reciprocity, and is so anxious for the reciprocity Mr. Borden opposes that he attended the Liberal convention that nominated Mr. McLean, who is to oppose Mr. Borden in the present election.

Mr. Smith is the head of the largest firm of fish exporters in the world. He says that reciprocity will so help the fishing industry of Nova Scotia that the fishing fleet will double in five years. And he is opposing Mr. Borden because he opposes reciprocity.

The manufacturers who oppose reciprocity because they assert it will hurt manufacturers and destroy the National Policy, which is, according to this, the life of manufacturing, do not know their history, or, rather, they know more than Sir John Macdonald, the father of the National Policy.

Sir John passed the National Policy in 1879, and in the National Policy Act was this proviso for reciprocity, which was kept in the Act for years, and kept there by Mr. Foster till 1894. This is a clause of the National Policy Act passed by Sir John Macdonald in 1879:

Any or all of the following articles, that is to say: animals of all kinds, green fruit, hay, straw, bran, seeds of all kinds, vegetables, including potatoes and other roots, plants, trees, and shrubs, coal and coke, salt, hops, wheat, peas, and beans, barley, rye, oats, Indian corn, buckwheat, and all other grains, flour of wheat, and flour of rye, Indian meal, and oatmeal, and flour meal of any other grain, butter, tallow, meats, fresh, salt, or smoked, and lumber may be imported into Canada free of duty, or at a less rate of duty than is provided by this Act upon proclamation of the Governor-in-Council, which may be issued whenever it appears to his satisfaction that similar articles from Canada may be imported into the United States free of duty or at a rate of duty not exceeding that payable on the same under such proclamation when imported into Canada."

This is a wider measure of reciprocity than the present agreement called for. Sir John Macdonald, who framed the National Policy, in the interests of manufacturers, considered that reciprocity was an essential feature of the National Policy, and he worked hard to get it. So did other great Conservatives, Sir John Thompson, Sir Charles Tupper, Sir John Abbott, Sir Leonard Tilley, and Hon. Geo. E. Foster, but without success, and the Mail and Empire boasted that Conservatives had worked harder for reciprocity than the Liberals had done.

Sir John Macdonald and all the great Conservatives who succeeded him, did not think that reciprocity would injure the manufacturing industry; but they thought it would help it, and accordingly Sir John put a standing offer of reciprocity in the National Policy Act, and his successors kept it there.

And Sir John did not provide for an agreement to be ratified by the people or even by act of parliament. Sir John's reciprocity was to be put into force by an order-in-Council.

Was Sir John disloyal and did he want to smash British connection? Not at all. Neither does Sir Wilfrid Laurier because he negotiates an agreement like that offered by Sir John, though not so sweeping.

The opponents of reciprocity are only using this cry for effect; there is no more danger to British connection from reciprocity than there is for the most obscure law placed on the statute books. The cry of danger to manufacturing or to British connection is a false alarm.

BONDS OF BREAD COMPANY ATTRACTIVE TO SMALL INVESTORS

Bonds Are Being Issued in Denominations of $100 and Carry Interest From August 1st

Messrs. Cawthra, Mulock & Co., of Toronto, are announcing elsewhere in this issue, particulars of their offering of $1,250,000 of the 6 p.c. First Mortgage Sinking Fund Thirty Year Gold Bonds of Canada Bread Company, Limited. These bonds are being offered at 98 1-2 and carry with them a bonus of 25 p.c. of common stock, which would give the subscriber one share of common stock for every four bonds of $100 each subscribed for.

The offering has already proved very successful, more particularly with small investors throughout the country, who have in the present offering a special opportunity of subscribing inasmuch as Messrs. Cawthra Mulock & Co. have arranged to have the bonds of the company issued in denominations of $100 each as well as of $500 and $1,000. The bonds in addition to yielding at their price over 6 1-8 p.c. on the investment, exclusive of the common stock bonus, also bear interest which has been cumulative from August 1st.

Canada Bread Company, Limited, which starts out with large modern bread manufacturing plants in Montreal, Toronto and Winnipeg, will gradually establish its plants in all the larger cities of the Dominion.

A RECEPTION AT MOUNT ST. JOSEPH.

Clad in their snow-white garments,
And crowned for the nuptial feast,
Flower of earth's fairest daughters,
They enter, these brides of Christ,
Leaving "the things" of Martha,
The cares that of peace doth cheat,
Choosing "the better portion"—
To sit at the Master's feet.

Tender the ties they've broken—
A nun has a daughter's heart—
And home and friends are sweetest
When from home and friends we part.
But the reward exceeding
Is theirs for the sacrifice;
Beyond a crown eternal,
And on earth the purest joys.

What if the world, blinded
By glamour of earthly pride,
Life in the lowly cloister
Should deem it a crime to hide!
For in the final testing,
The things that it counts a loss,
Shall shine of worth exceeding,
When weighed by the Holy Cross.

So on this August morning,
With what holy joy they kneel,
Vowing before the altar,
To Jesus their lives to seal.
Hark to the swelling chorus,
From pontiff and priest and nun:
"Pray for these brave young sisters
That the Master's will be done."

—Rev. D. A. Casey.

Splendid Crop Report

OTTAWA, August 15.—The condition of field crops in Canada is presented in a bulletin of the Census and Statistics Office issued to-day for 31st July, and shows good averages for all provinces, as well as for all crops. Fall wheat was hurt by the hard winter in Ontario, but fared better in Alberta. The estimated yield is 23.24 bushels for the former province and 27.89 bushels for the latter. The total estimated yield is 17,706,000 bush. The condition of spring wheat at the end of July was 90 for the whole of Canada, being 85 to 95 in the Maritime Provinces, 80 to 89 in Ontario and Quebec, 90 to 96 in the North-West Provinces ,and 86 in British Columbia. Oats and barley have an average condition of 88 for Canada, 85 to 95 in the Maritime Provinces, 80 to 90 in Ontario and Quebec, 88 to 100 in the North-West Provinces, and 87 to 89 in British Columbia. Rye, peas and beans range from 78 to 84 in Canada and buckwheat 81 to 85. Mixed grains have a condition of 86, which is 14 per cent. less than last year, and flax is 91 ,which is nearly 20 better. The average of corn for husking is 86 and of potatoes 85 to 84—being in each case a little higher than last year. Potatoes ,turnips and mangolds range from 81 to 85, or about the same as a year ago. Hay and clover and alfalfa are 80 to 83, which is a little lower in each case than last year. Corn for fodder has an average condition of 87, sugar beets of 79, and pasture of 79. The eastern provinces are lower than the figures quoted for the whole of Canada, and the western provinces are higher. The highest averages are given for Manitoba ,Saskatchewan and Alberta. Sugar beets have a condition of 81 in Ontario and Alberta where they are grown to supply the sugar factories.

Compared with last year's crops in the North-West Provinces, the condition of spring wheat in Manitoba, south of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, is 88 to 39, of oats 88.72 to 18.85, and of barley 85.16 to 34.92; and north of the same railway the condition is 92.21 to 77.42 for wheat, 90.71 to 72.90 for oats, and 88.95 to 80.84 for barley. In Saskatchewan, south of townships 25, the condition of wheat is 90.19 to 69.33, of oats 88.27 to 61.64, and of barley 89.03 to 85.89; and north of townships 24 the condition of wheat is 98.22 to 67.69, of oats it is 95.35 to 63.88, and of barley 94.58 to 71.30. In Alberta, south of townships 31, the condition of wheat is 93.89 to 24.93, of oats 95.28 to 20.43, and of barley 93.70 to 26.36; and north of townships 30 the condition of wheat is 97.84 to 71.55, of oats 97.95 to 65.68, and of barley 106.95 to 73.60.

The area of spring wheat in the North-West Provinces this year is 1,500,000 acres more than last year and of oats 341,000 acres, but no increase is shown for barley.

The yield of hay and clover is estimated at 12,189,000 tons for Canada, being 1.43 tons per acre, and the largest yields for provinces are 4,736,000 tons in Ontario, 5,028,000 tons in Quebec ,254,000 tons in Prince Edward Island, 941,000 tons in Nova Scotia, and 895,000 tons in New Brunswick.

SPORTING NOTES

CHICAGO, AUG. 15.—Frank Gotch, the champion wrestler, has taken out three policies to insure himself against loss in his match with George Hackenschmidt on Labour Day.

The first is for $25,000 to protect the champion in the event of an accident, either in his training quarters or during his trip to Chicago. This policy terminates the minute Gotch steps into the ring.

The second policy is for a like sum to insure the presence of Hackenschmidt in the ring, and terminates when the two men begin wrestling.

The third is for $40,000 to insure the champion against loss in the pictures. Should the machines fail to work Gotch will be reimbursed for the full amount. If they fail to record any portion of the match Gotch will be entitled to fifty per cent. of the face of the policy, and if they fail to register the falls the face value is to be paid.

Driscoll Won.

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 15. — Boxy Driscoll of England was given the decision over Tommy Dixon of Kansas City at the end of an eight-round bout last night. Both men boxed cleverly. Driscoll, however, had the advantage in the number of blows landed.

McGoorty and Dillon.

Neenah, Wis., Aug. 15.—Eddie McGoorty, the Oshkosh middleweight, has been matched to fight Jack Dillon of Indianapolis 20 rounds at New Orleans on Labour Day. This is part of the elimination series of bouts to determine the middleweight championship of the world.

Mack is Scrappy.

Chicago, Aug. 15.— Packey McFarland is fighting mad. Replying to Tom Jones, Wolgast's manager, who said that the match would be held Sept. 15, if Packey did not "crawl" out of it, Packey said:

"So he says I am yellow, and afraid to step into the ring with Wolgast. I will be the first in the ring. I will show Wolgast something about this game that he has never seen before."

BASEBALL

A picked team from East City challenge the Mark Street Club to a game of ball, to be played Monday night, at the Oval. For further particulars apply to Clifford Cox, Manager.

Burke, the clever southpaw of the Montreal team, had the best of yesterday's batting at Jersey City against Jack Frill. Montreal winning 5 to 3.

Rochester made the Providence ball team look like a bunch of sand-lot hogs in Monday's contest at Providence. They burnt up three of Manager Mc twirlers, and won in a romp by 11 to 1.

Rochester garnered 18 hits in Monday's swat-feast. Home-run Mueller had a field day. He slammed out four doubles and one single in five trips to the plate. He scored four runs and stole two bases on "Tacks" Peterson. Jersey City was once the proud possessor of this hard-hitting slugger.

Charlie Tonneman was sent in to bat for Jack Frill in the ninth yesterday at Jersey City, and made good. Something unusual.

A fellow by the name of Lee pitched for Newark Monday, and Manager McGinnity was forced to take him out. Buffalo won, 10 to 4. It was a hard-hitting affair, both teams making 12 hits. Buffalo used three pitchers to win.

Manager George Stallings of Buffalo has sold Pitcher "Dummy" Taylor on Montreal.

Fred Hickey is having another great year on the mound. So far the former Leaf recruit has only lost two games out of 20 battles. Surely this is a record to be proud of.

Hickey has pitched thirteen games in the Beach Leagues, only losing two. Besides, the former St. Mary's boy has taken part in different tournaments around Ontario. To-day he is pitching in North Bay. Norman Chandler went north to catch Hickey's shoots. Hickey is the property of the Lowell club, but does not like wandering away from the fireside.

Oscar Stanage refused to let Pitcher Ed. Walsh of the White Sox enter the hall of fame through the no-hit entrance. In the sixth inning on Monday's encounter at "Chi" Detroit's only hit came in the sixth, when the swarthy catcher belted one at Walsh, striking him on the shins. The ball deflected and could not be fielded in time to get the runner at first. Needless to say, with Cobb and Moriarity out of the game and the team patched up, they lost, 2—0.

So did the Athletics. Boston trimmed them 2—1. Morgan outpitched Ceotte 8 to 1, but the champions played a ragged game in the field, besides running the bases in a foolish manner.

Paddy Bauman is making a good impression at second base for Detroit, both in fielding and batting. He has the appearance of a natural batsman and shows good fielding judgment.

Cobb is not with the Detroit team. He was left behind when Detroit left home last Sunday. Cobb, it is said, needs a rest, and has taken a short vacation.

It was announced yesterday that Outfielder Ten Million of the Victoria North-western League team had been sold to the Cleveland club of the American League. The price was not announced. He will report at the close of the North-Western League season. Catcher Whaling of Seattle also has been sold to Cleveland.

The Tigers have made more hits than any other club in the major leagues. Their total is 1,066.

Six American League clubs have hit better than any club in the National.

Washington and St. Louis are the only two clubs topped by a National League team.

Roger Bresnahan and his "comeback" has been slipped the fatal potion in the Pirates' Mocha and Java. Coney's error permitting Fred Clarke and crew to score their only run of the game.

Rube Marquard, the "just-arrived" youngster, twirled another of those remarkable games Monday, defeating Alexander "the great" in a 12-inning imbroglio.

The lone single that Stanage secured, too, was one of the scratch variety. Only three Tigers reached first base during the fray.

The Tigers feel no lower in the league standing, for Cicotte had the world's champions eatin' out of his hand.

It was a case of too much Mitchell in St. Louis, W. Mitchell of the Naps defeating Roy Mitchell of the Browns 2 to 1. The Browns annexed only three hits and the Naps but six.

For an old man, it might be remarked that one James Callahan, financier, actor and sometimes ball-player, is moving about rapidly during the playing season of 1911.

After Dahlen's crew had scored nine runs Baston came out of the ruck and ran away from the field, the final score being 13 to 9.

A TOUR OF EUROPE

From Farm and Dairy.

Hon. Adam Beck and Mr. P. W. Sothman, chief engineer of the Hydro-Electric Commission, returned July 29th from an extended tour of Europe, where they succeeded in securing much valuable information relative to the application of electricity to commercial purposes. Throughout the continent they found that electric power was extensively used for farm purposes, and the Minister of Power hopes as the outcome of his investigations that the commission will be materially aided in the proposed scheme of supplying farmers and small users of electricity in Ontario.

In the course of an interview Mr. Beck said: "Our visit to Europe for the purpose of investigating a number of important matters connected with the Hydro-Electric scheme has been successful beyond our most sanguine expectations. We secured much valuable information at the Electrical Exhibition at Munich, which was confined almost exclusively to the use of electricity in the house, in the workshop, and on the farm. Some of the interesting features were a model farm, fully equipped with electricity, and a practical demonstration of electric plowing, where from 25 to 30 acres was being plowed per day with one plow.

LARGELY USED ON FARMS

"In practically all the European countries electricity is largely and extensively used on farms of from 25 to 1,000 acres, for light and power purposes, such as threshing, cleaning of grain, cropping, root cutting, wood sawing, pumping water, milking, warming and lighting houses, stables and barns.

"At the municipal farm in Berlin, where over 400 horse-power is being used, the municipal representatives and the users of electricity were most courteous and willing to give us every information that we desired. The information secured will be of great assistance to the commission in its proposed scheme of supplying farmers and small users of electricity.

"While we found that the cost of power and light for the farm was higher on the whole than it will be with us, the cost of distribution for delivery to the farmer was less, as they do not live on their farms, but are grouped in villages. Electricity from an economic standpoint should be of greater value to our farmers, as wages are from 50 to 100 per cent. higher here and farm labor more difficult to secure.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

THERE is a little girl in our street who rejoices in the possession of a dinky little pony and pony cart. By reason of this good fortune she is, of course, the envy and admiration of almost every child in town. There is scarcely a child in the neighbourhood who is not passionately anxious to be Dot's friend.

Except—and hereby hangs the tale — except Donald. Donald is a sturdy youngster, a little older than Dot of the pony cart. He moved here a few months after she did and had hardly been domiciled a day before Dot saw him and experienced love at first sight.

Intoxicated by the position of distinction and power which the pony cart has long given her, Dot immediately set out with serene severity to annex Donald.

Both figuratively and, with the aid of her pony cart, literally, she went after him. She came up to his home in the morning and offered to drive him to school.

She took his sister driving.

If he went to the other end of the town after school to play with other boys she drove after him and humiliated him in the presence of his comrades by urging him to get in and take a ride with her.

Crowning concession of all for her, she even offered to let him ride on the pony's back.

All this had its inevitable result—Donald being a genuine boy—that his initial liking of her soon changed into disgust and dislike.

Had Dot of the pony cart approached Donald in any other way, I think she might have won out, for she is not an unattractive little girl. But she failed so utterly because she tried to drive her pony cart over an obstacle that not even her plucky little beast could surmount—and that was the intrinsic nature of boy and man.

Thus are girls and women everywhere trying to do the same thing with wealth or popularity or beauty or some kind of a pony cart. And if the man is a real man they almost inevitably meet with failure.

Man wants to pursue. He does not want to be pursued. Whether you like it or not you might as well make up your mind that that is a part of the cave man nature that is still left in any man worth the name.

"They also serve who only stand and wait," was surely said for women in love or, better still, for all women at all times.

I do believe that a woman who wants a man to fall in love with her may go after him, but only in the carefully concealed way in which a hunter stalks a deer, keeping always to the windward. She may manage to be at places where she will be likely to meet him. She may make herself as attractive as possible to him. She may study his tastes. But she must never let him suspect she is stalking him any more than the hunter lets the deer.

And then again, I'm glad for her. For, just think, she's learned now, when it must cost her so very much less, a lesson that many women pay for with broken hearts.

After all, I guess she is very, very lucky.

A BIG MOTOR

Installed in Bonner-Worth Factory by Alexander & Miller

Alexander & Miller, electricians, have been completing a number of large contracts, one of the biggest of which was the wiring of the Lift Lock, which was open to the public last week. This was a very important job and required the services of expert men in the business. This firm has also just completed the installation of a 35 horse-power induction motor in the new Bonner-Worth factory. Alexander & Miller have had a very busy summer and they still have several large contracts under way.

PETERBOROUGH MAN WAS FINED $22.35 AT PORT HOPE

PORT HOPE, AUG. 14.—A Peterborough man was in the police court on Saturday, charged with not exercising reasonable precaution with his automobile when approaching a horse and rig driven by R. O. Pengelly.

Mr. Pengelly and two ladies, Miss Pengelly and Miss Fisher, were driving near Baltieboro when the car came along. The horse took fright and the rig was overturned, the occupants suffering injuries thereby. The buggy was smashed and the occupants claimed that no precautions were taken by the driver of the automobile to prevent the accident.

The case lasted until nearly six o'clock and His Worship decided that the driver of the automobile was guilty and imposed a fine of $10 and $12.35 costs. Mr. Moore, K.C., of Peterborough, for the defendant and Mr. H. A. Ward, K.C., for the plaintiff.

SIX-HORSE TEAMS

Champions of America Will be at the Canadian National

A big competition in six-horse lorry teams is promised for this year's Canadian National Exhibition. The famous Morris team of Chicago, which claims the championship of America, will be here and it is understood that Graham Bros., of Claremont, and The Shedden Co., of Toronto, will be among the other entries. As there has always been an idea that Canadian teams could be produced to beat the Chicago champions, the competition should be exceedingly interesting.

INJURED

Son of Port Hope Man Knocked Down by G. T. R. Car at Parry Sound

PORT HOPE, AUG. 14.—Mr. Andrew Bell, son of Mr. Andrew Bell, local agent for the G.T.R., who met with the accident at Parry Sound on Friday night was removed to the hospital in Toronto. We are pleased to learn that the train did not pass over Mr. Bell's leg as first reported. He was struck by a moving car and knocked down, but no bones are broken and a speedy recovery is looked for.

Statistics In Regard To Building Permits "Construction's" Figures

An average gain of 40 per cent., representing a total investment of $1,992,258 as against $10,304,478 in the corresponding period of last year, briefly summarizes the building situation as based on operations undertaken in the thirty-one cities reporting to "Construction" for the month of June. Taking into account the tremendous heavy investment of the preceding month, the showing made clearly indicates that as regards structural development, the country in general is moving on space. Twenty-two gains in all were noted in the thirty-one cities referred to, the totals in a large number of instances denoting a decidedly marked increase.

Winnipeg's total of $2,790,250 is the largest amount registered, Toronto's expenditure of $2,384,440 shows the next heaviest investment; and Calgary comes third with an amount of $1,826,230. Calgary's advance, in view of the high state of activity experienced in the month of May, reflects a most remarkable expansion; her increase of 486 per cent. being proportionately greater than that noted in the case of Winnipeg or Toronto, where the gains registered were 15 per cent. and 3 per cent. in order named. The West, in fact, moved along with its characteristic stride; the only two places to suffer a loss being Brandon and Vancouver, their respective decreases being 69 and 22 per cent. Vancouver's set-back can be attributed, to a great extent, to labour troubles affecting several branches of the building trades. So far Vancouver has a two and a quarter million dollars increase over the same period of last year; and, according to a report from Building Inspector Jarrett, his department feels confident of an increase correspondingly as great for the next six months.

Saskatchewan witnessed heavy operations throughout, the investments ranging from $168,000 to $779,725 in the four principal cities. Saskatoon noted an increase of 301 per cent.; Regina an advance of 180 per cent., and Prince Albert and Moose Jaw respective gains of 383 and 699 per cent. In Alberta a like degree of prosperity was found in evidence, for aside from Calgary's gain, other increases noted are: Edmonton, 53; Medicine Hat, 393, and Lethbridge 5 per cent. In British Columbia, Victoria is ahead by 10 per cent. At North Vancouver the value of permits amounted to $56,415, and at New Westminster new work was started entailing an expenditure of $68,000. Neither of the two latter places submit corresponding figures, but it seems safe to assume, considering their respective populations, that both are substantially ahead. The bulk of the decreases were centred in Ontario, five of the seven losses occurring in this Province, viz., Fort William, 13; Berlin, 17; Brantford, 9; Stratford, 62, St. Thomas, 24 per cent. In several instances, however, the declines are of no serious consequence. On the other hand, Hamilton has a total of $818,675, netting a gain of 104 per cent., and Ottawa issued permits valued at $404,975, which is 33 per cent. better than her corresponding figures. Windsor advanced 306 per cent.; Guelph 274, Kingston 104, and London and Port Arthur noted increases of 15 and 180 per cent. in order named.

Montreal has the fourth largest amount noted, the aggregate value of new work amounting to $1,780,860, which is 12 per cent. better than the same month last year. In the Maritime district the situation also showed an improvement. Halifax annexed a gain of 140 per cent.; Sydney, one of 40 per cent., and St. John advanced 39 per cent.

Reports to hand give every indication of a large volume of work ahead, and it is quite evident that the present wholesome condition will see no change for at least some little time to come.

RECIPROCITY AND THE WORKINGMAN

A Dialogue in Two Chapters in Which John Hodges Argues With the Liberal Canvasser and Takes a Lot of Convincing.

Chapter I.

John Hodges is the average, intelligent Peterborough workingman, with the practical interest in the tariff which a decent citizen, with a wife and growing family to support, may be supposed to take. There is no green in John Hodges' eye. He wants to know. And he is entitled to his answer.

Perhaps John is buying a little home and is paying for it on the easy instalment plan. Although his wages are good, what with the high cost of living and life insurance and interest to be met, John complains that his nose is on the grindstone most of the time. John's difficulties are healthy difficulties. They keep him from rusting, and in the long run sweeten the fruits of his labour in a way no rich man can appreciate. But he likes to grumble a little about the trouble he has getting a home together, laying something by for a rainy day and keeping ahead of current expenses.

Nobody feels trade movements quicker than John Hodges. He feels them right away. Every honest backache tells him that his dollar doesn't go half as far as it did ten years ago. A trade question is something everybody can understand. It goes straight to the seat of understanding—a man's pocket. Laurier is lucky. Any government fifteen years old that can go to the country on a trade question is lucky. What the voter can feel in dollars and cents doesn't need much arguing. In a year's time John Hodges will wonder that he ever had any doubts. But, so long as reciprocity exists only on paper and is a dry, fleshless thing of figures and statistics, it takes some proving. John Hodges, the workingman, you will remember, is from Peterbrough, Ontario. You've got to show him.

It is the cool of a Saturday evening, the week's work is done, and John Hodges is sitting on his porch smoking an after-supper pipe when the Liberal canvasser comes along and opens the subject of reciprocity. They go at it hammer and tongs. This artless little story cannot do better than follow their talk. L. C. stands for Liberal Canvasser, and J. H. for John Hodges.

L. C.—How are you going to vote, John?

J. H.—I dunno. I haven't made up my mind. The talk's all been what reciprocity will do for the farmer. I don't give a hoot for the farmer. I'm selfish enough to ask what's reciprocity goin' to do for me. I can see where the farmer gets his all right. But where do I get mine?

L. C.—Well, reciprocity must be a good thing for everybody, because everybody seems to have wanted it at some time or other. The Tories wanted it just as bad as the Grits. Sir John Macdonald and Sir Charles Tupper and Sir John Tompson wanted it just as bad as Sir Wilfrid Laurier or President Taft. The only reason the Tories are knocking it now is because the Grits got to it first. It's a straight case of sour grapes. Look here, John, don't you think that the thing both political parties have been fishing for all their lives, the thing that every big Canadian statesman has tried to land, because he thought it would be good for him and good for the people, is a pretty desirable proposition?

J. H.—That's good argument as far as it goes, but it don't go far enough to reach me. How is my food goin' to be cheaper if ninety million people in the United States are to have the chance of buying what eight million people in Canada can sell them to eat? If you make food scarcer you make food dearer. Where do I get off?

L. C.—We don't make food scarcer. When we widen the market we increase the sources of supply. My experience is that it's always your busy man who can find time to do a little extra work. Give the farmer three markets instead of two and he will grow more, because he has the inducement to grow more. Deputy-Minister James says Ontario farmers can produce double what they do now. Reciprocity means more markets and more markets mean the filling up of the Northwest and more food products from that part of Canada. In five years the Canadian prairies ought to be producing seven hundred million bushels of wheat, of which perhaps two hundred millions will find their way to the United States. You must remember, John, that what any country has to sell is its surplus—what's left after our own mouths are filled. The greater the surplus of food for export, the better for the home consumer. The gains in the foreign market are in the nature of easy money and tend to shade home prices down.

J. H.—What's the use of handing the farmer any more money? They tell me the cost of living's gone up sixty-five per cent. in fifteen years. Who got that if the farmer didn't? It strikes me the farmer's had the best of it long enough.

L. C.—You mustn't go too hard on the farmer. He doesn't get much more for his pigs and cattle and sheep and things than he did ten years ago. Many unjust and excessive profits have come between him and his rightful share of that sixty-five per cent. increase. The middleman got the long end of it. The monopolizer has found Canada a neat little country to work "corners" in. When we make the farmer's market as long and as wide as the continent of North America, we're going to make it harder to swing beef trusts, food trusts and such. Besides, we're hopeful when we give the farmers a continental market that there will be more co-operation among them, and they will take more interest in getting their goods direct to the consumer. Didn't you notice a Toronto commission merchant growling the other day because Buffalo butter, eggs and honey were putting a crimp in his profits?

J. H.—Yes, and I noticed the World saying the Globe didn't know beans and the Globe calling the World a muttonhead. They don't seem to be quite certain about it down there. What's your own idea? Am I going to make money on this deal?

L. C.—Sure, John. If a penny saved is a penny gained, then you're ahead on the bargain. Trust two old heads like Fielding and Patterson to see that we get the jug by the handle. The Yankee may be smart, but he isn't any smarter than the Canadian. You see, we have lived in the same North American air and have a few bright tricks of our own. This reciprocity trety is going to benefit the Canadian farmer and the Canadian consumer too. It gives the farmer his turn and the consumer his also. Up to the present all the protection has been for the man who sells. This is a bit of protection for the man who buys. Your living's going to be cheaper, John. You're going to have more food and better and be further ahead on higher wages.

J. H.—Well, it seems clear enough to you, but I don't just see it yet. How is the farmer's benefit going to benefit me?

L. C.—Well, the farmer is the basis of all national prosperity. All wealth comes from the soil in the form of grain, vegetables, fruit, timber and minerals. Give the farmer more money to buy things with and you employ more workmen to make the things he wants to buy—plows, binders, harrows, pianos, stoves, furniture and all that necessary and comfortable gear of life which the workingman makes with his hands.

J. H.—That's good platform stuff. I suppose it's what you call political economy. But it's too general for me. It's an indirect sort of blessing that only time can figure out. Besides, what's this the railways are saying about diverting trade? What becomes of the workingman's prosperity if all the business is going to be dragged over to the United States?

L. C.—You mustn't believe everything you hear the railways saying. Watch what they're doing. The two new transcontinental railways are pushing ahead as if nothing had happened. The Hudson Bay Railway is perking up. The C.P.R. is building branches to the United States border. Evidently the railways are intending to drag trade into Canada. More railway extensions mean more conductors and brakemen and engineers and car builders to build more cars to replace the ones worn out carrying the increased trade. Take it from me, the railways are going to help the workingman to "get his."

J. H.—Get back to the main question. What direct benefit of reciprocity do I share with the farmer? How can the farmer and I break even if he is to sell in the dearest market and I am to buy in the cheapest?

L. C.—Well, the farmer will get better prices because the United States will pay him more for his products than the food monopolies that have been growing up in this country. Reciprocity is going to break these food monopolies up. Producers' prices are lower and consumers' prices are higher in Canada than they are in the United States. This is because the commission merchants, the packers and the canners have been beating the buying price down to the farmers and jogging the selling price up to the consumers. They have been taking two profits, playing both ends of the game for the middle. That's why they growl at reciprocity, because it's going to bust up their soft snap. The farmer will get a fairer price for his products, and the workingman will pay a good deal less than the trust price for his food. Surely, John, you're not going to vote against a reduction in the cost of living?

J. H.—My experience is that the producer puts any duty he saves into his own pocket. He isn't going to show any tenderness to the likes of me simply because he is better off. What do you say to that, governor?

L. C.—The answer to that, John, is that the workingman will not be beholden to the mercy of either food-producer or middleman. The same reciprocity that gives the Canadian farmer two markets instead of one gives the Canadian workingman that approved check on greed—competition. The Canadian workingman gets the farmer coming and going.

J. H.—As how?

L. C.—Well, you eat Southern States vegetables and fruit in the winter and spring. You are going to benefit to the extent of the removed duties on those things. The Canadian farmer, who cannot grow for the early market on account of our climate, benefits by the higher prices he gets in the United States market for his superior Northern products when they are in season, and when that market is exhausted the Canadian workingman catches him and the United States farmer too on the come-back. Twenty-one general elements of your diet, John, come into Canada for nothing, and twenty-one more come in at reduced duties. You can pick and choose from half a hundred articles of your daily food, procurable under circumstances of competition, that help the man who buys and do not hurt the man who sells. I tell you what, John, I get quite worked up talking about reciprocity. I almost make speeches I'm so proud of it. I call it the policy of three good meals a day—and as cheap as they are good.

J. H.—That listens mighty well. I begin to see it. You'll have me goin' if you'll only get down to cases.

(To be continued on Saturday)

AUTO WENT INTO RIVER

A local motor car owner had an unusual experience Monday when his car jumped the road on a curve on the Monaghan side of the river and glided down the bank into the placidly flowing waters of the Otonabee. Several ladies, who were occupants of the car, managed to jump out, but the chauffeur went down the bank with the car. Neither the driver or the car were injured, but it required considerable time to get the gasoline buggy back on the road again.

Sentence Passed on Local Barber

The sentence passed by all the particular men who have patronized Mr. Percy Lynch in his newly opened Tonsorial Parlour in rear of Payne's Drug Store, Simcoe St., is that the service is one of the finest to be had in these parts. The famous Stark system of Face Massage and Shampooing is used exclusively and therefore the shaving public receive full value for their money and more. Prompt attention and high class work at all times regardless of time or numbers is bringing this one time popular barber shop to the front fast. Mr. H. Hicks, a young local barber of well known ability, has been added to the staff and the increasing trade is assured there will be little waiting. Shop is thoroughly remodelled and fan cooled. One trial will convince you.

PURPOSES OF COMPANY

Canada Bread Company, Limited, has acquired as going concerns the plants and the businesses of the Bredin Bread Company, Limited, of Toronto; George Weston (The Model Bakery) of Toronto; H. C. Tomlin (Toronto Bakery) of Toronto; Stuarts, Limited, of Montreal, and W. J. Boyd of Winnipeg. In the case of Boyd the real properties are excluded, but a parcel of vacant land in the city of Winnipeg about two acres in extent is substituted. The first three companies have been in operation for about thirty years, and the last two for close to twenty years. They have all grown from small beginnings till they are now among the largest in their respective fields in Canada. The combined output of the companies at present is, approximately, 600,000 loaves of bread per week. It is intended by extensions to the present plants and the erection or the acquisition of new plants, to forthwith increase the output of the Company to one million loaves per week. Modern plants will later be added in the other large cities. The sum of $1,000,000 cash is being placed in the treasury to provide for the the erection of the proposed new plants and to supply ample working capital.

POSITION OF BONDS

For full particulars reference may be made to our prospectus, which is accompanied by a letter from Mr. Mark Bredin, the Vice-President and General Manager of the Company. We draw attention to the following points:—

1. The present $1,250,000 of 6 per cent. First Mortgage Sinking Fund Thirty-year Gold Bonds are secured by trust deeds to Guardian Trust Company, Limited, Toronto, constituting a first mortgage on all the property, real, personal or mixed, now owned or hereafter acquired by the Company, as more fully described in said trust deeds. In the trust deeds it is specially stipulated that of the $1,000,000 cash being placed in the treasury, the sum of $500,000 shall be held by the Trustee, to be used only in the redemption of bonds or in investment in additional plants and real estate, thus increasing the fixed assets under the mortgage. A Sinking Fund of 1 per cent. is operative from August 1, 1911.

2. The assets of the companies already taken over stand in excess of all liabilities, and without any allowance for good will, trade-marks, etc., at $841,428.70. There has also been placed in the treasury $1,056,221.06 of cash which, besides furnishing funds for the purchasing or construction of additional plants, will provide ample working capital.

3. The earnings of the present plants, as per certificate of Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co., after allowing for depreciation, amounted from April 30th, 1910, to April 30th, 1911, to $197,016.14, to which may be added $35,000, being interest at the rate of 3½ per cent. on $1,000,000 cash in the treasury pending its employment on extensions. It is estimated that, with the economies to be effected, the earnings on these plants will shortly amount to $180,000 a year, or nearly two and one-half times the bond interest.

4. With the extensions that it is proposed to effect forthwith, the company by the end of its first fiscal year should be in a position to show earnings of $260,000 a year, equal to three and one-half times the interest requirements on the bond issue, and with all the additional plants that will be provided with the cash now in the treasury the earnings should steadily gain to over $530,000 a year, or more than seven times the bond interest requirements.

5. The company, with its plants situated in the larger cities of the different Provinces of Canada, will be in an exceptionally favourable position to benefit by the marked economies that will be possible in manufacturing, and more especially in distribution, and all the time will be turning out a more uniform product under the most sanitary conditions.

6. The practical men who have made the different companies particularly successful will be identified with the management and direction of the new company. Mr. Mark Bredin, who is probably one of the most successful bread manufacturers in Canada, will occupy the position of Vice-President and General Manager, while the services of the heads of four of the different companies taken over and of an efficient representative of the fifth have been assured to the company.

ZAM-BUK CURES SUNBURN

Neglect of a sunburn on face, arm or neck often leads to the after growth of skin which is freckled or coarse; and this is particularly distressing to ladies. Timely application of Zam-Buk and regular use of Zam-Buk Soap will prevent this. Zam-Buk is a herbal balm, which soothes and cools the burned skin, and assists nature to replace the damaged tissue with soft, velvety skin. Zam-Buk Soap is specially made for tender skins.

Zam-Buk is also good for stings, scratches, heat sores, blisters on hands or feet, and all skin injuries. Applied to these it quickly stops the smarting, and ensures quick healing. As it is free from animal fat, and mineral colouring matter, it is particularly suited to the delicate skin of babies suffering from heat rashes, chafed places, etc. Sold everywhere by druggists and store-keepers. Zam-Buk 50c box. Zam-Buk Soap 25c. tablet, or box of 3 for 70c.

OBITUARY

SANDERSON.

In Toronto, yesterday, the child of Mr. and Mrs George A. Sanderson. The remains will be brought to Peterborough by the 11.26 (C.P.R.) train and interment will take place in Little Lake cemetery, the Rev. Mr Couch officiating.

Mr. Sanderson was formerly a clerk in Messrs. Neill's shoe store, Peterborough.

MRS. ALBERT NOLAN.

The death occurred yesterday of Mrs. Albert Nolan of Douro, at the age of 39.

Mrs. Nolan was a life-long resident of Douro, and her demise is lamented by a large circle of friends.

She is survived by a sorrowing husband, three small children and one sister, at present living in the States.

The funeral will take place to-morrow morning; service at St. Paul's church, Lakefield, at 8.30, afterwards returning to Douro for interment.

MRS. THOS. RICHARDSON.

(Lindsay Post.)

The death occurred Sunday of an old resident of Lindsay in the person of Mrs. Thos. Richardson. The deceased lady had a paralytic stroke on Wednesday. She was born in Cavan township, Durham county, and was eighty-three years of age. Mrs. Richardson, whose maiden name was Sarah Staples, was married fifty-four years ago. She leaves to mourn her loss two sons and two daughters, John, Oshawa; Ada, town; William, Merritton; and Elsie, town. The funeral took place to the 10.48 G.T.R. train this morning, interment to take place at Gardiner's cemetery, Cavan. Rev. Dr. Shorey, pastor of the Methodist church, officiated at the service. The following friends from a distance were present: John Richardson, Oshawa; William Richardson, Merritton; Howard Richardson and Sandfield Staples, Peterborough; Mrs (Rev.) A. Jewell, Hilton; Mrs. McBurney, Toronto; Mrs Crookshank, Peterborough; Mrs. Reid, Orillia; Miss Lucy Richardson, Peterborough.

The pallbearers were John, William and Howard Richardson and Sandfield Staples.

The late Mrs. Richardson was loved by a wide circle of friends who will miss her cheering words. She was a friend to all, and occupied a warm spot in the hearts of her family and many friends.

Steamer "Geneva" will run Thursday afternoon, Aug. 17th, trip to Jubilee Point and Gore's landing leaving Wolfe St. Wharf at 1.30, calling at St. Railway Wharf at 2 o'clock. Returning in the cool of the evening.

PAINFUL INJURIES

Sustained by Mr. Wilbert McCombe —Fell into Gaseraska River

PORT HOPE, Aug. 14th.—Mr. Wilbert McComb, who is engaged in construction work on the Seymour Power Co. at Garden Hill, met with a very painful accident about two o'clock this morning. McComb had left his horse in the Ontario House stables, but when he went over for it he got mixed up in the locality and fell into the river. His cries soon brought help from Tremouth & Jarrell's livery barn, and he was rescued. He, however, suffered severe injuries. His nose was smashed and both lips so badly cut that the lower jawbone was exposed. A quantity of gravel and cinders had become embedded in these cuts, which added much to his suffering. Chlorotorm had to be administered before the injuries were dressed, and after the operation was completed Constable Garbutt left the patient in Dr. McKinley's office and went to the Ontario House for McComb's rig. He drove him over to the hotel, and while he was arranging for his accommodation McComb drove away. He had evidently recovered sufficiently to make the journey, as we have not heard of him since.

ENNISMORE

The members of the Municipal Council of Ennismore held their sixth meeting on Aug. 14, 1911, for the purpose of levying a tax on all rateable property in the said Township to defray the expenses of the current year.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and signed.

To meet all liabilities the average rate amounted to 13.7 mills on the dollar. The improvements put in the public schools required by the provincial school board and the increased county tax raised the rates. The rate on the municipal tax is 3 mills on the dollar, a decrease of 1.5 mills from 1910.

By resolution of the Council, Patrick Crough and James Sullivan were granted $50 each, to be expended in drawing gravel on the main road, between Chemong Lake and Gannon's Narrows.

The following accounts were drawn on the Treasurer: Maurice O'Connor, building two culverts, $6, Richard Killen, building two culverts, $6; James Mahoney, repairing scraper, 40c.

The meeting was adjourned till the call of the Reeve.

Industrial War Is Declared In England Conference Fruitless

Examiner special, 2.15 p.m. to-day:

LONDON, ENG., AUG. 17.—"Bulletin."— Industrial war has been declared and the employees on all the railway lines of the United Kingdom will be called out at once. A long conference with the Board of Trade proved fruitless, contrary to expectations, and the leaders immediately telegraphed all through the country calling upon the men to cease work. At the conference, Asquith offered to appoint a commission, but the strikers turned it down.

CELEBRATE FIFTIETH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. James Sutherland, 323 George Street, the Central Figures in an Unusual Event Yesterday—Were Married in Aberdeen, Scotland, Fifty Years Ago.

Hundreds of citizens, as well as their close friends and relatives will unite in congratulating Mr. and Mrs. James Sutherland who yesterday, Aug. 16th, celebrated their fiftieth anniversary of their wedding at their home, 323 George street. Mr. and Mrs. Sutherland, who are in the best of health, were able to heartily participate in the festivities of the very unusual event.

Mr. and Mrs. Sutherland were married on the 16th of August, 1861, at 14 Innes St., Aberdeen, Scotland, by the Rev. Chas. Skene, minister of the John Knox Established Presbyterian Church. They came to Canada, landing at Quebec, on May 28th, 1868 and after a few days came up to Peterborough, where they have since resided. The family consists of three daughters and two sons.

Last evening Mr. and Mrs. Sutherland, Mrs. Thos. G. Ranton and daughter Miss Mary from Boston, Mass., Mr. and Mrs. R. J. G. Sutherland, Mr. James Sutherland, Jr., and son James, and several other friends spent a very happy evening. Supper was served at 8.30 o'clock, the guests sitting down to a nicely decorated table, laden with all the delicacies of the season. Many handsome presents were received by Mr. and Mrs. Sutherland and they were overwhelmed with felicitations upon having reached the golden wedding anniversary of their marriage. Among the congratulatory messages was a telegram from Mr. Thos. G. Ranton, of Boston who, owing to pressure of business, was unable to be present.

SAD DEATH FROM HOME OF MR. WILSON HENDERSON

He Passed Away on Board Steamer Between Toronto and Hamilton at 6 O'clock This Morning

The general public of the City, as well as a large number of personal friends, will learn with deep regret of the death this morning, of Mr. Wilson Henderson, superintendent of the City Water Works. Mr. Henderson was returning, with his daughters, from a cruise on the lakes, undertaken for the benefit of his health, on the steamer "City of Hamilton." The steamer had carried Mr. Henderson and his family, by easy stages, from Toronto to Fort William. But the voyage did not have the beneficial effects expected. On the return voyage his condition grew more serious and death took place this morning at 6 o'clock, on board the steamer between Hamilton and Toronto. The remains are still in Toronto, but will be removed to-night to Oshawa, where interment will take place. The date of the funeral has not yet been announced.

The late Mr. Henderson, who was born in Westmorland, England, coming to Canada in his early youth, celebrated his 66th birthday a few weeks ago. He spent his earlier years in Canada in railway employment, and later was connected with the Joseph Hall works, Ottawa. Here he gained the mechanical skill that was one of the factors of his efficiency as superintendent of the Water Works, with which he became connected in 1884. He was an unostentatious, but devoted, student of his calling, and, in the matter of practical engineering ability, especially in regard to his special work, he efficiency and practical grasp were not surpassed by many professionals. His work was characterized by conscientious exactness and thoroughness, and it is to his supervision is chiefly due the fact that Peterborough possesses, perhaps, one of the best laid systems of water mains in the country. Mr. Henderson had a happy faculty of dealing with men, and had always about him a loyal and faithful staff of workingmen, who, in response to firm, but considerate, treatment, served the Company with faithful work. In private life Mr. Henderson was staunch, trusty and true, of unbending integrity, and honourable in his relations and dealings. He was married during his residence in Oshawa, and Mrs. Henderson, with three daughters, Miss Henderson, Miss Mya and Miss Bessie, survives him.

The Stoney Lake Regatta In Picture Post Card Form

The Roy Studio is conducted on a good deal the same lines as a modern newspaper—that is, the proprietors believe in having a representative present wherever there is anything going on. The latest illustration of this fact is the magnificent set of photographs which the studio secured at the annual Stoney Lake regatta on Monday. Mr. Fred L. Roy, who was behind the camera, was successful in getting nearly fifty splendid and different photographs, catching the finish of nearly every race, views of the crowd, of the steamers, and of the flotilla of smallboats—in fact, the whole story of the regatta told in picture form.

The Roy Studio has as a result a remarkable series of post cards of the regatta, shipping no less than eight hundred to Juniper Island on Tuesday. The pictures will be much in demand, not only on account of the interest of the subjects pictured, but also because of the artistic nature of the photographs themselves, which are indeed "true as life."

THE RESULTS AT COBOURG HORSE SHOW YESTERDAY

COBOURG, August 16.—A record crowd was in attendance on the second day of the Cobourg Horse Show today, and the attendance was enthusiastic as well as large, taking a great interest in the entries and in the results. Some splendid horses were shown in the different classes, and the show is fully up to the high standard set in the past. Peterborough owners continued their good showing in to-day's events. In the district runabout class Mr. H. P. Kennedy's entry carried off first place. Mr. Stratton's horses won one first and three seconds to-day. The following were the results as far as Peterborough is concerned:

Tandem class, 15.2 and under—Mr. Stratton's "My Pride" and "Premier," first.

Tandem pair, 15.2 and under—Senator Beith of Bowmanville, first; Mr. Stratton, second.

15.2 and under, pair—Senator Beith of Bowmanville, first; Mr. Stratton's "Lochryan Princess" and "Latest News," second.

15.2 and under class—Senator Beith's "Yeoman Fashion," first; Mr. Stratton's "Latest News," second.

THE SINGLE ISSUE.

The leaders of both parties began their election appearances yesterday, and both confined their speeches to the tariff agreement. It becomes, therefore, as much as possible, a single issue election, with the reciprocity arrangement as the fighting ground.

Both at Simcoe and at London it was manifest that the disposition of the electors was to put all other occasion for contention to one side and to confine their attention to the merits of the one issue, which has been brought to the very centre of actuality by the action of Congress in ratifying the agreement.

There was a very large audience at Simcoe, considering the size and remoteness of the place, and there was no desire whatever manifested to have other subjects discussed. Neither, on the outskirts of the crowd, where the voices of the speakers could not be continuously heard, was there anything else talked of but the agreement. No better indication could be had of the grip the subject has taken on the mind of the farmer, who stands to be the main beneficiary of the agreement, and who becomes more and more concerned for the success of it as the days go by.—Montreal Herald.

THE GOVERNMENT'S COURAGE.

The Liberal government of Canada has the courage of its convictions. It believes in reciprocity as a means of destroying the monopoly in food supplies, which is the cause of the high price of living, and it has submitted the question to the people, trusting in the people who will benefit, the producer of food stuffs, and the consumer of food stuffs, to stand by them.

This required little courage. But it needed courage to incur the hostility of the food monopolists of the large moneyed interests, who conceive themselves attacked by any measure calculated to give the common people a fair chance of living. The government has incurred the deadly hostility of the privileged classes, which have had for forty years, the benefit of a protective tariff, and are to that extent privileged, and have been able to organize practical monopolies. Now, some of these is that connected with food supplies. It may not be an organised affair, but the effect of the conditions that the middleman, in the matter of food supplies, is able now, with no competition, to practically fix the prices for what is purchased from the producer, as well a sthe prices of what is sold to the consumer. It is not the people that are opposing reciprocity except those that are misled by the specious arguments and irrelevant appeals of those who would profit financially by preventing competition.

FARMERS IN EARNEST.

Mr. Lennox, late member for South Simcoe, though he was elected in 1908 by a majority of 1500, will have "a run for his money" this time. At the Conservative nomination convention, held on Monday, a stalwart Conservative, who said that he had voted Conservative fifty years, broke loose. He declared that as a farmer he could see nothing but benefit for the farmer in the reciprocity agreement. He proposed that as a large portion of the farming community favoured the agreement, the convention should nominate two candidate, one opposed to the agreement, and the other supporting it. Of course, in a carefully hand-picked Conservative convention, his suggestion was unheeded. At the close of the convention the revolting Conservative arose and told the convention that they need not consider the issue dead. As a consequence an independent Conservative Association, will bring out a candidate, Mr. Thomas Hammell, a farmer, and they will hold public meetings in every polling division in the interests of the Conservative canddfate in favour of reciprocity. Mr. Lennox will have his work cut out for him, and will have his big majority greatly pared down, if not wiped out.

Farmers unhesitatingly recognize that the reciprocity agreement is a national benefit. Free exchange of their products will make them prosperous, and their prosperity will be distributed all over the country—helping merchants, manufacturers and working men.

They realize that competition in markets, will not only bring them prices based on the merits of their products, but that this competition will prevent the middleman, who is the real author of the high cost of living, from putting the farmer off with any price he sees fit to offer, and prevent the middlemen from extorting high prices from the consumer.

There is no antagonism between the farmer and the town dweller. They are both hit by the middleman, who at present is able to put off the farmer, the producer, with low prices and extort high prices from the consumer. Reciprocity, by providing a larger market and competition, will prevent this, in the interests of both producer and consumer.

DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT

"LET WELL ENOUGH ALONE."

"Let well enough alone" is the cry of the Conservatives in this campaign as an argument against reciprocity—a measure calculated to benefit the farmer, and, through his prosperity, every class of the community.

It is a good enough argument to put up to a dead Canadian; but it does not appeal to a live Canadian. Is there a man or woman, boy or girl, in Canada that would want to live up to that doctrine in any business or concern of life?

If Canadians adopted the let-well-enough-alone policy, all enterprise and ambition to rise would be killed. Every man would stagnate in his little groove.

This cry is as little applicable to national as to personal affairs. There is one good thing, however, from a party point of view, in the Conservatives raising the cry of "Let well enough alone." To make good their point they have to bear witness to the magnificent success and splendid progress and prosperity that have attended the fifteen years administration of the Liberal Government.

In a Conservative campaign-pamphlet sent broadcast throughout the country we find the following to show how great is the "well-enough" under Liberal rule that the Conservatives want "let alone":

"Without delving into masses of statistics which fill Government blue books, two or three citations from the Budget speech on April 4th, 1911, of Mr. Fielding, will make the situation abundantly clear—imports and exports illustrate the amount of external business done by our people; Government income and expenditure show the cost of National house-keeping, and the National debt indicates the permanent obligation we are carrying and our ability to carry it. Take our exports and imports:

Eleven months' total trade, from March 31st, 1910, to February 28th, 1911, totalled $687,476,368, an increase of $76,798,000 over the like period of the previous fiscal year.

	Exports	Imports	Total Trade
1900—	$191,894,798	$189,622,531	$381,517,254
1905—	203,316,872	266,834,417	470,151,289
1910—	309,682,431	418,730,764	728,413,195

As to income and expenditure:

	Revenue.	Expenditure.	Surplus
1910-11	117,500,000	87,000,000	30,500,000

"The National debt is $340,168,546, or $43.69 per head of the population, against $49.00 twenty years ago. The people are far more able to carry their liability than they were in 1891. for, as Mr. Fielding said: 'Twenty years ago it would have taken six years' positive revenue to pay the net debt; to-day, less than three years' revenue would pay the whole net debt of Canada.'

"The national policy of protection of east and west trade, and of British connection has been accompanied by a growing capacity for carrying the National debt, a growing investment of British capital in Canada, a growing trade with the Mother country, and a growing immigration of British-born people.

"Mr. Fielding in his budget speech said Canadian trade with Great Britain had grown from $140,842,858 in 1900, to $346,573,730 in 1910. It is rapidly increasing because of Canada's increasing power to supply the British market and of the greater efforts of the British manufacturers to supply the Canadian market.

"The overshadowing feature of our commercial relationship with Great Britain has been the investment of capital in every field of Canadian enterprise. The British Government recently appointed a Trade Commissioner for Canada, Mr. Richard Grigg, whose second report, issued on April 1st, 1911, shows that in the five years ending 1909, British investors sent $805,453,852 to Canada, irrespective of the millions brought by settlers and private individuals. It is worth while to examine the widespread distribution of these investments:

Canadian Bank shares	$ 1,125,000
Investments with Loan and Mortgage Companies	5,719,774
British Insurance Companies' Investments	9,731,742
Municipal bonds sold privately	10,000,000
Industrial investments	22,500,000
Land and timber investments	10,000,000
Mining investments	56,315,500
Public flotations in London (Govt. Railway, etc.)	481,081,836
Totals	$605,453,852

The above is from a Conservative campaign pamphlet. The most enthusiastic and optimistic "Grit" could not have compiled a stronger testimony than that provided by the "Tory" pamphleteers of the great prosperity that has resulted from Liberal rule, in order to make good their appeal to "Let well enough alone." They show that the only case in which "let well enough alone" applies, is to keeping the Liberal Government, under which all this prosperity, admitted and emphasized, in the campaign literature of the Conservatives, in power. The Liberal Government readjusted the tariff in 1897 so as to conduce to this prosperity; they helped the manufacturer, not by raising the tariff, but by removing, or lessening, the tariff on raw material used by manufacturers, and we see the result, as admitted and emphasized by Conservatives, themselves.

The Government has the same interest now in helping the manufacturer.

They helped him in 1897 by lessening the tariff. They now propose to help him again by lessening or removing the tariff on farm products to the benefit of the farmer, whose increased prosperity will be shared by every class of the community. The same Government that considered and helped the manufacturer and the working man, in 1897, have the same interest in the manufacturers now. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in Parliament, the past session, gave this pledge: WE HAVE NOT HURT THE MANUFACTURER AND WILL NOT HURT HIM. And Mr. Fielding, in the reciprocity negotiations, refused absolutely to consider reciprocity in manufactured articles. The reciprocity agreement does not deal with the tariff on manufactured articles—only makes farm products free both ways.

"Let well enough alone" by all means, when it comes to retaining the services of a Liberal Government, whose work the Conservatives deliberately and officially praise.

As Hon. George P. Graham put it at Brockville: "Did you ever hear of the removal of taxation on food increasing the cost of living?"

Reciprocity And The Workingman

Some opponents of Reciprocity seem to be comforting themselves with the expectation that many workingmen, especially those employed in factories, will vote against Reciprocity. The expectation is apparently based on the assumption that many of the owners and managers of factories are opposed to Reciprocity; that they will attempt to dictate to their employees as to how they shall vote, and that the employees will accept the dictation, sacrificing at once their manhood and their citizenship.

It is hard to believe that there is any ground for such an assumption. The manufacturers as a class are not opposing the Reciprocity Agreement. Why should they oppose it? They stand to gain their full share from the increased prosperity which the agreement is expected to bring to farmers and consumers. They stand to make this gain without any material sacrifice of the special privileges they enjoy from a protective tariff. More than that, much more than that if the farmers and consumers are allowed to satisfy themselves by the ratification of this agreement, the agitation against the protective tariff will lose much of its force and the position of the protected manufacturer will be more secure.

But even if the manufacturers as a class were opposing Reciprocity, no one has a right to assume that they would attempt to coerce their employees, or that the employees would allow themselves to be coerced. This is a free country. The ballot is as sacred and as secret for the employee as for the employer. And under existing conditions, there are few employers very anxious to antagonize their employees.

Why then should it be taken for granted that any workingman will vote against Reciprocity. The constant complaint of the workingman, both in Canada and the United States, is that the cost of living has gone up out of all proportion to the increase in his earnings. Every workingman knows well enough—or at any rate his wife does—that the dollar does not go much farther now than fifty cents used to go in supplying the needs of the home. This is true, too, in the face of the fact that the continent of North America was never so productive as it is to-day. Is the working man getting his fair share of the production? If not, why?

One answer is that the free distribution of the products of the continent is seriously interfered with by artificial barriers maintained by both countries in the form of tariff walls. The purpose of Reciprocity in natural products is to remove these tariff barriers, and permit the natural law of supply and demand to have full scope. The effect will be to place the products of the whole continent at the disposal of the people of the continent. The producer will benefit by having all the fields, gardens and pasture lands of the whole continent to draw from for his food supply. In the early spring, before the Canadian producer is able to supply the home market with fruits and vegetables, the Canadian consumer will be able to buy the products of the south untaxed. When fruit or vegetables are scarce in Canada, the Canadian consumer will have the whole continent to draw from. The Canadian consumer eats American fruits and vegetables now, in the spring especially, if his purse can afford it; but he pays a heavy tax for the privilege of doing so. Would it be an insult to him, or to his wife, if the tax were removed?

Among the items on which the tariff duties are to be swept away entirely are cattle, horses, and mules, swine, sheep and lambs, poultry (dead and alive), wheat, rice, oats, barley, buckwheat, beans, dried peas, potatoes, butter, cheese, milk, cream, eggs, honey, fresh and salted fish, vegetables, fresh fruit, and several varieties of dried fruits. Why should any working man be expected to vote against a measure that would afford him the privilege of buying these things untaxed? The workingman is no fool. He knows the value of a dollar when he earns it; it is to be supposed that he does not know the value of a dollar when he spends it for food. If he does not, his wife does.—Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

An unscrupulous magazine publisher has recently cheated me out of the pay for many months' faithful work. He has taken advantage of the fact that I am a woman too far away to attend to the matter in person, to completely ignore all my written requests and demands for payment.

He is my first experience of a dishonourable business man, and a bitter one. I can't think of my transactions with him without being overwhelmed by a perfect fury at the injustice I suffered.

I was saying as much to another big business man the other day.

"Don't feel that way, Miss Cameron," he said. It's foolish."

"Haven't I reason to?" I demanded.

"Yes," he admitted, "but more reason not to."

"Don't you see," he went on, "you are letting him do more harm than he has already done you. Every time you get in that fury you are letting him steal your peace of mind as well as your money. Fretting over anything like that I call 'futile piffle,' to quote Stalky. I'll tell you my rule about all such matters, Miss Cameron, and you can see for yourself if it isn't a good one. 'Never use up energy in a way in which you get no return.'"

I most emphatically think it is a good rule.

Don't you?

Not only about getting angry uselessly, but about many other things which are just as much "futile piffle."

Perpetually fretting because one cannot have as much as one's neighbour for one instance.

Perpetually worrying about the future, for another.

Getting all worked up because someone else will not see things or do things the way you do yourself, for another.

I know a woman who can never see a certain child of her neighbour who, being named for his father, is usually called "Junior," without saying fretfully, "I don't see why they will call that child 'Junior.' I think it's a shame not to call him by his own name."

These are all the instances of wasted energy that I can think of just now, but doubtless you can supply others from your own outlook on life.

Doubtless we could all find ourselves doing and thinking and saying a dozen things every day that would give us a reason to reprove ourselves and remind ourselves not "to use up energy in a way in which you get no return."

BETTY'S SURPRISE

A Short Story

Betty patted Condon's arm as the trolley left the streets of the little suburb and swung out upon the right of way.

"I always felt that we are 'really and truly' started when we leave Centre Street and start across the fields," she said with a little laugh. "Just think, Billy, we're going to hear the greatest pianist and the greatest violinist to-night. It seems too good to be true. I've been wanting to hear them for ever so long, but—"

"I know," assented Condon. "Sometimes I'm sorry, dear, that you married me. Now there was Bigley."

A tiny gloved hand interrupted the remark with loving pressure and Betty's face grew bright. "Billy Condon, I'd rather have you than a dozen pianists and 40 violinists—and Ben Bigley—and you know it."

Condon smiled down into the piquant face, but in his heart he sighed. He could give Betty so few treats. This trip to town to attend the most important concert of the season has been made possible only through the generosity of Betty's aunt. Betty never complained, but he knew what a treat it would be to her music-hungry little soul. They had given up much for each other, she as well as he.

When they were married in defiance of Amos Condon's mandate, that choleric individual had dismissed his nephew from the comfortable position which the latter had held in his uncle's office, declaring that he would never contribute a cent to the support of Betty Milton. Billy had promptly found another position, but at less than half the salary, and the two years of their married life had been a severe struggle, though they had been more than happy in each other's love. It was only on occasions like the present, that some unexpected treat offered, that Betty's eager enjoyment showed how sadly she missed the little pleasures which they had shared in their courtship days.

Betty's eyes grew more eager as they reached the city and neared the Music Hall. A veritable mob seethed in front of the place and policemen with difficulty restrained their eagerness. Betty clutched Billy's arm that she might not be separated from him, and they pressed forward. They had only reached the compact portion of the mob when a big policeman stopped them.

"You don't want to take a lady into this jam," he said severely. "You ought to know better."

"But we have tickets," explained Billy, "and this seems to be the only way to get in."

"Tickets for what?" asked the policeman. "There's no tickets to-night."

Billy produced the precious slips of cardboard and the officer grinned.

"I ought to go in and punch the manager," he said. "You are the seventh I've had. It seems that the printer made a mistake and got one of the figures upside down. These are for the 19th, not the 16th. This is a mass meeting to protest against the new tax rate."

"And it's not until Friday?" asked Betty, dolefully. The policeman pointed to a huge announcement pasted on the bulletin board.

"They did the best they could to get the mistake corrected," he explained, "but I guess you didn't see the advertisement. I'll help you get out of this."

Sheltered behind his burly form, they made their way against the human tide, glad of their blue-coated bulwark. Betty's lips were tremulous with disappointment and Billy did some rapid figuring. He could do without that new pair of shoes he wanted. By the time they were free of the crowd his mind was made up.

"We'll have two sprees instead of one," he announced. "We can come in again Friday to hear the concert, and meanwhile we'll have that little supper we had planned for after the concert."

"We didn't plan a supper," protested Betty.

"I did—for us," corrected Condon. It was to be a surprise. We'll go to the Neeton and do it up brown."

"But it will cost such a lot," protested Betty. "It will cost $3 or $4."

"I don't care if it's five," protested Billy, and the quick change in Betty's expression repaid him for the sacrifice he was making.

Proudly he led the way into the dining room of the Neeton. It was the newest and most fashionable hotel. In the excitement of dining in state, Betty forgot all about her disappointment over the concert.

They had had only a light supper before starting, and the savory dishes held their attention. Not until the coffee was brought and Billy had recklessly ordered a cigar did he notice in a far corner his Uncle Amos and then only when the waiter asked him to step across the room to the gentleman he indicated.

To Billy's surprise his uncle was smiling.

"Getting to be a gay old boy," he commented roguishly as Billy faced him defiantly. "She's a pretty little thing, all right; worth a dozen of John Millen's girls. What would your wife say if she could see you with the little one?"

"That is my wife," explained Billy. "She was Elizabeth Millen and she is James Millen's daughter, not John Millen's."

"I thought you married Beatrice Millen," said his uncle, in surprise.

"They used to call her Betty, too. This girl doesn't even belong to the same family. I was a fool to jump at conclusions like that. Take me over and let me get acquainted, and, Billy, that job's open for you again, if you'll come back to work for an old fool. We'll make it $5,000 a year. Is it a go, my lad? I've missed you."

The gruff voice broke on the last speech and that won the day. Billy clasped the other man's hand.

"Come and meet my wife, uncle," he said, simply. "This is a day of surprises for Betty, and yours is the best of all."—Freeman West, in St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Spring Humors

Result From the Poisoned Condition of the Blood

Discharge is Checked---Sores Are Cleaned Out and Healed by

Dr. Chase's Ointment

Aside from the suffering caused by pimples, sores and skin eruptions, there is the annoyance and embarrassment to which they give rise, particularly when on the hands or face.

It is quite proper to try to get the blood right by use of internal treatment, but this is a tedious method of overcoming the skin troubles, which can so readily be gotten rid of by using Dr. Chase's Ointment.

The three pricipal ingredients of this great, soothing, healing ointment are the most potent known to the medical profession as a means of cleaning out sores and ulcers, destroying morbid growth, lessening the discharge, preventing blood-poisoning and stimulating the healing process.

Dr. Chase's Ointment stops itching almost as soon as applied and often heals almost like magic.

The time required for cure depends on the nature of the ailment, but, unlike internal treatment, the benefits are apparent to the eye, and you can note from day to day the improvement made.

The wonderful success of Dr. Chase's Ointment in the cure of eczema, salt rheum, psoriasis and old sores and wounds is sufficient proof that it is bound to be satisfactory in the treatment of less severe diseases of the skin. 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. WELL KNOWN AMERICAN AUTOMOBILE

To Be Manufactured by a Canadian Company at Hamilton, Ont.

Hamilton's growing list of live industries is substantially increased by the location of a factory by a Canadian Company to manufacture the well-known Schacht Automobile.

The Schacht Motor Car Co., of Cincinnati, Ohio, have been manufacturing Schacht motor cars for the past eleven years, in which time they have successfully marketed 40,000 motor vehicles. The Canadian demand for a medium priced car of high power and reputable quality has induced the Canadian capital interested to obtain from the American manufacturers the Canadian rights for the Schacht line of cars and trucks. The Company has been organized with a capital fully paid up of $350,000.

Besides the manufacture of the various models of pleasure motor cars, the Schacht Motor Car Co., of Canada Limited, will also go extensively into truck and delivery cars.

The Hamilton plant has been purchased and a most modern equipped factory will soon be in condition to supply the demand for the Schacht car.

The car itself is little known in Canada, but the growth of the business in the United States in the past eleven years is sufficient to testify to its popularity.

POST CARD COLUMN

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—If these reputed monkey brand men—the higher (?) critics—who have rejected God's record of the creation of man as found in the Book of Genesis, and who have accepted Darwin's theory of evolution, which says that man evolved up from the lowest order of slime, through jelly fish, etc., and then into the monkey, and from the monkey into man; if, I say, these modern scholars, who say they believe all this theory, really believe what they teach, they would see to it that a statute of that most wonderful brute, the monkey, be placed on every college green, in every public square and park. Yes; and if they really believed that the ape or monkey is the grand-sire of all the race and produced all the illustrious men and women whose names ornament the pages of the history of mankind, then they should immediately demand that a magnificent statue of the monkey be placed in Westminster Abbey, among the mortal remains of the most illustrious of the sons of said Mr. Monkey.

It cannot be said that the higher (?) critics are guilty of ancestorial worship. No, nor do they honour their monkey relations as they should. These reputed monkey offspring, the higher (?) critics, should see to it that their very near relatives, now living, should be placed in more honourable positions than just being caged up in some zoo, or menagerie, or trailed at the end of a rope through our dusty streets by some foreign organ grinder.

Is it not significant, and suspicious, Mr. Editor, that in all the past six thousand years of the history of the ape it is not known, nor recorded anywhere in history, that any ape has advanced in this process of evolution to any degree, not even so much as to the extent of wiggling off his tail. He is the same old monkey to-day that he was thousands of years ago. When did this wonderful process of evolution stop? In all the history of monkeydom, Mr. Editor, it has never been recorded that the monkey was ever known to worship or serve the true God.

It must be admitted, Mr. Editor, in this respect, these self-reputed offspring of the monkey, the higher (?) critics resemble their great-grand sire.

John Carlisle.

ADDRESS OF MR. STRATTON TO THE ELECTORATE

Electors of the West Riding of Peterborough

GENTLEMEN,—

At a largely attended mass meeting of the electors, on Saturday, I was selected as candidate to contest the representation of the Riding in the House of Commons. I accepted the responsibility of the position and hereby respectfully solicit the favour of your votes and support.

I am well known to you all, for during a representative service of West Peterborough, practically extending over a period of twenty-five years, I have many times come into contact, directly and indirectly, with every elector of the Riding.

In the past I have been honoured with your confidence, and I have earnestly striven to deserve it. In the discharge of my parliamentary and, especially of my representative duties, I have tried to consistently recognize and live up to the fact that I was the representative of the whole people, and in duty bound to serve the interests of all collectively and individually, whether their support had assisted, or their opposition had resisted, my election.

I need not refer to my record to specify what I have been privileged to do in the promotion of the material, moral and social welfare of West Peterborough. My work in this regard, be it little or great, is known to you all. You all know whether or not I have been a faithful servant of the people, whether the Riding is better, and in what respects, from my having been your representative.

I need not be at much pains to define my position in this contest. Everybody knows where I stand—where I am to be found. Such as I have been in the endeavour to advance your interests, I still am, and shall continue to be, if you honour me with re-election.

Apart from the consideration of local—city and county—interests, the national question chiefly involved in this contest is "Reciprocity," or free mutual exchange of natural, mainly farm, products, with the United States. I believe that reciprocity of this kind will be of benefit to the farmers of the country, and through their prosperity to all other interests—manufacturing, financial and commercial, as well as to those of the mechanic and workingman.

The round of benefit is natural. Good crops and good markets mean money for the farmer, which spent with the merchants of all kinds, means increased orders for the manufacturer and increased employment to their workmen. Thus Reciprocity, by affording wider and better markets, promises to be a benefit to the whole country and an injury to no class or interest; and is worth trying, especially as the agreement, not being a treaty, can, if unsatisfactory, be cancelled on reasonable notice.

If I thought for a moment that it would hurt any important interest, especially the manufacturing interest, I would oppose it. I am neither an extreme free trader, nor an extreme protectionist. I believe in a reasonable amount of both. High tariff in the United States has lost to Canada ninety million dollars in barley alone. The British Preference as it affects our manufacturers goes as far as desirable in the direction of free trade and I am opposed to, and will oppose, any increase of it. I myself am a manufacturer or interested in manufactures, in a modest way, but, at the same time, to an extent, important to myself and my associates, and I feel that our industries and working men could not stand the keen manufacturing competition of either Britain or the United States.

In this regard, I am in accord with the assurance of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, speaking for the Government, when he gave this pledge, "WE HAVE NOT HURT THE MANUFACTURERS AND WILL NOT HURT THEM," and I applaud the stand of Mr. Fielding in negotiating the Reciprocity Agreement, in refusing to even discuss reciprocity in manufactured articles with the United States.

If you approve, gentlemen, of what I consider the reasonable stand I take in relation to national interests; if you believe, judging from my past record of service to the Riding, that I have the business capacity, the business and parliamentary experience to continue to give you good service, and justify the confidence I now ask you to again place in me, I presume to claim your support.

This is probably the last appeal I shall make to you; for I think I have done my share of service to this Riding and have thereby earned the opportunity to give the necessary attention to my private affairs. I should have persisted in my desire to be relieved had I not felt in duty bound to defer to the earnest solicitation of the friends who have stood by me in the past, and also of a great many of my former opponents, and consented to be a candidate.

Another reason that influenced my acceptance, was, that being of a business turn, I naturally desired to complete work I have initiated, and for which I am in some degree, if the opportunity is given me, responsible. I should like to see the completion of the large new docks for the City of Peterborough; of the retaining wall on our river front in Peterborough; also a new concrete dam at Nassau erected, and a Rifle Range provided for this important military centre.

Trusting that I may be favoured with your effective support, I have the honour to remain, gentlemen, as I have been for the past twenty-five years,

Your Obedient Servant,

J. P. Stratton

RICHARD HALL & SON

MR. F. D. KERR'S CAMPAIGN IN THE NORTH COUNTRY

Liberal Candidate in the East Holds Enthusiastic Meetings at Haultain, Apsley, Clysdale and Lasswade and Finds the People of the District Strongly in Favour of Reciprocity Agreement.

Haultain Meeting.

The first public meeting of the campaign in the Liberal interests for East Peterborough was held on Monday afternoon at Haultain when addresses were delivered by the candidate, Mr. F. D. Kerr, Mr. Edward Hawthorne, candidate for the local Legislature, and Mr. W. A. Richardson, of Norwood, secretary of the East Peterborough Association.

Mr. William Bolton acted as chairman, and introduced the speakers. The first speaker, Mr. W. A. Richardson, discussed the reciprocity issue, and pointed out how that it was especially intended to benefit the farmers and in a convincing manner demonstrated the benefits of reciprocity. Mr. Hawthorne spoke at some length on the public issues, and soon made himself at home with his audience and from a farmer's standpoint dealt with the benefits of reciprocity. Mr. F. D. Kerr, the candidate, made a rousing address, covering the whole political questions of the day and was warmly applauded.

The meeting concluded with hearty cheers for the King and the Liberal candidate.

At Apsley.

The meeting at Apsley on Monday took place in the Town Hall, which was completely packed, many having to stand, and others sat in every possible corner of the room. The occasion was graced by the presence of a number of ladies, who took great interest in the proceedings.

Mr. Duncan Brown acted as chairman, with Mr. Tucker, the reeve, as vice-chairman.

Mr. Richardson, in his address, said that the recent reciprocity agreement was only for such a period as the people of Canada desired to have it, and advised the electors not to be frightened by disloyalty cry, but to try the reciprocity agreement and advised the people not to lose the chance of greater markets. He pointed out that opposition had frequently been shown in the past, to wise measures of government and progress, presented by the government of the day, and stated that the Conservative opposition had in their day opposed the Temiskaming & Northern Railway simply and solely because it was a government measure, while now it was recognized as a great Ontario asset. He pointed out that opposition to the Canadian Pacific Railway had proved to be a mistake, and showed how an opposition makes the mistake of opposing the best measures, such as was now presented by reciprocity. Mr. Richardson urged the farmers to fight for a policy that was especially made for their benefit, and warmly advised them to vote for F. D. Kerr as member for East Peterborough.

Mr. E. A. Hawthorne, the Liberal candidate for the Legislature, remarked that in the afternoon he had at Haultain made a political speech. He was glad to renew friendships that he had made in earlier days, and entered into a short discussion of the reciprocity question, dealing from a farmer's standpoint. He pointed out how it would develop and increase the trade in the products of the dairy and the farm, and by giving increased prices to the Canadian farmer the increased prices would benefit the country. He felt assured that the electors would be acting wisely and well in sending as representative for East Peterborough the Liberal candidate, Mr. F. D. Kerr, who had, during his residence of fifteen years and upwards in Peterborough county, become so well and favourably known to the majority of the electors of East Peterborough. Mr. Hawthorne evidently made good with the electors at Apsley.

The candidate Mr. F. D. Kerr, on being called upon, was received with great enthusiasm, and proceeded to deliver an eloquent speech dealing with the issues of the day. He pointed out that the game of crying disloyalty was an old game that had been played for at least fifty years in Canadian history, and said that he was glad to know and to believe that Conservatives and Liberals alike were one in loyalty to the King, the flag and to British and Canadian citizenship. Sir Wilfrid Laurier had distinguished himself and had aided the cause of the British Empire by the magnificent position taken by him at the Empire conferences at England, and had received thanks for his splendid assistance from such men as the Premier of Great Britain and Ireland, Sir Edward Grey the Minister of Foreign Affairs, the Colonial Secretary, Mr. Harcourt, and Lord Haldane, the Minister of War. The Liberal party might well be proud of a leader who received the thanks of all those upon whom the burden of Empire rested, even if he was decried by some unknown scribbler writing for the Mail and Empire and other political papers, who for party purposes, sought to belittle the magnificent Canadian and Great Britain's Empire statesman.

Taking up the address of Mr. Sexsmith delivered at Norwood on the occasion of his nomination, Mr. Kerr pointed out that Mr. Sexsmith had there stated that he (Mr. Sexsmith) had reached a conclusion adverse to reciprocity even before Mr. Fielding had concluded his speech. He felt satisfied that a farming constituency would never rest content with the judgment of a man who reached a conclusion so hastily and so rapidly without hearing what was to be said in its favour. Mr. Sexsmith in his opinion knowing the bill was intended for the benefit of the farming community, should have reached a decision adverse to reciprocity only after the greatest of consideration.

Unfortunately he was blinded by a desire to aid his party, and without waiting to learn, rushed into the fray, fighting on behalf of the trust, the mergers, the vested interests and the classes without regard to the interests of the great farming industry and the interests of the general community. Mr. Kerr then dealt with the objections to reciprocity item by item, and clearly demonstrated to his audience that the Canadian farmer was capable, not only of holding his own, but of entering the United States' market, and selling immense quantities to his American neighbours, and showed how the removal of the tariff would enable the Canadian farmer to sell in larger quantities and with greater profit to himself. Mr. Kerr dealt frankly with the race and creed question, so wrongfully and wickedly raised in Ontario and in Quebec by different elements of the population, with the one and only object of turning out of power a government which had in fourteen years raised Canada from a position of neglect into the forefront of the younger nations of the world. He deprecated all appeals to religious passions, no matter whence they came and urged the Canadian citizen to realize that Canadian and British citizenship rested not upon narrow prejudices, but on the broad basis of equal rights in the truest and fullest sense of the term. Mr. Kerr's address was listened to with the closest attention, and was frequently punctuated with hearty cheers of approval.

On closing he received a tribute of approval in the strongest and heartiest of applause.

At the conclusion of the speeches, a vote of thanks was moved to the speakers, and the meeting closed with cheers for the King, Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the Liberal candidate.

It was quite evident from the tone of the meeting that the farmers of the north country are determined to have an opportunity of experiencing the benefits of reciprocity.

At Clysdale.

On Tuesday afternoon a successful meeting was held at Clysdale, when the chair was taken by Mr. David Campbell, who at the conclusion of the meeting, delivered an eloquent and convincing address, driving home the remarks made by the previous speakers, and urging a strong reciprocity vote by the electors of East Peterborough.

Splendid addresses were delivered by Messrs. Richardson and Hawthorne and the Liberal candiate, Mr. F. D. Kerr, and their speeches made a deep impression upon the audience.

Lasswade Meeting.

In the evening the Liberal speakers were greeted again by a crowded meeting at Lasswade School House, many not being able to find entrance, and being compelled to stand at the open windows.

The convincing speeches and telling addresses were received with round after round of applause, and at the conclusion of the addresses a hearty vote of thanks was passed to the speakers, and the meeting closed with cheers for the King, the Premier of Canada and the Liberal candidate.

The chair was occupied by Mr. William Gallon, and the vice-chair by Mr. Levi Bullied.

The tone of all the meetings showed that the Liberals and Conservatives alike in the northern country are determined to taste and enjoy the benefits of reciprocity, and the personal regard and esteem of the electors for the Liberal candidate and his policy was displayed on every possible occasion. A large vote for the reciprocity candidate is a certainty from the electors of the northern end of East Peterborough.

MR. BURNHAM SHOWS HIS HAND IN THE PRESENT CAMPAIGN

(Advertisement)

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Mr. Stratton has begun the campaign by making an issue of the papal decrees. I had not intended to refer to them on the political platform, but now must, of necessity, do so. Three-fourths of the Examiner's report of Mr. Stratton's speech at 4th line, Smith, is devoted to Ne Temere. He scoffs at Ne Temere. He jeers at the Synods, Presbyteries conferences, etc., for knocking at the wrong door, when they look to the Dominion Government for redress. He falls back upon the Minister of Justice's evasion of the issue and seeks to put responsibility on the provinces. But, that the issue lies with the Dominion Government, and with it alone, in the matter, is plain. Nothing is plainer. Bigamy is a charge that a man or woman has been married twice. Illegally. It is a charge that, like all other criminal charges, can be tried by the criminal (federal) law of Canada, only, and the provinces have no say in it whatever. The validity of a marriage, therefore, rests with the Dominion Government alone, and it knows it. A province can direct the mere form of marriage, but nothing more. The whole question is precisely like that of the franchise. The provinces say who may vote in this election, but the Dominion Government regulates and rules everything with reference to it but that. Ne Temere, however, ignores all Governments. But Ne Temere is only a straw. The real decree is the one against Protestantism. Modernism and Protestantism are the same thing, and the Pope has condemned them both to utter extermination. There is no evading that fact. So much in reply to Mr. Stratton, on the religious question. I will now reply to what he has to say on Reciprocity, leaving the Farmers Bank for some other occasion. I will reply, however, not in my own words, but in the words of President Taft, himself, and in them alone. I believe that reciprocity will wreck our home market, but if any man can go and vote for reciprocity in the face of these words of President Taft then let him do so. I can say no more. These are President Taft's words:

"I have said that this was a critical time in the solution of the question of reciprocity. It is critical because unless it is now decided favourably to reciprocity, it is exceedingly probable that no such opportunity will ever again come to the United States. The forces which are at work in England and in Canada to separate her by a Chinese wall from the United States, and to make her part of an Imperial commercial band reaching from England around the world to England again, by a system of preferential tariffs, will derive an impetus from the rejection of this treaty, and if we would have reciprocity with all the advantages that I have described, and that I earnestly and sincerely believe will follow its adoption, we must take it now, or give it up forever."

From the speech of President Taft at the joint banquet of the Associated Press and the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, held in New York on April 27th, 1911.)

And here follow President Taft's own words from the article on Reciprocity, written by him in Leslie's (New York) Weekly, of August 10th, 1911, (a copy of which is in my possession):

"The United States exports to Canada a great many more horses than she imports from Canada. She sends to Canada a much larger amount of potatoes than she receives from her. The United States exports to Canada about fifteen times as much of meat and dairy products as Canada exports to the United States.

"The only real importation of agricultural products that we may expect from Canada of any considerable amount will consist of wheat, barley, rye, and oats. The world price of these four cereals is fixed abroad, where the surplus from the producing countries is disposed of, and is little affected by the place from which the supply is derived."

"A very material benefit to all the farmers of the country, especially the stock and cattle raisers and the dairy farmers, will be the by-products of bran and shorts from the flour mills. Likely to follow the free export of wheat from Canada to those mills. These by-products are now so scarce that many farmers are unable to procure them. What is true of wheat is true of the other cereals"

Yours, etc.,

J. H. Burnham.

In the above advertisement, Mr. Burnham comes out into the open. What charming candour in the naive admission: "I had not intended to refer to them" (the "papal decrees") on the political platform, but must of necessity do so now." The badger has been drawn. Mr. Burnham no doubt, regrets the interruption of his underground, secret, stealthy, still-hunt on his race and creed preserve. We now know from himself what his name is, though he hasn't yet told us of the circlation in his interest of a paper pledging the signer not to vote for a Roman Catholic, something gratuitously vicious, as there is no candidate of that faith running in West Peterborough.

Mr. Burnham challenges Mr. Stratton's statement that "solemnisation of marriage," apropos of the decree in question is in the exclusive jurisdiction of the Provinces and not of the Dominion Government.

It happens that Mr. Stratton is supported in this statement by the opinion of Sir Allan Aylesworth, Minister of Justice, and one of the ablest lawyers in Canada, who had the distinction of representing Canada at the Hague Tribunal; a lawyer whose opinion is almost as good as that of Mr. Burnham. But a still higher authority, the highest in the world—the court of last appeal—the Judicial Committee of the British Privy Council, declares against Mr. Burnham; declares that the "solemnisation of matrimony" is within the EXCLUSIVE jurisdiction of the provinces.

Sir John Bourinot, K.C.M.G., LL. D., D.C.L., in his "Manual of the Constitutional History of Canada" quotes this opinion of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council on this subject. In the edition of 1901, (Copp, Clark & Co., pp. 134 and 135, will be found the following:

"The same eminent authority (the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council) has, in another judgment, expressed the following opinion:

"That it (the British Parliament in framing the Act of Confederation) must have forseen that some of the classes of subjects assigned to to the provincial legislatures unavoidably ran into and were embraced by some of the enumerated classes of subjects in section 91 (defining the powers of the Dominion Parliament); hence an endeavour appears to have been made to provide for cases of apparent conflict; and it would seem that with this object it was declared in the second branch of the 91st section "for greater certainty, but so as not to restrict the generality of the foregoing terms of this section" that notwithstanding anything in the act) the exclusive authority of the Parliament of Canada should extend of all the classes of subjects enumerated in that section. Notwithstanding this endeavour to give pre-eminence to the Dominion Parliament in cases of a conflict of powers, it is obvious that in some cases where this apparent conflict exists, the legislature (the British Parliament) could not have intended that the powers exclusively assigned to the provincial legislature should be absorbed in those given to the Dominion Parliament. Take, as one instance, the subject of marriage and divorce, contained in the enumeration of subjects, in section 91. It is evident that solemnization of marriage would come within this section; yet 'solemnization of marriage in the province" is enumerated among the classes of subjects in section 92, (defining the exclusive legislative powers of the provinces), and NO one CAN DOUBT notwithstanding the general language of section 91, THAT THIS SUBJECT (solemnization of marriage) IS STILL WITHIN THE EXCLUSIVE AUTHORITY OF THE LEGISLATURE OF THE PROVINCES.

Thus we have the Minister of Justice and the Judicial Committee of the PRIVY COUNCIL asserting in the most positive manner that in the matter of legislative jurisdiction the marraige question belongs EXCLUSIVELY to the Provinces.

But, of course, Mr. Burnham is a greater lawyer, of more extensive experience than either of the above great authorities. Yet, their opinion will not check him in his campaign of strife-breeding upon an issue that has no part in the campaign, and is put forward by no other candidate except the fire-eating "Nationalists" of Quebec. Mr. Burnham in the last line of his address to the electors, says he stands for a "united Canada and a united people." The above letter and his general attitude give the lie to this statement. No man in Canada, in the degree of his ability, is doing more, or trying to do more, to bedevil the relations of harmonious citizenship and destroy the fact of a "united people" than Mr. Burnham.

In regard to reciprocity he is more modest. He considers himself competent to contradict the opinion of the Minister of Justice and the Privy Council, but in the matter of reciprocity he turns the elector, looking for light, over to Mr. Taft.

Mr. Burnham and his Conservative friends will not allow the farmer to look to the United States for a market for his products, but they go to Washington for their opinions on reciprocity.

Sturgeon Point Regatta Was Splendid Success--Motor Boat Races

The Civic Holiday regatta at Sturgeon Point turned out an unqualified success. There were large numbers of people in attendance from nearby summer resorts. Automobiles, motor launches and boats of every description were everywhere. But there were no entries from Stoney Lake or Chemong since the Stoney Lake regatta was also held Monday.

A great deal of interest centered around the open power boat race as the boats are yearly becoming faster. There are several new launches on the water this year, and up to Monday, had never raced before, and speculation was rife as to which should prove the champion.

The race was a very pretty one over an eight mile course; Dr. Caven's "Nahma" won apparently very easily, beating its nearest competitor by nearly two minutes. The time was 31 minutes and 25 seconds; Mr. G. H. Hopkins "Viking II." driven by Major F. Holmes Hopkins, pulled down second honours very neatly in 33 minutes and 7 seconds. It was a very pretty finish between "Viking II." and Geo. Irwin's "Vim," which came in only 23 seconds later. At the start it looked as if "Vim" stood a very good chance of claiming the championship, but as the outfit was perfectly new and had not been thoroughly adjusted owing to having been launched only forty-eight hours previous to the race she gradually lost place. Jesse Perrin's "Thief" and W. Flavelle's "Swallow" followed closely at 36 minutes, and 36 minutes and 26 seconds, respectively.

The motor boat races were divided into four classes—Classes A and B for semi-speed boats, Class D for Family launches (12 h.p. and under). The boats in these three classes were sent over the course in the morning to make a speed-record. Any boat exceeding this speed in the afternoon by 5 per cent. would be disqualified. "Wa Wa" was scratch boat in class A; "Boy III." and "Eala" were scratch boats in class B; Mr. Grace's "Maveen" in class D.

In class A motor boats of 2 to 6 horse-power, the winner was W. M. Goodwin's "Wa-Wa," with J. P. Ryley's launch second. Other entries were S. Magill, W. Ferguson, and T. Stewart. In this race Mr. W. Goodwin's launch "Wa-Wa" started first and finished first, showing the extra good speed qualities of this little craft.

The winner of Class B, 7 to 12 h. p., was Clerk's "Sweetheart," with F. W. Sutcliffe's "Boneka" second. Other entries were A. Gillies "Eala," G. H. Wilson's Boy III. and J. O. Grace's "Maveen."

Class D., family launches, over five feet, five inches beam and under 12 h.p. was captured by R. J. McLaughlin's launch, with F. W. Sutcliffe's "Boneka" a close second.

In the sailing race for the championship of the lake the following were the entries in the order in which they finished:

G. H. Hopkin's "Rose", Mr. Lloyd Wood's dinghy, and Mrs. Beardmore's "Laurita."

The canoe events were very interesting and a number of very good races were pulled off.

The Crisis In England
A Famine Threatened
Some Ominous Signs

LONDON, Aug. 16.—There was little if any abatement of the strike fever that has spread through Great Britain, to-day. At some points such as the London docks, conditions continued to improve, but this was offset by outbreaks elsewhere.

With the exception of at Liverpool, where there was rioting nearly all last night, the men generally are orderly and beyond picketing and peaceably inducing men to join the unions, did not interfere with those desiring to work.

The fighting at Liverpool last night, which resulted in the death of two rioters, who were shot by Hussars in defending five prison vans occupied by riot prisoners whom the mob attempted unsuccessfully to release, has not tended thus far to improve the situation, except as it has helped to keep the peaceably disposed outside the strike area. This enabled the police to more easily handle those who were causing the trouble.

This was particularly noticeable this morning when the streets were quiet, the rioters having retired for a much needed rest after the night's battle and also probably to keep out of the way of the strong forces opposed to them during daylight. The police and soldiers, however, prepared for a renewal of hostilities when night fell.

TEAMS UNMOLESTED TO-DAY

To-day teams were busy removing goods from the railway stations to business houses. They were unmolested. Along the docks, however, work was at a standstill and the men showed an ugly spirit. The continued rioting on the Mersey port was not calculated to restore confidence elsewhere, and men at other ports were refusing to discharge steamers diverted from Liverpool. Glasgow, for example, which had just disposed of a street railway strike, now has a dock strike as a result of the men declining to remove a cargo of fruit from a steamer sent from the Mersey.

Another ominous sign was the choice by the leaders of the railway workers of Liverpool as the city from which to direct the threatened general strike on the railways which was declared last night by the executives of the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants, the Society of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen, and the General Railway Workers' Union; to become effective within 24 hours unless in the interim the companies express a willingness to negotiate for a settlement of grievances.

Heretofore the railway strikes have been managed usually from London or some central point in the north. The threat to tie up all the railway lines in the United Kingdom caused more uneasiness than all the other strike movements combined, for it was known that if the effort was successful it would completely cut off the food supply from the greater part of the country. The Government exerted every influence to avert such a calamity.

WORKING FOR CONCILIATION

This forenoon, Sydney Buxton, president of the Board of Trade, conferred with the managers of all the railroad lines and in the afternoon he met the leaders of the employes in the hope of bringing about a joint conference. The managers had insisted upon adhering to the system of conciliation boards with which the men are dissatisfied. An arrangement through which the boards would deal more expeditiously with the grievances of the workers might lead to a settlement, it was thought, and the members of the Board of Trade worked along these lines.

Should the railway strike take place the managers hope to maintain a partial service on all the lines and for months have been preparing for such an eventuality. They have already made up time tables for a curtailed service with the aid of non-union men, who compose about three-fourths of the workers. The unions have about 170,000 members. The residents of many of the poorer districts already are suffering from prolonged idleness, and in some sections of London and the other large cities where the husbands and wives equally contribute to the support of their homes, both are on strike and dependent upon charity for food.

ALL TRADE DISLOCATED

The trade of Manchester has been completely dislocated by the strike in the transport service. To-day the signalmen joined the strikers, preventing the movement of trains, so even if the teamsters were at work there would be nothing for them to transport.

The striking freight handlers at Birmingham returned to work to-day. There appeared to be no danger of a resumption of the dock strike at London. The men were slowly returning to their places and it was expected that normal conditions would prevail to-morrow. Smaller and spasmodic strikes, which have broken out in every variety of industry throughout the country have caused the greatest suffering as the poorest class is engaged in these employments, and a few days without work means that they must go hungry.

A YEAR INDOORS

"For thirteen months I was so bad with chronic indigestion that I could not go out of doors. Nerves were unstrung, the heart bad and smothering feelings came on till I thought I would choke. Doctors' treatment failed me, so I began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which I thank for my present good health. I am now doing my housework and have a family of ten."

CAMPAIGN IN QUEBEC

Sir Wilfrid Leaves for Three Rivers —Political Fight Goes Merrily on Throughout the Dominion

MORE NOMINATED

Montreal, Aug. 17.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier spent the day here in organization work, holding conferences with Liberal leaders of this district. He left to-day for Three Rivers. With him will be Hon. Sydney Fisher, Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, Dr. Beland, Hon. Mackenzie King and others. The Premier announced that his itinerary had not been definitely settled, but that he would visit Quebec City after Three Rivers, and that the next two weeks would probably be spent in this province.

A deputation from the Liberals of Soulanges visited Mr. Lemieux yesterday and invited him to run in that division. No definite answer was given. The new Minister of Marine, however, will run again in Gaspe, and in some other division nearer the centre of the province.

The Socialists of St. Lawrence division will run a candidate against Messrs. Robert Bickerdike, Liberal, and G. F. Johnston, Conservative, in the person of Hugh Cotton, editor of Cotton's Weekly.

BORDEN AT CHATHAM.

Conservative Chieftain Holds Rally in Kent.

Chatham, Aug. 17.—Mr. R. L. Borden addressed a rally of a couple of thousand persons in this city to-night. His speech was largely a reiteration of that at London.

Mr. Borden handled the reciprocity pact without ceremony, and appealed to the young men of Canada "to preserve the national type of citizenship."

"Will you not tell Mr. Taft on Sept. 21 that the tie which binds Canada to the Empire is stronger than ever before, and please God it will never be broken," he declared.

Mr. Borden made it clear that the policy of the Conservative party with regard to the Hudson Bay Railway was for Government ownership and operation. His opposition to the Transcontinental Railway Commission was that the appointees were not men familiar with or competent to undertake such a work. The tariff commission, he said, would have only an advisory, but no legislative power whatever. The commission would merely report to Parliament, which was directly responsible to the people.

Ward Stanworth, Conservative candidate for West Kent, was the first speaker. He was glad that the country had a great issue before it—something more than acts of maladministration and corruption on the part of the Government. The reciprocity proposals, said Mr. Stanworth, brought before the country the well-known national policy inaugurated by Sir John A. Macdonald. It was most appropriately named. It stood for the benefit of all classes. It had resulted in the establishment of the large number of industries at Chatham, which represented large investments of American capital. He welcomed their investment and deplored the proposal to allow Canadian raw materials to be converted into manufactures in the United States. H. W. French, candidate for East Kent, spoke briefly.

On the platform were George Sulman, M.P.P., Phil. Boyer, M.P.P.; J. E. Armstrong, ex-M.P.; H. W. French, Conservative candidate for East Kent; Mr. Ritchie, president of West Kent Conservative Association, was in the chair. Mr. Armstrong followed Mr. Borden briefly with a vigorous speech against the Government.

Two Nominations.

Ottawa, Aug. 17.—Two more Ottawa Valley nominations were added to the list yesterday. Thomas Low is again the Liberal candidate in South Renfrew, following a convention held at Eganville.

A report that the Opposition nomination in Labelle would go to Henri Bourassa, the Nationalist chief, did not survive the holding of the Conservative convention last night at Papineauville. The nomination went to Honore Achin, an advocate of Nominingue.

A Three-Cornered Fight.

Welland, Aug. 17.—William Monroe of Thorold was unanimously chosen as Conservative standard-bearer for this county. The large auditorium of the court house proved inadequate, close to four hundred persons being present, and all municipalities in the county being represented. The session lasted from 2 until 7 p.m.

In view of the attitude of the late Liberal member, Wm. German, M.P., in opposing reciprocity there was a feeling in some quarters that the Conservative party should not nominate a candidate. Hon. Frank Cochrane, organizer for the province, while not dictating to the convention, voiced the view that the party might well recognize Mr. German's services against the pact.

P.E.I. Nominations.

Charlottetown, P.E.I., Aug. 17.—The Federal nominations in Prince Edward Island are complete. The Liberals of Prince at Summerside have selected J. W. Richardson. Other candidates are Dr. P. C. Murphy, Conservative, for Prince; A. J. Warburton and L. E. Prowse, Liberals, and S. A. McLean and Donald Nicholson, Conservatives, for Queen's; J. J. Hughes, Liberal, and A. L. Fraser, Conservative, for Kings.

West Huron Liberals.

Goderich, Aug. 17.—At the Liberal convention for West Huron held here yesterday afternoon, M. G. Cameron, mayor of Goderich, was nominated. Mr. Cameron is opposed by E. N. Lewis, the late member at Ottawa, and both are strong campaigners.

Mr. Fielding Chosen.

Halifax, Aug. 17.—Two Liberal nominations took place yesterday in Nova Scotia. In Shelburne, Hon. W. S. Fielding was nominated for Queen's-Shelburne.

The Lunenburg Liberal convention nominated the late member, J. D. Sherry of Petite Revere.

Fredericton Nomination.

Fredericton, N.B., Aug. 17.—O. C. Crocket was nominated as candidate by a large Conservative convention here yesterday afternoon. A resolution against reciprocity was passed.

Garvais Accepts Judgeship.

Montreal, Aug. 17.—Honore Gervais, ex-member for St. James' Division, [illegible] Laurier yesterday, stated that he had decided to accept the appointment to the Court of King's Bench, appeal side. The new justice will be sworn in at the beginning of next month and will enter upon his duties with the opening of the Criminal Assizes, Sept. 15.

This leaves the Liberal candidature in St. James' open, and a convention will be held shortly to choose a candidate. Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux is spoken of, as the Liberals of St. James Division are anxious to be represented in Parliament by a member of the Cabinet.

Tried to Suicide.

Chatham, Aug. 17.—Announcing that he was going to end his life, Frank Truckle, a young married man, who recently came to this city from Toronto, walked into the rear room of a house occupied by Mrs. Mary Bowers, on South Queen street, Tuesday night and filled a bottle of carbolic acid to his lips. Truckle did not swallow any of the acid, but a portion of it ran on his cheek, burning it. He was arrested, charged with attempting suicide, and committed for trial.

Torpedo Boat Sunk.

Copenhagen, Aug. 17.—While manoeuvring yesterday off the east coast of Lyoe-land, torpedo boat No. 21 of the German navy came into collision with torpedo No. 14 and was sunk. The crew of No. 21 was taken from the sinking vessel and no one was injured.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

A heavy rainfall has practically extinguished a big forest fire which was threatening the village of Pendbosquis, N.B.

In a tornado that swept over Minnesota Tuesday night at least two persons were killed. Isolated reports from the state tell of wrecked barns and outbuildings.

A delegation of Toronto, Montreal, Winnipeg and other veterans are arranging to co-operate with the Ottawa ones in extending a welcome to the Duke of Connaught.

President-elect Cincinnatus Leconte of Hayti yesterday took the oath of office before Congress and a great assembly that included all the high officials of the new Government.

The Canadian artillery was officially received at Avonmouth, Eng., by Col. Benoit yesterday. The president of the Bristol Chamber of Commerce also extended a hearty reception.

Nine additional warrants for those known to have been implicated in the lynching of Zachariah S. Walker, the negro, Sunday night, were sworn out yesterday by the Chester County, Pa., authorities.

Wm. Smith, a Kingston tinsmith, had a narrow escape at Collins' Bay. While traveling at a high rate of speed he lost control of his machine and crashed into a fence. He escaped with a fractured shoulder.

Ald. Ricketts of Wilkes-Barre yesterday discharged Wm. Novalosa, who admitted beating his wife with his razor strop because she was extravagant! Mrs. Novalosa appeared none the worse for the spanking.

Used Bent Wire for Key.

Montreal, Aug. 17.—Robberies which have been baffling the police for some time were cleared up by the arrest of three boys, Alfred Gouin, aged 14; Hector Cyr, aged 13, and Lucien Champeau, aged 9, yesterday. For some time past articles have been missing from the store of M. Hamber, 1,141 Mount Royal East. The doors were never disturbed and the windows never broken, and still articles were disappearing. About $35 worth of goods were found in the possession of Cyr Tuesday night by Detective Mercier. The two companions had their armed with bent wire, they would open the shutters, and plying the same instrument, would draw the articles through a hole in the bottom of the window used for ventilation purposes.

Cyr put up a bold front in the dock and claimed he had nothing to do with it, while the other two pleaded guilty. The latter, being under [illegible] were both allowed out on suspended sentence, but Cyr was sent to the penitentiary for three years.

Rogers Suggests Spite.

Toronto, Aug. 17.—Was the fatality on Asylum Report of William Proctor, provincial inspector of fire equipments for public buildings, [illegible] held? It is said that the inspector made recommendations which, had they been carried out, would have prevented the loss of life that occurred.

Provincial Superintendent Rogers stated yesterday afternoon that he hadn't heard anything as to whether the fire inquest would be re-opened or not. Mr. Rogers expressed the opinion that there must be spite somewhere on the part of the Hamilton citizens, who believe that the inquest did not probe sufficiently deeply.

It is now developing that a good many people beyond the confines of Hamilton were not satisfied with the conduct of the investigation.

Slays His Partner.

Dawson, Y.T., Aug. 17.—D. N. Allison just arrived here from Fort Macpherson at the mouth of the Mackenzie River, reports that a prospector from Edmonton, and his partner were victims of a double tragedy, when one killed the other with his gun, then committed suicide.

An Indian found the bodies in a cabin at the mouth of the Sale River, 500 miles up Mackenzie from the mouth of Peel.

One of the prospectors left a note that he had killed his partner because he himself had been taken ill and his partner had refused to go for a doctor. Details, it is explained, will be received at Mounted Police headquarters, Regina, during September via the Hudson Bay steamer, which is now en route up the Mackenzie.

Funeral Prepaid.

London, Aug. 17.—The recent death of a woman who paid for her own funeral benefits twenty years ago was the subject of an inquest Tuesday at St. Luke's coroner's court, K.C.

It was stated that the deceased woman, Elizabeth M. Chappell, aged 77, an old pensioner, was very eccentric. Her favorite method of spending her time was in the various city churches. She never spent a moment out of a church that she could help.

Twenty years ago she paid for her own funeral. The undertakers at first thought she was only joking, but she insisted, and a legal contract to bury her was drawn up and signed. She always carried the contract about with her.

Circus Train Wrecked.

Montreal, Aug. 17.—The Barnum and Bailey circus train en route for Montreal was in collision yesterday morning, the engine drawing the circus cars crashing into the van of a freight train that was ahead of it going down grade on the same track.

The collision occurred on the Canadian Pacific Railway tracks between the Angus shops and the Eastern Abattoir. In the impact the van was cut in two, and the wreckage scattered for many feet around. There were no fatalities. The circus train was delayed about an hour, but the engine was not seriously damaged, and was able to draw the train to its destination.

OLD CASES REVIVED

International Court Will Settle Claims on Treasuries—An Ancient Indian Suit to the Front

CAYUGA CLAIMANTS

Ottawa, Aug. 17.—Under the treaty concluded last year between Great Britain and the United States with regard to the settlement of pecuniary claims affecting the national treasuries of Great Britain or her dominions and of the American Federal or State Governments, an international court will shortly be established to deal with the first schedule of claims filed for adjudication. The court will consist of three members, one being selected by each Government concerned, with a third member chosen by consent as chairman. It is understood that Canada's representative on the court named to consider claims affecting this country and the United States will be Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court.

The principal claim to be considered, in so far as the Canadian Government is concerned, is that of the Cayuga Indians, who during the war of independence were, it is claimed unlawfully dispossessed of their lands in the Mohawk Valley by the State of New York. The Indians settled in Brant County, Ontario, where they were given land by the crown, and became the wards of the Indian Department. Their claim for compensation from the State of New York is considerably over a century old, and has been pressed from time to time in a desultory sort of way for generations. Nobody now knows the exact amount of the claim in view of accumulated interest and enormously enhanced values of the lands from which they were dispossessed. The Dominion Government, acting for the Indians, will now attempt to secure some fair and legal settlement.

There are a score or so of other cases which have been agreed upon for hearing by the court at its first assembling, which will be some time this autumn. Later on another schedule of cases for submission will be drafted.

Atwood Reaches Toledo.

Toledo, Ohio, Aug. 17.—Exactly 520 miles from his starting point, Harry N. Atwood, the Boston aviator, who is attempting to break the world's long distance aeroplane record by flying from St. Louis to New York, alighted in Toledo yesterday afternoon after completing the third day of his trip with a spectacular flight 2,000 above the city.

He covered the 130 miles from Elkhart, Ind., to Toledo, with only one stop and in an actual flying time of two hours and 56 minutes.

Hedges For Railways.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—Every railroad in Canada and the United States will replace their right-of-way fences with beautiful flowering hedges if plans of the Railway Gardening Association, which opened its fifth annual convention here on Tuesday, are carried out. R. V. Hutchinson, landscape gardener of the Pennsylvania lines, and known as the "Father of Railway Gardening," advocated the hedge, and his sentiment was endorsed by the convention.

Home Rule For Scotland.

London, Aug. 17.—The desire for home rule in Scotland is assuming a more concrete form. As a first step Sir Henry James Dalziel, newspaper proprietor and member of Parliament for Kirkcaldy burghs, introduced in the House of Commons yesterday morning a bill to establish a Legislature in Scotland, to deal with purely Scottish affairs.

Rostand Near Death.

Biarritz, France, Aug. 17.—Edmond Rostand, the poet and dramatist, was the victim of a serious automobile accident near here yesterday, and lies in his villa at Cambo-Les-Bains today, surrounded by physicians who as yet have been unable to determine what the outcome of his injuries will be. He is suffering from serious contusions of the head and body, and it is feared he is injured internally.

Mr. Rostand was motoring from Cambo-Les-Bains to St. Jean de Luz, accompanied by his chauffeur and a mechanic, when his machine skidded on a curve in the road, leaped into the air, turned over and fell to the bottom of a 15-foot ditch, pinning the poet beneath it. Mr. Rostand is 43 years old.

Another Blythe Case.

Toronto, Aug. 17.—A beating which she says she received at the hands of her husband, has brought another woman close to death. Mrs. Thomas Lowther, 7 Somerset avenue, was found wandering in the street early yesterday morning, bleeding profusely from a great scalp wound at the base of the skull. She was taken to the Western Hospital, where her condition is considered serious.

She says that her husband came home drunk Tuesday night and beat her, striking her repeatedly with an iron instrument. The man was arrested, charged with drunkenness, and was remanded a week from the Police Court yesterday morning.

BALDNESS CURED

For two or three years my hair had been falling out and getting quite thin, until the top of my head was entirely bald. About four months ago I commenced using Sage and Sulphur. The first bottle seemed to do some good and I kept using it regularly, until now I have used four bottles. The whole top of my head is now fairly covered with hair, and it keeps coming in thicker. I shall keep on using it a while longer, as I notice a constant improvement.

"My oldest son, five years old, got very bad with cholera infantum; two days after my next son took it, and the third day my little girl also took it. I doctored with all kinds of things, but they kept on getting worse and the doctors could do them no good. I then started the Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, and after two or three days could see a difference, so kept on with the treatment, but they were so bad it took about two weeks to complete the cure. Different people have asked me how I saved my children's lives that time, and I always say it was Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. I am now never without it in the house."

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

The above is an excellent photograph of the Canadian General soccer team, which will play the Baracas of Toronto on Saturday in the second game of the semi-final series for the Ontario championship. The C.G.E. are twice champions of the Midland League and holders of the R. R. Hall trophy, emblematic of the county championship.

PETERBOROUGH BALL TEAM LOSE A CLOSE GAME

Were Beaten by the Grand Trunks by 3-2 Yesterday Winning Run Coming Across With Two Out in the Ninth ---Was a Pitchers' Battle Between Quinlan and Ashton, with the Honours About Even.

Shy the services of a number of regulars, the Peterborough Midland League teamm which invaded Belleville yesterday, gave the crack Grand Trunk team the hardest kind of a fight before yielding up a 3-2 victory to the railway men. In fact it was not until two men were out in the last half of the ninth that a Texas Leaguer over short by "Shorty" Brown, the Grand Trunk catcher, with a man on third, gave Belleville the odd run in five and the game. It was a hard fought battle all through the chapter, with Ashton for the Grand Trunks and Quinlan for Peterborough hurling in their happiest vein, and hits as scarce as hen's teeth, while the fielding on both sides in spite of the rough diamond, was fast and snappy. The game was the feature of the big picnic held in Belleville yesterday and was attended by an enormous crowd of wildly enthusiastic fans, whose joy when the Trunks finally triumphed was unbounded. It was anybody's game until the last man was out. The score was tied at 1-1 and 2-2 and Peterborough had a chance to take the lead in their half of the eighth when Gonter singled to left with Quinlan on second. The Peterborough manager came home on the hit, but was called out for cutting third base and a golden chance was lost. The game would have gone into extra innings had Quinlan's run counted. Shaw, Rahmel and Craig were unable to go to Belleville and W. O'Brien was laid up with an injured knee and the team made a grand showing under the circumstances. Ashton and Brown were the Belleville battery, while the Peterborough team consisted of the following: Quinlan p., Gonter c., M. O'Brien 1b., O'Hearne 2b., Sheehy s.s., Murphy 3b., McFadden l.f., Phelan c.f., Creaswell r.f.

A double umpire system was used and worked satisfactorily.

PETERBORO' BOWLERS OUT OF THE WALKER REACHED SEMI-FINALS

The Peterborough rink of bowlers, after getting in the semi-finals for the Walker trophy at the Dominion Tourney in Toronto, were beaten yesterday afternoon by Skip Morrison, of Toronto, who is playing in the finals today. The Toronto Star, as will be seen in another column, predicted that the rink that beat Peterborough would win the big event, and it begins to look as if the Star had the right line on the contest.

The Peterborough quartette won their game in the fourth round by beating Skip Kelk, of the Parkdale Presbyterian church, by 15 to 11, and were in the last four, the other three survivors of the 121 which started being Skip Morrison of the Queen City Club, Skip T. Rennie of the Granites and Skip Dr. McGuire of Buffalo. The Petes were drawn against Skip Morrison in the semi-finals and were beaten 19-14, putting them out of the contest. However, the record of the Peterborough representatives in winning five out of six games in such company, was indeed a splendid one.

Peterborough Bowlers As Seen By Toronto Critics

The Toronto Star says: The second day of the Dominion Bowling Tournament opened with heavy rain. By noon, however, Old Sol was in his glory. The sun and the roller in no time had the greens ready for play and in better condition than at the opening. Play did not begin at the Granite and Queen City lawns until 1 p.m. At Victoria games were started before the rain had stopped. Considerable dissatisfaction was engendered by the way the draw was run off. A number of rinks left for home, defaulting their remaining games. Play in the Trophy was rushed. Four rounds were completed, leaving 8 out of 122 starters. They are: Rennie, Granites; Evans, St. Catharines; Dr. McGuire, Buffalo; Armstrong and Kelk, Parkdale; Waddell, Peterboro; Morrison, Queen City; and Dr. Pirie, Dundas. From their form, it is tough picking to guess the winner. The Rennies' past record made them the general choice. The form McGuire, Armstrong, and Waddell are displaying show they cannot be overlooked. Rennie had a close call with Strowger, Canadas. The first half the latter looked to have the favourite beaten, but a 5 and a 3 put them in the running, eventually winning by one point. McGuire's Buffalo rink, after disposing of Allie Warden's Kew Beachers, tackled Smiley of Paris. The president of the western town was carried off his feet by the pace the Yanks set. He never had a chance to score until the last couple of ends. These were handed them by their American friends, who are showing that they can bowl as well as entertain. Those who have been there, know that in some Evans of St. Kitts had a walk-away with Gemmell, Kew Beach. Willison and Armstrong, Parkdale, had a titanic struggle on the Queen City lawn. They were 11 all at the fifteenth end. The extra end was connected by Parkdale, and Willison joined the Ontario Cup players. The great feature at the Victoria lawn was the fine playing of the two youngest skips, Morrison, Queen City, and Kelk, Parkdale. Morrison, who was making kitty touches every end, won from Boyd's Thistles after they had scored an 8-end on him—the first made in a tournament in years. He also added the scalp of Dr. Burns by four points. This was a very close game. Burns had a chance to win with his last bowl. His shot was a beauty, but fate was against him. He won the privilege of playing Morrison by defeating Loughhead, Kew Beach, in an extra end by one point.

Waddell's rink, of Peterboro, are maintaining their fast pace. He put Philip, Queen City, out, 17 to 9, also Kernahan, St. Kitts, 17 to 12. The rink that defeats them will wear jewelery. Kely, Parkdale, is also putting up a great game. After defeating Beamish 16 to 14, repeated on Greenwood by the same score. The latter has been showing the best form in years.

The Abbott-Hunan combination of London were one of Greenwood's victims. They lost their Ontario game also to Beamish, Toronto Thistles.

Dr. Pirie, Dundas, the winner of the Frontier at Buffalo, is still one of the chosen. His victims were: Sykes, Queen City; Jno. Taylor, Alexandras. In playing with Sykes, he played against his brother, who was Sykes' second.

BASEBALL

The Chemong Park Baseball Club would like to arrange a game with any local nine wishing to make the trip out there. The Cottagers have an off day this coming Saturday, and would be pleased to take on a scrub nine from Peterborough. For information in this matter call up the Chemong Park Hotel.

FRANK SCHULTE AFTER HOME RUN RECORD

Admirers of Frank Schulte and followers of the Chicago Cub baseball team who are keeping an account of how many home runs the right fielder is making this season probably do not realize that a new record for "homers" has been set. That is, since the establishment of two major leagues in 1900. Schulte is thought to be ahead of Freeman's record at this season of the year for all baseball history. And the way Schulte is smashing out four-base raps at present it is safe to say he will hang up a mark that probably will not be passed for years to come. One hundred games have not yet been played by the Cubs and in that time the right fielder has passed the former mark by three home runs, two of which were made in the last two days.

Schulte's last wallop over the fence occurred off Cy Barger in the closing game with Brooklyn Sunday at Chicago, which the Dodgers won, 6 to 1. It was his 15th home run of the season and it puts him in the lead in that department by one point. Fred Luderus of the Phillies, is second on the list with 14. He also has passed the former high water mark for home runs. The record previous to this season was 12 and was held by Tim Jordan, of Toronto, when he was with Brooklyn. He rapped out that total twice while he was in major league company.

Schulte is making them so often that every time he steps to the plate with a runner or two on the sacks the fans applaud and expect him to smash the ball against the favorite sign board. Schulte has made several in Chicago, and timely ones, too, but his entire 15 were not garnered there. He has made home runs in nearly every town on the circuit. As it makes no difference what park he is in it is almost a certainty his mark is this department or extra base hits will be remarkable.

Schulte is out to set the world's record, which is held by John Freeman, of the old Washington and Boston teams. The record made by Freeman was 25 home runs in one season, and it was made in 1889 while he was playing the outfield for the Washington club. Schulte has not far to go to break or tie Freeman's mark. He needs 10 to tie. As he has still 59 games to play his prospects of accomplishing this wonderful feat are more than bright.

What makes Schulte's chances of beating Freeman's mark possible is the fact that he can bat left-handed pitchers for home runs as easily as he does right-handers. This is shown by the home runs he has procured up to date. Six of his four sackers this season have been made off southpaw twirlers, and some of the best in the league. Two were obtained off Marquard, while he collected one off Rucker's delivery Saturday. Sallee also knows what it is to have the Cub right fielder smash one into the bleachers, as does Tyler and McTighe, of Boston. Schulte's first home run this season was made on the opening day off Pitcher Sallee, of St. Louis.

Schulte is now regarded as one of the most dangerous batsmen in the National League, and is rated along with Hans Wagner, Fred Clark, Sherwood Magee, Roger Breanahan, Fred Luderus and others. The reason for this is known to those who have watched the star right fielder perform at bat. In the first place he is a natural hitter. Schulte's position at the plate is one of unconcern that is aggravating to the twirlers. They are puzzled how to pitch to him and study him as they do Wagner or Clarke. This is because Schulte hits a ball on the outside corner as well as the ones inside, which he pulls for home runs into the right field bleachers.

All pitchers look alike to Schulte. He has obtained three against St. Louis, two against New York, two against Brooklyn, three against Philadelphia, four against Boston and one against Cincinnati. The pitchers who have watched the sphere sail into the bleachers are Sallee, Steele, Golden, Marquard, Stack, Moore, Kefe, Perdue, Rucker, Tyler, Ewing, McTighe and Barger.

All of Schulte's homers off these twirlers were not timely. Two of them were gleaned with no one occupying the sacks. The other five did the necessary work, especially one off Marquard June 3 in Chicago. It was the only run Schulte made that month and came with the score 4 and 4 and the bases full. There were two out at the time. He cleaned the bases again July 4 off Keefe of Cincinnati in the first game. In that game Chicago set the season's record of getting two home runs in one inning, which was recently broken by Brooklyn, when Eddie Zimmerman, Zack Wheat and Catcher Tex Irwin secured three in one session. The third time Schulte cracked the ball into the bleachers, when the bases were loaded was July 18, off Perdue in Boston.

Sentence Passed on Local Barber

The sentence passed by all the particular men who have patronized Mr. Percy Lynch in his newly opened Tonsorial Parlour in rear of Payne's Drug Store, Simcoe St., is that the service is one of the finest to be had in these parts. The famous Stark system of Face Massage and Shampooing is used exclusively and therefore the shaving public receive full value for their money and more. Prompt attention and high class work at all times, regardless of time or numbers is bringing this one time popular barber shop to the front fast. Mr. H. Hicks, a young local barber of well known ability, has been added to the staff and the increasing trade is assured there will be little waiting. Shop is thoroughly remodelled and fan cooled. One trial will convince you.

OBITUARY

MRS. EDWARD MAHOOD, Sr.

Mrs. Edward Mahood, Sr., who died at the family residence in Smith on Wednesday, was seventy-five years of age and was born in Ireland. She had been a resident of Peterborough county for the past sixty-one years and was widely known and most highly respected by the whole community. She was a Presbyterian in religion and a faithful attendant of St. Paul's Presbyterian church.

She is survived by her husband, six sons and four daughters. The sons are Alexander of Peterboro', Edward of Smith, Robert of Toronto, David of Smith, John, Winterbourne, Ont., and Bert on the homestead at home, while the daughters are Mrs. Geo. Ruth, Peterborough, Mrs. L. Crossley, Newtonville, and Mrs. Mills and Miss Lily of Smith. One daughter, Mrs. Morton, died twelve years ago. Mr. Alex. Wright, of Burford, Ont., is a brother of the deceased.

The funeral will take place on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, from the family residence, lot 6, con. 2, Smith, to Little Lake cemetery.

ELIZABETH REVOY.

At the early age of 25 years, Elizabeth, wife of Mr. Sydney Revoy, of 495 Cross street, passed away at Nicholls hospital this morning.

The deceased was born near Lindsay. On her marriage to Mr. Revoy she went to reside in Toronto, coming some time later to Peterborough, where she had resided for a considerable period. She was a constant attendant at the Bethany Tabernacle and was generally respected.

In addition to a sorrowing husband, Mrs. Revoy is survived by three children, Sydney, Evelyn and David Henry. She also leaves to mourn her loss five brothers, Joseph Hannivan of Lindsay, Michael of Blind River, William of Edmonton, Joseph and Neil at home, and two sisters, Mrs. Minnie Richmond of Winnipeg, and Mrs. Stafford Osier of Coboconk.

The funeral will take place on Saturday. Service at the house at 2 o'clock, proceeding at 2.30 to the Little Lake cemetery. The Rev. Mr. Fee will officiate.

"Asleep in Jesus—blessed sleep,
From which none ever wake to weep."

MRS. GEO. McWILLIAMS.

The many friends of Mrs. George McWilliams, of Toronto, will learn with the deepest regret of her sudden demise in Toronto, which took place at 8.15, this morning. Mr. and Mrs. McWilliams came, originally, from Omemee, the place of her birth, and lived in this city for a long time, leaving here about seven or eight years ago for Toronto.

Mr. McWilliams, husband of the deceased, while here, operated a planing mill on the old Dixon race, and also was a contractor and builder, an occupation which he is at present following up, in Toronto. The family lived on London street.

The deceased was well known in this city, being an active worker in the George Street Methodist church. The following are the relatives of the deceased in the city: Nephews, Messrs. J. McWilliams, Park street, A. McWilliams, Bridgenorth; E. N. McWilliams, fur dealer, George St.; and nieces, Mrs. Wm. Carter, Bolivar street; Miss Mary McWilliams, East City. The deceased also had three sons, Harry, Wesley and Lorne who reside in Toronto.

The funeral will be held on Saturday.

STRIKE IS TO GO ON

English Labour Men Say There Will be no Truce—Chancellor of the Exchequer is Making Effort to Ward Off Hostilities

TROUBLE ANTICIPATED

London, Aug. 18.—James Henry Thomas, secretary of the western district of the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants, stated last night that there would be no truce between the unions and the railway managers, despite the efforts of Chancellor Lloyd-George, and that the strike would go on.

The society sent out 1,500 telegrams yesterday afternoon to various railway centres, ordering an immediate strike.

Officers and men who were on furlough have been recalled to their regiments by telegraph. The artillerymen have been taken from their gun drill, and are devoting their attention to their rifles, with a view of strike possibilities. The parks of London are being made ready for encampments. It is probable that bluejackets will be drafted to equip the electric power stations at Liverpool, and they will also be required to protect the ships in the harbors, upon which there have been many small fires, supposed to have been of incendiary origin.

The authorities regarded the action of the strikers in calling out the men from the power houses at Liverpool as one of the gravest features of the day. All the horses of the army have had their shoes sharpened in preparation for service in the streets.

How tenaciously the Government is clinging to hopes for a settlement of the dispute and is working to arrange one was displayed by David Lloyd-George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, in a speech in the House of Commons last night which quickly sent abroad the impression that the situation had taken a strong turn for the better and that fears of an immediate strike might vanish.

Ramsay Macdonald, the Labor leader in the Lower House, was prepared to move a vote of censure against the Government for its use of the military in strikes and because of its general attitude in the present situation. Feeling in the House ran high.

Mr. Lloyd-George, however, arose and, addressing the members, intimated that the representatives of the unions had failed to understand the Government's offer to form a royal commission which should report what amendments were necessary to the agreement of 1907 between the railway managers and the men. He said it was not purposed to form an ordinary commission, but one composed of three members, one representing the railways and one the men, with the chairman a man well known for his impartiality and enjoying the general confidence of the community. The Government, he added, realised the importance of acting promptly lest the men should think it was trying to put off the whole question. He proposed that the commission get to work immediately and report without relay.

"I have not given up hope of arriving at some solution of the difficulty satisfactory to all parties," Mr. Lloyd-George said, "and I appeal to the press as well as to the House of Commons to support us. I hope the men will realize that it is intended to give fair play and not to lure out of their hands the great weapon of striking."

If the royal commission were accepted, the Chancellor said, its members would be appointed Saturday and its sitting would begin Monday. He emphasized the importance of exercising great patience and restraint in this critical moment and hoped it would be possible to conduct the negotiations without any exasperating intervention from any quarter.

Ramsay Macdonald, replying to the Chancellor, said there evidently had been a misunderstanding of the Government's proposal, and that he would not press his motion of censure. He appealed to the members of the House having influence with the railway directors, to persuade them to make it easier for the men to accept a truce.

Died on Lake Steamer.

Peterboro, Aug. 18.—Word was received yesterday of the death of Wilson Henderson, for 28 years superintendent of the local water-works system. He left here on a trip for the benefit of his health, and passed away on the boat en route to Toronto.

Suicide in Mid-Ocean.

Montreal, Aug. 18.—Reginald Bagnall jumped from the Sicilian in mid-ocean. He was never seen after he sprang on the rail and jumped. There were many sharks about at the time. This was his first trip to Canada.

INVADES NORFOLK.

Mr. Borden Meets With But Little Enthusiasm.

Simcoe, Aug. 18.—R. L. Borden tried yesterday to duplicate the Premier's success in Norfolk County, but failed. The crowd was much smaller and less enthusiastic.

Mr. Borden devoted himself to an arraignment of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's argument on Tuesday. He said that the sudden dissolution of Parliament involved a breach of faith on the part of the Government in connection with the Oliver enquiry. "The action of the Government in this connection," declared Mr. Borden, "is absolutely without precedent in this country, and it ought to invite condemnation of the people of Canada upon a Government so lost to all sense of public decency as to take the course which I have described to you."

Charging the Prime Minister with misrepresentation in stating that it had always been the intention of the Government to submit reciprocity to the people, Mr. Borden gave the lie to the Premier's assertion, declaring that a motion to that effect, introduced by himself, had been voted down in Parliament at the instance of Sir Wilfrid in March last.

Dealing with the result of the favored nation treaties, Mr. Borden scored the Government with the words, "The Prime Minister has promised to give you competition with the whole world in everything that you produce, and yet to maintain the same burden of taxation upon everything that you buy, and he calls that a great relief to the farmers."

Following Mr. Borden's remarks W. F. Maclean continued the assault upon reciprocity with a speech, in which Sir Wilfrid Laurier was characterized as an Indian doctor, a medicine man peddling a political cure, well known as Taft pills.

S. H. Harding, president of the Norfolk Conservative Association, was in the chair. Alex. McCall, late member and Conservative candidate, spoke briefly. A. C. Pratt and H. P. Innes were the other speakers.

Youth Opened Cars.

Montreal, Aug. 18.—Gordon McMartin, a youth of 16, was sent to the penitentiary for two years yesterday by Judge Choquet for breaking and entering seventeen cars of the Grand Trunk Railway. Other charges hanging over him are for a theft of $40 from Joseph Adelard of Coteau Landing. He is also wanted in Belleville and St. Alban's for stealing clothes. At the time of his arrest the chief of police from St. Alban's was looking for him in this city on the latter charge.

Judge Choquet, sitting in the court of special sessions, sentenced James Mooney to three years in the penitentiary. Mooney was convicted on a charge of horse-stealing from J. Cosur, having purloined a team of horses valued at $200, and another horse from Callis Cause & Co., valued at $500.

Blew Out Cylinder Head.

Boston, Aug. 18.—Delayed three days by the blowing out of her high pressure cylinder head, the Allan Line steamer Numidian, arrived at this port yesterday from Glasgow. The last 600 miles of the run was made at a reduced speed, owing to the accident. The cylinder head blew out last Sunday.

HE DEFIES BOURASSA

Sir Wilfrid Challenges His Nationalist Assailants—Arouses Great Enthusiasm by His Remarks at Fall River

A FIGHTING SPEECH

Three Rivers, Que., Aug. 18.—The statement that Sir Wilfrid Laurier has lost his hold upon the people of Quebec Province was shown up in its true colors yesterday by thousands of electors from Three Rivers and the surrounding country. Despite the threatening weather and the rush of harvest, thousands of people thronged the old city and cheered the remarks of their beloved leader. Sir Wilfrid was in splendid form, and dealt with the various problems before the electors in masterly style. He carried the war into Africa at the very outset, and mercilessly attacked Mr. Bourassa and the Nationalists.

In the course of his address he touched upon reciprocity, upon the navy and upon the Nationalist movement, and in every instance his arguments went home with telling effect, and were cheered to the echo by his audience.

"I came here expecting to speak to the people of Three Rivers," said Sir Wilfrid, "and I find that I have to meet a real provincial assembly. I met many people of Ontario Tuesday at Simcoe, but my welcome here is far more important than even that meeting. This appeals to me as the answer to the meeting at St. Hyacinthe the last Sunday, and I am satisfied with the reply. I have read with careful attention the speeches recently made by Mr. Monk and by my ex-friend, Mr. Bourassa, and I find that they have spoken on every possible subject except the real question which is before the people to-day, and they have not agreed even as to that when they thought of it. Mr. Monk has said he was against reciprocity. Mr. Bourassa seems neither for nor against, while Mr. Gilbert says he favors it with modifications.

"But, I tell you, that the only real question which concerns them to-day is to defeat Laurier, that is all the policy they have." (Applause and cries "No; they won't do it.")

Proceeding, Sir Wilfrid dealt with the increasing revenue of the country during the past number of years, and declared that it was plain this increasing prosperity had had its effect on Quebec Province, since the old exodus to the States had stopped, and now the young men of the province were going to Montreal; Quebec was the first when they need work. (Applause.) "But in face of all this," said Sir Wilfrid, "the Opposition says turn Laurier out."

Sir Wilfrid declared that nowhere was this reciprocity pact of more importance than in the Quebec counties facing the St. Lawrence, and predicted that once it was adopted the whole district would be visited by buyers from the States, anxious to secure the products of the country. The Premier then briefly dealt with the history of the old reciprocity negotiations, until finally the Americans had sent to Canada and succeeded in getting a pact agreed to, "and as soon as this is adopted in Canada," he said, "you will obtain entry for your grain, hay and vegetables into the markets of the United States, without paying any tax." (Applause.)

In Provencher, Man.

Winnipeg, Aug. 18.—Dr. Molloy was unanimously nominated here yesterday to contest Provencher for the Liberals. The Conservatives elect their candidate next week.

In Carleton.

Woodstock, N.B., Aug. 18.—Carleton County Conservative convention here last night nominated B. F. Smith to oppose Frank B. Carvell in the coming election. Mr. Smith was despatched by Carvell in the 1908 election by 151 majority.

In King's, N.S.

Halifax, Aug. 18.—The Liberal-Conservatives of King's County yesterday nominated A. De W. Foster of Wolfeville as their candidate, in opposition to Sir Frederick Borden. Mr. Foster took time to consider, and before the convention adjourned, announced that he would accept. The announcement was made that R. L. Borden would hold a meeting in Kentville Sept. 16.

Foster Again Chosen.

Toronto, Aug. 18.—George Eulas Foster is the Conservative candidate for North Toronto in the coming Dominion elections. Mr. Foster's was the one and only name presented to the delegates.

Mayor Geary presided and with him on the platform were: W. K. McNaught, M.P.P., Hon. J. S. Duff, E. B. Osler, Edmund Bristol, John Shaw, M.P.P.

Changed Wiley's Finding.

Washington, Aug. 18.—Dr. H. W. Wiley, the pure food expert, added another sensation to the House enquiry into Agricultural Department affairs yesterday, when he declared that a ruling adverse to the so-called "corn syrup" manufacturing interests, promulgated by the Bureau of Chemistry, the Food and Drug Inspection Board, and Secretary Wilson himself, had suddenly been changed into a favorable opinion without being referred to him or his associates.

HIS BACK IS BROKEN

Hamilton Tragedy May Result in a Murder Charge—Two Men Are Arrested in Connection With Affair

A ROW OCCURRED

Hamilton, Aug. 18.—About 9 o'clock a foreigner named Todesi Pisus, who lives at 356 Macnab street north, was found lying in a yard by the police. He was badly injured and helpless. He was removed to the City Hospital, where it was found that his back was broken, and his condition is very grave. Later the police arrested two men on suspicion that they caused his injuries, and efforts were made to have them identified by the injured man, but with what success could not be learned last night.

From the meagre details given out by the police, it appears that there was a row at the above address yesterday afternoon, or evening, and the injured man was apparently left lying in the yard until he was found by the police. The injured man, who was conscious, identified one of the men taken to his bedside as his assailant, but he was too weak to explain how the fight started or what had been used to cripple him. The man identified, whose name is unknown to the police, was locked up. The injured man is almost totally paralysed, and is said to be slowing sinking.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

The water in Toronto harbor is the lowest on record.

Mr. Joseph Leech, one of the pioneers of Gorrie, was found dead in bed.

The Paris Midi is authority for the sensational report that sixty soldiers at the Marseilles garrison, have been placed in the hospital as suspected cholera patients.

One of the first residents of the village of Portsmouth, immediately west of Kingston, has just passed away in the person of Mrs. Martha McCammon, aged 86.

Asking for a lunacy commission for Harry K. Thaw, now confined in the Matteawan Hospital, New York, a petition was filed yesterday, on behalf of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, his wife.

In attempting to raise the steamer Cornia, on which seven persons were drowned when she sank near Ogdensburg, the chains broke the hull yesterday. The hull will be abandoned.

Found guilty of stealing money from patients at the General Hospital, Geo. Nilson at Sault Ste. Marie, was yesterday sentenced by Magistrate Elliott to six months in the Central Prison.

After being in the water since September last, the body of Thomas Fay who was drowned in a boating accident, came to the surface yesterday at the Soo within a short distance of the fatality.

Vetoed Wool Tariff Bill.

Washington, Aug. 18.—President Taft yesterday carried out his threat to veto the wool tariff bill. In a special message to the House of Representatives he characterized the measure as a blend of an avowed tariff for revenue and anti-protection measure with a professed protection bill.

In explanation of his course President Taft said the bill was not in harmony of the platform on which he was elected. Furthermore, he declared that the American people are "deeply impressed with the conviction" that the interest of the consuming public can be properly guarded only by revising the tariff one schedule at a time, and then upon "accurate and scientifically acquired information."

REACHES MONTREAL.

French World-Girdler Sails From Canadian Port.

Montreal, Aug. 18.—Jagerschmidt, the Paris journalist, who is girdling the world in an effort to set a new time record for circumnavigating the globe, arrived in Montreal at 7 o'clock last evening on train No. 6 from Winnipeg. He sailed for France at 7.30 this morning by the Allan liner Victorian, instead of going via New York as had been expected.

Is Shah Assassinated?

Teheran, Aug. 18.—It is reported that Mohammed Ali Mirza, the former Shah of Persia, who recently returned from exile in Russia and started an agitation in an endeavor to regain his throne, has been assassinated.

The last previous news concerning Mohammed Ali Mirza was received here Tuesday and was to the effect that he was in full flight, after a crushing defeat of his forces by Government troops north of Firuzkuh, which is about 60 miles east of Teheran.

Killed By Fall of Bricks.

London, Ont., Aug. 18.—John Crosby, proprietor of Evelyn Brick and Tile Yards, was instantly killed on Wednesday afternoon during the heavy storm which passed over this district.

He was wheeling a load of tile out of one of the kilns when it was either struck by lightning or weakened by the high wind, and the arch collapsed, burying Mr. Crosby beneath tons of bricks.

Optimism the Keynote.

Winnipeg, Aug. 18.—Weather continues warm with good ripening breezes all over the prairie west and the crop is coming along nicely. On light lands the binder is at work and reports from many points show that farmers are making a start on early fields, while much of the barley is already in shock. Next week will be a critical period, as the thermometer usually takes a downward dip about August 20, but with the splendid conditions prevailing optimism is the keynote of the situation. Both Brandon and Indian Head experimental farms say conditions are just right for ripening a high grade crop.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

IF mothers lost their tempers over little things—

If mothers insisted on having their own way, no matter how much it inconvenienced all the rest of the family, no matter how much happiness and comfort it took out of other people's lives—

If mothers thought up grievances and sulked over them—

If mothers felt it their privilege to be cranky and disobliging and cross whenever they were tired—

If mothers made life harder to live in any one of the dozens of ways the rest of the family do—

Tell me, how on earth should we ever get along?

Truly, I think we just shouldn't; at least not for long.

Any more than a machine would be able to run very long without any oil

You don't like the implied comparison?

You think it degrades mothers?

I don't know.

It seems to me that oil has a pretty important function.

Just think, if there were no oil to be found anywhere in the world, how long would all the vast fabrics of machinery that makes modern life what it is — the huge pumps that send the water into our kitchens and our bathrooms, the machinery that manufactures our clothes and our furniture and ten thousand other things for each day's use, the motor, the dynamo and the steam engine that minister to our daily need or pleasure—how long would they all run smoothly, if at all, without oil?

About as long, I fancy, as the complicated machinery of family life would endure, if mothers began to claim the privileges of obstinacy and bad temper and sulkiness that fathers and brothers and sisters all claim at least once in a while.

Think of it some day when you are fretting or sulking or finding fault about something, and mother—poor little mother, who isn't the least in the world to blame—is trying to smooth things over.

Think how strange it would seem if mother should turn the tables, expect the rest of the family to soothe her.

Think of it and thank God that He made those wonderful beings called mothers and made them willing and glad to be the oil of society.

A Short Story.

Big trout? Why, yes; I reckon you might pick up a few if you hit the right place. Jud Ranson was out yes'day and brung in six thet weighed nine pounds. Beauties they was. You ask Jud. If he's feelin' middlin' peart he can tell you more about where to fish than anybody in the village."

"And where could I find Mr. Ranson? You see, I'm a stranger here."

"He runs the grist mill. It's right at the foot of this street—where you hear the water bilin' over the dam. Tell 'im Hank Perkins sent you."

"Much obliged," replied the other as he moved away in the direction indicated. "I believe I'll go down and introduce myself."

John C. Bartlett, Jr., as he signed himself, or Jack Bartlett, as his more intimate friends preferred to call him, had come up into the quiet little village of Blackchip to enjoy a much-needed vacation. He had been studying harder than was his wont, and when the opportunity for a few days' relaxation chanced to present itself it found the young man in quite a receptive mood. In Jack's vocabulary the words vacation and trout-fishing meant very much the same thing, and so it was only natural that we find him hot on the trail of fontinalis.

"Is this Mr. Ranson?" Jack had found the mill without difficulty, and was now addressing a middle-aged man whose clothes bore ample evidence of his calling.

"That's my name," replied the miller, glancing suspiciously at the young man as if to say, "Well what do you want?"

"Mr. Perkins, up at the store, told me you were the best trout fisherman in the county," returned the intruder, smoothly, "and as I'd rather fish than eat, I took the liberty of coming down in the hope of getting acquainted with you."

Jack was a very pleasant youth, just the sort of person that no one can help liking. The miller thawed visibly, and within five minutes they were talking fishing as only two enthusiasts can. It soon developed that Jack had come to exactly the right person. So captivated was Mr. Jud Ranson with his new acquaintance that it was not even necessary for the latter to ask concerning the best fishing grounds; the desired information came forth of its own accord.

"I tell you what," cried Jud, slapping a cloud of white dust from his knee, "we'll have to go fishing together. I can't go to-day, but we'll try it to-morrow. What do you say?"

"Nothing would suit me better!" was the hearty response.

"I suppose, though you'd like to go out this afternoon, as you say you havn't caught any trout in the last year. Well, you couldn't do better, I reckon, than go to the Rattlesnake Pool. It's not the pleasantest place in the world; but trout! say, there's a hundred trout in that pool if there's one, and the smallest will go over a pound. I'm afraid to tell you what the biggest one would scale."

"That sounds good enough, in spite of the name. Now how do you get there?"

"It's right up this river here; about two miles. Follow the road till you come to the burned saw mill; then there's a little trail. You can't miss it. It's rather a mean spot to fish, because it's right at the bottom of a steep cut in the rocks that widens out to form the pool. You can't use flies down there; use hoppers, and let the current carry your bait out through the big swirl in the middle."

"I suppose the name of the pool has no special significance?"

"Yes, it has, too! There's a big colony of rattlers lives in the rocks the other side of the pool, but you hardly ever see any snakes this side. You needn't worry much about them."

"Oh, I won't," was the confident answer. "I've killed too many rattlesnakes to let such a trifle stand in the way of good fishing. I'm going to try this famous pool right after dinner."

"Well, good luck; and remember we'll go out early to-morrow. I've some other good places to show you."

Jack's interest was so aroused by what he heard concerning the big trout in Rattlesnake Pool that he concluded not to defer his trip till the afternoon. It was about ten when he left the mill and less than an hour later he was journeying up the rough road following the course of Pine River.

At length he came to the burned saw mill, and had no trouble in finding the trail which Jud Ranson had mentioned. It led him on up the narrow defile, where the stream roared in a mass of feathery foam among the rocks and boulders that vainly strove to block its path.

The trail presently made a detour from the stream, and when the two again united Jack knew that he had reached his objective point. He stood at the head of a wide black pool, doubtless hollowed out to a considerable depth by the action of countless spring floods. At his left the water boiled out through a narrow opening with a swift, silent rush, the current cutting down through the dark pool like a knife blade.

Judged by appearances, it was by far the most promising hole that Jack had ever wet a line in, and he could well believe all his new friend of the mill said about it. While jointing up his fly rod in preparation for the campaign, he glanced curiously at the rough, irregular ledge of rock which rose sheer from the water's edge, across the pool. Certainly its aspect, at least, gave no excuse for the sinister name the place bore and the reputation which went with it.

The day had been half clear, half cloudy, and now, even as Jack was about to begin fishing, a few drops of warm rain greeted him.

"Guess the rattlers won't be on deck to-day," was his thought, as he impaled a lively grasshopper. "The dampness'll keep 'em boled up. 'Down through the swirl in the middle,'" he quoted skilfully sending the lure out into the current. "Well, here's where we—hello! quick work, that!"

The rod sprang into a beautiful curve as a fish demolished the bait with a vicious lunge. The battle was on. Five minutes later Jack netted his first trout—a handsome specimen, just fourteen inches long from the broad, muscular tail to the tip of his shapely nose, and one that would easily weigh a pound and a half.

"I guess old Jud knew what he was talking about," commented the angler, selecting a second hapless insect from his bait box. "If the places he shows me to-morrow are anywhere near as good as this, they'll have to go some and a little bit more. Nowfor number two!"

So it went on. Jack had been fishing the pool for an hour, with four fine fish to his credit, when a trout suddenly broke water at the foot of the ledge, way across the pool.

"That looks like a big one, thought Jack, and watched closely to see if the fish would show himself again. He had not long to wait. This time the trout, as if defying an attack, leaped clear of the water, to fall back with an awkward splash, "Just like baby tumbling into the cistern," as the awestruck spectator put it.

It was the biggest trout that John C. Bartlett, Jr., had ever seen in his life, and that gentleman had captured some decidedly large ones. But how was he to get this particular fish? To reach his lurking place with a cast was a hopeless impossibility. The only way to establish communications from that side of the pool was by a canoe, and canoes were not the commonest objects about there. Jack looked keenly at the rocks above the point where the big trout had shown himself. There was a bare chance that one, keeping well hidden, might work along the ledge to a point within casting distance. But the rattlesnakes—

"I'll risk it," thought Jack; "the rattlers probably won't be out to-day," and his resolution was strengthened as a heavy swirl proved that the big fish was still feeding.

It was first necessary to cross the river. Jack went upstream for several hundred yards, looking for a place shallow enough to be waded. He finally made it, though not without a good wetting. Jud Ranson had said that waders were unnecessary in fishing the big pool, and so Jack had left his at the hotel, wearing instead a pair of heavy-soled shoes. On first entering the chilly water he sighed for the boots, but the sigh was of short duration, for the water, which came nearly to his waist, would have made the cumbersome waders worse than useless.

By the time he had worked his passage down the other side to the pool—and the going was exceedingly rough—the sun seemed to have secured an upper hand over the clouds and was shining fiercely. Jack kept a sharp lookout for snakes, but saw none, although the seams and crevices promised abundant hiding places for the reptiles. A narrow shelf of rock some twenty feet above the water furnished a precarious pathway, and along this the angler crept until over the spot where the big trout had risen, endeavoring to make himself as small as possible, for the position seemed one altogether too obvious from which to lure a wise and wary trout.

Flattened against the rock behind him, Jack prepared for his cast, and an instant later a plump and tempting grasshopper dropped lightly up on the black surface of the pool. The trout was surprised. Never before had he known a hopper to appear from those rocks, but a number of good things had been coming his way that morning, and he did not hesitate. Up he flashed, gulping in the bait with something that sounded very like a smack of the lips. Jack waited a second as the old fish turned; then struck.

The outraged trout hurled himself from the water, viciously shaking his speckled body, in an effort to rid his jaw of the sharp hook, but to no avail. He darted out into the current, rushed up to the head, back again, but could not escape that terrifying drag, which followed him everywhere, like a persistent, untiring foe. He became frantic, wasting his strength in useless rushing and leaping, and yet the enemy, unwearying as fate itself, still clung relentlessly to him.

It was quite a novel experience for Jack, this playing a trout from a perch in the air. "Like fishing from an aeroplane," he told himself. It gave him a decided advantage, for there was less possibility of the line's fouling on some hidden snag than if he had been down at the water level. The big trout again rushed out across the pool, while the reel hissed forth its shrill alarm. The reel checked its motion as the fish turned, but the whirring sound continued — in a slightly different key. Jack glanced hastily to one side. The noise was coming from a huge rattlesnake coiled on the shelf, altogether too close to the angler for the latter's peace of mind. The hot rays of the sun, which had by this time dried up the slight dampness, had clearly brought the ugly reptile forth from his retreat, and he was now glaring at the intruder with an eye of malignant evil.

Jack at once realized the difficulty of his position. He had absolutely no weapon which would serve against the snake, save, perhaps a joint of his rod. But there was that magnificent trout, zig-zagging around in the pool below. Even in the face of a very real danger, the young man could not bear to think of losing the object to gain which he had risked that danger.

Could he work his way further along the narrow shelf, and so into a more inviting neighborhood? The impracticability of such a plan was at once apparent, for the shelf of rock extended but a short distance beyond his present position. All the time Jack's brain was busy devising schemes to get himself out of the predicament—plans rejected as soon as thought of—his hands were methodically working away with the rod and reel. It was fully a quarter of an hour since the game old trout had first felt the hook, and while he was by no means defeated, the constant effort was telling heavily upon him.

A new note suddenly chimed in with the hum of the nearby snake. Another, drawn doubtless by the warning of the first from one of the numerous crannies in the rocks, had changed the solo into a duet. Even as Jack looked, a third glided into view. He watched it slowly issue from its hiding place with a horrified fascination. Why, the rocks seemed alive with rattlesnakes, their sharp whir apparently coming from everywhere at once.

It really began to look as if the reptiles were meditating an attack. Rattlesnakes are commonly supposed to be inoffensive unless molested, but these probably considered Jack as an invader of their lawful realm, and, as such, a legitimate object upon which to vent their spite. At anyrate, several were approaching, very obviously with no friendly spirit. The danger was imminent. Jack glanced desperately around; then, holding the rod extended in his left hand, leaped for the oily black surface of the pool below.

He struck with a resounding aplash and disappeared beneath the surface. The pool had offered the only possible chance of escape, and Jack had counted upon a sufficient depth of water to render the leap perfectly safe. His feet, indeed, touched the bottom, but the force of the fall was entirely broken by the water above. A skilful swimmer, he soon gained the surface, where he managed to tread water while reeling in the slack line lost during the flight. Much to his delight, the big trout was still on, this proving beyond a doubt that he was securely hooked.

Holding the rod in one hand, Jack swam across the pool towards the gravel bed upon which he had fished prior to his attempt on the big fellow. The current swept him downstream, so that he finally landed some little distance below his former position. Here he renewed the fight and ten minutes later slipped the landing net which had not deserted him during the period of excitement, over the largest trout it had ever been his privilege to capture.

"It was an awful job to get you, old boy," he murmured in deep appreciation, "but I'm bound to say you're worth it all."

If There Is A Weak Spot

In Your System or a Faltering Organ it Will be Worse at This Time of Year

Vigor and Energy Run Low in Spring Unless You Use

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD

It may be the stomach, the heart, the lungs, the filtering or excretory organs, but if there is a weak point it is likely to show up at this time of year.

The blood is thin and watery. It fails to supply proper nourishment. The all-essential nerve force is lacking, and you feel the effects first in your weakest organ.

Your trouble may take the form of indigestion, you may have neuralgia or twinges of sciatic rheumatism. The cause is the same—weak blood.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will help you as nothing else can, because it supplies in condensed and easily assimilated form the elements which are necessary for the strengthening and invigorating of the various organs of the body.

Every dose of this great restorative organ goes to form new, red corpuscles in the blood—to make the blood rich and red. The faltering organs resume their functions, appetite improves, digestion becomes good, and gradually new energy and vigour find their way to every nook and corner of the body. To keep strong and well this spring use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50 at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

CHURCH BUILT IN A DAY

The "Record" Edifice Capable of Holding Three Hundred People

What probably constitutes a record in the building of churches has recently taken place at Preston, a small town in the West of Australia. From foundation to weathercock the whole building was completed in sixteen hours.

At six o'clock on the Saturday morning all that had been done was to set in the ground the four corner blocks on which the building was to stand. By seven o'clock sixty-five carpenters were hard at work. Shortly after half-past ten the floor was laid, and the four frames of the building were being hoisted into position. Now the skeleton of the church—64½ feet long and 31 feet wide—was standing on the blocks.

Meantime dozens of painters were busy, and other helpers gathered from all parts were working with might and main to complete the outside, which was done during the afternoon. All the forces were then concentrated on the inside. By ten o'clock the seats had been installed, the matting laid, the platform and vestries carpeted, the preacher's desk put in, and gas and water laid on.

Midnight on Saturday saw the church, capable of holding 300 people, fully complete, and on the following day three services were held there, at each of which the "record" church was crowded to overflowing.

REMARKABLE SERMONS

Short Discourses that Have had Wonderful Results

It is said that Thomas Hooker thought his duty ill performed if his sermon did not consume three hours.

Once it is related that the famous divine did deliver a really short sermon—preaching exactly fifteen minutes. He sat down; but, after a brief rest, was up and at it again for two hours more.

Every one of Cranmer's sermons was a small volume in itself, and Bunyan, Calvin, Baxter, and Knox are all said to have been only a little more merciful to their hearers.

In striking contrast to these long-winded discourses may be mentioned some startlingly brief sermons of late years. Perhaps the shortest of all was that delivered by a clergyman at New Jersey, who, after announcing his text, impressively surveyed his congregation, and then said: "Don't worry; it's wicked." He then sat down.

It would be difficult to exceed this in brevity and effectiveness; but a North of England vicar in the last century closely approximated it. He gave out the text, "God so loved the world," etc., to which he added this observation:

"My friends, did I speak an hour, I couldn't make that message any plainer. I'll just leave it with you."

Another example of a brief but extraordinary sermon was furnished by an aged and feeble clergyman in Ohio. He had been requested to deliver a charity address on behalf of orphan children, but his strength was unequal to the task.

It was therefore an inspiration indeed that moved him to stretch forth one feeble arm in the direction of the little unfortunates sitting near the pulpit, and to exclaim, with no little pathos, "Whence shall we find bread that these may eat?"

So impressed was the congregation that the collection was the largest ever taken in that district.

SPIES AND SPYING AND THE NEW LAW

Naval Correspondent Writes of Official Secrets and Their Story.

TERMS OF AN OFFENCE

Which Acts Are Deemed To Be Prejudicial to the Interests of a State or Nation.

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday.

The publication of the text of the new bill which is to take the place of the Official Secrets Act of 1889 indicates the changed opinion in the British Isles upon the subject with which these legislative enactments deal. Should the existing act was aimed directed against the theft or misappropriation of confidential documents, like that of which Lord Haldane charged the unpaid reading in the House of Lords recently, of a different character.

It is now (as specifically described by an offence, and any person who, with a purpose prejudicial to the safety or interests of the State, approaches a prohibited place and makes plans and sketches to obtain information which might be useful to an enemy will be liable to penal servitude. In the old law this punishment could only be awarded to a person communicating or intending to communicate Secrets to a "foreign State," but the last named term is absent from the new bill, in which the dreadful communication of information to "any unauthorised person" is treated as a misdemeanor.

A "PROHIBITED PLACE."

Another new feature of the bill just introduced is the widening of the scope of the clause which defines a "prohibited place." As Lord Haldane said the other day, the places barred from public access under the old law were the few dockyards it might be just as important that, perhaps should pass into a private backyard where a certain plan of war was building as it was that they should not go into a fortification. Therefore the definition in clause three of the new law is made more comprehensive and now embraces any work of defence, arsenal, or munitions, camp, or office, belonging to or signal station belonging to the government, or any other place into the exercise of inspection or plans is vital.

Under this power is given, to be exercised in times of emergency, to proscribe other places by proclamation on the ground that information concerning them or their actual construction would be useful to an enemy. This step, entirely reasonable should be designed accordingly for the time being, as well as any works which are materials there being stored or repaired.

It is not difficult to find reasons for these changes, not to the that they are in the hands of a hostile power, but also that they should go some way to suppress. It is the actual occurrence, however, of disturbance that have mainly directed attention to the matter, especially those cases in which the procedure of the Official Secrets Act made it difficult to get a conviction. Lord Haldane gave an instance of a stranger found in the Dover fortifications who said he was there to hear the singing of the birds, though it was subsequently in this and other cases only means of proving his purpose were inadequate, but under the new bill it is enacted that a person's motive may be inferred if from the circumstances, from his own conduct or from his known character it might be taken to have been there for no good purpose.

SPIES AND THEIR WORK.

The employment of ships always presupposes something worth saying, but the objects of information differ in the various countries. In England and America plans of new ships and new guns would be among the things most sought for, while we have no fortifications that we should wish to hide, as is the case with Continental Powers.

No doubt some of the clauses in the new bill are intended to give confidence in the country, but the increase of the penalties shows that they are intended also to be prohibitive. Thus anybody harbouring a spy, that is, a person whom he has reasonable ground for supposing to be a person about to commit, or who has committed, an offence under this act," is liable to a year's imprisonment or to be fined or to both imprisonment and fine.

Upon the important matter of the dissemination of information by newspapers in war time, to which Lord Ellenborough referred in the discussion in the House of Lords, the new bill carries us no further. Nor does it touch upon the subject of spying from aircraft, which raises important considerations. While an airman over a "prohibited place" might be treated the same as anybody in the same neighborhood of land, it would be more difficult to infer a wrong motive in the former than in the latter case. The success of Bleriot's flight across the Channel in the Daily Mail flying shows how an airship combining flying experience with observatory powers and with all aptitude for the navigation of the air could be of use as a spy. Experiments of special importance in regard to map and compass reading was valuable to him, while Telegraph and other correspondents, without such knowledge, frequently spoil their bearings.

The omission from the new bill of any provision for dealing with the transmission of news in war time shows that the government is evidently not ready to legislate on this important subject.

Curtain Has Fallen Now for a Very Gay Season

LADY DERBY LADY SALISBURY

London, This Coronation Year, Has Had More Brilliant Society Events Than Ever Before, While List of Those Who Have Shone Contains Well Known Anglo-Americans.

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday.

THE curtain has now come down on what is considered to have been the most brilliant social season in many years. Practically ever since Parliament met in February gayeties have followed one another in rapid succession, the break at Easter being of the briefest, for by the last week in April balls and parties were in full swing.

From that time forward scarcely a night has passed without at least three or four important engagements, almost all the great houses having opened their doors at one time or another, besides the efforts of a host of lesser entertainers. Dancing certainly has been the most popular form of amusement. There is, in fact, only one opinion among the young people, namely, that they never had such a good time as during the coronation season.

It would be impossible to mention all those who have contributed to the brilliance of the season just over, but among the Americans here and who have been specially conspicuous their efforts in the last three months have been Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, whose parties at both Dorchester House and Wrest Park have been talked and remembered; the Duchess of Rockingham, Mrs. Anthony Drexel, Lady Granard, Mrs. James Macdonald, Mrs. Bradley Martin and Mrs. Baldwin Drummond.

CLOSING THE SEASON.

The opening of Devonshire House on Derby Day was an event in itself, even though the King and Queen could not be present as the Duchess of Devonshire's guests, and the Duchess of Portland brought the season to a close. One of the big royal balls of the season was given by Lady Salisbury in Arlington street; Lady Derby was indefatigable in welcoming friends to the new ballroom at Derby House; the Duchess of Westminster was one of the untiring hostesses in coronation week, and Lady Cholmondeley, although coming to London comparatively as a stranger, has already established the reputation of Chelsea House as a great social centre by giving a ball and several lesser entertainments.

The Duchess of Rutland gave a dance for the special friends of her popular daughters, the Ladies Manners, who took an active share in the fancy dress balls that have been so successful this season. The most brilliant of these was certainly the Shakespeare ball at the Albert Hall.

The King and Queen, owing to their numerous other engagements, have not attended any balls this season, although this is a form of entertainment they both enjoy. It is expected, and hoped, therefore, that they will be seen at many of the big houses when dancing is in progress next year. The King and Queen have dined out several times, the host being a dinner far too King seldom began before nine o'clock. Earlier hours have, in fact, characterised the social as well as the court arrangements of the last season.

Polite notes declaration begin at half-past ten—a thing undreamed of ten years ago. King Edward used to say, "Punctuality is the politeness of princes," and evidently his successor is of the same opinion, and so is Queen Mary, who is always ready to the moment when any engagement, whether public or private, has to be kept.

KING BARS POLITICS.

King George is always a delightful host at the small dinner parties to which he invites his household and other friends. One subject is absolutely forbidden at his table on all occasions. It is that of politics. Before he came to the throne he saw no reason for not discussing them, but since then no one could guess that His Majesty had the remotest interest in the subject.

Queen Alexandra is delighted to think that she will again have the royal children under her care when the King and Queen are in India at the end of the year. Christmas will be spent at Sandringham, and almost immediately after Queen Alexandra will take her grandchildren to Marlborough House in order that they may visit the pantomimes and other entertainments.

Though somewhat indulgent, Queen Alexandra disciplines discipline among her grandchildren, and even the Prince of Wales has to submit to her ruling. It had been suggested that the Prince of Wales and Prince Albert should have a small household of their own at York cottage in the absence of their parents, but the King has decided that they are too young for this, so the two princes will stop at Sandringham with their elder and younger brothers.

For the coronation season—that is to say, after the period of court mourning—special visitors' books were provided at Buckingham Palace, and by direction of the King these have been removed and added to the archives at the palace and others substituted for them. They form a wonderfully interesting record of the occasion, since they contain the names of practically every royal and distinguished visitor to London during June and the early part of July.

Describing the style of frock coat and waistcoat recently worn by King George, the Tailor and Cutter says the coat was made of black doll surface cloth, faced with bright silk to the end of the holes. The lapel rolled to the waist, but the fronts were made to button to. The top of the lapel was horizontal and the collar was somewhat narrower than the lapel. The sleeves were short enough to show a fair amount of cuff.

His waistcoat was of the double breasted style and made from light material. The trousers were of a neat gray striped cassimere and were of ample width in the legs.

"This is a style of dress," states the Tailor and Cutter, "which is coming into favor considerably, and we notice that quite a number of men are now wearing it for all the more dressy occasions."

King Is Ready for Grouse Shooting

Monarch Will Open the Season This Year as the Guest of Lord and Lady Ripon.

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday.

KING GEORGE is to open the grouse shooting season this year with Lord and Lady Ripon at Studley Royal, when he will have two days' shooting over the celebrated (belong?) moors, in Nidderdale. These moors always yield very heavy bags at the beginning of the season, and it has not been the custom to shoot over them for more than three or four days in the year. The King, when Prince of Wales, was the guest of the late Lord Ripon a few years ago for the opening of the grouse shooting, and enjoyed excellent sport.

Queen Alexandra will be asked upon to make a change in her household, the approaching marriage of the Hon. Blanche Lascelles rendering it necessary to appoint a new Maid of Honor. There is no doubt that, should she care to accept it, the post will go to the Hon. Leovinia Knollys, one of Her Majesty's most trusted friends and an especial favorite with her.

Everything hinges upon the health of Lady Knollys. Should she feel strong enough to dispense with the constant attendance of her daughter, Miss Knollys will become formally attached to the court of the queen mother, at which she has been a prominent figure since her debut in society.

The duties of maid of honor to Queen Alexandra are extremely light and very pleasant, so that if Miss Knollys is compelled to decline the honor there will be much heart burning among those qualified to hold the appointment, until the Lieutenant Queen's choice has been officially notified.

Queen Mary has lately sent some of her wonderful collection of diamonds to be reset, and this serves to confirm what was said in the newspapers at the time of the coronation, that these are Her Majesty's favorite gems. Though she possesses some very valuable rubies, emeralds and pearls, she rarely wears them, and as a rule diamonds form her sole ornament.

Queen Alexandra, on the other hand, greatly prefers to have her diamonds mixed with other stones, particularly emeralds and sometimes. Amongst the favorite stones of the Duchess of Connaught, and her daughter, Princess Patricia, confessed to a preference for turquoise and the Duchess of Argyll.

THE LACONIA WILL BE ALWAYS STEADY

New Cunard Steamship To Be Equipped with Anti-Rolling Apparatus.

TANK ON EITHER SIDE

Each One is Partly Filled with Water and Movement of Vessel Makes Device Automatic.

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday

A FEATURE of the Cunard steamship Laconia, which was launched at the Armstrong on July 20 at Newcastle on Tyne, Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, has occasioned considerable interest in shipping circles. The vessel will be equipped with Frahm's anti-rolling tanks, and the Laconia will be the first Atlantic steamship and the first British vessel to adopt this system.

The invention consists of a water tank divided into compartments placed on each side of the vessel, and connected across the vessel at the top with air tanks and at the bottom by specially constructed water channels. The tanks are partly filled with water, and the movement of the vessel is checked by the water flowing from one side to the other through the passages. To provide for changes in the movement of the vessel the water which is always under absolute control—in the tanks can be regulated to suit the circumstances, and by closing an air valve it may be kept perfectly still.

To insure to the Cunard company the honor of owning the largest vessel in the world it has been decided that the Aquitania, which is building at Clydebank, shall be more than 800 feet in length by 100 feet wide, thus making her ten feet longer than the Hamburg-American leviathan imperator, which is being built at Hamburg.

The original intentions of the company were that the vessel should be 885 feet in length over all, with a breadth of 95 feet 6 inches and a gross tonnage exceeding 50,000. The specifications have since been revised in response to the Hamburg-American line increasing the dimensions of its vessel, and the Aquitania's length and tonnage (52,000) will bring to her company the coveted honor.

In speed, too, the Cunard vessel is expected to have an advantage of one knot over her German sister—23 knots, as compared with the Imperator's 22. She will accommodate 4,000 passengers of all classes, in addition to her crew, which will approach 1,000.

The principal turbines will be of record size, each being 18 feet in diameter, and will weigh about 450 tons. It is probable that oil may be utilised as fuel, which will be stored in tanks in the double bottoms.

ANGLO-AMERICANS LEAVING LONDON

Like the Others in the Society World, They Are Leaving London at Season's Close.

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday.

ANGLO-AMERICANS, like the rest of the social world of London, are slowly filtering away from town, but it is noteworthy that, like most English folks, few are spending the summer at Continental spas, as was the fashion in the last reign.

The American Ambassador and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid are to pay a round of country house visits. The Duchess of Roxburghe is just about to start on a cruise before beginning to entertain her parties at Floors Castle.

Mr. Cornelius Vanderbilt, with his son and daughter, is spending the whole of summer in Europe, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Payne Whitney, who arrive in England some time in September, will entertain at their place in Yorkshire during the shooting.

Mrs. Amory Moore has given up the house she took in Berkeley square for the season, and will stop at the Ritz Hotel before she leaves for Strathpeffer, where during the autumn she will entertain at Blowfit, the pretty house she has occupied for several successive seasons.

Mr. and Mrs. James McDonald, who were entertaining at Cadogan square until the end of the season, are about to leave for Marienbad, where they will stop a few weeks before going on a tour. They hope to spend October in London, before leaving for America the first week in November. Mrs. Blyth is spending the summer in North Berwick.

'12A' FOR HOUSES AFRAID OF '13'

London County Council and Householders Open a Battle Regarding a Superstition.

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday.

THE London County Council and London householders look like embarking on a little war over the old superstition that 13 is an unlucky number. The observant visitor may have noticed in passing along the streets that many houses are numbered 12A, and that No. 13 is absent, the popular notion being that 13 is a harbinger of misfortune.

The County Council declines to recognise this superstition as a factor in London life, and is determined to insist that the 13 shall not be avoided and 12A substituted in its place.

A boarding house keeper named Mrs. Brunton, of No. 12A Oxford terrace, Paddington, is the first against whom the Council is taking action as a test case. Mrs. Brunton found that No. 13 affected the prosperity of her boarding house. Lodgers gave notice after stopping with her for a little while, because any misfortune that fell in with were attributed to stopping in a house numbered 13. Other landlords planned her by. Accordingly, she changed the number to 12A, as thousands of other householders all over London have done.

Members of the Council refuse to discuss their attitude, merely saying that as a principle of policy they will not allow householders to remember their unlucky number.

Mr. W. Harrison, secretary of the Eccentric Club, however, has a few illuminating remarks to make on the subject. Owing to his official connection with artistic and Bohemian circles, he has a wide and intimate acquaintance with those classes, especially actors and actresses, whose belief in talismans has become a tradition.

"Superstition," he says, "is a real and potent force in this world, which has had quite as great an influence in our boasted civilisation as either education or religion.

"The unlucky character of the number 13 probably is due to the tragedy of the Crucifixion which followed the Last Supper, at which thirteen were present. At all rate, ever since that time thirteen has been looked upon as a fatal number, and any amount of instances are reported where thirteen at the table sent brought death to one of the number within a year. The organisation of Thirteen clubs in Great Britain, France and the United States has done much to shatter the force of this particular superstition, but it has by no means destroyed it.

"Lucky charms are also worn by many people. The swastika in particular enjoys a popularity in England and America that is amazing, when you come to think of it. For that matter, the swastika has been popular as an emblem of good luck in all nations for many ages. But how many people will wear an opal if it doesn't happen to be their birth stone."

EARLIER DINNERS FOR THIS REIGN

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday.

A NOTABLE change is coming over the fame of society in the present reign, and its most notable feature is the disappearance of what has been known as the "dinner set," all this being due to the example set by King George and Queen Mary. They are both strong for an earlier dinner hour than was the case in the Victorian era and during the last reign, and for earlier hours in general.

"The King," says a court correspondent in the Gentlewoman, "enjoys a game of bridge now and then and will still from time to time patronise the race course, but he makes neither a hobby and is perfectly content to divide his time between the cares of the State and the cares of his family, with fishing and shooting (more especially the latter) by way of relaxation.

"The Queen cares nothing for racing and less than nothing for card playing. Therefore these diversions will not be fashionable for ladies during the present reign, except among a certain set, which is, after all, comparatively a small section of society."

This is attributed to the passionate devotion of the King and Queen to their home life. Of course it is not to be expected that either the nine o'clock dinner or bridge and poker parties will disappear, but very much less is now heard of them, and it is found possible to give dinners without the accompaniment of card tables, a thing almost unheard of up till a year ago. Any games of chance being out of fashion, it is found that society, on the whole, has been keeping earlier hours lately.

MR. MARTIN UNHAPPY BECAUSE HE'S SILENT

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday.

Mr. Ricardo Martin, the American tenor, thinks he is something of an absent man because he has not been allowed to work at what he has been paid to do. He was engaged by the management of the Covent Garden Royal Opera Company to sing in twenty operas. The season is about over. Mr. Martin has sung in ten performances, drawn pay for twenty and is still unhappy.

EVEN A PHYSICIAN PAYS THE PENALTY

Sir Lauder Brunton Tells of His Experience When He Neglected His Influenza.

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday.

"DO not run unnecessary risks when you are ill, even though you be a physician. That is the dictum of the well known physician Sir Lauder Brunton, who admits to having taken liberties with himself which he ought not to have done. He was to have read a paper before the Royal Sanitary Institute Congress, but had to give it up because he had defied the laws of health.

"My absence," he writes, "may enforce better than my presence the great subject on which I seek to insist. We have had influenza now among us for so many years that both medical men and laity recognise that it is useless to fight against it and efforts during an attack.

"This has long been known in Russia, and a good many years ago a patient of mine from Moscow told me that the rule there was for a man who got influenza to go to bed for five days.

"I suppose I big came out from England, and being confident in his strength boasted that he would show them what an Englishman would do. He would not go to bed. He got influenza and, true to his promise, worked through the attack, with the result that instead of going to bed for five days he had to go to bed for five weeks.

"I have often told this story and condemned the young man's conduct, and yet, alas! I have been even worse than he. I got a very bad attack many weeks ago, and I knew that I ought to lie up, but there were many things urgently requiring to be done, and I determined to run the risk and do them. But the laws of health admit of no such excuse. I had broken down, and now I am paying the penalty in compulsory rest for three months."

MANNERS OF BOYS INTEREST THE KING

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday.

THE Bishop of Worcester's story of a conversation with the King when he wed Duke of York on the subject of manners, which not very favorable comparison between English and American boys, has caused much comment.

"Why," inquired the King, "do you not ask that our public schools' manners should be, tonight?" The foreigners know which to bow, to shake hands, to converse, to stand up or sit down in the presence of their superiors, while the English are wanting in these manners. While vacancies have to be filled those are the pupils which very often tell, and that is where the Englishman does not shine."

That was a number of years ago, of course, but Mr. Johnson, the secretary of the Moral Education League, is of opinion that the same remark might be applied to the Englishmen of to-day.

"As far as the big public schools, like Eton, Harrow and Winchester, are concerned," he said, "they are looked upon as producing some of the best types of Englishmen. I must say, however, as a result of my experience, that the Englishman, when he is abroad, often becomes a different being. This is what I have noticed in travelling. The Englishman abroad is without regard for other people.

"In English education generally the teaching of manners has been too much neglected. If boys and girls turn out gentlemen and ladies it is not so much on account of the instruction they have received as on account of their training."

Mr. Joseph Collins, a teacher of deportment in London, declared in the course of an interview that the manners of the average Englishman were worse than those of the citizens of any other capital in Europe. "There are parts of industrial Lancashire, and even of Ireland, that not a great deal nearer to London in this respect. I would suggest as the best mannered city in England, and Cork in Ireland."

The officials of various consulates often have reason to notice the difference in the behavior of boys of different nationalities. One of these remarked, speaking of the King's criticism: "Whereas English boys always seem embarrassed, self-conscious and awkward when they are meeting friends, the politeness of the French youth is sometimes embarrassing. He is invariably courteous and considerate. American boys," he added, "even if their manners might be improved, are very precocious travellers, and never for a moment do they lose their heads."

"SMITH, NOT BROWN," SAYS THE "HATLESS"

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday.

Harold D. Smith, better known as "Hatless Smith," always spends his week ends on the Channel coast. Last week he was at Margate, where he keeps his sailing yacht. As Mr. Smith has not yet reached covering of any kind since he was four years old and has lived in all sorts of climates, his face is burned as brown as a nut. While sitting on the esplanade at Margate last Sunday two highly dressed American women walked by.

"Oh, look!" said one, "isn't he brown!"

"No," said "Hatless," "my name is Smith."

Mr. Smith is the manager of Baring Brothers and one of the best known bankers in England.

OBJECT TO 'MIRTH' IN ENGLISH HYMN

Considerable Hubbub Caused by the Substitution of a Verse in the National Anthem.

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday.

THE hubbub over the new verse written for the national anthem recalls the omission of a verse of "The Star Spangled Banner" from American school books because it was considered a severe reflection on England. Two lines in the second verse of "God Save the King"—

"Confound their politics, Frustrate their knavish tricks."

were cut out and the following substituted by Dean Hole:—

"Keep us from plague and dearth,
Turn Thou our, woke to mirth."

The alteration, approved by King George, and sung in St. Paul's for the first time at the coronation thanksgiving service, though applauded at first, has not been received with universal favor.

There are many who consider that the word "mirth" is unfortunate, the argument being that what is required is a word meaning joy or contentedness, not a word that suggests laughter.

Mr. A. C. Benson, the well known author, thinks the entire verse might well be re-written now omitted. The middle words, he says, "is not only wretched (suggests) but perpetuates a very objectionable kind of international jingoism. The result of its rejection is simply that it is disused and one hardly ever hears it rendered."

Dr. J. Drew, Roberts, rector of Eton College, takes the view that the attempted words might very well stand as they have been, but for age children only. "For," he says, "it is plain the conservative will apply them to the liberal, the liberal to the conservative, and the socialist, of course, to both parties."

Another view is that the distributed lines scan and rhyme better than the substituted lines, and might well have been left alone, inasmuch that children do learn to endure, on friendly contact but only on occasion, at times when they are hostile or disliked. Thus, or any rate, is the view of the writer and the editor.

And some the suggests that Rudyard Kipling should be invited to write a new national anthem, perhaps retaining a line of the old one here and there for the sake of associations.

This "to do" over the English national anthem recalls the fact that at all American conventions at home and abroad the attempt to sing the "Star Spangled Banner" is a dismal failure, as the music is too high for ordinary voices and the attempt to reach the top notes is made by a few only, so that the effect is the reverse of impressive. Why not suppose the music so that all may be able to sing it?

[Special Despatch.]
VALPARAISO, Chili, via GALVESTON, Texas, Saturday.—The American Minister, W. P. Fletcher, has invited the Chilian Naval Commission in London to attend ordnance trials in the United States. The idea in giving ground that the third dreadnought for Chili's navy should be constructed in the United States.

The government has accepted the offer of Armstrong, Whitworth & Co., of Newcastle on Tyne, to build for Chili two battle ships of the Dreadnought class.

CHILIAN UNIVERSITY EXPELS PROFESSOR

[Special Despatch.]
VALPARAISO, Chili, via GALVESTON, Texas, Saturday.—A sensation has been caused here by the decision of the Santiago University medical faculty expelling Dr. Max Westenhoeffer, professor of pathology, on the ground that he had slandered Chili in a German medical review. The truth about the publication is just the contrary.

Public meetings are being organised to protest against the faculty's action. The newspapers also headlines and urging their utmost to touch Dr. Westenhoeffer's feelings and ask him to remain in Chili.

PANAMA EXCITED BY PRESIDENT'S ACTION

[Special Despatch.]
PANAMA, via GALVESTON, TEXAS, Saturday.—Considerable commotion in political circles has been caused by the recent removal of Señor Don Ramon F. Acevedo from the post of Secretary of the Department of the Interior, Government and Justice.

According to the local press, the motives for this measure were unfounded and unprecedented in the most critical periods of previous administrations since Panama became independent.

The President's action is generally considered as a defiance of the liberal party. It is reported that the disagreement between President Arosemena and Señor Acevedo is of a purely personal nature, due to Señor Acevedo's opposition to the re-election bonds projected by a few dissenting members of the liberal party and half of the conservatives, the liberals and the rest of the conservatives (throughout the country) being decidedly against the continuance of President Arosemena in power for another term.

A meeting attended by six hundred members of the liberal party was held on Saturday evening at Santa Ana Plaza to make a public demonstration of loyalty to Señor Acevedo and a protest against the government for his dismissal. Speeches were made by Dr. Pino and Dr. Alfaro.

THE DIAMOND SUPPLY

Experts Say That South African Fields Are Not Nearly Exhausted

The very prospects, indeed, the almost wonderful success, of the diamond fields in German South-West Africa in the early days of their exploitation some five or six years ago, are gradually losing their magic hue and the success of the fields is becoming more questionable. The reason is that the surface of the diamond region, which, previously supplied large quantities of the gems, have practically been cleared of their rich harvest, and deeper mining, with its attendant greater costs, must be resorted to. The Colonial Mining Company, which in its infancy paid the magnificent dividend of 2,500 per cent. on a capital of about $1,000,000, has long ago come down to less Pactolian figures. The Kubasenbop Society, which paid 55 per cent. in its first year and 45 per cent. in its second, now announces a dividend for the half year of 15 per cent. The German Diamond Society paid 10 per cent. last year and 5 per cent. this, while the Combined Companies paid no dividend last year. In addition to the need of costlier methods of production is noted a shortage of labor and a high export tax of 33 1-3 of the gross value. For all this, writers on the subject do not consider that the diamond supply is near exhaustion.

LONDON OPERA HOUSE

Oscar Hammerstein Will Have Operas Sung in French and Italian

Mr. Oscar Hammerstein, who is confident that he will be able to open his London Opera House as promptly on time as he did in the case of Manhattan Opera House in New York, says that his policy of management in London will be as follows: "To be successful, I must not teach, I must interest. The operas will be sung in French and Italian; in regard to German my efforts are depending on the results of the first season. My orchestra will number over 100, directed by men of the greatest musical distinction; the chorus will number 125 and the ballet 60. In the chorus English voices will be predominant, for I am establishing a school with competent teachers for the purpose, with teaching provided free of charge. Seats will range in price from one guinea to two shillings, and in the erection of this opera house, unaided by anybody, financially or otherwise, I am paying the highest possible tribute to musical London, in whose musical taste and culture my confidence is unbounded."

DETECTED BY CIGARETTE SMOKE

A Case Which Smatters of Sherlock Holmes Fiction

Something in real life that might have been taken from Sherlock Holmes' fiction has amused the Kingston (England) magistrates, who, however, grew stern enough to sentence Tom Taylor, their prisoner, to three months' hard labor. He had stolen from Surbiton a set of Maundy money, a quantity of cigarettes, and other articles, belonging to Mr. John Long, a well-known publisher. Detective Cooke, who arrested Taylor on the Queen's riverside promenade in the dead of night, said that while he was walking along by the river with Detective Frax he detected the aroma of a cigarette. He recognised the scent as that of samples given him to try from a box which formed part of the stolen property. So he just followed the scent, and came upon the smoker. In reply to the charge, Taylor, on whom nearly all the stolen articles were found, said, "It's quite right; I broke in about half-past two this morning."

FAMOUS LETTERS SOLD

Some Epistles by Oscar Wilde and Other Geniuses Go to Auction

Bernard Shaw admits he is a genius. Everybody has realised that for some time, but few people realise that Mr. Shaw once admitted there were limitations to his genius. The admission o. this is found in a letter written by Shaw to Oscar Wilde, which was put up for sale at auction at Sotheby's. In this letter Mr. Shaw says:

"I hope soon to send you my play, 'Widowers' Houses,' which you will find tolerably amusing, considering that it is a farcical comedy. Unfortunately, I have no power of producing beauty; my genius is the genius of intellect."

Other letters written to Oscar Wilde, twenty-nine in all, were sold at the same time that Mr. Shaw's priceless admission was offered to the public. Among the letters are Swinburne, Henley, Burne-Jones, Sargent, Miss Ellen Terry, Millais, Mrs. Langtry, and Whistler.

Whistler had evidently seen Wilde in his "aesthetic" period, walking in Chelsea wearing a coat "befrogged and wonderfully befurred." He writes:

"Oscar, how dare you, What means this unseemly carnival in my Chelsea!

MRS. KATE HARMER.

Camden, N. J. (Special)—"I have taken Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey for years for a general rundown condition and consider it the best tonic of the age As it has helped me I feel sure it will help others and highly recommend it to my many friends."—Mrs. Kate Harmer, 516 Rex Place.

For over fifty years Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey has been the standard remedy for every condition where a health and strength builder is needed. It overcomes weakness in a gradual, natural manner—restores the tissues to a vigorous, healthy condition.

It is invaluable in the hot summer weather to bring restful sleep and keep the system and stomach in a good, healthy condition, so that they will be able to ward off the diseases, such as indigestion, cramps, cholera, dysentery and diarrhoea, which are so common.

All liquor dealers, or direct, $1.25 large bottle. Send for medical booklet and doctor's advice, both sent free. The Duffy Malt Whiskey Co., Rochester, N. Y.

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Public Building, Uxbridge, Ontario," will be received at this office until 4 p.m. on Monday, August 21, 1911, for the erection of a Public Building at Uxbridge.

Plans, specification and forms of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained at this Department, on application to Mr. Thos. A. Hadgkiss, Clerk of Works, Postal Station F, Yonge Street, Toronto, Ont., and at the Post Office at Uxbridge.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of the occupation and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent. (10 p.c.) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,
R. C. DESROCHERS,
Secretary.

Department of Public Works,
Ottawa, July 27th, 1911.

Newspapers will not be paid for this advertisement if they insert it without authority from the Department.

RESTORE THOSE THINGS TO NATURE, and never again let me see you masquerading the streets in the combined characters of discarded Kossuth and Mr. Mantalini."

Some of Oscar Wilde's most important manuscripts in prose and verse were offered at this sale. The manuscripts include "The Soul of Man," the picture of "Dorian Grey," "The Florence Tragedy," and "The Sphinx."

Manuscripts by Carlyle, Jane Welsh Carlyle, Swinburne, D. G. Rossetti, and Stevenson, were also sold. Besides some rare volumes of sixteenth and seventeen century literature.

BIG TREES

A Species in Australia Said to Be Larger than in California

Not only does Australia dispute the claim of California to the possession of the highest trees in the world, but Mr. W. H. Harris writes an article in the "Lone Hand" with the object of showing that Australia has figures over 100 feet higher than the celebrated California "big trees."

Probably the majority of Australians are not aware (says the writer) that they can lay claim to possessing, in their eucalypti forests, not only the tallest trees, but the best hardwoods in the whole world.

These eucalypti trees possess many excellent qualities. Their timber is of great durability, strength and toughness. The eucalyptus is a genus of the trees of the natural order of Myrtaceae, mostly, if not all, indigenous to Australia and Tasmania. Australia has 400 species of the eucalyptus; or, as it is more popularly known, the "gum" tree. Its value has been ascribed to its antiseptic odors, and to its rapid growth (which sometimes exceeds ten feet per annum), and the consequent drainage of the soil through the enormous transpiration from the root surfaces.

The tallest species is to be found principally in Victoria. This species is a tree with tall white stem, smooth as a marble column, and generally without branches for 90 to 100 feet from the ground. It is singularly beautiful when seen in groves, for these have all the appearance of lofty pillared cathedrals. The average height is a little less than 300 feet. The south western division of Victoria (Gippsland) has put forth the greatest claims to possessing the tallest giants. In this district a great number of trees measuring 340 feet have been found, while specimens of 400 feet are not uncommon, and individuals of over 400 feet are not rare.

Baron Mueller (formerly Government botanist of Victoria) is stated to have said that the gum trees attain a height of 500 feet; but the tallest tree even the Baron ever measured was a spectacle one on the Wheeler Spur, ten miles from Healesville, totalling 480 feet. This tree was 81 feet in girth near the root. Another, found in the same locality, was 415 feet high, with a circumference of 60 feet at the base of the stem. Mueller refers to this species as "the highest tree in the globe, surpassing the famous Californian Sequoia and Wellington pines."

In 1880, Mr. G. W. Robinson, civil engineer, of Berwick (Victoria), in a journey from Gippsland to Mount Baw, measured a tree of 471 feet high. The heights of this specimen had previously been estimated at not less than 500 feet.

In the district Mueller mentioned, a tree that a Mr. R. B. Wayne had discovered in the Dandenong, and this specimen was found to be 396 feet to first branch, and, to the point where it had broken off, another 70 feet; total, 366 feet. This was a splendid "columner vegetable," the trunk being perfectly straight.

The blue gum species is another of the world's giants, not a few specimens attaining a height of 370 feet. Since 1864 it has been successfully introduced into the south of Europe, Algeria, Egypt, Tahiti, New Caledonia, Bengal, and India, and has been extensively planted in California; while along the Central Pacific Railway belts of this and other Australian trees have been formed to protect the line from snow drifts, and for a future supply of timber.

It has long been thought that California owns the world's tallest trees; but, while some are of gigantic dimensions, they do not come up to the Victorian natives. The Californians are noted not so much for their height as for their girth and diameter. The "Big Tree" of California consists in groves or patches from lat. 36 degrees to 38 degrees, nowhere descending much below 4,000 feet in elevation, or rising above 7,000. There are eight or nine "groves" of these trees; and by far the largest is the one which extends along the tributaries of King's and Kaweah Rivers. The trees, however, are not grouped by themselves, but stand scattered among other species. The "Big Tree" is said to be the oldest of growing things on earth, with an age of 5,000 years. The average height is 275 feet, with a diameter of 20 feet, and a girth of 70 feet at six feet from the ground. The tallest gigantic ever discovered was found by actual measurement to be 340 feet high, or 140 feet shorter than the tallest tree found in Australia.—Weekly Telegraph.

"FOR THE BLIND"

A carpenter once hung a box outside his workshop with "For the blind" printed on it.

Several passers-by put money in it, and everything went smooth till, at the expiration of three weeks, a lady contributor who was passing noticed that the box was no longer there, and so she queried—"Well, Mr. Carpenter, I see you have taken your box away."

"Yes," said Mr. Carpenter; "I got enough, thank you."

"Got enough!" asked the lady, in surprise.

"Yes," said Mr. Carpenter; "how do you like it?" as he pulled down the new blind on the workshop window.

THE REWARD OF CONSTANCY

The colonel of a regiment believed in a celibate army so far as possible, and disliked giving permission to marry.

One of his men came up for the desired permission and the colonel refused. Looking at the man's downcast face he so far relented as to say:

"If you ask in the same mind this time next year come back, and ask me again."

In a year the soldier reappeared.

"Do you really still wish to marry?" asked the colonel.

"Yes, sir, very much."

"Well, well," said the colonel, his manner, said the Colonel to the sergeant-major. "I never thought there was so much constancy in man or woman."

"Thank you, sir," replied the man, saluting, "but if you please, sir, it isn't the same woman."

CATTLE MARKETS.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, Aug. 17.—The railways reported 68 carloads of live stock at the City Yards, comprising 903 cattle, 1684 hogs, 1200 sheep and lambs, 94 calves and 1 horse.

Butchers.

George Rowntree bought for the Harris Abattoir Co. 120 cattle at the following prices: Butchers' steers and heifers, $5.40 to $6.05; cows, $3.50 to $5; bulls, $3 to $5.

Milkers and Springers.

Receipts of milkers and springers were moderate. Too many common class cows are being brought forward and too few of the best quality. Prices were strong at $60 to $70 for the right kind, but the common to medium sold at $35 to $45, while some inferior cows sold as low as $30.

Napoleon Deziell of Montreal was on the cow market, which accounts for the higher prices paid.

Veal Calves.

About 100 veal calves sold at $5 to $7.50 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Sheep, ewes, $3 to $4.50 per cwt.; rams and culls, $2.50 to $3; lambs, $7 to $7.50 per cwt.

Hogs.

Selects, fed and watered, were quoted at $7.25 to $7.50, and $7.50 to $7.60, f.o.b., cars, at country points.

Half-Way on His Flight.

Cleveland, Aug. 18.—With another gain to his credit of 123 miles, H. N. Atwood arrived in Cleveland yesterday afternoon on his aeroplane flight from St. Louis to New York. He covered the 123 miles between Toledo and Cleveland in an actual flying time of two hours and twenty minutes.

"Just an easy canter," said Atwood as he stepped from his machine in a park in the Lake Shore City. "I almost want to sleep with the monotony of it. In five days New York will see me hop over its tallest skyscrapers and glide into the sand at Coney Island."

The Bostonian is pleased with his progress. He has now traveled 443 miles from his starting point in St. Louis. He has till 888 miles to fly to reach his destination in New York. He therefore has gone just 10 1-2 miles more than half of the 1,265-mile trip, which he says will show the possibility of a future ocean-to-ocean flight. His total time actually in the air since he left St. Louis last Monday is 13 hours and 15 minutes.

Murphy Made Protest.

Ottawa, Aug. 18.—Mgr. Gauthier, Archbishop of Ottawa, returned from Montfort, Que., yesterday and went immediately to the residence of Mgr. Stagni, Papal Nuncio. It is believed the conference was to discuss the activity of certain Roman Catholic clergy in opposition to Hon. Charles Murphy in Russell County. It is said on good authority that a strong protest has been made by the Secretary of State.

Hot at Behring Sea.

Washington, Aug. 18.—The revenue cutter fleet officers in Behring Sea report that unusual heat has been felt in the Arctic. The flagship Bear, sailing homeward after a three months' cruise of approximately ten thousand miles, reported by wireless yesterday that there is no ice in Behring Sea, nor along the shores of Alaska or Siberia, a condition not observed for several years.

Pet Dog's Fatal Caress.

Newark, N.J., Aug. 18.—Jacob Swenzer, president of the Woodbridge Automobile Co., is dead at his home in Woodbridge, N.J., of rabies, after a two days' illness. A pet dog, which licked his hand a month ago, went mad a few days later. Swenzer was formerly a well-known driver of racing automobiles.

Show Fight For Hamilton?

Hamilton, Aug. 18.—Col. Logie, brigadier of the district, announced yesterday that he had strong hopes of arranging a big sham fight, to be held in the Dundas valley on Thanksgiving Day, with the forces of Hamilton, Toronto, Brantford and St. Catharines participating. He has the matter in hand.

Drifted Five Days.

Aden, Arabia, Aug. 18.—The chief officer and six sailors of the British steamer Fifeshire, which was wrecked 20 miles south of Cape Guardafui, arrived here yesterday on the British steamer Ardandearg, which picked up the men after they had drifted for five days in an open boat.

Had Two Appendices.

Cambridge Springs, Pa., Aug. 18.—Joseph Link of Jefferson is believed to be the only patient ever operated upon who had two separate and distinct appendices.

An operation here disclosed the fact. The man has a good chance for recovery.

ADDRESS OF MR. STRATTON TO THE ELECTORATE

Electors of the West Riding of Peterborough

GENTLEMEN,—

At a largely attended public meeting of the electors, on Saturday, I was selected as candidate to contest the representation of the Riding in the House of Commons. I accepted the responsibility of the position and hereby respectfully solicit the favour of your votes and support.

I am well known to you all, for during a representative service of West Peterborough, practically extending over a period of twenty-five years, I have many times come into contact, directly and indirectly, with every elector of the Riding.

In the past I have been honoured with your confidence, and I have earnestly striven to deserve it. In the discharge of my parliamentary and, especially of my representative duties, I have tried to consistently recognize and live up to the fact that I was the representative of the whole people, and in duty bound to serve the interests of all collectively and individually, whether their support had assisted, or their opposition had resisted, my election.

I need not refer to my record to specify what I have been privileged to do in the promotion of the material, moral and social welfare of West Peterborough. My work in this regard, be it little or great, is known to you all. You all know whether or not I have been a faithful servant of the people, whether the Riding is better, and in what respects, from my having been your representative.

I need not be at much pains to define my position in this contest. Everybody knows where I stand—where I am to be found. Such as I have been in the endeavour to advance your interests, I still am, and shall continue to be, if you honour me with re-election.

Apart from the consideration of local—city and county—interests, the national question chiefly involved in this contest is "Reciprocity," or free mutual exchange of natural, mainly farm, products, with the United States. I believe that reciprocity of this kind will be of benefit to the farmers of the country, and through their prosperity to all other interests—manufacturing, financial and commercial, as well as to those of the mechanic and workingman.

The round of benefit is natural. Good crops and good markets mean money for the farmer, which spent with the merchants of all kinds, means increased orders for the manufacturer and increased employment to their workmen. Thus Reciprocity, by affording wider and better markets, promises to be a benefit to the whole country and an injury to no class or interest; and is worth trying, especially as the agreement, not being a treaty, can, if unsatisfactory, be cancelled on reasonable notice.

If I thought for a moment that it would hurt any important interest, especially the manufacturing interest, I would oppose it. I am neither an extreme free trader, nor an extreme protectionist. I believe in a reasonable amount of both. High tariff in the United States has lost to Canada ninety million dollars in barley alone. The British Preference as it affects our manufacturers goes as far as desirable in the direction of free trade and I am opposed to, and will oppose, any increase of it. I myself am a manufacturer or interested in manufactures, in a modest way, but, at the same time, to an extent, important to myself and my associates, and I feel that our industries and working men could not stand the keen manufacturing competition of either Britain or the United States.

In this regard, I am in accord with the assurance of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, speaking for the Government, when he gave this pledge, "WE HAVE NOT HURT THE MANUFACTURERS AND WILL NOT HURT THEM," and I applaud the stand of Mr. Fielding in negotiating the Reciprocity Agreement, in refusing to even discuss reciprocity in manufactured articles with the United States.

If you approve, gentlemen, of what I consider the reasonable stand I take in relation to national interests; if you believe, judging from my past record of service to the Riding, that I have the business capacity, the business and parliamentary experience to continue to give you good service, and justify the confidence I now ask you to again place in me, I presume to claim your support.

This is probably the last appeal I shall make to you; for I think I have done my share of service to this Riding and have thereby earned the opportunity to give the necessary attention to my private affairs. I should have persisted in my desire to be relieved had I not felt in duty bound to defer to the earnest solicitation of the friends who have stood by me in the past, and also of a great many of my former opponents, and consented to be a candidate.

Another reason that influenced my acceptance, was, that being of a business turn, I naturally desired to complete work I have initiated, and for which I am in some degree, if the opportunity is given me, responsible. I should like to see the completion of the large new docks for the City of Peterborough; of the retaining wall on our river front in Peterborough; also a new concrete dam at Nassau erected, and a Rifle Range provided for this important military centre.

Trusting that I may be favoured with your effective support, I have the honour to remain, gentlemen, as I have been for the past twenty-five years,

Your Obedient Servant,

J. R. Stratton

AUTHORESS IS DEAD

Mrs. Myrtle Reid Who Wrote "Lavender and Old Lace" is Found Dead at Her Home This Morning

THOUGHT TO HAVE SUICIDED

Special Wire to The Examiner.

CHICAGO, ILL., AUG. 18.— Mrs. Myrtle Reid, McCullough, the famous authoress, was found dead at home last night, with the indications that her death was caused by an overdose of sleeping powders taken with suicidal intent. A note left, addressed to her maid, said that if her husband had been as kind as the maid she would not be going where she was. The husband formerly worked on a college paper in Toronto. Among the books she had written were "Lavender and Old Lace" and "Love Letter of a Musician."

As Toronto is converted to 20-Day Shorthand so is Ontario becoming converted. Hard work and satisfied graduates will do it. Our catalogue may help. Send for it. Moon College, 350-360 Yonge street, Toronto.

TORONTO, ONT., AUG. 18. — The body of Thomas Edwards, aged forty, a C.P.R. yardman at West Toronto, was found this morning on the tracks almost cut in two.

FOR CONSTIPATION

A Medicine That Does Not Cost Anything Unless It Cures

The active medicinal ingredients of Rexall Orderlies, which is odourless, tasteless, and colourless, is an entirely new discovery. Combined with other extremely valuable ingredients, it forms a perfect bowel regulator, intestinal invigorator and strengthener. Rexall Orderlies are eaten like candy and are notable for their agreeableness to the palate and gentleness of action. They do not cause griping or any disagreeable effect or inconvenience.

Unlike other preparations for a like purpose, they do not create a habit, but instead they overcome the cause of habit acquired through the use of ordinary laxatives, cathartics and harsh physic, and permanently remove the cause of constipation or irregular bowel action.

We will refund your money without argument if they do not do as we say they will. Two sizes, 25c and 10c. Sold only at our store — The Rexall Store. McDermid & Jury.

DEAD AT AGE OF 113

The Craving For Drink Destroyed

No more terrible affliction can come to any home than the craving for strong drink of husband and father. We appeal to wives, mothers and sisters to save the husband and father or the brother with Orrine, a scientific treatment.

ORRINE is prepared in two forms, No. 1, secret treatment, a powder, absolutely tasteless and odourless, given secretly in food or drink. ORRINE No. 2, in pill form, is for those who desire to take voluntary treatment. ORRINE costs only $1.00 a box. Write for Free Orrine Booklet (mailed in plain sealed envelope) to ORRINE CO., Orrine Building, Washington, D. C. ORRINE is recommended and is for sale in this city by Wm. Madill.

Peterborough Industrial Promises To Be The Best In Its History

Steel and Concrete Grandstand is Rapidly Being Completed—Will Be Great Improvement.

SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS

With the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition only a month away—on Sept. 14, 15 and 16 to be exact—the directors are working faithfully to make the 1911 exhibition the record one from all points of view. With the grand success scored last year, and the energatic efforts of the directors, it does not require an optimist to predict that the big affair this year will prove the best in the history of the Association. Work on the new steel and concrete grandstand has been under way for some time and the structure will be completed in ample time for the exhibition. The new stand will be welcomed by patrons of the fair, not only because of the comfort it will provide, but also because its erection means the doing away with the unsightly and tumble down wooden stand that has been an eye-sore for these many years.

Secretary F. J. A. Hall informs the Examiner that he has had many inquiries from outside points in regard to the exhibition and although it is too early for entries he feels assured that these will not be lacking when the time comes. The prompt manner in which the Peterborough exhibition pays its prize money and the excellence of the judging has given the exhibitors a feeling of confidence in the local exhibition and this is shown by the yearly increase in the number of entries and entrants.

The special attractions this year will be the best the exhibition has ever provided its patrons with, and altogether the prospects for the big show are of the brightest.

WERE REMANDED

TORONTO, ONT., AUG. 18. — Eight Italians, held for vagrancy on the information of Murderer Frank G. Rior said to be associated with the Cammorrists, were remanded till Tuesday on one thousand dollars bail. One Italian angrily punched his fist through his hat and the spectators, frightened, thought that a gun had been fired.

MRS. JONES' INJURIES SERIOUS

It was learned this morning that the injuries sustained by Mr. Robt. Jones, of Mount Pleasant in the runaway accident on Aylmer street on Saturday are much more serious than were at first anticipated. Since the accident, he has been confined to his bed and his doctor has now discovered that in addition to the severe cut on the back of his head, and also the injury to his leg, besides the numerous other minor injuries, he is injured internally to an extent not yet known, but which is manifesting itself to be greater than at first expected.

Mr. Jones' brother was in the city this morning and called on Chief Howard, and stated to the chief that he did not know whether Mr. Jones would be removed to the hospital, but he said it was quite evident that since the day of the accident he had got visibly worse and his injuries were taking a very serious aspect.

LINDSAY PEOPLE FAVOUR SEYMOUR COMPANY PROPOSITION

Special to The Examiner:

LINDSAY, AUGUST 18.—At a largely attended mass meeting of the citizens of Lindsay, held here last night, it was decided to endorse the proposition of the Seymour Power Company, which means that the plan to purchase the local power plant by the municipality, as advised by the Hydro-Electric Commission, through Adam Beck, has fallen through. The Seymour Power Company made the proposition that they would finance the Sylvester business and carry on the factory if they were given a franchise to supply light and power in Lindsay.

PETERBOROUGH HORSES GET MANY PRIZES AT COBOURG

COBOURG, JULY 17. — The great success of the Cobourg Horse Show on the opening days was continued today, when another record crowd was on hand. Excursions from Port Hope and Millbrook helped to swell the attendance, while a large number motored from Peterborough for the day. The results in which Peterborough people are interested are as follows:

Unicorn Class.—Mr. Stratton's "My Pride," "Premier" and "Perfect Dream," first.

Ladies' Saddle Horse.— Mr. Stratton's "None Nicer," first.

Gentlemen's Saddle Horse. — Mr. Stratton's "None Nicer," first.

Saddle Horse Over 14.1.—Mr. Stratton's "None Nicer," second.

Ladies' District Harness or Roadster Class—Mr. W. Reid, of Peterborough, second.

Harness Horse Under 15.2.— Mr. Stratton's "Latest News" second.

AN UNLOOKED-FOR RESULT

[One result of the Veto controversy has been, not to consolidate, but to break up the Opposition.—Daily Paper.]

Mr. Balfour:—"We might have known that if young Asquith ever got hold of that prerogative pet he'd do a lot of damage with it, but I never thought he'd smash our party!"—London Opinion.

SAW THE ACCIDENT

Mr. Fred Heaslip, of Quaker Oats Company's Office Staff Was an Eye Witness of Chicago Aviation Fatality

SAW JOHNSON FALL

Mr. Fred Heaslip of the Quaker Oats Company's office staff returned last evening from Chicago, where he has been spending a two-weeks' vacation. Mr. Heaslip was present at the big aviation meet in the Windy City, on Monday, and saw Sa. Croix Johnson, the Canadian aviator, fall five hundred feet to his death, in Lake Michigan. When it was seen that his machine was descending swiftly the crowd quickly realized that there was something wrong and as then it drew nearer the unfortunate man was seen to make a frantic effort to throw himself from the machinery in order to have a chance to escape, when he struck the water. He was not successful, however, and was carried beneath the surface by his plane. His young wife was in the crowd, but was informed that her husband was safe and was being rescued, and the news was not broken to her until she had been sent back to her hotel. On the same day a little later, another aviator was killed, but Mr. Heaslip was spared the horror of seeing this action, by leaving the aviation field a few minutes previously.

TORONTO BENEFITS BY BREAD ISSUE SUCCESS

Indicates Growth of City as Leading Centre—Company Getting Ready to Carry Through Extension Plans

TORONTO, AUG. 18.—(Special.) — The growing importance of Toronto as a financial centre is indicated by the success that is attending the issue being made at the present time by Messrs. Cawthra Mulock & Co. of the million and a quarter bonds of the new big Canada Bread Company. It is the first time that a large financial house has ventured to bring out an issue of such importance as this during the holiday season, and many were doubtful as to its advisability. The large number of applications, however, which have been received from different parts of the country indicate that the investment field of Canada is growing so rapidly that the better grade of issues are now almost independent of the particular time that they are brought out.

Another very satisfactory feature is that the issue was made at a time when market conditions were just about as unsatisfactory as they could well be, and yet they seem to have very little effect on the issue.

Arrangements made during the past few days will result in Canada Bread Company immediately proceeding to erect new, large, modern plants in the cities of Montreal and Winnipeg, as well as to carry through the extensions proposed to some of the Toronto plants. Mr. Mark Bredin, the general manager, has gradually been rounding out his central organization with a view of being able to give considerable time to the development of the business in the other large centres outside of Toronto.

To Preach In Toronto

Rev. Dr. Marsh of the Springville Presbyterian Church, has been honoured by an invitation to take charge of the services in the Dale Presbyterian church, Toronto, on Sunday next. Rev. Dr. Marsh will preach at the morning and evening services and will attend a special meeting for men in the afternoon. The Dale Church is known in Toronto as the Athletes' church, and has as its pastor Rev. J. D. Morrow, once champion Canadian runner.

Conditions In England Are Very Much Like Those Of A Civil War

Government Still Working for a Settlement—Men Have Lost Sympathy Through Refusing Asquith's Offer.

CONDITIONS TO-DAY

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, ENG., AUG. 18.—Public sympathy has been lost by the strikers for refusing Asquith's offer of the Royal Commission, and in some places men ignored the strike orders. The British regards the situation as very much like civil war. The strike effects Ireland, but the Scotch employees are slow to go out. Nottingham, Dublin, Glasgow, Leeds, Manchester, and Sheffield are among the places affected. The Government is still working for a settlement.

At noon, parliament decided that it was impossible to adjourn to-day, as scheduled, owing to the critical labour conditions.

BIRMINGHAM, ENG., AUG. 18.—Sharp, close fighting occurred between the police and the strikers here this morning.

LIVERPOOL, ENG., AUG. 18.—The suffering of the lower classes, owing to the strike, is widespread. The city is under military rule and all supplies are carried under escort. Many works have closed down from lack of power.

LONDON, AUG. 18.—The strike leaders this afternoon asserted they had practically paralyzed the railway system of the United Kingdom, two hundred thousand men having quit work.

20 PER CENT. MORE

WINNIPEG, MAN., AUG. 18.—From critical correspondents in the western provinces, information is gleaned to-day that the yield will be at least twenty per cent. in excess to that of other years. No damage by frost is reported at all, and only a few isolated cases of damage by hail or rust, but no material damage is feared.

TWO MORE EXCURSIONS HERE TO-DAY

From Haliburton and Kinmount, a goodly number of excursionists, under the auspices of the Canadian Order of Foresters, and numbering some three hundred, found their way to the Electric City per G.T.R. this morning.

At 10.40 also, a C.P.R. train brought upwards of two hundred excursionists from Picton. This trip was organized by the same order.

Though the city was explored from end to end, the Lift Lock seemed to draw the majority of the visitors.

Wreck Reported

Special Wire to the Examiner.

COLUMBUS, O., AUG. 18.—A serious wreck is reported on the Big Four railway. No particulars have been received.

THE POULTRY TRUST FINDS ITSELF IN MUCH TROUBLE

NEW YORK, AUG. 17.—Standing at the bar of justice, their faces flushed when they heard their business methods condemned as "sordid, mean and contemptible," the thirteen members of what is known as the "Poultry Trust," who were convicted on Tuesday of conspiracy in restraint of trade, were each sentenced to pay a fine of $500 and to be imprisoned for three months on Blackwell's Island by Judge Otto Rosalsky in the Court of General Sessions yesterday. An effort was made by counsel to obtain a lessening of punishment for three of the prisoners on account of ill-health, but the pleas were ignored by the Court and appeal to the Supreme Court was taken later.

The Court reviewed the evidence and said it showed clearly that the prisoners had knowingly, and with corrupt and evil design, conspired to injure trade and commerce, with the result that their control of the poultry business was absolute and despotic.

"I feel for you, gentlemen," said the Court, turning to the prisoners at the bar, "but the plight in which you find yourselves has been brought about by your own misdeeds. To impose a fine upon you merely would in a measure destroy the efficacy of the verdict of the jury, and to impose more severe punishment is demanded by duty and justice. I therefore fine you each $500 and sentence you to three months' imprisonment in the penitentiary."

A stay of sentence until Monday was granted to permit the prisoners to arrange their business affairs.

SUCCESSFUL MASQUERADE HELD AT CHEMONG PARK

Mr. and Mrs. Fred. L. Roy were the host and hostess of one of the most enjoyable and successful social functions of the season at Chemong Park last night, when they entertained between fifty and sixty guests at a delightful masquerade dance in the Chemong Park Pavilion. The costumes of the maskers were unusually well-planned and artistic and the scene was a brilliant one at the height of the function. Two young ladies, who were dressed as dolls probably carried off the honours of the occasion, but in nearly every case unusual care had been taken with the costumes and the result was a striking picture. The music provided for the event was a refreshing novelty. Signor Macaroni Spaghetti, a wandering minstrel, had been engaged for the occasion, and his concertina was more than equal to the demands made upon it. Two dancers unmasked after the sixth dance, and there were many surprises as the identity of the maskers became known. Light refreshments were served during the event. Mr. and Mrs. Roy's hospitality was greatly appreciated, and the guests agreed in voting the evening a most complete success. The kindness of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Hickey of Chemong Park Hotel, was a valuable factor in attaining this delightful result. Among the guests were a number of Peterborough citizens, who came out in a 'bus.

LIEUT. ACKERMAN WINS THE MACKENZIE MATCH

Lieut. Chas. H. Ackerman, of the 57th Regiment, performed a noteworthy feat indeed, yesterday at the Onwhen he won the Mackenzie match, tario Rifle matches at Lord Branch, seven shots at 800 yards, scoring 34 out of a possible 35, which gave him first prize and $20. Lieut. Ackerman's success was won over a big field, which included the majority of the 1911 Bisley team, among them Private Clifford, the winner of the King's prize. Lieut. Ackerman scored 23 out of a possible 105 in the Tait-Brassey match, winning $3.

Veto Bill Is Now Law

BAD FIRE AT LINDSAY

Plant of the Canadian Handle and Wood-Turning Company Totally Destroyed by a Blaze at Noon To-day

CAUSE A MYSTERY.

Special to The Examiner:

LINDSAY, AUG. 18.—A fire of mysterious origin totally destroyed the plant of the Canadian Handle and Wood Turning Company, formerly the Rider and Kitchener factory at noon to-day. The blaze broke out just after the men had gone to dinner and completely destroyed the stock and machinery, the engine room alone remaining. The building was situated on the bank of the river near the G. T. R. tracks. The firemen had a hard and hopeless fight as the fire swept through the building with a rapidity that could not be checked. The business had been carried on by Mr. Jules Zimmerman, of Oshawa. The total loss has not yet been estimated. There is an insurance to the extent of $6,000. Between eighty and one hundred employees will be thrown out of work as a result of the conflagration.

THE GLOBE TROTTERS AT TORONTO

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, ONT., AUG. 18.—Mr. and Mrs. Henry Humphries, twenty-nine and twenty-eight, respectively, reached here this morning on the first lap of their trip of forty thousand miles, touching every country in the world from New York, for a magazine prize of ten thousand dollars.

Champion Fat Woman Is No More

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, ONT., AUG. 18.—Mrs. Letta Campbell, better known as "Dolly Varden," died here this morning, aged 60. She was the fattest woman in existence twenty-five years ago, and had travelled over the world on exhibition. At one time Mrs. Campbell weighed 706 pounds, but when last weighed was 490 pounds.

POCKET OR PARTY?

City Conservatives in Toronto and elsewhere are prone to remark with a significant sneer that the Liberals needn't count on the Conservative farmer voting Liberal, even if he does favour the pact. But along the south shore of Lake Ontario the farmers are quietly preparing to put larger acreage in barley. And they are not such fools as to prepare for free barley and then vote against it. Will he vote for his pocket or his party? It will not hurt an honest Conservative's conscience much to vote for a measure, embodying the policy that Sir John Macdonald stood for and made a main plank in his National Policy.

GOOD LUCK TO HIM.

Mr. W. A. Buchanan, formerly of the St. Thomas' Journal, now editor of the Lethbridge Herald, has resigned his seat in the Local Legislature of Alberta, and is to be the Liberal candidate against Mr. Magrath. This shows some courage in an old Peterborough boy. He resigns a seat, in which he is comfortably installed, to enter into a fight with a clever opponent, for such is Mr. Magrath, who was returned at the election of 1908 by a majority of 352. But such a majority won't count for so much in the west with reciprocity as the issue, something that the people there want, and want badly, something they demand and something they will have. Mr. Buchanan is able, capable of making a good representative, popular, and, above all, he is a newspaperman, a satisfying merit in itself. We should be less surprised than pleased to see "Billy" Buchanan head the poll on September 21st.

MR. BORDEN'S POSITION.

Mr. Borden has prepared another platform. Having repudiated the policy of all his great predecessors in the leadership of the Conservative party when he turned his back on reciprocity in natural products, which was so strongly advocated by men like Sir John A. Macdonald and Sir John Thompson, it was necessary for him to prepare a new platform. Campaign platforms are easily prepared, however, and Mr. Borden has had a good deal of experience in the work. The number of platforms he has prepared in his time, and discarded on a hint from the people, would make an interesting study. Fortunately for Mr. Borden, it was as easy for him to discard his platforms in the past as it was to construct them. It is the privilege of an Opposition leader that he has a large measure of freedom in the matter of platforms and policies.

The great question before the people of Canada to-day is the tariff question, and the special feature of the tariff question, which is now monopolising the attention of the electors of this country is the proposal for reciprocity in natural products. On both the broader question of the tariff generally, and the special question of reciprocity in natural products the Opposition is without a definite policy. Mr. Borden would get rid of the whole tariff difficulty at one move by referring it to a tariff commission. This would be a very convenient solution for a party in such hopeless confusion as the Conservative party is at present; whether or not it will appeal to the electors who have definite ideas as to what they favour and what they oppose, is another matter.

As to reciprocity in natural products, Mr. Borden has definitely placed himself against it, for reasons that, no doubt, are satisfactory to himself, however they may appeal to the electors; but there is no doubt that in so placing himself he is opposing the sincerest wishes of the great bulk of his own party. The great majority of the people of the West are in favour of reciprocity, without regard to party politics; the same is true of the maritime Provinces. The Quebec wing of the Opposition, led by Mr. Bourassa, is in favour of reciprocity, but is seeking to sidetrack the issue so as to be able to attack the Laurier Government for its devotion to the Empire. Even in Ontario many of the party men who are prepared to follow their leader through thick and through thin, feel grievously the ordeal to which they have been subjected in being compelled to choose between their devotion to principle and their devotion to party.

Leader Borden is not to be envied for the position he occupies; neither is the honest Conservative, who is compelled to make a choice between his duty to his party and his duty to his conscience.—Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

THE THING THAT COUNTS.

Mr. Tudhope, M.P.P., one of the largest manufacturers in Canada, president of the Canadian Factories, Limited, is not on the manufacturers who think that reciprocity is even "the thin edge of the wedge." He is an out and out supporter of Mr. Manley Chew, the Liberal candidate in East Simcoe.

Mr. Tudhope spoke at Mr. Chew's nomination. He said he was not afraid of reciprocity. It would make the farmer more prosperous and help his (Mr. Tudhope's) business. He was sure the reciprocity agreement was going into effect. It only affected the manufacturer of agricultural implements. And they could see that the slight reduction of duty under the agreement did not frighten manufacturers or discourage enterprise.

For in the face of this slight reduction of duty he (Mr. Tudhope) and others had just formed a company for the manufacture of farming implements in Orillia, and if the gentlemen present cared to walk to the foot of West street they would see being laid the foundations of a factory building that would cost upwards of $400,000. The manufacturers were not going to be hurt; they only thought so, and the farmer and consumer were going to be immeasurably benefitted.

But the thing that counted most in Mr. Tudhope's advocacy of Mr. Chew was that he was a good representative. A prominent Conservative whom they all knew, had said to Mr. Tudhope:

> "Manley Chew has done for East Simcoe in the past three years more than any past representative has done for it in forty years."

This can be applied and with even greater force to Mr. Stratton, the wide-awake, live and energetic representative of West Peterborough.

This is really the thing that counts. What West Peterborough wants is a member who will look after its interests—a worker and a doer, not a visionary figurehead. Representing a riding in Parliament, apart from the discharge of parliamentary duties, in the national interest, is a matter of business and that business looking after the interests of constituents.

In this regard, Mr. Stratton appeals to every elector in the riding. There is not a single elector that does not, deep down in his heart, hold the idea and belief, that, as a representative, Mr. Stratton is head and shoulders and the whole body, above the opposition that is offered him.

Any elector who himself desires to vote in his own interests, as involved in the best interests of West Peterborough, will vote for Mr. Stratton, who has served this riding faithfully for twenty-five years, of which the past three years in the Dominion Parliament have been especially good, and only the beginning of what he will do in the next parliamentary term.

THE ANNEXATION BOGIE.

Some jelly-brained persons are circulating a petition in Crowland township, Welland county, to secure signatures against annexation. Just as logical as circulating a position, refusing to recognise Halley's comet when it comes round again 74 years hence; and less logical, perhaps, for Halley's comet will come back to view in 1985, but annexation will never come.

The opponents of reciprocity, are rasising all sorts of bogies to frighten more sensible electors than themselves into voting against reciprocity because it will, they say, lead to annexation. They assert this, but they do not attempt to show how it will have this effect; and for very good reasons, they can't show it. Enlarged trade with any country does not tend to sap anybody's loyalty. If enlarged trade brings popular prosperity, the people are happy and well satisfied with their political conditions. A well satisfied, happy, prosperous people, will not wish to change.

What was the cause of the political unrest, in the late forties and early fifties in Canada. There were hard times, trade was practically dead and the people were not prosperous nor happy. That was the condition that prompted the only annexation movement we ever had in aCnada.

The only annexation sentiment in Canada that ever assumed concrete form, was of Conservative origin, too—was of Conservative manufacture — made in Canada; and it is worth while remarking that, it has been revived by the Conservatives of 1911.

History Of Conservative And Other Efforts To Obtain Reciprocity

A correspondent writes to the Winnipeg Free press:

"Can you tell me how many different pilgrimages have been made to Washington (both Conservative and Liberal), asking for reciprocity; the persons who made them, and the different years. Is it true that Sir Charles Tupper at one time offered inducement to Washington by throwing in the Canadian fisheries?"

The chronological record of the journeyings to Washington of Canadian public men to secure, if possible, the enactment of a reciprocity measure is given below; also the parliamentary overtures with the same end in view:

1865. A. T. Galt, (Con.) visited Washington unofficially, and subsequently he and W. P. Howland went on an official mission, to secure, if possible, an extension of the reciprocity treaty, which had been denounced by the United States. It was in this year that the Canadian Government appealed to the Home Government to use its influence at Washington "to avert what would "be regarded as a great calamity."

1866. A standing offer of reciprocity on the lines of the 1854 treaty, was incorporated in the first tariff law passed by the Dominion Parliament.

1869. Sir John Rose, (Con.) Finance Minister of Canada, went to Washington and tried, unsuccessfully, to negotiate a reciprocity treaty.

1870. Canadian tariff amended, but standing offer of reciprocity retained.

1871. Sir J. A. Macdonald, (Con.) on the occasion of the drafting of the Washington treaty, sought, unavailingly, to reopen the question of reciprocity.

1874. George Brown, (Lib.) went to Washington and negotiated a treaty in natural products and in a selected list of manufactures. Treaty rejected by the United States Senate.

1879. Standing offer of reciprocity incorporated in the National Policy (Con.) tariff. By this the Canadian Government took power to take off the duties on United States products by order-in-council in the event of the United States Congress doing like wise.

1880. Sir Charles Tupper, (Con.) went to Washington commissioned to negotiate a reciprocity arrangement approaching as nearly as possible that of 1854. As a consideration Sir Charles offered all privileges enjoyed under the fishery articles of the Treaty of Washington. This would have opened the Canadian fishing waters to United States fishermen.

1891. Sir Charles Tupper, Sir John Thompson and Hon. George E. Foster (Con.) twice visited Washington. They made what Sir Charles described as "an unrestricted offer of reciprocity."

1893. Unofficial overtures. Sir John Thompson, (Con.) speaking in April, 1894, said he had taken occasion to let the United States know that Canada was prepared to negotiate a reciprocity treaty.

1894. Revision (Con.) of the tariff. Standing offer of reciprocity with the United States retained in a modified form.

1896. Unofficial discussion of trade matters by representatives of the Liberal Government.

1898. Unsuccessful attempt of the Joint High Commission, sitting first at Quebec and afterwards at Washington, to negotiate a reciprocity treaty.

Such is the record. It shows clearly enough that over a long period of years Canada was keen and the United States was reluctant, to enter into an arrangement for the interchange of natural products. The United States' position, which was stated repeatedly, was that the proposed interchange would operate almost wholly in the interests of Canada; they, therefore demanded, as compensation, the access to the Canadian market for United States manufactures. This was the rock upon which practically all these negotiations split. Edward Pirrit, in his book, "Sixty Years of Protection in Canada," published as recently as 1908, said: "The American position has undergone no change since 1850. The United States Government has never varied from the position that if Canada desires reciprocity she must be willing to make concessions to American manufacturers."

The fact that reciprocity is now within reach of the people of Canada and with no concession to United States manufacturers, is due entirely to President Taft's repudiation of the historic United States policy. One has only to read the furious attacks in the United States Senate upon the agreement by the protectionist Republican senators to be convinced that the real Republican sentiment is as hostile to-day as it ever was to reciprocity in natural products only. Nothing but an astonishing succession of events made possible the offer which the United States now makes us. If we reject it, it is not probable the opportunity will recur within our lifetime.

The attitude of some Canadians now, is that, having at last, after half a century of delay, got the United States in the mood to made a trade agreement with us of the kind we have consistently urged, we should reject the proposition on the ground that there must be some sinister reason for the United States' change of mind. The suggestion is not reasonable nor business-like.

In 1848 an annexation "league" was formed in Montreal, composed of Conservatives. The excuse was dull times and a restricted market. They wanted the market of the United States, then closed to most Canadian products. An annexation "manifesto" was signed, and among the signatures was that of Sir John Abbott, afterwards a Conservative leader and Conservative Premier of Canada, from June 1891 to December 1892, when he retired owing to ill health.

This agitation was confined to a few political filibusters and it never entered at large into the minds of the people of Canada of swap their British allegiance for trade with the United States. On the contrary, the reciprocity treaty, that came shortly after, killed every desire for annexation in the minds of even the Conservative agitators of Montreal. Enlarged trade, greater prosperity and the happiness of the people brought contentment, and the Conservative agitators for annexation, had no material to work upon.

Then, as now, there was a section of the United States anxious to annex Canada. Reciprocity killed the idea and it was hoped to coerce Canada in another way. They abrogated the reciprocity treaty to force Canada into annexation.

But the people of Canada, then as now, had no desire for annexation. Their answer was the confederated and consolidated Dominion, one year after the abrogation of the old reciprocity agreement. By this, British connection was more strongly cemented, and Canada entered upon a career of development.

There never has been any annexation sentiment in Canada to speak of, only among a few persons with an axe to grind, and there was never less than there is to-day. When the people are contented and happy and prosperous; when the country is enjoying great prosperity under a Liberal government, as asserted and emphasized in a Conservative campaign pamphlet, to show that we don't need reciprocity, don't need greater prosperity than we have now under the rule of a Liberal government, which our Conservative friends, with perverse logic, are trying to displace—when this is the case people won't think of political change.

It is impossible to convince any Canadian, with brains enough to lay the foundation of a headache, that there is even the ghost of a danger of reciprocity promoting annexation.

The agitators don't believe it themselves; it is only one of the shoal of red herrings the agitators are drawing across the trail of the real issue; only one of the discordant, disintegrating, senseless cries that are being raised to draw away the minds of the electors from the real issue.

EDITORIAL NOTES

What shall we do with Mr. Borden, who seems to be something of a misfit. According to his followers, he is not a success as a leader, and it seems that he can neither lead or drive. He tried to drive the Conservatives of Welland into refusing to nominate a Conservative candidate against Mr. German, but Mr. Borden couldn't drive them. They nominated the candidate.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

Peterborough Bowlers Had Hard Luck In The Semi-Final Game At Toronto

The Toronto Star says: In the other half at the Victoria rink, Morrison, Queen City, won the semi-final from E. M. Waddell, of Peterborough. The latter was 3 to 1 at the end of the fifth, a 2, 3 and 4 put the Bovril men up, and once ahead they soon had it on ice.

Waddell was unlucky, losing his own game. The ninth end he was laying two when he tried to draw a third with his last bowl. He carried the kitty to two of the Queen City bowlers, making a difference of four. These Peterborough men are fighters. The last end they were three down and lay shot, probably two. There was no chance to draw, but by running the kitty to the right or left they would count three.

Tough For Peterborough.

He got the kitty dead on and it went straight ahead to where two Queen City bowlers were and instead of being one down he was five. This is the first time Queen city have ever had the honour of playing in the finals. Morrison's men, especially Fleming and Hackboy, played magnificently. This game with Buffalo should be one long to be remembered.

Morrison's other victim was Dr. Pirie, of Dundas, whom he swamped. The score was 17 to 4. Waddell's right to the semi-finals was won from Kelk, Parkdale. This was another of the good games of the tournament, victory finally falling to Peterborough by 15 to 11.

Gun Club Holds Shoot

The semi-monthly shoot of the Gun Club was held last evening in the Driving Park. Eleven members were out. A twenty-five bird round was shot off with the following results:

DIFFERENT STYLES IN BATTING

Which is the most successful hitter in baseball, the good or hard? This question is asked many times by the fans during the season. It is a difficult matter to decide which is the better of the two, for both kinds of stick wielders have been successful. Take, for instance, Cobb and Wagner, who are leading the American and National leagues in batting at the present. Their styles are directly opposite. Cobb is what may be termed a good hitter, while Wagner must be classed as a hard hitter, writes a western expert.

The good hitters do not send the ball away hard, but they are proficient with the club because they are skilful and make many hits. On the other hand, the hard hitter, because of the forcible impact of the bat against the ball, often drives the ball with such speed that it gets by the fielders.

Little men produce their share of hard hitters. As with big men, it may be because of a hard swing, or may be because of an accurate swing that meets the ball squarely and thus makes every ounce of exerted muscle tell.

Wagner is a fine batsman and one of those free hitters who connects with any kind of a ball. He is another of whom it may be said that he sometimes hits down too hard for distance.

This naturally robs it of some of its speed and converts into a one-base hit what might have been a two-bagger or better had the ball gone up a trifle as it left the bat. He lands so hard that what would be an out for a ball struck with less force but in precisely the same way becomes a base hit with him.

Wagner's hard-hitting prowess is further shown by the way his curving fly balls carry when there is any sort of solidity to the hit. A three-quarter impact, the ball being struck below the middle, would be an ordinary outfield fly and a sure out if made by anybody putting less force in the blow.

He can shift his style and chop a ball, but he generally gets force and therefore makes more hits off balls hit on the handle than most players. That is, a ball hit on the handle by him is more likely to go safe than if made by a less robust slammer.

Cobb hugs the plate fairly close, and stoops just a trifle. He doesn't take a big swing at the ball, but puts all his strength into his effort. Like all good hitters, he uses his shoulders in the swing and never pulls away from the plate. Cobb's great speed helps his batting average wonderfully. It's not so much in the hits he beats out, but simply because when he's at the plate the opposing team is all on edge, knowing the ball must be handled fast and clean in order to get the Southerner. The result is that Cobb gets a hit on many a ball that would have been handled perfectly had not the opposition been anxious.

Sam Crawford, Cobb's side partner, uses a big heavy bat, which he poises on his shoulder in such a manner that it always makes the opposing pitcher feel better when he is out of the way.

Unlike Cobb, he stands at the plate with his feet wide apart, instead of close together. Crawford takes a mighty swing at the ball and generally hits it on a line and far away. It's not exaggerating in the least to say that Crawford goes out on more hard hit flies than any other player in the major leagues.

Lajoie hits the ball as hard as Crawford; but, unlike the Tiger slugger, he doesn't take a big swing, or chop it; he's just the happy medium of these two styles. Into his swing he puts all the strength of his powerful physique, and his drives generally cling close to the ground or go to the outfield on a dead line.

The Reciprocity agreement saves the people from those who would monopolize their food supply.

"Hack" Is Training

NEW YORK, AUG. 17.— Georges Hackenschmidt, known as the "Russian Lion" who aspires to the world's championship in wrestling, reached here yesterday on the Olympic to train for his match with Champion Frank Gotch in Chicago on Labour Day. He was accompanied by Dr. Keller, the wrestler of Seattle, who has him in charge.

Hackenschmidt will go into training near Chicago. He appeared to be a trifle weightier than when he was last here. He expects to go on the mat at about 200 pounds, and was brimming with confidence as to the outcome.

New Teams For O.R.F.U.

TORONTO, AUG. 17.—In connection with the movement which originated in Ottawa to form a new rugby senior series, it is stated here on undoubted authority that there is absolutely no truth in the rumour that the T.A.A.C. have any intention of deserting the O.R.F.U. and joining the new union.

In fact, in the best informed football circles there is a firm belief that there will be no new series. In other words that the new clubs in Ottawa and Montreal will throw in their lot with the O.R.F.U.

In this case the O. R. F. U. senior series would be reconstructed. It would then consist of seven clubs, and these would be split up into two sections with Hamilton, Montreal, Ottawa and one Toronto team in No. 1 section, and Dundas, Parkdale and the other Toronto club in No. 2.

There is also some talk of changing the name of the old union, so as to give it a broader basis, the new title is to be somewhat similar to the "Inter-provincial."

PARROT GOT THE SCHAEFER'S GOAT

CHICAGO, AUG. 16.—Incidentally there is much rivalry between Ping Bodie, he of fence busting fame, and Oscar Stanage, the Detroit catcher. And it came about in this way. It will be remembered that the fence buster slammed a home run when the Sox were in Washington. Well, Germany Schaefer is a member of the Senatorial crew. The Detroit fans know that he is a great joker, and about the first thing that he did after the game was to send Bodie a polite note. This note informed Bodie that a certain man, who deals in parrots was in the habit of giving away a bird to all who connected with the pill for four bases. Since Bodie had performed this unusual feat he was entitled to the bird and would he please call and get the same.

Schaefer signed the name of a man who sold parrots, and the letter reached Bodie. The next morning he and Edward Walsh, the Sox pitcher, started out to collect the bird. On the way Bodie informed Walsh that he had no use for a parrot and that the same could be purchased cheaply. Walsh wanted a parrot and they fixed up a price. When they reached the store and Bodie made known his wants he received the loud laugh, to say nothing of the merry ha, ha.

Heard About the Parrot.

When Bodie came to bat in the fourth inning of the Sunday game, Stanage turned to Umpire Connolly. "Did you hear about Bodie and his parrot?" queried the catcher.

"No," said the Umpire.

"He hit a home run down in Washington. After the—"

"Strike one," howled the Umpire.

"As I was saying," went on Stanage. "After the game he received a note from a man who sells parrots, telling him that—"

"Strike two," howled Connolly.

"As I was saying before you interrupted with that strike, after the game he received a letter from a man who sells parrots notifying him that he was entitled to a parrot because he hit a—"

But the catcher was compelled to halt in his narrative. Bodie had swung viciously and in vain. He had fanned and was on his way to the bench and Stanage indulged in much laughter. He had no opportunity of renewing the tale until the seventh. Bodie let off in this inning and he had no more than got a grip on his bat when Stanage began again.

Stants Story Again.

"You know, Tom, as I was telling you, Ping got a letter from this parrot dealer inviting him to come down and get a parrot free, because of his home run. Well, Ping and Ed. Walsh—"

"Strike one," from the Ump.

"Well, they went after the parrot, and on the way Ping sold the parrot to Ed.; but when they got to the bird store why—"

"Strike two," bellowed the Ump.

"But when they got to the bird store why they discovered that it was all a joke of Schaefer's, and what do you suppose that Ping was going to teach that bird to say—?"

"Strike three," and the mighty Bodie whiffed the second time. But let the suspense cease. What Bodie was going to teach the bird, according to the ball players "Ping Bodie he made good."

Maybe the kidding had no effect. But many a catcher has "got the goat" of many a slugger. And who knows but that Stanage had that of Ping Bodie.

THE KING'S HANDSOME GIFT

To commemorate their visit to the Guildhall, the King and Queen have sent to the Lord Mayor of London a beautiful antique screen. The screen was found at Buckingham Palace, and bears the arms of the Corporation and the old East India Company. The Lord Mayor, in making the announcement to the Court of Common Council the other afternoon, said that the date of the screen was unknown. The arms went back to 1600, but the screen was probably of the time of George I. The Court gratefully accepted the gift of their Majesties. The screen will be placed in the library of the Art Gallery, where the public can view it.

PETERBOROUGH BOWLERS OUT OF THE TORONTO TROPHY

The Peterborough bowlers after losing in the Walker Competition at the Dominion Tourney, went into the sixth round of the Toronto Trophy, where they drew a bye. In the seventh round they disposed of Skip Beacon of Harrison, and in the eighth round for the second time trimmed C. H. Kelk of the Parkdale Presbyterian church. In the ninth round, however, Dr. Moore, of the Canadas disposed of the Peterborough quartette after a hard fought game, by 12 to 10. In all, the Peterborough bowlers have won seven matches in Toronto and lost but two, surely a good showing.

APPOINTMENT FOR PRINCE OF WALES

It was notified by the Admiralty two weeks ago that Midshipman His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, K.G., had been appointed to the battleship Hindustan, to date Aug. 1.

The fact that Naval Cadet His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, K.G., had been raised a midshipman in His Majesty's Fleet, with seniority of June 23, 1911, was made known on Coronation Day itself, June 22.

The Prince has been associated with the Fleet since he was thirteen. Then he was entered as a naval cadet, going to the Royal Naval College at Osborne, being one of the earliest entrants after the institution of the new scheme of naval training.

He spent two years at Osborne, and then two years ago moved on to the Britannia Royal Naval College at Dartmouth, where this year he completed the full term of his training, fitting him to receive the rank of midshipman.

H.M.S. Hindustan is one of the eight ships of the King Edward class, and she was launched on December 20, 1903, at Clydebank. The captain of the vessel is captain Henry H. Campbell, M.V.O., A.D.C., and the commander Commander John F. Grant-Dalton.

News of the Prince of Wales's appointment to the Hindustan was received in Portsmouth on the day of his appointment with great satisfaction. The Hindustan is a Portsmouth ship, belonging to the Second Division of the Home Fleet, and the Prince's appointment to her indicates that he will undergo his practical naval course at the premier port, as did His Majesty King George.

NEW C.P.R. LINERS

Special to The Examiner.

The Fairfield Shipbuilding and Engineering Co., Limited, Glasgow, will shortly commence building the two ocean liners, recently contracted for, which the Canadian Pacific Railway a short time ago invited tenders.

The Empress of Britain and the Empress of Ireland (the former built in the Fairfield yard) have proved themselves splendid and luxurious ocean-going liners; and it is expected they will either replace the two Empresses which went ashore on the Pacific Coast, or be stationed on the Quebec-Liverpool route.

THE KING ON MANNERS

Speaking at a Speech Day celebration at Wolverley School, Worcester, on a recent afternoon, the Bishop of Worcester gave an account of a conversation he once had with King George when he was Duke of York on the subject of manners. The Bishop said on the occasion in question he was about to address some public school boys, when the Duke of York remarked: "Why do you not ask that at public schools manners should be taught?"

In response to the Bishop's question as to why he should specially emphasise manners, the Duke of York replied: "Because, as you know, I mix among all sorts and conditions of men, and it has been a positive distress to me to see how often, when abroad, Englishmen lose in the race with Frenchmen, Italians, and Germans because of the Englishman's want of manners. The foreigners know when to bow, to shake hands, to converse, to stand up or sit down in presence of their superiors, while the Englishman is wanting in these manners and when vacancies have to be filled up, those are the points which very often tell, and that is where the Englishman does not shine."

MARQUIS OF TULLIBARDINE AND THE BOY SCOUTS

In a letter to the secretary and treasurer of the Boy Scouts, the Marquis of Tullibardine, as Headquarters Commissioner for the Boy Scouts in Scotland, says:

"I feel I must write to congratulate you on the success of your efforts at Edinburgh on Thursday, the 20th July. All the arrangements reflect the greatest credit on you and those who assisted to make the parade a success, and that the whole parade received the unqualified approval of His Majesty, both verbally and in writing, is in itself more than sufficient reward for any trouble our staff has been put to. I should also like to express my own personal thanks to the scoutmasters and the Boy Scouts for the way they all played up, and the excellent sense of discipline which all the ranks displayed. It is the only assembly of such magnitude, and indeed of any kind, upon which I have never heard a grumble from a single individual. All, as Boy Scouts should, cheerfully worked together for the common good. I trust the sight of this parade may be the means of getting many gentlemen throughout Scotland to assist us in the movement, especially as scoutmasters."

PORTRAIT OF THE LATE SIR HENRY CAMPBELL-BANNERMAN.

The portrait of the late Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, painted by Sir James Guthrie, and subscribed for by the Liberals of Scotland and other Scottish admirers of Sir Henry, is at present on view in the Fine Arts Galleries, Glasgow. The portrait will remain on exhibition there for some time, and subsequently arrangements will be made for it being shown in the People's Palace, and if possible at the Scottish Exhibition. It will be ultimately handed over to the National Galleries, Edinburgh.

6 BOXES CURED PSORIASIS

Mrs. Hettie Massey, Connaught, Ont., writes: "Three doctors described my trouble as psoriasis, and one said I could never be cured. The disease spread all over me, even on my face and head, and the itching and burning was hard to bear. I used eight boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and am entirely cured—not a sore to be seen. I can hardly praise this Ointment enough."

LABOUR DAY SPORTS

A big feature of the Labour Day sports, under the auspices of the local Trades and Labour Council will be the baseball game between the Peterborough Midland League team and the Grand Trunks of Belleville, which will be a real battle all the way. The Trunks have beaten Peterborough twice this season, winning the game here by 4 to 3 in the tenth innings, and in Belleville nosing out a weakened Peterborough team by 3 to 2. The Petes are bound to get revenge on Labour Day and with all the regulars back in the game, are confident they can reverse the decision on Mr. Ashton and Co. Stick a pin in this—it will be the big game of the season.

POLICE COURT

A Havelock man was fined $6.50 in the Police Court this morning. He did not have the necessary number of "Williams" with him, but promised to send it back as soon as he got to Havelock. He was coming down from the lakes and unfortunately stopped here on his way home. The Chief took him at his word, however, and he departed on his way rejoicing.

A local hotel porter made a similar promise, to pay $2.00 for the same offence. He was remanded on the 10th because the effects of his spree was still manifesting itself. To-day he was quite sobered up and was pleased when the Magistrate allowed him ten days to pay his fine.

A local "Indian" was charged with being drunk. He pleaded guilty and the usual $10.00 was asked. He was given ten days to pay his fine. He was put in the box and told the Court who supplied him with the liquor. The man who supplied it had left the city since so it is not known yet what action will be taken.

TREES CAUGHT FIRE

A verbal alarm was given the Fire Brigade last night at 8.10 by F. C. Kidd. The hose waggon proceeded to the scene. Some rubbish had been set on fire near the old roller rink on George street and the fire had caught in a clump of trees. A line of hose was laid and the fire was extinguished without any damage resulting.

FUNERAL NOTICE

The funeral of the late Mr. Wilson Henderson, superintendent of the Peterborough Water Commissioners, who died in Toronto yesterday, will take place in Oshawa, to-morrow, Saturday, August 19th, at 3 o'clock, from the residence of Mrs. J. Hyland, King St. East, to the Union cemetery. The funeral will be under the auspices of the members of Lebanon and Cedar Lodges, A. F. and A. M.

Ingenious Service For Compiling The Census To Use Tabulating Machines

TORONTO, AUG. 18.—The Dominion Government in tabulating the census statistics which were taken in June last, will use a machine which was used only once before, and that by the United States after its last census.

Chas. W. Spicer is the inventor of the tabulator, and when it was shown that the machine satisfactorily handled the statistics of the last American census the Canadian Government was not slow in buying outright from the patentee the use of the patent in Canada.

The Government then decided to have three of the machines built, and with this end in view Dr. Blue and Mr. O'Halloran inspected a number of shops in different cities in Canada and called for tenders. Joseph P. Cleat, 243 Macdonnell avenue, this city, was awarded the cotract.

Mr. Cleat immediately set to work and by the aid of a few suggestions at different times from the patentee his mechanical engineer, Mr. E. A. Scragg, has carried the work through and the machines will be completed by the middle of September.

Perforated Cards Used.

The statistics to be tabulated are first entered on census cards by means of perforations, and the tabulator then collects all this information from the cards as they go through the machine by an automatic feeder. When the machine is adjusted for the required information the cards are fed over a cylinder, and through the openings a magnetic contact is made which operates a series of chutes of the same thickness as the cards and stops the series so that the card enters the proper chute.

When the card is in its proper chute a series of fingers on an endless chain carries it from the chutes along two wires, which are about 7 inches apart, to the proper compartment. When the card drops from the ends of the wires into the compartment the count is made by an electrical device.

Through Fourteen Times.

There are fourteen different compartments, and by running the cards through fourteen times all this information may be tabulated. By making other adjustments the information indicated by forty-two perforations may be tabulated.

The making of the chutes requires the most accurate workmanship, and it is for this reason that the price is as high as $3,000. Mr. Cleat has made the machines throughout with the exception of the motors.

These machines will be used in the statistical work of the Department of Agriculture after the census work is completed.

WHOOPING COUGH

Mrs. Charles Lovell, Agassiz, B.C., writes: "Both of our nine children had whooping cough the same winter and we attribute their cure to Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. We always have it in the house, and recommend it as the king of all medicines. I was formerly completely cured of protruding piles by using Dr. Chase's Ointment."

EXCURSION TO LINDSAY

The West End Athletic Club are running an excursion to Lindsay on Saturday on a special Grand Trunk train, leaving here at 1.30 p.m. The excursionists may return on either of the regular evening trains. The West End Club will take a ball team with them and will meet the Lindsay team in an exhibition game that should be well worth seeing. Cresswell, the south paw pitcher of the Peterborough Midland League team, will do the box work for the West Ends to-morrow. Lindsay has an all-star team picked from the ranks of the City League teams.

DEATHS.

HENDERSON.—At Toronto, on Thursday, August 17th, 1911, Mr. Wilson Henderson, in the sixty-seventh year of his age. Funeral from the residence of Mrs. J. Hyland, King street, east, Oshawa, on Saturday, August 19th, at three o'clock p.m. Service at 2.30 p.m. Interment in Union Cemetery. Members of Lebanon and Cedar Lodges, A.F. & A.M., will meet at the Lodge Room at 2 p.m., to attend the funeral of their deceased brother.

THE ENGLISH SPARROW

From Farm and Dairy.

In its economic relations the English sparrow among birds is comparable to the rat among mammals. It is cunning, destructive, and filthy. It destroys small fruits, as cherries, grapes, pears, and peaches. It also destroys buds and flowers of cultivated trees, shrubs, and vines. In the garden it eats seeds as they ripen, and nips off tender young vegetables as they appear above ground, peas and lettuce being especially subject to attack. It damages wheat and other grains when newly sowed, ripening, and in shocks.

It reduces the numbers of some of our most useful native species, such as bluebirds, house wrens, purple martins, tree swallows, cliff swallows, and barn swallows, by destroying the eggs and young and by usurping the nesting places. It attacks other familiar native birds, as the robin, wren, red-eyed vireo, and catbird. Unlike our native birds whose places it usurps, it has no song, but is noisy and vituperative. It defiles buildings and ornamental trees, shrubs, and vines with its excrement and with its bulky nests.

DESTROY THE NESTS

The most effective method of preventing the increase of sparrows in a locality is to destroy their nests at intervals of 10 or 12 days throughout the breeding season. Occasionally they build large covered nests in trees, but as a rule they build open nests in bird houses, cornices, waterspouts, and similar places. While it is often difficult to reach nests with the hand, they can usually be torn down by means of a long pole having an iron hook at the tip. By a concerted and continued movement to destroy every nest after the eggs are laid, English sparrows in any locality may be gradually reduced without resorting to shot or poison.

Where the use of poison is not prohibited by law, it may be effectively used to reduce the number of sparrows. Of the different poisons tested, the most satisfactory is strychnin sulphate. Wheat has proved to be a good bait. The grain should be regularly supplied at the feeding stations until the birds have become accustomed to resort to the place. A good time to put it out is early morning, as the birds are sure to be hungry for breakfast.

AMOUNT OF POISON

In deciding the amounts of poisoned wheat to put out at one time, it is well to estimate the number of sparrows frequenting a feeding place and to allow about 20 kernels for each sparrow. Although two kernels of wheat coated with the solution have been known to kill a sparrow, six or seven kernels are required to insure fatal results. Only as much poison should be put out as is likely to be eaten in one day, as exposure to moisture reduces its virulence. Furthermore, sparrows that take less than a fatal quantity, or that become frightened by the death of comrades, will forsake a feeding place if poison is kept there constantly. It is better, therefore, to supply unpoisoned wheat after each poisoning until the birds have recovered confidence.

A poison mixture that has proved very effective is prepared as follows: Put one-eighth ounce of strychnin sulphate into three-fourths of a gill of hot water and boil until dissolved. Moisten one and a half teaspoonfuls of starch with a few drops of cold water, add it to the poison solution, and heat till the starch thickens. Pour the hot poisoned starch solution over one quart of wheat and stir until every kernel is coated. Small-kerneled wheat sold as poultry food, if reasonably clean, is preferable to first quality grain, being cheaper and more easily eaten by the sparrows. The first point to make sure of, however, is that it is English sparrows we are poisoning and not some of our valuable birds.

Sentence Passed on Local Barber

The sentence passed by all the particular men who have patronized Mr. Percy Lynch in his newly opened Tonsorial Parlour in rear of Payne's Drug Store, Simcoe St., is that the service is one of the finest to be had in these parts. The famous Stark system of Face Massage and Shampooing is used exclusively and therefore the shaving public receive full value for their money and more. Prompt attention and high class work at all times regardless of time or numbers is bringing this once time popular barber shop to the front foot. Mr. H. Hicks, a young local barber of well known ability, has been added to the staff and the increasing trade is assured there will be little waiting. Shop is thoroughly remodelled and fan cooled. One trial will convince you.

ICE CHAMBER

From Farm and Dairy.

C. B. Meyers, Hastings Co., Ont.

We decided in 1907 to build an ice box in our factory. Before this we had a first-class building, with cement floors in the curing and make rooms, a machine for cutting, agitators, and everything first-class. We found, however, that although our plant had cost us over $5,000, we could not control the temperature. In the warm weather in June, July, and August the temperature at times would go up as high as 80 degrees; anyone in the cheese business knows that such a temperature is too hot for cheese. We called in Mr. G. G. Publow, and he advised us to build an ice chamber in the factory, taking for the purpose about one-third of our then large curing room. This method cost us much less than the building of an addition to our factory as a large number of neighboring factories have done.

In the years 1905-06, before we had a cool curing room, our yields had been 11.00 and 11.03 respectively. In 1907 the number of pounds of milk per pound of cheese was 10.84; 1908, 10.92; 1909, 10.85; 1910, 10.78. We have had the same maker for 12 years and the same patrons, as in this township all the factories are joint stock companies, and we never change our milk routes.

SATISFACTORY RETURNS

The total cost of remodelling our curing room was $466. The difference in yield between 1907 and 1908 showed 4150 lbs. of cheese to the credit of the cool room. The average price in 1908 was about 12 cents. The total cost of the curing room was more than saved by the increase in yield the first year.

As our factory lies close to the Bay of Quinte, the cost of filling is small. The job is let by contract. It has cost $35 a year to cut, haul, and pack the ice, which for a factory scaling 250,000 lbs. of cheese is very light.

I have shown thus, as regards yield, that cool curing has been a great success with us. As regards quality we have sold all the cheese on the Belleville cheese board, and our factory has always been one of the first selected, at the highest prices, and we have never had the slightest fault found with the quality. It has been a pleasure to sell first-class cheese.

GREATER LOCAL DEMAND

In improved local trade we have had quite an experience since we installed our cool curing room. We are situated between Trenton and Belleville. The grocers had always been taking a few cheese, but formerly they found that our cheese was too dry, as in the ordinary room our cheese did not retain moisture enough and the trade did not care for them. Since 1907 our trade with the grocers in Trenton has increased as follows: from scarcely 12 boxes for the year 1906; 1907, $130; 1909, $200; 1909 $1,300; 1910, $2,000. In fact, we have had nearly the entire trade in the town of Trenton. We have supplied all groceries during 1910.

Cheese companies or factory owners are making a great mistake in not so constructing their curing rooms that the temperature can be controlled. They would be well repaid by a much better yield and by a much finer cheese of a quality that will command a higher price for export and of a quality that will be in greater demand on our local markets.

THREE GREAT NEEDS

From Farm and Dairy.

J. McAllister, Russell Co., Ont.

There are three great big needs that we dairymen in Eastern Ontario should work to fill. We need bigger cheese factories, and better factories. We need the universal adoption of pay by test, and we need cool curing facilities in our factories. The great majority of the factories in the division over which I have direction are small and poorly equipped. The makers are doing wonderfully well considering all the chance they have, but with such factories the cheese maker works under a disadvantage.

The question of the small factory must first be solved before other improvements can be looked for. Stricter regulations regarding sanitary conditions would close some. If all factories had to pay a license, many of the smallest would go out of business. A helpful sign is that some of the patrons themselves are beginning to see that bigger factories would be an advantage.

On six miles of road in one part of my section are four factories. One makes six cheese daily, another five, and two only four. These factories combined would make one good factory. The great difficulty of combining them is that all but one are privately owned.

PAY BY TEST

We have only one factory in my section paying by test. Some have tried the test and given it up; the failure of the system being largely due to incompetent makers. In one factory in which I worked as a cheese maker for seven years, we always paid by test, and it was very seldom that any of the patrons objected to their test. My experience leads me to believe that pay by test is all right if the test is done properly, and to this end I would suggest that the appointment of officials to do the test for a group of factories would be an excellent idea.

We have no cool curing rooms in this syndicate. I have one factory in my district making just a little over one cheese a day. How can such a small factory afford to put in cool curing facilities? I have one factory pretty well up-to-date, but most of them are very small. The solution of the cool curing problem depends on the solution of the small factory evil.

Interesting Old Country Items Scotland And Norway

One portion of the Norse exhibits in Glasgow Exhibition refers to an invasion of Norway by mercenaries, under Scottish leadership, in 1612, the details of which are not well known, except in so far as thousands of British tourists have read the two simple inscriptions marking the site in Norway of the final battle and burial place of Colonel (?) George Sinclair, who was considered the leader, although actually only second in command.

It will be remembered that James VI. of Scotland was first married to Princess Anna ,a sister of King Christian IV. of Denmark, after a somewhat unexpected vein of romance in the bridegroom. As the fleet carrying the Princess to Scotland was driven back to Norway by stress of weather ,the King set off across the North Sea late in October—a wonderful deed in those days—and, landing, travelled without hardly eating or resting, until the couple met, and were married in Christiania from the Bishop's Palace, shown on a photograph in the Exhibition. Other items in connection with this romantic voyage are also shown. The unfortunate efforts of the two Royal fathers-in-law in support of the German Protestants is a matter of well-known history. The so-called Sinclair expedition has ,however, nothing to do with Protestantism, but refers to one of the local wars between Sweden and united Norway-Denmark indulged in from time to time, with the usual cheerful and disastrous consistency of loving neighbours. This particular outburst—the Kalmar War—broke out in 1611, and was carried on with Danish success on land and varying success on land.

As all other countries at that time, both sides largely employed mercenaries, drawn from all quarters. Germans and Scottish troops, and frequently opposed each other. Another Sinclair (Andrew), matter of fact, occupied a high position in the Danish service. Though James VI. on many occasions tried to compose the quarrel between his brother-in-law Gustavus and his brother-in-law Christian, favoured his relative as far as he dared, 5,000 recruits to be raised for Danish service within his dominions. Swedish mercenaries were also employed, drawn from Holland and Germany. A company of about 1,000 under the command of Mounick Khoven were unable to reach Sweden owing to the action of the Danish-Norwegian fleets. Their resolute leader therefore, knowing that Norway was full of troops ,the theatre of fighting in the south, sailed his force right north to Trondhjem, and after a rapid dash across the country reached the Swedish territory without serious loss, burning, ravaging ,and burning on his march in the style of the time. Fortunately for the adventure. In spite of the decree of James VI., a much more formidable expedition was simultaneously secretly being prepared by recruiting for Sweden in the Scottish provinces. Caithness, and the Islands; but Andrew Ramsay, the leader, carried on his work so openly that the Government finally took up, stopped the ships ,and disarmed the men. Only two small vessels escaped on the 2nd of August, 1612, having between 300 and 400 men under Alexander Andrew. Next Ramsay, a brother, the captains George Sinclair and George Sinclair, also Lieutenants Henry Barclay, James Moneypenny, and James Mowatt. The majority of the Scots rank and file evidently loyally responded when it became clear that recruiting had been carried on illegally and under pretences. That the greater part of the actual members of the expedition, apart from the leaders, were not Scotsmen at all is proved by the fact that not a single sword of Scottish workmanship is discovered among the relics. The expedition landed in Romsdalen, 28th August, and at once set out to cross the country by rapid marches. The general excitement of the populace over the recent barbarities committed by Mounickhoven was increased by the terror reports of the new invaders, though such reports were in this instance baseless. The peasants rallied until 400 or 500 of them finally were congregated at the Pass of Kringeln ,where an encounter was finally shirp and decisive. Both Sinclair and Hay were among the fallen ,the remaining officers and half of the common soldiers were taken prisoners, and a number entered the Danish service, where they would no doubt meet many of their countrymen, and do their part in the brave but unfortunate war undertaken by Christian in support of the German Protestants—an object which a few years afterwards was so gloriously and successfully carried out by the Swedish Royal military genius in a war in which numbers of Scottish adventurers gained fame, and laid the foundation of some of the most well-known Continental noble families. Although tradition refers to a Lady Sinclair as the owner of the sporting gun exhibited in the Exhibition, the records know of no such lady, and her existence is no doubt a legend, as well as stories attaching themselves to her name. Sinclair himself was the son of an illegitimate son of the Earl of Caithness.

ODDITIES OF THE WEEK'S NEWS

TRAINED SEAL IN CONGRESS

Representative Edward W. Townsend, one time newspaper man of Montclair, N.J., caused a sensation at the Capitol at Washington by appearing at the room of the committee on expenditures in the Department of Commerce and Labour, accompanied by a trained seal. A big crowd gathered to watch the unusual sight. The little seal is named George. Mr. Townsend is responsible for the investigation, now in progress, of the charges of indiscriminate butchery of the great seal herd, of the Pribilof Islands. There has been much conflicting testimony as to the sizes and weights of sealskins and as to the ages of the animals from which skins variously classified were taken. George was shown as a living example. After he has served his purpose as a committee exhibit he will be turned over to the Bureau of Fisheries to gambol with two other seals in captivity there.

Nehrik is the father by marriage to the woman once his wife, he is the grandfather of his own daughter, while his son is stepfather to the child as well as her brother. Mrs. Nehrik is mother-in-law to her husband. Mrs. John Nehrik, divorced wife of Edward, filed the insanity papers against him. In 1900 she wedded Edward Nehrik, and by the union came a daughter, Pearl. In 1906 she was granted a divorce decree and custody of the child. Nehrik's son John, by his first wife ,married his father's divorced wife, or his own stepmother. At the hearing the court declared him sane.

Emrick went to near Singu, in Upper Burmah, India, about 18 months ago ,for the Burmah Oil Company. Recently word reached his people by way of the company offices that Emrick had been killed by breaking of a cable at one of the wells. It was afterwards discovered that the original report of the tragedy was a mistake.

A RECORD IN PIANO PLAYING

The Paris newspapers record a feat of endurance on the part of one Thorpe, described as a native of Bohemia ,who played the piano for 30 hours and 15 minutes without stopping. It seems that there is a record even in this kind of folly, and that it was formerly held by Mr. Waterbury, whose performance extended over 28½ hours. The report states that Thorpe was fed and given stimulants during the entertainment. But nothing is said about the audience ,as to whether they brought their beds or took their enjoyment in parts.

ANOTHER STROKE OF GENIUS

The "trainometer" is the latest. If you are on a train and you are curious to know how fast you are going, you put a penny in the slot and the hand on a dial informs you. H. W. France, an Englishman, is the genius who thought of this idea, but it has not been adopted in this country as yet.

EVOLUTION OF THE NURSING BOTTLE

The original nursing bottle was a cow's horn, to the small end of which were sewn two pieces of leather, like the finger of a glove ,and the infant drew its nourishment between the stitches. According to Dr. D. Forsyth, fifteenth century mothers used to nurse their babies for close upon three years, a duration still customary among the Japanese and Greenlanders . In the time of the Stuarts it had declined to between eighteen months and two years. In the time of the Georges it fell to one year, and now he reckons the average as eight months. During the Hanoverian period the practice of feeding babies artificially became somewhat common. Cow's milk was not then considered just the food for a baby deprived of the mother's milk, and the substance called "pap" was introduced through the cow's horn. "Pap" was a mixture of crusts soaked in water and sugar. A baby that thrived on it was usually one of rare constitution.

AN EXTRAORDINARY PLANT

The New York Botanical Gardens possesses a curiosity in a plant which supplies its own water from an internal reservoir. It comes, says "Good Health," from the Sonora Desert in Mexico, and is called the gatequi. It develops an immensely thickened root and stem base, and in the short season, only a few weeks in length, during which it can obtain water from the soil, it supplies itself by means of short tendrils which then dry up. After that it lies on the desert entirely detached from the soil. It is said that it can store enough water to last a quarter of a century. The specimen in New York was obtained in 1902, and it has remained in a museum case ever since. Annually, at its wonted season, it puts out tubers, which, obtaining no moisture or sunshine, soon die; but the plant continues to live. For seven successive years ,repeating its annual search for moisture, it has continued to send out useless tendrils.

ODD GREETINGS

The unconventional salutation "Hello" which is used by the average Westerner would be considered absolutely discourteous and rude by the average foreigner of Asia. Interpreted into English ,the salutation of the Turk is "Be under the guard of God"; the Arabian with his usual reference to Allah says: "Thank God, how are you?" The greeting of the Persian is in these well wishing words, "May your shadow never grow less." The familiar form of saluting a friend among the Chinese is, "How is your stomach?" while the Egyptians, "How do you perspire?" seems still more odd . A literal translation of European people gives us a combination something like this: Dutch, "How do you are?"; Swedish, "How can you?"; Russian, "How do you live on?"; Polish, "How do you have yourself?"; Italian, "How do you stand?"

PSEUDONYMS OF WOMEN WRITERS

The preference of many women writers for a male pseudonym is doubtless a survival of the old superstition that to engage in the task of authorship was "unwomanly." The Bronte Sisters set the fashion in appearing as Curer, Acton, and Ellis Bell respectively . Their example was followed by George Eliot. But George is a name to which the distressed lady novelist flies as to a city of refuge . We have George Egerton, George Fleming, George Paston, and a host of others. Then, too, there have been John Oliver Hobbes, Ralph Iron, Frank Hammel, and Frank Danby. On the other hand, Mr. Oliver Madox Hueffer shares with the late William Sharp the distinction of a feminine disguise, for he was known to the novel-reading public until quite recently as Jane Wardle.

THE MOST CURIOUS RAILWAY IN THE WORLD

The DarjeelingHimalayan Railway is one of the most curious in the world. It is of two-foot gauge, and on account of the steepness is full of loops, curves and spirals, many of the curves having only 70 feet radius. Some of the gradients are as high as one foot in 25. A special type of locomotive had to be made for it at Manchester. This locomotive was required by the specifications to be able to travel on reverse curves not exceeding 60 feet radius, with only 20 feet length of tangent between the curves. The engine consists of a frame supported at each end by four-wheeled bogies, each of which is described as a miniature locomotive without boiler. The boiler is carried on the frame between the bogies.

CURIOUS RESEARCH WORK

Mr .Thomas Bolton ,Birmingham, England, carries on a curious business—searching for invisible forms of animal and plant life for universities, schools, and other educational institutions. Mr. Bolton has been engaged in the work for the past thirty-five years. By means of a spoon he scrapes up the mud from the bottom of ponds and streams ,and when he finds a likely bit which promises to contain something he wants, he transfers it to his glass jam-jar and takes it home, where he examines it by the aid of a microscope. Mr. Bolton has discovered a number of organisms not previously known, to which his name has been given.

THE ORIGIN OF EAR-RINGS

A correspondent writes to the Pall Mall Gazette of London to correct a statement that the ears were not pierced for ear-rings till the seventeenth century. The most ancient ear-rings in the museums, he says, were certainly worn in pierced ears. There is a tradition that when Sarah jealous of Hagar, vowed to dye her hands in the latter's blood, Abraham saved the situation by boring Hagar's ears and letting Sarah insert silver rings, so that her vow was fulfilled. The rings, however, lent such splendour to the girl's dusky cheeks that Sarah soon adopted them herself, and this was the origin of ear-rings.

THE PERFUME OF FLOWERS

According to the investigation of a German botanist, out of 4,200 species of flowers cultivated in Europe, only 420 possess an agreeable perfume. Flowers with white or cream-coloured petals are more frequently odoriferous than others. Next in order come the yellow flowers, then the red, after them the blue, and finally the violet, whereof only 13 varieties out of 208 give off a pleasing perfume. In the whole list 2,208 varieties are offensive in odour and 2,380 have no perceptible smell, either good or bad.

HER ADVICE IS NOT TO MARRY

AURORA, ILL., Aug. 19.—Miss Elizabeth Duncan, 100 years old, the oldest resident of Sangamon County, advises women who wish to live long not to marry.

"You may never enjoy the superlative happiness of those who wed, but you will have a life of peace. You won't know what war is, and you knew what Gen. Sherman said about war," she told friends she met at the annual reunion of Sangamon County early settlers.

"I never had a love affair, and I have always been happy."

Miss Duncan's advice to women consists chiefly of don'ts. She says:

"Don't marry, don't be a suffragette, don't wear rats, don't wear high-heeled shoes, don't wear tight clothing, don't overindulge in tea or coffee.

"If necessity demands that you earn your living, choose some occupation by which you may support yourself and still remain within the refining, nerve-resisting influence of your own home."

$3.50 Recipe Free, For Weak Kidneys

Relieves Urinary and Kidney Troubles, Backache, Straining, Swelling, Etc.

Stops Pain in the Bladder, Kidneys and Back

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say goodbye forever to the scalding, dribbling, straining, or too frequent passage of urine; the forehead and the back-of-the-head aches; the stitches and pains in the back; the growing muscle weakness; spots before the eyes; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swollen eyelids; leg cramps; unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and the despondency?

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on, and if you want to make a quick recovery, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $3.50 just for writing this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, K1810 Luck Building, Detroit Mich., and I will send it by return mail in a plain envelope. As you will see when you get it ,this recipe contains only pure, harmless remedies, but it has great healing and pain-conquering power.

It will quickly show its power once you use it, so I think you had better see what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free—you can use it and cure yourself at home.

THE EIGHTH GIRL

She Made an Interesting Addition to the Other Seven.

By BELLE MANIATES.

When John Walker was left a widower, although he was in the prime of manhood, with a comfortable income and good habits, it was universally predicted that he would never win a second wife.

For what manner of woman—that is, of the type fastidious John Walker would fancy—could contemplate the prospect of stepmothering seven daughters ranging in age from pert thirteen to precocious four?

If the children had been boys John Walker's prospects would have been more favorable, for a squad of boys can be turned afield, but seven girls to hear and feed until they should come to an age when they would with their lords depart!

John Walker was domestic, and after two years of widowhood he began to yearn for a goddess of his hearth and home. The affairs of his household had not been administered so badly since his wife died. The cook was capable and honest and had been reigning over the kitchen for eight years. The seamstress who had always spent a month each spring and autumn "sewing up" for the young Walkers continued her visits, with the added responsibility of selecting and purchasing material.

The eldest girl, Madge, was promising to be quite a practical little housekeeper, but John Walker knew that a wise feminine hand and heart were essential to the guidance of his active, romping, unruly troop of youngsters.

He began to call assiduously upon Cecilia Rayne, a young woman renowned for her intellect, practicality and excellent judgment. She accepted his attentions, though reservedly and with a general air of careful consideration and "weighing in the balance."

His intentions were regarded as unmistakable when he invited her, with her mother, to visit his home and drink tea one afternoon. The children on this fateful day had never been so noisy or unattractive. Even Madge was boisterous and untidy.

John Walker did not know that it was malice aforethought on the part of his offspring. Madge was precocious and acute eared. She had heard it said that John Walker would marry just as soon as he could find any one to have him. She had sized up Miss Rayne as a prime ruler, and in the mother of Miss Rayne she scented a natural enemy.

So she instigated and encouraged rebellion in her many sisters, and their deportment carried the day. John Walker escorted his guests to their home and returned with the firm intention of administering unto his own something stronger than rebuke.

He found his flock white robed and sweet voiced, awaiting with uplifted mouths his good night caress, and he could not bring himself to mar their slumbers by so much as a word.

"If she only could have seen them as they are now!" he thought, with a regretful sigh.

Madge's busy little brain worked overtime that night on the solution of the stepmother problem. A day or two after the eventful visit of Miss Cecilia Rayne, as John Walker was passing a little park he met two or three kindergarten teachers walking with their young charges. He gave them but a casual glance, when his attention was attracted by a delighted cry of "Papa!"

The littlest and last child in the procession let go of the hand of the young girl with whom she was walking and rushed up to him.

"Why, Tot!" he said, taking her up in his arms.

Then he looked hesitatingly at the young teacher, who was walking on slowly.

"You must be Mr. Walker," she said naively. "I am Tot's kindergarten teacher."

"Are you?" he asked interestedly. "I didn't know that Tot attended a kindergarten."

"Didn't you?" she asked anxiously. "Madge brought her to school yesterday and entered her as a pupil. I supposed it was your wish."

"Of course it is," he replied promptly, "only I hadn't thought of it before. I am glad Madge is so wise."

"I've learned lots, papa. I'm going to prick you a card," assured Tot.

"Thank you, darling. Where is your school, Miss"—

"Worden," she said, supplying the name. "The school is on the corner of Wood and Third streets, three blocks below. Are you fond of children, Mr. Walker?" she asked, looking up at the princess enthroned on his shoulder.

"Naturally," he said, with a whimsical smile.

She flushed and laughed a little.

"Come and visit our school some time, then."

"I will walk there with you now," he responded promptly, setting Tot down on the sidewalk.

The child instantly appropriated a hand of each guardian and skipped along between them.

"Who takes her to and from school?" he asked, remembering the automobiles and trolley cars.

"Madge has so far."

"Madge said you could stop for me some on your way home to luncheon," said the little girl.

"Why, yes, so I can. How did Madge know of your school, Miss Worden?"

"Oh, Madge and I are old friends. I give music lessons afternoons, and her inseparable companion, Grace Landon, is one of my pupils."

"I wish you would give Madge lessons too. Her teacher left the city some time ago, and I have neglected to have her start again."

"I should be glad to teach her," said the girl simply.

"Very well. You may commence tomorrow, if agreeable, and give her two lessons a week."

"She's a sweet little girl," thought John Walker as he pursued his way from the kindergarten. "She must be Tom Worden's daughter. Poor fellow! His failure took all he had. She's a trump to take hold and help in this way."

The first day that John called for Tot he so cordially seconded the child's invitation to her teacher to come home with them to luncheon that she was forced to comply.

Madge's music hour was from 5:30 to 6, and she would not practice properly unless her teacher would consent to stay to dinner. The children all claimed her as a kindred spirit and called her "Bess," for which they were sternly and ineffectually reprimanded by their parent, who finally followed their example and called her by that name himself.

In the month of July the Walkers went to their summer cottage on a lake some twenty miles from the city.

"You need a vacation more than any one," said John Walker abruptly to Bess one day. "You must go with us."

"Thank you very much," said the girl gratefully. "It's kind in you to ask me, but of course I can't accept."

"Why not?" he demanded. "Your father is going west on an extended business trip, and he won't need you."

The girl blushed, hesitated and then said frankly:

"Why, you see, of course, it would really be all right, but then, you know, people would talk—they wouldn't approve."

She began to meander in her explanation, and John suddenly comprehended.

"I see," he laughed, nodding. "But, you see, you have come to seem to me like one of my own—my eighth girl. I call you—but I suppose you are grown up enough for a chaperon."

"I am twenty years old," she said with dignity.

"Indeed! A great age. Well, I have a second cousin, a meek, elderly widow, whom the children rule firmly. I presume she would like a month or so at the cottage."

So it was finally arranged.

From that time on John Walker suddenly regarded his children's teacher in a new light.

"I wonder if a beautiful young girl like Bess could come to care for an old duffer like me," he pondered. "I had supposed that she considered me an old man!"

A thrill stirred within him as he looked up at the fair young face gazing happily over the waters of the lake on the first night of their arrival.

"Bess!" he said suddenly.

But the children had also called "Bess," and she was away for a romp on the beach.

"She is only a child, after all," he thought, with a sigh.

In the Walker bonthouse was a canoe which the children were forbidden to use, but Bess one Sunday morning ventured forth alone in it. She managed it very skillfully, but on her return a sudden wind came up and made the lake choppy. She had all she could do to keep the little craft right side up.

John Walker, coming out on the veranda of the cottage, saw her danger and rushed to the boathouse, intending to row out after her. Another emotion besides anxiety surged within him, and he knew now that he loved this playmate of his children.

She was making great progress with her tiny canoe, and as he rowed out from the boathouse she was landing at the pier.

It was a very merry, winsome face, alight with the excitement and danger, that was lifted to his.

In the reaction from his fright he was beginning to censure her when he was interrupted by Madge, who had appeared upon the scene and who instantly resented her father's lecture.

"You shall not scold her!" she cried hotly. "I wanted her for our stepmother, but I'll give her up if you aren't going to be nice to her."

Bess turned red and pale by turns.

"I'll race you to the house, Madge," she cried, and they were away.

"Bess," said John softly when he had succeeded in getting an interview, "as I said, I had thought of you as my eighth girl. I don't want to think of you as a stepmother, but I do want you to be my wife and a companion to the girls because I love you. Will you try to care for me?"

The verdict of the world was that John Walker had eight girls now and needed a woman in his house more than ever.

DOCTORS FAILED TO HELP HER

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Pound, Wis.—"I am glad to announce that I have been cured of dyspepsia and female troubles by your medicine. I had been troubled with both for fourteen years and consulted different doctors, but failed to get any relief. After using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier I can say I am a well woman. I can't find words to express my thanks for the good your medicine has done me. You may publish this if you wish."—Mrs. HERMAN SIEVE, Pound, Wis.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills, and suffering women owe it to themselves to at least give this medicine a trial. Proof is abundant that it has cured thousands of others, and why should it not cure you?

If you want special advice write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for it. It is free and always helpful.

Thin Women.

The contention of Dr. Moots before the Ohio medical convention that there "must be something wrong with the internal workings of thin women" will find ready indorsement among the Apache Indians. Some years ago a delegation from that tribe came to New York, and at a reception given for them a woman asked one of the chiefs what he thought of the white women he had seen. The late Governor Richard McCormick, who had charge of the party, reluctantly returned the answer given to him by the interpreter. Miss Helen Miller Gould, who is just forty-three, is a unique figure. A wealthy woman born in the New York smart set, she is puritanical, modest, charitable and utterly indifferent to society's pomp and pleasures.

Senorita Maria Francisco, aged twenty-two, who is about to enter the office of a lawyer in Manila, is the first young woman in the Philippine Islands to graduate from a law school. She recently passed a brilliant examination.

Miss Gillis, who has had charge of the "blind room" in the Congressional library in Washington for so many years, will, it is said, be put at the head of the National Library For the Blind which is soon to be established at the national capital.

When Blood Was Impure

The Old-fashioned Doctor Brought Relief by Bleeding

To-day We Keep the Blood Pure by Using

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

The doctor of a century or two ago was accustomed to free his patient of an excess of poisoned blood by the cruel process of bleeding.

We would not stand for that heroic treatment to-day, because we understand better the work of the liver and kidneys and how to awaken them to their duty of filtering poisons from the blood.

These are the only organs of the body which filter poisons from the blood, and so cleanse the system of the foul waste matter which causes pains, aches and dangerous diseases, and there is no way you can so quickly bring the liver and kidneys into action as by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Don't imagine that a liquid medicine is necessary to purify the blood. The supreme test is, "Does the treatment awaken the action of the liver and invigorate the kidneys?" Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are unique in their combined action on the liver, kidneys and bowels, and on this account wonderfully successful as a means of purifying the blood.

The whole digestive and excretory system is cleansed and invigorated by this treatment. The appetite is sharpened, digestion improves, and the tired, languid feelings of a poisoned system give way to new health and vigour. 1912 MODEL J.M. TOURING CAR, 7-PASSENGER, 45-50 H.P., PRICE, $2,450

As competition has increased in the manufacture of the modern motor car, costs of production have been sacrificed to meet the demand of the masses for a cheap car. Motor cars that five years ago sold for $3,000 can now be bought for $1,500, and the makers claim that it is a better car. Is it real?—the value that goes to prove its reliability cannot be there. The Schacht Motor Car was first manufactured eleven years ago—at the present day there are 5,000 satisfied owners—the growth of the business has only been proportionate with the quality of the car. If increased production made it possible to produce the car cheaper the value went back into the car—always with the one end in view to offer something better—the best car made for the price. The Schacht engine embodies all the latest improvements that are found on more costly cars—the graceful racy lines and superior finish of the body is not excelled by the very best makes on the market. It is not doing justice to ourselves or to you to go into the numerous features that have established the Schacht car in the motor world, but we will be pleased to send you a catalogue giving full particulars and complete information about the various types. We also manufacture delivery cars and trucks.

Applications for unoccupied territories will be received.

MAKING NOSES FROM SHINBONES

Up-to-Date Methods of Facial Specialists in Germany—Beautifying the Homely

Sigh no more, ladies, sigh no more, Beauty is knocking at your door.

In fact, judging by the prophecy of Dr. Hans Kersten, the well-known medical specialist of Berlin, the time is coming when every woman will be beautiful, and men will stand amazed at the brilliant charms of every member of the opposite sex.

Says the worthy doctor: "Skilful surgeons are already able to replace missing organs, such as ears and noses, so perfectly that no scar is seen. That being so, they can reduce or increase the size of any facial organ, and, as all beauty is symmetry, the most mis-shapen face can be transformed into a likeness of Apollo. And the artificial beauty may be of the highest type It is quite an easy matter to reduce exceptionally big ears, narrow unduly distended nostrils, straighten a crooked nose, and take away all blemishes of the skin. Radiant liquid air, frozen carbolic acid gas, electricity, when properly applied, are all beautifiers. The woman of the future will be the radiant daughter of these miraculous forces of Nature."

Noses and Marriage

Already, however, scientific skill has been applied to remedying Nature's defects in a wonderfully successful manner. Another German doctor, for instance, Dr. Jacques Joseph, has made quite a reputation on account of the manner in which he reconstructs ugly noses. "I remedy every day," he said a short time ago, "by operative means, defective noses of various kinds. Noses from which, by Nature, illness, or accident, part or nearly the whole is missing. I build up the nose from the inside, after delicate use of the knife, by injecting either liquid or solid paraffin, or by fitting in a piece of the patient's own shin-bone. Crooked noses can also be straightened from within, without leaving any semblance of scars on the outside; and almost every week I get engagement cards of men and women ex-patients, who, long denied matrimonial bliss on account of repulsive noses, now describe me as the architect of their new-found happiness."

The use of electricity as a beautifier, mentioned by Dr. Kersten, has produced some wonderful results. By its means impaired complexions can be restored, wrinkles can be eradicated, and dimples produced. It is also largely used in the removal of what is commonly known as the port-wine stain, although many people believe that it is impossible to remove this blemish from a person's features.

Wonderful Appliances

The appliances of beauty specialists are really wonderful. One of the latest of the apparatus [illegible] a series of thumb-screws for making the finger-nails a better shape. Then there is an elaborate face and neck mask for removing wrinkles, and a chin strap which drives away that nightmare of many women—a double chin.

Equally remarkable is the slight operation by which beauty doctors are able to beautify the ears. This operation, which is practically painless, and in which only a little cocaine or any local anæsthetic is required, consists in removing from the back of the ear a small wedge-shaped piece of cartilage and skin, so that when the edges are united the ear can be pulled back into its proper position.

AERIAL TORPEDOES

They Will Explode When They Strike Airship

Messrs. Krupp, the great German firm, have filed the details of their new aerial torpedo with the Federal Patent Office, London. According to the plans which accompany the company's statement, the torpedo is fitted with a fuse so sensitive that it explodes on coming in contact with the delicate surface of a gas-bag. There is a base-plug containing fulminate of mercury, which, when ignited, explodes the torpedo. This is done by a needle driven by a spring, which is controlled by two levers. These levers, normally, are held firm by a movable wooden shaft. When the head of the torpedo strikes an airship, the levers are released, and swing outward under centrifugal force, permitting the needle to be driven into the fulminate. The inventors have succeeded in preventing the torpedo from exploding through resistance to the air.

HARD-WORKING WOMEN

Portuguese women bear burdens more out of the balance of the sexes than in almost any land in Europe. Most visitors get something of a shock when they see a woman staggering under big crates of coal as they unload the barges by the Tagus quayside. And that is typical of the whole country. Speaking broadly, the women seem to be working more strenuously than the men, whose tastes run to gaudy clothes, cigarette smoking, and much talking.

A PECULIAR HYBRID

What has been aptly described as a hybrid between a needle and a frog has been grown by two eminent French scientists, M. Bataillon and M. Heuneguy. The eggs of a frog have been fertilised purely by a mechanical stimulus, pricking them with a fine platinum or glass needle. The needle has been as remarkable in its effects as Aaron's rod, for the eggs have on being placed in sterilised water, developed into tadpoles just as though a male frog had fathered them into existence.

Largest and Smallest

Yorkshire, the largest county of England, is forty times the size of Rutland, which is the smallest.

PRINCE AUGUST WILHELM OF PRUSSIA

As a result of an automobile accident in which Prince August of Prussia's auto and a swiftly-moving taxi-cab played stellar roles, the Prince finds himself without his fine stable of touring cars. The order of confiscation was his father's. The Kaiser had forbidden his son to drive rapidly through the streets of Berlin, but the Prince, forgetting for the moment the paternal and imperial command, "let her out" a notch, with the result that his indiscretion came to the ears of the Kaiser, who refused to permit him to use his cars.

FRANCE FOR BABIES

With a view to encouraging thrift, M. Chaumet, the Under Secretary of State to the Post Office, has issued a circular to the directors of departments, from which it appears that various municipalities intend to put a franc in the savings bank in the name of every child as soon as it is born. By way of assisting the commencement in their laudable efforts to encourage the habit of saving among children the Post Office Savings Bank will accept the deposits made in the names of newly-born babies. There is a stipulation that the children cannot withdraw the deposits made by the parents until they have reached their majority, or get married.

A TURKISH TRAGEDY

A sanguinary tragedy of eastern fashion has occurred at Salonica in the harem of the dethroned Sultan Abdulamid. A man named Yussuf Ali, fell madly in love with the fair Aminah Aide, one of the most beautiful of the ex-sultan's harem, but the lady's large eyes did not glow in his direction, so Yussuf followed the lady into the gardens. She noticed the wildness of his appearance, but paid no serious heed to it. Suddenly, with a great shout, he rushed at her, plunged a dagger into her back, and she fell dead. When Yussuf Ali was [illegible] he had become insane.

ADVENTURES of the WORLD'S GREAT DETECTIVES

By George Barton

The Story of The Mutilated Bank Check-

An Episode in the Life of Thomas Furlong one time Chief of the Secret Service of the Allegheny Valley Railroad.

COPYRIGHT 1911 BY W. G. CHAPMAN.

HE CONNECTED THE WIRE WITH HIS POCKET INSTRUMENT.

THE DETECTIVE HUNTED UNTIL HE HAD FOUND THE VERY LAST FRAGMENT.

(This is one of a new series of stories concerning adventures that have occurred in the lives of the world's greatest detectives. Mr. Barton has gathered his material from real life, but in some cases imaginary names have been substituted for real ones, simply as a matter of justice to the innocent descendants of culprits mentioned in the narrative. Permissible liberties have been taken in the construction and arrangement of these fact stories, but in all that is essential they may be regarded as human documents of criminal interest and value.—The Editor.)

Late in the year 1877 the city of Pittsburg and, indeed, the entire country, was startled by the announcement that the safe of the Union Express company had been opened and robbed of diamonds, jewelry and money, valued roughly in the neighborhood of one hundred thousand dollars.

The Pennsylvania railroad train from the east reached Pittsburg at the usual hour; the safe used by the express company was delivered to the agent in the customary manner and he gave a receipt for the same. It was locked and gave no evidence of having been tampered with. After being loaded on a wagon, guarded by a watchman and detective, armed, to the teeth, it was finally placed in the office of the company on one of the main streets of the Pennsylvania city. The only unusual thing about the whole business was the fact that the messenger had strangely disappeared. It was thought that he had stopped on the way to the office and would report in due time. However, when he did not appear at 11 o'clock, Superintendent Bingham became suspicious. He sent for two mechanics, forced the safe open and found it absolutely empty. The officials were almost dumb with amazement. Nothing like this had ever occurred in the history of the company. Safes had been burglarized and trains had been held up in lonely places, but never before had a safe been delivered locked and uninjured at the office of the company, only to be found empty.

The news of the robbery was flashed to all the offices of the company in the United States. The local police were notified and the special officers of the corporation were also instructed to investigate. Before the close of the day it was learned that the messenger who had arrived at the station with the safe was a new man. He climbed into the delivery wagon with the safe and proceeded as far as the city hall. At that point he said that he had an errand to go and would follow the other men in a few minutes. He jumped off the wagon and disappeared in the crowd.

Naturally, the first move in obtaining this information was to locate the regular messenger who should have been in charge of the safe. It was found that Mr. J. J. Bingham, a brother of the Pittsburg superintendent, was the man who had occupied that position for quite a while. He was an entirely trustworthy man. He was personally known to many of the officers of the express company, and his integrity had never been questioned. But where was he? Had he been murdered or was he kidnaped? That was the question that agitated the officials and alarmed the friends and relatives of the missing messenger.

In the midst of this fog of perplexity and doubt, Bingham suddenly cleared the atmosphere by appearing in person. No one was more amazed than he over the news of the robbery. When asked why he had left his charge, he exhibited the following telegram. It said:

"Look out for new messenger, named J. C. Brooks. Meet him at Templeton en route. Turn over cash and valuables to him and take receipts for same. Then report to the superintendent at Parkersburg, who will give you further orders.

(Signed) "GEORGE BINGHAM,
"Superintendent."

Needless to say, this telegram was a forgery, but Messenger Bingham accepted it as a genuine order. He obeyed the instructions it contained literally. He first wired to his brother, acknowledging receipt of the telegram, but Superintendent Bingham, for reasons that will be explained later on, never received this message. The bogus official appeared at the time and place stated and received the keys to the safe containing the diamonds, jewelry and money. What happened after that, of course, was unknown to the real messenger. He could throw no further light on the subject, and for many days after that nothing new was learned. The most rigid investigation failed to produce even the slightest clue to the robber or robbers.

At this stage of the case it was determined to seek the expert assistance of Mr. Thomas Furlong, at that time the chief of the Missouri Pacific railway secret service. Chief Furlong had distinguished himself in the west by the facility and thoroughness with which he had cleared up several railway robbery mysteries. He was a clear-headed, persistent, courageous man, who combined cleverness and common sense in his every-day work. On reaching Pittsburg, he examined all of the evidence in hand and interviewed all of those who were supposed to know anything about the mysterious disappearance of the contents of the safe.

Mr. Furlong determined to take up the scent at Templeton, Penn. He started for that place, accompanied by John Cupples, who ably seconded him in the investigation. Furlong found that Templeton had once been a very busy place. It had teemed with workshops and blast furnaces, but one of those periods of business depression which we call "hard times" had struck Templeton, and now most of the shops were closed and all of the blast furnaces were shut down. Hence the place presented the appearance of a deserted village. Furlong and his assistant were the only passengers that alighted from the train that day. The detective entered into conversation with the station agent and even passed the time of day with the railroader's wife, but neither of them could give him any information concerning the pilfered safe. Furlong, however, was not the man to be easily discouraged. He made up his mind not to leave Templeton until he had received some clue, no matter how trifling. In an interval of the conversation he began to chat with the station master's child, asking the boy how he was able to amuse himself in such a dull place.

"Oh," said the youngster, "people come here sometimes. I am glad you came today."

"I'm glad, too," said the detective, gently. "I suppose it has been a long while since any other stranger stopped at this place."

Oh, no," retorted the child, "there was a man here a few days ago."

Furlong was interested at once.

"You don't mean it?"

"I do," was the quick retort; "I think I know when a stranger comes here."

"What did he look like?"

"He looked as if he didn't have much money," was the childish answer.

"Did he do anything strange?"

"Yes. He sat on a log there near the railroad tracks tearing up a piece of paper. He tore it into very little bits."

"Oh," said the detective, a strange hope surging up in his heart, "I don't think a grown man would do that."

"You don't? Then I'll show you," and leading the way, the little one pointed out a log where the stranger had seated himself.

The little bits of paper were there. The detective did not hesitate to get down on his hands and knees and pick up the very last fragment. That evening, with his assistant, he took the train for Pittsburg. He went to his hotel at once, and the two men spent the whole night in putting the pieces of paper together. No enthusiast, working on a jig-saw puzzle, ever put more heart in his work than Furlong did in trying to make something out of these disconnected fragments. It was almost daylight when something finally came out of nothing. He gave a shout of joy. His work was completed and the finished product proved to be a blank check on a bank in Carlisle, Penn.

That was a starting point. It meant that the stranger had either lived or was known in Carlisle. In the meantime, Furlong made a second discovery. It was a small telegraph instrument that had been picked up near the tracks at Templeton. He hurried to Carlisle at once, and as soon as he alighted from the train, engaged in conversation with the telegraph operator at the station. He told the man he was looking for a person who was interested in telegraphy, and then he gave him a description of the stranger the little boy had seen sitting on the log at Templeton.

"Why," said the operator, "you must mean Will McCalla."

"That sounds like the name," ventured Furlong. "Does he live here?"

"Yes, he used to live over in that house yonder with his brother George. He has gone down to Texas, though, where he is doing well now as a telegraph operator and express agent."

"I'm mighty glad to hear that," said Furlong, "because I've got a telegraph instrument I'd like to give him as a gift."

"Well, that's quite a coincidence. I know he would like to have it right well. Not long ago he asked me to give him the address of a good manufacturer where he could get an instrument at a reasonable price, and I gave him the name of a good house in Pittsburg."

This proved to be the same address that was on the instrument Furlong had picked up at Templeton. In a week or so that time the detective had completed his case. It proved to be one of the most audacious crimes that had ever been perpetrated within his knowledge. It started at a lonely place on the Allegheny railroad somewhere between Kittaning and Conemaugh. Enormous rocks towered on both sides of the railroad at this point, and it was no uncommon thing for one of these monsters to fall from the mountain side and completely block railroad traffic. For this reason watchmen were constantly stationed along that part of the route to give warning of danger by approaching trains. McCalla had one of these watchmen, and, addressing the latter, said that he was sent by the telegraph company to examine the wires. He exhibited his authority as evidence of his authority, and in this manner he was enabled to work in peace and safety. He climbed one of the telegraph poles and deliberately connected the wire he wanted. He dropped the end of it to the ground and then connected it with his pocket instrument.

He now had control of the line and proceeded to go about his work in a business-like manner. First, he wired to Brady's Point and asked the name of the messenger who was to arrive with the safe and valuables on what was known as the "up train." To this he "signed" the name of Superintendent George Bingham of Pittsburg. The reply soon came stating that John Bingham, the brother of the superintendent, would be the messenger in charge. McCalla then sent a second telegram instructing Messenger Bingham to hand over the keys to the safe to the new messenger, who would report to him at Templeton and whose name was J. C. Brooks. As already mentioned, Bingham was to turn over the cash and valuables to Brooks and take a receipt for them. Messenger Bingham acknowledged the instructions to his brother, but the clever McCalla intercepted the message and it never reached its destination.

At the appointed time the supposed Brooks, the new messenger, met Bingham, secured the keys, and then, at his leisure, rifled the safe of its contents. It is believed that he must have had accomplices. At any rate his brother was suspected of being in the scheme with him.

Furlong, with all of these proofs in his possession, started after the culprit. The chase led the detective half way round the world. First Furlong went to Palmer, Texas, but found that the ingenious telegraph operator had left that place. He followed him to Atlanta, to Savannah, to Salt Lake City, to Key West, to Havana, Cuba, and finally McCalla was discovered just as he had set sail for Rio Janeiro. For aught anyone knows to the contrary, he may be today a Brazilian nobleman or the proprietor of a great coffee plantation. The fact that Furlong was recalled to Pittsburg by the great railroad riots of 1877 alone saved McCalla from arrest and conviction. His brother George was arrested, but died before his trial.

Dream of Wealth Dispelled.

A sad but illuminating commentary on the futility of human hopes when applied to getting rich quick is furnished by an advertisement which recently appeared in one of the San Francisco daily newspapers in the classified columns. Here it is: "I will sell—I have 5,000 shares of a once well-known mining and leasing company; will exchange same for one setting hen and thirteen fresh eggs (Leghorn preferred); only permanent investors need apply. A. J. Moore, Rooms 20-21 Bacon Block, Oakland."

Looted From Fido.

There's a youngster in Boston whose appetite is a constant source of amazement of his family and relatives. On one occasion this lad was taken to spend the day with an uncle in the suburbs. At dinner he ate so much that finally it became actually necessary to forbid him to eat any more. Later, when the family were taking their ease on the porch, the irrepressible William pulled something from his pocket and began gnawing it. "What have you there?" demanded his father. "Only a dog biscuit," came in apologetic tone from Willie. "Where did you get it?" "I knew I'd be hungry before I got home," explained the lad, "so I took it away from Fido."—Lippincott's.

Made Two Changes.

An amusing story comes from Astoria, Ore. Leonora Murray, nineteen years old, and pretty, and Clyde Higham, of that town, after having been engaged for four years, were on their way to the minister's the other day to get married, when the bride-to-be discovered a hole in her stocking just above the shoe top. By the time the two reached the parsonage she had decided that the hole would show when she knelt before the minister. In spite of Rowan's protest she bade the minister and Rowan wait until she went home and changed her stockings. She hadn't been home more than five minutes before she telephoned Rowan that he need not wait any longer. While changing her stockings she had also changed her mind and had determined not to marry.

A Maine Deserted Village.

Among some of Maine's "decayed villages" in the old settlement at Hanover near the little pond on the plateau where now the trees are so dense that nearly every trace of the old ruins of cellars is gone. There was one time a settlement of some forty families and a schoolhouse with some sixty pupils. Strangest of all in the fact that the present settlement in the valley below is not an extension or outgrowth from the plateau settlement of pre-Civil war days. The inhabitants of the plateau simply died out or moved away, and no one came in to fill their places, now settlers moving into the valley farms. Today a few summer camps dot the little pond—said to be one of the most picturesque spots in Maine.—Lewiston Journal.

Six-Bladed Propeller.

Experiments have been tried recently with a six-bladed propeller on a motor-boat, and it is said to have added three miles an hour to the speed of the craft, and at the same time there was noticeable a great decrease in the jarring and vibration which had been experienced in the boat when it was operated by the usual two-bladed propeller. The blades are arranged in one shaft, in three pairs, of different shapes and sizes, the larger ones being to the rear of the other and the angles of each pair arranged so that they get solid water all the time, regardless of the speed.

Lord Brougham's Dream.

Lord Brougham was one of the most stubborn believers in the "common sense" explanation of ghostly appearances as dreams. At Edinburgh university he and an intimate friend drew up an agreement, written with their blood, that whichever of them died first should appear to the survivor. Years passed, the friend was in India, and Brougham had almost forgotten his existence. Arriving late one night at an inn in Sweden, Brougham had a hot bath and was going to get [illegible] toward the chimney [illegible] his clothes and [illegible] on it. Brougham fainted. On coming to a letter announced that his friend had died in India on the very night of this incident, which was put down to the effects of dismissed by Brougham as a dream and pure coincidence.

Mouse of Shells.

A retired sea captain living near Edinburgh, Scotland, concluded that one of the rooms in his house was too dark, and not wanting to whitewash or to paint the wall opposite the window, so as to reflect the light into the room, he covered the wall with cement, and in it placed a layer of white shell, says St. Nicholas. The result was so pleasing, and he has so many shells which he had collected from various parts of the world, that he continued the work until his cottage and garden became the wonder of the region.

Tyrrell

Scratched Until I Tore The Flesh

"It was in the latter end of the year 1908 that a nasty itch came through my skin, and I scratched it until I tore the flesh. I tried several ointments to no effect. I went to a skin hospital. They advised me to go to the ——— Hospital, but I refused. I could not sleep with the constant itch. I was that way until on or about the month of January. One day I chanced to see in the papers a case like mine, but I gave it no concern. At last I said, 'I will try the Cuticura Remedies.' With the first wash and Cuticura Ointment I used, I found their effects. I got one box of the Ointment more, and in less than one week the skin was all right, and left no traces after it. I have not had a return of the same since, and I shall always praise the Cuticura Remedies as being the means of my cure."

(Signed) Jesse Tyrrell,
94, Stanford Road, Liverpool.

In a further letter Mr. Tyrrell adds: "The first appearance of my skin disease was a burning itch which I could not stop, but which I tore and left my body, legs and arms one mass of sores. It caused sleepless nights, but now I can sleep as well as ever."

Multiplication of the Unfit

Mr. Rider Haggard, the novelist, speaking at Flixton, said that next to drink the great cause of destitution was the continual increasing production of the unfit. Every year thousands and thousands of such persons were born without the remotest chance of their growing up to earn a livelihood, or of being anything but a burden to the community.

ONLY ONE ENGAGEMENT

The Prince of Wales Will Make But One Visit to Foreign Coasts.

A good deal of nonsense has been written lately concerning the arrangements for the Prince of Wales during the forthcoming autumn. To judge from what has appeared in certain papers, he is about to embark upon a sort of triumphal progress through the Courts of Europe. Those who know how simply the Prince has been brought up and how anxious his parents are that he should remain a boy as long as possible, must be amazed at these statements. As a matter of fact, he has only one engagement for the autumn, and that is to pay a strictly private visit to the German Emperor and Empress. He will stay at Potsdam for a few days and will then accompany the Kaiser to witness the grand manoeuvres of the German Army. No other visits to foreign Courts will be paid until after he has attained his legal majority, which, in the case of princes of royal blood, is eighteen. Later in the year he is to have a short cruise upon one of the newer battleships of the Home Fleet.

VICTIMS OF THE ALPS

Six Climbers Fell to Their Death From Dangerous Peaks

In one afternoon alone recently the Alps have claimed six daring climbers, who fell to their death while attempting to scale the more dangerous peaks. At the great Mython mountain, Franz Wachter, a timsmith of Zurich, was killed near the Basodile. Not an hour later, Albert Weber, a compositor, also of Munich, was killed near the same spot. The Mython mountain took the life of Wolfgang Summer, of Ratisbon, of whom only a hat and an alpenstock were recovered. While ascending the Dent de Morocles, a soldier fell from a precipice and was dashed to pieces. Meanwhile Herman Rapp and Joseph Winkler, of St. Gall, were victims of the Scharfberg, while gathering edelweiss. Both bodies were recovered after difficult and perilious rescue work.

BOY HAS TWO STOMACHS

A Wonderful Patient in a Hospital in Rome

Considerable interest is being taken in a fourteen-year-old lad now lying in a Rome hospital, who was found to have two stomachs—an upper and a lower one. The discovery was made as the result of an operation, for the boy had never enjoyed good health from birth. Doctors could not understand the case at all, for the periodical swellings pointed to the existence of a tumor, which vanished suddenly from time to time.

The boy is fast recovering from the effects of the removal of one of the stomachs, which led into each other.

Many eminent surgeons have visited the wonderful patient.

SNAPSHOT OF LIONESS

Fifty Shot Saves Plucky Photographer From Death From Charging Animal

A thrilling encounter how a photograph was taken of an infuriated lioness, is given in the East African Standard. J. C. Hemment, an American photographer, who was taking pictures for cinematograph purposes was a member of a party starting from Nakuru in pursuit of big game. After a successful trip the party rounded up some eighteen lions, when it was found that a lioness had strayed by the way. A native beater kept a "bee" on the lioness, but only hit her with a pot stick. The animal, although badly wounded, managed to escape with the aid of her females.

Mr. Hemment immediately brought out his camera, in the hope of getting a film. He approached within fifty yards of the lioness, supported by three friends with rifles, and had just fixed his camera when the lioness sprang up with a fierce snarl, and charged straight at Mr. Hemment.

The camera was not going, and when the lioness was within twenty-five yards a shot was fired, but without effect. Mr. Hemment continued turning the handle until the camera was out of focus. He expected to see the animal fall, but instead of this she steadily advanced, the dazed photographer being unable to move.

It was only when the lioness was within fifteen feet of Mr. Hemment that she was brought down by a shot and fell three feet from the camera.

PROTECTION AGAINST AIRSHIPS

Lloyds' Will Insure Against Damage From Aeroplane

In view of the rapid advance of aviation and the likelihood of aerial accidents, Lloyds, always ready to issue policies against mishaps of every description, are now accepting risks of damage to property caused by aeroplanes. Should an aviator falling over a house accidently or otherwise drop a wrench through the roof of the conservatory, the underwriters will make good the damage, or if an aeroplane takes a plunge into the chicken-run belonging to some unfortunate dweller and causes havoc among the feathered creatures, compensation will be readily forthcoming. The premium is based on the reasonable value of the property, and the minimum premium is a dollar and a quarter on any house assessed up to $500. For this premium Lloyds undertake to pay $500 in the event of damage to the house and its contents, or the grounds, through the sudden descent of an aeroplane or airship. The sum quoted does not apply to houses within a mile of flying grounds.

CONSUMPTION CURE

Dr. Bryant Uses Geese from Putrefied Flesh for the Purpose

Imagine increase in the claim by Mr. Bryant, of Thornton, Bradford, that gases arising from maggots and putrefied flesh are a cure for consumption, and during the past month he has received about four hundred letters from consumptives in England and Scotland. He has also been visited by many people suffering from this terrible complaint, especially from districts in Lancashire, who desire to purchase and subject themselves to the treatment. Most of these, however, have to be sent home, stated, as he has already on his hands as many patients as he can accommodate. He remarked further that these, that they have to sit in the rooms where the geese are produced in their thirds. In every case, Mr. Bryant claims, the patients are making substantial progress towards recovery. It has been suggested that the gases should be bottled and sent to consumptive people so that they might be inhaled at their homes, but for the time being, Mr. Bryant is willing no steps in that direction, and the erection of larger premises at Thornton is also delayed, pending the investigation of Dr. Kaye, the medical officer of the West Riding of Yorkshire, who has been requested by Mr. John Burns to report on the discovery. This investigation will take place ere long, and Mr. Bryant awaits the report with the utmost confidence. It may be mentioned that a gentleman who has taken a keen interest in the discovery has drawn the attention of the King to it, and he has written to the National Society for the Prevention of Consumption. Mr. Bryant, in the course of a conversation, stated that the members of the medical profession were now taking his claims quite seriously than they did at first, and some of them had acknowledged that they were making experiments with trimethylamine and ammonia, the gases which are supposed to effect the "cures."

NEGLECTED HIS DUTIES

Grounds on Which a Frenchman Obtained a Divorce

A petition for divorce, arising out of his wife's neglect of household duties, was granted to M. Louis Dorison at the Palace of Justice, Paris. The judgment of the court said that M. Dorison did not omit to point out to his wife the imprudence of her compromising conduct in neglecting her duties as mistress of the house, but that, nevertheless, when he arrived at meal times, the servants had not received instructions for the ordering of the food. These disorders caused him frequent suffering. Mme. Dorison led a life of pleasure, and her acts were not those of a woman of her position. In spite of M. Dorison's reprovals, she persisted in receiving people whom he had forbidden her to visit. These transgressions of her duties constituted a grave injury. Mme. Dorison was entrusted with the care of her son, aged thirteen months, until he reaches the age of four years, when he will be sent to his father.

HAULED UP A CASKET

Peculiar Find of a Crew of Liverpool Fishermen

A remarkable recovery from the sea has been made by fishermen at Liverpool. Captain Evans and crew, after trawling for five miles, hauled up an earthenware casket, securely fastened and bound with copper wire, to which a slab of lead was attached. On the lid the following words were written in lead pencil: "John Henry Wood. Cremated 9th June, 1911." When the casket was opened, "Wood, Manchester," was discovered imprinted on a piece of lead used as a seal for copper wires. The contents were cinders of human bones. The process of cremation had not been thorough, as some of the bones could be clearly recognized.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

District "D": Mr. A. N. Molesworth, District Engineer, Cochrane, Ont.

District "F": Mr. E. E. Fortin, District Engineer, St. Boniface, Man.

Tenders must be made on the forms supplied by the Commissioners, and must be signed and sealed by all the parties to the tender, and witnessed, and be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered Bank of the Dominion of Canada payable to the order of The Commissioners of the Transcontinental Railway, for a sum equal to ten per cent. (10 p.c.) of the amount of the tender.

The right is reserved to reject any or all tenders.

By order,
P. B. RYAN,
Secretary.

The Commissioners of the Transcontinental Railway.

Dated at Ottawa, this 28th day of July, 1911.

Newspapers inserting this advertisement without authority from the Commissioners will not be paid for it.

NATURE WILL CURE YOU

Of Nearly Disease, Aided by Dr. Shoop's Restorative No. 7.

Kidney trouble is one of the most distressing ailments of mankind, and leads to backache and rheumatism. This is because of the importance of the work done by the kidneys,—work which must proceed normally to insure good health.

A very large proportion of civilized people have some form of kidney trouble, sometimes without knowing that their malady is of that nature. Many obscure pains can often be traced to diseased kidneys.

These organs are the filters of the body. Their function is to strain out of the blood and eliminate through the bladder the worn out tissue and other impurities gathered by the blood in its course.

When the kidneys become congested and sluggish, these impurities, including the irritating and poisonous uric acid are not entirely removed from the blood. The result is that this uric acid is deposited in the joints and tissues, causing the agonies of rheumatism and frequently affecting the liver and other organs.

Dr. Shoop, of Racine, Wis., the famous prescription physician of Northshore, N.B., after much research compounded a remedy which worked hand-in-hand with Nature. His doctrine, justified by thousands of cures, was that the need is not a patent medicine, but a treatment that will enable the kidneys of Nature, working through the kidneys, to accomplish their intended work.

His famous prescription, No. 7, assists the kidneys to work vigorously and eliminate the harmful uric acid from the whole system. In the form of tablets, No. 7 is easy to take, and will affect cures where other remedies have failed. Do not suffer with kidney disease, but take No. 7 Tablets. The treatment that has proved so successful with other sufferers, is a home, at most druggist's or from Dr. Shoop Kidney Medicine Co., Ltd. Montreal, Que.

Sold and guaranteed in Peterborough by McDermid & Jury.

THE KING ON MANNERS

What His Majesty Said When He Was Duke of York

An interesting conversation with the King, when he was Duke of York, on the subject of manners, was related by the Bishop of Worcester during a speech-day celebration at Wolverley School, Worcester.

"I was about to address some public-school boys," said the Bishop, "when the Duke of York remarked, 'Why do you not ask that at public schools manners should be taught?' I asked why I should especially emphasize manners, and the Duke of York replied: 'Because, as you know, I mix among all sorts and conditions of men, and it has been a positive distress to me to see how often, when abroad, Englishmen lose in the race with Frenchmen, Italians and Germans, because of the Englishman's want of manners. Foreigners know when to bow, to shake hands, to converse, to stand up or sit down in the presence of their superiors, while the Englishman is wanting in these manners. When vacancies have to be filled up these are the points which very often tell, and that is where the Englishman does not shine.'"

THE COUNTESS OF WARWICK

Despite a fabulous sum offered for their preservation, the Countess of Warwick, intimate friend and advisor to the late King Edward, has burned over seven hundred letters written to her by that monarch. This action on the part of the Countess puts forever at rest the rumor of a startling book of memoirs. The letters were well nigh priceless, and it is said that one publisher offered her $200,000 for them.

CLEVER HOTEL THIEF

Disguised as a Ghostly Visitor, He Entered Bed-Rooms

An amazing spectre recently made its appearance in a small hotel in the centre of Berlin. A merchant from East Prussia was awakened about two in the morning by a noise in his room, and was horrified to see standing motionless before his bed a tall white figure with a pale face, from which two dark eyes were shining. Switching on the electric light, the merchant saw the long robes of the ghostly visitor slowly disappearing through the door. Next morning he found his pocket-book lying on the floor and the banknotes which it had contained scattered all around. It was then he knew that the apparition was a clever hotel thief who had been disturbed by his sudden awakening.

MUTINY OF A CREW

Twenty-Six Chinamen Attacked the Officers of a Scottish Vessel

A sensational story of mutiny on the high seas is told by Captain G. J. Perks, of the steamer Kinfauns, belonging to the Clyde Shipping Company, Glasgow. While the vessel was on its way from New York to Adelaide the Chinese crew of twenty-six mutinied, attacked the third engineer, and threatened to kill the first engineer. The ship's coal grew so wilfully wasted that the captain decided to put in at Mauritius, 220 miles away. From then the steward the engineers decided it desirable to enter the cabin-hold, and decided for mutual protection to have fire arms always on the watch. Captain Perks was ever alert, although afraid that the Chinese might fire the cargo, considering his instructive aforesaid, going to Mauritius and bringing the Chinese ashore. When Mauritius was reached the Chinese were put ashore and natives engaged in their place. On searching the men's quarters concealed weapons of various kinds were found, including a revolver and fifty cartridges.

ARCHDUKE OF AUSTRIA

Though Declared Dead, He Is Said to Be Waiting to Claim the Throne

An echo from the past has again stirred into light the rumor that the Archduke of Austria, Jean Salvator who left the land of his birth under disgrace and suspicion, would return to claim the throne. When the Archduke left his native land he took the name of John Orth, and after a lapse of a decade, had been reported many times as dead. Recently his death was officially declared.

The Princess de Saxe, however, a favorite cousin of the Archduke's, is the instigator of a rumor that has caused a stir in Austrian political circles, the more especially since the aged Emperor Franz Joseph is rapidly nearing his grave. She expresses a belief in the Archduke's safe and his inevitable reappearance when the present tenant of the Austrian throne is dead. To give credence to the rumor the Princess recites a letter received from the Archduke after he had twice been reported dead in which he says: "I go away because the Emperor wishes. But I will return when Franz Joseph is dead. I will come back to Vienna, for Austria will need me. Adieu, my cousin, I will surely return." Princess Louis anxiously awaits the reappearance of her cousin.

BERLIN WOMEN POLICE

Part of Their Work Will be the Care of Infants

A body of women police has been mustered in Berlin. One section will devote their attention to ordinary police work, and to the other portion will be entrusted the care of infants. It is essential that the guardians of the children possess a knowledge of medicine. The women constables will be armed with revolvers, so that they will be able to protect themselves if necessary when entering houses in the lower quarters of the city where they have a suspicion that children are being ill treated. Thirty women will be engaged at the start.

ADDRESS OF MR. STRATTON TO THE ELECTORATE

Electors of the West Riding of Peterborough

GENTLEMEN,—

At a largely attended mass meeting of the electors, on Saturday, I was selected as candidate to contest the representation of the Riding in the House of Commons. I accepted the responsibility of the position and hereby respectfully solicit the favour of your votes and support.

I am well known to you all, for during a representative service of West Peterborough, practically extending over a period of twenty-five years, I have many times come into contact, directly and indirectly, with every elector of the Riding.

In the past I have been honoured with your confidence, and I have earnestly striven to deserve it. In the discharge of my parliamentary and, especially of my representative duties, I have tried to consistently recognize and live up to the fact that I was the representative of the whole people, and in duty bound to serve the interests of all collectively and individually, whether their support had assisted, or their opposition had resisted, my election.

I need not refer to my record to specify what I have been privileged to do in the promotion of the material, moral and social welfare of West Peterborough. My work in this regard, be it little or great, is known to you all. You all know whether or not I have been a faithful servant of the people, whether the Riding is better, and in what respects, from my having been your representative.

I need not be at much pains to define my position in this contest. Everybody knows where I stand—where I am to be found. Such as I have been in the endeavour to advance your interests, I still am, and shall continue to be, if you honour me with re-election.

Apart from the consideration of local—city and county—interests, the national question chiefly involved in this contest is "Reciprocity," or free mutual exchange of natural, mainly farm, products, with the United States. I believe that reciprocity of this kind will be of benefit to the farmers of the country, and through their prosperity to all other interests—manufacturing, financial and commercial, as well as to those of the mechanic and workingman.

The round of benefit is natural. Good crops and good markets mean money for the farmer, which spent with the merchants of all kinds, means increased orders for the manufacturer and increased employment to their workmen. Thus Reciprocity, by affording wider and better markets, promises to be a benefit to the whole country and an injury to no class or interest; and is worth trying, especially as the agreement, not being a treaty, can, if unsatisfactory, be cancelled on reasonable notice.

"If I thought for a moment that it would hurt any important interest, especially the manufacturing interest, I would oppose it. I am neither an extreme free trader, nor an extreme protectionist. I believe in a reasonable amount of both. High tariff in the United States has lost to Canada ninety million dollars in barley alone. The British Preference as it affects our manufacturers goes as far as desirable in the direction of free trade and I am opposed to, and will oppose, any increase of it. I myself am a manufacturer or interested in manufactures, in a modest way, but, at the same time, to an extent important to myself and my associates, and I feel that our industries and working men could not stand the keen manufacturing competition of either Britain or the United States.

In this regard, I am in accord with the assurance of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, speaking for the Government, when he gave this pledge, "WE HAVE NOT HURT THE MANUFACTURERS AND WILL NOT HURT THEM," and I applaud the stand of Mr. Fielding in negotiating the Reciprocity Agreement, in refusing to even discuss reciprocity in manufactured articles with the United States.

If you approve, gentlemen, of what I consider the reasonable stand I take in relation to national interests; if you believe, judging from my past record of service to the Riding, that I have the business capacity, the business and parliamentary experience to continue to give you good service, and justify the confidence I now ask you to again place in me. I presume to claim your support.

This is probably the last appeal I shall make to you; for I think I have done my share of service to this Riding and have thereby earned the opportunity to give the necessary attention to my private affairs. I should have persisted in my desire to be relieved had I not felt in duty bound to defer to the earnest solicitation of the friends who have stood by me in the past, and also of a great many of my former opponents, and consented to be a candidate.

Another reason that influenced my acceptance, was, that being of a business turn, I naturally desired to complete work I have initiated, and for which I am in some degree, if the opportunity is given me, responsible. I should like to see the completion of the large new docks for the City of Peterborough; of the retaining wall on our river front in Peterborough; also a new concrete dam at Nassau erected, and a Rifle Range provided for this important military centre.

Trusting that I may be favoured with your effective support, I have the honour to remain, gentlemen, as I have been for the past twenty-five years,

Your Obedient Servant,

P. B. Stratton

CHALLENGE ISSUED FOR CONSERVATIVE CANDIDATE

Mr. Dennis Dillon Asks Mr. Burnham to Prove Statement That There is a Secret Catholic Vigilance Committee in the Diocese---Offers to Deposit $100 for the Benefit of Charity.

Peterborough, Ont., Aug. 19, '11.
To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Mr. J. H. Burnham made the statement in the Review of yesterday that the Catholic church, by the direction of Pope Pius X has a secret vigilance committee in every diocese. Now I shall urge Mr. Burnham to prove his assertion. If he proves that there is such a committee in this diocese, not to mention others of which he has no knowledge whatsoever, I am willing to deposit $100 with any bank manager in the city, to be given to any charity Mr. Burnham may name, provided he deposits a like sum, to be given to a charity I may name if he fails to do so. I am willing to allow one month from to-day for him to furnish the proofs. His statement is false, and Mr. Burnham is not an imbecile he knows it to be false.

DENNIS DILLON.

Benefits Of Reciprocity Shown By The Story Of Our Exports And Imports

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—It has always been a marvel to intelligent people, how little thinking some otherwise intelligent people do for themselves, with reference to their politics, but the greatest of all marvels is the fact that there are any people in Canada to-day, especially farmers, who appear to be unable to comprehend the great advantage that reciprocity will be to them, and to everybody else in Canada. The question is so simple, that almost any boy can understand it. And with your permission, I desire to direct their thoughts to the following facts:

There is nothing that reveals the real facts, as to the benefits or otherwise of reciprocity, as do the imports and exports of any country. They tell the whole story, and are the only positive revelation upon the subject. The following facts are extracted from the "Report of the Department of Trade and Commerce for the year ending 31st March, 1910."

Imports.

Our imports (purchases) last year from the entire world, including Great Britain, the United States, and all other countries, amounted to $391,525,602, and out of that we purchased from the United States no less than $239,870,849 (almost two-thirds. Thus is appears that, notwithstanding the high tariff walls, and other embargoes erected to prevent it, we climbed up over those walls, paid those high duties, and actually purchased $239,000,000 out of $391,000,000, worth of the goods we required to purchase from countries ogtside of Canada. That manifests in the most positive and conclusive manner, where we purchase our foreign requirements, in spite of all obstructions, and where our best purchasing market is—people do not purchase where it does not pay to do so.

Now let us see where we sell our surplus products.

Exports.

The same year, our exports to the entire world, including Great Britain, the United States and all other countries, amounted to $301,368,[illegible] and out of that sum we exported (all) to the United States no less than $113,-150,778 of it (nearly one-third) also in face of the high tariffs we have against us. That indicates how all cavil, where we sell our surplus products. People do not sell in a market, if they can do better in another market. But let us take another look into this question. As shown above, we sold last year no less than $113,-000,000 (practically one-third of our entire products) to the United States. Now, suppose the United States had put their tariff up so high that it would have been impossible for us to climb over it, (just what it may do if we give them the rebuff a decline their present friendly offer) and had refused to purchase that one hundred and thirteen million dollars' worth from us,—I ask the thoughtful people of this country to consider a moment, what would have been the financial position of Canada, our merchants, manufacturers, yours and everybody else last year under such conditions? What would we to-day? It would be almost impossible to get a dollar from banks or loan companies. Creditors, not having their usual bank accommodation, would be pressing for payment of accounts, because they would be pressed themselves. The fires would be out, only smouldering in our factory stoves. Every business, except the most lender and the bailiff, would be stifled or stagnant, and honest men would be tramping the country in vain for work. These were the conditions before. Do the people want to see such conditions again prevail in Canada? If anybody answers, that if the Americans had not purchased those goods from us, other countries would have done so, I want them to tell me why those other countries did not purchase that $113,000,-000 from us last year, and save us from the necessity of paying the high duties thereon to the American government?

ALBERT HUGHES ARRESTED IN LINDSAY ON CHARGE OF THEFT FROM BOARDING HOUSE

Prisoner Who Hails From Toronto Is Accused of Stealing a Gold Watch and $19 in Cash.

WILL BE BROUGHT HERE

Mr. S. Fleming, a boarder at the home of Mr. John Craig, 380 Stewart street, was the victim of a robbery last night, between six and seven o'clock. The thief is said to be Albert Hughes, and his booty consisted of a valuable watch and $19 in cash, all of which was found on him when he was arrested by Chief Chilton, in Lindsay, this morning. Hughes came from Toronto a couple of days ago. He was brought to the city on the 11.40 train to-day, and will likely appear in the Police Court on Monday.

You surely would not expect your local school to recommend Moon College 30-Day Shorthand.

A QUESTION FOR MR. BURNHAM

Editor Examiner:—

Dear Sir,—Yesterday a thousand copies of the Review contained Mr. Burnham's inflamatory auto-harmony appeals. Now, this costs money, if Mr. Burnham pays for it, and does not merely promise to pay for it.

I wish to inquire if it would not be better, more honest, more business-like for Mr. Burnham to pay the indebtedness at the last election—pay the bills for horse hire, and scrutineers, etc., he promised to pay at his last election, three years ago.

If Mr. Burnham sets himself up as a champion of what he calls "honest government" he should, it seems to me, set the example. He should practice what he preaches.

Yours, etc.,
INQUIRER.

Deer Seen Near Fraserville

Last Thursday Mr. James Latimer of Fraserville, was greatly surprised to see two full-grown deer peacefully strolling across his farm. They came from the south and appeared to be making their way back north, having been driven from that vicinity probably some time previously by smoke, and, probably, by wolves, which are said to abound in thousands, in the north country. Both deer were full grown, with large antlers, and seemed quite tame. They passed the night in a woods near Mr Latimer's home, and, in the morning, were gone, and have not been seen since. These are the first of these animals to be seen in this part of the country for some years.

WORKMAN WAS BURNED

While Working at Manhole on Charlotte St. Earth Fell in on Him and He Had to be Dug Out

WAS NOT HURT

Whilst several workmen were renovating a manhole on Charlotte St. this morning, some of the earth fell in, and covered one of the men to such an extent as to necessitate the help of thespades of his fellow-workmen to assist in his liberation. He was not hurt, however, as luckily the earth was of a light nature and composed partly of sand.

FIRE AT BELLEVILLE

Rally To-night

There will be a Rally Meeting in Mr. Stratton's Committee Rooms this evening, Mr. Stratton and his local supporters will address the meeting from 8 to 9 o'clock.

NEW MAIL BOX

Mr. Stratton is having a street letter box placed at the corner of Thomas and Gilmour streets, that will undoubtedly be found a great convenience to the residents in the neighbourhood.

As Hon. George P. Graham put it at Brockville: "Did you ever hear of the removal of taxation on food increasing the cost of living?"

OLD RESIDENT IS NO MORE

Mr. Thos. Jamieson Who Has Been a Citizen of Peterborough for 41 Years Passes Away

HIGHLY RESPECTED

At 6.30 last evening, Thomas Jamieson passed peacefully away, at the home of his son, Matthew, 286 London street.

The deceased, who was 80 years of age, was born in Ireland in 1833, and came to Canada in 1869, settling in Cavan, and took up the business of shoemaking. He had resided in Peterborough for a period of 41 years, and during that time had become exceedingly popular with all those fortunate enough to know him. He was an ardent member of the Church of England, a Conservative in politics and a staunch Orangeman.

He is survived by a sorrowing wife and two sons, Matthew of Peterborough, and Robert, in the West; and four daughters, Mrs. Tennyson, Mrs. Craig, both of Toronto, Mrs. Mein of Picton, and Mrs. John Keenan of Peterborough. He has also sixteen grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

The funeral will take place to the Little Lake Cemetery, on Monday, at 2.30.

AWARDED CONTRACT

Mr. John Edward Heath has been awarded the contract for the delivery of the mail along the Central Smith rural route. It is expected that the boxes will be placed and the route commenced within the next week. This route will cover twenty-seven miles of territory and will give to West Peterborough, when the other contracts being arranged for are completed, over 300 miles of rural mail delivery.

"THE COUNTY SHERIFF"

"The County Sheriff," an entirely new play this season, produced by O. E. Wee, is the offering at the Grand Opera House on Wednesday night only, Aug. 23rd. This is one of the latest plays from the pen of Lem B. Parker, and is as bright, interesting, witty, quick, dramatic and delightful as anything he has heretofore written. The plot is original, holding one's interest to the very last. There are many amusing situations and interesting scenes. A very elaborate production is utilized and everything that is essential to make the production a complete one is carried.

BIENNIAL CONVENTION OF ANCIENT ORDER FORESTERS

Big Gathering Will Be Held in Peterborough Next Week---Delegates Will be Here from Many Parts of Canada and Session is an Important One---High Court Officers Who Will Attend.

The biennial meeting of the High Court of the Ancient Order of Foresters will be held in the Assembly Hall of the Collegiate Institute here, next week. All the officers will be here by midnight on Sunday, and the meeting of the High Court, itself, will begin on Tuesday, at 10 a.m. On Monday the committees will be elected, and the necessary preparation to proceed with the last two years' business, will be made.

Mr. R. Howie, of Toronto, the Assistant Permanent Secretary, is registered at the Hotel National, and will take part in arranging for the meeting.

The executive officers of the High Court, to be here, are the following:

John Young, High Chief Ranger, Hamilton.

Mr. E. Rancey, High Sub-Chief Ranger, Monteral.

Mr. W. Williams, permanent Secretary, Toronto.

Mr. H. C. Wilson, High Court Treasurer, Toronto.

L. Secord, M.D., High Court Medical Examiner, Brantford.

W. R. Woodstock, High Court Senior Woodward, Toronto.

A. Webber, High Court Junior Woodward, Winnipeg.

C. C. Wightman, Toronto, High Court Senior Beadle.

M. A. Sanders, High Court Junior Beadle, Sarnia.

R. Howie, Toronto, High Court Assistant Permanent Secretary.

All High Court officers for the next two years will be elected the coming week, and other general business will be transacted, but there will be no initiations.

Delegates will be here from Saskatchewan, Alberta, Nova Scotia, Quebec, Ontario, and other places, the farthest away, however, will be Saskatchewan.

The Saskatchewan delegate will represent the British Columbia District and so on.

The following reports will come up for consideration: Executive Councils; High Chief Rangers; High Court Medical Examiners and the Permanent Secretaries.

Each report covers a certain phase of the work, and each report will be discussed and suggestions received. Amendments to the constitution of the Society, in general, will also come up for discussion.

It is anticipated that at least one hundred and fifty members, including the Executive, will be assembled.

On Tuesday night, it is being arranged by the local members, to take the assemblage down the river on a moonlight excursion, and also they will go up over the lift-lock.

It is expected that the business on hand will keep the committees in session until Friday. A report of the business, as it is transacted, will be published.

Novelties On Programme For The Chemong Regatta

The annual regatta, under the auspices of the Chemong Yacht Club, to be held Thursday afternoon, promises to be the most interesting in the history of the Club.

As will be seen by the programme given below, there is a long list of events, a number of which will be found new and exciting. Among the novelties will be a log-rolling contest in which a number of expert "birlers" will take part. Another innovation that should cause a barrel of fun is the live duck race, in which a duck will be turned loose and the contestants will try to capture the bird. The Indian canoe race should be an exciting contest. For some time the Indians have been barred from participating in regattas in this district owing to them being regarded as professionals. As the Indians are crack paddlers a contest between some of the village speed artists should be well worth seeing. There will be a dance in the pavilion in the evening. The 57th Regimental band will provide music in the afternoon and evening. Following is the programme:

1. Canoe Sailing. For open hunting canoes. Sail area limited to 45 feet.
2. Open Sailing Race.
3. Dinghy Race. For Kawartha Lakes Challenge Cup.
4. Boys' Single Canoe, (under 16 years.
5. Ladies' Single Skiff, (with Coxswain.)
7. Men's Single Canoe, (no Racing Boats allowed.)
8. Men's Single Skiff.
9. Mixed Tandem Canoe.
10. Ladies, Swimming.
11. Boys, Swimming (under 16 yr.)
12. Indian Single Canoe.
13. Crab Race.
14. Gunwale Race.
15. Duck Race.
16. Men's Tandem Canoe.
17. Boys' Tandem Canoe, (under 18 years.)
18. Ladies' Tandem.
19. Men's Single Canoe, (open.)
20. Motor Boat Race, (open.)
21. Motor Boat Race, (handicap.)
22. Walking Greasy Plank.
23. Log Rolling Contest.

Yesterday's Results At The Cobourg Horse Show

Throughout the week Cobourg was en fete in honour of the Horse Show. Twenty-five thousand people visited the Show during the four days. The ladies, yesterday, were out in all their splendour, and the stands and grounds were packed and the wonder was where they all came from. The interest in the show itself was maintained, the competition being of the keenest nature until the last. Peterborough horses were shown in two different classes. In the gentleman's appointment class there were four entries, Mr. Stratton's pair "My Pride" and "Premier" taking the red ribbon; Yeager of Simcoe second, and McLean of Brockville, third.

The four-in-hand, near the close of the Exhibition, caused considerable merriment and the horses were put through their facings in great style. On Mr. Stratton's broke were a number of young ladies and gentlemen, which added to the attractiveness of the show. When the ribbons were placed on the Peterborough horses the applause showed that it was a popular win. Mr. Yeager of Simcoe, took second and Mr. McLean of Brockville, third. Mr. Stratton's four consisted of "My Pride" and "Perfect Dream" in the lead, and "Premier" and "Latest News" in the wheel.

There is nothing to prevent Peterborough having just such an exhibition as Cobourg, if the city took a little interest in bringing crowds to the city.

Mr. Stratton's horses will remain in Cobourg for the week, resting up after the severe week, and will go by boat from Cobourg to Toronto, to the Canadian National Exhibition, which opens on August 26th, where they will take their chances with the rest of the world at Canada's greatest fair.

MELDRUM APARTMENTS MODERN IN ALL PARTICULARS

Through the enterprise of Mr. W. H. Meldrum there will shortly be ready for occupancy a new suite of modern apartments, equipped with every convenience, bright, roomy and convenient. Mr. Meldrum has had the building at 368 Water street, formerly used as a bowling alley, converted into a set of four apartments each containing six rooms and has incorporated into the arrangements the best ideas that have been evolved in apartment house construction. Each apartment consists of a living room, a dining-room, a kitchen, a bath-room and two bed-rooms, all finished throughout in hardwood and papered artistically and in good taste. The rooms are all well lighted, each apartment being bright and cheery, with plenty of openings for the sunlight to find a way in, while the ventilation has also been carefully looked after. They will be heated by the individual system; that is, there will be a small boiler in each apartment which will be looked after by the janitor. This arrangement permits each tenant to by the temperature of his rooms acding to his own wishes, an impossibility under the old system. Each apartment will be equipped with sink, a bath-tub and gas stove, while the rooms will, of course, be lit by electricity.

The arrangement of the rooms is particularly content. The kitchen and dining-room connected by an opening in wall, furnished with a sliding door. The kitchen is furnished with cabinet for the dishes, while the dig-room has a neat china cabinet. Adjacent to the bed-rooms are many clothes-closets, while there is commodious pantry convenient each kitchen. The living-room, kitchen and dining-room are twelve by twelve, with high ceiling. Another convenience that will be appreciated is that each suite has front and rear entrance. Something is not always possible in apartments of this kind.

The rooms will be known as the Meldrum Apartments and will be ready for it is expected, by Sept. 1st.

MR. GUTHRIE TO SPEAK AT KEENE

Mr. Kerr's Energetic Campaign—Omemee Supporters of Reciprocity Organizing

Mr. F. D. Kerr, Liberal candidate for East Peterborough, attended an enthusiastic organization meeting of his supporters at Keene last night. He completed arrangements for the holding of a mass meeting, to be held in the Town Hall, Keene, on the evening of August 31st. The meeting will be addressed by Mr. Hugh Guthrie, of Guelph, one of the best public speakers in the Province. Mr. Guthrie has represented South Wellington for some years, and is slated for the position of Minister of Justice in succession to Sir Alan Aylsworth. The electors of Asnabee have a big treat in store them, as Mr. Guthrie's services in great demand throughout the vince during the present campaign.

On Friday night, Mr. Kerr will hold public meeting at Westwood, when public issues of the day will be discussed by the candidate and others.

Miller is arranging for a meeting at Bethesda on Tuesday evening, August 29th.

Reciprocity agreement saves the people from those who would monopolize their food supply.

TO-DAY'S MARKET

The market to-day was largely attended, and a splendid supply of all kinds of produce was on hand. All the produce was high class and was selling at reasonable prices. The following were the prices of the principal products:

Apples—60c. bag or 15c. peck.
Potatoes—$1.60 bag and $1.50 bag.
Pears—40c. peck.
Cob corn —3dos. 25c.
Eggs—20c.

WILL TRAMMEL THE TRUSTS.

The opponents of reciprocity say that reciprocity will put Canada into the hands of the United States trusts. They do not and cannot prove that. At any rate, at present Canada is in the hands of the Canadian combines, which operate to put up and keep up the price of foods, etc., and increase the cost of living.

By providing competition in natural—farm products—reciprocity will draw the teeth of the combines and trusts in both countries.

At any rate the days of the trusts in the United States are drawing to a close. Tariff reduction, beyond the reduction of reciprocity is the policy of the Democratic party, which is now in the majority in the House of Representatives.

With reduced duties the trusts will die as surely as withdrawal of hay and oats will starve a horse. Trusts and combines could not exist without the help of high tariffs, which create or tend to create, monopolies, and permit the fixing of high prices for everything they handle.

THERE IS A LIMIT.

Mr. Burnham, the candidate of a part of the Conservative party in West Peterborough, must be given to understand that there is a limit to the complaisance and good nature of even newspaper publishers.

On Wednesday the Examiner printed, at advertising rates, an article by Mr. Burnham, and made such comment thereon as the circumstances suggested and the facts warranted.

Yesterday, Mr. Burnham sent in what he calls "Mr. Burnham's rejoinder." It is no "rejoinder," because it is a reply to something the Examiner did not charge, or urge, in respect of him.

He says the Examiner's "editorial comment contains the information that I (Mr. Burnham) belong to a society whose members would not vote for a Catholic." The Examiner said nothing of the kind, as can be seen by referring to the comment referred to in Wednesday's Examiner. Mr. Burnham must feel himself pretty guilty when he invents and foists on the Examiner a charge that never was made, and finds it necessary to give "the fullest and flattest contradiction" to an imaginary statement, that his conscience tells him is applicable, if it had been made.

Mr. Burnham, starting with a flat falsehood, trails off into a maudlin rehash of the inflammatory religious attacks he has been making for the past long time.

On Wednesday the Examiner, in excess of good nature, gave space to an article by Mr. Burnham, paid for at advertising rates. But there this sort of nonsense ends. The Examiner declines to be made the medium of promulgating strife-breeding assaults upon any religious body. It is too much to expect of any self-respecting newspaper, to allow itself to be made the medium of a strife-breeding harrangues, which do not constitute an issue in this election contest.

We must positively decline to be a party to promoting the interests of Mr. Burnham's peculiar candidature. The Examiner has given him space for a reply to some statements of Mr. Stratton and there the matter ends. If Mr. Burnham wants to air his hobby let him "hire a hall," or use the columns of the party paper supporting him in his campaign. The Examiner's columns are open to advertising matter, but not to strife-creating stuff that appeals only to bigotted and prejudiced minds. Those men who are using the unwary to promote their own schemes in this campaign should be ashamed of themselves.

BIG CROPS AND LITTLE MARKETS.

The ultra-Imperialists who are now arguing that Canadians should buy and sell within the Empire, almost to the utter exclusion of all other markets, must close their eyes to the facts as they exist, for even a casual observation of these would show the impossibility of their contentions.

The purchasing power of the Mother Country is undoubtedly great in some lines, but it is being grossly exaggerated at present by anti-reciprocity interests, who would actually have us believe that the Old Country markets could handle all the surplus products of the Dominion for all time to come.

England's purchases of food stuffs ten years ago were about the same as they are now, nor are they liable to increase at any remarkable rate. On the other hand, the producing capacity of the Dominion, in excess of our own consumption, is increasing by leaps and bounds. Every year sees thousands of virgin prairie acres are turned into producing units in the great crop of No. 1, Hard. Conservative estimates place this year's crop at 200 million bushels of wheat alone. Equally reliable estimates claim that in five years we will raise between three and four hundred million bushels, and the western country has a way of fulfilling expectations that would lead one to believe that these figures will be realized.

It would require only a very normal amount of foresight to see that the markets with which we are now in touch will be practically useless in five years so far as handling our entire output is concerned. England, should she, to the exclusion of all other grain growers, buy solely from Canada, could consume only 163,000,000 bushels, a figure approximately equal to our present production.

But England is too wise and too old in the business to anchor up to one market. Her market is perhaps more often glutted than any other. What is to become of our great surplus crop five years from now? It is not a matter of sentiment, nor preference; it resolves itself into a matter of absolute necessity. Without an accessible market with a great consuming capacity, our surplus crop would be practically worthless.

The United States, before long, will have arrived at a state where its maximum producing capacity will be reached. Its population, and consequent purchasing powers, are increasinging probably faster than those of any other country.

In 1890 the United States had less than fifty million people. Now, it has over ninety millions. The population is increasing at a rate of almost two million per year. Were it not for the diverting effects of tariff restrictions, the United States would now be our best customer.

Even if this market were now to be opened to the world, we could compete successfully with all comers, our location making the United States our logical and most easily accessible market.

It is certain that the legislation, for ratification of which the Liberals are appealing to the country, providing us entrance to the market we have wanted for years, has been brought about by an adequate appreciation of our producing powers, on the part of the present administration.

If we refuse these larger markets now, we may wait many a long year before we are again offered access to them on such favourable terms.—Guelph Mercury.

WHERE THE WORKINGMAN DOESN'T COUNT.

That is the economic philosophy of loose thinkers like the Borden, Mr. Bourassa and other opponents of reciprocity. The loyalty of the leader and the party which opposed the British Preference, a loyal evidence of gratuitous devotion to the mother country presented—not bargained for—by the "traitorous" Sir Wilfrid Laurier, allies at reciprocity as a blow to the British constitution, and British connection.

With no more warrant than the desire to make a point, they quote President Taft—how fond these patriots who won't sell onions and cabbage to Uncle Sam, are of quoting Yankee authorities in this contest—to show that he dreads that Imperial preference will be prevented by reciprocity.

But it won't need reciprocity to give the black eye to the Imperial preference idea. The British working man decidedly objects to what Mr. Borden is concerned about — Chamberlainism, which involves taxing the poor man's loaf—taxing food stuffs. Of course a preference is given the British Dominions over other countries, but still it is a tax on food, which neither the British workingman nor any other Briton except the tariff reformers will stand for.

Recently a vote was taken in England among the members of the Trades and Labour Congress on placing a tax on bread stuffs, involved in the policy Mr. Borden and the other champions of the privileged interests are advocating.

The result of the vote shows that the British working man won't have his loaf taxed. For Chamberlainism, Bordenism, and in other words, a tax on foodstuffs, 23,000 deluded working men voted, and 1,290,000 against the Imperial preference principle, involving a tax on foods.

Tariff and taxation never made a country rich or its people prosperous.

The magnificent progress and riotous prosperity of Canada and Canadians, since the Liberal government came into power, was induced by the removal or lessening of taxation.. The duty was lessened or removed from the raw material used by manufacturers. They were benefitted and their workmen shared the benefit.

That's a case where removal of duty brought prosperity to manufacturers and their employees.

The removal of duty on food products passing between the United States and Canada is just the principle the British working man is bound to hold.

Reciprocity removes the duty from farm products only, in the interests of the every-day people, of the consumer who feels the high price of food and the high cost of living, more than the millionaire and the financier, who could buy a bushel of hot house peaches at $5 and feel it less than the poorer consumer would a box of imported strawberries at 25 cents.

Remember that the Imperial Preference that Taft talks about, doesn't exist, only in the minds of some hopelessly beaten British tariff reformers. The mass of the people are against it. It involves taxation of food which the British people never will vote for. In the advocacy of Imperial preference, the working man doesn't count.

MEN WHO THINK FOR THEMSELVES.

It is gratifying to find that some of our Canadian manufacturers are ready to stand up and declare themselves out of sympathy with the idea that the manufacturer dare not let the farmer have his turn.

At Brockville the other day, at the convention which nominated Mon. George P. Graham, two manufacturers were on the platform to support the tariff agreement. One of them, Mr. Hall, the actual head of a glove manufactory, put the case very plainly:

"I have given the matter of this reciprocity agreement a great deal of thought, and I have found that there is nothing in it except benefit to the people of Canada. I cannot understand how manufacturers can take any other position. This agreement in no sense injures any of us, and cannot fail to be a big thing to the farmers and artisans. I desire to put myself on record as a magufacturer in complete accord with the reciprocity agreement, and am glad indeed that the farmers are to have this opportunity to secure better returns for their labours.

"Nothing has been done to interfere with the manufacturers, and we will be well advised to attend to our business. I am a director in one lumber company in Quebec, and in another in British Columbia, and I know that reciprocity will benefit both. I cannot see why any manufacturers have been induced to take a stand against it."

That is a fair, sensible, considerate statement of the position. The farmer gets his turn and the manufacturer is kept secure in his position. For his refusal to live up to the scheme arranged long ago by Sir John Macdonald he has not even the excuse that to help the farmer he has to bear some hurt himself. His only reasoning is, as witness the recent speech by Mr. Ames, that if he does the decent thing by the farmer now the farmer will afterwards turn and rend him.

Nothing in the whole history of Canada affords the slightest justification for that view. The farmer has been generous in the past, he is not going to turn ingrate in the future.

The other manufacturer who spoke at the Graham nomination was Mr. John Gill, president and general manager of the James Smart Manufacturing Company, the largest industry in Brockville, and one of the largest hardware and edged tool manufactories in Eastern Ontario, who rose at the beginning of the convention to place on record his hearty endorsation of the reciprocity agreement. He held that larger and freer markets in natural products must improve trade conditions generally and direct benefit must accrue therefrom. Mr. Gill deprecated the suggestion that the opportunity for increased prosperity would weaken in any way Canadian fidelity to Britain.

These manufacturers, rubbing shoulders with the farmers more than some do who live in larger cities, keep their heads better. Their example should set others thinking.

If the manufacturers do not think reciprocity will injure them, then their employees have no need for the fear that interested politicians are trying to pump into them.

Reciprocity Agreement Will Not Hurt Manufacturers

J. B. Tudhope Says He is in a Syndicate Which Has Already Laid the Foundations for a Farming Implement Factory in Orillia to Cost $400,000

J. B. Tudhope, M.P.P., himself a manufacturer on a large scale, speaking at the Liberal nomination meeting in Orillia yesterday, gave an illustration of how little he feared reciprocity as affecting manufacturers. He said he was sure the reciprocity agreement was going into effect, and one of the very few industries it would touch, and touch perhaps the heaviest, would be the manufacture of farm implements and machinery. Knowing this, he with others had just formed a company for the manufacture of farming implements in Orillia, and if the gentlemen present cared to walk to the foot of West street they would see being laid the foundation of a factory building that would cost upwards of $400,000. The manufacturers were not going to be hurt; they only thought so, and the farmer and consumer were going to be immeasurably benefitted.

Mr. Tudhope is president of the Carriage Factories, Limited, and president of the Tudhope Motor and Carriage Companies.

BRITISH WORKINGMEN WANT NO TAX ON THEIR BREADSTUFFS

Did anyone ever hear of the cost of living being increased by the removal of the tax from food?"—George P. Graham, at the Brockville Convention.

A vote was taken recently in England among the members of the Trades and Labour Congress, on the question of placing a duty on bread stuffs. Twenty-three thousand (23,000) voted 'yes,' and one million two hundred thousand (1,200,000) voted "No." The wage earner of the Old Land knows that putting a duty on bread stuffs would increase the cost of living.

We have such a duty in Canada, and the wage earner here knows that if we take that duty off, it will lessen the cost of living.

The proposed agreement between Canada and the United States will give the ordinary man a chance to get full value for his daily labour. It will make him more prosperous, and more contented with his lot.

Canada last year had a trade of $400,000,000 with the United States, without any signs of disloyalty.

No matter what that trade might be, large or small, Canadians are first, last and all the time, and will ever delight to remain, subjects of the King.

THE SPIRIT OF THE ROSE-WALK

The Examiner is pleased to publish to-day the following short story written for its columns by Miss Phyllis Flowers-Atkey, a fourteen year old Peterborough girl:

Chap. I.—The Story.

Marion Heatherton had spent the greater part of her life at a boarding school. Her parents had died when she was an infant, and though her grandfather was her guardian, he did not wish to have his quiet life disturbed by a child. But at the age of eighteen, he had removed her from school to his old country home in Cornwall. It was an old-fashioned building, surrounded with ivy-covered walls, which enclosed a beautiful garden. One of its chief features was the Rose-walk running along the side of the house. There was, however, a strange story attached to it, and the servants or villagers would not venture near it after dark. Marion, having heard snatches of this story, and one day as she walked in the garden, she came across old John, the gardener, whose father and grandfather before him, had filled the position of gardener at Heatherton Hall. Full of curiosity, Marion asked him to tell her the story. Taking his pipe out of his mouth, he said: "It is a strange story, and every time the Spirit Lady has been seen walking in the Rose-walk, it has proved an omen of death. Once, long ago, she was seen by the mistress of the house, who was out walking in the garden alone. The spirit spoke, asking her to bring something for her or a curse should fall on one of her family. But the lady was frightened and ran into the house. Even as she told her husband what she had seen, a cry was heard from the nursery, and on rushing upstairs, they found their little child laying dead. The nurse said she could not imagine the cause of the little one's death, as it had been in perfect health when she had put it to bed.

"It was seen once again afterwards, this time by the oldest son. He, too, was frightened and rushed in without hearing the spirit's words. Next morning, his father was found dead in his bed." The old man concluded in an awed whisper.

"And if they had listened to her words, the curse would not have fallen, would it?" said Marion.

"No, it would not," he replied; "but, take my word for it, Miss, there's not many a person who would stand and listen to a spirit talking."

Chap. II.—The Spirit Lady.

It was a warm, June night when Marion, she couldn't have told why, sat up in bed. The moonlight shone into the room brightly. She could see the garden from where she lay, and she felt as if she must go out. It was beautifully warm, so that she could not catch cold, and before she had time to re-consider it, she had slipped on a coat and slippers and had run out into the garden by the back-door. The perfumed air was soft and warm, and the roses smelled sweet. She was just standing fingering one coral-tipped bud, when something made her look up. A shiver of horror ran through her frame. Standing before her, clad in long white draperies, was the Spirit of the Rose-walk. One slender arm was outstretched and the fore-finger pointing at her. A pair of clear, glassy, gray eyes gazed unflinchingly at her.

Just in time, she remembered the fate of the others who had fled from the spirit's words, as she stood there, the marble-like lips moved. Trembling with fear, Marion listened to the spirit's words:

"Go, do my bidding. Bring me the letters hidden in a secret panel in the hall. Do not fail me. I have come before seeking my own. Do thou my bidding, or the curse shall fall."

Slowly, Marion stepped indoors and, fumbling about in the dark, wondered where she could seek the letters. For a moment she hesitated, but for a moment only. Some irresistible force compelled her to raise her eyes to the window. Two bright, mystic, gray eyes gazed at her and a voice said, "Act, act or the curse shall fall!"

Thrilled with fear, she sought and sought the secret panel. Call she could not, and to fetch some one would be to bring down the curse of the Heathertons upon the unsuspecting head of her grandfather. All the time, she stumbled about in the dark, the words of the spirit rang in her ears, "Act, act, or the curse shall fall!"

At last, at last, the heavy oak wall gave to her touch. A tiny panel sprung open. Marion thrust her hand forward, and sure enough there were the letters. Hastily she drew them out, and holding them up to the moonlight, she saw that they were yellow with age. With trembling limbs, she crossed the hall and went out of the door. The spirit stood there as before. The white hand extended to take the letters. As their fingers met, Marion felt an icy chill run through her whole system. With one long, last look, the spirit lady turned and glided softly away among the roses.

This is the story of the spirit lady of the Rose-walk. Never again was she seen in person, but it is said that on warm nights, when the roses bloom the faint outline of the white face, and the wonderful luminous gray eyes may be seen hovering softly about among the roses.

THE FAMILY HEARTH

Don't let all the sunshine in nature become cloudy since you are growing older.

The strength of a nation is in the intelligent and well-ordered homes of the people.

No one is useless in this world who lightens the burdens of it for another.

How much of your success do you owe to your wife? It is only just to own this fact before her day by day. It will make her happy and keep her youthful.

He is a selfish being who having trouble in his trade or calling or profession, always brings his trouble home for the purpose of making every one else miserable.

Unkind words do as much harm as unkind deeds. Many a heart has been wounded beyond cure, many a reputation been stabbed to death, by a few little words.

The past is fixed. No tears can wash away its facts. We should the wisdom of its very sins have waste no regrets upon it; but, from taught us, we should start afresh on the race.

Let the path of life start whence it may, and let the way be steep and thorny if it must, there are sunny fields far up the heights for those who have faith and resolution to climb them.

Let the conversation at the table always be bright and cheerful. And just here, let us say, cultivate an excellent deportment at the table always, for however polished you may be, if your table manners are neglected they will surely betray you. Let each member of the household do as in his or her power to make home the brightest and happiest place on earth

The truest and most respected of all neighbours, is the one who always speaks well of everybody, who devotes the largest share of her energies to her own affairs, is chary of administering unsolicited advice and who always waits until her social and useful capacities are requested, and never renders herself officious even in her most sanguine efforts at proving to be a good neighbour.

With the exercise of much patience the model parent will gain the love and obedience of the child without harshness, or what some one has designated "physical persuasion," and instead of trying to beat goodness into children will make their natural tendencies and possibilities the subject and gentleness, so train them as to secure a harmonious development, physical, mental and moral, the normal activities will be directed into laudable channels and a desire created to do what is required.

Though you may be cut off from your early associates, and though you may be separated from all your kindred, young man, is there not a room somewhere that you can call your own? Though it be the fourth story of a third class boarding house, into that room gather books, pictures and a harp. Hang your mother's portrait over the mantle. Bid unholy mirth stand back from that threshold. Consecrate some spot in that room with the knee of prayer. By the memory of other days, a father's counsel, a mother's love, and a sister's confidence, call it home.

The busy man must have some pleasure, some recreation, some relaxation. He ought not to have it on the street with gossiping chatterers, or at the gambling table with the dissolute or wanton. He ought to find it at home. He ought to do something in which his family could have a part. It ought to be pure, elevating stimulating. The man that is so considerate and equipoised, that will make this matter no secondary affair, but give it the best thought of his life, will make a better man, a moral citizen, more considerate husband, more loving father. He will find his family ties strengthened, so that as his children grow to manhood and womanhood, no place will be so attractive to them as the fireside at home.

A girl who is brought up to earn her own living never will "just settle down to nothing." She will understand the value of money, having earned it, and can give her husband wise counsel and sympathy in his business difficulties. She can take entire charge of the money expended for the house and do it in such a business-like way that will give her husband infinite satisfaction. She can earn a little something for herself, perhaps, and at least she will have the comfort of knowing that whatever happens, she will fall on her feet.

There are men defeated in life because they have at home an unsympathetic or unconcenial wife. And many a man has passed safely through a financial crisis because he knew that at home was a cheerful, sympathetic woman who was thinking of him all the day long, and would be ready and willing, if worse came to worse, to give up her handsome house, take a room in a back street and play the "Song of the Shirt" on a sewing machine.

In a world where God lets the sunshine, the birds sing and the flowers make happy love to each other, man should not be the only unpleasant subject.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON QUESTIONS

Jeremiah Cast into Prison. Jer. xxxvii.

Golden Text—Blessed are ye, when men shall reville you, and persecute you, and say all manner of evil against you falsely, for my sake. Matt. v:11.

1. Verses 1-2—When sin is working wreck and ruin, how do you explain that men keep on in their disobedience to God, as Zedekiah did?

2. How did Zedekiah become King of Judah?

3. What, if any relation was Zedekiah to the king of Babylon? (See 2 Kings xxiv:17.)

(4) What makes people disregard one whom they believe to be a true prophet, as many of these Jews did Jeremiah?

5. Verses 3-4—Jerusalem was now besieged with a powerful army, and Zedekiah in fear sent to ask Jeremiah to pray to God for them; was there merit or demerit, in this request from such a man? Why?

6. Does God answer the prayers of the wicked for the success of their projects, or the prayers of good people in their behalf?

7. How should a man be treated who is constantly pointing out national sins, and forecasting their disastrous consequences? Is he a traitor or a patriot?

8. Verses 5-10—Zedekiah, in spite of his oath to the king of Babylon, had rebelled against him, and made a league with the king of Egypt; what did God say through Jeremiah should be the result?

9. What is the demerit of the sin to break an oath or betray a trust?

10. What reason is there to believe that there comes a time, in the life of an individual, when his fate is sealed and his doom certain?

11. Verse 11—The Chaldean king of Babylon raised the siege of Jerusalem, so that Pharaoh's army of relief returned to Egypt, possibly driven back by the Chaldeans. This gave Jerusalem a short respite. What should the wicked do while God withholds his judgments?

12. Verses 12-14—What was the probable object of Jeremiah in leaving Jerusalem, now he had the opportunity?

13. Was there any ground at all for accusing Jeremiah of being a traitor (See chap. 39.)

(14) Which is generally the worse, "a lie out of whole cloth" or one based upon facts perverted?

15. Verses 15-16—Why, in view of God's almighty power, does He permit His servants to suffer for their very faithfulness?

16. Verse 17—Likely by this time the Chaldean army had re-invested the city, and then Zedekiah the king sets Jeremiah out of prison to consult him. Is it a usual thing for bad men when in prosperity to reject good people, and when in adversity consult them, or ask their prayers? Give your reasons.

17. Jeremiah told the king the blunt truth. Why should we always do that with sinners?

18. Verses 18-21—Does a good man ever get where he may not suffer hunger, cold, or other bodily discomforts as do other men? (This is one of the questions that may be answered in writing by members of the club).

Mental Cruelty

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 19.—Mental and not physical cruelty is what makes married life intolerable, according to Judge Church, who granted Rose McDermott a divorce from Maude McDermott.

McDermott was left a widower in 1898 with three young children—one a girl aged three, another eleven and a boy seven years of age. The task to care for his little ones and attend his work proving too much for him, he advertised for a housekeeper. He was residing at the time in Pueblo Colo. In answer to his advertisement Mrs. Maude Truscott, who had a daughter seven years old, applied for the place. She was employed and was so successful in conducting the house that three days later McDermott married her.

Three months after his marriage McDermott left his wife, taking his children, and came to Los Angeles to reside. He never has heard from his wife since.

Immediately after the marriage Mrs. McDermott, according to the evidence, insisted upon bringing a large bulldog, trained to fight for prizes, to the home. From that day she terrorized the family with it.

The small stepson seemed to be the bride's particular aversion. She attempted to drive him from home. On one occasion McDermott had to risk his life to save his son from the bulldog which his wife had set upon him. The child was near death at the time of the rescue. On another occasion she drove the boy from his home and threatened to horsewhip him. The police found the child wandering the streets in the middle of the winter without shoes or stockings and with very few clothes on.

Again, when the boy had been driven from the house, the father went to find him. When he attempted to gain admittance later she, with a loaded gun aimed at him, ordered him from the place.

On numerous occasions, the plaintiff alleged, his wife had threatened to kill him, and she always carried a loaded revolver with her.

The Court enquired why he did not take the gun away from her.

"She was a powerful woman," replied the witness, "much stronger than I, and I will admit that I was scared to death of her."

MONARCH KNIT

SINCE Eve turned dressmaker no garments have had the vogue of "Monarch Knit." For lounging coats and sweaters—the correct costume for motoring on land or water, or camping in comfort in the cool of a summer night, "Monarch Knit" is par excellence.

Your Merchant will tell you exactly why "Monarch Knit" coats and sweaters are superior—tell you far more emphatically than we'd care to do over our name. He's wise enough to know that a pleased customer is the best advertisement for his store—

Wise enough to know that once you are pleased more than a few of your friends will be calling around. Our aims and his are identical.

HOTEL HERMIT DEAD

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 19.—Major William Arthur Phipps, multi-millionaire, who claimed to be a cousin of Henry Phipps, the steel magnate, and who for four years has lived the life of a hermit in apartments at the Van Nuys Hotel, is dead.

"Major" Phipps was the most eccentric millionaire in the south-west, perhaps in America. His strange manner of life and the mystery and seclusion with which he surrounded himself made him conspicuous in the hotel, where he used every means to keep his presence a secret.

He began his career as a reporter for a newspaper in Calumet, Mich., and while in that city bought stock in a development company, which had mining interests in Arizona. This made him a millionaire, and when the merger in steel took place he bought all the stock he could get hold of in the small companies, which, it is said, brought his wealth up to $40,000,000.

After having spent some time in Florida, he came to this city, engaged seven rooms at the Van Nuys, and immediately began living the life of a hermit. He left the hotel only twice up to the day of his death.

In his apartments were thirty large, ample trunks filled with clothes, but during the time he lived there he wore pyjamas only. Every day he bathed fifty times and he used seventy-five bath towels, fifty face towels, and seventy napkins.

In the bar-room of the hotel there was a standing order for eighteen bottles of Bass ale and three quarts of whiskey to be delivered to him daily, which he consumed.

On the two occasions that he left his rooms it is not known where he went. He first sent his valet downstairs to see if "the coast was clear," and then made a hurried exit from the hotel into a taxi-cab.

THERE was a fair singer named Gertie,
Whose shoes looked invariably dirty;
One night e'er her solo,
She shined them with POLO;
Her mother said, "Gertie, how purty!"

RECIPROCITY AND THE WORKINGMAN

A Dialogue in Two Chapters in Which John Hodges Argues With the Liberal Canvasser and Takes a Lot of Convincing.

CHAPTER II.

The first chapter of this story appeared in the Examiner of Aug. 10.

The first chapter of this story, following the approved method of serial story writers, broke off just at the most interesting point.

When the Liberal Canvasser first began to talk reciprocity to John Hodges, John shook his head. He couldn't quite see it. When the story left him John was almost nodding assent. The cumulative effect of the arguments, worded as neatly as the Liberal Canvasser could put them, was beginning to tell.

John had listened in turn to the reasoning that reciprocity must be a good thing, because both political parties [illegible] this had wanted it all their lives, because the easy money the Canadian farmer got abroad meant shading prices to the consumer at home, because it would have a tendency to break up food monopolies in Canada by making the market too wide for any food trust to swing, because the farmer's prosperity is everybody else's prosperity, because the constant interchange of seasons over a continent, including all the climates, would lend cheapness and variety to his table. But John, while admitting the force of all these arguments, objected to them as too general, and asked the Liberal Canvasser to get down to brass tacks, which the Liberal Canvasser promised to do. We take up the conversation from that point.

L. C.—The farmers of Canada constitute seventy per cent. of the population, and they sell 80 per cent. of their product at home and 20 per cent. of it outside the country.

J. H.—Well, what is there in those figures for me?

L. C.—Well, the farmer is not the average consumer in the same sense that you are the average consumer. In fact, you can hardly call him a consumer at all. He is a producer. One of the differences between him and you is that he grows what he eats and you eat what he grows. In the cash benefit of the reduced cost of living the farmer does not share. It's the thirty per cent. of the population which doesn't produce things to eat that reaps that particular advantage. You can easily see that the food value of food as food remains the same to the farmer, whatever the price may be. He eats the same quantity and gets the same strength out of it and his body.

J. H.—Where does the [illegible] argument lead? Put it in figures, so I can get hold of the idea.

L. C.—Easy enough. Reciprocity gives 70 per cent. of the population of Canada—that is to say, the farmer—the selling benefit of a wider market, and 30 per cent. of the population, the average consumer, the buying benefit of the same market.

J. H.—How about that 20 per cent. the Canadian farmer sells outside the country?

L. C.—Well, that fifth just about fixes prices at home. The more the Canadian farmer can get for his products the cheaper he can afford to sell here at home.

J. H.—Yes, if it's in human nature to let the other fellow off when you are getting it easy yourself.

L. C.—Remember, John, what I told you before. The consumer will be indebted to no man's mercy. Competition will check the tendency of the producer to absorb all the advantage for himself and give the economic forces that make for cheaper living a chance to work out. I would be disposed to say that that 20 per cent. sold abroad just about represents the reduction reciprocity will bring about in the cost of living within a reasonably short time.

J. H.—I hear a lot of talk about the most-favored-nation treaty. The anti-reciprocity people seem to think it is a bad thing. Is it going to hurt me?

L. C.—The most-favored-nation treaties are certain commercial treaties, ranging from 1860 to 1906, some of them negotiated by Great Britain without consulting Canada, and others after consulting Canada, by which we are obliged to grant to twelve foreign nations the concessions we have made to the United States, although they do not concede to us the reciprocity the United States offer us. These treaties, you will observe, were made by Great Britain [illegible] They are the result [illegible] for Canada ship in the [illegible] of our membership [illegible] British Empire, a membership we are proud of and will cling to in spite of any little trade matters. The Burnham supporters argue that we are going to be disloyal by doing for ourselves with the United States what Great Britain has already done for us with twelve other nations. In other words, we can't be trusted to mind our own business and we need a guardian when making a bargain. Boiled down, their argument is that what England does for us in the way of trade concessions is bad for England when we do it for ourselves. They don't care for consistency so long as they can make a point against reciprocity, and in favor of the middleman and food monopoliser who stand between the working man and a cheap market.

J. H.—Well, if these favored nation treaties are not a bad thing, where's the kick? I notice you Liberals don't favor them.

L. C.—The kick is just this. They're jug handle treaties. We give these foreign countries trade concessions, but unlike the United States, they give us no trade concessions in return. That is why we are getting out of them as fast as we can, having them "denounced"—the technical word for cancelled—or discontinued as they fall in. The Laurier Government wants no commercial treaty that doesn't benefit everybody. The favored nations give the producer a selling benefit in our market, but deny him a selling benefit in theirs.

J. H.—Well, that doesn't hurt me. I'm a consumer.

L. C.—Quite right, John. Any temporary benefit there is in the favored-nation treaties is a buying benefit, a consumer's benefit. Competition can't injure the consumer. It won't hurt you, for instance, to enjoy, if only for a little while, cheap live stock, chilled meat, and dairy products from Australia and New Zealand, especially as these are British countries, our own brothers, so to speak.

J. H.—Let's get a little nearer home. How is reciprocity with the United States going to affect my three meals a day?

es L. C.—What do you have for breakfast, John?

J. H.—Well, I like to begin with an apple. It's tasty and it's good for the stomach. I haven't been able to get any good apples lately.

L. C.—No, nor anybody else. The commission men take good care to send the choice fruit to England, where the apples are wrapped in tissue paper and sold like oranges in Covent Garden. William Manley German and George E. Foster belong to an apple company which proposes to do that very thing. That's one reason why they knock reciprocity, because it would give the Canadian market a supply of cheap, good apples, and not scrubs as at present. If you get a greening or a Northern Spy nowadays it's a cold storage one that comes out of the hiding place the commission man has been keeping it in about Christmas time, when it brings about two cents each. And it's mostly bad at that, the cold storage having taken all the flavour and fibre out of it. Reciprocity will do a lot to solve your apple problem. What do you eat after your apple?

J. H.—Porridge or breakfast food of some sort.

L. C.—Well, reciprocity gives you a cut of a cent a pound on the materials of your porridge and 2½ per cent. on your cereal breakfast foods.

J. H.—What about eggs? I generally have an egg of a morning.

L. C.—What's your idea, John, about the egg problem?

J. H.—My idea is that more people are eating eggs than are laying them.

L. C.—Perhaps. But that's only half the trouble. The other half is the commission man. He sets the price the farmers get; he also sets the retail price of eggs. And he adds to the price the cost of candling, cold storage and of waste, which is about one in eighteen. What you and I want is an egg that has not lost its innocence—fresh eggs, in fact. Cold storage eggs are dear at any price, far too many of them are sold. Reciprocity should give us a plentiful supply of reasonably cheap, good, fresh eggs all the year round. The Produce Exchange has already set up a great [illegible] about cheap Yankee eggs. It's not the poor farmer they're thinking of, nor the consumer either. It's themselves. It's the competition in southern eggs that they're afraid of.

J. H.—I suppose it's too much to ask you to go through the whole list, but does reciprocity act that way all through?

L. C.—Practically so. There isn't a thing, fro mthe milk in your coffee and the flour in your bread to the bit of cheese you top off your dinner with, that shouldn't be cheaper under the new conditions. The whole arrangement between the two countries proceeds on the assumption that the wider market will be to the advantage both of producer and consumer, by eliminating many of the unnecessary profits collected in between.

J. H.—Well, my cheap breakfast has put me wise. I'll vote the right way some day I'll take you over my other [illegible] if you'll be so kind.

L. C.—Happy to do it, John. I've just touched a few of the spots in our little talk. I'll leave two specially prepared statistical tables for you to read, and after that I doubt if you'll need any more arguments. The figures will speak for themselves. Here they are:

TABLE A.

The Free List.—This table includes what may be called the raw material of the working man's meals—the cattle, sheep and swine on the hoof, the grains that become flour and meal, the fresh fruits, the fish, fresh and cured, the butter, milk, eggs, honey, cheese, and oysters. Canned salmon and lobsters are the only prepared foods in this list:

ARTICLES	PROPOSED RECIPROCAL RATE OF DUTY	—REDUCTIONS IN DUTY— BY UNITED STATES	BY CANADA

Oysters in bulk	Free	None	10c a gallon
Oysters in cans	Free	None	4c a can (aver.)
Lobsters, alive or canned	Free	None	27 p. c. (aver.)

TABLE B.

The Reduced Duty List.—This table includes canned meats, poultry and vegetables, also meats dressed for the market and ready for cooking, oatmeal, cornmeal and prepared cereal foods. It contains a few articles of diet, like maple syrup and pickles, which in this country of generous living are half-way between luxuries and necessities.

ARTICLES	PROPOSED RECIPROCAL RATE OF DUTY	—REDUCTIONS IN DUTY— BY UNITED STATES	BY CANADA
Mutton and Lamb, fresh	1½c a lb.	½c a lb.	1½c a lb.
Other fresh meats	1½c a lb.	½c a lb.	1½c a lb.
Bacon and Hams	1½c a lb.	2½c a lb.	½c a lb
Beef, pork and other meats, dried, smoked, salted, pickled or barreled	1½c a lb.	½c a lb.	½c a lb.
Canned Meats and Poultry	25 p.c	5 per cent.	7½ per cent.

Map. Sugar & Map. Syrup	1c a lb	3c a lb.	1c a lb.
Pickles, Sauces & Catsups	33⅓ p.c.	7½ per cent.	2½ per cent.

John Hodges is already indebted for cheap English woollens to the British preference, which is a gift of the Laurier Government, and reciprocity is going to take care of him further, in the matter of cheaper lumber and building material for his house, but these two tables deal with his most pressing necessity—cheaper food for himself and family.

These tables do not show the comparative prices of food in Canada and the United States, nor the beneficial effect on the cost of living that may be expected from intelligent and reasonable competition in a market too big for any food trust to swing, nor yet the effect which a wider market, by increasing the demand, will have on increasing the supply.

A source of food supply almost as large and as wide as the American continent means that we have all the seasons all the year round. This will lend variety and cheapness to the working man's table. No article of food can be a luxury when it is never out of season. Asparagus may be ten cents a stalk and strawberries fifty cents a box when they are out of season, but they have only luxuries when they are dear. There will be very few food luxuries under reciprocity. With the customs duties lifted on both sides, and the farmer and fisherman stimulated to increased production by an unhampered market food will be plentiful and cheap. This is the great ultimate blessing of reciprocity.

These tables show the removals and reductions of duty by both countries which are calculated to set in motion the great economic forces which are to cut down the cost of living. The removal or lessening of the food duties should be to the average consumer what taking a pound or two off his handicap is to the horse in a long race. Among other things the tables show:

(1) That Canada got the best of the bargain. The United States, having a higher general tariff, had to make greater tariff sacrifices.

(2) That the food taxes saved are intended as a cut to that extent in the cost of living.

(3) That, wherever the United States makes a larger tariff sacrifice on any article, the difference between that and the Canadian reduction in duty is a clear additional gain to the consumer.

(4) That the aggregate savings in customs duties remitted by both countries must amount to millions of dollars. This is in the nature of immediate relief. Take this burden off the cost of living and prices are bound to respond.

These two tables are tables in a double sense of the word. They are tables because they contain figures, and they are also tables on which are spread some sixty general elements of diet, from which John Hodges will select his three bountiful meals a day.

PARALYZED LIMBS

To-day it is dizziness, headaches, digestive trouble, and irritability. Next thing you know some form of paralysis has developed. Mr. Alex. Hemmerger, 10 Moore Street, St. Catharines, Ont., writes: "Nervous trouble developed into paralysis of the limbs so that I became helpless. Doctors failed me, but after using ten boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I recommend work, and now feel better than I did for 10 years."

POWER PLANT CRIPPLED

Lindsay was without electric power from three o'clock until seven in the evening, as a result of an accident, in which a Hamilton Bridge Co's derrick completely demolished part of the power company's line and completely put it out of business. A gang of men worked all night and succeeded in getting things in order again.

IRISHMAN FOUGHT THE ENGLISHMAN

An Irishman and an Englishman charged with being drunk and swearing on Kent street last night, appeared before Magistrate Jackson this morning. The Irishman pleaded guilty, stating that he was working for a farmer a short distance out of town. He was assessed $2.00 and costs, which he appeared to think was high, as he is over the county could keep him for a month.

The Englishman pleaded guilty, stating that he had come from Peterborough and that he had no money and no settled home. The magistrate imposed the same penalty, $3 or a month in jail. He will be given twenty-four hours to get out of town when his visit to Castle Jackson has expired.

YOU CAN HAVE HEALTHY HAIR

Use Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur.
A Harmless Remedy That Makes the Hair Grow.

What a pity it is to observe so many people with thin and faded hair and then realize that the most of these people might have a fine, healthy head of hair if they would but use the simple "sage tea" of our grandmothers, combined with other ingredients for restoring and preserving the hair. No one, young or old, need have gray hair, weak, thin or falling hair, dandruff or any trouble of the sort if they would but use Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy. On the contrary, it is possible to have healthy, vigorous hair, of perfect color, by a few applications of this remarkable preparation.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy quickly removes dandruff, leaves the scalp clean and healthy, promotes the growth of the hair and restores the natural color of the hair which has become faded or gray. It is a clean, wholesome dressing, which may be used at any time and with perfect safety. Don't neglect your hair. Start today with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.

KIT'S COLUMN

Do you ever hear "the horns of Elfland faintly blowing" in your garden of summer nights? To lie in the hammock after dark and listen to the fairy orchestra playing in the grass, among the low shrubs, or the cucumber vine that hides the old board fence, is no poor way of passing an hour in the starlight. How do they make their fairy music, the crickets and grasshoppers and hyloes? Perhaps their small bodies are little musical instruments, bugles and harps and fiddles, and they talk to the night and to one another in musical numbers. When the grasshopper wishes to hail a comrade or talk to the chap on the other side of the fence, he rubs his thigh against his forewing and fiddles out his message. For, if you catch the sprightly fellow and hold him for a second under your magnifying glass you will find a ridge of very fine teeth which are the strings against which he bows with his wings. Once, hidden in a bunch of common garden flowers a couple of the small chaps came in, and made music in a darkened room for one whole evening. They may have been crickets, or locusts, or little hay-hoppers, but they may fairy music "sweetly-shrill" and blew their elfin horns with a will. The loudest players are the locusts, which often make the woods resound with their calls. Sometimes all are playing or chattering at once; then comes a lull and a solitary singer takes up the melody, and one by one joins in again until a volume of sounds will blend and fill the air.

If the grasshopper is first violin the locust is a drummer. The base of his interior wing is transparent, forming a regular drum on which he drums incessantly. The cicada also drums, while the katydid plays his 'cello by rubbing the inner surface of his tiny hind legs against the outside of his front wings.

When the cricket on the hearth (don't kill him or you will bring bad luck) sings his cheery song, he does it by raising his forewings and scraping them against his hind ones. In Japan they make an industry of breeding musical insects and they sell their little "horns of Elfland" at quite a good profit. That delightful Japanese Irishman, Lafcadio Hearn—whose death is such a loss to literature—tells us in his "Exotics and Retrospectives," that this trade has been in existence since the past two centuries. There are twelve varieties of musical insects sold in Tokio, nine of which can be artificially bred. The pine insect, which haunts the pine woods and makes silver music at night—the Japanese describe it as "chin-chirorin, chin-chirorin"—is a little dark brown chap with a golden under-body. He sounds something like an electric bell, shrill-sweet and clear. The "bell-insect" sings in choir. He is not a soloist but the note made en masse resembles the sound of water falling from a height. The cricket (Korogi) is another musical elf who is bred for profit, but the "bridle-bit" insect, which owes its name to the music it makes, is a favourite. It sounds like the jingle of sleigh bells.

All over the world these humble choristers of God tune up and make their music at starlight time, sending up their happy little hymns of joy, when man's voice is stilled and all the harsher noises of the day are silenced. It is thinking of these things that makes that dusky hour in the hammock a quietly happy one, lying there in the dark, listening.

What odd sights you see and funny things you hear when you are away on your summer holiday! Talk of the Canadian ccent! It is a million times better than the illegitimate English which some of our people who spend the summer abroad bring back with them. I heard a girl whom you would never have suspected of it call her headgear her "wite 'at" the other day. Of course she must have been "slumming" in the East End of London. Such a very haughty young person—you should hear her speak to her maid!—could have acquired the touch of cockney in no other way.

As to the foreign languages:

"Zu spik zee French?" asks the count of mademoiselle as she and her mama parade the lawns of a summer hotel not a hundred miles from wherever you live, dear reader.

"My dear daughter—set share feel—learned to speak French beautifully during the three weeks we were in Paree, count," says darling mama. "Didn't you, Gracie?"

"Yes, mama," replied dutiful Gracie.

"Say 'Key ay loin dees you ay loin dee cur, count,'" simpers Gracie.

"Ah, ciel! QQuelle pronunciation! Vous avez vaincu la langue Francaise, ma' am'selle. I haf nevaire haired such spik before. You spik him like zee—je ne sais quoi."

And she did for a fact.

Or take the bathing place which is the resort of "aristocracy," and that idol of men—the Golden Calf—and watch the progress of a man-hunt. A German "nobility" sandwiched between two girls who hang breathlessly on its accent brings joy to your soul as you sun yourself on the bank above them.

The Sweet Things—"Do your bathe this morning?"

The German Nobility—"No; not efter do I bathe."

The S. T.'s—"Oh, how interesting!"

The G. N.—"I leaf the vafes mit red blotches all ofer mein body."

The S. T.'s—"Oh, how interesting!"

The G.N. (with unction)—"Und I scratch for dree days."

The S. T.'s—"O, how ——." But a shower of gravel from above somewhere interrpts the "interesting" conversation.

And wouldn't you throw sand at a thing like that?

If it isn't one thing it's another. There is always fresh news to con over your coffee in the morning newspaper. One day a murder, the next a divorce, the third a railway accident, a fire, or a shipwreck—and when all fails there are the "Letters to the Editor," and clippings from magazines and periodicals. Now in the silly season when keeping cool is all that counts for much, come the heralds trumpeting the general election. Those who rule us or rob us, as the case may be, are "going to the country." What a magnanimous and subtly flattering phrase that is. "Going to the country!" Not to spend an innocent holiday among the gentle sheep and little lambs and string daisy wreaths upon the grass, but going to do the gentle sheep and little lambs and, do 'em brown and serve 'em with mint and jelly upon the altar of their country. Ministers and commoners and parliamentarians generally are about to "go to the country," in other words, about to appeal to you—Man in the Street—to put them back in high office and graciously represent your little stake in the country. You puff out your chest and feel that it is you who are indeed the arbiter of their destinies. No matter how humble your walk in life you are powerful because you can control a vote, and to cozen that little vote out of you, to cry hail fellow well met! with you, and slap you on the shoulder and tell you what a fine chap you are, to flatter you and to fete you until the little vote is caught, and then to go away and forget all about you—that is the business of the man who "goes to the country," or, in other words, to you, for your vote.

Presently the papers will reek of politics. Speeches, meetings, opinions. All will be reported. I wonder if the Man in the Street—the working man—ever gets excited for more than a minute over politics. Working people are to busy trying to solve the problem of the cost of living to make those poles called "ends" meet, to bother much about affairs of state. Politicians legislate and legislate. They talk themselves hoarse at meetings, and the people like to see and hear the big men and cheer or hiss as may be; but as for "the mouthing of great words" which goes on at monster political gatherings, I don't believe they care much about them beyond the hour's amusement which they afford.

Now will the party papers deride one another; now will you read of the great success of last night's meeting in the Morning Roarer, and learn in The Howler what a frost it was. The Daily Muse will print heart-to-heart talks on the evils which reciprocity will bring about our ears, and the Evening Twinkle will, in pithy, lightsome manner wave all that aside and whack the farmer on the back and descant knowingly as one from the inside on the benefits which will accrue from a closer communion with our dear cousins over the line—"blood-thicker-than-water," and all that. The Morning Pail will overflow in an effort to down the Sphere, while the Evening Lettergram goes a breakdown in the corner to the tune of "This is no place for a minister's son." The shillelaghs are whirling—hurroo!

Already the cartoonists are sharpening their pencils and adding a yard more to Sir Wilfrid's upper lip, and a curl more to the Hon. Bob. Borden's gallant topknot. The White Plume of the premier has been stout to the wash and presently his followers will see it waving upon the wind, and they will follow it to victory and crown it by and by with a wreath of bays. Or will they twine the laurel about the lofty brow of Borden? Shall reciprocity stalk this fair land of ours as Famine Stalks the Ind and blight it as the aforesaid famine, etc.—? Or shall we hurl the base pact back on those who made it? Now will come the washing of the country's linen in public and the party tubs will reek of soiled suds, and there will be a vast amount of blue used. Already the dictionary is being studied for great words and the editorial mind being ransacked for the making of sentences. There will be meetings and speeches. Children will present bouquets and have their little heads rapped by the hands of the great. There will be luncheons and hands and processions. Some party will be elected to the seats of the mighty and the country will fall back into its rut and jog along much as before, and it will be all the same in a hundred years. "Wot's the use of anythink? Nothink!"

SEVEN YEARS PAIN FROM ACUTE NEURALGIA

Cured Through the Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

Neuralgia is not a disease—it is only a symptom. It is the surest sign that your blood is poor, watery and impure, and that your nerves are literally starving. Bad blood is the only cause—good, rich, red blood its only cure. There you have the real reason why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure neuralgia. They are the only medicine that contains, in correct proportions, the very elements needed to make new, rich, red blood. This alone reaches the root of the trouble, soothes the jangled nerves, and drives away the nagging, stabbing pain, and brace up your health in other ways. Mr. M. Brennan, an ex-sergeant of the 2nd Cheshire Regiment, now a resident of Winnipeg, Man., says: "While serving with my regiment in India, on a hill station, I contracted a severe cold which brought on acute neuralgia, at times lasting for three weeks. I was constantly suffering almost every month in the year for over seven years, the pain being sometimes so severe that I wished I was dead. On my return to England I seemed to get no better, though I spent large sums of money for medical advice and medicine. Then I came to Canada, and about a year ago saw the advertisement of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in a Winnipeg paper. Although I had begun to think my complaint was incurable. I told my wife that I intended giving the Pills a fair trial. I was suffering from terrible pains when I began taking the Pills, but before the second box was finished the pain began to disappear, and under a further use of the Pills it disapeparedo entirely, and I have not had a twinge of it during the past year. Only those who have been afflicted with the terrible pains of neuralgia can tell what a blessing Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been to me, and you may be sure I shall constantly recommend them to other sufferers."

These Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Convicted Of Manslaughter

HUNTINGTON, W. VA., Aug. 19.—Miss Lillie Chapman, a pretty young girl of Winfield, was convicted a few days ago of voluntary manslaughter for the killing of Jule Hanley, scion of a prominent Putnam County family. Judge Doolittle set aside the verdict on the ground that it was not in accord with the evidence offered in the case.

The case when tried was replete with sensational features. It was shown that Hanly had been playing attention to Miss Chapman for several years, both before and after his marriage. The girl had evidently encouraged him to some extent, at least the evidence making her appear before court and jury compromisingly.

The evidence showed she shot Hanley while he was trying to force his way into her room and after he had several times before failed in the effort on the same night. The girl testified she shot only to frighten the man.

FEATURES OF THE BOY SCOUTS' CAMP

The following account of the camp of the Third Troop of Peterborough By Scouts at Rabs Rock, Chemong Lake, will be read with interest:

August 1st, was the day of departure from Peterborough. The Scouts were in charge of their efficient Scout Master, W. J. Miller, with Cecil Richardson as Adjutant, and Mr. McLaren, Troop Chaplain. The latter proved himself very capable of looking after the spiritual welfare of the whole company. The Scout movement is one that is worthy of the interest and support of every citizen of Peterborough. When one comes to think of the work, time, trouble, and brains it requires to place the boys in their present state of efficiency in scout work, their progress is, indeed, a credit to those who have had the work in charge. The citizens of Peterborough who did not see the display in camp on Aug. 19, will be given an opportunity later of seeing the Scouts at work. On that date the boys of the Third Troop gave an exhibition of bridge-building, alarm, open camp scene, and other movements. An interesting feature was the raising of the flag, at which the boys sang "The Maple Leaf," accompanied on the cornet, after which the flag was raised, the Scouts saluting and singing the National Anthem. Then they presented staves and gave three hearty cheers for the Union Jack, and were dismissed. Five minutes afterwards they lined up for the semaphore signalling drill, which was gone through in alphabetical order, to the tune of the "Merry Widow," played on the cornet by the Scout Master. The next item on the programme was First Aid, the boys showing proficiency in this important department of the Scout's education. Then the boys, acting as despatch bearers, left camp and returned wounded, being taken in charge, by the ambulance corps. It was very interesting to watch the Scouts go through the bandaging of the supposed suffrers, and the work had to be given twice at the request of the fifty visitors present.

The rescue from drowning came next. Three boys went out some distance in a punt and fell over-board, being rescued and brought safely to shore by three other Scouts, who swam out for them. The rescued then took their turn at acting the hero's role, proving the ability of the Scouts in saving life. The parade of the Scouts was very smartly done and the boys, in their telegraph operations showed proficiency. A boy walked over a bridge made by the Scouts—a remarkable piece of work.

The singing of the National Anthem brought to a close an interesting and instructive display.

Each day was spent as profitably as this one in camp. The discipline and order of the boys was splendid throughout, and great praise is due Mr. Miller and his staff for the results obtained and for the splendid condition in which the Troop returned home, the boys all looking healthy and bright, although sorry that the camp had been brought to a close.

SOME EXCELLENT RECIPES

Bacon scraps can be used up as fritters. Cut off hard edges and make this following fritter batter, which can't be beat: Three ounces of flour, one gill of tepid water, one dessert-spoon of salad oil, one white of egg. Put into a bowl the flour and pour into the centre the water, then the oil. When well mixed all together add a little white pepper and salt; beat the white of egg to a stiff froth and add; put your bacon ready, and let each piece be in a big spoon of the batter. Have some lard smoking hot and drop each spoonful in; fry to pale brown, and serve very hot with fried parsley.

If some savory scraps, mince, or poultry stuffing is rolled in the bacon it makes lovely kromesbys, "a dish fit for a King," as one man said.

No. 2—Roman Cream.—One pint of milk, two ounces ground rice, one ounce of butter. Work rice and butter well together gradually; stir over fire until it boils, and continue to stir until it thickens and is cooled (taste to see). Add butter and one quarter of a cup of sugar and one spoonful of vanilla. Put some crumbled cake or macaroons in the bottom of a glass dish with some good jam, raspberry or peach, put the rice on in spoonfuls; serve cold with whipped, plain, or Devonshire cream.

No. 3—Now that apples and tomatoes are in the following is the best chutney possible: One pound of brown sugar, half a pound of salt, half a pound of mustard seed, half a pound of chopped raisins, half a pound of onions chopped fine, one quarter of a pound of ground ginger, two ounces of mustard, half an ounce of cayenne pepper, half an ounce of tumeric, two quarts of best white vinegar, thirteen large sour apples, seven large tomatoes. Pare apples and boil in one quart of vinegar; boil tomatoes in another quart. When both are quite soft put through sieve together and leave in large bowl to get quite cool. Then mix in all other ingredients, stir well, and put into jars.

Minnehaha.

If your Furs are needing any alterations let us do them for you now.

It will cost less than later in the season.

We can show you all the advance styles for fall.

Song—Douglas Carlisle.

Mr. Mowat, Public School Inspector, of Peterborough, took the chair, and filled it to everybody's entire satisfaction.

NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

Feels the Calender

Don't look older than you are. It is just as easy to look younger. While lack of hair or poor hair is not always an indication of age, it is frequently accepted as such.

A person well advanced in years possessing a good head of hair is always spoken of as "well preserved."

Everyone can retain beautiful, luxuriant hair if they make the effort. In almost every instance poor hair or the loss of hair may be traced to the activity of the dandruff germ. Newbro's Herpicide kills this germ and puts the scalp in a perfectly healthy condition. With the destruction of the dandruff germ the hair no longer drops out. The itching of the scalp stops almost at once.

Newbro's Herpicide is the original remedy for which there are many substitutes, preparations claimed to be "just as good." You don't have to accept a substitute. Insist upon having genuine Herpicide.

For sale by all druggists. Applications obtained at good barber shops. One dollar size bottles are always guaranteed. Send 10c. in postage to The Herpicide Co., Dept. R., Detroit, Mich., for sample and book.

MORE THAN EVER

Increased Capacity for Mental Labor Since Leaving Off Tea and Coffee

Many former tea and coffee drinkers who have mental work to perform, day after day, have found a better capacity and greater endurance by using Postum instead of tea or coffee. An Illinois woman writes:

"I had drank coffee for about twenty years, and finally had what the doctor called 'coffee heart'. I was nervous and extremely despondent; had little mental or physical strength left, had kidney trouble and constipation.

"The first noticeable benefit derived from the change from coffee to Postum was the natural action of the kidneys and bowels. In two weeks my heart action was greatly improved and my nerves steady.

"Then I became less despondent, and the desire to be active again showed proof of renewed physical and mental strength.

"I am steadily gaining in physical strength and brain power. I formerly did mental work and had to give it up on account of coffee, but since using Postum I am doing hard mental labor with less fatigue than ever before."

SOUVENIR FURNACE
(New Idea Series)

Keeps the house warm and cosy in the severest winter weather, and heats all rooms equally well.

It is very simple to operate—just touch the lever and you dump the ashes; there never can be dead coals at the sides of the firepot; the ashes are readily removed.

It is easy to control the heat and regulate the fuel consumption, which means a saving of 25% to 50% in fuel bills.

It is a clean and healthful furnace—gas and dust cannot get into the hot air chamber and then into the living or sleeping rooms. It forces pure air through the whole house.

The Souvenir Furnace is made in Hamilton, the stove centre of Canada, by

THE HAMILTON STOVE & HEATER COMPANY, Limited

Every buyer of a Souvenir Furnace is provided with a legal bond on date of purchase, guaranteeing furnace against cracks or breaks of any kind for 5 years.

A GREAT RECEPTION

Cartier Square Is Crowded With Loyal Supporters of Sir Wilfrid Laurier When He Goes Into His Stride to Answer the Nationalists—Defines Issue in St. Three Rivers Meeting on Thursday.

Quebec, Aug. 19.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier's tour of this province is proving a remarkable triumph. Thursday at Three Rivers he addressed nearly 15,000 people and was cheered to the echo. Last night double that number of his constituents and followers crowded Jacques Cartier square and gave him what was probably the greatest reception of his long and honorable career. It was a most remarkable ovation, and one which is seldom given to a public man in this country. It was a popular answer to the slanders and calumnies of the Nationalists, and it showed plainly that he had not lost his hold upon the people of the Ancient Capital. In fact it was the largest, the most enthusiastic, and most united gathering he has ever addressed in his old constituency.

Sir Wilfrid was accompanied on the stand by Sir Lomer Gouin, Premier of Quebec, and A. Taschereau, Minister of Public Works; Hon. J. C. Keine, Hon. Mr. Devlin, A. G. Carrier, M.P., Levis; C. Blovin, M.P., Levis; D. Caron, M.P.; Eugene Leclerc, M.P.P., Quebec Centre, and many other members of both the federal and local Parliaments.

When Sir Wilfrid advanced to the front of the platform behind which was the motto: "Hommage de Quebec a Sir Wilfrid Laurier," he received another reception. In introducing the Dominion Premier, Mr. Letellier said that they had assembled to meet the greatest statesman which Canada had ever produced.

Sir Wilfrid, in many respects, duplicated the speech which he had made on the previous afternoon in Three Rivers.

Touching reciprocity, he said the United States was one of the greatest nations in the world. Canada was one of the youngest. All governments had recognized the benefits to be gained by the Dominion through reciprocity, and under the new arrangement all classes would prosper. The working man, the small producer, were looked after by the Liberal Government, and the Opposition had prevented obstructionists and had forced them to come before the masters of the situation, the electors.

Turning to the naval question, Sir Wilfrid said there were those trying to overturn the Government on this issue. Much had been made of the [illegible] Nationalists [illegible] Scratch a Castor and you find a Tory.

[illegible] Manitoba [illegible] largest and most enthusiastic gathering in the history of the riding of East and Centre Grey. Dr. Sproule and Hon. T. B. Lucas received the Liberal nomination for the Housetof Commons and the Ontario Legislature respectively. No other names were brought before the convention.

Major Beattie Nominated.

London, Aug. 19.—Major Beattie was nominated last night by the Conservatives and John M. McEvoy by the Liberals as candidates in the coming election. Four others were placed before the Conservatives convention, including Wm. Gray, who ran against G. S. Hyman. All declined.

The nomination of Mr. McEvoy was made unanimous on motion of Dr. W. J. Stevenson, whose name also went before the convention.

Would Boycott Chinese.

San Francisco, Aug. 19.—The International Typographical Union in convention here, passed a resolution yesterday expressing as the sense of the convention that all members of the union should refuse to patronize Chinese laundries, restaurants and other establishments. Local unions are ordered to assess fines for violation. This resolution was introduced by Delegate G. M. Stekton of Lowell, Mass.

A proposal by Delegate Maxwell of Topeka, Kas., to take $100,000 from the old age pension fund, which is now $400,000, and use it for the erection of a permanent administration building in Indianapolis, was referred to the national executive council to be voted at the next general election.

Ran Off the Track.

Montreal, Aug. 19.—C.P.R. train No. 15, westward bound from Halifax to Montreal, and due here at 8.30 yesterday morning, was three and a half hours late, owing to three coaches leaving the track at Trudel, ten miles east of Megantic.

Several of the passengers were rather severely shaken up and bruised.

SITUATION IS WORSE

Premier Asquith and His Colleagues Are Doing Everything in Their Power to Settle the Railway Trouble, But Several Thousand Men Have Struck and Others Are Threatening to Quit Work To-day.

London, Aug. 19.—Scores of thousands of railway employes throughout the United Kingdom are on strike today and traffic everywhere is badly disorganized.

The leaders of the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants declare that 200,000 men, or nearly half the total of employes of the railways of England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales, have answered their call to stop work. On the other hand, the managers of the railways say these figures are greatly exaggerated.

There is no method by which verification of either assertion is possible, but the fact is patent that the railway service all over the country is completely demoralized, even a limited passenger service being impossible. Never before have the Ministers of a British Government made such earnest efforts to ward off a great labor war; yet last night they had been unable to stay a movement that promises to entail inconvenience, possibly misery, to millions of people.

One of the gravest features of the situation in London is a threatened strike by the employes of the underground railways. Hundreds of thousands of persons use the tubes to get to and from their business and their shoppers would greatly increase the suffering and demoralization which is being caused by the strike on the steam railways.

Thus far, according to the officials of the underground companies, only 500 of their employes have struck. This is but a small percentage of the men employed in the tubes, but their defection already has curtailed the service and only a few trains are running. The underground strikers held a mass meeting last night and passed a resolution not to return to work until satisfactory terms have been arranged through their executives, or until all the other railway men who have struck are restored to their positions under Government guarantee.

London has the appearances of an armed camp, for [illegible] leaden bullets in their belts, while from the dome of St. Paul's the engineers [illegible] signals in the daytime, and [illegible] flashes at night.

Undeterred by the [illegible] their negotiations [illegible] settlement of the dispute [illegible] railway [illegible] by Premier Asquith, David Lloyd-George, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and Sidney Buxton, President of the Board of Trade, in [illegible] the leaders of both sides of the controversy.

The battleship Warrior arrived at Douglas, Isle of Man, yesterday afternoon to provision the support of the [illegible] ers, whose regular [illegible] with Liverpool has been cut off.

Reports from Wales say that some 20,000 or 30,000 additional colliers will be idle by to-night.

Thousands of holiday makers are stranded at the seaside and country resorts without money and unable to obtain transportation home.

The Liverpool street station, where some 90,000 commuters arrive and depart daily, was the most congested point of London probably, yesterday. Last evening the platforms were packed with thousands awaiting a chance to get to their suburban homes. A large majority did not reach their homes before morning.

Major Ryan, who, having been ordered from Ireland to rejoin his regiment at Aldershot, on arriving at Fishguard found the train stalled by strikers. He promptly mobilized a party of soldiers who were returning by boat from a [illegible] and, forming rifles from the local territorials, drove off the strikers at the point of the bayonet and got his train through.

The international combine of steamship companies has no hope of getting away any ships from Liverpool this week. The best it expects to accomplish to-day is to sail the steamer Philadelphia out of Southampton and the steamer Minneapolis out of London. These vessels, however, were fully booked up long ago, and consequently their sailing will not help to diminish the number of stranded Americans in England.

The steamship combine is advancing the dates of sailings of its boats as far as possible to try to get the Americans home.

Riot In Birmingham.

Birmingham, Eng., Aug. 19.—Again last night there was a sharp conflict when several wagons loaded with meat were being driven from the depot to the wholesale masket under an escort of police and soldiers. The mob attacked the cavalcade and was driven off and dispersed, but not until there had been a free use of truncheons by the police.

Police Guard Stations.

Swansea, Wales, Aug. 19.—Railway traffic here is at a standstill. The four stations are closed and the police are guarding them. Many factories are shutting down owing to a lack of fuel.

Dockers' Strike Settled.

London, Aug. 19—The strike of dockmen, coal porters and carmen, which began here August 1 and resulted in a dislocation of trade, almost famine conditions and rioting for nearly two weeks, was finally settled last night. The strike was called off August 11 under the promise that the differences between the men and the shipowners should be arbitrated.

The chief points of the agreement reached are that the men may be engaged for work outside the dock premises, and that any differences which may arise shall be referred to John Burns or an arbitrator, appointed by the President of the Local Government Board.

PURPOSES OF COMPANY

Canada Bread Company, Limited, has acquired as going concerns the plants and the businesses of the Bredin Bread Company, Limited, of Toronto; George Weston (The Model Bakery) of Toronto; H. C. Tomlin (Toronto Bakery) of Toronto; Stuarts, Limited, of Montreal, and W. J. Boyd of Winnipeg. In the case of Boyd the real properties are excluded, but a parcel of vacant land in the city of Winnipeg about two acres in extent is substituted. The first three companies have been in operation for about thirty years, and the last two for close to twenty years. They have all grown from small beginnings till they are now among the largest in their respective fields in Canada. The combined output of the companies at present is, approximately, 600,000 loaves of bread per week. It is intended by extensions to the present plants and the erection or the acquisition of new plants, to forthwith increase the output of the Company to one million loaves per week. Modern plants will [illegible] in the [illegible]. The sum of $1,400,000 cash is being placed in the treasury to provide for the erection of the proposed new plants and to supply ample working capital.

POSITION OF BONDS

For full particulars reference may be made to our prospectus, which is accompanied by a letter from Mr. Mark Bredin, the Vice-President and General Manager of the Company. We draw attention to the following points:—

1. The present $1,250,000 of 6 per cent. First Mortgage Sinking Fund Thirty-year Gold Bonds are secured by trust deeds to Guardian Trust Company, Limited, Toronto, constituting a first mortgage on all the property, real, personal or mixed, now owned or hereafter acquired by the Company, as more fully described in said trust deeds. In the trust deeds it is specially stipulated that of the $1,400,000 cash being placed in the treasury, the sum of $600,000 shall be held by the Trustee, to be issued only in the redemption of bonds or the investment in additional plants and real estate, thus increasing the fixed assets under the mortgage. A Sinking Fund of 1 per cent. is operative from August 1, 1911.

2. The assets of the companies already taken over stand in excess of all liabilities, and without any allowance for good will, trade marks, etc., at $691,482.79. There has also been placed in the treasury $1,044,551.26 of cash which, besides furnishing funds for the purchasing or construction of additional plants, will provide ample working capital.

3. The earnings of the present plants, as per certificate of Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co., after allowing for depreciation, amounted from April 30th, 1910, to April 30th, 1911, to $197,915.14, to which may be added $35,803, being interest at the rate of 3½ per cent. on $1,023,080 cash in the treasury pending its employment on extensions. It is estimated that, with the economies to be effected, the earnings on these plants will shortly amount to $250,000 a year, or nearly two and one-half times the bond interest.

4. With the extensions that it is proposed to effect forthwith, the company by the end of its first fiscal year should be in a position to show earnings of $325,000 a year, equal to three and one-half times the interest requirements on the bond issue, and with all the additional plants that will be provided with the cash now in the treasury the earnings should steadily gain to over $450,000 a year, or more than seven times the bond interest requirements.

5. The company, with its plants situated in the larger cities of the different Provinces of Canada, will be in an exceptionally favourable position to benefit by the marked economies that will be possible in manufacturing, and more especially in distribution, and all the time will be turning out a more uniform product under the most sanitary conditions.

6. The practical men who have made the different companies particularly successful will be identified with the management and direction of the new company. Mr. Mark Bredin, who is probably one of the most successful bread manufacturers in Canada, will occupy the position of Vice-President and General Manager, while the services of the heads of four of the different companies taken over and of an efficient representative of the fifth have been secured to the company.

WITNESSES DIFFER

Mrs. Mary Jane Bryant, Who Lived in the Same House as the Murdered Woman, Tells of Brutality of the Prisoner to His Wife—Daughter of Witness Gets Mixed Up and Inquiry Adjourns.

Toronto, Aug. 19.—So uncertain was the evidence given by witnesses at the inquest yesterday afternoon on the body of Mrs. Ellen Wilkie, that the inquiry was adjourned until Wednesday, Aug. 23, to enable the crown to get the facts straightened out.

Mrs. Wilkie died at 264 Claremont street on Monday night, and it is alleged that death was caused by her husband, who is facing a charge of murder.

Wilkie and Frank Perry, who is included in the charge of murder were present in the court room.

Mrs. Mary Jane Bryant, who lives on the first floor of the house in Claremont street, was the first witness. She told of seeing Mr. and Mrs. Wilkie fighting. Mrs. Wilkie was on the floor in the passage and Wilkie was beating her with his fist, on the side of the head, while Mrs. Wilkie was grasping her husband's leg. Witness succeeded in separating them and then Mrs. Wilkie fainted.

In continuing, the witness was unable to give a clear account of what happened, and as she complained that she was "all unstrung," the coroner excused her for the time being.

Cecilia Bryant, daughter of the previous witness, described several fights which occurred during the evening between the Wilkies, but was, in repetition, she gave contradictory accounts of the incidents, the coroner decided to adjourn the case.

Had Revolver In Satchel.

Toronto, Aug. 19.—Further for the time-ly intervention of Detective Inspector Geo. Kennedy yesterday morning, Morality Officer Thomas Bloodworth might have met death at the hands of a woman frenzied by the fancied retention of money which her husband has ceased to contribute for her support.

The woman, Mrs. W. D. Joyner, has called several times at the morality department office, demanding the money, only to be told that its payment had been discontinued. She left in a rage Thursday, threatening vengeance upon Bloodworth. She called again yesterday morning.

While she was talking to Bloodworth she opened her handbag and [illegible] Inspector [illegible] and [illegible]

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

FRANK CHANCE SHREWD IN ARRANGING TRADES

Jim McAleer may have gained the title of the David Harum of baseball, but there is no doubt of his having been succeeded by Frank Chance, of the Cubs. In all of McAleer's career he occasionally pulled off a deal which did not bring him any great renown. But, clever as McAleer was in pulling off his deals, he is not in the same class with Frank Chance, who does not appear to have ever made a bad trade.

Chance, with Charley Murphy's assistance, began to dicker for players to strengthen the Cubs in 1905. His first big deal was when he hypnotized St. Louis into parting with Mordecai Brown and Catcher O'Neill for Pitcher Jack Taylor, now pitching in the Central League. Taylor was about at the end of his big league string, but St. Louis did not realize it any more than it did that it had a great pitcher in Three-Fingered Brown.

Catcher O'Neill, along with Pitcher Pfeffer, soon found his way to Boston, Chicago getting Catcher Pat Moran, who proved to be of great service in teaching young pitchers and helping out behind the bat occasionally.

Then Chance and Murphy mesmerized Garry Herrmann into trading Third Baseman Steinfeldt for Pitcher Weimer. The latter had been a star for the Cubs, but amounted to but little thereafter, Cincinnati finally letting him go to New York for the waiver price. On the other hand, Steinfeldt, who had been thought all in by the Red owners, caught his second wind, and was a member of pennant-winning teams at Chicago, being a tower of strength at third and at the bat. In fact, it was not until this year that Chicago parted with him, while Weimer has been a dead one for years.

And how often is the sentence broken by the sound of ball and bat meeting a safe drive and another game won.

That is how the Tigers win games — when they are cornered — when every avenue of escape seems shut off; when they seem hopelessly lost.

Recently, in Philadelphia, they were behind the world champion Athletics. First place was at stake. The ninth inning found them one run behind Mack's men. The first two Tiger batsmen were retired. Jennings still stood on the coaching line. Stanage was at bat. Stanage had done little hitting. Bases empty and two out, there did not seem a chance for the Tigers. Rug on the first base coaching line stood Jennings. Krause got three balls and two strikes on the batter, and from the red-haired manager in the coacher's box came the familiar yell, and as the word "NOW!" passed his lips Stanage swung on a fast ball. The sphere sailed into left, far over Lord's head —a two-base hit. Mullin drove the runner in with the tying run, and in the tenth inning the Tigers made a batting rally, scored four runs, beat the Athletics and kept the lead.

"In a pinch. That's where we love to be," says Jennings. "I would sooner be in a pinch than anywhere. That's when we strike hardest."

The Tigers have achieved fame for their ability to hit with three balls whenever they faced the "three-and-two" situations and two strikes called. They have been able to win whenever they faced the "three-and-two" situation of baseball.

Jennings has developed "three-and-two" teams. They won three pennants by striking their opponents with the count three and two. They are always dangerous when the odds favor the other side. When the crowd turns away thinking them hopelessly defeated, like in Philadelphia recently, that is when they are likely to do their big work.

Charley Smith, pitcher with the Newark Club, of the Eastern League, has been purchased by the Cubs for immediate delivery. Some money amount and a ball-player or two will be turned over to Newark in payment for Smith.

President Murphy of the Cubs also completed a deal with the Rockford club of the Wisconsin-Illinois League for the services of Pitchers Staphicks and Marshall to be added to the Cub roster next spring.

Larry Schaefy, manager and part owner of the Troy New York State League club, who captained the Newark Indians last season, is clouting the ball at a .338 clip for the Trojans.

The Cardinals will make $150,000 this season. From being the poorest drawing card in the National League the St. Louis Club is now one of the best.

Manager Duffy will have to take an invalee of his own once the first off day, so that he will be able to find out just how he stands. Some of the new finds have come as a surprise to him.

Freddie Parent is hitting the ball like a fiend for the Baltimore Orioles. The fans are wondering in the Eastern League how he got away from the big league.

The reason Walter Johnson is losing his speed is that he has changed his style of delivery. Instead of using the overhand throw he now pitches almost entirely with a side arm movement.

Dode Criss occupies a unique position in baseball. He has been with the St. Louis team for four or five years, and has never had a regular position on the team. He is being paid a salary to hit in emergencies, but is seldom used in the field. Having the reputation of being a hitter, it would be supposed that he would make some sort of an effort to be able to play some position. But Criss is not an ambitious youth, and so long as he can draw a salary for doing nothing he is well satisfied.

When one looks over all the veteran players in the major leagues who though they have been in the game many years and are still playing high class ball, Fred Clarke of Pittsburg, really stands out in a class by himself. Clarke has been playing major league ball for 17 years or more, and there has not been a season when he has not been figured among the top-notch players of the year. Not only is Clarke still a wonderful player, but he has been a manager for the greater part of his career, has been in some of the hottest pennant fights, and has shown no sign of weakening under the strain. Men of the Clarke type are rare in baseball, and Pittsburg owes much to its efficient leader.

No Real Fighters In Game To-day Says Ryan

No matter where glove contests are permitted in this country the question arises, "What is the difference between boxing and prize fighting?" Several attempts have been made to draw the line in the courts, and in some instances promoters have secured decisions in their favour. The most recent champion of scientific boxing is Tommy Ryan of Syracuse, who held the middleweight title after Bob Fitzsimmons relinquished it. Ryan is a close student of fistiana and is able to give an intelligent argument in its favour. The other day he was quoted in this manner:

"The question has often been put to me, 'What is a prize fight if it isn't brutal?' Other persons want to know why the boxers pull and haul, hit in the clinches, and so forth, or why a man will strike his opponent when the latter apparently is only half off the floor. Still others want to know why the boxers shake hands at the start and at the end of a bout and what is the sensation when a man is floored or knocked out.

"First of all, I would say that there is now no such thing as a prize-fighter. That word is a misnomer. Thirty or forty years ago it was different, for in those days men fought with the bare knuckles and the sport was brutal, but the name 'prize fight' has stuck to the present day, and what some people persist in calling a 'prize fight' is nothing more or less than a scientific exhibition of the art of attack and self-defence, and of the same nature as any other exhibition of sport which is won by endurance and skill. The exhibitions are not brutal.

"Boxers pull, haul and hit in clinches because some of them have become accustomed to what is known as 'infighting,' and they are a great deal better when boxing close to their opponents than in sparring at a range. They try to tire out their opponents by the pulling and hauling, which is quite scientific in its way, and by no means as rough as it appears. It is often the style of some boxers to win this way. Sometimes accidents will happen in infighting as they will in any sport.

"On the other hand, the clever and rangy boxer wants to be at arm's length because that is his style and it is at that kind of boxing that he is at his best.

"Boxers seldom have any personal spite, and they show this by shaking hands. It is purely a matter of business with them. It is very seldom that two good boxers face each other in the ring with spite against each other. Mind, I am not claiming that every boxer is a good one, for of all the professions in the world there is a smaller percentage of good men in the ring than in any other business.

"'A boxer to be a boxer has to be in the very best of physical condition, and blows have little or no effect upon him. But if you took a man who had not been through all the hard training and send him into the ring, every blow would raise a lump or cut him."

Hack Will Outweigh Champion

CHICAGO, AUG. 19.—Followers of wrestling are due for a big surprise when they see George Hackenschmidt, the "Russian Lion," step upon the mat at Comiskey's ball park Labor Day to meet Frank Gotch, the champion. The European athlete will outweigh the Humboldt farmer by nearly twenty pounds.

In a letter received by Manager Jack Curley from Dr. B. F. Roller, the Seattle physician, who is superintending every detail of the "Russian Lion's" training at the Shoreham bungalow in England, Roller says Hack scales 230 pounds—the most he ever weighed in his life. The European rival of the American champion will weight close to 220 pounds when he steps upon the mat.

"Don't think because Hack is going to weigh more than he ever did when wrestling that he will be out of condition, or fat," continues Dr. Roller in his letter. He took on weight during his strenuous trip through the United States last winter, and during his seaside loitering here this summer he found that he remained stationary in the weight matter. Since training in earnest for the coming climax bout of his career Hack has turned into an 'iron man.' Never in all my experience, including many professional examinations of athletes, have I seen such sheaths of muscular development as Hack's."

You Should Tremble And Shudder

When an unscrupulous druggist offers you a substitute for DR. FOWLER'S Extract of Wild Strawberry.

If you are suddenly attacked by DIARRHOEA, DYSENTERY, COLIC, CRAMPS OR PAINS IN THE STOMACH, CHOLERA MORBUS, SUMMER COMPLAINT, or any LOOSENESS OF THE BOWELS, do not experiment with some new and untried remedy, but get one that has stood the test of time.

For 66 years this wonderful medicine has been used in thousands of homes in Canada, and has given universal satisfaction. When you want a bottle of "Dr. Fowler's," insist on being given what you ask for, as these no-name, no-reputation preparations may be dangerous to your health.

Mr. J. Castle, Totonbie, Man., writes: "Just a word in favor of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, which I used last summer for Cramps in the Stomach and Diarrhoea. I was very sick for a week and not able to do anything until I purchased a bottle of the above remedy, and after three or four doses I was as well as ever."

The price is 35 cents per bottle. See that the name, The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont., appears on the label, as we are the manufacturers and sole proprietors of this remedy.

BASEBALL NEWS

DETROIT, Aug. 19.—The inning is the ninth. The bases are full for Tigers. Two men are out. One run is needed to tie; two to win. On the first base coaching line Jennings doubles his fists, raises his arms, stands on one foot and breaks the silence with the familiar battle cry:

"Here we are, my boy; three and two—now, my boy, now's the time, N-O-W"——

"The Razor of To-day"

GILLETTE Blades Are Harder—
Keener—Smoother—Than Forged Razor Blades

Before the GILLETTE was invented razor blades were all forged. That is, a piece of mild steel was heated and hammered out till it took the form of a razor blade. Every heating, every hammering, changed the hardness of the steel a little—how much, no man could tell, but more in some parts than others, because these parts were hammered out more.

Naturally, to temper perfectly a blade of such uncertain and uneven hardness is impossible.

In making GILLETTE blades we start with an ingot of steel, too fine in quality to stand forging, whose composition we know by analysis. We roll this out to the thinness of the finished blade, then stamp out the blades ready for tempering.

The composition of the steel is not altered by the rolling and stamping as it is by forging, so that each blade comes out not only even in texture throughout, but of the same quality as every other blade. As our patented automatic tempering process tempers each blade through and through in precisely the same way, the finished blades have an even, uniform hardness which cannot possibly be equalled in forged blades.

Two of the hardest, keenest, smoothest shaving edges the world has ever seen are found on each and every GILLETTE blade. Not only is the GILLETTE the safest, quickest, most convenient and only adjustable razor, but it carries the best edge. That is what interests the shaver most.

OLD COUNTRY SPORT NEWS

Photographs to hand of the races between F. L. Ramsdell and R. Rau at Berlin indicate plainly that the American was very easily beaten in each event. Glassing, too, was well licked in his race and when he proceeded to Dresden, he found Hanns Braun just as readily his superior as he had been at Stamford Bridge.

Jordan Robertson, formerly of Cliftonville, the Irish International inside right, has returned from Canada. He is likely to play for Belfast Celtic and partner his old Cliftonville club mate, John Blair, also an Irish International.

Moville Kein of Chicago and P. Gannon of England were left to contest the final of the Austrian amateur golf championships at Carlsbad, the United Service man defeating the American by 3 up and 2 to play.

Percy Perrin, one of the Essex "twins," is now at the head of the batting averages, his figures being 59.15 against Kinneir's 57.22. Then two seasoned men in C. B. Fry and Hayward follow with 51.95 and 51.67 respectively, and the only other man whose figures exceed 50 is R. H. Spooner with 50.53. The two Northants professionals, Thompson and East, are at the head of the bowlers.

IT TELLS ABOUT THE SANE HEATING OF HOMES

"Comfort & Health" tells about a heating system.

It goes into the question of healthful heating and shows how important a part the furnace plays in the health of your family.

It explains the principle of warm air heating; how the furnace draws in fresh air, warms it and circulates it moist and pure to every room in the house.

Then it tells about the perfect warm air furnace—the "Hecla." The furnace that cannot leak gas. The furnace that gives heat without dust. The furnace that is easy to run, and what is more important, how that furnace—The "Hecla"—saves you one ton of coal in seven.

"Hecla" Furnace

Cannot Leak Gas

Gas in the house is disagreeable. Often it proves dangerous to the health. The "Hecla" is so constructed that gas cannot get into the living rooms. The places where gas leaks occur in the ordinary furnace are found in the "Hecla" so that gas cannot possibly find an outlet.

Saves 1 Ton in 7

The "Hecla" uses only six tons of coal where others use seven. It is the steel ribbed fire pot that makes this saving. How flanges are of steel plate placed close together and welded into the fire pot get more heat from your coal is told in "Comfort & Health."

Sentence Passed on Local Barber

The sentence passed by all the particular men who have patronized Mr. Percy Lynch in his newly opened Tonsorial Parlour in rear of Payne's Drug Store, Simcoe St., is that the service is one of the finest to be had in these parts. The famous Stark system of Face Massage and Shampooing is used exclusively and therefore the shaving public receive full value for their money and more. Prompt attention and high class work at all times regardless of time or numbers is bringing this one time popular barber shop to its front fast. Mr. H. Hicks, a young local barber of well known ability, has been added to the staff and the increasing trade is assured there will be little waiting. Shop is thoroughly remodelled and fan cooled. One trial will convince you.

C.G.E. IN TORONTO

The C.G.E. boys journeyed to Toronto brimful of hope, and the determination to "do or die" and the few hardy supporters who accompanied the team will no doubt find ample opportunity to exercise their vocal powers. Several of the players received nasty knocks in the last game, but have picked up alright with the exception of Allan and Pagett. It is to be hoped the team will not be so severely handicapped as to be without these two players. The expected line-up is as follows:

Goal—W. Towns; backs, W. Hull and R. Evans; half backs, E. Allan, A. Pagett and J. Simmonite; forwards, H. Carless, W. Dawson, G. Miller, T. Monk, E. Dawson; spares, E. Hooper, A. French and R. Morality.

Manager Patterson will have charge of the boys, and Messrs. Baldry, Marley, Moffatt and Bidyard accompanied the team. Here's luck to them.

WHAT MAKES HIGH LIVING.

There are two main reasons for the high cost of living.

One is high wages, which adds to the cost of production of manufactured articles we buy. That is not bad, because the working men get the benefit of good wages, which help meet the cost of living.

There is another cause of the high cost of living, and neither the working man nor the producer gets any advantage, only disadvantage in the form of high prices.

There is a wide range between the price the producer gets, which is of the lowest; and what the consumer has to pay which is of the highest.

This great increase in price is added in the way of produce, from producer to consumer. What is called the middleman, gets a profit out of all proportion to what he pays the producer, and the consumer pays it.

Removal of duty will create competition, and the middleman will not be able to exact such high prices.

The producer will get better prices for there will be competition for his goods; the consumer will get the benefit of lower prices, for competition will prevent the increase of price on the way from the producer to the consumer.

Yes, it is true, I was very weak and Miller's Compound Iron Pills made me strong. Wm. Madill.

DELUDING THE WORKINGMAN.

The attempt to make the Canadian workingman believe that reciprocity would lessen employment, or lower wages, for him, has signally failed.

It is futile to ask the men employed in the factories of Brantford or elsewhere, to believe that dire ruin threatens industries which are not touched in any way by reciprocity. And this remark applies to the great majority of Canadian industries.

It is futile to ask them to believe that the agricultural implement business, which stands almost alone with regard to lessened protection, is going to suffer from a policy which promises most beneficial results to the men who buy the goods — the farmers.

It is futile to ask them to believe that the manufacturers in these lines expect anything else but benefit for themselves when they are seen increasing their capital, extending their plants, and employing hundreds of additional men.

No, the scarecrow that the manufacturers will suffer, or men be thrown out of work, or wages lowered, has already been exposed.

The one hope, then, of catching the workingman is to make him believe that if the Canadian farmer sends more of his produce across the line than he does at present, the Canadian consumer will pay more for his table supplies than he does at present.

This argument is both misleading and fallacious. When there is a shortage in certain lines of agricultural produce in Canada, the admission of American produce will benefit the consumer, who will also benefit at the seasons of the year when the United States farmer has the advantage as to time of ripening etc.

But even if the Canadian farmer should get better prices, and he will do so at times, why should he not be given the privilege which the workingman asks for himself, of selling what he has to offer in the best market? And if he benefits, will not all Canada benefit? Undoubtedly so.

The broad argument, however, in favour of reciprocity from the workingman's point of view, is that the manufacturer is not being hurt, and if the farmer is to be benefitted both the manufacturer and the man whom he employs must also benefit.

Is YOUR Baby STURDY, or just FAT?

Some foods merely puff out a child with fat, without leaving any solid good behind. A baby at five or six months may be a triumph of the fattening powers of food—and yet, at two years, may be thin and suffering from rickets.

NEAVE'S FOOD FOR INFANTS

is perfectly balanced. It not only produces a fine baby—it also insures that baby growing into a healthy adult, because Neave's Food contains all the essentials for flesh and bone.

WATER AT STONEY LAKE IS LOWEST IN YEARS

Has Dropped Very Rapidly in the Past Couple of Weeks and Rocks are Visible That Have Not Been Seen Above the Surface Before—Impossible to Reach Some of Docks.

STONEY LAKE, AUG. 21.—The water in Stoney Lake has never been lower for many years than it is at the present time, even last year's record for low water having been surpassed and the end is not yet. During the past two weeks the water has gone down very rapidly and within the last few days the shrinkage has been very noticeable. Rocks are popping up above the water that are usually submerged, and others deeper down, over which the steamers used to pass without any trouble, are within striking distance and as a result the steamers bump somewhere on every trip. The Islinda on the down trip to-day hit twice in places where they usually get along without any trouble. As a result of the big drop the wharves at some islands are practically useless, as the boats cannot reach them, and if the water goes down much more, navigation in some channels of the lake will be impossible. Until the logs are all run down it is expected that the present conditions will continue, and a still further drop is looked for.

Mr. Stratton's Work Speaks For Itself Appreciation Of Cottagers

At a recent meeting of the Stoney Lake Cottagers' Association, the following resolution was carried unanimously. The correspondence speaks for itself:

Hon. J. R. Stratton, Peterborough, Ontario.

Dear Mr. Stratton,—I have pleasure in enclosing you a copy of a resolution passed by a unanimous vote of those present at the regular annual meeting of the Stoney Lake Cottagers' Association, held yesterday.

The principal officers of the Association strongly endorse the view that you have done the travelling public a great service, in what you have secured in the way of improved accommodation at Juniper Island.

Sincerely yours,

H. Sutherland,

Sec.-Treas. Cottagers' Association

Moved by Mr. William Irwin, seconded by Mr. J. D. Collins,

That the thanks of the Cottagers of Stoney Lake be extended to the Government of the Dominion, and especially to its local representative for West Peterborough, Hon. J. R. Stratton, through whose representations and efforts the work has been done, for the splendid new wharf that has been erected at Juniper Island for the convenience of everybody who have occasion to do business or visit the Lakes.

The wharf was a necessity in the interests of the travelling public, and the tourists and cottagers that reside at and frequent the Lake, and it is gratifying to see the splendid work that has been done, which represents excellent value for the considerable expenditure necessitated.

Carried unanimously.

Over $5000 has been expended in building docks at Juniper Island, in which the cottagers of Stoney Lake and the travelling public derive advantages, which can only be appreciated by those who have felt the lack of accommodation in the past. The boats were sadly in need of accommodation, and the boat owners appreciate what has been done, as well as the cottagers.

Delegates To Foresters' Convention Are Greatly Pleased With City

The Executive Council of the Ancient Order of Foresters held their first meeting at the National this morning, the most of them having arrived in the city on Saturday, and the remainder coming in on the midnight C. P. R. last night.

At the meeting this morning which lasted some hours, they arranged their programme, so to speak, electing the different committees, and assigning them their respective share of the business to be dealt with. The remainder of the delegates to the convention are coming on the 7.40 C. P. R. train this evening, when they will be met by the local delegates, who will act on the reception committee. The following were to-day's arrivals up to time of going to press: Mr. J. E. Woodstock, Toronto; Mr. A. E. Wicket, Toronto; W. McCormick, Toronto; A. Webber, Winnipeg; M. A. Sanders, Sarnia; E. Ramsey, Montreal; Dr. Williams, Toronto.

The delegates are making their headquarters at the Hotel National. They spent some time to-day looking around the city, and have nothing but the highest compliments for it. To-morrow, at 1.20, they will be taken over the lift lock, and down the river, and anticipate a most enjoyable time, and no doubt their greatest anticipations will be realized. A number of the delegates have never been to the city before, in fact some have not been so far east before, and are enjoying their visit to the city immensely. The men are all in high spirits and to-day were quite confident that this would prove to be one of the most successful and profitable meetings in the history of the society.

THE CONSUMER BENEFITS.

"How will the free exchange of natural products between Canada and the United States benefit the Canadian consumer, and at the same time benefit the Canadian producer?" is often asked by the opponents of the proposed reciprocity agreement.

Taking our imports of the products dealt with under the reciprocity agreement, as a basis of calculation, we find that during the year 1910 the Dominion Government collected duties to the amount of $2,382,000 on our imports of farm products. It is quite reasonable to expect, therefore, that by the free entry of these products into Canada the Canadian consumer would save the larger portion of the duties collected by our own Government. The remission of duties, as shown by last year's trade returns, should be sufficient to convince any candid mind that free trade, in farm and food products, will result in great benefits to both the producers and the consumers of these products.

If the Canadian Government had not collected the $2,382,000 duties on the natural products consumed by the people of this country and mentioned in the agreement, the consumers of Canada would have had much more money in their pockets.

There's real practical patriotism in looking after one's pocket. It is not only patriotism, but a religious duty. St. Paul says in effect that he that neglects the comfort of his household is worse than an infidel. The thinking elector will see that by supporting reciprocity—more unhampered trade—he will be helping his home, his wife, his children, and himself.

NO QUESTIONS NEED NO ANSWER.

The Examiner has received a letter, signed H. M. S. "Thunderbolt," submitting four questions for Mr. Stratton to answer.

These questions need no answer, because they are based on conditions that do not exist. The correspondent assumes that two or three city factories he names will be injured by reciprocity, and that the employees will be discharged if reciprocity comes into force.

The correspondent is informed that not a single man, woman or child in Peterborough will lose an hour's employment. The managers of these concerns are not losing any sleep over the matter. If they were they would be after Mr. Stratton's scalp, which they are not doing, that we know of.

Reciprocity will give more work to the working man, because it will increase the farmers prosperity, and his prosperity, means the increase of national prosperity, and that means prosperity, good wages and "three square meals" a day to everybody.

Some of the industries named are more anxious for other than trade advantages, and they feel that the policy and administration of the government will promote what is essential in this regard to their prosperity.

Our correspondent, judging by his nom de plume, is a new-comer and an Englishman and no true-hearted Englishman who belongs to other than the privileged classes, will shy at larger trade. H. M. S. "Thunderbolt" is a type of hundreds of British battleships that are cruising every sea every day and night to protect Great Britain's trade, that is done with all the world.

Reciprocity is truly British, because it is free trade in farm products, that will benefit the producers, and through them, be a benefit to all.

Our correspondent may rest assured that no single interest of either is sent direct to the diseased parts by the Improved Blower. Heals the worst cases of Catarrh and Hay Fever. Sold by druggists, or sent on receipt of price. Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Toronto.

wrokingman or employer will be injured by reciprocity.

If he is earnest and sincere in seeking information, if he is not serving some partisan end, he can easily get information and not allow himself to be loaded up with false facts, upon which he found silly questions.

The real issue in this election in West Peterborough is its effective representation, and it is not at any time a safe thing to exchange horses while crossing the stream.

WILL BOOM BARLEY GROWING.

One of the farm products—one of the most profitable crops—that will be restored by reciprocity will be barley. The knocking off of the prohibitory 30 cents a bushel duty on barley, will open to the farmer a new crop and give it its proper place in a proper rotation of grains. Ontario barley is gilt edge as a malting barley and commands the highest price in the United States. It is richer in sugar than any barley grown on this continent, and is, therefore, much sought by brewers, as the best barley for malting purposes in the world. But a Conservative candidate in the next county, Mr. Thornton, of Durham, who ought to know better, says free access to the United States barley market will be of little or no value to Canada, as the United States no longer wants Canadian barley. Mr. Thornton is old enough to remember the boon the United States barley market furnished to the farmers of Durham, Peterborough, Hastings, Prince Edward and the other Lake Ontario counties until the enactment of the Dingley tariff. He also remembers the discouragement and stagnation that followed later, overcome, happily, by other industries and the general prosperity of the country for the last fifteen years.

Where Mr. Thornton and other Conservative orators err is in saying Canadian barley is not wanted in the United States. It will always be wanted, owing to its superior quality. Here are some extracts from the evidence of Mr. H. V. Burns, a Buffalo malster, who appeared before the Finance Committee of the Senate at Washington, during the hearings on the reciprocity bill in May, and appealed to them to admit Canadian barley free to give his industry a fair chance. He said:

"In 1890 Congress enacted tariff laws which completely cut off our nearest and best supply of raw material, Canadian barley."

"The present duty on barley is 30c a bushel—prohibitory."

"When you cut off our supply of barley you cut off a supply of the best barley that grows outdoors, and when you cut off that supply you lowered the standard from the best barley that grows to a No. 3 grade raised in this country."

"You never can get as much for an inferior article as you can for a superior article. Canadian barley, I have stated, always sold at a premium."

"The best malting barley, and the only barley that comes into the proposition with the malster is the barley raised in Ontario."

"I wish I could take you to the cities and towns of Oswego, Syracuse, Rochester, Jordan, Weedsport, Lyons, and other towns, and show you the malt-houses which were formerly beehives of industry, now standing as monuments of idleness. That, gentlemen, is what the prohibitory duty of 30c per bushel has cost our State."

Quotations of the prices of barley at Canadian and United States points show the great benefit that will accrue to the farmers of Ontario from their surplus barley when the 30c per bushel duty is removed, as shown by a report compiled by the Department of Labour:

	1911 Six mos.	Ave. 1908-11
Toronto—Ontario, No. 2...	.63	.57
Boston—Feed, best	.77	.69
Buffalo—Malting. 1.00		.76
Winnipeg—Western, No. 3	.56	.49
Milwaukee—Extra No. 3.	.99	.71
Duluth — Feed to choice malting	.80	.67

The total barley production in Canada in 1910 was 45,147,000 bushels, of which 20,727,000 bushels were produced in Ontario. Do the barley-growers of Ontario want to add from $5,000,000 to $7,000,000 to the value of their annual crop? Mr. Thornton must be short sighted to claim that a free barley market in the United States, where there is such a big demand for first-class malting barley will not be a benefit to the Ontario, and, especially, to Lake Front counties. The stand he takes will not raise him in the estimation of those who wish to judge reciprocity on its merits and by a fair presentation of the facts.

DID NOT EXPLAIN IT ALL.

One of Mr. Sexsmith's arguments against the free exchange of natural products with the United States is that the Canadian dairyman would be ruined by the importation of American made butter. Having perhaps established in his own mind that the Canadian butter makers are not capable of making butter good enough, or in large enough quantities to permit of our exporting to the United States' markets, he is prepared to sacrifice the interests of the lumberman, the mining interests, the growers of apples, the growers of barley and other farm produce, throughout Peterborough County, who would beyond all question be benefitted by free entry into the American market.

It is important to note that while Mr. Sexsmith claimed that the butter trade of this country was in danger of being ruined through the granting of reciprocity, he did not enlarge much on the benefits to be derived by the barley, apple and other industries in his constituency.

However, it must not for a moment be taken for granted that the butter industry of Ontario or of Canada will, as Mr. Sexsmith asserts, suffer by competition with the United States. Mr. Sexsmith would like the farmers of Peterborough County to believe so, but he cannot fool them. In a very laborious attempt to prove his case, he quotes the imports and exports of butter between Canada and the United States for the past six years. Not disputing his figures, it may be noted that he shows that in the past five years Canada imported $26,785 worth more butter from the United States than she sent to that country. This sounds very much like facts favourable to Mr. Sexsmith's contention. But he should not have stopped at this point. Had he desired to be perfectly frank with the farmers of Peterborough County he would have explained to them that the duty on Canadian butter entering the United States is 6 cents per lb., while the duty at the present time on American butter coming into Canada is only 4 cents per lb. Who, therefore, stands to gain the most by the free entry of butter into both countries? Most assuredly the Canadian farmer. At the present time, the American dairyman is protected to a greater extent than is the Canadian dairyman. THEY ARE NOT NOW ON AN EVEN FOOTING. That is perfectly plain to any fair-minded person, and Mr. Sexsmith should see this point. By the proposed agreement the dairymen of both countries would be on the same level.

A careful study of the figures read to the House by the member for East Peterborough is most interesting. Although he failed to explain the handicap of 6 cents duty, the Canadian farmer was under in trying to get his butter into the American market, he did show that we bought more butter from the United States than we sold them for the past six years. Having established the fact, Mr. Sexsmith did not care to analyze his figures any further. Had he done so, he would have found, just as the advocates of reciprocity assert, that the consumption of natural products in the United States is fast overtaking the production. Mr. Sexsmith's own figures which he read in the House, show that last year the value of our exports of butter to the States jumped from $54,994, in the year 1909, to $201,984, while the imports of United States butter fell from $156,443 in 1909 to $18,075 in 1910. Let the farmers of Peterborough County, who have received copies of Mr. Sexsmith's address in the House, examine the figures used by him and they will find these are facts; facts which bear out the contention that the United States imports of farm produce are falling off and that there is at the present time a most attractive market for the farm produce of Canada in the rapidly growing American cities. As already noted, and as may be seen by reference to Mr. Sexsmith's address, Canada, though handicapped by a duty of 6 cents per lb. sold last year $201,984 worth of butter to the United States, while that country sold only $18,075 worth of butter to Canada, notwithstanding the fact that the duty on butter entering Canada was 2 cents per lb. less than the duty on butter entering the States.

It is for reasons such as these that the Peterborough Cheese Board, the membership of which is made up of both Liberal and Conservatives unanimously passed a resolution favouring the agreement; it is for reasons such as these that the Farmers' Sun and other Canadian farm journals are fighting for the passing of the agreement; it is for reasons such as these that the Toronto News on the day following the announcement of the terms of the agreement said: "Undoubtedly the farmers of Ontario desire the removal of American custom duties on live stock, dairy products, vegetables, eggs and other articles mentioned in the agreement. Under all the circumstances we (the News) recognize that Washington has offered terms which it is difficult for Canada to reject."

However, the News, like Mr. Sexsmith, later on found that it might be good politics, although not good business, to fight the agreement, although both political parties in Canada have, for forty years, been trying to obtain the enactment of a similar agreement.

PLEADED GUILTY OF STEALING WATCH

Herbert Hughes Pleaded Guilty of Stealing Gold Watch and Fob and $19 From D. Fleming

REMANDED FOR JUDGMENT

Herbert Hughes, alias Albert Hughes, was arraigned in the police court this morning on a charge of stealing a gold watch and fob and $19.00 in cash from David Flemming at the home of Mr. John Craig, Stewart street and pleaded guilty to the charge. Crown Attorney R. E. Wood asked for a remand for a week, so the prisoner will appear for judgment on Monday, Aug. 28th. Hughes was arrested in Lindsay on Saturday morning as the result of a telephone message from Chief Thompson and was brought back to the city. He came originally from Toronto.

POST CARD COLUMN

MR. BURNHAM WEIGHED.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Some one has sent me a copy of the "Morning Times" of your city, containig a lengthy letter from Mr. J. H. Burnham, criticising an article of mine in the 'Catholic Record' on the "Church and Democracy." Mr Burnham can scarcely have read my editorial very carefully as he didn't even get my name right, and if his legal knowledge is no greater than his knowledge of even the elementary truths of Christianity, then I pity his clients. The same issue of the said paper tells us that Mr. Burnham is an Anglican. Yes, he is a fine subject for a heresy trial after the workman model. As an example of muddle-headed thinking and confused ideas Mr. Burnham's letter is unique, but I doubt if it could receive pass marks in a junior composition class. If his grasp of the problems of government is as well defined and clear as his interpretation of my article he will be quite an acquisition to the House. Will Mr. Burnham print my article in full in the "Times," and let us see if any one, except himself, will read into it his meaning? And, by the way, how comes it that Mr. J. H. Burnham, the great Protestant advocate, reads the "Catholic Record"? Perhaps the "Protestant League" would ask him to explain.

Yours,

"Columba".

A KEEPER NEEDED.

Editor Examiner:

We do not need a vigilance committee to watch J. H. Burnham. This is all a joke and the result of the hot weather on John Hampden's imagination. The only vigilance committee needed is one to watch J. H. B., to see that he does not hurt himself, and the Tory party.

HARMONY.

Aug. 21.

A SPINSTER SPEAKS.

Editor Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I would like to ask why Mr. Burnham interests himself so much in the marriage question. He has never had any practical experience or shown any practical interest in marriage. He is simply an obstinate old bachelor, queer, conceited and cranky, as old bachelors are apt to be. Why is he so excited??

Yours, etc.,

SPINSTER.

TO CHECK A COLD

It is easy to check a cold if you begin in time. Frequent doses of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine keep the cough loose, allay the inflammation, and so prevent it spreading to the bronchial tubes and lungs. Mrs. S. M. Moore, Shortreed, B.C., writes: "I wish to state my gratitude for Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, for it cured a cold which a friend said would soon put me in the grave."

A ROOF-RAISING RALLY SATURDAY NIGHT AT MR. STRATTON'S COMMITTEE ROOMS

Enthusiastic Swing of the Pendulum of Victory--A Sweeping Advance Along the Whole Line--Speeches Full of Logic, Full of Vim, Full of Confidence in a Winning Cause and Candidate--Mr. Stratton Tells Story of Signal Success He is Meeting in the Campaign--The Forecast of Victory a Month From To-day.

The rally meeting in the Stratton committee room Saturday night went with a snap and a bang from start to finish.

Eight persons took two hours to tell what they thought and how they felt about Reciprocity, and there was no overlapping, not even for a minute. Everybody had something different to say, and there was plenty left over. It was very much like the miracles of the loaves and fishes. Indeed, reciprocity is the loaves and fishes policy. It isn't often that the politicians have a subject that is so full of meat.

THE TRUE FAITH

Different people have different ways of praising reciprocity. The farmer has one way, and the workingman another, and the manufacturer—if he sees straight—another, but they all find their account in it somehow. One old gnarled and knotted Liberal from South Monaghan, who didn't get as far as the platform, put the thought at the back of his head this way: "I'm mighty glad to see it. It looks as if Liberals were getting back to the real truth. It's the first good chance they've had to give us a bit of freer trade since 1896, and we wouldn't be true to ourselves if we didn't grasp it."

AN EXPERIENCE MEETING

The committee room was crowded—jammed to the window jambs, so to speak. Walter Davidson spoke of it as a full house, whatever that means—something so good, perhaps, that you couldn't get anything better if you tried. The audience included manufacturers, business men, workingmen and farmers. Quite a bunch of Smith and South Monaghan stalwarts stayed over from Saturday market to hear the pure milk of the word Saturday night. Deputy Reeve Garbutt of Smith Township, gave a little testimony of his own. It was the rousing old sort of experience meeting based on the theme, "What Reciprocity will do for me." Everybody seemed to have got the glory.

The beauty about Reciprocity in table products is that it is a new question to the present generation of Canadians. It goes a long way toward understanding a question to be living with it from the start. Very few farmers are alive to-day who saw the last of Reciprocity in 1866, and who shed tears when it was taken away. Reciprocity, in food products, forty-five years in a trance, and reborn in 1911, is new enough to be interesting. People who don't know much about the National Policy, and have lost track of Mr. Fielding's revenue tariff which succeeded it, can keep tab on Reciprocity from the beginning. It stirs their minds as no other fiscal question could. It is a new revelation. It is a question that anybody can grasp, because it tells us about things to eat; and as there is nothing to eat in this world but food, a food policy makes everybody prick his ears up

A RALLY ALL RIGHT

All the speakers found Reciprocity what the advertising agent calls "a good talking point. The only trouble they had was to take reef enough in their sail to give the candidate deck room. Captain Stratton never had a more willing crew. To vary Mr. Tarte's famous saying, Elections are not made with speeches alone, but speeches are good medicine when they are of the right kind. The workers have been working pretty hard the last two weeks, and they were glad to sit down and listen to some heartening talk. Some of them tilted back on their chairs, and others stood. There wasn't a foot of the sawdust covered floor that didn't support its man. The long pine tables were just the thing to thump whenever a good point was scored. It was a rally all right, all right. You could tell by the tobacco smoke that the flues were drawing well. Lawyer Gordon reckoned that the tobacco smoke that overhung the meeting was a burnt offering of thanks for the good the people are about to receive under Reciprocity.

THE FARMER'S GAIN, THE WORKINGMAN'S BLESSING

Mr. R. R. Hall took the text that the farmer's prosperity is the workingman's gain, and unfolded it neatly enough. The argument ran this way. During the last fifteen years of the Conservative government there was a restrictive tariff in force and the farmer was not prosperous. His back was broken with mortgages and chattel mortgages. His land shrunk in value, farm rents went down; farms couldn't be got rid off for love or money. How was the farmer's sad plight reflected in Peterborough? The factories ran on half time, and at one third of their capacity. The workingman was not sure of his job from day to day. Out of work he more than spent his rainy-day savings. But Laurier came in, put the tariff on a business basis, unloosened the strings that tied the Northwest, and, oh! the magical change! Trade which had increased only $17,000,000 in the last ten years of Conservative rule, increased to $530,000,000 under Liberal management, the farmer made money, the factories went back to full time, and enlarged their plants, and increased the number of their hands. When the farmer has more money to buy things with it needs more workingmen to make things for him, and means better and steadier wages.

To show how Reciprocity increased the earning capacity and, by the same token, the purchasing capacity of the Canadian farmer, Chairman Hall quoted the barley and egg figures from 1880 to 1890, when these two articles were on the free list. The balance of trade in these two great staples was 30 to 1 in favour of Canada. It ought to be even more now that Canada has twice her former population, and the United States a market one-third again as big.

MR. STRATTON SPEAKS

At the Liberal committee rooms on Saturday night, Mr. Stratton raised the enthusiasm to the highest pitch by a recital of the success that is attending the present campaign in his interests and, incidentally, in the best interests of West Peterborough.

The hall was crowded to the doors with enthusiastic supporters, showing that his friends are backing him splendidly.

Mr. Stratton, when the time for addresses came, spoke briefly and and to the point. He showed that everywhere he went he found evidences of assurances of confidence in the Government's policy of wider trade, and in himself. He found scores of men who were patriotic enough to themselves, the country, and West Peterborough, to support a policy that would bring the greatest good to the greatest number, that would help everybody, the farmer, and through him, the manufacturers, the merchants, and the workingmen, the housekeepers, and the bread-winners alike. A very large number who had stood opposed to him in former elections, voluntarily tendered him their support—they were good enough to tell him that they appreciated the advantages of being well represented by a man who had shown himself willing and able to watch over the interests of the riding in all ways. He was not saying this of himself but merely indicating what his former opponents were saying. This would tend to hearten the splendid workers such as he saw before him that evening, and such as were at work for him and the cause he represented in every part of the riding. With such support there could be no doubt of the triumphant outcome on September 21st.

He pointed out that there never had been a contest that gave so much meat for thought, and so much merit and solid result, as the present one. There was no room for doubt that if Reciprocity carried—and there was no doubt of that—that it would bring advantages to all classes of the community, the workingman, the manufacturer, the merchant, the house wife—to both producer and consumer. The working man would get steadier employment at good wages—the farmer would have better prices in a larger market—he could buy more goods from the merchant, who would give larger orders to the manufacturer, who would give more employment. Competition in food stuffs would keep prices at a more decent level in the instrests of the consumer. The benefits of larger trade would go the rounds and leave a little with every man, woman and child in the land. The interests mentioned would get their share and the farmer would benefit by a wider and better market for his surplus products. The money that fills the bank, which supplies the capital that keeps the wheels of our factories moving, comes from the soil. The farm and soil products of Canada added to the capital of Canada—actually created from nothing—more than 500 million dollars a year. If the annual crop of money got from the soil should cease for one year, where would the merchant, the manufacturer, and the workingman and the people at large be?

Mr. Stratton was pleased to see that a large number of new-comers from the Mother Land were present to-night, and he showed that those of the new-comers who were misled into an alliance with the Burnhamites, were allied with the class that both in the Old Country and in the new had always held them at arms length—had always used them to promote the interests of the privileged classes, at the expense of the people—a class from which working men—the common everyday people—could expect no sympathy or support or interest except at election time, when they could, if possible, be fooled with fairy stories of disaster and ruin to the British Empire, if the everyday people got their rights. At the election in 1908 the Conservative orators—one of them—spoke at Mr. Borden's meeting here in that campaign—a Minister of the Crown, denounced the Liberal Government for allowing the "riff-raff" from the Old Country to flood Canada. Now, in this election, these new-comers are being told that the Liberal Government is their enemy. The party of the privileged classes in the last election, less than three years ago, abused Liberals for being the friends of the new-comrs; the very party that is now denouncing the Government as being the enemy of the new-comers. An Englishman, or Irishman or Scotchman, who had come to the land of big opportunity, who was worth his salt, had too much good sense to be led away by demagogues who held him so lightly in esteem that they insulted him by seeking to make him a tool to pull a politician's chestnuts from the fire.

Referring to the absurd and ridiculous and hollow and worked out cry that Reciprocity would promote annexation to the United States, Mr. Stratton said it was an insult to every true Canadian to say that he would swap his loyalty to Canada and the Empire because he got a little advantage from larger trade. For the past forty years the lumbermen of Peterborough and elsewhere had been shipping the best of their lumber to their nearest and best market, the United States. Of course they were paid in "Yankee" money, they brought that money to Canada, and used it to pay the wages of the working men the lumberman employed; and these working men in turn used this money to feed their families. Were those lumbermen and their employees corrupt and made disloyal? No; they were better Canadians than ever before. They themselves benefitted; their families benefitted by trade with the "Yankees;" they were made happier and more contented, and had more love for a country in which in addition to good living they had the benefit of the best laws, the best institutions and the best social and living conditions in the world. This annexation cry was raised by men, many of whom have never done anything to better or enrich the West Riding of West Peterborough. As the late John Henry Pope would say, "There ain't nothin' to it."

He urged his workers to impress upon the electors with whom they came in contact, that in this election they should consider that in voting they were making a choice between a something that would benefit them in pocket and purse and a nothing that had nothing to do with either.

GENEROSITY BEGINS AT HOME

Mr. W. C. Austin brought up another phase of Reciprocity which is quite as important to Peterborough as more distant matters—the reciprocity of good offices between the sitting member and his constituents. The constituency elects Hon. J. R. Stratton, and Hon. J. R. Stratton gets what good things he can for West Peterborough in the way of Public Works. Hon. J. R. Stratton has had his hand on the job of getting Peterborough's share of benefits for the last twenty-five years. Whenever there was a shower of Government blessing to be pulled off at Toronto or Ottawa, Hon. J. R. Stratton was there without his umbrella to see that West Peterborough got every drop that was coming to her. Hon. J. R. Stratton has a white plume that he keeps short-clipped. He earned most of it working overtime for Peterborough. The high and mighty critics on the other side pretend to sniff at Government favours for their constituencies, but no one ever saw them turning one down when it came their way. Even as big a man as Augustus Cæsar was proud of having done something for his constituents. His one best boast was: "I found Rome brick, and left it marble." Hon. J. R. Stratton may not have accomplished quite that much, but when he is dead and gone and somebody enquires for his monument, the public spirited citizen will reply: "Oh, just look around. See that post office there? J. R. had it improved and brought up to date. Notice our rural mail service? J. R. landed that. See those wharves on the Otopabee and Monaghan sides of the river? Well, J. R. got those." "Who got the settlement with Peterborough and Victoria by which for the benefit of the city, Mud Lake and Pigeon Lake bridges were maintained, and an iron bridge was built by the then Ontario Government at Kinmount? Who, but Hon. J. R. Stratton. Who built the good roads into the back country for the settlers? Who but Hon. J. R. Stratton. Who secured for Peterborough the water front the grafters were after, which is so valuable to the city? Who, but Hon. J. R. Stratton? Who gave to the city the armouries? Who but Hon. J. R. Stratton's government? What government saved the County of Peterborough the expense of building and maintaining a bridge at Buckhorn, which would have cost $20-000? Who gave to the City of Peterborough the Wolfe street wharf? Who but the government that Hon. J. R. Stratton supports? What government was it that built at the village of Lakefield a dock that is such a convenience to the travelling public and the boat owners? Was it not the government that Hon. J. R. Stratton supports? Was it not upon Mr. Stratton's recommendaion that a splendid new wharf was built at Juniper Island, and another is under way at Mount Julian? What government was it that settled nearly all the claims for damages for drowned lands that had been standing for twenty years under a Conservative Government? Why the Government that Hon. J. R. Stratton supports. What Government has accepted the arbitration price and taken Mr. Hatton's land in order to build a large dock which will be of immense benefit to Peterborough? What Government has under consideration a bridge at Gannon's Narrows? Why what other Government could it be than the one Hon. J. R. Stratton supports? Who is conferring with Mackenzie & Mann with a view to having the Radial Railway build a branch through South and North Monaghan to Peterborough, when their plans are fully determined for the extension of the Oshawa Radial Railway? Who but Hon. J. R. Stratton. What Government has assumed all the swing bridges from Rice Lake to Peterborough, which had to be kept up by the counties? Who but Hon. J. R. Stratton's Government?"

"I could keep this going all night," Mr. Austin remarked, "if I didn't have to stop to take breath. Our candidate is a worker. The other man spends half his time walking along George street with a cane in his hand doing nothing. He would like to be a Member of Parliament. He seems to be always running, but he is better built for standing still." Mr. Austin's telling remarks were warmly received.

A BRACE OF BRITISH BORN

Arthur Hawkes makes a great splutter rallying the British Born. Of course we are all British Born if we are born in the British Empire and one is just as British born and as proud of it as the other. But Hawkes pretends to believe that those who are born in England, but who have come out here to better themselves are more British Born than the rest of us, and need more rallying. Hawkes is all wrong. Stratton's rally is good enough for any sensible British Born, whether they are born in England, or born on the spot. A man may be a Son of England, but if he is also a Father of a Family he will appreciate cheap living and Reciprocity.

Mr. Jacob Dawson and Mr. Thomas Hall are two British born who know enough to rally to the side their bread is buttered on. Dawson and Hall are two first class mechanics in the Canadian General Electric Shops. They have been out here a year or two. They have just enough accent left to tell where they came from. They are none the less British born because they are good Canadians and good Liberals, although Hawkes would have you think that every Canadian immigrant who was born in England should tie up to the Conservative party in Canada. Mr. Jacob Dawson and Mr. Thomas Hall do not think that way. They have been out here long enough to know better. They appeared at Mr. Stratton's rally Saturday night, and said so. When they belonged to the working classes in England they never tripped over the Conservative party handing them gifts. On the contrary they found that all their benefits, including wider franchise, better education and lightened taxes came from the Liberals. When they reached Canada they found the same thing here. It was the Liberal Party that gave the workingman a Department of Labour and a Conciliation Act and a Labour Gazette to look after his interests, and last but not least, Reciprocity and cheaper living. The only thing Messrs. Dawson and Hall found the Conservative party in Canada doing for the labouring man was sending George Tate Blackstock, George Foster, A. E. Pratt and others to England to argue for dear bread.

AN ENGLISHMAN ON LOYALTY

"I'm an Englishmen and a Canadian," said Mr. Dawson, "and I know something about Canadian history. I know enough to laugh at Mr. J. H. Burnham when he says that Sir Wilfrid Laurier is negotiating us into disloyalty to the British Crown when he negotiates us into Reciprocity with the United States."

Mr. Dawson warmed to his work an dasked this question, which will take some answering: "Who," he said, "who, but Sir Wilfrid Laurier, was it that gave England a British Preference, although the Tories voted against it? Who sent Canadian soldiers to South South Africa, when Mr. J. H. Burnham could find nothing better to do than write to the newspapers opposing the Boer war? Who gave Canada a navy that will help England in a pinch? Who was the shining figure at the Colonial Conference? Who gave Canada penny postage, and theexiled Englishman a chance to send a bit of his heart over three thousand miles of blue water for two cents? Who gave the honest hard-working Englishman a new hope in a new country? What man is there in Canada who has done or would or could have have done more for England and the Empire than Sir Wilfrid Laurier?"

Mr. Thos. Hall backed up his chum in everything he said. Every Englishman in Peterborough, he said, should vote for Laurier and Stratton, and the Liberals, from whom most of the workingman's blessings flow. When Mr. Hall got on the food benefits of Reciprocity he confessed that his mouth watered.

"I'm going to have my chance now," he remarked, "to sink a tooth into those fine southern fruits and vegetables that will come in here duty free at a time when I cannot get the Canadian article."

SOME CHEERFUL REFLECTIONS

Deputy-Reeve Garbutt dwelt on the wider market for the Canadian farmer and the correspondingly harder task of the Canadian middleman in building up food monopolies.

Mr. W. H. Meldrum wondered at the timid Canadian miller who could fear United States competition in wheat or flour when Canada was strong enough to be edging the American product out of the British market in the face of trade foes like Argentia, Russia, Egypt and India. If we cannot compete in our own home market—which is not open to Argentina, Russia, Egypt and India—with the rival we are slowly but surely pushing out of the British market, then whom can we compete with?

THE EAST PETERBOROUGH CANDIDATE

Mr. F. D. Kerr, the Liberal candidate in East Peterborough, was warmly received. He said he had not been in Peterborough much the past week but he was glad to say that from what he could see of West Peterborough, the election would go the same way as before. The meeting showed in what quarter the wind sat. For his own part he was satisfied that he would bring East Peterborough into line.

Mr. Kerr rapped the Mail and Empire hard for imputing annexation leanings to Sir Wilfrid Laurier. He performed to take the good words of a man like the Premier of England himself and the Members of his Cabinet as to Sir Wilfrid Laurier's motives than the Mail and Empire's bilious remarks.

Mr. Stratton then wound up his meeting by asking his friends to see that all his supporters were registered on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday next.

No. 3 Troop Boy Scouts

There will be a meeting of all the boys of the 3rd Troop in the Y.M.C.A. on Monday night at 7.30 sharp, to make arrangements for the Exhibition. All the boys of the 3rd Troop who are going must hand in their names, as there will have to be extra drilling done. The 3rd Troop must uphold the good name they got last year among the 2,000 scouts. If possible there will be a first aid display put on in Toronto, so every boy who wants to take part must be on hand Monday night. Full uniform must be worn. Major Clegg has kindly granted shoulder straps for the blankets.

W. J. MILLER,
Scout Master, 3rd Patrol.

Let me here thank Mr. John on behalf of the 3rd Troop for so kindly giving us the tea and cocoa needed for camp, free of charge. We are all deeply indebted. Yours truly,

W. J. MILLER,
Scout Master, 3rd Patrol.

AWARDED SCHOLARSHIP

The many friends of Miss Margaret Anderson will learn with pleasure that she was awarded the first Edward Blake scholarship, the gift of the Hon. Edward Blake, ex-Chancellor of the University, of the value of $60, with free tuition for three years, of a total value of $180.00. She also secured 3rd prize honours in Mathematics. Miss Anderson deserves much credit for such a successful showing and will receive the congratulation of a large circle of friends.

It may be of interest to know that the same prize was won by Miss Katheryn Brunette, last year.

FIRE AT GAS WORKS

About fifty dollars' damage was done in a fire, which broke out between the partition in the boiler room at the gas works on Saturday about one o'clock. The brigade received a call at 1.04 from Box 22, and responded promptly. A steam pipe in the boiler bursted, but there was no person hurt.

RICHARD HALL & SON

Encouraging Crop Report For Province Of Ontario

The following statement regarding the condition of crops in the Province based upon returns of correspondents, under date of August 5th, has been issued by the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

Fall wheat:—According to the May bulletin, this crop suffered more or less from winter-killing, in many counties, and a considerable area of fall wheat land had to be plowed up, or was resown with spring grains. Returns just to hand show a wide variation, both in yield and quality reported, ranging from poor to good; but the average yield per acre will be decidedly less than usual. The excessive heat and drouth that prevailed at times, in May and June caused the crop to be shorter in stand than usual, and some of the grain is described as having been shrunken by premature ripening. On the other hand some correspondents speak of the kernel as being plump and a good sample, and claim that fall wheat is the best grain crop of the year. The straw, while short is generally clean and bright. Smut is reported by only a few correspondents, but occasional mention was made of the presence of Hessian fly in every county west of York and Simcoe (inclusive), except Grey, Bruce, Huron and Essex. Harvesting was earlier than usual, ranging from the 3rd to the 20th of July, and weather conditions then were, on the whole, very favourable.

Spring Wheat.—This crop, like all the grains, suffered from the drouth and unusual heat of the season. Although short in straw, heads have filled in well, and the grain is said to be of good quality, generally. While some spring wheat was harvested in the last week of July, much of the crop remained to be cut when correspondents reported. There is less spring wheat grown in Ontario than formerly.

Barley.—This crop will also be below the average in yield. The straw is described as being short, but clean. While the grain will be rather lighter in weight than usual, owing to the great drouth, no complaints of discoloration have been received. Cutting ranged from the 10th to the 28th of July.

Oats.—Oats have fared the worst of the grain crops, although some good yields are reported. Owing to the drouth and excessive heat during growth, the straw is very short, although standing up nicely, but the heads are not well filled, nor is the bulk of the grain as plump as usual. In several sections of the Province a heavy wind storm threshed out some of the ripening oats. Complaints of rust have come from different districts. While some are through harvesting oats, others have not yet begun cutting.

Rye.—Where grown for grain this crop has been of fair yield and quality, although short in straw.

Peas.—The unusually high temperature prevailing at different periods of the growing season told severely upon peas, reports of the blossoms drying up owing to the heat and drouth. Some correspondents say a portion of the crop had to be cut for green feed, owing to poor podding, although some good yields have also been reported. Only odd mention was made of the presence of the weevil. While some of the crop is yet green and growing, a considerable portion has been harvested.

Beans.—There has been too much heat and too little rain for beans in the first stage of growth, but some correspondents are of the opinion that there is ample opportunity for the crop to pick up before it is ready for harvesting in the early part of September.

Hay and clover.—Clover did not winter well, and in many quarters the excessive heat and drouth of May and June added to that drawback. However, while in the western half of the Province the hay crop will average low, good yields are reported in many of the counties in the eastern portion. The crop was well saved, generally speaking, and where not delayed too long in cutting is of first class quality. Red clover did not do so well as timothy. The crop has been remarkably free from insect pests this season. Cutting extended from the 20th of June to the end of July.

Corn.—Late planting, owing to drouth of May, was the greatest drawback to the corn crop. Once the young plants got a start the heat, that was so trying to the cereal crops by unduly hastening ripening, rather suited growth, except in a few instances where the drouth was almost too much eve for corn. Recent rains brought the crop forward with a leap and a good yield is anticipated. Corn is steadily growing in favour as a fodder crop.

Tobacco.—The ground was exceedingly dry at planting, and the crop did not get a good start, while the ensuing hot and dry weather was trying to growth. In some fields grubs also attacked the young plants, necessitating considerable resowing. Notwithstanding these drawbacks the present conditions of the crop is described as being from fair to good, while the expected yield ranges from half a crop to a ton of dry leaf per acre.

Potatoes.—A light yield of small potatoes will be the general rule, as the season has been too dry for best results. Early planted suffered most, and some correspondents claim that timely rains may yet redeem those later grown. The Colorado beetle has been more complained of than for years. Blight was reported in two or three places in some of the eastern counties, but no mention has been made of rot.

Roots.—All classes of roots experienced a poor start, on account of the drouth delaying or preventing the seed from germinating. Early sown turnips look better than those put in later, but the crop generally is reported to be doing poorly. Mangels are more promising, and with favourable growing weather may yet make a good show. Sugar beets are described as looking thrifty.

Fruit.—Some correspondents claim that the unusually hot weather at the time of blossoming affected the setting of fruit. Apples will be light in total yield, as in addition to poor setting, a considerable portion of this and other fruits was blown off the trees by high winds late in July. Winter apples will be scarce in nearly every locality, but in most quarters there fair supply of Duchess and other varieties, all classes of apples are much freer from spot or scab than usual. ePars, while greatly thinned by the wind storms, are yielding better relatively than apples. Plums range all the way from poor to heavy in yield, and have done best where sprayed. There will be a medium yield of peaches; the later varieties giving the best promise. Cherries, as a rule, did well although some complain of poor returns. Grapes, so far, have every prospect of success. Small fruits promised well early in the season, but failed to fulfil expectations, owing to the intense heat prevailing just before ripening period.

An English Chemist Has Discovered How to Grow Hair

In England the ladies have entirely abandoned wearing rats, which is due entirely to this new discovery.

It has been proven that Henna leaves contain the ingredients that will positively grow hair. That they contain this long-looked-for article is proven every day.

The Americans are now placing on the market a preparation containing the extract from Henna leaves, which is having a phenomenal sale.

This preparation is called SALVIA, and is being sold with a guarantee to cure Dandruff and to grow hair in abundance. Being daintily perfumed, SALVIA makes a most pleasant hair dressing. McDermid and Jury, your druggist, is the first to import this preparation into Peterborough, and a large, generous bottle can be purchased for 50c.

The Reciprocity agreement saves the people from those who would monopolize their food supply.

IN HER HUSBAND'S SERVICE

A Short Story.

Arriving home after spending an evening with a married friend, John Martin felt the loneliness of bachelorhood for the first time.

John had reached 50, and only now had the desire for companionship come upon him in one fell swoop. His friend's wife was fluffy-haired, tinkled the piano agreeably, lisped plaintive songs in a minor key, and set him thinking of the romantic side of life.

A prosperous draper was John Martin, employing some 200 assistants of both sexes, but, for all his wealth, it had never occurred to him that a wife would be a pleasant acquisition till now.

"I'll advertise," said he, being a strictly business man. "Must be musical," he wrote, 'of cheerful disposition. Means not necessary, but desirable." Then he signed himself "Lonely," directed it to a matrimonial paper, and posted it with his own hands.

There were many aspirants—and some painfully eager—but it was the one signed "Blushing" that impressed him most. It ran: "Dear Sir,—If your intentions are serious, I honestly think I could fill the requirements stated. I am a clerk and cashier in a large drapery establishment, and have no private means. I am thoroughly musical, playing both piano and violin; besides having a good contralto voice. My age is 25. I am tall, fair, considered even-tempered and would like very much to be happily married."

John liked the tone. It sounded fresh and girlish, with a dash of straightforwardness that others lacked. He arranged an interview, still using his nom de plume, "Lonely."

The big waiting room on the London, Brighton and South Coast side of Victoria Station is eminently suited for a meeting place, and it found him, one June evening, waiting the advent of his divinity, clutching between his moist fingers a small bunch of Parma violets, as agreed upon.

Shortly after 8 a lady answering to the description given peered in at the open door, but, feeling John, fled hastily, yet not before he had caught sight of her tell-tale violets. He pursued and caught up to her just as she was making a rapid exit into Wilton Road.

"I beg your pardon," he said, touching her on the shoulder, "but are you 'Blushing?'"

"Yes," she answered timidly, and, indeed, she was, for her dimpled cheeks betrayed it.

"I'm 'Lonely,'" he explained, "or, rather, I was until you came." Then they both laughed and felt more at ease.

That evening was a revelation to John. Before the night was over she had confided to him her history.

It was not a long story—just the death of a dearly beloved parent and another woman in her place, a jealous step-mother, combined with a weak, foolish father, causing wholesale misery, then flight to earn her own bread; and that was all.

A pretty little wedding at a church in Norwood consummated their happiness, but before the ceremony took place Dorothy made a request:

"I want to hold my berth a few weeks longer. May I?" she pleaded.

"Seems rather absurd," he grumbled, "the wife of a rich man toiling in a dingy office for a paltry wage."

"Oh, please say 'yes.' It will be so delightful to know that, though I am working, it doesn't really matter."

And John, partly understanding, kissed the pleading mouth, and consented.

So each morning early Dorothy Martin left her beautiful home, returning in the evening before dinner to gladden her husband's heart and make him bless the day he married her.

Open in all her dealings, on one point she had remained obdurate—that was in withholding the name and address of her employer. "You will know one day," she constantly assured John, and one day, sure enough, he did.

In her little square cage of an office, perched on a high stool, sat Dorothy one hot afternoon. From the position she occupied, centre and extreme back of the premises, she faced the people shopping at the counters running right and left. There was a temporary lull, and the tired, white-faced assistants were listlessly moving to and fro, rearranging their departments, whilst the suave shop-walker strutted up like an irate turkey-cock.

"Now, Miss Clarke, hurry up and put that dress material away. You seem to be half asleep." He turned to another. "Why did you let the lady go without a purchase?"

"We had nothing in stock to match her ribbon, sir," answered the girl, penitently.

"Bosh!" he cried, rudely, then stopped to whisper something to a lady more favoured.

Dorothy had turned in loathing from the man's advances, so he had bided his time for revenge. Now it had come, and seizing this stuck moment, he marched up to her desk with a triumphant leer.

"You know the rules, and you've been late two mornings this week. Instantly dismissed by right, but I'll give you till Saturday to clear out."

Dorothy slid on to the floor from her perch, and, opening the office door, turned to face him.

"You will give me till Saturday? Then let me tell you, coward that you are, it is you who will go, not I, but instead of waiting till Saturday, you go now!"

Rage held him speechless for a moment, then he advanced threateningly towards her just as a newcomer arrived on the scene.

Dorothy gave a start of glad surprise, and went back to meet—her husband. He stared in bewilderment, then a light broke in—he understood.

"I have had to discharge this man for his insolence, John," she said, pointing to the crestfallen shop-walker. "My husband or I will pay the salary due to you as soon as your package is packed and you are ready to go," she concluded, walking past him to the office.

The man slunk away as John clinched her peremptory order with a decisive nod.—Reynolds' Newspaper.

TWO ACCIDENTS

There were two accidents in the machine shop of the Canadian General Electric Company on Saturday. An employee named Bonniff had his finger caught in some machinery and painfully bruised and cut. He was removed to Nicholls Hospital where his injuries were attended by Dr. Young.

Another employee named Spinett had the misfortune to have a quantity of iron fall upon his leg, bruising the limb considerably. Dr. Young attended him. The injury is not serious, although productive of considerable pain.

ADDRESS OF MR. STRATTON TO THE ELECTORATE

Electors of the West Riding of Peterborough

GENTLEMEN,—

At a largely attended mass meeting of the electors, on Saturday, I was selected as candidate to contest the representation of the Riding in the House of Commons. I accepted the responsibility of the position and hereby respectfully solicit the favour of your votes and support.

I am well known to you all, for during a representative service of West Peterborough, practically extending over a period of twenty-five years, I have many times come into contact, directly and indirectly, with every elector of the Riding.

In the past I have been honoured with your confidence, and I have earnestly striven to deserve it. In the discharge of my parliamentary and, especially of my representative duties, I have tried to consistently recognize and live up to the fact that I was the representative of the whole people, and in duty bound to serve the interests of all collectively and individually, whether their support had assisted, or their opposition had resisted, my election.

I need not refer to my record to specify what I have been privileged to do in the promotion of the material, moral and social welfare of West Peterborough. My work in this regard, be it little or great, is known to you all. You all know whether or not I have been a faithful servant of the people, whether the Riding is better, and in what respects, from my having been your representative.

I need not be at much pains to define my position in this contest. Everybody knows where I stand—where I am to be found. Such as I have been in the endeavour to advance your interests, I still am, and shall continue to be, if you honour me with re-election.

Apart from the consideration of local—city and county—interests, the national question chiefly involved in this contest is "Reciprocity," or free mutual exchange of natural, mainly farm, products, with the United States. I believe that reciprocity of this kind will be of benefit to the farmers of the country, and through their prosperity to all other interests—manufacturing, financial and commercial, as well as to those of the mechanic and workingman.

The round of benefit is natural. Good crops and good markets mean money for the farmer, which spent with the merchants of all kinds, means increased orders for the manufacturer and increased employment to their workmen. Thus Reciprocity, by affording wider and better markets, promises to be a benefit to the whole country and an injury to no class or interest; and is worth trying, especially as the agreement, not being a treaty, can, if unsatisfactory, be cancelled on reasonable notice.

If I thought for a moment that it would hurt any important interest, especially the manufacturing interest, I would oppose it. I am neither an extreme free trader, nor an extreme protectionist. I believe in a reasonable amount of both. High tariff in the United States has lost to Canada ninety million dollars in barley alone. The British Preference as it affects our manufacturers goes as far as desirable in the direction of free trade and I am opposed to, and will oppose, any increase of it. I myself am a manufacturer or interested in manufactures, in a modest way, but, at the same time, to an extent, important to myself and my associates, and I feel that our industries and working men could not stand the keen manufacturing competition of either Britain or the United States.

In this regard, I am in accord with the assurance of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, speaking for the Government, when he gave this pledge, "WE HAVE NOT HURT THE MANUFACTURERS AND WILL NOT HURT THEM," and I applaud the stand of Mr. Fielding in negotiating the Reciprocity Agreement, in refusing to even discuss reciprocity in manufactured articles with the United States.

If you approve, gentlemen, of what I consider the reasonable stand I take in relation to national interests; if you believe, judging from my past record of service to the Riding, that I have the business capacity, the business and parliamentary experience to continue to give you good service, and justify the confidence I now ask you to again place in me, I presume to claim your support.

This is probably the last appeal I shall make to you; for I think I have done my share of service to this Riding and have thereby earned the opportunity to give the necessary attention to my private affairs. I should have persisted in my desire to be relieved had I not felt in duty bound to defer to the earnest solicitation of the friends who have stood by me in the past, and also of a great many of my former opponents, and consented to be a candidate.

Another reason that influenced my acceptance, was, that being of a business turn, I naturally desired to complete work I have initiated, and for which I am in some degree, if the opportunity is given me, responsible. I should like to see the completion of the large new docks for the City of Peterborough; of the retaining wall on our river front in Peterborough; also a new concrete dam at Nassau erected, and a Rifle Range provided for this important military centre.

Trusting that I may be favoured with your effective support, I have the honour to remain, gentlemen, as I have been for the past twenty-five years,

Your Obedient Servant,

J. P. Stratton

INTERESTING REMINISCENCES OF NORTH-WEST REBELLION

Mr. R. J. Bennett Who Has Returned to Peterborough After an Absence of Thirty-two Years, Tells the Examiner of Some of His Experiences at Cut-Knife Creek and Elsewhere During the Trouble.

After a long absence of thirty-two years Mr. R. J. Bennett has returned to Peterborough and is staying with his sister, Mrs. Fair, 460 Sherbrooke street. He is looking exceedingly hale and hearty and the radiant faces of all the members of the household were significant of the pleasure felt at the reunion.

Interviewed by an Examiner representative this morning Mr. Bennett gave some of his experiences. He was lumbering for six years in Michigan and Minnesota, for two years railroading for the C. P. R., and was actively engaged in the "Rising of '85" in the North West territory. On marrying, some 20 years ago last September, he, with his wife, made a trip to California and visited, among other cities, Los Angeles and San Francisco. His wife passed away two years ago. In North Dakota Mr. Bennett was engaged in cattle raising, but in the fatal year of '85-7 he lost $5,800 worth of stock.

In the "Rising of '85" he, with his four-horse team, was commissioned to go to the front. His little company therefore, set out for Cut Knife Creek where a party of Indians were stationed under Poundmaker, their chief. They left Battleford at three o'clock in the afternoon, and got to the Creek at 5 o'clock in the morning. Fighting was immediately commenced and continued until 11 o'clock. By this time nine of the "pale faces" had been killed and thirteen wounded; the remainder, therefore, retreated, and went back to Battleford.

Two years later Mr. Bennett was sent down the trail with nine others, for provisions. The provisions were loaded safely from a place situated about ninety miles from Battleford. They had not covered many miles on their return journey, when twenty-one of their ox-teams and nine horse-teams and teamsters were captured by the Indians, and the remaining men, including Mr. Bennett, were hotly pursued by the Indians.

Meanwhile the horse teamster escaped. After covering a distance of some seven miles, the members of Mr. Bennett's little company made a kind of fort. At daylight, next morning, the little camp was alive with the news that a man could be seen on the prairie. With their fighting blood up, they lost no time in closing in with their supposed victim, who, they were surprised to find, was none other than one of the escaped teamsters. The man had walked thirty-eight miles that night. On the dawning of the next day Mr. Bennett was the only one to volunteer to go to Saskatchewan to "give the word" of the rising. This journey was safely accomplished and the necessary preparations made at Saskatchewan to subdue the Indians. Reel and Poundmaker, it may be remembered were both hanged.

Mr. Bennett says he intends returning to the States on the 1st of October, but if the views of the other members of the household are to be taken into consideration, his intentions will be frustrated.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Alfred B. McMillan, who died Aug. 21st, 1909:

Just two years ago to-day since our dear boy passed away,
God called him home, it was His will,
But in our hearts he liveth still,
His memory is as dear to-day as in the hour he passed away.

He died in Jesus and is blessed,
How calm his slumbers are;
From sufferings from woes released
And freed from every care.

We loved him, yes no tongue can tell
How much we loved him, and how well;
God loved him, too, and He thought best
To take him home with Him to rest;
No pains, no griefs, no anxious fears
Can reach our loved one sleeping here.

Sleep on, thou loved one, sleep,
Sleep until thy mother comes
To join thee in thy joys above,
In heaven, our happy home.
MOTHER.

Sleep, brother dear and take your rest,
God called you home, He thought it best;
'Twas hard indeed to part with thee,
But Christ's strong arms supported me.
SISTER AND BROTHERS.

Broke Through The Bridge

On Saturday evening a threshing outfit, owned by Mr. Greenwood, and commissioned for work by Mr. Tom Aslatt, was crossing the bridge on Concession street, near Downer's Corners, when several of the planks gave way and one of the wheels of the machine sank into the bridge, up to the hub. This necessitated an all-night watch for the accompanying men who had to stand by with lighted lamps for the safety of any passing vehicles. At daybreak jacks were obtained and the threshing outfit, after being liberated, continued its journey, none the worse for its experience.

Baby Eczema For Three Years

Three Doctors and Scores of Treatments Failed

The Dreadful Itching Was Stopped and the Sores Healed by

Dr. Chase's Ointment

Here is an illustration of the wonderful control which Dr. Chase's Ointment has over torturing, itching eczema. By its soothing influence it stops the itching, and it heals the sores as if by magic.

Mrs. W m.Miller, St. Catharines, Ont., write:—"My daughter Mary, when six months old, contracted eczema, and for three years the disease baffled all treatment. Her case was one of the worst that had ever come under my notice, and she apparently suffered what no pen could ever describe. I had three different doctors attend her, all to no purpose whatever, and all kinds of balms, soaps and lotions were tried, with no results.

"Finally I decided to try Dr. Chase's Ointment, and to my surprise she immediately began to improve, and was completely cured of that long-standing disease. That was four years ago, when we lived at Cornwall, Ont., and as not a symptom has shown itself since, the cure must be permanent. With a grateful heart I give this testimony to the great value of Dr. Chase's Ointment."

It scores of ways Dr. Chase's Ointment is useful in every home to allay skin irritations and heal and cure sores, wounds and ulcers. 60 cents a box at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

WE were all pleased the other morning to see a touring car stopping in front of the house next door.

"It is Mrs. L.'s cousin," we announced to each other with neighbourly interest. "He has come to take her autoing. Isn't that splendid? It's such a beautiful day, and she has had no vacation and needs some recreation so much. It will do her worlds of good."

A few minutes later we observed with neighbourly concern that the car departed without Mrs. L.

In the forenoon, Mrs. L., in the course of a run-in, communicated the fact to us that it had been her cousin, and that he had come to take her on an all-day drive.

"And why didn't you go?" we inquired.

"Well, I did want," to sighed Mrs. L., "but you know I had planned to put up my grape jelly to-day, so I really couldn't."

"Couldn't the jelly have waited until to-morrow?" we ventured to ask.

"Oh, yes; I suppose so," said Mrs. L.; "but I'd planned it for to-day, so I didn't like to put it off."

And yet such opportunities come to Mrs. L. not more than once or twice a year.

What a terrible thing slavery is.

Whether the master be another human being or one's possessions or one's fears or— as in this case—one's plans.

"He who every morning plans the transactions of the day and follows out that plan carries a thread that will guide him through the labyrinth of the more busy life," says Victor Hugo.

I most thoroughly agree as to the advisability of such a course, so long, and only so long, as he allows the thread to guide him and not to drag him: so long, and only so long, as he knows when he will gain most by not following out that plan.

A well-known English essayist who believes that the greatest good can be gotten out of life by having some definite programme for the day, nevertheless has the sense to point out that to treat our programmes with exactly the right amount of deference, to live with not too much and not too little elasticity, is scarcely the simple matter it may appear to the inexperienced

He evidently had met people like Mrs. L., for he goes on to say, "I know men whose lives are a burden to themselves and a distressing burden to their relatives, and friends because they would worship a daily programme as a fetich. 'Oh, no,' I have heard the martyred wife exclaim, 'Arthur always takes the dog out at eight o'clock and begins to read at a quarter to nine. So it's quite out of the question that we should, etc., etc. And the note of absolute finality in that plaintive voice reveals the unsuspected tragedy of a career."

The folly of going to such an extreme is surely as great as the folly of the man who will never make any definite and systematic plans.

The wise men and women are those who have definite programmes for their time, but who always remember that the programme exists for them, not they for the programme.

SEVERAL BUSH FIRES BURNING AT STONEY LAKE

Woods Near McCracken's Landing Have Been on Fire for a Week but There Seems to be no Danger---Mrs. Wes. Sherin Was Victim of Painful Accident Saturday Night

Special to The Examiner

STONEY LAKE, AUG. 21—Although the calendar indicates that the vacation season is beginning to draw to an end, there are, however, few signs of the decline of the summer at Stoney Lake. The cottages are still all open and the round of fishing parties, shore dinners, etc., continues unabated, while the weekly dance in the pavilion at Juniper Island on Saturday night was well attended. The upboats on Saturday had their usual big crowds of week-end visitors.

Capt. Pat. Young, of the Islinda, who has been ill for the past few days was so far recovered on Saturday night as to be able to resume his duties. Mr. Frank Young, the manager of the Stoney Lake Navigation Company, had been "subbing" for his brother during the week.

The travelling public as well as the hundreds of Peterborough people who patronize the steamer, will be sorry to learn that the genial Peter Ayotte of the crew of the "Stoney Lake" is ill at his home at Young's Point, threatened with an attack of typhoid fever.

An important real estate change took place here last week, when Mr. S. H. Henderson, of Toronto, who for many years has been a cottager at Stoney Lake and who is one of the most prominent members of the Cottagers' Association, purchased the Indian Reservation Island near the head of the lake from the estate of A. Macdonald. The property consists of a large island, covered with beautiful pines, to such an extent that it is known as Piney Island. Mr. Henderson informed your correspondent on Saturday that it is his intention to erect a hunting lodge on his new property and will visit Stoney Lake each autumn.

Several bush fires have been burning close to the lake for the past few days, but are not considered dangerous. One of these fires broke out in the woods near McCracken's Landing over a week ago, and has been burning steadily ever since, a dense cloud of smoke being visible from all parts of the lake. Another smaller fire has been burning on the Burleigh shore, near "Anchorage," Mr. Rich Hall's island.

The annual meeting of the East End Cottagers' Association will be held on Friday evening next in the pavilion at Crowe's Landing, for the election of officers, etc. A full attendance of the members of the Association is expected.

Quite a number of Stoney Lake people are making arrangements for the trip over to Chemong on Thursday afternoon to attend the regatta. Stoney Lake expects to carry off its share of the prizes.

An unfortunate accident occurred on the "Islinda" on the up-trip on Saturday night, by which Mrs. Wesley Sherin, of Lakefield, was the victim. She was coming downstairs from the upper deck when she slipped and fell to the bottom, sustaining a bad shaking up and straining her back so that she had to be assisted off the steamer.

Police Magistrate and Mrs. Dumble came up to "Ballyraggie" for the week end.

Mr. George Lundy was a guest at "Anchorage" for the week end.

Mr. Harry Hall [illegible] Sunday at "Anchorage."

Mr. John Jeffries, assistant superintendent of the Allis-Chalmers Co., Milwaukee, is the guest of his father-in-law, Mr. W. G. Ferguson, Boschink.

Mr. Chas. Richor was one of the week-end contingent.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Hall and family came up to Sndiogte Island on Saturday.

Mayor Morrow motored up to Gilchrist bay to spend Sunday at "Oakdene" his summer home.

Col. E. B. Clegg spent Sunday at his cottage at Sandy Bay.

Mr. David Carlisle came up to "Upsidon" on Saturday.

Mr. Dickson Davidson and Miss Nina Davidson were the guests of his Worship Mayor Morrow at "Oakdene" over Sunday.

Miss Rutherford is the guest of her sister, Mrs. J. D. Craig.

Mr. Thos. Hull and party of Rochester, who have been camping for the past few weeks at Hilliard's Island, returned home on Saturday. They had great luck with the rod and line and trawl. Mr. Hull himself carrying off premier honours, by gathering in a twenty pound maskinonge.

Mr. and Mrs. Zipp, of Buffalo, N.Y., have returned home after a pleasant holiday at "Bellevidere."

Mr. Jack Adams, of Toronto, is the guest of Mr. A. B. Mitchell at "Sunnyside."

Miss Williams of Norwood came up to her cottage, "Maplehurst," last week to spend the next month.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. McRain came up to "Bona Vista" on Saturday afternoon.

$13,000 Awarded To Mr. Hatton For Property At Spaulding's Bay

It is well known to the people of Peterborough that Hon. J. R. Stratton has been, for the past couple of years, endeavouring to arrange for the erection of a large dock, 400 by 250 feet, at the southern portion of the city, immediately south of the Matthews Packing House on George street. The matter was delayed on account of a dispute over the price asked for the property by Mr. G. W. Hatton, who asked $16,000, which the Government declined to pay. At the suggestion of Mr. Stratton, His Honour Judge Huycke, Mr. Wm. Langford, chairman of the Court of Revision, and Mr. S. H. McClellan, superintendent of the canal, were appointed auditors. After hearing the evidence submitted, an award was made three weeks ago of $13,000. The Government accepted the award and Mr. Hatton has been officially informed that the property would be accepted by the Government.

The work will be begun as soon as the preliminary arrangements are completed. This will be an important public work for the canal, and will incidentally be of great service to the city. No doubt the people will hardly be able to fully appreciate the advantages until the completion of the work. Mr. Stratton has been instrumental in having, in the past three years, a very large amount of improvements made along the waterway and on the Government property, and there can be no doubt that the re-election of Mr. Stratton is necessary and essential for the completion of the important public works undertaken by him in connection with the growth of the city.

As Hon. George P. Graham put it at Brockville: "Did you ever hear of the removal of taxation on food increasing the cost of living?"

STRIKE IS SETTLED

Threatened Disturbances in England Averted and Lloyd George is the Hero of the Day With Everyone

WAS SUCCESSFUL

London, Aug. 21.—A great wave of relief swept over the country Saturday night, when, after 11 o'clock, the announcement was made from the Board of Trade offices that the railway strike had been settled and that the men would return to work immediately.

Telegrams were quickly despatched to all important railroad towns bearing the information, and crossed in transit messages to London describing strike riots in Llanelly and small towns in the kingdom.

Most of the credit for the settlement appears to rest upon the shoulders of David Lloyd-George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, who, in his statements in Parliament and in interviews with the managers and the men, worked for conciliation, when all others of the interested parties seemed to have given it up.

A joint committee, of two members composed of two representatives of the railway companies, two of the men and a non-partisan chairman will be appointed Tuesday to investigate the workings of the Conciliation Act of 1907, which the men claim is the root of all their grievances. This action overcomes the men's objection to a royal commission, which they contend always has been in practice a synonym for delay.

So far as technical advantage is the compromise goes, it appears to be in the men's favor, particularly as the managers consent to meet their representatives. The official statement concerning the agreement says the managers consented to this scheme in view of certain representations made them by the Government, including a promise of legislation to permit of an increase in railway rates. The men claim a victory for unionism on the point of recognition of unions, which was one of the most vital principles at stake.

Messages were sent to 1,800 branches of the labor unions Saturday night, saying:

"The joint committee has settled the strike. It is a victory for trade unionism. All men must return to work immediately."

As a result of the settlement the soldiers who had been scattered at strategical railways points about the country will be withdrawn as fast as arrangements for transporting them can be made.

There is no doubt that Saturday's affair at Llanelly, Wales, where troops fired on a mob, killing two men and wounding two others, had much influence in ending the strike, as it depends on the working classes for its power. The shooting of citizens by soldiers occurs less often in the United Kingdom than in any other European country, and is particularly repugnant to all classes.

The settlement was reached at a conference between David Lloyd-George, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and the executives of the men's societies.

Premier Asquith returned to London Saturday afternoon from the country, where he had expected to stay over Sunday, and his secretary made constant trips to the conference at the Board of Trade and headquarters of the railway magnates.

At the conclusion of the conference the official statement was issued:

"The action on representations made to the railway companies by the Government, they Saturday empowered Mr. Claughton and Sir Guy Granet, general manager of the Midland Railway, to confer on their behalf with representatives selected by the joint committee of the trades unions and railway employes, with a view to discussing with them the suggested terms of settlement drafted by the Board of Trade."

There were present at the conference, G. H. Claughton, director of the L. N. W. Railway, and Sir Guy Granet, on behalf of the companies; James H. Thomas, M.P., and Messrs. Bellamy, Williams, Fay, Lowth and Charlton, on behalf of the men, and Mr. Lloyd-George, Mr. H. L. Smith and G. K. Oakwith, on behalf of the Board of Trade. Ramsay Macdonald, M.P., also was present during the conference.

The railroad men throughout the kingdom are returning to work and it is hoped within a few days to have the great transit systems working under normal conditions.

Following the announcement Saturday night that the railway managers and their employes had agreed to permit a commission to settle their difficulties came the reassuring news that there was great hope of ending the dockers' strike at Liverpool and that the workers there shortly would resume their duties.

The strike as a result of labor troubles were reported yesterday except at Dublin, where the police and constables came into collision with a mob, which was in sympathy with striking newsboys who were endeavoring to prevent the distribution of newspapers. Numerous persons had their heads cracked in the melee and several shops were looted.

The railway workers held meetings throughout the country yesterday to celebrate what they claimed to be a victory over the railway companies. With the exception of the 4,000 men of the Northeastern Railway Co., which was not a party to the strike settlement agreement, and 3,000 Manchester men, all the unions passed resolutions in favor of a resumption of work. The Northeastern Company's employes demand an eight-hour day and a two-shilling weekly advance in wages, with a minimum weekly wage of 23 shillings, about $5.50.

LAID TO REST

The funeral of the late Mrs. S. Reevy took place from the family residence, 469 Cross street, on Saturday afternoon to the Little Lake cemetery and was largely attended, quite a number of Court Stanley, A. O. F., being present. BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES

Bishop Fallon yesterday laid the corner-stone of St. Martin's Church in South London, Ont.

A. M. Beauparlant, former member for St. Hyacinthe, is dead. He was recently operated on for appendicitis.

Conductor W. Smith of the London Street Railway, is in a serious condition from an assault by an unknown man.

The Opal Sewing Machine and Bicycle Works at Rauschheim, Germany, were destroyed by fire. The loss is estimated at between $1,000,000 and $1,250,000.

A well-to-do Armenian named Pavel died at Hamilton from a broken back. In his ante-mortem statement he accused Michael Zima of throwing him over a stair-railing.

Fire yesterday destroyed the store and storehouse of Poupore & McDonald in Chaplesu and the residence of Miss D. Kelly. The origin is unknown. The loss runs to $15,500.

At the office of the general manager of the Union Pacific Railroad Co. the information was given out that 2,500 employes of that road will be laid off during next week, possibly on Monday.

Hon. G. P. Graham announced at Brockville that an agreement had been reached with the Grand Trunk to reinstate all the strikers recommended for such action by Judge Barron.

WELCOME WORDS TO WOMEN

MISERABLE WITH STOMACH TROUBLE

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" BRINGS THE HAPPINESS OF HEALTH

"Fruit-a-tives" cures Stomach Troubles because it cures the Liver, Kidneys, Bowels and Skin.

Indigestion etc. is not usually the fault of the stomach itself. The bowels are irregular—the kidneys are weak or strained—the skin is inactive—and consequently the blood is impure. It's the impure blood that really makes bad digestion.

"Fruit-a-tives" purifies the blood by making all the vital organs active and healthy—which in turn restores the stomach. Take "Fruit-a-tives" if you want to get rid of all Stomach Troubles and faults of Digestion.

INJURED THE LOCK

Welland Canal is the Scene of Expensive Accident—Steamer Key West Ran Into Gate at St. Catharines

SHIP OWNER TO PAY

St. Catharines, Aug. 21.—The steamer Keywest early yesterday morning carried away both the head and one of the lower gates of lock 21, closing navigation through the waterway, blocking the Grand Trunk Railway tunnel, and seriously damaging banks both sides of canal. The steamer will be held for full payment of damages, including new gates, which in all will run well on into thousands of dollars. The accident occurred between twelve and one o'clock. Captain Eelord was in command, but Second Mate Lepointe was doing the cabaling.

It is asserted that the boat was being pushed in order to reach Port Colborne before six o'clock, and thus escape spending Sunday in the canal. The captain, however, who was on deck when the mishap took place, says the steamer was not going unusually fast, although she took a sudden forward list just as she entered the lock. The mate signalled the reverse, which Engineer Watson says was given. Although ropes were thrown and snubbed, the steamer rammed the head gates, which immediately gave way, carrying the steamer and one of the lower gates down to lock 20. The captain dropped anchor when he saw what was happening, but the force was too great to be withstood. The steamer suffered several minor damages.

Captain Eelord appears to have done everything possible to avoid an accident after he saw what was imminent, but without success. While not actually asserting that the accident could have been avoided, he claims the snubbing posts at the lock are too close to the head gates for all round safety. He has sailed for years and never before experienced serious mishap.

Chief Engineer Weller and his staff accomplished repair of the damage to the lock in record time. The journey had to be made through twenty locks before any effective work could be done, yet navigation re-opened at the usual Sunday night hour, nine o'clock, as if nothing unusual had happened. This was the first serious break in the Welland Canal this year.

BREAKS A RECORD.

Aviator at Chicago Stays Up Three Hours With Passenger.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—W. G. Beatty, in a Wright biplane, beat the world's record for duration while carrying a passenger at the international aviation meet here yesterday. Beatty and his passenger were in the air at the opening gun at 3.23 o'clock and remained up until 7.01.23 1-5, a total of three hours and 37 minutes and 23 1-5 seconds. The former record was made by Anerigo, at Mulhausen, Germany, Dec. 11, 1910, when he carried a passenger 3 hours, 19 minutes, 37 seconds. While official announcements for the contest were received with doubt here after it had been learned that O. A. Brindley, officially announced as having flown to a height of 11,726 feet, instead had risen only 5,762, there was little doubt that the Beatty figures were approximately correct. Beatty's performance was watched and timed by thousands of spectators, and his record is not subject to the mistakes possible in so intricate an instrument as is used in recording height.

Yesterday's events were enlivened by a number of spectacular escapes, in none of which, it is said, was the aviator in great danger. The hydroaeroplane, driven by C. C. Witmer and cruising above over the lake, approached dangerously near the yacht marine. It scared the passengers, but passed overhead without injuring anyone.

Labor Party to Run Man.

Montreal, Aug. 21.—J. E. Leonard announced on Saturday night that he had decided to accept the Conservative nomination for Laval in opposition to C. A. Wilson, the late member, who is again to contest the seat in the Liberal interests.

The Labor party at a meeting held yesterday decided to run a candidate in St. Mary's division as well as in Maisonneuve and other divisions. The name of the nominee has not yet been announced.

Mr. Monk announced yesterday that he would tour the district between now and election time. Besides helping out the Nationalist movement throughout the province his itinerary includes sixteen meetings in his own constituency.

PRESTON THE MAN

Editor of Expositor Will Lead Fight in Brantford—Was Chosen Unanimously

MAKES A SACRIFICE

Brantford, Aug. 21.—The Liberals in the riding of Brantford will from now on give their united support to Mr. T. H. Preston in securing his return as member of the Dominion House. Mr. Preston, who has fought three successful contests for South Brant in Provincial campaigns, enters the larger arena with the prospect of considerable disturbance of his business interests — he is proprietor and editor of The Brantford Expositor—but he has been prevailed upon to make personal sacrifice to public duty. The result of his action will be that, in spite of the fact that he has as his opponent Mr. W. E. Cockshutt, a local business man, the seat will without much difficulty be retained for the Government.

No man is more popular or better informed on public questions in town or county, and where his opponents previously saw hope in the anti-reciprocity views of Mr. Lloyd-Harris, the ex-member, they now realize that they have very little chance of winning the seat.

The convention at which Mr. Harris had declined the renomination, and Messrs. J. J. Hurley and L. F. Heyd were tendered the candidature, was adjourned from the previous week. In the meantime Mr. Preston was approached by representative men of the party. Saturday's adjourned gathering could have filled comfortably the largest public hall in the town. The Reform Clubroom and the hall outside were crowded when President J. A. Messecar called the meeting to order, and said the convention was open again for nominations.

The only name, proposed by Mr. John Muir, a prominent manufacturer, and Mr. C. W. Gurney, a well-known farmer, was that of Mr. Preston, and the unanimous invitation was given to him amid loud cheering.

Mr. Preston, in thanking the delegates, said he would have liked Mr. Harris to accept the nomination. He was so thoroughly in sympathy with the Laurier Government, except on the one question of reciprocity, that it would have amounted to Mr. Harris sinking his own views after the voice of the people had been made plain. The Liberal party was broad and strong enough to contain men of independent opinion like the ex-member.

TEN MORE DEAD.

Riots in Llanelly, Wales, Result in Several Fatalities.

Llanelly, Wales, Aug. 21.—Four more are shot down by the troops on Saturday afternoon, two being instantly killed, and the other two mortally wounded.

Another mob and a car of explosives and set fire to it. Several deaths occurred bringing the total list of fatalities up, it is reported, to ten.

This part of Wales has been the scene of exceptional violence since the railway strike was declared. There has been a succession of conflicts with the police.

Saturday a mob attempted to stop an incoming train, and the police were unable to disperse the angry men. The Riot Act was read by a magistrate, but it had no effect. The strikers continued their attack on the train and mounted the locomotive. A military officer discharged his revolver in the air, but still the mob refused to quite.

Finally the troops, who had been station in the vicinity to protect the depot and other railroad property, were ordered to shoot. They fired three volleys. At this the mob broke and fled, leaving four men stretched on the ground. Two were dead when picked up, and the others were dying.

STRIKE IS SETTLED

WAS SUCCESSFUL

London, Aug. 21.—A great wave of relief swept over the country Saturday night, when, after 11 o'clock, the announcement was made from the Board of Trade offices that the railway strike had been settled, and that the men would return to work immediately.

Telegrams were quickly despatched to all important railroad towns bearing the information, and crossed it transit messages to London described strike riots in Llanelly and small towns in the kingdom.

Most of the credit for the settlement appears to rest upon the shoulders of David Lloyd-George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, who, in his statements to Parliament and in interviews with the managers and the men, worked for conciliation, when all others of the interested parties seemed to have given it up.

A joint committee of nine members, composed of two representatives of the railway companies, two of the men and a non-partisan chairman will be appointed Tuesday to investigate the workings of the Conciliation Act of 1907, which the men claim is the root of all their grievances. This device overcomes the men's objection to a royal commission, which they contend always has been in practice a synonym for delay.

So far as technical advantage is the compromise goes, it appears to be in the men's favor, particularly as the managers' consent to meet their representatives. The official statement concerning the agreement says the managers consented to this scheme in view of certain representations made them by the Government, including a promise of legislation to permit of an increase in railway rates. The men claim a victory for unionism on the point of recognition of unions, which was one of the most vital principles at stake.

Messages were sent to 1,800 branches of the labor unions Saturday night, saying:

"The joint committee has settled the strike. It is a victory for trade unionism. All men must return to work immediately."

As a result of the settlement the soldiers who had been stationed at strategical railway points about the country will be withdrawn as fast as arrangements for transporting them can be made.

There is no doubt that Saturday's affair at Llanelly, Wales, where troops fired on a mob, killing two men and wounding two others, had much influence in ending the strike, as it depends on the working classes for its power. The shooting of citizens by soldiers occurs less often in the United Kingdom than in any other European country, and is particularly repugnant to all classes.

The settlement was reached at a conference between David Lloyd-George, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and the executives of the men's societies.

Premier Asquith returned to London Saturday afternoon from the country, where he had expected to stay over Sunday, and his secretary made constant trips to the conference at the Board of Trade and headquarters of the railway magnates.

At the conclusion of the conference the official statement was issued:

"The action on representations made to the railway companies by the Government, they Saturday empowered Mr. Claughton and Sir Guy Granet, general manager of the Midland Railway, to confer on their behalf with representatives selected by the joint committee of the trades unions and railway employes, with a view to discussing with them the suggested terms of settlement drafted by the Board of Trade.

"There were present at the conference G. H. Claughton, director of the L.N.W. Railway, and Sir Guy Granet, on behalf of the companies; James H. Thomas, M.P., and Messrs. Bellamy, Williams, Fay, Lowth and Charlton, on behalf of the men, and Mr. Lloyd-George, Sir H. L. Smith and G. K. Galwith, on behalf of the Board of Trade. Ramsay Macdonald, M.P., also was present during the conference.

"The railroad men throughout the kingdom are returning to work and it is hoped within a few days to have the great transit systems working under normal conditions.

Following the announcement Saturday night that the railway managers and their employes had agreed to permit a commission to settle their difficulties came the reassuring news that there was great hope of ending the dockers' strike at Liverpool and that the workers there shortly would resume their duties.

Six strikers are a result of labor troubles which appeared yesterday except at Dublin, where the police and constables came into collision with a mob, which was in sympathy with striking newsboys who were endeavoring to prevent the distribution of newspapers. Numerous persons had their heads cracked in the melee and several shops were looted.

The railway workers held meetings throughout the country yesterday to celebrate what they claimed to be a victory over the railway companies WHM the exception of the 4,000 men of the Northeastern Railway Co., which was not a party to the strike settlement agreement, and 3,000 Manchester men, all the unions passed resolutions in favor of a resumption of work. The Northwestern Company's employes demand an eight-hour day and a two-shilling weekly advance in wages, with a minimum weekly wage of 22 shillings, about $5.50.

The local physician is pretty sure to say that he cannot do anything without "an examination." Dr. Pierce holds that these distasteful examinations are generally needless—and that no woman, except in rare cases, should submit to them.

Dr. Pierce's treatment will cure you right in the privacy of your own home. His "Favorite Prescription" has cured hundreds of thousands, some of them the worst of cases.

It is the only medicine of its kind that is the product of a regularly graduated physician. The only one good enough that its makers dare to print its every ingredient on its outside wrapper. There's no secrecy. It will bear examination. No alcohol and no habit-forming drugs are found in it. Some unscrupulous medicine dealers may offer you a substitute. Don't take it. Don't trifle with your health. Write to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, President, Buffalo, N. Y.,—take the advice received and be well.

MISERABLE WITH STOMACH TROUBLE

"Fruit-a-tives" cures Stomach Trouble because it cures the Liver, Kidneys, Bowels and Skin.

Indigestion etc. is not usually the fault of the stomach itself. The bowels are sluggish—the kidneys are weak or strained—the skin is inactive—and consequently the blood is impure. It is the impure blood that really makes bad digestion.

"Fruit-a-tives" purifies the blood by making all the vital organs active and healthy—which in turn restores the stomach. Take "Fruit-a-tives" if you want to get rid of all Stomach Troubles and faults of Digestion.

INJURED THE LOCK

SHIP OWNER TO PAY

St. Catharines, Aug. 21.—The steamer Keywest early yesterday morning carried away both the head and one of the lower gates of lock 21, closing navigation through the waterway, blocking the Grand Trunk Railway tunnel, and seriously damaging banks both sides of canal. The steamer will be held for full payment of damages, including new gates, which in all will run well on into thousands of dollars. The accident occurred between twelve and one o'clock. Captain Exford was in command, but Second Mate Lapointe was doing the canaling.

It is asserted that the boat was being pushed in order to reach Port Colborne before six o'clock, and thus escape spending Sunday in the canal. The captain, however, who was on deck when the mishap took place, says the steamer was not going unusually fast, although she took a sudden forward list just as she entered the lock. The mate signalled the reverse, which Engineer Watson says was given. Although ropes were thrown and snubbed, the steamer rammed the head gates, which immediately gave way, carrying the steamer and one of the lower gates down to lock 22. The captain dropped anchor when he saw what was happening, but the force was too great to be withstood. The steamer suffered several minor damages.

Captain Exford appears to have done everything possible to avoid an accident after he saw what was imminent, but without success. While not actually asserting that the accident could have been avoided, he claims the sunshine spots at the lock are too close to the head gates for all round safety. He has sailed for years and never before experienced serious mishap.

Chief Engineer Weller and his staff accomplished repair of the damage to the lock in record time. The journey had to be made through twenty locks before any effective work could be done, yet navigation re-opened at the usual Sunday night hour, nine o'clock, as if nothing unusual had happened. This was the first serious break in the Welland Canal this year.

BREAKS A RECORD.

Aviator at Chicago Stays Up Three Hours With Passenger.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—W. G. Beatty, in a Wright biplane, beat the world's record for duration while carrying a passenger at the international aviation meet here yesterday. Beatty and his passenger were in the air at the opening gun at 3.30 o'clock and remained up until 7.05.22 1-5, a total of three hours and 42 minutes and 22 1-5 seconds. The former record was made by Anzorge, at Mulhausen, Germany, Dec. 11, 1910, when he carried a passenger 3 hours, 19 minutes, 37 seconds. While official announcements for the contest were received with doubt here after it had been learned that O. A. Brindley, officially announced as having flown to a height of 11,726 feet, instead had risen only 5,765, there was little doubt that the Beatty figures were approximately correct. Beatty's performance was watched and timed by thousands of spectators, and his record is not subject to the mistakes possible in so intricate an instrument as is used in recording height.

Yesterday's events were enlivened by a number of spectacular escapes, in none of which, it is said, was the aviator in great danger. The hydroaeroplane, driven by C. C. Witmer and cruising above over the lake, approached dangerously near the yacht marine. It scared the passengers, but passed overhead without injuring anyone.

Labor Party to Run Man.

Montreal, Aug. 21.—J. E. Leonard announced on Saturday night that he had decided to accept the Conservative nomination for Laval in opposition to G. A. Wilson, the late member, who is again to contest the seat in the Liberal interests.

The Labor party at a meeting held yesterday decided to run a candidate in St. Mary's division as well as in Maisonneuve and other divisions. The name of the nominee has not yet been announced.

Mr. Monk announced yesterday that he would tour the district between now and election time. Besides helping out the Nationalist movement throughout the province his itinerary includes sixteen meetings in his own constituency.

PRESTON THE MAN

Editor of Expositor Will Lead Fight in Brantford—Was Chosen Unanimously

MAKES A SACRIFICE

Brantford, Aug. 21.—The Liberals in the riding of Brantford will from now on give their united support to Mr. T. H. Preston in securing his return as member of the Dominion House. Mr. Preston, who has fought three successful contests for South Brant in Provincial campaigns, enters the larger arena with the prospect of considerable disturbance of his business interests — he is proprietor and editor of The Brantford Expositor—but he has been prevailed upon to make personal sacrifice to public duty. The result of his action will be that, in spite of the fact that he has as his opponent Mr. W. E. Cockshutt, a local business man, the seat will without much difficulty be retained for the Government.

No man is more popular or better informed on public questions in town or county, and where his opponents previously saw hope in the anti-reciprocity views of Mr. Lloyd-Harris, the ex-member, they now realise that they have very little chance of winning the seat.

The convention at which Mr. Harris had declined the renomination, and Messrs. J. J. Hurley and L. F. Heyd were tendered the candidature, was adjourned from the previous week. In the meantime Mr. Preston was approached by representative men of the party. Saturday's adjourned gathering could have filled comfortably the largest public hall in the town. The Reform Clubroom and the hall outside were crowded when President J. A. Messecar called the meeting to order, and said the convention was open again for nominations.

The only name, proposed by Mr. John Muir, a prominent manufacturer, and Mr. C. W. Gurney, a well-known farmer, was that of Mr. Preston, and the unanimous invitation was given to him amid loud cheering.

Mr. Preston, in thanking the delegates, said he would have liked Mr. Harris to accept the nomination. He was so thoroughly in sympathy with the Laurier Government, except on the one question of reciprocity, that it would have amounted to Mr. Harris sinking his own views after the voice of the people had been made plain. The Liberal party was broad and strong enough to contain men of independent opinion like the ex-member.

TEN MORE DEAD.

Riots in Llanelly, Wales, Result in Several Fatalities.

Llanelly, Wales, Aug. 21.—Four more were shot down by the troops on Saturday afternoon, two being instantly killed, and the other two mortally wounded.

Another mob fired a car of explosives and set fire to it. Several deaths occurred bringing the total list of fatalities up, it is reported, to ten.

This part of Wales has been the scene of exceptional violence since the railway strike was declared. There has been a succession of conflicts with the police.

Saturday a mob attempted to stop an incoming train, and the police were unable to disperse the angry men. The Riot Act was read by a magistrate, but it had no effect. The strikers continued their attack on the train and mounted the locomotive. A military officer discharged his revolver in the air, but still the mob refused to quite.

Finally the troops, who had been station in the vicinity to protect the depot and other railroad property, were ordered to shoot. They fired three volleys. At this the mob broke and fled, leaving four men stretched on the ground. Two were dead when picked up, and the others were dying.

CANADIAN GENERAL TEAM BEATEN IN TORONTO 3-0

TORONTO, AUG. 21.—The Senior Interleague soccer game at Rosedale, Saturday, resulted in an easy victory for Barracas of the T. and D. F. A. over Peterborough, the score being 3 to 0. The local team kept the ball in Peterborough territory for three-fourths of the game. There was no scoring in the second half, in which the Lift-look boys played a much better defence than in the opening period. The Barracas will meet Westinghouse of Hamilton in the final. The teams were:

Barracas — Hardie, goal; Notwell, Attwood, backs; McGregor, Bingham, Reeve, halves; Gillespie, McGrath, Grant, Dalzell, Scott, forwards.

Peterborough — W. Jones, goal; W. Hall, E. Evans, backs; Dawson, Simonite, E. Hooper, halves; H. Corliss, French, Miller, T. Mark, E. Dawson, forwards.

Referee—Sid. Banks.

West End Athletic Club Excursion

The West End Athletic Club ran an excursion to Lindsay by special Grand Trunk train on Saturday afternoon, and although it was not very largely patronized, the outing was most enjoyable. The feature of the visit to Bengogville was a baseball match between the Lindsay team and a nine representative of the West End Club and including four of the Peterborough Midland League team. Lindsay won after a loosely-played exhibition, mainly due to the fact that the West Ends could not hit Jack Spratt of hockey fame when hits meant runs. He was not a mystery to the visitors, but the latter at the same time, were unable to hit in the pinches. Cresswell performed for the West Ends and made a good job of it as far as he himself was concerned, but fumbles and wild throws behind him neutralized his good work. Gonter scored Peterborough's first run in the fourth on a clean home run to left field. The West End team consisted of the following:

Gonter c., Cresswell p., Kirn 1b., O'Hearne 2b., Dickey s.s., Murphy 3b., Curtis l.f., Brydie c.f., Smith r.f. Umpire, R. Butler, of Lindsay.

SPORTING NOTES

NOTES OF SPORTS IN MERRIE ENGLAND

Of the professionals asked to sail to Australia it may be taken for granted that Kinnair, Rhodes, Hobbs, Struwick, Barnes, James, Ironmonger and E. J. Smith will be travelling companions. Either all these have accepted or are merely waiting for the formal assent of their respective county committee to the undertaking. Twelve cricketers have been approached, and at present R. H. Spooner has alone definitely declined. Frank Foster has long since promised to lend his aid. With Kinnair and Ernest James Smith by his side, Warwickshire will have a representation never enjoyed before in one team, although Lilley and W. G. Quaife were members of A. C. MacLaren's combination in 1901-02. C. B. Fry and P. F. Warner have not made known their decisions, but J. W. H. T. Douglas has promised to go.

The British press charity sports at the Shepherd's Bust Stadium was about the biggest ordinary meeting seen in London for many years. The programme teemed with interesting items, and the entry was entirely satisfactory. Level events at 75 and 150 yards were novelties and both races produced fine struggles. The former served to show what a fast beginner W. A. Stewart is, the Tasmanian beating F. A. Reilley of Yale University and J. H. D'Arcy of London by a good yard in 8 seconds. He did not run in the 150 yards, which D'Arcy won by half a yard from D. M. Jacobs in 15 seconds, R. H. Opie of New Zealand being 1 1-2 yards farther away, and Reilly no nearer than fifth.

Another batch of National Cyclists' Union championships were decided at Birmingham. The 50 miles was the chief event, and this enabled C. B. Kingsbury of Portsmouth to confirm recent form. The field of 41 included C. A. Denny (the holder), H. H. Lee, the 100 miles champion, and De Canilles of France. The last named was out of it at 40 miles, and the final struggle ended in Kingsbury depriving Denny of his title, the Portsmouth man by 1 1-2 lengths in 2 hours 12 minutes and 56 seconds.

The absence of Taylor from the long distance "swim through London" left Battersby an easy task. The former had contracted a severe cold. The distance of the race is 15 miles, from Richmond Lock to Blackfriars Bridge, and Battersby took the lead from the start. At Kew Bridge, nearly three miles from the starting point, Blatherwick, the second swimmer, was over 500 yards behind, Matthews, West Central Postal S. C.; Glover, Rice and Waite following. At Barnes Barley displaced Waite, Battersby, then being half a mile ahead of Blatherwick. They swam, of course, with the stream.

W. J. Bailey of London Polytechnic was successful in his attack on the record for the quarter-mile bicycle flying start, unpaced. His time, 24 4-5, was two-fifths better than his own previous best.

Occupied Pulpit

In the absence of Rev. Dr. Marsh, who preached in the Dale Presbyterian church, Toronto yesterday, Mr. F. G. Hassard, of Farm and Dairy, occupied the pulpit of the Springville Presbyterian church yesterday at both services and gave every satisfaction to the large congregations who attended, by his splendid addresses.

Rev. Dr. Marsh preached for Rev. J. D. Mogrow, the athletes preacher, for the benefit of whose new church a ten days' campaign to raise $50,000 was commenced in Toronto to-day.

CHURCHMAN DEAD.

Rev. Canon Cayley of Toronto Dies of Ptomaine Poisoning.

Toronto, Aug. 21.—Rev. Canon John D'Arcy Cayley, rector of the Church of St. George the Martyr, Toronto, died in Muskoka yesterday from the effects of ptomaine poisoning, from which he suffered an attack some months ago, and rallied only to have a relapse, which proved fatal.

Canon Cayley was born in 1837, the son of Hon. William Cayley. He received his early education under Dr. Palmer of Guelph, after which he went to Upper Canada College. He graduated from Trinity College, Toronto, in 1860, and was ordained deacon by Bishop Strachan in 1860. After ordination he went to England, where he spent the next three years. He was ordained priest in 1861 by the Bishop of Chichester, and accepted the curacy in the village of Cowfold, Sussex. There he remained two years, marrying a Miss Cartwright of Brighton in 1861.

In 1863 Canon Cayley returned to Canada, and was rector of All Saint's Whitby, from 1863 to 1874, when he became rector of St. George's, Toronto, where he remained until his death. He was Canon of St. Alban's Cathedral and also perceptor, and a member of the corporation of Trinity College.

Canon Cayley is survived by one son, Rev. E. C. Cayley, of St. Simon's and three daughters, Mary Augusta, Cecil Maud and Mrs. Bosher, who is now in England.

Special mention was made of the death of the canon in St. George's Church yesterday evening.

SENSATION EXPECTED.

Finding of Joseph George's Will Causes Interest.

Kingston, Aug. 21.—Sensational developments are expected in connection with the finding of the will of the late Joseph George. All depends on whether there will be opposition to probate of the will, in view of the fact that the estate has been ordered to be divided under the intestate law, the widow getting one-half, and the balance going to deceased's next-of-kin. H. Sullivan and G. H. Williamson, the witnesses, have identified the will. It has not been presented to the courts, but will be very shortly.

"Who put the will in the house where it was found by the plumbers?" This is the question. The discovery of the will means that the widow will only receive $4,000, instead of $12,000 or $14,000, which she would have received had her husband died intestate. Albert Cottenden of Toronto, an admitted son of the deceased, will receive about $20,000. He has declared all along that his father left him the bulk of the money.

The will shows that an attempt was made by some person to change the amount willed to the widow from four to forty thousand dollars by adding the letters "ty." It was most glaring, and as this word would be spelled wrongly, and was not initialed as required by law.

Col. Hughes Nominated.

London, Aug. 21.—The Liberal Conservative convention held here on Saturday by the Conservative Association of Victoria and Haliburton, nominated Col. Sam Hughes as candidate for the Dominion House.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.
CURE
Such Headache and relieve all the troubles incident to a bilious state of the system, such as Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Distress after eating, Pain in the Side, &c. While their most remarkable success has been shown in curing
SICK
Headache, yet Carter's Little Liver Pills are equally valuable in Constipation, curing and preventing this annoying complaint, while they also correct all disorders of the stomach, stimulate the liver and regulate the bowels. Even if they only
HEAD
Ache they would be almost priceless to those who suffer from this distressing complaint; but fortunately their goodness does not stop here, and those who once try them will find these little pills valuable in so many ways that they will not be willing to do without them. But after all sick head is the bane of so many lives that here is where we make our great boast. Our pills cure it while others do not.
ACHE
Carter's Little Liver Pills are very small and very easy to take. One or two pills make a dose. They are strictly vegetable and do not gripe or purge, but by their gentle action please all who use them.

FUNERAL AT OSHAWA OF THE LATE MR. W. HENDERSON

On Saturday, the funeral of the late Mr. Wilson Henderson, Superintendent of the Peterborough Waterworks, was held from the residence of his aunt, Mrs. John Hyland, King street, Oshawa. The impossible train connections from Peterborough, made it impracticable for very many who would have been glad to have been there to pay the last tribute of respect to a citizen who had so deservedly a high place in the public esteem, to go to Oshawa.

However, a couple of auto parties covered the 62 miles distance to attend the funeral. One was composed of Messrs. T. F. Matthews, chairman of the Board of Water Commissioners, representing the board and the citizens, R. A. Morrow, E. G. Patterson, A. E. Coulthard and F. R. Yokome; the other contained Mr. and Mrs. James Garrow and Mr. J. J. Turner, Sr.

The funeral was conducted under Masonic auspices, by the members of Cedar and Lebanon Lodges, the pall-bearers being also members of the order. The religious services at the residence and at the grave-side were conducted by Rev. W. H. Hindes, B.A., Bowmanville. The mortal remains, resting in a casket, hidden with floral tributes, one of which was contibuted by the Peterborough Water Commissioners, was laid at rest in Union Cemetery. Thus was consigned to earth the mortal part of a man who, in all the relations of life, devotedly discharged his duty and left a vacancy that it will be very difficult to fill.

The YOUNG FELLOWS' BARBER

Gentlemen—At 144 Simcoe St., rear of Payne's Drug Store, you will find one of the most up-to-date and best run tonsorial parlours in the city. The new proprietor, Mr. Percy Lynch, has had wide experience in some of the best shops on this and the other side, besides a local reputation as a high class workman. The famous Stark system of Face Massage and Shampoo is something new in Peterborough and is used exclusively. One trial will convince you that up-to-date methods bring you greater results for your money than the old-time way. Young fellows want to look 'out right, and one call will bring you back again, as the service is without equal in the city. A high class barber is employed and Mr. Lynch guarantees everyone prompt attention and careful work regardless of time or numbers. One trial is solicited, the work will do the rest.

THE 18TH SESSION OF THE HIGH COURT
A. O. F. IS NOW IN FULL SWING HERE

Business Session Commenced This Morning in the Collegiate Institute—High Court Welcomed to Peterborough.

TRIP OVER LIFT LOCK

The 18th convention of the High Court of the Ancient Order of Foresters is in full swing in Peterborough to-day, with a large attendance of members. The first session was opened in the Collegiate Institute Assembly Hall at 10 o'clock this morning by High Chief Ranger Bro. John Young of Hamilton, Ont.

Credentials were present from 101 members with more to come. The High Chief Ranger's report showed a substantial increase, financially and numerically. Twenty-eight new courts had been instituted since the last meeting, an increase of 1200 members. The various funds of the Order are in a prosperous condition, each showing a considerable increase. The savings in the management expenses had been $12,000.

The report of the High Court Medical Examiner, Dr. L. Secord, of Brantford, was a complete analysis of the work of the department. Applications for membership numbering 5703 were approved during the two years. The average age of those accepted had been twenty-six years. During the past two years 203 members had died. Sick pay to the amount of $10,884 had been paid out to 767 members for 5048 weeks of sickness, an increase of over twenty per cent. in the past two years.

Parliament Secretary Bro. W. Williams, of Toronto, in his report, referred to the beneficiary fund, stating that 4,753 policies amounting to $5,000,000 had been issued since Jan. 1, 1900. There were present cash assets of $232,589. The receipts of the Sick and Funeral Fund were $41,628 and the expenditure $40,000. The present membership was 15,528.

The report of Bro. F. G. Butt, superintendent of organization was distributed among the members and will be discussed later.

This afternoon the delegates were extended a civic welcome to Peterborough by His Worship Mayor Morrow, Hon. J. R. Stratton and Ald. Graham. His Worship, the Mayor, read the following address:

The Mayor's address was as follows:

To the High Chief Ranger and Members of the High Court of Canada of the Ancient Order of Foresters.

Gentlemen.—It is with great pleasure that, on behalf of the Council and citizens of Peterborough, I welcome you to this city. We are exceedingly pleased that you chose Peterborough in which to hold the annual sessions of the High Court this year, and are delighted to receive you as visitors from all parts of the Dominion, and as representatives of an Order that is doing good work in assisting the sick and ministering to and relieving the distressed.

We hope you will be able to take sufficient time while you are here, to see something of the city. We have a number of large manufacturing concerns, giving employment to many hundreds, and making almost all classes of articles, from chewing gum to the heaviest milling and electrical machinery. The parks, especially the Jackson and Nicholls Parks, are worthy of a visit, and are, indeed pleasant places in which to spend some time. Our educational institutions are, we think, creditable to the city, and include eight common schools, a Collegiate Institute, and a Provincial Normal School. The Armouries and other public buildings, the churches, and numerous places will be found of sufficient interest for a visit, and the water power developments in and near the city, will repay inspection. I understand you will, this afternoon, go over the hydraulic lift-lock on the Trent Waterway, and I am pleased that you will have an opportunity of seeing this great work in operation.

We hope that your sessions will be profitable and result in great benefit to your Order, and that your stay in Peterborough will be so pleasant that you will not only carry away pleasant recollections of the city, but be anxious to return to it again.

W. G. Morrow,
Mayor.

The Mayor's address was greeted by the singing of "He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Hon. Mr. Stratton briefly joined in and endorsed the welcome extended on behalf of the worthy mayor. As they had already been given the freedom of the city, he was in the happy position of offering them the freedom of a territory fifty miles to the north, and a like distance to the south, and if they so desired, they could visit some of the most picturesque and attractive summer resorts in Canada. He was glad to note that the society in whose interests they were assembled was growing and thriving in proportion to the growth and progress of the rapidly growing city. He congratulated the society upon its successful work, in applying the splendid principles of the society, with which he heartily sympathized. He knew of no other organization that had done and was doing more for the relief of humanity and the uplifting of the community generally. If he could do anything to make the visit of the delegates more pleasant he would be happy to do it, and he offered them the use of the government steamer to take a cruise among the beautiful waters of our lakes and rivers, and help them to take to their respective homes happy memories of their visit to, and their stay in, Peterborough.

Dr. Secord, High Medical Examiner, replied in a neat speech. He spoke of the appreciative welcome that the city and Mr. Stratton had tendered them, and expressed his pleasure at having Mr. Stratton present. He stated that the Order in Canada was only a small branch of the Order, as a whole, which had a membership of 100,000,000. He aptly authorized its position by quoting Kipling: "Daughter am I in my mother's house, but mistress in my own," and stated that while the Canadian Ancient Order of Foresters could, and had learned much from the proceedings of the mother societies, yet it was entirely self-governing, and managing its own affairs. He had nothing to say 'gainst the conducting of the Canadian fraternal societies. The chief object which the Ancient Order of Foresters had attained and meant to retain, was perfect solvency in its financial management.

An invitation was received and accepted from Court Stanley No. 7220 of Peterborough, for the High Court members to go on a trip over the hydraulic lift lock and the session adjourned at 3 o'clock for this purpose, the members marching to the steamer in a body.

The executive of the High Court are at the Hotel National, while the Toronto delegates are located at the Montgomery House.

GOOD POSITIONS

The Peterborough Business College is a worthy link in a chain of Seven Business Colleges, located in the cities of London, Peterborough, Welland, and the towns of Orangeville, Walkerton, Wingham, and Clinton. Owing to its high-grade work it is affiliated with the Commercial Educators' Association of Canada. It is freely admitted that owing to these connections, its students get the very best positions. Fall openings are on Aug. 28th, and Sept. 5th, but at this school each student is instructed privately at his or her own desk; students may enter any day. Many students study all at home, and others partly at home and finish at the College. The Spotton Colleges are the largest trainers in Canada, and have thirty years' experience, it would be well for young people to get their training there. Last year Mr. Spotton trained over 1,200 young people and placed them in good positions. What he has done for thousands of others he can do for you.

Style in Glasses

There is no reason why persons with defective vision need disfigure their faces by wearing glasses of unbecoming shape, entirely out of harmony with the contour of their features. There is style in glasses just as there is style in everything else to wear. There is some style to mounting that is "just the thing for your face" if you can only find it, and we make frequent visits to the eastern factories, and keep posted with all the improvements in mountings as soon as produced. We will take pleasure in showing you either a mounting to carry your lenses, that will be becoming, comfortable and proper. We can now show you one of the newest ideas in pincenez, and we are selling a lot of them. We can adapt them to suit your features and your taste, and if after you get them anyone without exception, refer to us, we will exchange it to suit to your entire satisfaction. We have every modern appliance for measuring eyes accurately and all the work, from the grinding of the eyes to the fitting of the frames and fitting of glasses is done under our personal supervision.

All our work is guaranteed.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unparalleled."

TUESDAY, AUGUST 22, 1911

SELF-CONTRADICTED.

To-day the Toronto World has a big type "panel" on its first page, declaring, "A lower market for farmers." This is the deception department of the World. On its commercial page we find the contradiction to its political pose assertion. In the market reports of the World we find the market figures for cattle—Toronto, $6-$6.20; Buffalo, $7.15-$7.25; Chicago, $7.20-$7.85. Hogs— Toronto $8.10; Buffalo, $8.20-$8.30. The World may convince itself by these two articles, that $7 is lower than $6, but it can't fool a farmer who has hogs or cattle to sell.

THE DOUBLE GAME.

While Mr. Borden condemns the naval policy in Ontario because it does not go far enough, Mr. Bourassa stacks it in Quebec for going too far. Mr. Borden hopes to round up the Jingo Tories and prejudiced Protestants of Ontario by appeals to loyalty, while Mr. Bourassa aims to secure the support of the French element through appeals to race prejudice. The object of both is to defeat Laurier. If they are not acting in alliance, why has Mr. Borden never had the courage to openly condemn Bourassa's unpatriotic appeals to racial prejudice? The reason is that he wants Bourassa's cooperation to defeat Laurier. If Mr. Borden is not in sympathy with the double game, why does he not condemn it openly—why does he not give a cue to his followers, to avoid the double game, the practical alliance between the extreme clerical and anti-British French Canadian element led by Mr. Bourassa, and the extreme ultra-Protestant Conservative element of Ontario, which is being worked to the full limit of its capacity in this province and especially in West Peterborough. Will Mr. Borden have the courage to condemn it when he comes to Peterborough, or will he endorse it? Both elements are striving for the same end. They are as far apart as the poles—in profession—and cannot consistently work together for the same object—the defeat of Laurier. Condemnation of Laurier by Mr. Bourassa and his anti-British party, should commend him to the ultra-loyal Conservative element in Ontario. But both are after his scalp. Sir Wilfrid is a clever man, but it is manifestly impossible that he should be at the same time anti-British enough to be condemned by the flag-waving Conservatives of Ontario and too-British enough to incur the hostility of the extreme Anglo-phobe French Canadian element. It is significant that the game at both ends is worked in the interests of Mr. Borden and the Conservatives. He hopes to detach support from Laurier in Quebec by the success of Bourassa candidates, and he hopes to weaken him in Ontario by capturing seats on the anti-British cry. Running with the hare and hunting with hounds is like sliding down hill, compared with consistently working the double game.

STATELY RUBBISH.

Here is a sentence from Mr. Borden's "manifesto":

"The true issue is this: Shall we continue in the course which has led us to our present enviable position of prosperity and national development, or shall we at the moment of greatest success and achievement lose heart and abandon the fight for national existence."

This reads as if Mr. Borden in his search for meaningless platitudes, had formed his style on that of Mr. Burnham. "Existence" is a good word. Under the rule of Mr. Borden's party a few years ago, it wasn't living for Canada; it was mere existence. Everything was at a low ebb. Trade was dull, industry was asleep—wages were low, employment was in a class with hen's teeth, the Northwest was the undisturbed paradise of the prairie chicken. Then the "fight for national existence" was on. The Liberals came into power and everything took on rose colour. Good times enwrapped us as with a garment. The country stride. "National existence" became nation, not fighting for mere existence, but going forward with a conquering stride. National existence became national life, pulsating with power, instinct with progress, and flowering in prosperity. The old days of "fight" for mere existence are over. Canada was never as live as big, as buoyant, as hopeful, progressive and prosperous as in her present day of living. And Mr. Borden tells us that we shall lose all that if we increase our trade facilities. Trade is what we want, it is the breath of national life—"the fight for national existence"—rubbish.

Mr. Borden knows we shall "continue the course that has led to our present position of prosperity and national development." Nobody proposes except Mr. Borden, to vary that course. No one proposes to oust the Liberal government, nor proposes to weaken the Liberal tariff policy, that has put "life" instead of mere existence, into our manufacturing industries. No one proposes to interfere with the conditions that make manufacturers prosperous. Out of 1,200 odd items of the tariff, only a few are affected by slight reduction in manufactured goods by reciprocity. Only farm products are placed on the free list.

Mr. Borden and his followers will have hard work to convice the elector who thinks, that reciprocity is going to hurt anybody, except perhaps, a favoured few, who are trying to use a high tariff to force low prices on the producer and extort high prices from the consumer.

A LITTLE INCONSISTENCY.

"Coal duties to be suspended to avoid famine in West—Will also help to settle strike."

This is the substance of a heading in a recent issue of a paper devoted to the cause of high tariffs in Canada. It gives rise to a doubt in one's mind as to the economic soundness of a high tariff. After the paper in question has argued, day in and day out for the past twenty years and more, that Canada needed a high tariff to make her as prosperous as the United States, it certainly should strike a thoughtful reader as a little incongruous that as soon as a pinch came the paper should announce that in order to avoid one of the worst evils that can befall a country, it would be necessary not only to lower the tariff against the article concerned, but to actually declare free trade in it, as far as Canada is concerned.

Note, too, that in admitting the rightness of this act the paper does not question that it for Canada's advantage. There is no talk of the benefit we are conferring on the United States by suspending our tariff against their coal. Yet, a few months ago, when it was suggested that reciprocal arrangements take place between the two countries, by which both sides should lower the duties against the coal entering from the other country, this same paper "cussed" violently at the injustice to the Canadian coal industry and the general all-round iniquity of a proposition which would permit us to buy our coal from the United States a few cents cheaper and thus aid ourselves. Now, "Hey, presto," it makes no objection to the entire suspension of the duty, tacitly admitting that the removal of the duty is in our own interests and not even raising the point of whether the foreign couptry gets any advantage or not.

Apparently the position is that the duty is a good thing for us and a bad thing for the other fellow so long as we can afford to pay it. As soon as we can't afford it any longer, the situation, for some unexplained reason, reverses itself. All very well, but what I would like to know is, who is to say when that point is reached—the loyal Canadians who own the coal or the patriots who have to buy it from them? Surely if there is one thing more than another, in this cold country, that ought to reach the consumer at the lowest possible cost, it is the fuel to keep him and his family from being chilled into sickness or frosen to death during the long winter. To possibly fifty per cent. of Canadians, at some time or other, the problem of getting the money to pay for the winter's supply of fuel has been a veritable nightmare. — Toronto Saturday Night.

HOW CATTLE TRADE IS HELPED.

The opponents of reciprocity insist that it will injure the farmer, that it will open a market of no value to him, a market where prices are lower than in Canada. They quote misleading figures, as if the farmer did not know his business, better than to be deceived. The middlemen are generally opposed to reciprocity because it might lead to their having to pay higher prices to the farmer, to his benefit, and through competition in an open market, be prevented from collecting as big a price from the consumer as he is now able to extract without competition.

But there are middlemen—buyers and sellers—who take a different view and regard reciprocity as a big boon to the farmer. Weir & Weir, of St. Marys, Ont., have been fifty years in the cattle business, with an experience that dates back to 1860, the middle period of the old reciprocity treaty.

When they commenced business they sent all their cattle to the United States—under reciprocity—and they got better prices than in any other market. When the treaty was abrogated, the trade with the United States ceased and the firm and the farmers from whom they bought, had to be content with the Montreal market, which was much lower than the market across the line. Then the firm tried exporting to the British market, and have been shipping their cattle to London, Liverpool, Glasgow and other cities, and only last week sold cattle for shipment to Switzerland—across the ocean and half way across Europe, when there was a market at their very doors. Mr. Weir, in a letter to the press, says these same cattle could have been shipped to Buffalo at a gain of $7 to $10 per head more than was received for the shipments abroad. Mr. Weir cites the market reports in the daily papers of a few days ago—the 14th—to show that while best steers were selling at 6c. and 6 1-4c. per pound, live weight in Toronto, the price in Buffalo on the same date was $7.75 per hundred, live weight.

Mr. Weir says the United States is the best market for good cattle that he has found in his fifty years of business. He asks, where is there a market that will enable any person to buy cattle at 7 1-2c. per pound in Buffalo, and $7.70 in Chicago, live weight, and ship them to any known market and realize the original price paid?

In regard to the cry, "Let well enough alone," Mr. Weir says that is all very well for the manufacturers who have a protection from competition of from 25 to 30 per cent., or for some parties whose protection permits them to form a combine and charge their own prices; but it is not good enough for the farmer, who has to pay a tax of $20 on every bullock he sells in the United States, before he can get on even terms with his competitors, or send his cattle across the ocean to Britain or Switzerland, when the best market in the world is situated a few miles away. Now, if reciprocity will add from $15 to $20 on every good bullock he sends across the line, how is that going to injure the farmer or the manufacturer, who still retains his average protection duty of 25 or 30 per cent?

Reciprocity will give a boom to the cattle raising and feeding industry in Ontario, which has been partially paralayzed for forty years past by being shut out of the nearest and best market. It won't affect British loyalty, for the British farmer will be glad to be relieved from Canadian competition in cattle, which he fears so much that he puts an embargo against them.

A Series Of Pertinent Queries For Some Conservatives To Answer

Now that Mr. W. F. Maclean, Conservative M. P., of South York, and manager of The Toronto World, is appearing on the same platform as Sir James Whitney and Mr. R. L. Borden, the people of Ontario should insist on obtaining answers to a number of questions The Globe has been asking for some time, but to which no reply has been made.

It is asserted by Conservative speakers that the Department of Finance should not have permitted the Farmers Bank to open its doors in 1908 because its promoters were "not worthy," and the bank was "rotten" from its inception.

Why, then, did the Manager of the Toronto World in 1908, two years later, bring pressure to bear on the Provincial Treasurer of Ontario to secure an increase of the deposit of public money belonging to the people of the province in the Farmers Bank?

Why did Col. Matheson increase the special deposits of the Government from $10,000 to $30,000?

Why did Travers make a loan about the same time to Dr. Beattie Nesbitt of $25,000, and to The Toronto World of $10,000?

If these advances were ordinary financial loans and not political "accommodation" why did Travers write to Col. Matheson, a Minister of the Crown in the Conservative government, telling him that the loans in question had been made?

Why was Dr. Beattie Nesbitt, the former Tory boss of Toronto, and one of the best known men in Canada, so slackly watched when it was known that he was to be charged with a share in the wrecking of the Farmers Bank, of which he had been President that he was able to cross the border and go scot free?

Why does not Col. Matheson state that he had no knowledge of the intention of Travers to loan to Dr. Beattie Nesbitt and The Toronto World da sum of money equal to the Provincial deposit?

And finally, why does not W. F. Maclean, M.P., of The Toronto World see to it that the stockholders of the Farmers Bank are immediately put in possession of the entire amount owed by his paper to the Farmers Bank when it failed?

A MESSAGE FROM THE DEEP

While the Royal Mail S. S. Conservative, on her record-breaking passage from Liverpool to Quebec, with a full consignment of Bourassa acid, was nearing Belle Isle, the Captain, Mr. Borden, with his first-mate, Mr. Burnham, picked up the following message:

A country far across the sea,
Whose flag is still unfurled,
Has stood the test of many years,
The envy of the world;
With firm hand, with tender eyes,
With heart that knows no fear,
She has taught her children to arise.
To shine like diamonds rare.
One among her offspring bright,
Though still in infant years,
Yet, shining as the stars of night,
This child, its mother's heart's delight,
Well doth she know, this child so bright,
Shall never cause her tears.

When first she took it by the hand,
And blessed it with her blessing,
And said, you wild and wooded land,
You just require dressing.
She sent the woodman with his axe.
The farmer with his plow,
And what was once a wooded land,
Is Eden's garden now.
Stronger still this child shall grow,
Though other children frown,
And it doth shine, the brightest gem,
In its aged mother's crown.
Your mother's land, to all is free,
No barrier stops she way;
Then listen, child, she speaks to thee,
If thou wouldst follow after me,
Go strong for Reciprocity
And bright shall be thy day.

HASTINGS NEWS

Special to The Examiner.

HASTINGS, AUG. 21.—Once again we are called upon to chronicle the demise of an old and respected resident of Hastings, in the person of Mr. Thos. McGuire, who passed away on Wednesday last, after a period of intense suffering from stomach trouble. He leaves to mourn his loss, besides his widow, a family of grown up sons and daughters, who have the sympathy of all in their sore bereavement. The funeral was held on Friday a.m. to the R. C. Church for mass and from thence to the cemetery for interment.

Quite a number of the citizens took a trip to Trent Bride on Wednesday to attend the regatta, which was being held there.

Mr. Douglas Simpson took a number of friends to Gore's Landing on Wednesday per steamer "Rainbow" where a very enjoyable time was spent.

The excursion from Peterborough last week was well attended and the company spent the time here viewing the operations on the canal, etc.

The union services between the Presbyterian and Methodist congregations are being conducted by Rev. J. H. P. Anderson, pastor of the Methodist church.

Mr. Jas. Moore has purchased an automobile, having gone to Toronto for the purpose.

Miss G. Howson left last week for Regina, where she intends taking a Normal school training.

Miss Annie Murray has secured a position as teacher near Port Arthur, and left last week to assume her duties there.

Mr. Asa Huycke, of Peterborough, rendered a solo in the Methodist church on Sunday morning, which was well rendered and highly appreciated by the large congregation present.

Miss Lily Tate of Peterborough, has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. L. T. Huycke, town.

Mrs. A. Parsons and children are spending a holiday with friends in Port Hope.

Mrs. T. Lancaster and son, who have been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Humphries, left last week for their home in Bowden, Sask. They were accompanied by Mrs. J. Gillespie and children, who have gone to join Mr. Gillespie in his western home.

Mr. Clifford Robinson has been spending a few days at his home in Omemee.

Mr. J. Richardson spent Thursday in Peterborough.

Miss Belle Humphries took in the trip to Trent Bridge through the week.

ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING IN NORTH MONAGHAN

Mr. Stratton Holds Another in His Series of Triumphal Gatherings in the Country—Strong Speeches in Favour of Reciprocity Warmly Endorsed by the Audience.

It was an earnest, appreciative and thoughtful audience that Chairman Alexander Lang presided over in the North Monaghan Town Hall last night. Take the chairman's word for it that it was one of the best meetings ever held in that section.

EVERYBODY LISTENED

The meeting included farmers and produce buyers, who are inclined to look on reciprocity as business more than politics and the farmers' wives and daughters—bless their hearts—who see in the new policy a chance to add to their egg and butter money.

Candidate Stratton and R. R. Hall held the meeting for two hours, while they told what by September 21 1910 be the old, old story of freer trade with the ninety-million market, and attention never flagged once. Indeed the cry was for more, and when Mr Stratton and Mr. Hall were through the spirit seized Mr. Thomas Hunter, Mr. L. E. Wilson, Reeve of North Monaghan, and Mr. John McIntosh, late Reeve of Monaghan, to give each a testimony on his own account, and they spoke wonderful things. The meeting was stronger at the finish than it was at the start—which is something you can't say about every political meeting. There were the pretty bouquet of old-fashioned flowers on the speakers' table, which simply couldn't help listening, and as for the coal oil lamps, they opened their eyes wide and brighter every minute at the facts and figures they heard.

It was a responsive audience all right. It responded when Mr. Stratton spoke of his twenty-five years' faithful service to the public and of his help and encouragement of all good objects and causes in West Peterborough. It responded when he took them through the free list and showed them where they would save duty in large chunks and get a market that would put the middleman in his place: it responded when he explained the gap between cheap produce and dear products. And particularly responded when the candidate, busy man of affairs that he is, showed that he could talk the farm language and understood the farm feelings as well as they did. And why shouldn't he speak to them in their own tongue? Doesn't he own a farm or two himself, and doesn't he keep ten prize horses in his stable and buy hay, oats and feed enough to run a livery barn?

BIRD'S EYE VIEW

The candidate took them from one high spot to another in the discussion and gave them a bird's eye view. It was an easy speech to remember, and the records for merit in Mr. Stratton, because a speech that is easy in the hearing is generally a hard speech in the preparing. At all events North Monaghan didn't let one good point get by. It cheered and laughed and hear-heared at the hard hits.

"You have," said Mr. Stratton, "not only a 2 1-2 per cent. reduction of duty on your farm implements, but the biggest, nearest, dearest free market in the world for your surplus products. You are helped both ways, in the tools of your trade and the fruits of your labor. This Government of ours has spent millions of dollars subsidizing Atlantic steamships to make the trade path smooth and straight to the British market. It spends hundreds of thousands more, maintaining trade ambassadors in various parts of the world. Is it to be charged with disloyalty because it opens up a new market to the south? And are you farmers to be charged with it too because you take advantage of it?"

"Rot!" said Mr. Stratton. "Who ever heard of a true Briton being made disloyal through his stomach? Why that's the way to every man's heart. If you want to keep him contented see that he is well fed."

A HORSE STORY

After taking the farmers through the familiar figures relating to cattle, sheep, lambs and hogs, Mr. Stratton dropped into a few personal remarks about horses. As has been said before, the candidate knows a good deal about horses. He buys hay at $14 a ton, which he is free to confess would bring $23 in Rochester. The farmers are interested in horses because there is more profit to be made on a horse than on any other live animal on the farm. Reciprocity means that at least $50 will be added to the price of horses valued at $150 and 25 per cent. to those that are worth more. This gain doesn't take account of a keen market. It is the bare saving in duty.

"Burns and Sheppard of Toronto are opposed to reciprocity," remarked Mr. Stratton. "Of course they are. They're in the wholesale horse trade. They want to keep the price of a span of Clydesdales at $700. But what does Mr. Yeager, who is one of us, say? He says he can get twelve and fourteen hundred dollars in Buffalo or New York for the same team Burns & Sheppard pay $700 for. Mr. Yeager is like yourself. He wants the United States market. He wants to get that extra seven hundred dollars. We're going to give him a chance to ship to New York instead of to Burns and Sheppard!

"The duty on horses runs up," said Mr. Stratton, pursuing this train of thought. "Why, I remember once that I was beaten unfairly out of a prize at a horse show—or I thought I was, which is just as bad. And I said, "I'll get even with those fellows. So I went over and brought the winner in that class at the New York horse show. I paid $900 duty on her. I wish I could have got the horse in Canada both for Canada's sake and my own. I'd like to have saved that $900. But the horse hasn't been beaten yet, and I'd like to see the horse than can do it!"

"Wait till you see mine!" This from Dr. Marsh, who has a world-beater coming on.

"Well," replied Mr. Stratton, "I'd like to see yours. I'm just a good enough sport to hope you'll win."

HOW BOB'S BARLEY PERSUADED HIM

From wheat Mr. Stratton passed to barley. He dwelt on barley because he had a concrete example, and a public man does love concrete examples. They are better than general figures any day.

"I met a farmer on the street today," Mr. Stratton began, "a man that has voted Conservative for twenty years. 'Well, Bob,' I said to him, 'how are you going to vote this time?' Couldn't you give us one, just one in twenty years?'

"'I'm going to give you one, Mr. Stratton, but it's not you, it's my barley that's persuaded me. I have nine hundred bushels of barley on my farm and at twenty-five cents a bushel more, that's just $200 more for me.'

"And," added Mr. Stratton, "there's not a farm in Peterborough County that won't take in from $300 to $500 more profit than it is doing to-day. What's more, there isn't a farm in Ontario that hasn't put 25 per cent. on to its price since reciprocity was first broached.

Why, everything bangs on the farmer. Watch how bankers, financiers, manufacturers, merchants hold their breath until they know whether the crop is good or not. If it isn't a good crop, take note of the tight money, the hard loans, the factories on short hours, the insolvencies among merchants, the idleness among workingmen. If the crop is good, see how business picks up all round. Suppose the Northwest farmer gets $250,000,000 for his grain this year. See the millions of it that will come back to buy the manufactured goods which keep the merchant in business and the workingman in work."

"Just let there be three short crops one after the other," said Mr. Stratton with heat, "and then the ignoramuses in the city will begin to know what the farmer means to Canada."

STICKING TO PRINCIPLES

At this point Mr. Stratton made a little confession showing how business and principles may sometimes conflict. "Some of the manufacturers," said Mr. Stratton, "with whom I am associated in a business way have voted money to beat this agreement. As boards of directors they didn't consider my feelings, because business is business. They want to beat reciprocity because they say it is the thin end of the free-trade wedge. I believe it is time enough to say good morning to the devil when you meet him. My idea is that when an infant industry grows whiskers it should be able to stand on its own feet. It makes no difference to me. I can live under any tariff that was ever drawn up and can work my way out. But I like to see the farmer get a chance. He hasn't the same means of getting together as the manufacturers, and what he produces is particularly liable to corners and combinations by middlemen. This reciprocity is the farmer's bit of protection. Any farmer who doesn't vote for his own freedom as a producer is—is—well, not a Solomon."

I stick to my principles that what is good for all is good for me, and that it pays to be honest with the electors. It is one of the proudest boasts of my life that after twenty-five years' service in this riding I can look any man in the face and challenge him to name one pledge that I didn't make good."

"Vote right," Mr. Stratton concluded. "Vote for a man you know. Vote for a record of public service. Vote for reciprocity. Don't have the townspeople laughing at you and saying that this is your question and you don't appreciate it."

Another Barley Argument.

Among other things that R. R. Hall bore hard on was barley. In the United States the big breweries advertised beer made of Ontario barley and Manufacher hopst—that is to say the best barely and the best hops in the world. That shows what they think of our barley. From 1889 to 1890, Canadian barley went into the United States at a duty of 10 cents a bushel. During that period Canada sold to the United States $23,000,000 worth of barley, while Canada bought $61,000 worth from the United States. The latter figure shows just how much the bright, plump Canadian barley has to fear from competition with the United States product. Of course, the McKinley tariff of thirty cents a bushel practically killed the trade. With that tax removed, we ought to do prodigiously in a market a third as bi gagain as it was in 1890, which offers for Canadian barley eight, ninety and a dollar a bushel.

Loyalty and Letting Well Enough Alone.

Mr. Hall paid his respects to the disloyalty argument. If Canada is disloyal for trading with the United States, how disloyal England must be for trading with all the world. If Canada is liable to catch Uncle Sam's constitution by dealing with him, what a hodge-podge of international disease Great Britain must be, which deals with everybody. If Canada was going to be disloyal, why isn't she disloyal now at this very moment, when she has an annual trade with the United States of $400,000,000. If she were anxious, even to annexation, to keep reciprocity, why didn't she go after it across the border when the United States took it away in 1866? What happened instead? Why, the very next year the scattered provinces of Canada drew together and formed the Canadian Confederation. That was the thing that reciprocity did for us.

"Let well enough alone," said Mr. Hall." The timid souls are saying that. Don't you know if you don't go forward, you slip back? That is the law of human effort. China is a country of 380,000,000 people, with an area greater than Canada. China lets well enough alone. Canada, with eight million people, has twice the foreign trade of China. Holland, on the other hand, a little country of 12,000 square miles, about as big as one of our counties, is a country that doesn't believe in letting well enough alone. Its 7,000,000 people people did a total trade of $2,240,000,000, three times as much as Canada."

"Vote for reciprocity" was Mr. Hall's parting shot, "and turn your dimes into dollars."

Voices From the Farm.

Mr. Thos. Hunter shook hands with reciprocity because it had somebody besides the manufacturer in its eye.

"I'd vote for it as business," said Mr. Hunter, even if there wasn't any policies in it. As for Sir Wilfrid Laurier, I have no sympathy with people who bark at him on account of his religion. His religion is being a good man. He is something even better than a great man. He is an honest one."

Mr. F. E. Wilson told of some bigger profits he might have had on horses and potatoes if the United States duty had been kinder. Mr. Wilson is both a farmer and a produce buyer.

"Any farmer," he said, "that won't vote for reciprocity ought to be in an asylum. He isn't fit to run loose. He doesn't know his own business.

Mr. McIntosh, another well-known farmer, was glad to think that he could get 40 cents a bushel more for peas. That was $40 on a hundred bushels.

"What I say, is pitch politics to one side for once, and give reciprocity a trial"

The meeting closed with three hearty cheers for Laurier and the King and Mr. Stratton.

POST CARD COLUMN

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—Last night I read in the Review the report of Mr. Burnham's Saturday night meeting, and the loyal Conservatives had cheers for Kendry, Burnham and Peck, but no cheers for the King. What is the matter with the loyalty cry which has been U. H. Burnham's chief stock in trade in this campaign? The Liberals never think of closing a meeting without the usual cheers for the King, but apparently the leaders of the Tory party in Peterborough are using the loyalty more to suit their own purposes. "Actions always speak louder than words."

Yours truly,
"BRITISH BORN."

August 22nd.

Peterborough, Aug. 22nd, 1911.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Mr. Burnham, in the Review and Times of yesterday, says he will comply with my request, when I name two of four clergymen to whom he will submit the evidence. Why does he want clergymen to act as judges, or why are four required? Four might cause a deadlock. I suggest a much simpler arrangement. This is not a question of theology, but a question of fact. Let us then, choose a man who is accustomed to sift evidence, and an expert in arriving at the facts of a case. I therefore agree to let His Honour Judge Huycke decide this case for us. Mr. Burnham can have no objection to him, and I am perfectly satisfied to abide by his decision. So now, Mr. Burnham, deposit your $100 with any bank manager in this city. You make the choice, my money is ready. Just go right ahead and submit your evidence. It will be an excellent opportunity of showing the public what unreliable statements you are accustomed to make.

DENNIS DILLON.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

It reminded me," said the lady-who-always-knows-somehow, "of something a maid I had when I was first married said to me."

The lady-who-always-knows-somehow had been in to call on a neighbour of ours who had just come back from a long visit. She had been telling us how enthusiastic this woman's daughter was at her return, and how she could not seem to do enough for her mother. This was a new character for the daughter. She has the reputation of being a decidedly selfish girl who lets her mother wait on her by inches and rewards her with rudeness and impatience.

We expressed our interest as to what the girl's spasm of exuberant appreciation reminded the lady-who-always-knows-somehow of, and the lady went on:

"It was one time when I was housecleaning. I wanted to get everything clean together for once, and I'd been working hard enough to kill myself and I just gave out and had to go to bed. I had a jolly little Irish girl, just over, for a maid, and when she brought me up my tea that night she said, 'Sure, darlint, I think ye'll have to be after doing your cleaning more like the robins feed their young.'

"'And how is that?' I said.

"'A little at a time and oftener,' she explained.

"'A little at a time and oftener'——

How many things that would simplify besides housecleaning.

How often we try to pay debts of kindness or gratitude in a lump—at Christmas-time, perhaps—when the payment could so much better be made 'a's the robins feed their young."

How often we try to make up for months of some neglected duty in a day or two, when the only real way to atone is "as the robins feed their young."

How often we try to acquire accomplishments or qualities of character by a spasm of intense and prolonged effort, whereas the only real way to acquire most things worth acquiring is by efforts made "as the robins feed their young."

The world outdoors has many lessons for us. Animal and vegetable life have many wise words to say to us of serenity, of patience and of self-control, if we will but listen.

But few, I think, are wiser than the robin's lesson as translated by the little Irish girl.

Grant us in this impatient life to still remember that there are many, many things which can best be done "as the robins feed their young, a little at a time and oftener."

TWO YOUNG MEN PLEAD GUILTY OF STEALING $10 FROM BOY AT C.P.R. BRIDGE—MAN STOLE $19

Four Young Men Up on Serious Charges---Pleaded Guilty of Stealing $10---Another Charged With Theft of $19.00 ---Other Charges.

Two young men, between the ages of 18 and 21, were arraigned in the Police Court this morning, charged with the theft of $10 from another young man, named James Rivers, from Minden. They gave their names as Ernest Lowes and Albert Wright, and their homes as Toronto. Lowes pleaded guilty and Wright pleaded guilty of having the money in his possession, but denied stealing it.

Police Magistrate Dumble, in summing up the evidence, made no distinction between the two, however, and found both guilty, and remanded them until Thursday, Aug. 24th, for sentence.

According to the information given in the Police Court, Rivers came to this city to purchase some fixtures for a horse-rake for a farmer back in Ennismore, for whom he was working. He had been given $10 to make the purchase, and was carrying that with him. He had heard of the saw mills here, and thought he would like to see them. He went across the C. P. R. bridge and when he got to the other side there was a group of young men sitting in the shade across the fence. One of them came out and asked him for a match, and then asked him to come in and sit down. He did so and when he was coming away he missed the money.

Earnest Lowes, who pleaded guilty of stealing it, admitted that while they had been sitting there he took the money out of his pocket and handed it to Wright, who pushed it down beside a fence post. Rivers, however, was suspicious and charged Wright with the theft. A heated discussion followed, but no developments. Rivers then came over and reported the matter to the police and he and Detective Newhall and P. C. McGinty went over to the Albion Hotel, where they found the two young men and two others, who were in the party—J. Keegan and a man named Carey. When they saw Rivers they ran out of the bar, but were caught, and the money was found on Wright, and $2 were found in one of the bar cuspidors, where Wright had hidden it.

The two young men were remanded until Thursday for judgment, and Carey and Keegan, charged with vagrancy, were remanded until the 26th of August.

Hector Baker was charged with the theft of $19.00 from John Dugan last July. He pleaded not guilty and was remanded until the 28th.

Wm. Armstrong was fined $2.00 for being drunk.

Herb. Hodgins was fined $2.00 for being drunk also, and another man was too drunk to appear this morning.

James Muir was charged with vagrancy. He said he was a Scotchman and had been in the country seven years, and never was charged with vagrancy before. He was allowed to go.

Great Organist Is To Be Heard In Peterborough

Arrangements have been completed for the appearance here, in October, of Mr. G. Sellars, solo organist, Queen's Hall, London, and Crystal Palace festival concerts.

Mr. Sellars is ranked as one of the greatest organists of the day. In conjunction with this artist, Mr. Wm. Short, King's trumpeter, will take part. Mr. Short is the State trumpeter of England and was closely identified with the Coronation ceremonies.

The concert will be unique in many respects, and the promoters are promising a delightful evening.

It is likely the recital will be held in St. Paul's church, this organ affording the best opportunities.

KILLED BY A MOTOR CAR

Special to The Examiner

TORONTO, ONT., AUG. 22.—Samuel Horton, an engineer in the Waterworks Department, died this morning. He was struck by an automobile last night. Frank Burrows, a prominent citizen, the owner and driver of the automible, has been arrested and charged with manslaughter.

Dr. C. Gordon Hewitt, Dominion Entomologist, says, referring to the infantile death rate from intestinal diseases and diarrhœa spread by the house fly, he believes that the so-called harmless fly is yearly causing the death of thousands of infants, as well as spreading the germs of typhoid fever.

ADDRESS OF MR. STRATTON TO THE ELECTORATE

Electors of the West Riding of Peterborough

GENTLEMEN,—

At a largely attended mass meeting of the electors, on Saturday, I was selected as candidate to contest the representation of the Riding in the House of Commons. I accepted the responsibility of the position and hereby respectfully solicit the favour of your votes and support.

I am well known to you all, for during a representative service of West Peterborough, practically extending over a period of twenty-five years, I have many times come into contact, directly and indirectly, with every elector of the Riding.

In the past I have been honoured with your confidence, and I have earnestly striven to deserve it. In the discharge of my parliamentary and, especially of my representative duties, I have tried to consistently recognize and live up to the fact that I was the representative of the whole people, and in duty bound to serve the interests of all collectively and individually, whether their support had assisted, or their opposition had resisted, my election.

I need not refer to my record to specify what I have been privileged to do in the promotion of the material, moral and social welfare of West Peterborough. My work in this regard, be it little or great, is known to you all. You all know whether or not I have been a faithful servant of the people, whether the Riding is better, and in what respects, from my having been your representative.

I need not be at much pains to define my position in this contest. Everybody knows where I stand—where I am to be found. Such as I have been in the endeavour to advance your interests, I still am, and shall continue to be, if you honour me with re-election.

Apart from the consideration of local—city and county—interests, the national question chiefly involved in this contest is "Reciprocity," or free mutual exchange of natural, mainly farm, products, with the United States. I believe that reciprocity of this kind will be of benefit to the farmers of the country, and through their prosperity to all other interests—manufacturing, financial and commercial, as well as to those of the mechanic and workingman.

The round of benefit is natural. Good crops and good markets mean money for the farmer, which spent with the merchants of all kinds, means increased orders for the manufacturer and increased employment to their workmen. Thus Reciprocity, by affording wider and better markets, promises to be a benefit to the whole country and an injury to no class or interest; and is worth trying, especially as the agreement, not being a treaty, can, if unsatisfactory, be cancelled on reasonable notice.

If I thought for a moment that it would hurt any important interest, especially the manufacturing interest, I would oppose it. I am neither an extreme free trader, nor an extreme protectionist. I believe in a reasonable amount of both. High tariff in the United States has lost to Canada ninety million dollars in barley alone. The British Preference as it affects our manufacturers goes as far as desirable in the direction of free trade and I am opposed to, and will oppose, any increase of it. I myself am a manufacturer or interested in manufactures, in a modest way, but, at the same time, to an extent, important to myself and my associates, and I feel that our industries and working men could not stand the keen manufacturing competition of either Britain or the United States.

In this regard, I am in accord with the assurance of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, speaking for the Government, when he gave this pledge, "WE HAVE NOT HURT THE MANUFACTURERS AND WILL NOT HURT THEM," and I applaud the stand of Mr. Fielding in negotiating the Reciprocity Agreement, in refusing to even discuss reciprocity in manufactured articles with the United States.

If you approve, gentlemen, of what I consider the reasonable stand I take in relation to national interests; if you believe, judging from my past record of service to the Riding, that I have the business capacity, the business and parliamentary experience to continue to give you good service, and justify the confidence I now ask you to again place in me, I presume to claim your support.

This is probably the last appeal I shall make to you; for I think I have done my share of service to this Riding and have thereby earned the opportunity to give the necessary attention to my private affairs. I should have persisted in my desire to be relieved had I not felt in duty bound to defer to the earnest solicitation of the friends who have stood by me in the past, and also of a great many of my former opponents, and consented to be a candidate.

Another reason that influenced my acceptance, was, that being of a business turn, I naturally desired to complete work I have initiated, and for which I am in some degree, if the opportunity is given me, responsible. I should like to see the completion of the large new docks for the City of Peterborough; of the retaining wall on our river front in Peterborough; also a new concrete dam at Nassau erected, and a Rifle Range provided for this important military centre.

Trusting that I may be favoured with your effective support, I have the honour to remain, gentlemen, as I have been for the past twenty-five years,

Your Obedient Servant,

F. R. Stratton

Tired In Body and in Mind

Worn Out by the Monotonous Indoor Life of Winter

Spring Finds the Blood Weak and the System Run Down—Vigor is Restored by

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Just at the time when the buds are bursting and the birds are chirping merrily in the treetops, many people feel most keenly the debilitating and enervating effects of indoor winter life.

The blood is so thin and watery that it fails to supply nutrition to the nervous system and to the vital organs. You feel tired, weak and discouraged, appetite fails, digestion is impaired energy and ambition are lacking, and strange depressing feelings come over you.

But nature has provided certain restoratives to be used at this time of year to form new, rich blood and create new nerve force. These elements are found in condensed and easily assimilated form in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Thousands of men and women have learned to escape this spring depression and weakness and discouragement by using this great restorative. Vitality is increased, strength and confidence return, buoyancy is felt in every movement of the body, pallor and weakness and disease give place to the glow of health and vigour of mind and body.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the great spring tonic and restorative, 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

PILLARS OF LIBRARY MAY YET BE MADE STRAIGHT

At last night's meeting of the Council the "crooked pillars of the Public Library" came up once more and was referred to the Property committee which will meet on Wednesday night. Ald. Buller was much in favour of paying the $300 and letting the matter drop. He thought that the Rutherford Bros. did a good job and that the fact that the pillars were crooked, was not their fault, but the fault of the architect, and he moved that the money be paid. The motion was lost. The majority seemed of the opinion that the money should be taken from the architect if it was to be paid. At any rate, they were in favour of having the pillars made straight.

The matter of tearing up the street for the installing of electric wires and telephone wires came up once more. The matter was left over. There was a good deal of discussion over the matter, and Ald. Bradburn was of the opinion that a by-law had been passed or some arrangement made last year, whereby the companies must do all the wiring before the street is fixed up. The City Engineer stated that that order was only for the one year and not for any succeeding years.

No person was in favour, however, of having the streets torn up, after they had been fixed.

The matter of putting a walk across the C. P. R. bridge came up for discussion and it was finally arranged that the mayor call on Mr. Overend of the C.P.R., in Toronto, and try and make some arrangements for the erection of a walk across said bridge.

A letter will also be written to the company. An application was made before, and it seems that they wanted the walk put on the south side of the track.

How To Stop Drinking

It was formerly customary for the habitual drinker to take the pledge regularly, sometimes once a year, and sometimes in every fit of remorse that followshis debauches, and then—Break it.

But now it is gradually dawning on the world that pledges do not stop drunkenness. The nervous system of the habitual drinker is diseased and he must have treatment that will cure this condition. If Orrine does not benefit after a trial, we refund your money. Can be given secretly.

IMPORTANT COMMUNICATION DEALT WITH AT SPECIAL MEETING OF CITY FATHERS--REPORTS READ

A Cobourg Man Thinks Peterborough is Behind That Town in Some Respects---By-law Authorizing City Trust Commission to Proceed With Erection of New Police Station.

At a special meeting of the Council, held last night, the following were present: Mayor Morrow, chairman; Aldermen Morgan, Edgar, Metheral, Anderson, Kernegan, Graham, Bradburn, Duncan, and Buller.

Some general business of minor importance was dealt with, and the following communications were read:

From the Minister of Agriculture re milk supply. It was arranged that a copy of the city's milk by-law be sent to him upon his arrival from England.

From Mr. Mart. Pengelly, asking for the position of caretaker at the new pumping station.—Referred to the Board of Works.

From J. S. Bell, re 30 acres of ground for the exhibition. The ground is situated near the south boundary of the city and near the G. T. R.. A copy of the letter will be forwarded to the Agricultural Society.

FromF. J. Hall re putting up street signs for the Exhibition, and asking to do so.—Permission granted.

From City Solicitor re Hatton vs. City of Peterborough.—Communication received.

A complaint against the city was read re oil in the river. The Gas Co. agreed to remove their pipe from the river and they have not done so. It was arranged that the City Engineer will write the Company and have it removed.

A letter was received regarding the installation of a main on Concession street, and was referred to the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

From Thos. Kinnear & Co., stating that their cellar was flooded as a result of the overflow of the sewer, and they sent in a bill for damages to the council, to which they received no answer, and they intimated their intention of taking action in case the Council did not compensate them. The matter was referred to the Board of Works.

A petition for a sidewalk on George street, south, was referred to the Board of Works.

A postal was received from a Cobourg man and read as follows: To Peterborough City Council, etc. How do you expect visitors to find their way around your city, when there are no names on your street corners? Cobourg is bad enough, but you are ten times worse.

The communication was received.

From County Treasurer E. Elliott re Pigeon Creek Bridge.

The bridge was broken some time ago by floating logs, and is closed for traffic.

A letter from the Victoria Council and the County Council, asking the cooperation of the city council in the erection, or the repairing of, the bridge, was received; and the chairman of the Board of Works and Ald. Anderson were appointed to confer with the County Council and the Victoria Council, with power to act.

From Chas. P. Murty re taxes. He claimed that he was taxed as a public school supporter and he should have been taxed as a Separate School supporter and he wanted it changed.—The request was granted.

From the local A. O. F. lodge, asking for a grant to assist in paying the expenses of the delegates to the convention. They claimed that it was an ad. for the city to have the convention here. The communication was received.

From Capt. E. B. Cleeg, requesting a grant of $50 for the 57th Regiment. It was to help defray the expenses of the military sports held in Central Park on Coronation Day. The request was granted.

From C. Conroy, advising the Council that he had turned the entire contract over to James Bogue, of putting in the South End sewer.—Received.

From B. F. Ackerman & Co., re flooding of the basement of his establishment, whereby a great amount of damage was done to his stock, by the water, and requesting the city to fix the sewer and pay damages, intimating that if they did not do this, they, the company, would take action. The matter was referred to the Board of Works.

Re the construction of a roadway across the new dam at Auburn, his Worship reported that Mr. Larmonth estimates the cost of such work at $15,000. The Auburn Power Company intends building this dam this fall, and Mr. Larmonth will submit a detailed report as to several propositions for a roadway across it.

From F. J. Hall, requesting an extra grant for the Exhibition.—Referred to the Finance Committee.

A report from the Board of Works was received and adopted; also a report from the Court of Revision was adopted.

The following report of the Power Committee was read, received, and adopted:

To the Council of the City of Peterborough.

Gentlemen,—Your Power Committee beg leave to report and recommend that no action be taken at the present time on the application of the Otonabee Power Co. to have the Council reaffirm a resolution of March, 1907, asking the Department of Railways and Canals to give a lease of Dam No. 4 to the Company, all of which is respectfully submitted.

W. G. Morrow, Chairman.

The following report of the Legal Committee was read, received and adopted.

To the Council of the City of Peterborough.

Gentlemen,—Your Legal Committee beg leave to report as follows:

1. We received a letter from the City Solicitor, saying that the City's appeal, in the case of Hatton vs. Peterborough, was dismissed, with costs. We recommend that a cheque be issued to E. H. D. Hall, City Solicitor, in settlement of the case when the amount is ascertained. All of which is respectfully submitted.

A letter was received from Holgate and Ross, Engineers, reporting the cost of developing power at the Dixon Company's dam, near Lakefield, which has been offered to the city for $250,000. The report was submitted to the Hydro-Electric Commission and the two reports will be read and dealt with at a special meeting of the Council, to be held in the near future.

A by-law authorizing the City Trust Commission to proceed with the erection of a Police Station, was read for the third time and passed. The sum to be expended in the erection is not to exceed $5,000. W. H. Moore said the Commission had no money.

Ald. Graham thought it would be wise to go ahead and erect the Police Station, as the City Hall would be a matter for another Council to deal with. If the proposition is agreeable to the City Trust Commission the work will be commenced at once.

A communication was received from W. H. Lightall, extending an invitation to the Council to send a delegate to the 11th annual meeting of the anniversary of the Union of the Ontario Municipalities, to be held at Quebec.—Received.

From City Solicitor Hall sending in a bill for $769.40 to the City for the costs in the Hatton vs. City case.—Received.

From W. H. Moore, on behalf of J. H. Briggs, who claims $50 damages as a result of injuries received by being knocked down by a horse at a fire on Brock street.—Received.

From W. H. Meldrum, asking for the position of Industrial Commissioner ,at a salary of $1,500 per year.—Received.

A number of by-laws were dealt with.

NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

Solves the Problem of Good Hair

After Prof. Sabourand confirmed the germ origin of dandruff, science was confronted by a new problem which was not solved until the discovery of Newbro's Herpicide. Herpicide being the first successful preparation compounded in harmony with this new theory, becomes the original remedy to kill the dandruff germ.

Since then, numerous preparations said to be "just as good" as Herpicide have been thrown upon the market; others have adopted Herpicide claims, and without making any change in their remedies, but none have ever reached the same degree of popularity. Everywhere this remedy is recognized as the one genuine dandruff destroyer. As a result Herpicide has more satisfied users than all other hair preparations combined.

Being the original remedy, users expect more astonishing results from Herpicide than they would look for from any other preparation, and they usually get them. So wonderful has been the success of this germicide that it is now recognized as the standard hair remedy of the world.

Herpicide kills the dandruff germ, checks falling hair. It stops itching of the scalp almost instantly.

For sale at drug stores. One dollar size bottles are guaranteed. Applications obtainable at the good barber shops. Insist on having real Herpicide. Send 10c. in postage for sample and book to The Herpicide Co., Dept. R., Detroit, Mich.

Messrs. Bogue And Conroy Have Not Yet Completed Sewers

Council Urged Them Last Night to Come to Some Conclusion as to What They Would Do But They Were Unable to do This---City May Proceed With the Work.

Unfortunately, Mr. Bogue and Mr. Ed. Conroy, the contractors for the installation of the south end sewage system, have as yet, failed to begin work, and the six days given by the council, have expired. At the meeting of the council last night, both were present, as was also their counsels, Mr. W. H. Moore acting for Mr. Conroy, and Mr. G. N. Gordon acting for Mr. Bogue.

Mr. Willis Chitman and Mr. Pardu were also present.

Mr. Chitman stated that there had been no more done at the work than when he was present before, and at the rate it was being done, it would not be completed for years to come. He said the contractors were either unwilling or unable to proceed with the work, for it was neither a physical nor engineering impossibility to do the work.

Mr. Gordon tried to explain that Mr. Bogue had not been recognised in the transaction at all and that therefore he was out of it. He stated that he had been advised that if the pumping station had been used as a reservoir, it would have been less difficult. He said there were many engineering difficulties and the solution was a difficult one. He said that Mr. Bogue protested against the council putting in the pumping machinery, and more than that he did not get his cheque since July. The mayor did not hear of a refusal. In short, Mr. Bogue regarded it as an engineering impossibility to go further with the work.

Mr. Chitman stated that the objection about the installation of the machinery was not raised until he was about to give up the work, and at any rate the city was under no obligation to permit him to use the pumping station, as the contract specifically stated that the pumping was to be done without any draining outlet. He said the trench was dug too narrow and the sheeting was improper to deal with quick sand, but it was certainly not impossible.

Mr. Conroy maintained that it was ridiculous to take the pumping station from them, as he had been promised the use of it.

Mr. Gordon offered that the two contractors go together and finish the work as employees of the city, but no satisfactory conclusion could be arrived at.

A HARMLESS WAY TO DARKEN THE HAIR

A Little Sage and Sulphur Makes Gray Hair Vanish—A Remedy for All Hair Troubles

Who does not know the value of sage and sulphur for keeping the hair dark, soft, glossy and in good condition? As a matter of fact, sulphur is a natural element of hair, and a deficiency of it in the hair is held by many scalp specialists to be connected with loss of color and vitality of the hair. Unquestionably, there is no better remedy for hair and scalp troubles, especially premature grayness, than sage and sulphur, if properly prepared. The Wyeth Chemical Company of New York put up an ideal remedy of this kind, called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, and authorize druggists to sell it under guarantee that the money will be refunded if it fails to do exactly as represented.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.

BELIEVES IT IS IN HIS BLOOD

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 19.—Believing that in his veins there existed an inherited taint, one impelling him to take the property of others, even though his conscience dictated the right, John S. Glover, aged twenty years, employed for two years as assistant elevator starter in the Security Savings Bank Building, surrendered himself to the police, asking Detectives Ziegler and Hosick to place him behind the bars to prevent his committing additional thefts.

Glover asserts that he had stolen property from mail box receptacles for more than a year. In his possession at the time of his becoming a voluntary prisoner were keys which would admit him to any and every office in the Security Building, but he had not stolen, he said, from any office. His "specialty," as he described it, was to rifle the merchandise parcels placed in the wire mail baskets.

"My father is ,or was, a thief. He now is confined in Charlestown prison in Massachusetts, my native State, and I believe—in fact, I am convinced—that I have inherited a mania for theft," said Glover. "I know right from wrong; I have resisted the desire to steal, but I cannot combat the feeling. I tell you it is in the blood. I gave myself up o the police so that I could not engage in additional acts of lawlessness. I may be called into the United States Court to explain my acts, but I am determined to protect others against my inherited desire to steal."

STOLE FROM STORE

Glover came to Los Angeles about two years ago. For a short period he was employed at a department store. He stole there, he said. Later he obtained employment as an elevator operator in the Security Savings Bank Building. Attention to work and loyalty to his employer brought promotion, and for more than a year young Glover has held the position of assistant starter.

When the holiday season of 1910-1911 approached he succumbed to the temptation to steal. The wire mail baskets placed at the side of the mail chutes, each containing a burden of Christmas and New Year gifts, attracted his attention. The envy of giving—not of receiving—obsessed him. His store of money has been expended for books for his own perusal.

"It looked easy to take these parcels, and I simply could not resist the temptation to purloin the better looking ones," said Glover. "I had no large number of friends to whom I desire to present gifts, but I took packages right and left, timing the elevators so I could do it without detection."

When he walked into the city jail Police-Detective Tom Ziegler met him in the hallway. The detective and Glover were acquainted, and Glover, tears dimming his sight, pleaded to be locked up.

"I'M AFRAID OF MYSELF."

"I'm afraid of myself," he sobbed. "Lock me up, I am a thief. See, I stole these stamps from parcels placed in the parcel box in the Security Building."

At Glover's room in the home of his uncle, the detective found five stars such as are worn by special deputy sheriffs and constables, several revolvers, a number of skeleton keys, one of which Glover said would admit him to any office in the Security Building; a pair of handcuffs and legirons, and about 200 books. Many of the books had not been removed from their coverings. Glover said he had been too busy to read them.

he detectives believe Glover is sincere in his belief that in his blood there is a taint which impels him to steal. If the postal authorities do not prosecute the youth, Detectives Hosic and Ziegler intend doing all in their power to assist him out of his predicament.

Suicided After Being Wounded

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—Receiving what he believed was a mortal wound by the accidental discharge of his shotgun while out duckhunting near Felton, Santa Cruz County, William Ashley, twenty years old, of Oakland, placed the weapon at his head and killed himself just as a companion appeared and implored him not to shoot.

Ashley's shotgun was discharged when he slipped from a log, the charge boring into his body over the lef ship. The wound must have caused him agonizing pain, for when he arose he was staggering through the swamp and declaiming hysterically.

"Isn't this a beautiful world after looking at the hills?" he was heard to say as David Jones, one of the men in the hunting party, appeared.

Ashley lifted his shotgun and deliberately placed it against his head.

"Don't shoot, Bill," shouted Jones, divining his intention.

DIED WITH A SMILE

Ashley paused long enough to smile. He then waved his hand in farewell and pulled the trigger, falling to his death with the top of his skull shattered.

Ashley, who was employed as a brakeman on the Boulder Creek Branch of the Southern Pacific Railroad, went hunting in company with Jones and Bert Wilson, who is employed as a conductor on the same line.

The three separated while scouring the marsh lands near Felton, and the first intimation Jones had that Ashley was in trouble was when his attention was attracted by the accidental discharge of the shotgun. Jones arrived just in time to see Ashley kill himself.

"He acted as if he was crazed with pain," said Jones. "I was hurrying to his aid and was less than ten yards from him when he fell dead."

Life was Insured

Ashley recently insured his life, a sister being named as the beneficiary in the policy. Whether or not she will be able to collect the insurance depends on the naure of he wound he received in the accidental discharge of the shotgun. If an autopsy establishes the fact that this wound would have caused death the insurance company will be obliged to pay the policy. Otherwise the policy will be invalidated on the ground of suicide.

In killing himself Ashley adhered to a line of conduct that he discussed in a recent conversation with a brother.

"If I ever was in great pain from an injury that I knew was going to cause my death," he told his brother, "I should cerainly kill myself."

WHEN BLOOD IS POISON

The blood must be filtered, otherwise you are poisoned. If the kidneys fail the liver is overworked, and becomes torpid. By using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills you get both these filtering organs working right, and also ensure healthful action of the bowels. For this reason these pills are an ideal family medicine. They cure biliousness, constipation, chronic indigestion and kidney disease.

PREMIER AT A FUNERAL

Special to The Examiner:

MONTREAL, AUG. 22.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his chief henchmen, left the city this morning for St. Hyacinthe, to attend the funeral of Mr. A. M. Beauparlant, a leading Liberal, who called the meeting, which was seized by the Nationalists, and where Lemieux was howled down a couple of weeks ago. Mr. Beauparlant died Saturday from appendicitis. The Premier so far shows no sign of fatigue, though the campaign has been strenuous.

A NOVEL SCHEME OF ADVERTISING

Messrs. H. LeBrun and Company have decided to adopt a novel scheme in order that they may learn the proper value of newspaper advertising. As will be seen in an advertisement in another column of the Examiner, the Company will give a ten per cent. discount to any customer who cuts the advertisement out of the paper and brings it to the store when making a purchase. That is, the general public will benefit to the extent of 10c. on the dollar by the company's experiment, which will make it a doubly interesting one. No doubt the people of Peterborough will be glad to take advantage of the opportunity that is afforded them by this unique offer of Messrs. LeBrun and Company.

BOURASSA IS AMBITIOUS

Special to The Examiner:

MONTREAL, QUE., AUG. 22.— A prominent Liberal this morning came out with the theory regarding Bourassa, that he is backing Borden with the understanding that the Conservative party of Quebec will back him when the Provincial elections are held, in an attempt to seize the reins of power in this province by Nationalists. If successful Bourassa will be premier of Quebec.

CRITICIZED CHURCHILL

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, AUG. 22.—John Ramsay Macdonald administered a sharp oratorical whipping to Home Secretary Churchill at this afternoon's session, saying that the part played by Mr. Churchill in sending troops to the strike centres was most diabolical, and malachevious. However, he commended the spirit shown by both strikers and companies in referring the matter for negotiations, saying, if the same spirit continued, England had seen her last railroad strike. The Parliament adjourned till Oct. 24th.

Premier's Position in Quebec is Unshaken—Sir Wilfrid Gets a Royal Reception at St. Julienne

A SPLENDID ADDRESS

Ste. Julienne, Que., Aug. 22.—An impression that Sir Wilfrid Laurier still occupies the foremost position in the estimation of his Quebec compatriots was further strengthened at yesterday afternoon's meeting at Ste. Julienne, Montcalm county, a little town on the Canadian Northern Railway. Although Ste. Julienne was but a few years ago an outpost of civilization in this province, the building of a railway through the country has developed it wonderfully.

It is in the rural districts that the Nationalists are reputed to have made the greatest headway, but the Premier paid little attention to Messrs. Monk, Bourassa and Lavergne in his address, and did not indulge in the fierce replies to these opponents that have characterized his addresses in some of the larger centres of population. He was, however, particularly emphatic in stating that the claims of the Nationalists that the navy would soon result in conscription were ridiculous and false.

Speaking on reciprocity, he said that Canada was an agricultural country par excellence, and cultivated for the English market, to which butter and cheese were shipped especially, and for the American market, to which were shipped straw, hay, corn, cattle and lambs. "If you ship to the United States," he said, "you will have to encounter the custom duties. On hay you will pay $4 a ton, on straw $2 a ton, on horses twenty-five per cent. of their value, on lambs forty-five cents a head, on sheep $1.50 a head. We have arranged so that all these products will enter free into the United States."

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, who has quite recovered from the throat affection which has been troubling him, also spoke.

The meeting was presided over by Mayor Bernard. A feature of the meeting was the presence of P. A. Lafortune, K.C., who two years ago carried Montcalm County, in which this village is situated, as an independent Liberal, although Omer Lapierre opposed him, endorsed the Government. Mr. Lafortune [illegible] and yesterday the Premier endorsed his candidature, while Mr. Lapierre, the defeated candidate, in a brief speech, also exhorted the electors to give their support to Mr. Lafortune.

Leaders' Plans.

Ottawa, Aug. 22.—Now the political leaders are now turning their attention to the Maritime Provinces.

R. L. Borden closes his Ontario tour in Brockville next Monday. His itinerary for the eastern provinces was announced to-day. Beginning with a meeting in Montreal on Tuesday, Aug. 29, from Montreal the Conservative leader goes down to the eastern townships, holding two and three meetings a day. Wednesday the 30th, he speaks at Farnham, Granby and Waterloo. Thursday at Richmond and Sherbrooke. Friday at Cookshire and Lake Megantic.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier will complete his Quebec tour this week, and will leave on Saturday for the Maritime Provinces, where he will remain a week, after which he will go to Toronto.

The Liberal convention Wednesday night will select the candidate for St. James' division, Montreal. There is some talk that Hon. Rodolph Lemieux may run, as there is a feeling in Liberal circles that a Minister should seek election in a metropolitan division. In that event a picturesque fight will be certain if Mr. Henri Bourassa could be induced to oppose him.

To Contest South Toronto.

Toronto, Aug. 22.—Four hundred enthusiasts gathered at the Labor Temple last night and nominated Controller J. J. Weal as the Labor candidate for South Toronto in the coming Dominion elections. J. E. Atkinson of The Star, moved the nomination, and Magnus seconded it, and the crowd "balloted" for the slate of the nominations. This was done immediately, and the speech-making commenced, followed by lots of assurances and predictions that J. J. Ward would be the next representative from South Toronto in the Federal Parliament.

Mayor Bisau in Provencher.

St. Boniface, Man., Aug. 22.—The convention of Provencher Conservatives, held here yesterday afternoon, chose Mayor J. A. F. Bisau as the candidate to oppose Dr. J. B. Molloy.

King For Waterloo.

Waterloo, Aug. 22.—Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King was nominated yesterday afternoon by a gathering of delegates that crowded the Town Hall, and the four hundred delegates gave the young Minister a big ovation.

The afternoon's list of nominations began and ended with the name of the Minister of Labor. It was presented by Mr. Wm. Snider, president of the Waterloo Manufacturing Co., and the Millers & Manufacturers' Fire Insurance Co. Mr. J. W. Hartleib, a well-known farmer and stock-breeder of Wellesley Township, was the seconder.

Hon. Mr. Fisher Chosen.

Montreal, Aug. 22.—Hon. Sydney Fisher, Minister of Agriculture, was yesterday afternoon, by unanimous vote, chosen again as the Liberal standard-bearer in Brome county.

The convention was held at Knowlton. Mr. Fisher will be opposed by Major G. H. Baker, a young lawyer from Montreal.

Can't Need Convention.

Winchester Springs, Ont., Aug. 22.—Andrew Broder, member in the late Parliament, will again be the Conservatives candidate in Dundas.

The Conservative association of the riding held its annual meeting here yesterday, and so popular is Mr. Broder in the party that a convention was not deemed necessary.

Sir James Whitney was present, and he was also named as the party's choice for the Provincial House.

The Ontario Premier and Mr. Broder delivered addresses in accepting the nomination of their old constituencies.

"Pushed" a Barber's Face.

Brantford, Aug. 22.—Sir David Bruce, who served in the South African war, and who is an authority on sleeping sickness, was at Aberfoyle Denbrighshire, on Saturday fined half a crown for assaulting a barber.

Sir David was being shaved in a barber's shop, when the barber cut his cheek. He said that he slapped the barber's face, considering it the best form of chastisement and that it would do him good.

Denies Steel Merger.

Bethlehem, Pa., Aug. 22.—Charles M. Schwab, president of the Bethlehem Steel Co., last night denied the report that his company would be merged with the Lackawanna Steel Co. and the Republic Iron & Steel Co. to fight the United States Steel Corporation. He said that no such step was contemplated. "We are solely interested in the development of our own company," he said.

Cotton Tariff Bill Passed.

Washington, Aug. 22.—The cotton tariff revision bill was passed by the House late yesterday. The bill was signed by Vice-President Sherman and Speaker Clarke and sent to Presidents Taft, who will veto it.

The Senate adjourned until noon today, and Congress, after hearing the President's veto message, will finally adjourn at 3 p.m.

"My eldest son, five years old, got very bad with cholera infantum; two days after my next son took it, and the third day my little girl also took in. I doctored with all kinds of things, but they kept on getting worse and the doctors could do them no good. I then started the Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, and after two or three days could see a difference, so kept on with the treatment, but they were so bad it took about two weeks to complete the cure. Different people kept asking me how I saved my children's lives that time, and I always say it was Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. I can never recommend it in the house."

THE KING'S GRATITUDE

His Majesty Congratulates Lloyd-George on Work—Say Companies Are Not Living Up to Terms of Agreement

ARE DISSATISFIED

London, Aug. 22.—The strife in the industrial world of the United Kingdom gradually is abating. With a truce in effect on all railway lines except the London and Northwestern, the Board of Trade was occupied all yesterday in an endeavor to reach an amicable arrangement between the employes of this line and the managers, and also in trying to settle the strike of the short sea traders. It was announced last night that both these controversies are now in line for early adjustment.

There is still much friction on some of the railroads over the impatience of strikers returning to work, to be accorded full reinstatement to their old positions, which have been given to men who remained loyal to the companies when the walk-out was declared. As a result there were several instances of disorder yesterday in various parts of the kingdom, and desolations by small bodies of men to remain on strike.

Work on the London docks was in full swing yesterday for the first time in three weeks, but it will be some time before the congestion of the port, due to the dock and transfer sheds strike, is relieved.

King George telegraphed his congratulations to Premier Asquith, David Lloyd-George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, and Sydney Buxton, president of the Board of Trade, on the settlement of the railway strike. The king's message to Mr. Lloyd-George said:

"I am glad to hear that it was largely due to your energy and skill that the settlement was brought about. I heartily congratulate you, and feel that the whole country will be most grateful to you for averting a most disastrous calamity. It was carried on the greatest possible quietly.

The representatives of the railway employes yesterday complained that the companies were not carrying out the terms of the agreement under which the strike was called off, affecting particularly to claims two, which provides for the reinstatement of strikers without prejudice. As a consequence a long conference was held at the Board of Trade till a protest of the men investigated. At its conclusion the announcement was made that a satisfactory solution of the difficulty had been reached.

To Head Off Powers.

Pekin, China, Aug. 22.—The transfer of Prince Su, chief of the Naval Department, to the board of dependencies is taken to mean that China will attempt to develop Mongolia and Thibet, as well as Manchuria and convert them into provinces, with the object of saving them from ultimate foreign domination. The prince visited Mongolia in 1906 and made an investigation of its industrial and commercial conditions.

China is planning to allow the office of Dalai Lama of Thibet to lapse by not authorizing the appointment of a successor, and so to control Thibet without a religious intermediary, but the rapid and effective fulfilment of this program is not to be expected.

Jury Blames Waters.

Hamilton, Aug. 22.—That the deceased came to his death by being struck by an automobile driven by W. J. Waters, and that the speed of the auto was excessive, was in effect the verdict of Coroner Anderson's jury, which last night enquired into the death of William Hayes, who died in the City Hospital on Aug. 13, from injuries received the previous day in a motor accident at the corner of Main street and Kirkland Avenue.

Crown Attorney Washington could not say last night whether or not the crown will take any further action in the case. George H. Kerr, representing the Hayes family, and John W. Gauld, acting for Mr. Waters, were present at the inquest last night.

Shot Wild Cat.

Montreal, Aug. 22.—Constable Trudeau, 1,415 St. Denis street, leaning out of his window yesterday morning, saw two exceptionally large cats, whose attentions occupying a branch of one of his trees. Taking a shot, he brought one down, the other escaping. On inspection the dead animal was found to have been a wild cat. It is thought that the pair escaped from the Barnum and Bailey circus.

Togo Interested in Hydro.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Aug. 22.—Admiral Togo left here aboard the private car "Ontario" last night, after spending two days within hearing of the mighty cataract. He said before leaving that he was much impressed with the beauty of the falls and the wonderful power development. He was much interested in the Hydro-Electric scheme. He left Toronto for the west on the Canadian Pacific transcontinental express at 10.30 last night. He spent the entire day with Japanese Consul-General to Canada Nakamura, who accompanied him to Toronto.

DAMAGE BY STORM

Western Provinces Swept by a Gale Two Hundred Yards Wide Blowing Down Many Barns

DEATHS IN STATES

Winnipeg, Aug. 22.—The extent of the damage suffered by Sunday storm cannot be gauged. That it was sufficient to send the wheat market soaring two points is patent; but the volume of actual harm caused is beyond conjecture. The city is flooded with reports and rumors, which are unreliable, as is shown by the fact that correspondents in the same district do not agree as to the effect of the storm.

One thing is known definitely, and that a cyclone two hundred yards in width swept through a big stretch of Saskatchewan, the southern corner of Manitoba, and entered into the northern States. The tornado apparently gained momentum as it swept forward; in Dakota it killed seven, overthrew grain fields and swept buildings off their foundations.

Apparently in Saskatchewan hail and heavy winds robbed a few sections of a good percentage of grain, but it is not believed that the damage was really a warrant for the big advance in local prices here yesterday.

Four buildings are totally wrecked. When the barn of Donald Colquhoun, near Gainsboro', Sask., was blown down, two men were in it, and one is so seriously injured that he is not expected to recover, while the other is quite badly injured.

The other buildings on the farm were damaged and the machinery rendered useless, while the crops were destroyed.

J. S. Shillington's barns, hay and crops are totally ruined.

A neighbor named Brown suffered a like loss, and a boy was hurt from the flying timbers of one of the barns.

John W. Stevenson lost his barn, granary, machinery and crops.

John Cares suffered as severely as Stevenson.

The houses of all were damaged, though none were blown down.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES

Dr. James Beaudet, Conservative nominee for Megantic, has retired.

Montreal City Council appointed Mr. Darger of Toronto to inquire into telephone rates.

The delay in negotiations between France and Germany in relation to Morocco is causing considerable uneasiness in Paris.

A Rio Janeiro paper confirms the recent announcement that Brazil has engaged German naval officers to command ships of her navy.

There have been persistent rumors that new interests have obtained control of The Halifax Chronicle, and that this may have an important bearing on the election campaign.

Riots, growing out of the strike of newsboys, were renewed in Dublin yesterday. The contents of several newspaper wagons were burned and there was some stone-throwing.

A cigar stump carelessly thrown away by a smoker is believed to have been the cause of a serious fire at Mountain Grove, near Sharbot Lake, early yesterday morning. The loss was $6,000.

Because Ernest Jouret married three times and attempted to enter into the bonds of matrimony the fourth time, he was sent to jail in Toronto yesterday to be examined by the city physicians.

Samuel Fowler of the editorial staff of The Kingston Standard died after a few days' illness from a stroke of apoplexy, aged 62 years. Deceased was a son of the late John Fowler of Cobourg, in his day an eminent railway contractor.

The body of the world's largest woman was laid to rest Sunday in Toronto. Borne in a casket specially constructed, being 3 feet 6 inches wide, 3 feet 6 inches deep and 6 feet long, the remains of Mrs. Letitia Campbell, known professionally as Dolly Varden were taken to Mt. Pleasant cemetery.

Heat Affects the Pope.

Rome, Aug. 22.—There was another heat wave here yesterday, and in consequence the Pope, who was reported to be convalescent from his recent attack of gout and heart weakness, suffered a slight relapse.

He was weakened to such an extent that he was unable to go into the Vatican gardens, as he had intended.

Loses an Arm.

Cornwall, Aug. 22.—Early yesterday morning, John Burgess, an employe of the Dundas Cotton Mill, while attending to his duties, had his arm drawn into a picker. The limb was so crushed that it had to be amputated.

LINDSAY'S VERSION OF SATURDAY'S BASEBALL GAME

The Lindsay Post says:

The attendance at Saturday's ball game between Lindsay and a team representing the West End Athletic Club, Peterborough, did not attract anything like the crowd that the old-time rivals would in the good, old days of old. This may be accounted for in a measure from the fact that Saturday is a poor day to pull off an athletic event in Lindsay.

There was, however, a fair-sized audience, with a sprinkling of Peterborough fans, who came up on the poorly-patronized excursion from that city.

The game was a pretty good exhibition of the popular American pastime, Lindsay pulling out on top of a 9-6 score. The visitors were reinforced by three members of Peterborough Midland League team—Gonter, Ahearn and Murphy, who filled the positions of catcher, first and second sacks, respectively. Cresswell, a south paw twirler, seen here before this season, was on the mound for the visitors.

Lindsay presented a line-up of snappy ball artists, who had their working clothes on Saturday, and put up a quality of ball, superior to anything seen in the Town League series. J. Spratt and M. Day constituted the battery, and were in rare form. Spratt pitching a splendid game. He had ten strike-outs to his credit and played a heady game all through. The rest of the team played their positions with credit.

For the visitors, Gonter, who did the receiving, is a first-class player in that position, but was a little reckless on Saturday; Ahearn, on second sack, is an old St. Marys (Toronto) player and is in a class by himself in that position. Murphy, on third sack, is also a good man, while the rest of the team played their positions satisfactorily. Cresswell, on the mound, was in pretty good shape, having nine strike-outs to his credit.

The features of the game were Scott's two bagger and Gonter's terrific slam, which was good for a homer.

In the first innings Lindsay notched two runs on a very wild throw to third sack, which Murphy could not have reached with a fishing net. Peterborough was then given a coat of kalsomine and Lindsay notched another in their second innings. Peterborough was again blanked in the third, while the locals made the score 3-0. With Peterborough to bat, Gonter lammed one near the hospital, and romped around for a homer. The visitors scored two more in the sixth, while Lindsay was blanked five times. In the ninth innings, however, the balloon ascension took place. Gonter became a little erratic and this added to other errors, resulted in a tally of five runs, making the score at the end of the local's ninth, 9-3, in their favour. Peterborough went in for their innings with a do or die determination, and looked as if they might tie the score or even pass ahead. Thanks to the good generalship of J. Spratt, in the pitcher's mound, the game was saved for the locals, the Petes notching three runs, making the score 9-6 in Lindsay's favour.

BALL GAME ARRANGED FOR SATURDAY AFTERNOON

There will be a game on Saturday afternoon at Riverside Park, between Happy Brydie's Pets and Bill Shaw's Demons. The latter will be composed entirely of the Regulars of the Peterborough Midland League team, while Manager Brydie will have a nine that he says will make the Pets think that the Grand Trunks are after them. That, by the way, is the primary object of the game, to give the Petes a good work-out for their big game here on Labour Day with the Grand Trunks. This will be a feature of the Labour Day sports. Manager Brydie has asked that he be allowed the services of Ernie Rahmel to do the twirling for him, while Shaw's Demons will have Cresswell. It should be a battle royal. Last time the two teams met the Petes only won out 5 to 4.

BASEBALL

The game between the Mark streets and East city, scheduled to be played last night, did not materialise, owing to the non-appearance of the Athletic club's team.

According to Fred Clarke, the Pirate manager, Marty O'Toole, the $22,500 beauty, will likely be tried out during the series beginning here to-day. If his showing is good it is the present plan to feature him at Saturday's game at the Polo grounds.

Saturday was the last day for the major leagues to purchase players from the minors and all those under contract in the Eastern League will be subject to the draft which opens Sept. 1st and closes Sept. 15th.

Montreal has sold Outfielder Ward Miller to Chicago Nationals for money and three players.

Jersey City has sold Shortstop Roach at Boston Americans and has also turned Catcher Tonneman back to the same club.

Jack Thoney goes to Jersey City, and the Providence Journal says it's reported in Boston that he will manage that team next season.

Rochester has sold Outfielder Osborn and Utility Fielder Simmons to New York Americans; Pitcher McConnell to the same team, and Shortstop Foster, first-baseman Spencer, and Outfielder Moeller to Washington.

The records show that the teams that are playing the best ball in the league are heading Toronto's way, and the Leafs will have to do their prettiest to hold their own. The Leafs have the following games yet to play:

Two games at home with Baltimore.
Four games at home with Jersey City.
Four games at home with Newark.

OFF FOR WINNIPEG

TORONTO, AUG. 21. — Hilliard Lang, the Toronto welter, and Charlie Conkle, of Hamilton, leave to-night for Winnipeg. On Thursday night at the Western metropolis Lang boxes Kid Gibbs, a Yankee welter, who has been trimming up everything around there for a year or so. Lang is in the best shape he ever was. He has been training for six weeks with Frank Carroll, and if anybody can teach Lang how to make those damaging wallops of his produce quick knockouts Carroll can. If Gibbs beats Lang he is a classy welter, and Torontonians would like to see him in action.

MOROCCAN SITUATION

Special Wire to the Examiner.

PARIS, AUG. 22.—In a rather threatening, but cautious official note this morning the French Government said the Morrocean situation would be thoroughly discussed before Ambassador Cambon returned to Germany next Monday. The Government is hopeful of a solution of the difficulty, but foreign rights in Morocco must be recognised and Germany must reduce her manifestly excessive desires in the Congo.

Commission Appointed By English Parliament

Special to The Examiner.

LONDON, AUG. 22.—The Commission appointed to inquire into the troubles between the railways of Great Britain and their employees was announced by the government in the house to-day. The chairman is Sir David Harrel, who was under secretary for Ireland in 1883-1902. The railroads are represented by Sir Thomas R. Ellis, secretary of the Mine Owners Association and Sir Charles G. Beale, Vice Chancellor of the University of Birmingham. The representatives of the men are Arthur Henderson, Labour member of parliament for Durham and John Burnett, chief Labour correspondent of the Board of Trade.

SIFTON IN CAMPAIGN

Special to The Examiner:

INGERSOLL, ONT., AUG. 22—Hon. Clifford Sifton's part in the election campaign may be indicated in his first speech, which he delivers here. The former minister is to address an audience in the rink, under Conservative auspices. The local candidate, Donald Sutherland will be on the platform.

Barn Burned.

Chatham, Aug. 22.—The barn, shed, implements, 800 bushels of newly-threshed wheat and the season's crop of other grain and hay on the farm of William Sturgis, 4th concession of Dover, were totally destroyed by fire Saturday afternoon. A threshing machine belonging to J. Glover, which was in the barn at the time, was also burned up. There was insurance on the threshing machine and the barn, but none on the grain. The fire was caused by a spark from the threshing machine.

One Was Drowned.

Montreal, Aug. 22.—While crossing the railway bridge at Terrebone on Sunday night, two boys met with a terrible accident, which resulted in the death of the younger, Joseph Martin, aged 11 years, and serious injury to his older brother, Emile Martin, 13 years.

The boys were half way across the bridge when they saw the lights of a locomotive approaching. Losing his head completely, the younger brother plunged into the river and was drowned. The older one crowded himself against the rails at one side of the track and was struck by the passing train. Help soon arrived, and Dr. Rochette of Terrebone, attended the wounds of the injured boy, who was reported yesterday morning as likely to recover. The younger boy's body was found yesterday.

Will Buy Cochrane Bonds.

Toronto, Aug. 22.—To enable the Town of Cochrane to pay the interest and sinking funds of the debentures debt toward building a new jail, public school, etc., the Provincial Government has agreed to buy the bonds of the town for the sum of $21,000.

Cochrane is taking up the work of erecting public buildings to replace those destroyed by the recent fire. The financial load entailed is a heavy one, and will seriously tax the energies of the people of that town.

In connection with this matter, a deputation, composed of the mayor of Cochrane, two of the aldermen, the president of the Toronto Board of Trade, and Mr. Home Smith, recently waited upon the Ontario Government and asked it to help the town out with its financial arrangements.

OBITUARY

MRS. CECILIA FREDENBURG.

Late last evening at St. Joseph's Hospital, Mrs. Cecilia Fredenburg passed peacefully away.

The deceased who was only 29 years of age, was born in Douro, but for some time has resided at 199 River Road, Auburn.

Mrs. Fredenburg was a widow and is survived by three small children.

The funeral will take place to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock, service at St. Peter's Cathedral, proceeding afterwards to St. Peter's Cemetery, for interment.

AARON NICHOLLS.

Word has been received here of the death in Nebraska, on August 15th, of Aaron Nicholls, a well-known ex-resident of the Township of Smith, who passed away on that date at the age of eighty-six years and seven months. The late Mr. Nicholls left this district in January of the present year to take up residence in Nebraska. He had been ill for five weeks, with enlargement of the heart. He is survived by his wife, aged 85, a family of four sons and four daughters, and by three brothers—Stephen of Buckhorn, Peter of Smith, and Garner of Bobcaygeon.

The funeral took place in Nebraska.

MRS. MARY QUIGLEY.

The death occurred at St. Joseph's Hospital this morning, Aug. 22, of Mrs. Mary Quigley, relict of the late John Quigley, of Hastings, in her 61st year. The late Mrs. Quigley, who had been ill for some time, lived the greater part of her life in Hastings, and was liked and respected by the residents of that town, who will regret to learn of her demise. She is survived by three sons, Harry of London, Ont., Malachi J., of Toronto, and Rev. Father John R., of Rockford, Ill.

The funeral will take place to-morrow, Aug., 23rd, at Hastings.

JOHN SANDERSON.

At St. Joseph's hospital this morning, John Sanderson, aged 63, passed away.

The deceased was born in Burleigh but the major portion of his life has been spent at Lakefield. He had been thrice married, his last wife having died some time ago.

Mr. Sanderson is survived by one son, John, and one daughter, Mrs. James Kidpath, both of Lakefield. His demise is also mourned by two brothers, Wellington, of Peterborough, and David of Lakefield, and one sister, Mrs. Thomas Northey, of Healtain.

The remains were removed to Lakefield this morning for interment.

BORDEN AT BERLIN.

Conservative Leader Raises Hon. Mr. King's Ridicule.

Berlin, Aug. 22.—R. L. Borden happened into Berlin on the day of Hon. W. L. M. King's nomination and got a noisy reception. The leader's voice was in poor condition and he had some trouble raising it above the disturbances.

Mr. Borden admitted that in 1892 and for some years afterwards Canada desired reciprocity with the United States. But that was the nineteenth century; this was the twentieth century, the century of Canada (Cheers).

In 1896, when the bill to provide for the National Transcontinental Railway was before the House, Sir Wilfrid Laurier had asserted that Canada could only prosper by being absolutely independent of the United States. Contrast that with the present situation. He likened the sentiment surrendering reciprocity to the spiritual conflict which a character in Scripture derived from repeating over to himself the word "Mesopotamia."

True, he went on, reciprocity would obtain with a country like the British West Indies, which did not grow what Canada had to export, and only exported what Canada could not produce.

The immediate cause for the reciprocity pact was that the Dominion Government got down on their knees before the United States, because they were afraid of the enormous dislocation of business if the United States impose the maximum duty. I do not think they were right in doing that. I am free to admit that our Government had the support of the business interests of Canada, and it would have been better to have fought that issue out then and there, and to determine whether or not we were a free people in Canada so far as the control of our tariff is concerned, or whether we would submit to interference of that kind.

Johnstone Benefit Meet.

Chicago, Aug. 22.—A wind that reached 36 miles an hour at times prevented all but a few aviators from trying to get into the air at the benefit performance for the widow of St. Croix Johnstone yesterday. It had been announced that all the rules of the International Aviation Meet would be declared off and that the fliers would be at liberty to risk their necks in any aerial feats they chose and as a consequence it was expected that the exhibition would be more spectacular than any during the meet.

The wind proved too gusty and for several hours no one attempted to fly. Then Lincoln Beachey arose, circled the field, descended and declared the wind was too strong for safe flying. An hour later Beachey, Gill, C. P. Rodgers and James Ward gave short exhibition flights.

Roosevelt Out 50 ft.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 22.—Former President Theodore Roosevelt in a letter to Alex. P. Moore, editor of The Pittsburg Leader, made public yesterday, says:

"I must ask not only you, but every friend of mine I have to see to it that no movement whatever is made to bring me forward for the nomination in 1912. I should esteem it a genuine calamity if such an attempt were undertaken."

The Leader has been advocating the nomination of Mr. Roosevelt for President in 1912.

Revolt Failed In Equador.

Guayaquil, Equador, Aug. 22.—The garrison at Chone, in the Province of Manabi, yesterday repulsed an attack by 50 armed supporters of Gen. Flavio Alfaro. One of the rebels was killed and two others were wounded.

Detailed news from Quito announces that the city has returned to its normal quiet, following a week of panic and rebellion, which began when the supporters of President Alfaro sought to proclaim a dictatorship. Public opinion failed to support the movement.

Fought Lion With Knife.

Brownsville, Texas, Aug. 22.—Juan Morales, a Spanish farmer, living seven miles out of town, with a jack-knife, killed a mountain lion, which had killed one of his children, bound up his right arm, lacerated and crushed in the fight, and walked into town, where surgeons say he must sacrifice his arm.

Morales' three-year-old boy, thinking the lion was a dog, had called it into the house and started to pet it.

Ferry Passenger Drowned.

Buffalo, N.Y., Aug. 22.—In a futile attempt to rescue Henry Rother, 35 years of age, who fell overboard and was drowned, the steamer Favorite, with, 300 passengers on board, ran aground in Niagara River early yesterday.

There was considerable excitement when the boat grounded. The passengers were brought ashore in rowboats.

PERILOUS TACTICS

Lloyd-George Rebukes Mr. Keir Hardie for Speech

ACCUSATIONS ARE FALSE

London, Aug. 23.—There was a lively passage between James Kier Hardie, the Socialist leader, and David Lloyd-George, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, during yesterday's session of the House of Commons. Mr. Hardie accused the Government of taking the side of the railway directors in the strike and said if the Government had brought the same pressure to bear on the directors as it had on the men there would have been no strike. He declared vehemently that the men who had been shot down by troops during the strike "were murdered in the interest of the capitalistic system." As a protest against the conduct of the Government he moved as an amendment to the motion for adjournment that the House of Commons adjourn to August 29 instead of October 24.

Mr. Lloyd-George replied that the great conflagration had been put out but that there were still smouldering fires here and there about the country, which at any moment might burst into flame. He declared he knew nothing which was more likely to bring about such a disaster and perhaps cause the men to fling away what their leaders had claimed was a triumph for them than "such grossly inaccurate statements" as had been made by Mr. Hardie.

The Chancellor said there was "not a syllable of truth" in the allegations of Mr. Hardie that the Government had sided with the railway directors. He asserted that it was due to pressure brought to bear by the Government on the directors that induced them to meet the representatives of the men face to face. The Government, he added, had used its whole power to see that justice was done both parties to the dispute.

Nearing the End.

Fort Plain, N.Y., Aug. 23.—Another remarkable spin through the air on his aeroplane flight from St. Louis to New York brought Harry N. Atwood, the aviator, from Belle Isle, five miles west of Syracuse, to Fort Plain, late yesterday afternoon, and landed him 95 miles nearer his destination.

He is now 1,065 miles from his starting place and exactly 200 miles from his proposed alighting point in New York.

His actual flying time yesterday was two hours and ten minutes, and was made without a stop.

"The air was as dead calm as a pool," said Atwood. "Most of the time I kept my hands in my pockets or read a timetable."

Atwood believes he possibly may make New York to-day, but more probably to-morrow, because, on account of the rough and wooded country from Albany down the Hudson River he may be compelled to descend in difficult places or effect landings in the water.

Arrested at the Bridge.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Aug. 23.—John Thompson, wanted in Windsor for robbing a Chinese restaurant of $60, was sent back for trial by the provincial police last night, having been arrested at the bridge.

ANOTHER MOTOR DEATH.

Toronto Workman is Killed by Car Passing Through Subway.

Toronto, Aug. 23.—While returning from his work at the Swansea Pumping Station, Samuel Horton was struck by the lamp of a motor car, owned by Frank Burrows, 69 Roncesvalles avenue, at Ellis avenue subway, on the Lake Shore road, at 11.30 Monday evening, and so seriously injured that he died at the Western Hospital, where he was taken in the car which struck him, a few hours later.

Horton was an engineer at the pumping station. He had been riding his bicycle, but was walking through the subway, and just as the car was within a few feet of him, he stepped to the middle of the road to pick something up; and had not time to reach the side of the road again before the motor struck him.

Beside the owner of the car, who was driving, two men named Watson and Stewart, were in the motor. Immediately after the accident, the three men did their utmost to save Horton's life by hurrying him to the nearest hospital and placing a special physician in charge of him. It is said that the car had no light at the time.

In the Police Court yesterday Burrows was charged with manslaughter and remanded, without bail.

Queer Freak of Lightning.

Mansfield Centre, Conn., Aug. 23.—A bolt of lightning threw itself into the hip pocket of Joseph Barrow, a farmer, as he was sitting in the kitchen of his home here Monday night.

The bolt came into the house via the stovepipe, and was attracted to Barrow's hip pocket by the presence there of an iron monkey wrench and a big jack-knife. It passed down his leg, burning him severely, and then careened over the floor, upsetting a tub of water and splitting a huge chopping block.

In Barrow's pocket, the end of the wrench and the blade of the knife were fused into a solid piece of steel.

Their Dreams Shattered.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Aug 23.—Armed with cap pistols, a plentiful supply of nickel novels and $11 in cash, Albert Van Tessel and Albert Stinchcombs, both fourteen, had their dreams of being real bandits shattered when Chief Kimmins sent them back to their homes in London, Ont., yesterday. They were arrested when attempting to enter the States.

Body Found in Niagara River.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Aug. 23.—With his clothes neatly piled on the shore, the nude body of James Murray, gainer, was found in the lower Niagara River late yesterday. The body had been in the water only a few hours. The authorities will investigate the cause of his death.

Excursion Steamer Burned.

Hammond, Ind., Aug. 23.—More than 250 women and children excursionists were imperilled when the Tourist, a new passenger boat on the Calumet River, was burned to the water's edge while running from Hammond to Riverdale, Ind. The boat was beached to save the passengers.

Fire broke out in the hold of the boat, near the engine rooms, while the craft was in midstream. Flames pouring out of the portholes precipitated a panic among the passengers, who fled to the upper deck. Many jumped overboard into shallow water and waded ashore.

Young Woman Takes Poison.

Hamilton, Aug. 23.—Mildred Hanrahan, a young woman who resides at 149 Market street, was found dying in Dundurn Park by one of the keepers early yesterday, with an empty carbolic acid bottle beside her.

A note addressed to her mother was found pinned on her clothing. An ambulance rushed the girl to the hospital but the doctors have little hopes of saving her life.

Hon. Mr. Sifton Delivers First Speech at Ingersoll—Quotes President Taft

ARGUMENTS PRESENTED

Ingersoll, Aug. 23.—Hon. Clifford Sifton, opening his series of meetings in the rink here last night, devoted his attention largely to the farmers' side of the reciprocity question. His address was followed closely by an audience, many of whom were clearly critical of the arguments presented.

"The United States treated Canada for forty years with a sort of indifferent contempt," he declared. "And," he added, "in view of the progress of the negotiations, that Canada discriminated against the United States, was absurd. At the time of the Albany conference, Mr. Sifton asserted there was a string to the outcome and that was an understanding that the Canadian Government should be willing to take up the reciprocity question at an early date.

"The Canadian Government was coerced into making this reciprocity agreement," he affirmed. The Liberal members had the alternative to accept reciprocity as the tariff policy of the party or dissolve their allegiance to that party.

Mr. Sifton quoted from an article by President Taft in Leslie's Weekly on the subject of "Pulpwood," which pointed out that the Canadian provinces controlled their own lands and to promote the pulp industry had placed an export duty on pulpwood. The article went on to say that the duty on crown lands pulp had been retained, "in order to induce the Canadian provinces over which the Dominion can exercise no control to limit the reduction on the exportation of their pulpwood."

"What do you think of that?" asked Mr. Sifton vehemently.

"What do you think of the Government of Canada entering into a combination with the Government of the United States to make a contract for the purpose of forcing the hands of the provinces of Ontario and Quebec and compelling them to let the United States have our forests whether they will or not. That is the position."

"There is not an intelligent man in Canada who does not know that the Province of Ontario is right. There is no justification, there can be no justification for the agreement and I trust when the facts are known there will be many men in Canada who will have the loyalty and determination to cast their party allegiance and destroy this iniquitous act.

Endangers British Food?

London, Aug. 23.—The Evening Globe, referring to reciprocity, says: The Imperial Government has co-operately assisted in a conspiracy to give the United States something like a corner in transatlantic wheat. When the Americans have firmly established themselves in Canada, and are passing Canadian wheat through Minneapolis mills, the English market will be at their mercy. Our workers are grumbling at the rise of food prices. Even now when the independence of the Canadian source of supply is operative in keeping prices down, but if the great American trusts succeed in making this source subordinate to their own interests the British food supply will be seriously threatened.

Perjury in Camorra Trial.

Viterbo, Italy, Aug. 23.—After much contradictory testimony had been given at the Camorra trial yesterday, the King's prosecutor announced that all witnesses suspected of perjury and of bearing false witness would be prosecuted when the murder trial was concluded.

Judge Fusone yesterday testified that he was satisfied from private information, that Lucia Anastasi, one of the states witnesses, was confident of the carabineers. Capt. Fabroni denied that this was true.

Fatal Auto Wreck.

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 23.—In a triple collision of automobiles in Park Heights avenue last Monday night, F. Holmes Hack, jr., well known in Baltimore society, was killed. Six other persons were slightly injured.

Hack's car was running at a high rate of speed, when it collided with another auto, turning upside down. Hack was instantly killed. Thirty minutes later a third automobile ran into the second car, and also turned turtle.

Threw Himself Under Train.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—George Richey of Pittsburg, Pa., said to be a member of a wealthy family there, threw himself in front of a Nickel Plate flyer at Hammond, Ind., and was cut to pieces Monday night.

Richey tried three times within the space of a few hours to be run over by a fast train. Twice engineers saw him lying across the rails and avoided killing him by stopping. He let a number of freight trains go by him.

Woman Killed by Auto.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Aug. 23.—Miss Gertrude Davis died yesterday from injuries received by being run down by an automobile at a street crossing at Plymouth Monday night. Andrew Raab, a wealthy mine owner, was also struck, and is in a critical condition. The auto driver is under arrest.

Cost of Strike.

London, Aug. 23.—The railway officials say a conservative estimate of the cost to the community of the recent strikes reaches ten million pounds, exclusive of decreased profits of the companies amounting to many thousands of pounds.

Collided With Ferry Boat.

Brockville, Aug. 23.—At the C.P.R. dock yesterday the new passenger steamer Geronia collided with the ferry boat Bigelow, doing a couple of hundred dollars' damage or more to the latter. The master of the Geronia misjudged the distance of the landing and the sterns of the boats came together with a crash.

ROASTS BOURASSA

Sir Wilfrid Calls Him Falsifier and Deceiver

RALLY AT ST. EUSTACHE

St. Eustache, Que., Aug. 23.—In the shadow of a church, bullet-scarred by the English in the rebellion of 1837, Sir Wilfrid Laurier held one of the best meetings of his Quebec campaign yesterday afternoon in the village of St. Eustache. Sir Wilfrid spoke with a fire and vigor, astonishing many old men who had observed him to victory during his first appearance in the district in 1896.

Reciprocity was but lightly touched upon, but Sir Wilfrid took occasion to dissect the naval law, obviously to offset the vigorous campaign waged by Mr. Bourassa in this district against this plank of the Liberal platform. The Premier replied to the attacks of Mr. Bristol of Toronto Centre. Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux was in fighting form, and attacked the Nationalists without mercy.

There were about 3,000 at the meeting. Preparations were elaborate, the town being decorated, and Sir Wilfrid was met by twenty-five mounted youths and a band.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier remarked that it was his second appearance before the electorate of St. Eustache, the first occasion having been in 1896. He pointed out that when the Liberal Government had replaced the Conservative Administration ruin had not overwhelmed the manufacturers, as the prophets of the day had promised. The most partisan of Conservatives, he said, must admit that the country had never enjoyed such prosperity as to-day. He quoted statistics on natural products, showing what Canada would save by the removal of the tariff duties.

With stinging phrases Sir Wilfrid characterized Bourassa as a falsifier and deceiver. Mr. Bourassa had tried to persuade the people that conscription would follow the navy. In this he lied and knew that he lied. Mr. Bourassa did not know his own mind on the question of reciprocity, but Mr. Bourassa could be quoted to show that he had once, and that not very long ago, been an advocate of reciprocity with the United States.

The Premier also referred to Clifford Sifton, saying that he differed with that gentleman only on the reciprocity question. He said he was amply avenged for Sifton's turning against him by seeing him forced to occupy the same bed as Bourassa and watching the pains which both took to lie as far apart as possible.

BORDEN AT OWEN SOUND.

Conservative Leader Gets a Civic Reception.

Owen Sound, Aug. 23.—Owen Sound set a new fashion for the tour of the Conservative leader. For the first time since the campaign began, a special civic reception was held. At Berlin an address of welcome was made by the mayor at the evening meeting, but here the civic reception was distinct and was tendered on Mr. Borden's arrival.

Mr. Borden was met at the station by the mayor and by the Conservatives of the town. A procession was at once formed and proceeded to the market square. Here Mayor Lemon read the address of welcome, which was entirely non-partisan, though very cordial. Mr. Borden in reply expressed his sincere appreciation of the welcome.

The meeting in the evening was held in the capacious roller rink, where three thousand people gave Mr. Borden a warm reception as he walked up the aisle and took his seat.

James McLaughlan, Mr. Borden's host while here, was in the chair and on the platform were Dr. Sproule, ex-M.P. for East Grey; W. B. Middlebro, ex-M.P. for North Grey; George M. Boyd, ex-M.P.P. for North Grey, and Major Lemon. The civic welcome was not the only unusual feature of the reception here. Another unusual element was the ladies on the platform of a considerable number of ladies.

W. B. Middlebro, the candidate, began by expressing his pleasure at being on the platform with "our next Premier." He closed with a warning as to President Taft's object in seeking the agreement in order that Canada might be drawn into the United States.

The chairman, as president of the Conservative Association of North Grey, read an address of welcome to the Conservative leader, and then Mr Borden opened his address.

Mr. Borden in the course of his address told his audience that he had come to warn the people of North Grey of the national danger involved in the reciprocity agreement. "You cannot," he said, "build up a nation on material prosperity alone, you must be touched and quickened by a sense of responsibility in this country and in this Empire. For the last forty years we have been trying to build up a great nation within this British Empire. President Taft says we are at the parting of the ways. We know the path of Canadian unity and British connection. President Taft says there is another path. I ask you that on Sept. 21 you send a message to President Taft and to Sir Wilfrid Laurier that you intend to continue in the old path of Canadian unity and British connection."

Message Round World.

New York, Aug. 23.—In order to ascertain the speed at which a commercial message could be sent around the world by cable, The New York Times filed a despatch, reading: "This message sent around world," in the telegraph room, on the seventeenth floor of The Times Building, exactly at 7, and the reply was received by the same operator at 7:16.30 p.m.

The time occupied in the journey of 29,023 land miles, including sixteen relays, gave an average speed of twenty-nine miles a second.

When the Pacific cable was opened eleven years ago a special message was flashed around the world in 9 1-6 minutes. The Times' message, however, was handled without previous preparation.

White Frost In West.

Winnipeg, Aug. 23.—While the Dominion Government's meteorological readings for the past 24 hours show no traces of actual frost, special despatches from western points show that a white frost has fallen at four or five points. It was in no case very severe, and most of the cutting was already finished in the districts visited. Official reports have been issued from the office of agriculture for Saskatchewan stating that the damage done Sunday and Monday night will not seriously affect the general yield. Five thousand harvesters arrived last night and this morning. Harvesting will be general in Southern Manitoba by the end of the week.

Canada's Possibilities.

New York, Aug. 23.—Frank Coffee, one of the wealthiest men in Sydney, Australia, arrived in New York Monday, and among the first places he visited was Park Row, where, thirty years ago, he was a compositor, "sticking type." Since going to Australia, Coffee has made a fortune of more than a million dollars in publishing enterprises.

Coffee, who is making a business trip around the world, said yesterday: "New York is a wonder beyond description, and my adopted country, Australia, is another marvel, but Canada, which I have just visited, has possibilities undreamed of. Vast fortunes will be made there every year."

Death of Popular Teacher.

Style in Glasses
There is no reason why persons with defective vision need disfigure their faces by wearing glasses of unsightly shape, entirely out of harmony with the contour of their features. There is style in glasses just as there is style in everything else to wear. There is some style of mounting that is "just the thing for your face" if you can only find it, and we make frequent visits to the leading factories, and keep pace with all the improvements in mountings and lens grinding. We will take pleasure in helping you select a mounting to carry your lenses, that will be becoming, comfortable and secure. We are now showing one of the newest ideas in mounts, and we are selling a lot of them. We can adapt them to suit any person. When you have tried all other specious mounts without success, come to us, we will guarantee to fit you to your entire satisfaction. We have every modern equipment for accurate Eye-sight Testing, and all the work, from the examination of the eyes to the finished lenses and fitting of glasses is done under our personal supervision.

PEOPLE'S PULPIT.

Sermon by CHARLES T. RUSSELL Pastor Brooklyn Tabernacle.

THE DIVINE VOICE TO THE SINNER

The Lesson of Adam's Disobedience—Mankind Pursued by God's Grace.

St. John, N.B., August 20.—Pastor Russell of Brooklyn delivered two addresses here to-day under the auspices of the International Bible Students Association. One of these was more particularly for the public, the other, which we report, was more for Bible Students. The Pastor took for his text God's message to Adam, after the latter had become a transgressor in Eden, when he hid from his Maker: "Where Art Thou, Adam?" (Genesis iii, 9). The speaker said in part:

"Be sure your sin will find you out." Adam learned this lesson early in his career. Highly favored by his Maker, crowned with the glory and honor of human perfection and the lordship of earth, Adam had the offer of everlasting life, under Edenic conditions. But while condemning his disobedience we cannot help sympathizing with him when we realize that the act of disloyalty which brought the Divine sentence upon Adam, and, by heredity, upon all of his race, was caused by love for his wife.

The unvarnished narrative is that Mother Eve thirsted for knowledge, and was not content to await the Almighty's time for giving them knowledge. She hearkened to the Serpent's plea that the Almighty was seeking to keep herself and her husband in ignorance by forbidding them to partake of the fruit of the tree of knowledge. She had not come to know the benevolence of her Maker, and that no good thing would He withhold from His obedient creatures. She had not yet learned that the fruit of that tree was forbidden for a time only, and that the premature eating of it could bring no blessing, but Divine disfavor. The Apostle shows this when he declares that Mother Eve was deceived; but with equal positiveness he declares that Father Adam was not, himself, deceived; that he partook of the fruit knowingly, intentionally, wilfully, and with a full realisation of the disobedient act which brought upon him death—"The wages of sin is death"; "Thou shalt surely die" (Romans vi, 23; Genesis ii, 17).

But while Adam's act was one of chivalry—was really suicide because of love for his wife, who had transgressed—nevertheless, it was an act of disobedience. He should have had loyalty to his Creator first, above his loyalty to his wife. Indeed, we have reason to believe that Mother Eve's transgression might have been cancelled in some manner, since it was committed under deception. Father Adam's course should have been to remain loyal to God at all hazards, and to have trusted to Divine love and wisdom in respect to the results. Everywhere the Scriptures lay stress upon Adam's disobedience, which was a willful sin against light and knowledge.

The sinners hid themselves in the Garden. The inference is that, previously, they had enjoyed fellowship and communion with their Creator, but as soon as they sinned they realized their unworthiness of Divine fellowship—sin turned them away from God. Instead of the happiness of His fellowship, they had discontent and evil forebodings of estrangement. They had lost their God, and, by virtue of their very nature, they would, in consequence, be measurably unhappy—one of the principal elements of their nature, therefore, was hunger and thirst for God, which was not gratified. A barrier had come between the Creator and His creatures.

The estrangement which our first parents experienced, dating from the time of their sin, is one which all mankind has inherited from them. The Prophet David speaks of this, saying that the world is estranged from birth; and, speaking of himself, declares, "I was shapen in iniquity, in sin did my mother conceive me" (Psalm li, 5). God is not to be charged with the responsibility of this estrangement. It comes to all as the result or outworking of sin. All are sinners and all feel themselves unworthy of the fellowship of their Creator, and realize themselves undeserving of His blessing. The fear which drove our first parents to hide has since then driven many still further from God as they have delved yet more deeply into sin, not only because of heredity, but also through taking a perverse course themselves. The fear has increased, and to-day one of the most terrible maladies on earth is fear—dread. It is not surprising that we find the heathen, thousands of millions, fearing, dreading, not with that fear which is the beginning of wisdom, and which leads back to God, but with that fear or terror which leads them to think of Him as a great Demon, who has provided for their eternal torture.

The same principle operates in the minds of people born in civilized lands. There is a fear, a dread respecting the future, a dread which takes hold also upon things of the present life. This fear toward God, the Scriptures declare, is wrong, saying, "Their fear toward Me is taught by the precepts of men" (Isa. 29:13). These precepts of men are represented in our various creeds, all of which claim to be the Word of the Lord, but all of which are the product of fearful, human minds.

God's Word does not uphold a single creed of Christendom, nor does a single creed of Christendom uphold God's Word. They all contain certain elements of Truth, around which great masses of error have gathered. However, if only such as conscientiously believe every feature of their creeds should remain with them, and if all others were to step out, honestly and fearlessly, the creeds would be found to have very few worshipers. They are fetishes of idol worship, surely displeasing to the Lord. Let every one oppose this fear which has done so much to discredit God and His Word and so much to turn the hearts and minds of the best people in the world away from God and the Bible.

While our first parents hid from God, and all of our race have the same disposition because of fear, God, nevertheless, has not hidden from his creatures. As He called after Adam, saying, "Where art thou?" and brought Adam forth from his hiding place, so in due time all of Adam's children will be pursued by His grace and mercy until all shall come to know of the love of God which passeth all human understanding.

We are not informed that our first parents afterward hearkened to God and repented of their disobedience. We merely know that they could not retrace their steps. The sentence of death upon them was enforced. They were driven out of Eden—away from the life-sustaining fruits. The Divine sentence against them was, "Dying, thou shalt die." Gradually the dying process operated against the perfect man until, after nine hundred and thirty years of struggling, he succumbed—he was dead. The Divine sentence against our first parents descended to their posterity. As God said to Mother Eve, "I will greatly multiply thy sorrow and thy conception," so has it been with all of her daughters.

And God said to Adam, "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread until thou return unto the ground from whence thou was taken." So Adam's sons also have contended with the thorns and thistles, and, in sweat of face, have labored for sustenance, gradually succumbing to the cares of human life—dust to dust returning. But as God called after the sinner in Eden, so He has called after the sinner since, but remarkably few have had the hearing ear.

Amongst those mentioned in the Bible who heard the voice of God and obtained reconciliation, we remember Enoch, Noah, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and all the prophets, the Apostles, etc. But the masses of mankind have not at any time been ready to hearken to God's voice. Fear has driven them further and further away from the Only Name. The question is a proper one here, How long will God call after the sinner? How long will the sinner continue to be fearful of his Creator, and continue to go further from Him? And is God calling as loudly as Divine Justice, Wisdom, Love and Power can call? If not, why not?

God's call was gladly increased in the days of our Saviour and since. Men have heard of God's love and mercy and His invitation to become reconciled to Him, but many still believe in the teachings of the Dark Ages, regarding eternal torment, which tends to drive them to fear and away from God. The Apostle declares what we, as Bible students, more and more appreciate, namely, that it is the Love of God that constrains, that makes us happy, that brings "the peace of God which passeth all understanding." On the contrary, as St. Paul declares, the doctrines of devils bring fear, tormenting dread, and cause men to hide from God. Many, unquestionably, in the past have attended church services, not because of love for God, nor because of any truly worshipful spirit, but from fear, and in hope that by thus rendering some outward homage to the Name Divine they might escape torture in the future.

We are not for a moment to think of such people as hearing the Divine Voice. They are putting to sea the heathen, who have never heard of the true God, in any sense of the word.

We may be inclined to wonder that our Almighty Creator has apparently pursued the human family with His voice of love and mercy and invitation to reconciliation for so long, in so peculiar a manner—selecting such a small proportion of the thousands of millions of our race. Once this greatly perplexed us all; now, through our study of the Scriptures, we are learning, dear Bible students, why things are thus. We are learning that God is now calling mercy a special class—"the elect"—those who love righteousness and hate iniquity — those who hunger and thirst after righteousness and fellowship Divine. To these God is now holding out a special invitation. His message is, "Gather together My saints unto Me—those who have made a covenant with Me by sacrifice."

Some may inquire, Why does not God do a greater work? Why does He allow clouds and darkness to obscure His Character, and Word, and Plan? Why does He allow darkness to cover the earth and gross darkness the heathen? Why does He permit sin to be so prevalent that whosoever will live godly shall suffer persecution, shall find the way of righteousness a narrow one, a difficult one? Why does God not restrain the powers of Satan, and spread the light of the knowledge of His glory throughout the whole earth? Why does He seem to leave the entire matter in our poor, bungling, imperfect hands?

Why does He seems thus indifferent to the heathen thousands of millions and to the masses of Christendom? Ah! there is a reason, which saintly ones are gradually coming to see, and which, more and more, is causing them to rejoice, through faith. We now see plainly stated in God's Word that the class now being selected is called for a purpose—a glorious purpose—in which Adam and all of his race shall eventually have a blessing. We see that Divine grace is now selecting the Church, and that while few have been called as compared with the masses of mankind, many more are called than will eventually be chosen. The "elect" class is to be made associates with Jesus in His Messianic Kingdom, "heirs of God, joint-heirs with Jesus Christ."

So, as soon as the full number of "elect" shall have been found and shall have been tested and found worthy, the present method of Divine operation will change completely. No longer will God call after the sinner, "Where art thou?" No longer will preaching be the Divine method of pursuing sinners. On the contrary, everything pertaining to human interests will, for a thousand years, be turned over to Messiah's Kingdom. He shall reign from sea to sea, and from the river to the ends of the earth." His Kingdom will exercise force. "The Law shall go forth from Mt. Zion, and the Word of the Lord," respecting that Law, from Jerusalem"; "and it shall come to pass that the soul who will not obey that great Prophet, Priest, King, Instructor, will be destroyed from amongst the people" (Acts iii, 19-23).

To what extent the various beliefs of the heathen and the creeds of Christendom are the work of demons, Satan and his hosts, no human being can tell. We may merely surmise, on the strength of the Apostle's words, that we wrestle not with flesh and blood merely, but with invisible "principalities and powers, wicked spirits in high places." We may judge this also from the intimation that Satan has been deceiving the whole world. We remember the Apostle's declaration respecting the "doctrines of demons" (Ephesians vi, 11, 12, R. V.; I. Timothy iv, 1).

When the True Light shall shine, when the Prince of Light, the King of glory, shall take to Himself, His great power and reign, and the Prince of darkness shall be bound, then the light of the knowledge of the glory of God shall fill the whole earth—then the many misrepresentations of the Divine character and Divine Plan will vanish; the blind eyes shall be opened, the deaf ears shall be unstopped, and the knowledge of God's will and of His gracious Plan of Salvation will be fully made known in every creature.

As we have already seen, these blessings will begin at the time when the Elect Church shall be completed. The blessings of the Messianic Kingdom, according to the Bible, will come first to the Jews. Abraham, Isaac and Jacob and all the Prophets will be the earthly representatives of the invisible Messiah. These will be the Princes in all the earth (Psa. xiv, 16).

Soon the race will be started up the Highway of Holiness, encouraged by rewards of health and strength and uplifting blessings, and stimulated by the stripes and punishments which will be visited upon evil doers in that time. Thus "The judgments of the Lord will be abroad in the earth," rewarding righteousness and promptly will be visited upon evil doers in fact and thought. The result is clearly stated in the Scriptures—"The inhabitants of the world will learn righteousness" (Isaiah xxvi, 9).

Nevertheless, we are not to forget the explicit teaching of God's Word to the effect that at the conclusion of Messiah's reign, when sin and death shall have been fully subjected, and when all shall have been lifted up to perfection—except the wilful sinners who will be destroyed in the Second Death—even then God will not permit the perfect ones of that time to enter upon eternal conditions until first they shall have been subjected to severe trial and testing. Satan shall be loosed from his prison-house "for a little season," for this very purpose of testing the perfected world. All then living, perfect in mind and body, should be loyal to God to the very core—should be able to stand any test of loyalty. Such as yield to sin and become disobedient to God will be counted unworthy of eternal life, and will be destroyed in the Second Death, from which there will be no recovery. St. Peter tells us of such that they will die like natural, brute beasts.

In conclusion, Pastor Russell urged upon his hearers that such of them as have become Christians indeed by entire consecration to God and endeavor to do His will—such as are seeking joint-heirship with Christ in His Kingdom of glory, honor and immortality—should "lay aside every weight and every besetting sin, and run with patience the race set before them" in the Gospel. Thus they will make their "calling and election sure" and gain an abundant entrance into the everlasting Kingdom which is to bless the world (2 Peter iii, 18).

No Desire for Food

The Stomach Seems Played Out and the Appetite Fickle.

The Digestive System is Overloaded With Poisons—Relief Comes With the Use of

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.

Weak stomach, loss of appetite, indigestion and all the accompanying symptoms of energy, tend to make the springtime anything but joyous for many people.

The system is full of poisons, the blood is impure, the liver and kidneys have been overworked in an effort to remove the waste matter and have failed. This accounts for the biliousness, the constipation, the backaches and headaches.

How is this condition to be overcome? There is no quicker or more certain way than by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This treatment gets the liver and kidneys in action at once and ensures regular movement of the bowels.

The poisonous waste matter which has been clogging the digestive system is removed and the organs of digestion are enabled to properly perform their duties.

Appetite is sharpened, you eat your food with a relish, the stomach is strengthened, the vital organs get the nourishment they require, and vigour and energy are restored.

CHANGE IN WOMAN'S LIFE

Made Safe by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Graniteville, Vt.—"I was passing through the Change of Life and suffered from nervousness and other annoying symptoms, and can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has proved worth mountains of gold to me, as it restored my health and strength. I never forget to tell my friends what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me during this trying period. Complete restoration to health means so much to me that for the sake of other suffering women I am willing to make my trouble public so you may publish this letter."—Mrs. Chas. Barclay, R.F.D., Graniteville, Vt.

No other medicine for woman's ills has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine we know of has such a record of cures as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For more than 20 years it has been curing woman's ills such as inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains and nervous prostration, and it is unequalled for carrying women safely through the period of change of life.

Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

TO know how to do thoroughly good work in any line brings a man halfway up the ladder of business success.

But no farther.

Unless he possesses the equally important talent of knowing how to show other people how to do good work, there he sticks.

The men and women who have climbed to the top of the ladder of success were almost invariably men and women who have had that second ability.

The other day I was visiting a business man who is at the head of a concern which makes two hundred thousand dollars a year. I spent the whole forenoon with him, and in that time the only call that was made upon him was to sign a few checks.

"How is it that your employees ask you so few questions?" I inquired. "I should think they would be constantly coming to you for instruction."

"Ah, Miss Cameron," he answered, "that is the secret of my success, that I have been able to pick and train men so that they won't need to come to me. I often say I am the only person in the establishment who has nothing to do. You see, I have put all my work on other shoulders. And if I hadn't been able to do that, I would still be earning a few thousand a year instead of being where I am."

You see, the business man who knows how to make himself unnecessary in a small way will soon find himself necessary in a much larger way.

Another business man told me, with regret, of a thoroughly bright and intelligent man in his employ who "can never go above three or four thousand a year because he must do all the work himself. If he could show others how to do it, we could get two or three assistants for him and enlarge the department and pay him more, but he can't."

Subsequently, when the work of the department made enlargement absolutely necessary, the man who couldn't show others how to do his work actually had to be discharged and was replaced by someone who could.

I know a very bright business woman who overworked herself to the verge of nervous prostration while all the time the concern she was working for was eager to get her an assistant.

"I'd so much rather do the work myself than show anyone else," she protested.

This is the cry not only of business men and women, but of all kinds of workers everywhere. It is the cry, for instance, that often keeps the mother wearing herself out in the kitchen while her daughter grows up in ignorance of the things they ought to understand.

And this cry is always as selfish and wasteful as it thinks itself unselfish and saving.

If you want to become a very useful and important person in this world, you must learn to share responsibility and knowledge as well as to have them yourself.

TRIAL OF HENRY CLAY BEATTIE

Richmond, Aug. 23.—The whole State of Virginia is watching with unusual interest the trial of Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., charged with having slain his wife for the love of a younger and prettier woman, which began on Monday morning in the tiny court house at remote Chesterfield, which is not even a hamlet, but a little clearing in the midst of a great forest, eighteen miles from here, across the James River.

It was thought for a time in the late days of this week that the trial—the most celebrated the Old Dominion State has ever known—might be postponed, because of the illness of the younger and prettier woman, Beulah Binford, a girl of seventeen. But she is well again, and from all present indications the picking of a jury began on Monday morning, as scheduled. Another possible cause of postponement was the illness of W. T. Tinley, father-in-law of Judge Watson, the presiding jurist. But he also was reported better today. Fifty subpoenas, calling for the presence of witnesses on behalf of the State, were issued and served, which seemed to indicate that the Commonwealth did not regard as probable any putting off the trial.

NO EYEWITNESSES TO CRIME

Beginning Monday morning, it is expected that a day and a half will be consumed in the selection of a jury (justice here is quite as swift as in New Jersey); a similar period will be used in presenting the evidence tending to show that Henry Clay Beattie killed his young wife, and then perhaps two days for the defence.

So far as is known now, the only defence that can be presented logically is that of absence of eyewitnesses to the crime. The State will try to show that Paul Beattie, a young cousin of the accused, purchased, at his order, a shotgun a few days before the killing. Then it will show that young Mrs. Beattie was killed on an automobile ride—alone with her husband—by a shotgun wound. Next it will assert that the gun that Paul bought for his cousin Henry was used to kill her. And it will prove that this gun was found later not far from the scene of the crime, where, the State will declare, Henry Clay Beattie threw it.

GIRL'S STORY STARTLING

Beulah Binford, the "affinity" of the youth accused of the slaying, will go upon the stand and is expected to tell a story even more sensational than that of Evelyn Thaw. She will tell how she became acquainted with young Beattie when she was only 13 years old, and was the mother of his child at 15. Also how, after the birth of his first child by his wife about three months ago, he again sought her (Beulah) and installed her in an apartment in Richmond.

She will have to tell all this, because she is a State witness. Also she will have to prove her own whereabouts on the night of the shooting, and to do this she will have to reveal the fact that she was motoring with another prominent young man of this city—who also is married.

Lest a plea of insanity be entered, the State it became known to-day, has engaged Dr. W. F. Drewry, superintendent of the Central Hospital for the Insane; Dr. J. S. Dejarnette of the Western State Hospital, and Dr. O. C. Bunk, a celebrated alienist, all of whom have observed the defendant during the past few weeks while he has been in jail. He has shown no signs of mental unbalance, they are all ready to swear. It is unlikely, however, that the insanity plea will be used.

It is believed that Beattie will not go upon the witness stand and that his lawyers will rely entirely—as did Nan Patterson and Florence Brooks in celebrated New York cases—upon the utter absence of eye witnesses.

His original story was that a highwayman held up his wife and himself on the lonely Midlothian turnpike and shot the woman while aiming for him.

His lawyers will have a hard time, however, is is believed, to explain how the gun which his cousin bought was the one used in the killing, and how it and no other was found a short time afterward not far from the scene of the crime.

Care Of The Feet In Summer

Many persons find that they suffer less from the ills that afflict the foot in winter than in summer. In one way this is rather surprising, for the foot ought to benefit by the more normal and healthy outdoor life favored by the summer solstice. On the other hand, the foot has more to do in warm weather, and is, of course, more sensitive to atmospheric pressure than perhaps any other part of our anatomy, as witness the barometer-like character of an ordinary corn!

A trained nurse who had a "case" so trying that the minimum of sleep on which she managed to exist during its critical stage was a marvel to all who knew her declared afterward that one of the things that kept her up was the rest she took of her feet. She made a practice of having at least four pairs of house shoes with her and changing both shoes and hosiery often. The last mentioned article of clothing she bought with economical extravagance by the dozen. Moreover, they were of the finest quality. Three times in the twenty-four hours she bathed her feet and changed both shoes and stockings. Let any one who has been in the habit of giving the feet no special care try this luxurious mode of pedal procedure and note the difference, which will extend above the feet. If two teaspoonfuls of foot powder made from two parts of alum, four parts of rock salt, and four parts of borax be dissolved in the bath it will be even more efficacious.

Some of the bending exercises that have been recommended from time to time for other values are beneficial to the muscles of the feet. For example, rising on the toes and sinking down till the knees almost touch the floor, keeping the heels raised, is one of these.

But if you find that your feet ache in spite of all that sensible footgear, and frequent changing of that, plus the baths with the powder alluded to above, then by all means try calling in the services of a trained masseuse and let her rub the feet, say, twice a week. You will notice the grateful relief that certain muscles will experience, and you may learn a few hints from her.

If the feet are prone to callouses rub them nightly with vaseline, olive or almond oil. If the muscles of the limbs are stiff after a long tramp or a mountain climb the same advice applies to them.

A hot foot bath, followed by the holding of the foot under the cold water faucet for a few moments, is a most refreshing proceeding in the middle of the afternoon. This is especially useful when the evening is to be spent in dancing.

Some of the directions for caring for the hands may, with excellent results, be followed for the feet. In fact, "pedicuring" and sensible footgear will cure most ills and avert the rest.

TERRIBLE DEATH

LODI, NEV., AUG. 21.—J. S. Smith, a former California lawyer and brother of G. W. Smith, an insurance man of Los Angeles, met a terrible death near here. His remains were discovered through the conduct of his dogs, which came into Lodi and howled and whined until a relief party was sent in search of Smith. Smith had been engaged in mining for W. E. Hurley, of Reno, at the Valley View shaft.

Smith had evidently been smoking a pipe, from which hot ashes fell upon dynamite caps in front of him. The caps exploded, dismembering Smith and tearing the breast of his body to shreds. The explosion also destroyed Smith's eyesight, but in spite of his terrible condition he dragged himself twenty feet to the mouth of the shaft and, pulling a blanket over him, lay down to die.

By following the lead of the dogs Smith's body was discovered and word was sent to his brother in Los Angeles. Smith had been a lawyer in California when the mining fever overtook him and he prospected the hills of Nevada. He was working the Valley View property under contract and had just fired a round of shots and was preparing to leave the mine for a friend's house to have dinner when the accident occurred.

HOME RUSH BEGINS AS LONDON SIZZLES

Cooling Breezes at Home Entice Americans in British Metropolis

HEAT WAVE VAGARIES

Torrid Temperature Cause a Run on Lemon Squashes and Barley Water, Also Taken Warm.

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday.

THE big rush for "Home, Sweet Home" is on in earnest, and all the steamships leaving English ports could hardly meet "standing room only" sizes, as eagerly Americans are leaving to every corner. English is sputtering in an American accent much, and ... Jersey coast. ... from the hill, New-... and Piccadilly look good as this season.

"What would you think of a man who, when you remember him as nearly 60 years in the shade, sweltered up Broadway in New York, attired in a winter-weight frock coat, heavy waistcoat and trousers, shoes covered with spats and a heavy top hat pressed firmly on his head? You can see thousands of this type in the flesh in the hottest hours of the day, and, strangely enough, they get refreshing and cool refreshment in sticking most strictly to them.

Of course, there are many thousands of Americans who have sense enough to wear cooler hats and lighter-weight clothing, and these darned tourist are held cheaply to another impression and find much pleasure in their mistaken fancy in Americans. These are the brave souls who have the temerity to order tea in the London hotels.

No one who has been accustomed to tea with cream, scones and birthcake, not to mention of the delightfully refreshing beer that is drawn from polar pipes, the want of this is one of the most painful experiences in England, and this pain is intensified when they ordered an "iced lager." Obviously, here it is you some froth, with a decent lump of ice floating in it.

Now you will understand why the rush for countries is on.

In another of the old house there seems to be more comfort to those who are willing to pay, and the prices in these places are not so high as if they differ from the tariff in the larger cities of Paradise.

The effect of the heat wave here has been to cause a run on lemon squashes and barley water, but with native obstinacy, too, both Englishmen is content to drink these almost lukewarm. Only the old-fashioned remedy is kept to whiskey and soda, and in all the clubs and hotels the order of the hour is barley water. Even the Bridge Club, a bohemian haunt, had turned its back upon the bitter beer and whiskey that makes Dr. Johnson famous, and refreshens itself with barley water.

It will recall to that of the recent general meeting of Wagner, Coates & Co., brewers, the chairman announced that their profits were lower because of the failing off in the sale of "bitter," which, he said, was due to a change of fashion, as people were drinking lighter beverages of buying in bulk and cans, and the profit in much less.

The small bottle large "pony" iced lager of Continental is now advertised for sale. Every thirst is taken to consider that an ounce of ice is used to cool a barrel of beer, what the prophets of that ounce to be evidences of progress.

MME. PAVLOWA AND ASSOCIATE CLASH

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday.

Quite a tempest is reported to be brewing between Mme. Pavlowa, the Russian dancer, and her associate, Mons. Mordkin. This time we are told that things have reached a climax, and that never, never again will Madame the graceful dance with Michael. There is no intimation, so far, that this action of the Russian dancer means the cancellation of American contracts, and, what is more important, the loss of American dollars.

Mme. Pavlowa recently said to Mr. Best, of the Palace Theatre here:—"They can put me in jail if they want to, but I will not dance with Mordkin again."

And what does Mons. Mordkin say of this? Nothing, but he dreams of American dollars that are to come to him by the hateful, when, "after great trouble and expense," the two are reunited. "So that the American public may not be disappointed."

LONDON "JOKES" WORSE THAN THE HEAT WAVE

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday.

One of the effects of the hot wave more subtle than the sun has been the revival of humor in the English weeklies. As an example of what we have to suffer read either:

We are undespised that in future the Times will publish (in addition to births, marriages and deaths) Peerages!

Ha! Ha!

In New York the actor has no social position. Here some people would have no social position if they were not actors."

Ha! Ha!

Stephen Gwynn Vaughan now says society ladies are not so bad as they are painted."

Ha! Ha!

The makers of those "helps for hot weather" are advertising the positioning of "Pimples" because he is currently reported that they be, but he isn't certain.

American Duchess Plans Scottish Shooting Parties; King's Daughter Shows Talent for Sculpture

Has a Studio and Makes Dainty Picture in Her Big Blue Overalls.

FOLLOWING EXAMPLE OF HER GREAT AUNT

The Duchess of Argyll the Pioneer of Aristocratic Women of England in Art World.

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday.

KING GEORGE'S only daughter has just started to learn modelling in clay, for, like her greataunt, Princess Louise, Duchess of Argyll, she intends, she says, to be a sculptor. Some time ago, when Queen Mary and the little Princess were having tea with the Duchess of Argyll at Kensington Palace, Princess Mary was being taken over the Duchess' studio, when she expressed a wish to do something of the kind herself, and then and there the Duchess of Argyll gave her her first lesson. The youthful pupil exhibited such capacity for the work that the Queen decided to have her taught professionally. Now she has a little studio all to herself and has started on her "career."

She is very particular about her working-costume and makes a pleasing picture in her big blue overalls.

The Duchess of Argyll may be said to be the pioneer who led aristocratic women into the world of art, in England at any rate. The Duke of Argyll, like all his forebears, is a happy combination of poet, musician and man of affairs. The impecunious of the Argyll family in Scotland may be gauged from the fact that on the day of the wedding of Princess Louise and the then Marquis of Lorne an old Highland peasant woman remarked, "The Queen Victoria should be the proud woman this day."

PLANS OF AMERICAN DUCHESS.

The Duchess of Roxburghe, who was Miss May Goelet, is to have a succession of parties for the grouse shooting season at her husband's great white palace on the hill beneath which in the valley the rivers Tweed and Teviot embrace. Like many American peeresses, she is devoted to her husband's home and his people. Originally built by Vanburg in 1718, Floors Castle, in the opinion of many experts, outrivals Blenheim Palace and others of his masterpieces. The Duchess dances Scottish dances as to the manner born, and at one time it was said she tried to acquire a Scottish accent, but gave this up. She is an intimate friend of Queen Mary, and dresses with great taste, her dresses being the last word from Paris, while her jewels are superb.

Mme. Navarro, the Mary Anderson of other days, is seriously thinking of giving up her beautiful home in Broadway, Worcestershire. She loves to live in the country away from "the madding crowd," but at Broadway she is said to be getting tired of the throngs of tourists who insist upon calling at her when visiting Stratford on Avon, which is close to her home.

At Broadway she has a delightful old world house out of the beaten track, and visitors will search for hours to catch a glimpse of Mme. Navarro, who comes along in simple attire with her husband and children and a favorite dog.

The poor of the neighborhood call her their "beautiful lady" and she is the Lady Bountiful of the district. She has a chicken farm where she raises fowl for the invalid poor, and its management is a source of great interest to her.

THE KING'S WARDROBE.

Never was there a King of England whose wardrobe gave him less trouble than King George's gives him. He dresses well because it is a duty, and he lays down but one hard and fast rule for those who supply him with clothes. Every garment must be as unobtrusive as possible. His hose are invariably black, quite plain and the best that are woven. His ties are subdued, mostly black. He likes a flower in his buttonhole, and usually chooses a white one, though in the spring he has a decided partiality for violets. The King never wears tan boots nor tan gloves. Tones of gray he likes, but they must be dark. Gloves are about the only article in which he is extravagant.

An inmate of the Home for Incurables at Putney recently wrote to Lady Eva Dugdale asking whether there would be any chance of Queen Mary accepting a hand embroidered bag over which the poor woman had spent much time and thought. She had been a patient in the Home for more than forty years, and to please her the Queen graciously consented to receive the bag. Her Majesty was much touched by the gift, and sent a letter of thanks to the invalid.

Queen Mary and the Princess Royal are both very fond of children, and have remembered the incurable patients that Queen Mary and the late Duchess of Teck used to pay when living at White Lodge, Richmond Park.

ACCEPTS THE BAG.

The Queen, on hearing the particulars, not only accepted the bag, but on meeting Lord Northampton, who was about to visit the Home in Putney, charged him to be sure to see this particular inmate and to tell her that he had seen her using the bag she had made.

Prince John, the King's youngest son, found himself in sad disgrace the other day. It was all through a young matron who was taking tea with the Queen. She was very keen on renewing acquaintance with Prince John, and, though the King and Queen are known never to thrust the company of their children on their friends unless it is especially requested, Queen Mary went for the Prince.

He was very pleasant and polite when he came, and, his salutations over, he amused himself as he pleased, and the Queen and her friend took no further notice of him. Meanwhile he had got up on an ottoman behind where the guest sat, and was admiring a diamond ornament at the back of her hat. When the guest arose to leave a disconcerting sight met her glance. Her chair was strewn with golden curls. Prince John, having unfastened the hairpins that had held them.

MARRIAGE GOSSIP.

With the silly season on, London newspapers are busy in finding a wife for the seventeen-year-old Prince of Wales, who, notwithstanding the fact that he was the central figure in a great ceremonial, the investiture, is only a boy who would rather have a go at cricket than be a state figure. But, according to the newspapers on June 23 next he will be eighteen and of age, and when an heir apparent is of age time must not be wasted. So after a bit he and his princess will meet and the Court Circular will note that a marriage has been "arranged."

Notwithstanding the friction over Morocco, the Kaiser's fair haired, blue eyed daughter, Princess Victoria Luise, is the favorite of Englishmen generally. The Prince is mute on the subject.

It is pointed out that if the Prince should think of a Russian wife he would find the sixteen year old Grand Duchess Olga, the Tsar's eldest daughter, quite his equal in birth, and that her sister, the Grand Duchess Tatania, who is two years younger and very pretty, may be considered.

Then there are Princesses Marguerite, daughter of the King of Saxony; the Princesses Elizabeth and Marie, of Roumania; the Grand Duchesses Charlotte and Marie, of Luxembourg; Princess Marguerite, of Denmark; Princess Helena, of Greece, and a score of other young princesses, all of whom are near the age of the English heir-apparent who, according to whispers in Court circles "is jolly well tired of all this talk about marriage" and wants to be let alone.

THE QUEEN'S MASCOTS.

Queen Alexandra has always collected mascots. One afternoon recently she was calling upon a friend in Belgravia, when, quite unobserved, a black kitten of a most plebeian order climbed up the back of the Queen's chair, and, arrived at the top, began playing with the widow's veil.

The hostess got up quickly to remove the cheeky intruder, but Queen Alexandra asked to whom the kitten belonged. It transpired that it was a stray one. The Queen requested that she might take it home, which she did. She has also a solemn old owl at Sandringham, which she regards as a mascot. Her friends, knowing this, have from time to time given her numbers of ornaments representing owls, and now she has a table which is devoted to the collection.

SOCIETY IN THE SWIM.

In this age of the athletic girl swimming has become more and more a favorite exercise in society. Some of the smartest matrons and young girls of society are first rate swimmers, and even Princess Mary, young as she is, swims well. Those who have seen her dive exhibit on her grace and skill. It is a rule that the girls in the best families take their swimming lessons with the unfailing regularity with which they take their French or painting instructions.

Lady Constance Stewart Richardson has for long been the best swimmer at the Bath Club. Her young kinswoman, Lady Rosemary Leveson-Gower, the debutante daughter of the Duchess of Sutherland, is a first rate swimmer and will not be satisfied until she has won as many prizes as her accomplished cousin. Miss Muriel Wilson is another who can perform remarkable feats in the water.

READING LOSING VOGUE IN ENGLAND

Sir Joseph Thomson Complains That University Men Depend Too Much on Lectures at College.

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday.

THE question whether serious reading is dying out in England is actively discussed in bookselling and literary circles, owing to some striking remarks by Professor Sir Joseph Thomson. Speaking at a dinner of the Associated Booksellers of Great Britain, the professor of experimental physics said:—

"In the University of Cambridge I am afraid that the habit of reading is almost extinct, and that it has been replaced by lectures. The undergraduates expect to have the thing digested for them, and many of them read very little. That is a very serious evil, and it would be better for the coming race to encourage reading."

From what can be learned both from libraries and booksellers, it would seem that, in the wide world outside Oxford and Cambridge, the tendency for the book borrower is to indulge in fiction and light literature, and for the book buyer to choose more solid fare.

"People certainly seem to read more for entertainment than for instruction or culture," remarked the manager of one of the leading circulating libraries. "The demand for solid books has not increased proportionately with the increase in the number of readers."

Another side of the question is revealed when the ever-increasing number of "reprints" is considered. It is now quite possible to form quite a large library of "solid reading"—travel, biography, classics and the like—at a cost of about ten cents a volume, and Mr. J. M. Dent, whose "Everyman" series reached a sale of a million and a half in England alone last year, does not take a pessimistic view of the situation.

"Yet" he says, "I fear the decay is much as Sir Joseph Thomson's complaint. The tendency, at any rate at Cambridge and many other universities is to aim at short cuts to knowledge, to work only for examinations, which are over growing hardly, and to ignore wide culture, and what used to be called the 'humanities.' But the working man, as my experience with Everyman shows, is quite as keen to read the best of books as he ever was."

Amnesia Laid to Mania for Speed

London Physicians Blame Exciting Nature of Life Nowadays for Increase in Lost Memory Cases.

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday.

LONDON physicians have no difficulty in explaining the cause of the remarkable number of cases of lost memory so much in evidence lately. The many excitements of modern life, they say, are responsible for the growth of the strange malady.

"Automobile buses and taxicabs, with their hooters, are in no small measure responsible for the nervous strain which brings on loss of memory," said a Harley street specialist. "To cross Piccadilly today means the expenditure of at least twice as much nervous energy as it did twenty years ago. Even on a country road, the pedestrian's nerves must nowadays be ever on the qui vive for the automobile which may at any moment whisk round a corner of the road. If the memory is to remain healthy it must get plenty of rest. This is practically impossible to-day.

"After all, loss of memory is the result of nothing more nor less than nervous or brain fatigue. As a rule women are more likely to be the victims of the complaint than men. Doubtless this fact is due to the hyper-sensitive nature of a woman's nervous constitution."

AUSTRIAN NOBLES IN SWORD DUEL

Count Adalbert Sternburg Slashes Count Joseph Karolyi's Right Ear in Two.

[Special Despatch.]
Bregenz, Saturday.—Count Adalbert Sternburg, a member of the Reichsrath, whose adventures on the turf in the Transvaal and in politics have often aroused interest, fought a lively duel at Pressburg, with Count Joseph Karolyi, son of a former Austro-Hungarian Ambassador at London. Count Sternburg had insulted the latter and the duel grew out of the incident. The affair was fought with cavalry sabres, as is customary in Pressburg.

Count Karolyi had his right ear slashed in two and received a deep cut on the head which put him hors de combat. Count Sternburg escaped unhurt except for a blow on the chest from the flat of Count Karolyi's sabre. The adversaries are not reconciled.

AMERICANS TARGET FOR PENNY-A-LINER

Some London Writers Continue to "Sling Mud" at Visitors from the United States.

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday.

NOTWITHSTANDING the approval of the Anglo-American arbitration treaty the English penny-a-liners still continue to sling mud at American visitors. They harp upon our lingual peculiarities, bizarre clothing and "utter lack of social graces." Of course "it is to laugh" when one remembers that the writers, as a rule, have never seen a finger bowl and only use a serviette upon state occasions.

As an instance of the kindly spirit of these writers it is only necessary to quote the following example:—

"The slap-dash impulsiveness of American hero worship was well illustrated by the Pennsylvania Society's 'tribute' to William Penn. The worthy Quaker being indebted to the Church for his imprisonment in Newgate and the Tower, his transatlantic admirers hit on a church as a suitable place for a memorial to him, and as he was a sworn foe to religious ceremonies and ritual of every kind, they chose the church where he was christened. Having carried out this part of their business with the approval and patronage of such Quakerlike Englishmen as Lord Charles Beresford, the Pennsylvanians journeyed to the peaceful burial ground at Jordans to deposit on Penn's grave a flamboyant object composed of ribbons and flowers that was enough to bring a hundred and fifty venerable Quakers in horror from their coffins. Doubtless the motives of the New York coterie were excellent. They need to be to justify their achievements."

No doubt Colonel R. M. Thompson and those associated with him in paying a tribute to the memory of Penn will treat this tirade with the silence that hurts.

Another penny-a-liner, after the usual attack upon American newspapers and their correspondents, says that returning Americans are even worse than the reporters, quoting "The Rev. Mr. Meyer" as denouncing undemocratic Americans whom he has seen in London, one of whom, according to the story, offered to pay a large sum of money for the paper which had held the Queen's luncheon in the Abbey. This story, read by many, is being whispered about, growing with each whisper, and your willingly credulous Englishman swallows hook, line and sinker.

ART WORKS BRING NEARLY $2,000,000

Season's Sales at Christie's Prove There Is Plenty of Money Available.

FRANCE IS IN THE LEAD

Has Record for the Highest Price, $120,000, Paid in 1852 for "The Immaculate Conception."

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday.

THE season's results at Christie's auction rooms and elsewhere demonstrate that there is plenty of money available for the purchase of works of art which, for one reason or another, come into the open market.

Since January half a dozen private picture collections have produced nearly $1,000,000, and, one dozen collections of old silver, engravings and various objects of art about $250,000. In Paris it seems that the buyer has to pay an extra ten per cent on auction values, and as a set-off France extends much greater encouragement than England to her decorative artists.

France still holds the "blue ribbon" in Europe for the highest priced picture at auction, even though the British maximum has this season been increased by fifty per cent. When, in 1852, Marshal Sault's gallery was dispersed in Paris the Louvre paid more than $120,000 for "The Immaculate Conception," by Murillo. London's nearest approximation was on May 19 last, when Messrs. Duveen bought for $117,600 Raeburn's full length portrait of Mrs. Robertson Williamson, valued by the then owner, a descendant, at a minimum of $50,000.

SALES THIS YEAR.

In all sixty-two pictures and one chalk drawing have since January been knocked down for sums in excess of $7,500 each. Of these thirty-four are by English painters, aggregating $767,175. Portraits by eighteenth and early nineteenth century artists largely predominate, thirty-one such yielding $775,200. In this section the name of Lemuel Abbott is for the first time conspicuous, his "First Viscount Hood," engraved by Valentine Green in 1795, having brought $11,025, against Reynolds's previous record of $630.

Headed by the $117,600 portrait, eleven Raeburns aggregated nearly $350,000, whereas at the Raeburn sale of 1897 forty-nine portraits by him brought $52,500, only two of these being equalled up to $50,000 ($245,000) in 1905.

There follow the records of Hoppner ($73,575), of Gainsborough ($63,525), of Reynolds ($57,000) and of Romney ($56,125). The order of merit is, however, not necessarily conferred in that rotation. Gainsborough's "Lady Anne Ponsonby," its beauty temporarily obscured, brought $43,575; Hoppner's much cracked "Mrs. Beridge," $32,500; "Lady Glasgow," for which Romney received $150 in 1779, fetched $21,000, and Reynolds' "First Viscount Bridport," the original price of which was $105, sold for $13,650.

OTHER ART FEATURES.

Leaving pictures, there are innumerable features of interest. Apart from the acquirement of the Bennett collection of Chinese porcelain by Mr. Gever and the Wertheimer art collection by Messrs. Duveen, running into millions of dollars, there was the chaste and beautiful Elmbethan banqueting service, 1581-1601, buried under Dartmoor in 1645, unearthed in 1827, which cost Mrs. Cator, a descendant of Sir Christopher Harris, the original owner, $9,500, and which fetched this year $57,500.

Other examples of old silver include the famous "Blacksmith's Cup," 1655, $36,500; a Charles I. stoopie cup and cover, gilt, 1625, $12,500, against $955 in 1866; a Charles II. porringer and cover, bequeathed in 1675 by the Countess of Pembroke to the Bishop of Winchester, for use at the feet, $10,000.

At the dispersal of the remarkable series of Old engravings and woodcuts belonging to the Huth trustees the famous collection of 351 woodcuts by Durer went to Baron Edmund de Rothschild at $37,000, whereas Mr. Henry Huth in the early fifties paid for them what was then regarded as a "grand price," $1,250. Then for the ring which Queen Elizabeth, according to tradition, gave to the Earl of Essex Lord Michelham paid $17,075 in May, when some of the Thynne heirlooms were dispersed. In the category of "expensive baubles" for a pearl necklace for which the late Duchess of Marlborough gave $62,000 the sum of $30,500 was paid.

STILL FAVORS THE CHANNEL TUNNEL

Sir Thomas Wrightson Insists, However, on Proper Military Defensive Protection.

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday.

Sir Thomas Wrightson, chairman of the firm of Messrs. Head, Wrightson & Co., of Stockton-on-Tees, writing to an American newspaper correspondent from Measham Hall, Derbyshire, says: "I am still of the opinion that a Channel tunnel to connect England and France at the Straits of Dover is a practical scheme which must be taken in hand sooner or later. Such an enterprise would not be allowed in this country without proper military defensive protection at the entrance, and the cost of this must be added to the engineering cost of construction. This safeguard involves an increase on the capital expenditure, but every year sees such an enormous increase in the demand for travelling facilities that there is no doubt that even this defensive addition to the cost of the tunnel would not in the near future prevent a handsome return to the total capital expended."

FAMOUS MARQUIS DESERTS ENGLAND

"No Room for Me in England," Says Scottish Peer, Leaving for America.

STATESMANSHIP IS DEAD

If He Finds a Suitable Position in United States, Will Become American Citizen.

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday.

PERCY SHOLTO DOUGLAS-PENNANT, Marquis of Queensberry, Viscount Drumlanrig and Baron of Scotland, whose ancestors were dukes whose patent of nobility dates to the thirteenth century and whose forbears were often heirs of royalty when Scotland was an independent kingdom, is reported by cable to have arrived in New York aboard the Mauretania to obtain or an opportunity to mend his fortune.

The Marquis, who was a midshipman in the royal navy and served later as an officer in the King's Own Scottish Borderers, and whose name is a household word in every part of the world where boxing is a sport, gave to your correspondent just before leaving his reasons for deserting his native country.

"If I can find a chance in business or a suitable position I will make my home in the United States and become an American citizen.

"There is no room for me here," said the Marquis as he gazed wistfully at his two sons, Francis Archibald Kelhead Douglas, heir to the marquisate, who is Lord Douglas of Hawick and Tibbers, and Lord Cecil Charles Douglas, fair haired, bright eyed schoolboys of fifteen and thirteen, who with their old friend Mr. Donald, proctor of Red House, Berkhampstead, Herts, had come to bid him goodby and godspeed.

Old Order Passing.

"We are played out here," the Marquis continued. "The old order is passing away. I saw the storm clouds gathering for many years, and if the peers of England had given the slightest evidence of constructive statesmanship during that period, conceding to the growing spirit of democracy reforms that have been wrested by force now, the House of Lords would have been strongly entrenched for generations.

"But the fools could not see anything and would not do anything," said the Marquis bitterly. "So they have reaped the whirlwind. I am a peer of Scotland and the only Marquis in the United Kingdom who is not a member of the House of Lords. Why? Because I am a radical. Although Scotland is overwhelmingly liberal its peers would not understand in their representative because of my known sympathy with progress and real reform.

"They make new rich men like Lord Northcliffe and put them in the Lords. Why, only the other day they made a peer of England of a wealthy Jew who is in a sanatorium.

Thoroughly "Trimmed."

"So with the lords of Scotland against me because I am a radical and the radical commoners opposed to me because I am a lord. I have been 'trimmed' thoroughly, as Americans put it. Therefore I am seeking new fields in a new land to better my condition. I will stop in New York for a short time and then visit the Porcupine district in Canada. If I am successful over there I will send for my boys to join me, as the day of the lords of England is over and I am going where not the title but the man counts."

Just then the train whistle blew and the two sons of the Marquis, attired, like himself, in blue flannel lounge suits, bade him a hurried farewell and the train puffed away with the head of the noble house of Queensberry, who is a sailor, a soldier and a keen sportsman at the age of forty-three, in quest of work and fortune.

Lord Granard was also on board the Mauretania, but he is only making a hurried trip to America, where he will join Lady Granard, returning to England on a steamship leaving New York on August 30.

HOW "LLOYDS" BEGAN IN 1688

Founder of Enterprise Was Coffee House Keeper Whose Shop Vessel Owners Frequented.

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday.

Primarily "Lloyds" is a corporation employed in marine insurance and having a world wide agency for the collection of marine intelligence. Incidentally other insurance is taken. "Lloyds" had its origin in the enterprise of Edward Lloyd, a London coffee house keeper, whose house, opened in 1688, became a resort for ship owners and ship captains. So much was learned of marine matters and the general became the interest in this information, that in 1696 an office was opened in Lombard street, and shortly afterwards Lloyd's News, a paper issued three times a week and devoted to shipping news, made its appearance.

Adverse criticism of the paper by the British government, coupled with a demand for an apology for an item of news which appeared in the paper, decided Mr. Lloyd to discontinue the publication. The insurance feature of "Lloyds" originated from a method of mutually insuring or "underwriting" each other's shipping risks by the owners frequenting Lloyd's establishment. Their method of doing this was to subscribe or "underwrite" their names to a document which stated the amounts that each was willing to give in the event of disaster to the risk.

The present system of "Lloyds" does not differ in any essential particular from the method employed at the beginning, but it is much better organized and the business has been greatly increased in volume. Its radius of operation now certainly covers the whole world.

CASE OF DEARBORN VS. LAKEBREEZE

(By Richard Henry Little in Chicago Tribune.)

The trial of Miss Ima Lakebreeze, charged by Father Dearborn with dereliction of duty, absence without leave, breach of promise, and conspiracy to ruin the good name and fair fame of the defendant as being the possessor of the greatest summer resort in the world, took place in the Weather Bureau the other day, with Judge Prog, the gifted weather shark, on the bench. Fears that the defendant would be mobbed by the excited citizens who thronged all the hallways approaching the courtroom caused the judge to send an extra large number of bailiffs and city policemen in uniform into the passage-ways to prevent any violence being shown to Miss Lakebreeze when she made her appearance.

In spite of the guards around her, however, the defendant was greeted with derisive hoots and catcalls and cries of "Fourflusher!" "Quitter!" "Glass crash!" and other derogatory epithets as she made her way defiantly into the hall of justice.

Father Dearborn was represented by State's Attorney Wayman, while James Hamilton Lewis conducted the defence of Miss Lakebreeze. Father Dearborn first took the stand and said he was 74 years old and naturally had always resided in Chicago, the city of which he was the presiding genius, reigning monarch, the legendary representative.

"Now, Father Dearborn," said the State's Attorney, "just tell the jury your story in your own way."

"Well," said the aged witness, in a thin, piping voice, "this here young woman an' me are engaged. I'm hitched right here, you see—can't ever get away from the town—an' so she's been doin' all the courtin'."

"You mean that she wooed you?" interposed the State's Attorney.

"I object," said the counsel for the defence.

The objection was overruled and Father Dearborn continued.

"Yes," he said, "this here Lakebreeze gal she always comes a-cooing around an' kind of makin' love to me every summer. She's been a-doin' it I don't know how many years. I jest natcherally got to lookin' for her every few days come summer time. You see, it gits tarnation hot in Chicago sometimes, but this here Lakebreeze gal she lives out in Lake Michigan an' she's alwus as cool as you please, an' whenever she comes, by ginger! she makes everything nice an' cold an' fine as all git-out, and all my children enjoy it very much, b'gosh!"

"Well, I got so used to havin' her come noseyin' aroun', every time the town got hot up, I jest natcherally went to work and commenced to boost Chicago as the greatest darn summer resort in the whole durned world. People got to comin' here instead of goin' to Mackinaw or th' woods or th' mountains or Atlantic City, or anywhere else for the summer. And then, dad burn my whiskers——"

"Object," said the counsel for the defence.

"On what grounds?" asked the court.

"Immaterial, irrelevant, and calculated to turn attention from me to himself," said Attorney Lewis, running his tapering white fingers through his own superb crop of pink Alfalfas.

"Objection overruled," ordered the court. "Continue, Father Dearborn."

"Wasl, there hain't much more to tell," went on the witness. "She alwus led me ter believe that she an' me were engaged, an' I was alwus braggin' about her an' a-tellin' everybody that she wus sweet on me an' that she would alwus be around whenever it got hot, but she threw me down. She didn't come a-near me from the fust to th' fifth o' July, jist last week, an' when she did come she jest bluffed an' asshayed around a little an' was gone, an' Saturday, by gum, the town wus purty near as hot as ever. I'm tired of her a-foolin' me this way, an', by cracky, I jist hed her arrested."

The counsel for the defence declined to cross-examine the plaintiff and the prosecution resting, Miss Ima Lakebreeze, the defendant, was put on the stand. Miss Lakebreeze is a charmingly cool appearing young woman, and wore a beautiful costume made of cloud lining, caught up at the neck and throat with rain drops that glistened like diamonds. On direct examination she said that she knew Father Dearborn and had often visited his city of Chicago. She said she was not engaged to Father Dearborn, nor had she ever been. She was perfectly free and independent and visited Chicago when she saw fit, and was under no obligations to make her visits in order to carry out Father Dearborn's plans for booming his city.

"Where were you?" asked the State's Attorney, sternly, "on the night of July the first?"

"I was at my home in the middle of the lake."

Question by the State's Attorney: "Did you know that old General Humidity and Col. Record Heat were then in Chicago, causing great suffering to Father Dearborn?"

Answer by defendant: "Oh, yes, I knew it, but only in a general way."

Question by the State's Attorney: "Did you ever make love to Father Dearborn?"

Objection was made by the counsel for the defence, but overruled by the court, and the witness yawned and said: "Well, I used to visit him here in Chicago, if that is what you mean."

Question by State's Attorney: "Did you ever kiss Father Dearborn?"

Counsel for defence: "I object."

The court: "Objection overruled."

The defendant: "Not in the common acceptance of the term."

The State's Attorney: "I insist on an answer."

The defendant: "Well, I used to fan his cheeks and rumple his hair, if that's what you mean."

The State's Attorney: "In other words you led him to believe that you were engaged to him, and that you would come to Chicago whenever his enemies, Gen. Humidity and Col. Record Heat, the two gentlemen sitting over there, were oppressing him?"

The State's Attorney: "Then why did you stay away the first five days in July, and then when you did come why did you remain such a short time?"

The defendant: "Oh, just because."

The State's Attorney: "I insist on an answer."

The chief bailiff, excitedly: "May it please the court, Gen. Humidity and Col. Record Heat, who have been under arrest, and were held here as witnesses, have both escaped! We are powerless to capture them! No one but this young lady can drive them from the city."

Father Dearborn: "That's right, yer honor. I hain't got nothin' against this gal and I'm willing to drop proceedin's ag'in her if she will jist attend to business an' git after them fellers."

The defendant: "Oh, Father Dearborn, why were you so unkind to me?"

At this point defendant broke down and cried like a child, even though she was observed to be smiling at Father Dearborn through her tears.

The court: "The defendant is discharged with the apologies of the court and Father Dearborn."

Policeman, standing by one of the windows: "Joy be! 'tis rainin' outside an' gettin' nice an' cool."

Father Dearborn (rapturously): "Oh you Lakebreeze."

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Public Building, Port Perry, Ont," will be received until 4.00 P.M., on Wednesday, September 6, 1911, for the construction of a Public Building at Port Perry, Ont.

Plans, specifications and form of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained on application to the Postmaster at Port Perry, Ont., at the office of Mr. Thos. Hastings, Clerk of Works, Postal Station P., Yonge St., Toronto, and at this Department.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of the occupation and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent (10 p.c.) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,
R. C. DESROCHERS.
Secretary.

Department of Public Works,
Ottawa, August 15, 1911.

Newspapers will not be paid for this advertisement if they insert it without authority from the Department.

FIGURES HE HAS CHANCE

LONDON, AUG. 22.—Bombardier Wells, the Englishman, who meets Champion Jack Johnson, figures that he has a good chance.

"Johnson is not 'a shape,'" said Wells to-day. "He weighs eighteen stone (252 lbs.), and he's going to have to take off 42 lbs. to get down to his normal fighting weight, and that won't do him any too much good. I weigh 192 now, and have been taking on weight even under the hardest kind of training. I'm more than an inch taller than Johnson, and my reach is greater. They say I have tissue-paper ribs, but since I was licked by Gunner Moir, when I had little experience, I have been building up my body muscles, and in the Flynn and Hagan fights I hardly felt the blows of either man. I think I am quicker on my feet than Johnson, and I certainly will keep away from him as much as possible, and box him off his feet. I think I will win, and will do my best.

"I am in light training, and have been for some time, and I will be in good shape when I get into the ring with Wells," said Johnson. "I am going over to Paris to do some of my training, and incidentally to keep up with some of my engagements in the theatrical line. They say that Wells is a strong young man, husky, and has a good punch in both hands, but you want to remember that I am champion of the world because I had that same punch in both hands, and it wasn't something in 'Mistah Jeffries' toe, but those very same punches that made me the champion. I have had to do a lot of work for this syndicate that is to hold the fight, to get up interest in our bout, but I guess we will get a crowd. Anyhow, I'm sure of my money.

"I have no real plans after I have licked Wells, other than to fill my contract to go to Australia with Mistah McIntosh. He certainly is a fine man, and I want to help him make some money, and make some for myself. You know the last time I was in Australia, Tommy Burns got the money. I don't know who I'll meet there. Maybe it'll be Langford, and if I get that black fellow in the ring I will just walk up to him, and—well, I'll show him just what a champion of the world is.

REFUSED TO REMAIN

LOS ANGELES, AUG. 21.—Because Alexandria Hotel barbers refused to manage her bulldog with electric appliances Mrs. Henry T. Phillips refused to remain in the hotel.

When Mrs. Phillips, with three maids, a manservant and a bulldog entered the hotel the "bell hops" were weighted with her baggage, and there was more coming.

"Before I register," said Mrs. Phillips to Chief Clerk Sibbald, "I must be assured that my dog will have sanitary quarters. He must be managed by the barber with electric appliances because of his poor circulation."

Mr. Sibbald gasped his astonishment, then politely and ever so gently imparted the information that it was "against the rules."

"Very well, then," the woman snapped indignantly. "Come, Brutus!"

And the party proudly swept from the lobby to a taxicab.

NOTHING LIKE IT FOR COLDS

Mrs. Holland Ferguson, Sheffield, N.B., writes: "Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has cured my children and myself of severe colds. We are never without it in the house. There is nothing like it for colds and throat trouble, and it is so soothing and pleasant to take, my children would drink a whole bottle if they were permitted."

LIGHTNING'S FREAK

MANSFIELD CENTRE, CONN., AUG. 23.—A bolt of lightning threw itself into the hip pocket of Joseph Barrow, a farmer, as he was sitting in the kitchen of his home here last night. The bolt came into the house via the stove pipe and was attracted to Barrow's hip pocket by the presence there of an iron monkey wrench and a big jack-knife. It passed down his leg, burning him severely, and then careened over the floor, upsetting a tub of water, and splitting a huge chopping block. In Barrow's pocket the end of the wrench and the blade of his knife were fused into a solid piece of steel.

DEPARTMENT OF RAILWAYS AND CANALS

Branch Line of Railway from Guysborough to Sunny Brae Through Country Harbour Crossroads with an Extension from Country Harbour Crossroads to Deep Water of Country Harbour.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Tender for Guysborough-Country Harbour Line," will be received at this office until 16 o'clock on Friday, September the 15th, 1911, for Section No. 1 of the above line of railway, comprising that portion extending from Guysborough to Country Harbour Crossroads and from the latter point to Deep Water Country Harbour.

Plans, profiles, specification and form of contract to be entered into can be seen on and after the 15th instant at the office of the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa; at the office of the Chief Engineer of the Intercolonial Railway, Moncton; and at the office of the Board of Trade of Halifax.

Forms of tender may be procured from the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals or from the Chief Engineer of the Intercolonial Railway.

Parties tendering will be required to accept the fair wages schedule prepared or to be prepared by the Department of Labour, which schedule will form part of the contract.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind that tenders will not be considered, unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and in the case of firms, unless there are attached the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm.

An accepted bank cheque for the sum of $100,000 made payable to the order of the Minister of Railways and Canals must accompany each tender, which sum will be forfeited if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work, at the rates stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective contractors whose tenders are not accepted.

The cheque of the successful tenderer will be held as security, or part security, for the due fulfilment of the contract to be entered into.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

By order,
L. K. JONES,
Secretary.

MARKET REPORTS.

Liverpool Wheat Futures Close Higher, Chicago Lower—Live Stock —Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, Aug. 22.—Yesterday's bulge in wheat, occasioned in part by predictions of weather inimical to the crop, was more than lost to-day when the prophecies failed of fulfilment. December wheat closed ⅝c to 1c lower. Good weather sent corn down, December finishing ⅝c to ¾c down. The close in oats was ⅛c to ⅜c under yesterday, and the decline in provisions ranged from 5c in January lard to 30c in September pork.

Liverpool closed ⅝d to ¾d higher than yesterday on wheat and unchanged on corn. Paris wheat closed ½c higher, and Berlin ⅜c higher.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Aug. 22.—Business in grain over the cable was very quiet owing to the fact that the prices bid were generally out of line. The local demand for oats is fairly good and sales of round lots of No. 2 Canada white were made at 40½c and 40¾c ex-store. The offerings from the west are light and buyers find it difficult to make purchase for futures shipment. American corn is weaker, but the demand is fair at the decline, and sales of No. 2 yellow to arrive were made at 69¼c. A fairly active trade continues to be done in spring wheat flour for local and country account, and there is also a steady demand from European sources. The demand for bran and shorts is good, but supplies are very small. The trade in dairy produce is good and provisions are fairly active.

"I COULD NOT LIVE" WITHOUT "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

What The Treasurer Of Caledonia Township

PENACHEVALE, Ont., Jan. 29th, 1910.

For thirty-five years (and I am now a man over seventy) I have been a terrible sufferer from Constipation.

No matter what remedy or physician I employed, the result was always the same—impossible to get a cure.

About two years ago, I read the testimonial of Hon. John Costigan regarding "Fruit-a-tives" and I decided to give this fruit medicine a trial. I have used "Fruit-a-tives" ever since. They are the first and only medicine that suited my case. If it were not for "Fruit-a-tives", I am satisfied that I could not live." JAMES PROUDFOOT.

The liver controls the bowels by giving up enough bile to make the bowels move. The only possible way to cure constipation is to make the liver active and healthy and thus store up sufficient bile to move the bowels.

"Fruit-a-tives" acts directly on the liver—ensures an abundance of bile—and causes the bowels to move regularly and naturally. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At dealers, or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Sheep for the tower; sheep wethers; lambs, $4.50 to $7.25; culls, $4 to $4.25; sheep, $3 to $4; culls, $1 to $1.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 1200 head; nominally steady.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, Aug. 22.—Hogs—Receipts 18,000. Market steady. Mixed and butchers, $7.30 to $7.55; good heavy, $7.30 to $7.50; rough heavy, $7.05 to $7.20; light, $7.35 to $7.55; pigs, $5.50 to $7.00.

Cattle—Receipts 5000. Market higher. Beeves, $5.40 to $8.10; cows and heifers, $3.05 to $6.40; stockers and feeders, $3.10 to $5.10; Texans, $4.00 to $4.85; calves, $6 to $9.00.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts 25,000; market steady; native, $4.25 to $5.10; western, $2.05 to $3.75; lambs, $4.75 to $6.85; western, $4.75 to $7.05.

Ice Famine.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Aug. 22.—This city's ice supply is practically exhausted. Ice is now being imported from the American side. The price to weekly customers was boosted from 60 cents to $1 a week.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Franco-German negotiations on the Moroccan dispute are giving rise to war rumors.

Leonardo da Vinci's masterpiece, "La Gianondo," has disappeared from the Louvre, Paris.

Mrs. Allen Karn died at London from injuries received in jumping off a moving street car.

Barney Goodall of Beamsville has been arrested on a charge of sending threatening letters to Miss Annie Black.

John D. Rockefeller has given another $1,000,000 to the Rockefeller Institute of Medical Research, according to an unconfirmed report.

It may now be said that Pope Pius is entirely convalescent. Doctors Marchiafava and Petacci have ceased their visits to the pontiff.

Bids for the construction of the new navy are still being considered at Ottawa, and it is not likely that the contract will be awarded for some time.

There are persistent rumors that Archbishop Bruchesi is to receive a cardinality at the next consistory or earlier if necessitated by the pontiff's illness.

J. E. Baudet has been forced to retire as Conservative candidate owing to severe illness, and L. H. Huard, a prominent local merchant, has been chosen to contest Megantic County.

New Terminal Assured.

Montreal, Aug. 23.—C.P.R. officials yesterday confirmed the report of the building of a new terminal near Western Junction, ten miles out of this city.

The official report reads: "The Canadian Pacific Railway has started work on another huge undertaking in connection with their Montreal transportation facilities. Out near Western Junction the company is building a new terminal headquarters, which consists of a large twenty-four stall engine house, a machine shop, a turntable, a coaling plant, a stores building, a rooming and lodging house capable of accommodating one hundred men, and a car shunting and storage yard of two thousand cars capacity. Eventually the new terminal will have a capacity of four thousand cars.

To Abandon Delhi Durbar.

New York, Aug. 23.—A London cable to The American says:—

In Parliamentary circles it is now considered probable that the Delhi Durbar will not be postponed, but will be altogether abandoned. The proposed coronation of the King in India was from the first intensely unpopular with the Indian Government, which dreaded the enormous expense involved, and also felt uneasy concerning the safety of the monarch. George, however, insisted and the Government could not well discourage him.

But the King himself has now suggested the abandonment of the affair in view of the drought famine and terrible ravages of the plague. Moreover, with the working classes of Great Britain seething with discontent, the King feels that the pomp and expense of a Durbar would be altogether out of place.

A Story of Storey.

An English paper tells a little anecdote of the distinguished painter Storey in his capacity of teacher of perspective at the Royal Academy. On one occasion Mr. Storey accepted an invitation to dine with the wealthy—and Philistine—father of one of his pupils. Over the undeniable port the by no means doting parent inquired how his son was getting on, and, although the kindest of men, Mr. Storey would not bring himself to say much that was favorable. "Humph!" grunted the man of money. "Well, I hope he will turn out an artist, for I am quite sure he's not fit to be anything else."

"Vagrant" Had $7,000.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—A man, apparently eighty years old, decrepit and ragged, who has been wandering around the streets for several days, was taken to the Chicago avenue police station, where $7,000 was found on his person.

While waiting past the prisoner's cell, a deputy noticed the old man shuffling a roll of bills, which he could not reach around with both hands. After a while he began throwing the bills through the bars, as though dealing a pack of cards.

A search of his clothing brought forth more than $3,000 in bills, and bank books showing deposits of $5,800.

He mumbled in Norwegian that he had come from Canada, and said his name was Torsten Isaacson Asgaard.

Going West.

Toronto, Aug. 23.—Officials at the Union Station had a busy time yesterday in handling an unexpected rush of homeseekers for the northwest. They had prepared to handle about 600, but by two o'clock 700 had gathered seeking reservation in the cars.

The party was made up of men, women and children from Western and Northern Ontario districts. It required two special C.P.R. trains to accommodate the party. To-day it is expected that about 4,000 harvesters will leave the Union Station for the west.

The Resort Prospectus.

"Going to run daily excursions this year?"

"Uh, yes."

"I notice you don't advertise a gorge any more."

"No; I made it a ravine instead. Some people thought a gorge meant a lot to eat."

A Big Royal Household.

The Emperor of China has a household consisting of 500 persons, including thirty bearers of state umbrellas, an equal number of fan bearers, thirty physicians and surgeons, seventy-five astrologers, seventy-five cooks and sixty priests.

I always install the SOUVENIR

(New Idea Series)

—It means quick sales

There you have the decisive verdict of a practical builder and contractor—the verdict of a man whose knowledge of the science of heating largely determines his income.

He always installs the SOUVENIR in houses built on spec for the simple reason that this furnace means a quick sales.

The SOUVENIR possesses many points of superiority that appeal strongly to discriminating buyers on sight.

The Firepot — the heart of the furnace — is constructed in such a way that the maximum heat diffusion is secured with minimum fuel consumption.

Every buyer of a Souvenir Furnace is protected with a legal bond on sale of purchase, guaranteeing Firepot against cracks or breaks of any kind for 5 years.

SOUVENIR Grates are simple, strong and easy to operate. It's always safe to install a SOUVENIR furnace because it is generally known to effect a saving of 25% to 50% in fuel consumption. Let us send you our new booklet.

The SOUVENIR Furnace is made in Hamilton, the stove centre of Canada, by

PETERBOROUGH WEDNESDAY AUGUST 23 1911

HIGH COURT A.O.F. DECIDES UPON OLD AGE PENSIONS FOR MEMBERS OF ORDER

Important Resolution Passed at This Morning's Session—Committee to be Appointed to Formulate Plan for Working Out of Proposition.

TO-DAY'S PROCEEDINGS

A most important resolution was passed by the High Court, Ancient Order of Foresters, at its session in the Collegiate Institute this morning when the High Court almost unanimously decided upon the adoption of old-age pensions for the members of the Order. This was the feature of the business transacted this morning.

High Court opened at 9 o'clock.

Reports from the committees on Distribution, Appeals, Finance and Beneficiary Fund, were received and discussed.

The resignation of Bro. W. J. Vale, P.H.C.R., for the past twenty-five years chairman of the Laws and Judiciary Committee, was received with regret.

The balances to the credit of the Sick and Benefit and the Management Funds, were most satisfactory, showing, in each case, a large increase.

The Beneficiary Fund Committee spoke in most favourable terms of the condition of the fund, and the efforts successfully made to place the fund in a condition of permanent solvency. 784 policies had been written during the term.

The chief recommendations of the committees were that the fund should be placed under the supervision of the Organization Department, and that the agents be paid an increased amount of commission on policies secured.

An animated discussion on the subject of old age pensions took place, and resulted in the following resolution: "That this High Court is of the opinion that the time has arrived for the establishment of an old-age pension fund in connection with the Order and that a committee be appointed to formulate a plan with that end in view and report at the next High Court meeting."

The idea met with almost unanimous favour and the only question to engage the attention of the High Court was the method by which funds could be procured to finance the movement.

The nomination of officers took place this morning and the installation is the first order of business for this afternoon.

Committees Elected.

At yesterday afternoon's session the following committees were elected:

Finance Committee—Bros. A. Dynes, F. Abbott, W. H. Benson, T. P. Wood, S. Halliday.

State of the Order Committee — Bros. A. Martin, W. C. Rook, A. J. Marris, Martin, W. O. Douglas.

Beneficiary Committee—Bros. Little A. Woonton, S. Gray, F. C. Taylor, C. J. Jackson.

Appeals Committee—Bros. W. E. Julton, J. Fields, A. E. Wickett, E. K. Barnsdale, S. A. McNutt.

Mileage and Per Diem Committee —Bros. A. Dupend, A. Lafoira, W. Harris, H. Porter, H. Smith.

Printing Committee—Bros. A. Martin, W. C. Rooke, J. E. Lillie, M. J. Dewey, A. McPherson.

The delegates greatly enjoyed the trip over the lift-lock yesterday afternoon, when they were the guests of Court Stanley, 7680, and a large number were present at the moonlight excursion in the evening, on board the steamer Stoney Lake. The outing was a great success. After a short run down the river the steamer returned up the canal and over the lift-lock to give the visitors a chance to view the illuminations. Tucker Bros. orchestra provided splendid music and a most enjoyable time was spent.

ARRANGEMENTS COMPLETE

All arrangements are complete for the best regatta in the history of the Chemong Yacht Club to-morrow. There is a big list of events and the entries are coming in fast. Chemong has the finest course on the waters, every race being in plain view from start to finish from the high shore, where it is cool and comfortable. The log rolling contest will be a big feature, and the greasy pole and duck race are guaranteed to make some excitement. Stoney Lake and Sturgeon Point will run excursions. The Rutherford-Grimes Co. and Gibbs' livery will run regular 'busses, to accomodate the crowd from Peterborough. The annual dance will be held in the pavilion in the evening. 'Busses will also run to and from Peterborough for it.

POSSIBILITY OF ANOTHER BIG STRIKE IN ENGLAND

Special to The Examiner.

LIVERPOOL, AUG. 23.— Because the Liverpool Tramways Company has refused to reinstate two hundred and fifty employees who went on strike, there is again a serious labour crisis here, with a possibility of calling out again, all railroad employees and all employees on every tramway, underground railway and omnibus line in England and Scotland, altogether, three quarters of a million of men. Manifests were rushed out early this morning to all transport employees to remain on strike, thus cancelling orders to return to work as a result of the government commission appointed yesterday.

Tom Mann and other strike leaders have gone to London to confer with the members of the government who, thinking everything is on the way to settlemen, are away from London, and England's vital systems of transportation is again in a muddle. Scarcely a wheel is moving and the Atlantic liners here are still tied to the docks. Hungry men and women yesterday raided carloads of provisions and this morning all freight on the siddings was guarded by the military and police.

BIG GATHERING OF SCOUTS AT TORONTO EXHIBITION

TORONTO, AUG. 23.—"We will have 5,000 Boy Scouts—half the total force in Ontario—at the Exhibition," said Captain Hammond, of the Boy Scout movement, to the Star to-day. "and it will be the biggest event so far in Canadian Boy history."

It is to take the form of a grand rally, such as was held King George at Windsor, and which a Canadian Boy Scout contingent attended. Earl Grey will review the Scouts on Tuesday afternoon.

Before the review the Scouts will give exhibitions of their skill in firelighting, camp-pitching, first ad to the injured, bridge building, watch tower erection, etc., and then forming into sections of a huge circle the 5,000 will be reviewed by His Excellency and his suite. Twenty-five hundred Boy Scouts from out of town will camp on the Fair grounds from Monday until Thursday, and this will mean that 269 tents must be pitched on the grounds. Toronto Boy Scouts to the number of 300, will go out to the grounds at 2 p.m. on Saturday, to pitch the tents. That will leave ten boys on a tent.

The Waterloo troop of 120 Scouts are doing a unique stunt, treking all the way from Waterloo to the Fair grounds. They will arrive there Monday afternoon, having left Waterloo yesterday. They are in charge of G. W. Gibbs, of Hespeler, and they will camp at Mimico on Sunday, where many Torontonians plan to visit them.

A new feature will be a troop of mounted Scouts. Mr. Hammond having suggested that farmer boys, who could secure horses, form such a troop, and it is hoped to make it an efficient unit of the force.

LOST HALF A DAY TRYING TO GET MR. BURNHAM'S $25

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—I saw an advertisement in the paper yesterday saying that Mr. Burnham would pay $25.00 for information leading to the convict ion of any person saying he had paid money corruptly. I thought I would like to get this easy money, so I went to see the man who is said to be the best criminal lowyer in town, and he told me that Mr. Burnham was a "joker." He said that it would cost me $100.00 to retain his services to try to get the $25.00 reward and that there was no means of getting a conviction for such a thing. His opinion was that Mr. Burnham had made a mistake in his law, or was putting up a stear because he said it was not a cirminal offence to say Mr. Burnham had spent money improperly for election purposes. Someone told me that a gentleman by the name of Mr. Gates had got $50 for swearing to an affidavit for Mr. Burnham, and I thought if money was going around like that I might as well get some. Now I have lost half a day trying to get that $25, which nobody on earth can get, and which is one of the biggest jokes of the campaign. If Mr. Burnham keeps all his promises like the promises of this reward, I think he had better be left at home.

One of the boys in the shop told me that Mr. Burnham was more like one of us now because some one told him that he should not carry his cane during the elect ion campaign, and I am glad to see he has quit using it, because he hopes it will get him votes.

I have been wondering ever since what the lawyer meant when he said he was a "Joker." It occurred to me that perhaps that word had two meanings.

Yours truly,
ENGLISHMAN.

ODDS AGAINST WELLS DROPPED 15 POINTS

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, AUG 23.—Because of the great showing Bombardier Wells has been making in his early training, and the evident amount of superfluous flesh the champion is carrying, the betting against Wells' chances of defeating Johnson in their fight here on September 30th, to-day dropped from 20 to 1 against to 5 to 1 against.

STOLE THE "MONA LISA"

Special Wire to The Examiner.

PARIS, AUG. 23.—Not since the Dreyfus trial has Paris been so excited about any crime as to-day, regarding the stealing of the masterpiece "Mona Lisa" from the great national collection at the Louvre. This show place is closed to-day, while detectives throng the buildings. It is thought that a woman disguised as a working woman, was the thief.

FORESTER DELEGATES COMPLAIN OF ABSENCE OF UNION JACK

"Visiting delegates have been singularly impressed," remarked one of the delegates to the High Court, Ancient Order of Foresters, to the Examiner this morning, "by the fact that during our visit to Peterborough, so far, they have seen nobody's flag displayed with the exception of that brought with us and now flying at the Collegiate Institute. At one hotel, where a large number of delegates were staying, they secured a flag and floated it, but it was taken down by the proprietor, who said it might give offence to some people."

CANADIAN PLUMS ARE BEING SOLD IN PORT HURON

FOREST, AUG. 23. — Forest fruit-growers are selling plums in Port Huron. Last Friday Ed. Gustin, a prominent fruit-grower here, drove to Sarnia with a load of plums, found the market glutted and no local buyers. A Port Huron buyer took the load at the market price. Mr. Gustin delivered the plums at the ferry dock and saw them loaded on the ferry for Port Huron. Of course the dealer had to pay the duty. There is a demand in Port Huron and Detroit for our plums but the tariff wall intervenes.

MENZIES THE MAN

Fire, Water and Light Committee Decided Last Night to Give Him a Trial as Assistant Fire Chief

STARTS AT ONCE

The Fire, Water and Light Committee met last night at the Fire Station, the principal business being the appointing of a new Assistant Chief. Mr. Bruce Menzies was awarded the position. Mr. Menzies has been a member of the Fire Brigade for some time, and is thoroughly experienced in all the branches of the work, so there is no reason to doubt that he will make good. During his time there he has been a favourite with his brother firemen and received their heartiest congratulations last night.

There were present at the meeting Ald. Morgan, chairman; Mayor Morrow, Ald. Graham, Ald. Kernegan, and Ald. Mathegal.

Applications for the position of Deputy Asst. Chief were read from the following: F. Reynolds, A. H. McBride, G. Grange, and A. Ringer.

It was moved by Mayor Morrow, and seconded by Ald. Kernegan that Bruce Menzies be appointed Asst. Deputy Chief for two months, and that he be paid the salary of Deputy Chief during that time.

It was moved by Mayor Morrow, and seconded by Ald. Kernegan, that the request of the Water Commissioner for authority to locate a hydrant on Concession street and on Victoria avenue, be referred to the chairman and Ald. Graham, with power to act.

If all were to consult our competitors as to our merits there would soon be no Moon College at 282-286 Yonge street, Toronto.

PROMINENT LAWYER DESERTS BOURASSA

Special to The Examiner:

MONTREAL, Q., AUG. 23.—It is understood that N. K. Laflamme, a prominent lawyer, who was expected to be nominated as Nationalist candidate in one of the Montreal constituencies, has deserted Bourassa and will run as Liberal in Gaspe.

CHINAMAN MURDERED

Special to The Examiner.

CHARLOTTETOWN, P.E.I., AUG. 23.—This town was greatly excited over the finding last night of the body of George Ling, a Chinaman who adopted Canadian customs and nationality here. He was apparently murdered for his money and jewelry by some Chinese Black Hand society. Ling disappeared in July. He was a prominent citizen and much respected.

GOOD POSITIONS

The Peterborough Business College is a worthy link in a chain of Seven Business Colleges, located in the cities of London, Peterborough, Welland, and the towns of Orangeville, Walkerton, Wingham, and Clinton. Owing to its high-grade work it is affiliated with the Commercial Educators' Association of Canada. It is freely admitted that owing to these connections, its students get the very best positions. Fall openings are on Aug. 28th, and Sept. 5th, but at this school each student is instructed privately at his or her own desk; students may enter any day. Many students study all at home, and others partly at home and finish at the College. As Spotton Colleges are the largest trainers in Canada, and have thirty years' experience, it would be well for young people to get their training there. Last year Mr. Spotton trained over 1,200 young people and placed them in good positions. What he has done for thousands of others he can do for you.

STEAMER HAD TROUBLES

The Lindsay Post says:

Last night, about 8.15 the steamer Otonabee steamed up the river from Peterborough with about 250 excursionists on board. The craft had all sorts of trouble navigating the channel, and encountered all sorts of encumbrances in the channel. When in the vicinity of Horn Bros. Woolle Mills, the boat ran up on a boom of logs and had great trouble in extreating itself. A brave attempt was made to reach the town wharf, but this was no accomplished until between ten and eleven o'clock.

The passengers disembraked on the west side of the river, this side of Horn's mill.

This morning a number took in the trip to Orillia, and will return home by train.

ENTHUSIASTIC GATHERING AT MAY'S SCHOOL HOUSE ENDORSES RECIPROCITY

Mr. Stratton's Meeting in North Monaghan Last Night Was a Great Success—"The Larger Market" Popular With People of That Section of the Country, Judging by Reception Given the Candidate.

There are maps of Canada, done by the children, on the walls of May's schoolhouse Before Mr. Stratton had done talking last night, the audience had prety well got it into its head that this map is to be enormously extended, so far as the area of free food products is concerned.

Also, there are pictures of King Edward and Queen Victoria and Windsor Castle on the walls, the outward and visible signs of that loyalty which Mr. Borden so much questions. Mr. Borden will be pleased to hear that the audience of farmers, market gardeners and workingmen in May's schoolhouse, were just as loyal after listening to the cheerful tidings of reciprocity in natural products with the United States, as they were before. In fact, they seemed even more loyal, for they felt more contented at the prospect of good prices, good markets, good wages, cheaper living and deliverance from the bondage of the food monopolies which have been making Canada pay through the nose. At all events, there was nothing lacking of vigour and patriotism in the cheers for the King and Mr. Stratton, which closed the meeting. And the Union Jack over the door looked on and smiled as per usual.

Chairman Stevens Speaks Out.

Chairman William Stevens, British born by the way, said reciprocity thoroughly suited him, from a workingman's standpoint. He considered the annexation bogey as absurd as one farmer who deals with another saying, "I'm afraid you're going to annex my farm to yours."

Chairman Stevens declared himself a Conservative, by conserving everything that was right, and a Reformer in reforming everything that was wrong. "I believe that reciprocity is right, and I am with the Liberals and Mr. Stratton. But if I believed for a minute that the Liberal government ever thought of annexation, I'd swing right over to the other side."

"Don't lose sight of the fact," continued Chairman Stevens, "that reciprocity is as good for you and me as it is for the farmer. We all have our share in the round of benefits. Some weak-kneed workingman said otherwise, but it took the wind out of their sails when they saw the manufacturers getting into line. Mr. Stratton has the best manufacturers and the best merchants in Peterborough behind him in this contest. And he can count on the farmer and the workingman because they know what side their bread is buttered on."

Mr. Jacob Dawson likened Canada to a cake, the middle of which was being eaten out by the food monopolies, leaving the crust to the average consumer. He was in favour of reciprocity for why? Because the farmer and the workingman were about to be given their rightful share of the cake.

The Simple, Strong Case For Reciprocity.

Into a mixed audience of farmers, market gardeners and workingmen, such as there was at May's schoolhouse, Mr. Burnham and his group would probably throw the general statement that reciprocity was poison for everybody. This shows their lack of ideas, but it is also useful because it prevents them getting their wires crossed.

The arguments that fit everybody are simple enough, and strong enough. No bewildering display of figures, intended to make the worse appear the better reason should be allowed to distract the mind from the outstanding facts that better prices for the farmer's surplus abroad means easier prices for the consumer at home; that Canadian food monopolies will tend to disappear when the farmer's market is made too wide for any food trust to swing; that the farmer's prosperity is everybody else's prosperity; that the constant interchange of seasons over a continent, including all the climates, will lend cheapness and variety to the workingman's table; that millions of dollars of duty being taken off food by both countries, prices are bound to respond and the cost of living be favourably affected.

"There isn't a thing," said Mr. Stratton, "from the milk in your coffee to the bit of cheese you top off your dinner with, that shouldn't be cheaper under the new conditions. The whole arrangement between the two countries, is grounded on the belief that the wider market will benefit both producer and consumer, by cutting out many of the unnecessary profits collected in between."

"I find reciprocity a popular subject," said Mr. Stratton. "All I want is that every workingman be allowed to record his vote according to his own conscience. I expect nothing less than one of my old time majorities."

A Friend of the Workingmen.

Outside of the wages that have been paid, and expenditures that have been made on government works, which he was instrumental in getting for Peterborough, the candidate owned up to spending a lot of money on his own account in the way of investing in industries that would give the workingman steady employment and good wages.

"Along with others, I have taken stock in nearly every manufacturing industry that has been started in Peterborough. A good part of my capital has been placed in things that meant work and wages to the workingman. Some people in Peterborough made money in their investments and some lost. But make or lose, all did their best for the workingman. I'll wager that Mr. J. H. Burnham never risked a cent giving a workingman a day's work."

Some Underground Work.

The underground arguments of the Burnhamites crop up every once in a while. Mr. Stratton took one by the horns at last night's meeting. It may be called 'The Story of The Bishop's Ring.' Sounds like something of Conan Doyle's, doesn't it? But it isn't nearly as good fiction. It's just an ordinary, clumsy, blundering lie.

"I was told in North Monaghan last night," said Mr. Stratton, "that a man named Murphy was going round saying that I had attended Bishop O'Connor's reception and kissed the Bishop's ring. What happened was this. The bishop was holding a recept ion. It was the jubilee of fifty years' honorable service to his church and his people. He is the spiritual head of one third of the people in the riding, and as the representative in parliament of his third of the people, as well as of the other religious denominations, I went and congratulated him, just as I congratulated the Anglican bishop when the chimes were being dedicated. I did no less and no more than a public man, who represents all the people, should do. In the course of my life, I have given my mite to all denominations in Peterborough, not because they were Baptists or Presbyterians or Methodists or Roman Catholics, but because they were all working together for good. Yes, I congratulated the Bishop, as I would congratulate any man with a long tale of years and good deeds behind him. But I did not kiss the Bishop's ring, and what's more, he didn't expect me to."

An Apple Story.

Among other things, Mr. Stratton dwelt on, was apples. One apple too many robbed Adam of Eden, but in spite of that, Solomon, the wisest man in the world, was so fond of apples, that he asked to be comforted with them when he was sick of everything else. Which shows the widely distributed appetite for apples.

"But we're not in danger of getting too many apples the way things are just now," said Mr. Stratton, "with the Ontario apple output in the hands of a few commission houses in Montreal and Toronto. They take only the best fruit, and that for export or to keep until Christmas time, when they let it out at amazing prices to the rich apple-hungry consumer, who can afford to pay $5 and $6 a barrel and over. Lots of perfectly good fruit, with which ordinary people would be perfectly well satisfied, is not marketed, because the commission merchant wants only the choice market. Millions of bushels rot on the ground. Reciprocity, which gives the fruit and vegetable grower the near and dear United States market for his choice products, gives him also an increasing home market, and frees him from the bondage of the commission houses in Montreal and Toronto.

"There's no fear of our Ontario apples suffering from competition with the United States ones. They are the best apples in the world. British Columbia apples are all show and colour, but they haven't the flavour and fibre of the Ontario apples, because they haven't the climate to make flavour and fibre. The only trouble about Ontario apples is that there isn't enough of them. Everybody wants to "go to" them when they are in season. Reciprocity should mean better care for old, neglected orchards, and the planting of new ones, to meet the increased demand. The fruit deputation that went to Ottawa to oppose reciprocity, saw the light afterwards and changed its mind individually, as their confessions in the newspapers prove. They became sensible as soon as they said, "Get thee behind me Satan" to the canner.

What Mr. Stratton impressed upon the market gardener, was the advantage reciprocity gave him in providing a number of near markets, which his fruit and vegetables could reach fresh on the same day or the next morning.

Reciprocity And the Cheese Barons.

Who soaks up the difference between the 10 and 11 cents the cheese factory gets from the Cheese Board, and the twenty-two cents a pound it costs the consumer? R .R. Hall wanted to know. We haven't been selling it to the United States and we haven't been buying it from the United States. A Chinese rate of 6 cents a pound has been too much to overcome. Take a few bricks off the top of that wall and it will be better for cheese producers and cheese eaters. The cheese barons at Montreal, Halifax and St. John will not be able to control the market and the price, and everybody should get a fairer deal.

Mr. Hall reminded his hearers of the general depression in Peterborough some nineteen or twenty years ago, before the tariff was revised downward, and trade relations were modified.

"You older men can remember the time well. The Canadian General Electric was running on a half and a third time, and the men were walking the street. And it was the same way with the Auburn Woollen Mills and the Peterborough Lock Co. and the William Hamilton Manufacturing Co. and the others. There's no money in that."

"As for reciprocity," continued Mr. Hall, "who ever heard of a removed food tax increasing the cost of living? Reciprocity is not politics; it's business. There is no turning of coats in this election, for you don't turn your coat when you are true to yourself and vote for your own interests. The only people who can be accused of turning coats are the Conservatives in the House of Commons who praised the agreement quite heartily when Mr. Fielding explained it, but backpedalled twenty-four hours later when they realised how it was going to catch on with the people."

FORMER LINDSAY MAN DEAD

Special to The Examiner.

HUNTSVILLE, ONT., AUG. 23. — Over on Fairy Lake, at the summer home of Mr. F. E. O'Flynn, K.C., the well known Belleville lawyer, there died this morning, Ford Williamson, son of J. A. Williamson, of Lindsay, a young man well known in banking circles, and at the time of his death was a manager of the Dominion Bank at Hespeler. The young man's health was broken for some time. He was married to Miss O'Flynn about three years ago. Burial takes place in Belleville on Thursday.

STRIKE SITUATION BRIGHTER NOW

LONDON, ENG., AUG. 23. 4 p.m.— Prospects for warding off the threatened second edition of the big strike are better now. Word was received from Liverpool that the president of the tramways has this afternoon reinstated some of the men mentioned. Hower, labour manifestos ordering the men not to return to work, have not yet been withdrawn, and traffic is still practically tied up all over England.

Canal Traffic Decreased

OTTAWA, AUG. 23.—Traffic on the Canadian canals to the end of July shows seventeen million tons, as against twenty-one million tons last year. A decrease of four millions, largely accounted for by the Soo canal not handling as much as last year.

Election Will Cost $750,000

OTTAWA, ONT., AUG. 23.— There will be fourteen thousand polling places in connection with the coming general elections, and it will cost the country three quarters of a million dollars to take the vote of the people.

FOR ECZEMA

A Treatment That is Guaranteed to Give Relief

Eczema is parasitic in nature. It is said to be a contagious disease. Until the parasite or germ hidden in the skin is completely destroyed and removed, eczema cannot be cured. Fully one-third of all skin disease is in the form of eczema. It affects persons of all ages and classes. It is very prevalent among people between the ages of 30 and 40.

We unhesitatingly guarantee to return every cent paid us for Rexall Eczema Ointment in every case where it fails to give entire satisfaction. It possesses remarkable cleansing, antiseptic, healing and curative power. Its great value is very pronounced in the treatment of eczema, whether of the dry, scaly sort or of the weeping type, where there is a constant flow of an ill-smelling secretion, or of the other intermediary forms, such as ring-worm, acne, pimples, blotches, and discolorations.

Rexall Eczema Ointment is very useful in treating ulcers, sores, wounds, insect bites, nettle rash and hives. It is particularly recommended for the treatment of children who are tormented with itching, burning, and disfiguring skin disease. We urge you to try a box at our risk. Your money waits you if you are not satisfied with the treatment. Two sizes, 50c and $1.00. Remember, you can only obtain Rexall Eczema Ointment in this town at our store—The Rexall Store—McDermid and Jury.

"REAL MEAN."

It was "real mean" of Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Lands and Mines in Sir James Whitney's Cabinet to allow his Chief to put his foot into it. Mr. Cochrane is managing the Conservative campaign for Ontario, and as little as he could have done in loyalty to his "boss," was to have told Sir James that the American newspaper "opinions" he quoted to the people of Dundas were made in the United States, on the order of Mr. Cochrane, who is managing the Ontario campaign, and paid for out of the Conservative anti-reciprocity campaign fund.

If Sir James used these bogus, anti-patriotic Yankee-made opinions, in ignorance of their inspiration and origin, he is to be pitied. He is still more to be pitied if, knowing their source, and villainous character, he had the effrontery to use the fruit of the bribed brains of Yankee irresponsibles, and paid for out of the party corruption fund, to fool the honest electors of Canada.

CAMPAIGN OF MISREPRESENTATION.

The opponents of reciprocity, deal with the question in a way to show that they are not so much concerned with its merits as a trade arrangement, as they are with the party capital that can be made out of it. The merits of the question are a legitimate subject of argument, but misrepresentation and straight lying are the staple of the "argument" employed. We might expect such tactics on the part of unprincipled private individuals, but when a great party puts its seal of approval upon infamously false literature, the matter takes a different form and reflects upon the honour of the leaders of the Conservative party, and does no help to cause that has to be bolstered up by such dishonest practices.

A pamphlet or fly sheet is being circulated in the interests of Conservative candidates, which declares that the reciprocity agreement, if adopted, will be a fixture for twenty-one years, and must remain for that time.

This is entirely false. The agreement, if adopted, can be altered by the Canadian government at any time, and can also be withdrawn from at any time, if found undesirable. It is no hard and fast treaty; it is not unchangeable, like the laws of the Medes and Persians. Here is sometnmg that meets many of the lies told in party interests about the reciprocity agreement. Here is a paragraph from the agreement, which says:

".....It is distinctly understood that we do not attempt to bind for the future the action of the United States Congress or the Parliament of Canada, but that EACH of these authorities SHALL BE ABSOLUTELY FREE TO MAKE ANY CHANGE OF TARIFF POLICY or of any other matter covered by the present arrangement that may be deemed expedient. We look for the continuance of the arrangement, not because either party is bound to it, but because of our conviction that the more liberal trade policy thus to be established will be viewed by the people of the United States and Canada as one which will strengthen the friendly relations now happily prevailing and promote the commercial interests of both countries."

The above stipulation was made at the instance of the Canadian negotiators, Messrs. Fielding and Paterson, and assented to by the authorities of the United States. The statement scattered broadcast, to the effect that the reciprocity agreement will be a fixture for twenty-one years is a deliberate falsehood, purposely made to deceive the electors and promote the success of Conservative candidates.

A party that will thus, in cold blood and of malice aforethought, try to deceive and mislead the electors on one point, will deceive and mislead on other points. Beware of false statements. Read the reciprocity agreement and form your own opinion—do your own thinking.

MR. BORDEN'S MISTAKE.

In the course of his address at Harriston, Leader Borden, replying to a question from the audience, declared that Sir John A. Macdonald, in 1891, called reciprocity 'veiled treason." The reply was clever, rather than candid. It was more suited to an ordinary politician, passed for a ready reply, than to a serious-minded statesman familiar with the facts of history and seeking to impress his hearers with evidence of his fitness to take his place as Premier of this Dominion.

Mr. Borden, by making such a reply, was doing a grave injustice to himself and to his distinguished predecessors in the leadership of the Conservative party. Sir John A. Macdonald went to the country in 1891, seeking a mandate from the people of Canada to enter into a reciprocity treaty with the United States. In his election address issued in that year he defined the Conservative position in regard to reciprocity in these words:

"We said to the Americans: We are perfectly willing to trade with you on equal terms. We are desirous of having a fair reciprocity treaty; but we will not consent to open our markets to you while yours remain closed to us."

Was that veiled treason?

The Empire newspaper, then the chief organ of the Conservative party, commenting editorially on Sir John A. Macdonald's proposals in regard to reciprocity in 1891, used these words:

"There is no reason why a fair and honourable reciprocity, advantageous to both Canada and the United States, should not be the issue of such a discussion as is proposed."

Was that veiled treason?

Sir John Thompson, who was then Minister of Justice in Sir John A's. cabinet, and afterwards his successor as leader of the Conservative party issued an address to his constituents at the same time, in which he used these words:

"A fair measure of reciprocity is what we desire, and we have no doubt it can be obtained without undue sacrifice."

Was that veiled treason?

Did Mr. Borden want his hearers to believe that Sir John A. Macdonald and the other Conservative leaders who advocated reciprocity in 1891, and who went to the country seeking a mandate from the people to enter into a reciprocity treaty with, were harbouring veiled treason? Surely not. But just as surely, Mr. Borden's reply was as misleading as it was unfortunate, and unworthy of a high-minded, sincere statesman. Sir John A. Macdonald, as every student of the history of Canadian politics is well aware, was opposed to unrestricted reciprocity or commercial union in 1891, and may have used the words "veiled treason" in describing such a policy, for he was not always assiduously careful in the choice of his wirds in the heat was opposed to unrestricted reciprocmeasure of reciprocity as that which is now proposed, restricted to natural products and alike honourable and advntageous to both countries, would have had his hearty approval.

Mr. Borden's juggling with the word "reciprocity" was unworthy of a man of his character and position.

POOR FORGOTTEN SIR JOHN.

Is Sir John Macdonald forgotten? He used to be the idol and the darling of the Conservative party, and justly held in respect by all Canadians for his great services to Canada. He was a power and inspiration in every election the Conservatives have participated in since his death. Now we never hear his name. As the hands of his old worshippers Sir John is reduced to the state of the slaughtered Caesar—as expressed in the adapted lines of Shakspere:

"But yesterday the word of Sir John might
Have stood against the world; now he lies there,
And none so poor to do him reverence."

Worse than that; the Conservative brawlers of lip loyalty the flag flappers—for party profit—practically denounce Sir John as a traitor and a foe to British connection.

Sir James Whitney megaphones his indignation against reciprocity by declaring that it is the highway to annexation. Sir John Macdonald favoured reciprocity and, therefore, he was a traitor, a foe to British connection and a friend to annexation.

Sir John was the father of the "National Policy" and he made reciprocity a permanent plank in his platform.

This is the standing offer of the United States, which Sir John A. Macdonald put into the National Policy tariff, which was enacted in 1879:

Any or all of the following articles, that is to say: Animals of any kind, green fruit, hay, straw, bran, seeds of all kinds; vegetables, including potatoes and other roots; plants, trees and shrubs; coal and coke, salt, hops, wheat, peas and beans, barley, rye, oats, Indian corn, buckwheat, and all other grains; flour of wheat and flour of rye, Indian meal and oatmeal, and flour meal of any other grain, butter, tallow, meats, fresh, salt or smoked, and lumber may be imported into Canada free of duty or at a less rate of duty than is provided by this act upon the proclamation of the Governor-in-Council, which may be issued whenever it appears to his satisfaction that similar articles from Canada may be imported into the United Stites free of duty or at a rate of duty not exceeding that payable on the same under such proclamation when imported into Canada."

This standing offer remained on the statute book during the whole thirteen years of Sir John's premiership. It was in existence when he died.

What utter out-and-out, complete, disgusting rubbish this talk of reciprocity promoting annexation or separation from the Empire is.

If Sir John, in looking down, as he said he hoped to do, from a higher and happier sphere, to see his lifetime work in Canada, he would be pained and disgusted, if such sentiment can find place in Paradise, to see how his degenrate followers are making ducks and drakes of his work, and denying the principles he preached in his day. But he will have one consolation; he will never be bothered with them there, if justice insists on exclusion of those who are false to the memory of the man and the principles he preached and practised.

FAIR PLAY TO BOTH.

The manufacturing interests who place themselves in opposition to the reciprocity agreement, supply a puzzle that is hard to understand. Why should they oppose the agreement? The agreement deals almost exclusively with farm products, and touches manufactured products so lightly as to be hardly worth considering.

What is the ground of opposition? It certainly cannot be fear of the injury that will come to manufacturers by the trifling reduction of duty of 2 1-2 per cent. upon a few articles, chiefly farm implements.

The manufacturing interests know that the Liberal government does not wish to injure manufacturing industries.

In negotiating the agreement, Mr. Fielding flatly refused — "turned down"—the proposal of the United States, that there should be reciprocity in manufactured articles. Mr. Fielding said in effect, "We will agree to reciprocity in farm products, because the Canadian farmer, can compete successfully with those of the United States. But the United States manufacturers are better organised than Canadian manufacturers, and we shan't talk of reciprocity on manufacured articles at all."

It is preposterous to say, or even think, that the Liberal government, which has done so much to help manufacturers, should think for a moment of undoing what they have so well done.

Out of the 376 million dollars' worth of goods imported into Canada for consumption last year, the large amount of 148 1-2 millions of dollars came in duty free, and of the goods imported free of duty, nearly 70 per cent. came from the United States.

A very large proportion of the free goods imported from the United States was raw material, intended for the use of the manufacturers of Canada. The Liberal government, in the first year of office, at the first opportunity, reduced, or removed, the duty, on a large list of raw materials used in manufactures. They did this to help the manufacturer, and they did help him. Never in the history of Canada, have the manufacturers of Canada enjoyed such prosparity and their employees such constant employment and high wages, as they both have done under the Liberal tariff, adjusted in their interests, as in the fourteen years since the Fielding tariff was enacted.

Is it probable, that the Liberal government, which has shown its interest in the manufacturers and have done all it is possible to do by a tariff to help them, would seek to undo it by arranging a reciprocity agreement, which effects only farm products, that would hurt manufacturers? It did not heed the assurance of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, made in parliament, "WE HAVE NOT HURT THE MANUFACTURER, AND WE WILL NOT HURT HIM," to furnish evidence that the interests of manufacturers were safe in the hands of the Liberal government.. Neither the manufacturer nor his employees have the slightest reason to fear that their interests wil lbe injured by reciprocity.

It seems unreasonable that these manufacturers who are out against reciprocity, who, in the shape of reduction in duty on raw material or otherwise, have benefitted by the free admission of United States raw material, should consider it grossly disloyal and empire-smashing for farmers to ship barley and dairy products to the United States free of duty. These same manufacturers think it is a proper thing—and it is a proper thing—to go to the United States for anything they want in the shape of raw material and bring it in free of duty, and they should, in fairness, not grudge a free market to the farmer. Fair play is bonnie play.

Conservative Anti-Reciprocity Arguments Made In United States

The Paid Tool of United States Trusts in Pay of the Conservative Campaigners in This Election —"It's Just Low Politics."

"This annexation stuff your Canadian papers are reproducing from the anti-reciprocity organs on our side is nothing but a clumsy 'plant,'" said one of the American editors who have been touring through western Canada.

The party was composed of 170 American newspaper writers. They went through the west as far as the Rockies and up to Edmonton. There were among them stand-pat Republicans, insurgent Republicans, Democrats of various types, and Independents. For many of them this was their first close touch with Canadian politics.

"It opened the eyes and illumined the minds of some of our party," said Hon. J. Z. Lentz of Columbus, Ohio, "when we found the Big Interests in Canada putting up the very same arguments against reciprocity that our own Big Interests had put up in the United States Our Republican editors lost a good deal of their enthusiasm for our home food-monopolies when they saw similar monopolies in Canada opposing free food. They all talk on both sides about losing their markets if the tariff is taken off. Most of our party began to see how the consumer would benefit if some of the profits of these monopolists went to the common people."

One of the editors said that few of the party knew much about the situation in Canada and were not interested until they found Canadian newspapers featuring articles from American journals advocating annexation. Then they put their heads together and sized up the case.

"Why, every one of those American papers from which this annexation stuff is taken is owned or controlled by the Big Interests that fought the reciprocity agreement in Congress. On our side they used the economic argument and failed. They yelled about Canadian competition in natural products killing their markets. The lumber men yelled, the pulp and paper men yelled. The farmers yelled loudest of all. They said they couldn't live if your Canadian wheat and barley and lumber and pulp came in free. But I guess they'll worry along.

"But now these fellows have changed their tune. Beaten at home, they are fighting reciprocity in Canada. A dozen newspapers, extending from Detroit to San Francisco, are putting up this annexation talk and sending marked copies to Conservative newspapers in Canada. Some of the stuff may be written in Canada and paid for in American newspapers. It was Bismarck's game when he had insulting anti-German articles published in French journals in order to have them reprinted in Germany to rouse the Germans to war with the French.

"This American annexation talk is just low politics," said Mr. Lentz, "and Canadians will have sense enough not to be caught with it. There is not one responsible public man of standing known to any of the 170 journalists in our party who either favours or desires the annexation of Canada. We have more territory now than we have succeeded in governing perfectly. I had no interest in your reciprocity campaign, but finding how the Big Interests in both countries are fighting, I hope Canada will carry it with a decisive majority. But this annexation talk is a 'plant' anyhow."

HOW CONSUMERS WILL BENEFIT BY RECIPROCITY

Every Class of Consumer in the Country Will Benefit From Agreement

If reciprocity is approved by the Canadian electorate all classes of consumers will derive more or less benefit from the reduction in the tariff on certain articles imported from the United States for general consumption.

Included in the list of articles on which a reduction or abolition of duty is to take place, are the following:

Oysters, from 10c per gallon to free list.
Canned lobsters, from 30 per cent. to free list.
Salt in barrels or bags, 7 1-2c per 100 lbs. to free list.
Bacon and hams, 2c per lb., to 1 1-4c.
Canned meats and poultry, 27 1-2 per cent. to 20 per cent.
Lard, 2c per lb. to 1 1-4c.
Canned corn, beans, tomatoes, and other vegetables, 1 1-2c per lb to 1 1-4c.
Prepared cereal foods, 25 per cent. to 17 1-2 per cent.
Biscuits, wafers and cakes, 27 1-2 per cent. to 25 per cent.
Pickles, sauces, and catsup, 35 per cent. to 33 1-3 per cent.
Clocks and watches, 30 per cent. to 27 1-2 per cent.
Cement, 12 1-2 per 100 lbs. to 11c.
Condensed milk, 3 1-4c per lb. to 2c.

NO HIT GAMES ARE FEW AND FAR BETWEEN SOME TWIRLING HEROES

NEW YORK, AUG. 21.—"A no-hit game!" The clamour of the crowd-the hero-worshippers of their idol the star pitcher of the "hum team," is ever thus. Halt a dozen, two, even one hitless inning, and the fans are up on their toes shouting for columns of cyphers in the "H" part of the invaders box score.

And do these same fans realize the magnitude of the task they are demanding and what it means to the pitcher? Seldom. It means fame and glory to the pitcher—that his name will go down in baseball history as one of the greatest o fthem all. It means that he will be one among the other 26 who have accomplished the feat since the advent of the 20th century—an average of less than one a year in each of the big leagues. And consider the "great" pitchers who have never turned the trick.

When Joe Wood twirled a no-hit game against the St. Louis Browns in the last series between the Boston Red Sox and the cellar champions of the American League, many passed over the performance with the remark: "Oh, there's nothing wonderful in doing that to the Browns." These people are mistaken. There is something wonderful in doing that to the Browns, or any other team for that matter. Every year the champion clubs have met the tail-enders. The best that have opposed the worst some 20 odd times each season. And yet not once a year, on the average, has the under-dog failed to register a hit.

Wood's no-hit game at St. Louis broke a tie between the two leagues that has existed since May 10 of last year, when "Chief" Bender of the Athletics pitched hitless ball against Cleveland. Wood's performance made the count during the last 12 seasons 11 for the Americans as against 10 for the Nationals.

Hahn, of Cincinnati, was the first pitcher of the century to be credited with a no-hit game. He did it against the Phillies on July 12, 1900. Next year came Christy Mathewson, then in his "teens," who retired the St. Louis Cardinals without a single. No National Leaguer achieved the feat in 1902, but in 1903, Chick Fraser of Philadelphia, made the Cubs victims of a perfect exhibition of slabcraft. Mathewson repeated his performance in in 1905, and 1906 saw Billy Lush, of Philadelphia, and Mal Eason of Brooklyn, enter the honour list. In 1907 Fred Pfeffer, of Boston, and Maddox, of Pittsburg, were the heroes. George Wiltse, of the New York Giants, held the Phillies hitless for 10 innings on July 4, 1908, and Nap Rucker, of Brooklyn, was the performer in the last no-hit game pitched in the National League when he downed the then fairly strong Boston team on Sept. 5, 1908.

Jimmy Callahan, of the Chicago White Sox, was the first no-hit pitcher of the American League. The man who is now hailed as the greatest "come back" in baseball history was then in his prime, and he did the deed against the Detroit Tigers in 1908. Two years later, grand old Cy Young duplicated the performance and brought the Boston Red Sox into the limelight. Connie Mack's Athletics were the vanquished in this game. After Jesse Tannehill, also of the Red Sox, and Henley, of Philadelphia, had turned the trick in 1904 and 1905, Young came back in 1908 and repeated. Addie Joss, of Cleveland, (now dead), shared the 1908 honours with Young, and again pitched a no-hit game in 1910. That game year Bender, of Philadelphia, hung up his record performance. It was the last no-hit game until Wood's recent great exhibition.

Among these 21 stars, only three have achieved a no-hit game more than once in their careers. They are Mathewson, Young and Joss, each of whom uncorked two apotleas performances.

Several times this year pitchers have done faultless work for a number of innings, so that it seemed more than likely that a no-hit game would result. Exactly a month ago George "Hooks" Wiltse, of the New York Giants, held the St. Louis Cardinals hitless for six innings. Then Roger Bresnahan came to bat and cracked out a two-bagger that spoiled an otherwise perfect performance. A day later Nap Rucker of Brooklyn, probably the greatest southpaw in the game to-day, opposed Cincinnati. For eight innings he kept the hard-hitting red-legs from counting a safe clout. In the ninth, gigantic Larry McLean was first at bat. He struck out. So did Pitcher Frank Smith. Bobby Beacher's turn came next and the Dodger fans were preparing to score a no-hit game for Rucker. Beacher was all that stood between him and the coveted honour. What did Beacher do? He knocked a slow one over second base that the sluggish Brooklyn infielders could not reach, and Rucker's remarkable work was set at naught so far as getting a no-hit game was concerned.

It so happens that all no-hit games in the big leagues have been shut-outs. That may seem like a waste of words—the average fan always considers a no-hit game a shut-out as a matter of course. Far be it from such. Several instances in the minor leagues can be cited where a team failed to get a single hit, but yet won the game. Errors, bases on balls and the like, did the work, although the opposing flinger was not hit safely during the entire game. What the above-mentioned fan is really thinking of, although he may not know it, is a no-man-to-first-base game.

While the no-hit game is surely a rare enough bird, the no-man-to-first-base game is almost unheard of. Fact is, there have been only two such performances in the history of modern baseball. And the authors of them also have another no-hit game to their credit—just to show it was no fluke. They are Cy Young, the "grand old man of baseball"—long may he live—and Addie Joss—long live his memory. Old Cy officiated on the mound for the Red Sox on May 5, 1904, when the Philadelphia Athletics trudged through nine innings without one of their number reaching a base. On October 12, 1908, Joss, pitching for Cleveland, suffered not one White Sox to arrive at the initial sack.

To appreciate the herculean efforts necessary to accomplish what these two heroes of the diamond did, contemplate that there are 27 consecutive times that the batter must be prevented from reaching first base, and hat it is possible for him to do so by any one of nine different ways:

A hit.
A base on balls.
An error.
A third strike missed by the catcher, whose throw to the first baseman does not beat the runner to the bag.
Batter hit by pitched ball.
Batter interfered with by catcher.
Fiar ball hitting an umpire.
First baseman blocking the baseline when he has not the ball in his hands, or the pitcher doing the same.
Any pitcher using his cap, glove, protector or other part of his uniform to assist in catching a ball when the glove, cap, etc., is detached or not in its proper place.

Is it any wonder, then, there are only two no-man-to-the-first-base games in history? Long live Cy Young; long live the memory of Addie Joss, answer we.

JOHNSTON'S STORY OF THE GREAT CHAMPIONSHIP CONTEST

By John Arthur ("Jack") Johnson
World's Heavyweight Champion

I had better hurry my readers along to my meeting with James J. Jeffries, which I think I may say was the most important boxing contest that has ever taken place in the history of the ring.

Ton see, it's this way. So many utterly untrue stories have appeared in the newspapers to the effect that the match was an arranged affair, and so on and so forth, that I should just like to correct these false reports.

So here goes! First and foremost, let me say that the match was a thoroughly genuine affair. We were both out to win at all costs, and anyone who still persists in the delusion that "Mr. Arrangement" played even the slightest part in the biggest fistic encounter on record is hugging a delusion worse than a nightmare.

For the winner a fortune was waiting, and that fact alone, in these mercenary days, should have gone far to cleanse the affair of any underhand suggestions. But it didn't, as I well know, for even to-day there are boxing experts who would seem to doubt the genuineness of the big show at Reno.

But these people, I think, must be in a trance, for no two men were keener on winning that fight than were respectively James J. Jeffries and your humble servant, John Arthur Johnson, as they were introduced to the huge crowd, stripped, and trained to the minute for the fray, on one of the most sweltering days I can ever recall.

JEFF WAS CERTAIN OF VICTORY

You see, Jeffries had hitherto always side-stepped me, and when at last he did consent to meet me every thinking man should have realised that this concession on his part must have meant two things—firstly, that he was dead sure of winning, and, secondly, that he was out to fight on the level every inch of the way.

A man with an unbeaten record does not emerge from retirement unless he is personally convinced that, barring accidents, his unbeaten record will still continue; so right here let me pledge my word that the Johnson-Jeffries match was as straight a fight as has ever been contested since boxing became recognised as one of the finest sports in the world.

Eight years before the contest—in 1902, to be accurate—Jeffries, although refusing to meet me himself, nevertheless formed the idea that he might make his brother Jack his successor to the championship in the ring, and, accordingly, I was matched with Master Jack, who proved dead "easy," as after four pretty brisk rounds, I put him to sleep in the fifth.

At the time it was thought that big James would seek revenge, but he did not do so, for he never said a word about fighting me,-but drew the colour line harder than ever. So that, in one way and another, you can see that public interest in the meeting between us had been pretty well worked up for years by force of circumstances—and Jeffries' refusal to tackle me.

HOW BATTLE WAS WAGED

And now to the actual match itself.

The fight went pretty much as I figured it would. Jeffries feinted a bit, and then tried the clinching game. I was steady, and we did a lot of pulling about, landing only a few punches in the first round. Jeffries crouched and let out at range in the second; but I dodged him, and got home left and right, and we had another clinch. We wrestled a bit, and I was feeling very comfortable.

Mr. Jeffries was pushing me about, but I was feeling quite fresh and going easily, able to hit him when I wanted to, while, though he was looking happy and easy, I could tell that he wasn't going to beat me for strength. He was fighting the way I wanted him to, so I didn't see any reason for a change. We wrestled a lot more in the third. I could tell that things were going my way. Jeffries seemed happy and easy in his mind.

But, on the other hand, Mr. James J. Corbett, who was one of Jeff's seconds, was beginning to get anxious. He had been talking at me all the time, trying to locate that cowardice of mine, I suppose; but he was telling Jeff to take it easy, which showed that he was noticing that the roughing game wasn't going to pay against me.

Jeffries started out to cut me down in the fourth, which was about the only round he did really well in. But he didn't do me very much harm, except when he opened that old cut in my mouth. He got home some hard ones on my body as well, and I went back into the ropes at times; but I was going back as he struck, so the blows didn't tell as the crowd thought they did.

He started out confidently next time, rather as though he meant trying to hit me off my feet. I didn't reckon that he would, but it was just as well to avoid risks, so I blocked his left, and let him have it from both hands, cutting his mouth, and bringing him into another clinch. I uppercut him as well, and this made him shove me about. I went quite easily, but the work and the heat tired Jeff more than it did me, and the game was suiting me.

By the way, I must tell you that throughout this fight, from the word "Go!" Corbett kept up a running fire of taunting remarks levelled at me, but that sort of stuff didn' worry your humble a little bit. I just smiled at him, and chaffed him back, and, if I may say so, I don't think Jim got much the best of the repartee contest. Once, when Jeff got a good stiff poke on the jaw, he tried to shake off the effects of the punch by jigging up and down a bit. It is an old trick, used to throw your opponent off his guard when he really has you badly stuck.

Well, Jeff, never much of a footwork artist, didn't delude me a little bit. As a matter of fact, he did his little jig steps so awkwardly that I burst out laughing, dropped my hands, stepped back as if to give Jim plenty of space, and said: "Go! That's funny! Do that again, Mistah Jeffries!" And with that I just stood there and waited to see if Jeff was going to entertain me with a few more fancy steps. A little humour introduced into a prize-fight varies the monotony of things quite a lot.

I have been told that the fact that Billy Delaney was in any other corner but his own well nigh broke Jeff's heart, for Delaney had been with him in all his other big fights. I understand that some silly little rumpus had separated the two, and Jeff, as Corbett afterwards said, couldn't get over the fact that Delaney was planning a battle against him, as he had planned against all the men whom Jeff had beaten when at the zenith of his career.

Anyway, Delaney looked over at the ring, and said: "Why don't you smile, Corbett?" Corbett was obviously stumped for an answer. He had run himself out, so to speak, and he merely blurted out: "Bill, he who laughs last laughs best." I forgot who laughed last, but I have a kind of an idea that it wasn't Corbett.

STARTED AFTER JEFF IN ELEVENTH

But to come back to the fight. Things went along pretty comfortably for me right up to the eleventh round. After that the rest does not need much telling. I went all out for Jeff from the eleventh round; but, though he was weak and badly beaten, he was still so strong that I didn't judge it wise to take any chances. He was almost blind, and badly cut about; but, though I landed all sorts of uppercuts, and hit him hard, he wouldn't drop till the fifteenth round.

I nearly had him down twice in the fourteenth, but he still staggered at me in the next, and struggled up to his feet twice after going down.

He was counted out twice, as you know, and I might have cut that last knockout out, but I didn't want to take chances in a wrangle.

Yes, I was a bit sore when they introduced Mr. Jeffries as the champion of the world, because, you see, I fancied that that title belonged to me all right. Well, it does now, you know, so I am not grumbling about it at all any more.

Rather in connection with a boxing contest seems a strange introduction, doesn't it? And yet Corbett himself said that he noticed several things which struck him as pathetic in the extreme.

"The saddest moment at the ringside," he said, after the fight, "was when I called Jim's brother Jack over to me in the eighth round, and said, "Jack, your brother's whipped. What are we going to do?"

"For heaven's sake, do something, Jim!" he answered. 'Let's do something. We can't let that black fellow knock my brother out. Make Jim lose the fight on a foul.'

"There were tears streaming down Jack's face as he implored me to think of some way out of the sure knockout that was coming."

COULDN'T EVEN HIT FOUL

"Jack," Corbett said, "Jim's as weak as a baby. He couldn't even win on a foul if he wanted to. He hasn't strength enough left a hit a foul blow, even though he might think of it.

"I shall not forget in a hurry the few minutes we spent with Jeff in his dressing room while waiting for the word to start for the ring," Corbett added later on. "We could hear the shouts of the mob and the thunders of applause that greeted the various celebrities who were being introduced.

"Jeff listened in sullen silence. We tried to keep up a running line of funny talk, but Jeff wouldn't come out of that awful trance he seemed to have fallen into.

"And then, to cap it all, that Reno brass band got into the ring and started to play, 'Just Before the Battle, Mother.'

"I never knew just what that tune meant before, and I stole a look Jeff's way. The big fellow was bent over, fumbling at his shoe laces, and I could see the big tears pattering down on the backs of his big, brawny fists. That tune, coming when it did, helped more than anything else to send Jeff into the ring in a complete state of collapse," was Jeffries' second's final comment on the preliminaries which preceded the fight.

"I should like here to remove the delusion, which would seem to be particularly prevalent, that Jeffries did not show any real gameness. This I can assure is quite a mistake, for Jeff took a lot of punishment. Don't let there be any misunderstanding on that point. Mr. Jeffries fought a square fight, and a game battle, and never at any time did I feel that it would be safe to take chances with a man of his boxing ability and great strength.

HAD TO WEAR HIM DOWN

Once or twice I thought I had him finished, but I at once found out that I was figuring things out on the wrong lines altogether, for he soon pulled round, and came at me so savagely that I was not at all certain that he would not be able to do it again. That was my reason for wearing him down and trying to get him to beat himself, so to speak, before I went in to put the finishing touches.

And now, having, I hope, cleared away a number of utterly mistaken ideas which would seem to exist with regard to the big match, I don't think there is much left for me to say about it except that it brought me a sum which many people would doubtless regard as a comfortable fortune. This I netted as my share of the purse as the winner, but I am happy to say that the little account has been considerably augmented by music hall fees, which have toted up in quite a pleasing manner, as, shortly after the memorable July 4, I started on a tour throughout the States at a salary which, I believe, is an easy record.

All the same, I don't want a single member of the public to form the conclusion that I have developed into a mere music hall showman, a drawing room boxer, for such is not the case.

I am merely fulfilling music hall engagements until someone worthy to do so steps up and hands me out a real, genuine challenge. When that comes along I shall be real glad, for, between ourselves, I've a kind of feeling that I'd like to have another go; and the sooner the opportunity comes the better shall I be pleased.

A Great Stand

The Phillies are making a brave fight to land the National League pennant, but apparently the race against odds is too much for the Quaker City ball players. Step by step the Pennsylvanians are going down behind the Cubs, Pirates, and Giants. Philadelphia felt the loss of Titus and Magee keenly, but when Manager Dooin had the misfortune of breaking his leg in St. Louis the keystone of the baseball machine was crushed. Soon after the red-topped manager was forced out of the game the Quakers showed signs of weakening. Lately it resembles the auto trying to climb a steep hill with one cylinder. For every effort upward it slides a couple of paces backward.

Everyone must admit that Dooin's accident was unavoidable. Any catcher is liable to injury. He has ten chanes of being hurt to the other player's five. But here's the point which DoDoDinD overlooked. He failed to provide Moran with a suitable substitute. Dooin's relief man, Moran, is a high-class man behind the bat. Some years back there hardly was a better backstop than the veteran Moran. He also did good work last season. The truth is this: Moran has practically seen his best days as a big league catcher. He has reached the age where years of service retard a catcher's activity behind the bat, and he is not young enough to stand the strain of catching all the games for a winning team. A championship team must have a comparatively young man behind the bat—one who can stand up under the hardest kind of work.

FAILED TO PROVIDE CATCHERS

There is not a heavier ball player to-day than the aggressive Dooin. But he fell down on the above mentioned point—that of providing aid in case of accident. Moran's work behind the bat cannot be compared to Dooin's. The latter cannot expect to depend on Moran to keep the Phillies' pitchers together and still catch the remaining games of the season. The strain is too much. Dooin might have provided better help for Moran.

The Phillies have three substitute catchers—Spencer, Madden and Carter. Spencer is an erratic catcher, and at present is not in the best of form. Madden caught a few good games, but it is not thought likely that he can stand the pace that a championship team makes. Carter is a youngster twenty-one years old, and this is his first year in big league company. Neither of these catchers is fully acquainted with the Phillies' weak and strong points.

HAS NOT GIVEN UP HOPES

PHILADELPHIA, AUG. 21.—Roger Breanahan, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, has not given up hopes of winning the National League hunting. He said:

"I feel we are going to have a successful trip. East. Our team has not been going as well as I would like, but I realize a team is bound to encounter a slump once in awhile. We have had ours, and I think things will break better for us now. The boys have been playing great ball, and I know they can continue the performance.

"We are not out of the running for the championship. While I will concede our chances are not so bright as the Cubs or Pirates, or Giants, one can never tell when a team is going to be up against it. The present Eastern trip is important, and the pennant winner is going to be determined in the next few weeks. When the season opened we were touted for the cellar position in the league, but we sprang a few surprises, and there may be some more before the curtain is lowered."

"Grand Old Man" of Baseball

"When I am no longer able to don a uniform, then only shall I retire from baseball."

The foregoing assertion was credited to Denton Tecumseh Young, familiarly known as "Old Cy," not more than two years ago.

The "Grand Old Man" of baseball has been spared the displeasure of not being able to don a uniform in order to drop out of the national pastime. The Cleveland American League club, a few days ago, unconditionally released the most liked player the game has ever known. None of the clubs in the American circuit has evinced any great desire for the veteran. This means the passing out of baseball—the major league portion of it, anyway—of the most picturesque character the game has yet produced, or is likely to produce.

Denton Tecumseh Young holds the longevity record in point of service in the major leagues. There is none to dispute this claim. For twenty-two years "Old Cy" has been the bane of batters both in the National and American leagues. In that length of time Young has pitched no less than 617 games. Of this number he won 507, for a grand average of 621. This is a record that is likely to stand the test for generations.

Christy Mathewson, the great pitcher of the Giants, is the only one who seriously threatens to approach this mark. Mathewson has been in the game for ten years and now at the zenith of his powers. Whether or not he can stand the wear and tear of the constantly progressing game for ten more years is a big question. Mathewson's number of victories is close to 300.

It was on July 19 last that Young attained his ambition. When he began his big league career in Cleveland twenty-two years ago, Young said that when he reached 500 victories he would be ready to forsake baseball. That was twenty-two years ago. Last year when Young reached the high water mark for victories he felt in such grand shape that he declared he could go on for twenty years more and sincerely hoped to hang up a record of 1000 victories. That was last year. The Cleveland management realised that Young's usefulness as a major leaguer had expired.

Young has ever declared that he would never play in the minor leagues. He is well-to-do and can retire on his income and live comfortably for the rest of his natural life.

Pneumonia at the outset of this season hastened Young's end in the big league. Cy found much trouble in rounding into shape during the training season, but he maintained that he would come around with the warm weather. Young caught cold before the season began, and for a while his condition was said to be serious. But his wonderful physique pulled him through, but not enough to permit him to pitch regularly. While there are any number of minor league clubs that would grab Young, even in his present condition, there is no possibility of Young sinking to that level.

History points that many players become major leaguers at the age of twenty, and are down and out when but twenty-four years old—a year after Young became a professional.

Young made his entree into the game which has given him world-wide honors twenty-two years ago. He began at Cleveland—his first and last love. Cleveland, then in the National League, claimed his services until 1899, when Cy began pitching for St. Louis. His stay there was short-lived, and in 1901 he joined the Boston Americans. Until 1908 Young pitched gilt-edged ball for the Red Sox, and then John I. Taylor surmised that Young's career as a big leaguer was at an end. Young was traded to Cleveland and pitched there for two years.

Every season Young's average has been better than that of his club. But three times in his long career has he failed to win more than half of the games he pitched. In 1905 and 1906 Young's averages were .486 and .382 respectively. Last year Young fell below the .500 mark, his percentage being .416. In all this time Young has issued 1,160 bases on balls, less than an average of one and one-half to a game, and he has registered 2,791 strike-outs, an average of over three to a game.

Adieu, Denton Tecumseh Young, for there never was a player like you!

That weak, tired condition will soon change by the use of Miller's Compound Iron Pills; 50 doses for 25 cents. Wm. Madill.

BASEBALL

The members of the Peterborough Baseball Club are reminded of the game on Saturday with Manager Brydie's picked team, which will be a good work-out for the game with the Grand Trunks on Laubour Day. The Railway men have beaten the Petes on two other occasions by one run each battle and Maager Quinlan's team are anxious to turn the tables on Ashton, Brown and Company. Saturday's game with the Brydieites will be a good practise and should provide the fans with a good afternoon's sport.

THE INFIELD FLY

The infield fly rule, though it has been on the books for a number of years, is still not thoroughly understood by many, so that an explanation of its workings will be in line. The rule, in plain language, as it stands in the book, is as follows: "The batsman is out if before two hands are out, while first and second or first, second and third bases are occupied, he hit a fly ball, other than a line drive, that can be handled by an infielder. In such case the umpire shall, as soon as the ball be hit, declared it an infield or outfield hit."

This is so clear that there really ought to be no confusion in interpreting it, and yet the Pittsburg club, recently protested a game under this rule. The object of the rule was to prevent the making of a cinch double play under certain conditions. With first and second bases both occupied the runners, of course, are forced to try to advance on a fair hit ball. Before the adoption of this rule it was a common practice for a smart infielder, if a pop fly was put up, to muff or trap the ball intentionally instead of catching it. This forced both runners to advance, and if the play was skilfully done a quick recovery of the ball, a good throw to third base and another to second would result in the retirement of both runners, while only the batter would be safe.

The runners in such a case as this were in a pretty pickle. If they hugged their bases a muffed or trapped ball would result in their being forced out. If they took too big a lead all the infielder had to do was to catch the ball and then double one or both of them up before they could get back to their bases. This looked like an unfair burden to put on the side at bat, so the present rule was devised to prevent a double play under such conditions.

Now as soon as the batter has lifted a fly the umpire is required to decide promptly whether it can be handled by an infielder. If it can, he shouts, "You are out," to the batter, and it then makes no difference whether the ball is muffed or allowed to fall to the ground untouched. Therefore no double play is possible if the runners hold their bases and do not take too long a lead.

This rule does not operate when first base only is occupied, because in that case a double play is impossible if the batter does his duty by running to first as fast as he can. If the fly is muffed it is possible to force the runner at second, but there is never time for a double play unless the batter loafs, which is his own lookout.

INSANE PREACHER

FRESNO, ANG. 19.—The Rev. Dan L. Potts, pastor of the Baptist Church at Fowler, ten miles south of this city, while insane, gave deputies from the sheriff's office an exciting chase over a forty-acre field before they could capture him.

Neighbors sent word to this city that Potts was acting very queerly on the streets of Fowler and that he should be apprehended. He would cry out that he was blinded by a white light and would not let anyone come near him.

When found by the officers he was carrying a suit case and two coats under his arm. He ran from them, jumped a fence in a field, and while crossing it tried to kick a rabbit out of his way.

He then plunged into the Fowler switch canal, from which he was rescued with difficulty.

Potts's crime is said to have resulted from his bride of a few months running away with another man.

GRAND DEMONSTRATION BY FIRE DEPARTMENT

Fire Brigade Turn Out Full Strength and Give Exhibition of Their Skill in Handling Fire Apparatus---Was Appreciated by Large Crowd That Was Present.

A demonstration by the Fire Department was the outstanding feature of the day's attractions, which was provided for the entertainment of the visiting delegates of the High Court, Ancient Order of Foresters.

The brigade turned out in full strength with the following equipment: Two hose wagons, one hook and ladder truck, one engine and the chief's buggy. They made an imposing spectacle as they dashed up Central Park, which was the scene of the imaginary conflict with the flames.

With wonderful precision the men went through the various drills. Four lines of hose were laid and the water was used freely. After the hose drill a short ladder practice was indulged in.

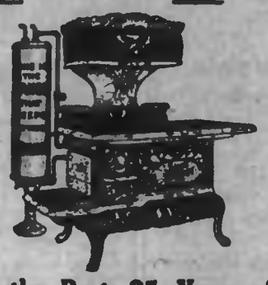
During the early stages of the proceedings, Mr. Fred Roy appeared on the scene and succeeded in getting several good pictures of the turnout, together with a large number of the delegates, who mounted the rigs.

At the close of the demonstration, several rousing cheers were given for Chief Howard and his well trained aggregation of men.

MET WITH SUCCESS

TITUSVILLE, Pa., AUG. 22.—The people of the City of Peterborough will be glad to learn that William Trotter, who worked in the Brock street roller rink, and who left this city about a year ago for the United States, has met with success and is now manager and part owner of one of the prettiest and most up-to-date rinks in Western Pennsylvania.

The Least Fuel, The Most Satisfaction.



It Was the Best 25 Years Ago—It is the Best To-day

You have all heard of the Happy Thought Range and most of you know some one who owns one. One of the first ranges made exclusively for the Canadian market, it is still first in the estimation of the Canadian housewife. The

HAPPY THOUGHT

Range has maintained its leading position through the determination of its makers that nothing short of the very best was good enough to put into it.

The best material, the best workmanship, the best ideas. Every year has seen it a better range.

Every new idea in range making has been thoroughly tested and when found to be an advantage it has been added to the Happy Thought.

By this means alone could its supremacy be maintained—and that it has been maintained is testified to by the enthusiastic praise of the thousands of housewives who use it.

Come and see one at our store. In appearance, as in general worth, it leads.

More than a quarter of a million "Happy Thoughts" are in daily use in Canada.

DEATH OF JAS. WHITTEN

Mr. George A. Gillespie received word to-day of the death at Wellman's Corners, Ont., this morning, at 8.30 o'clock, of Mr. James Whitten, one of the pioneers of the dairy industry in Eastern Ontario, and a prominent and popular member of the Peterborough Cheese Board. The late Mr. Whitten was one of the first dairy instructors appointed and has always taken a keen interest in the industry. His many friends and acquaintances of Peterborough, especially those connected with the cheese business, will regret to learn of his demise.

RECIPROCITY AND POULTRY

The average price of dressed poultry in Montreal for the first half of 1911 was 12.35 cents per pound.

The average price for the same period in New York was 17.30 cents.

During the year 1910 the New York price averaged 5 1-2 cents higher than the Montreal price.

Do the poultry raisers of Canada want access to the New York market?

HAVE YOU A BAD SORE?

If so, remember these facts—Zam Buk is by far the most widely used balm in Canada! Why has it become so popular Because it heals sores, cures skin diseases, and does what is claimed for it. Why not let it heal your sore?

Remember that Zam-Buk is altogether different to the ordinary ointments. Most of these consist of animal fats. Zam-Buk contains no trace of any animal fat, or any mineral matter. It is absolutely herbal.

Remember that Zam-Buk is at the same time healing, soothing, and antiseptic. Kills poison instantly, and all harmful germs. It is suitable alike for recent injuries and diseases, and chronic sores, ulcers, etc. Test how different and superior Zam-Buk really is. All druggists and stores at 50c. box. Use also Zam-Buk Soap. Best for baby's bath. 25c tablet.

THE BUTTER INDUSTRY

From Farm and Dairy.

Mr. Clifford Sifton's assertion that the butter industry of Canada would be injured by free trade in butter and cream between this country and the United States is so glaringly and ludicrously wrong that many people acquainted with the facts have taken exception to it. The following letter is contributed by an extensive dealer in butter of an experience as long as Mr. Sifton's manhood life:

"If I read Mr. Sifton's address to Canadians correctly, he says the butter industry will be injured by the reciprocity agreement. He must have put that along with other misstatements into his manifesto as a 'fill-up.' Some time after the reciprocity agreement was made known I asked the manager and chief proprietor of one of the largest creameries in Canada as to its effect on the butter business. His answer was 'that the agreement was a splendid thing for butter and cream and meant millions of dollars to Canada.'

"To the farmer, the artisan, and the great body of consumers this is the grandest piece of beneficial legislation ever offered to the Canadian people. The farmer who votes against it is doing himself an injury of a terribly serious kind to please a set of men who are trying to bind him hand and foot to rapacious monopolies."

Makes Hair Grow

McDermid and Jury has an invigorator that will grow hair or money back.

The time to take care of your hair is when you have hair to take care of.

If your hair is getting thin, gradually falling out, it cannot be long before the spot appears.

The greatest remedy to stop the hair from falling is SALVIA, the Great American Hair Grower, first discovered in England. SALVIA furnishes nourishment to the hair roots and acts so quickly that people are amazed.

And remember, it destroys the Dandruff germ, the little pest that saps the life that should go to the hair from the roots.

SALVIA is sold by McDermid and Jury under a positive guarantee to cure Dandruff, stop Falling Hair and Itching Scalp in ten days, or money back. A large bottle costs 50c. The word "SALVIA" (Latin for sage) is on every bottle.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

I have a field seeded last spring with about 20 lbs. of alfalfa an acre, along with a same crop of oats. Owing to the dry weather the stand of alfalfa is very thin in some places, but in parts of the field it is good enough to tempt me to leave it down. I am now cutting the oats and intend to top dress the field with manure as soon as crop is off. I would like to know if there is danger of injuring the alfalfa plants by disking or harrowing immediately after the manure has been applied—J. W. K., Glengarry Co., Ont.

There would be great danger of completely ruining the young alfalfa plants should you attempt to disc or harrow this field. To top dress with manure, if applied with a manure spreader and not too heavily, would be good practice and should materially benefit the young plants.

You are well advised in keeping this stand of alfalfa such as you have. Should the weather prove favorable from this time forward in all probability it will develop and prove to be a satisfactory stand. The thin places may be renovated next spring if such attention is necessary, and even a comparatively light stand of alfalfa will give a considerable yield more than one would expect since when thin the plants steel out and take advantage of available room.

Any cultivating, disking or harrowing of this stand we would not advise to be practised until next spring and then only experimentally until the value of such cultivation be proved in your own particular case.

ABOUT ALFALFA

From Farm and Dairy.

We hear much nowadays as to the hardiness of the alfalfa plant. If such information leads any of us to indiscriminate pasturing, such advice is very bad. Alfalfa, which is to be carried over for another year should not be pastured close at any time, particularly by horses. Stock should not be allowed on it in winter on any account. When the crowns are killed by close pasturing, the field is done. Alfalfa is not as hardy as some would have us believe. It needs good care and will yield a profit for such care.

I have pastured alfalfa and excellent pasture it makes, but good judgment must be used. We have practised turning our cows into the alfalfa field when it was a couple of feet high for 1½ to two hours a day. When the alfalfa was eaten down to about six inches high, however, no more pasturing was allowed, and the alfalfa went into the winter with six inches of stubble for protection.

FEEDING LAYING STOCK

From Farm and Dairy.

Meritime Poultry Supply Co., Moncton, N.B.

In feeding laying stock during the summer we find that in order to have them give the best returns we have to use a forcing mash, just the same as in the winter. In fact we make no change in our method of feeding during the summer months, except that as the hens have the run of a large grass plot, we do not have to supply them with green feed. We keep grit, shell and charcoal before them all the time, and feed laying mash in hoppers. In addition, we give one quart of mixed grains morning and night to every 25 birds. We do not let the male birds run with the laying stock, so that our eggs keep better and give our customers better satisfaction generally. By this method of feeding we get more eggs and larger ones, and also find that the hens lay right through the moulting season.

The hens that are not to be carried through the moulting season are fattened and killed off just about the time the moulting season begins. The others are given a little more beef scrap in the laying mash during the moulting season, and that brings them through in good shape. Old hens are killed off when two years old in our laying pens. Breeders are not fed a laying mash at all.

The Reciprocity agreement saves the people from those who would monopolise their food supply.

CONSTRUCTING POULTRY HOUSES

From Farm and Dairy.

L. C. Smith, Peel Co., Ont.

Light, freedom from draughts and good ventilation are the three most important points to be kept in mind when constructing a new poultry house. Convenience and cheapness are also important points. All of these points are best obtained in the open front style of poultry houses.

We farmers exhibit a strange perversity in the erection of our new poultry houses. We cannot seem to get it into our mind that a poultry house, so long as it is dry, does not need to be warm. A friend of mine was recently showing me over his new poultry house. With a great deal of pride he pointed to the double walls with numerous plies of paper and dead air space, to the double boarded and shingled roof, and then to the large double windows in front. This man had an old house similarly constructed, which had never given good results, and why he should again build on the old principle, proves unsuccessful, is beyond me. One of his near neighbors who has had good success with his poultry, kept his hens last year in a structure that had on one side no protection at all except a spruce hedge, and they did well.

We ourselves are using an old worn type house, but we have torn the front out and substituted wire netting, and it is giving great satisfaction. We are building a new house on the open front plan. The walls on three sides are single-boarded and covered with building paper to keep out the draughts. The front, which is about three feet to the eaves, has two feet of wire netting the entire length. This house is cheap, free from draughts and, above all, it is dry. From our experience with our renovated old house we are sure of good results from our new one.

STRAWBERRY BEDS

From Farm and Dairy.

F. H. Hall, Geneva, N.Y.

Usually it is better to set new strawberry beds each year than to continue the old ones. The advisability of removing more than one crop of fruit depends largely on the condition of the bed. If the strawberry plants are numerous, vigorous and healthy, and the ground not too weedy, they may be left for a second crop. Two and even three profitable crops may sometimes be harvested before making a change. The berries ripen slightly earlier but average somewhat smaller on the older beds, and the plants are more liable to trouble from insects and diseases. The cost of cleaning out and caring for an old bed is usually greater than for setting a new one. Under some conditions a quick-growing crop maturing before winter may be grown upon the same soil if the strawberry vines be plowed under as soon as the crop has been harvested, or it may be advantageous to sow the ground to a clover cover-crop to be plowed under the following spring.

If the bed be retained for a second crop it will be necessary to clean out, fertilize and cultivate the rows. Some growers go over the bed with a mowing machine and as soon as the leaves are sufficiently dry burn over the surface of well-rotted stable manure, should be broadcast lengthwise of the rows and directly over the plants.

LOCOMOTIVE COMPANY, LTD.

The Canadian Locomotive Company, Limited, of Kingston, have been extremely fortunate in securing the services of Mr. A. W. Wheatley, as their General Manager. Mr. Wheatley is recognized as being pre-eminent in his knowledge of locomotives, and locomotive-building, and in assuming his position as General Manager of the Brooks Plant of the American Locomotive Company, at Dunkirk, N. Y., to go to the Canadian Locomotive Company, Limited. The Brooks Plant is the second largest of the American Locomotive Company, and the Canadian Locomotive Company are, indeed, fortunate in securing Mr. Wheatley.

Mr. Wheatley is an Englishman born and served his apprenticeship with the South Eastern Railway in England. He came to the United States in 1882, and worked as a machinist on the Northern Pacific Railway until 1894, when he was made Foreman of their Round House at Staples, Minn. He was promoted again in 1900 to the position of general foreman of locomotives at Livingstone, Mon., and in December, 1902, he was made master mechanic of the Yellowstone Division of the Northern Pacific. He was made shop superintendent at Brainerd, Minn., in 1906, and a year later was appointed general master mechanic. A year later he went as shop superintendent to the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railway, and one year later again he was secured by the Union Pacific Railway, and appointed assistant superintendent of motive power. His ability was so exceptional that the American Locomotive Company secured him as their general inspector. In June 1907 the Montreal Locomotive Works of Montreal secured his services as their manager for a short time, and in November, 1910, the American Locomotive Company re-secured his services and placed him in charge as manager of the Brooks Plant at Dunkirk, the second largest plant, which the company has.

SOME RECIPES

From Farm and Dairy.

MOLASSES FRUIT CAKE

One cupful of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of butter, one cupful of chopped raisins and cinnamon, one cupful of sour milk, one teaspoonful of soda, two cupfuls of flour. Bake in a loaf.

PUMPKIN PIE

One and one half cupfuls of steamed and strained pumpkin, two thirds of a cupful of brown sugar, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, one half teaspoonful of ginger, one half teaspoonful of salt, two eggs, and one and one half cupfuls of milk, one half cupful of cream. Mix ingredients in order given and bake in one crust.

CUSTARD OR CREAM CAKE

Cream together two cupfuls of sugar, half a cupful of butter; add half a cupful of sweet milk, in which half a teaspoonful of soda has been dissolved. Beat the whites of six eggs to a stiff froth and add to the mixture. Have one heaping teaspoonful of cream of tartar stirred thoroughly into three cupfuls of sifted flour and add quickly. Bake in layers in a moderate oven.

CUSTARD FILLING

Put two cupfuls of sweet milk into a pan; set it on the range in a kettle of boiling water. When the milk comes to a boil, add two tablespoonfuls of corn-starch or flour sifted into half a cupful of sugar; add the yolks of four eggs and a little cold milk. Stir this into the boiling milk and when cooked thick enough, set aside to cool. Flavor with vanilla or lemon extract. The custard filling should be made before baking cake.

LADY-FINGERS

Two eggs, three fourths of a cupful of sugar, one half of a cupful of butter creamed with the sugar, six tablespoonsful of sweet milk, two heaping teaspoonsful of baking powder. Flavor to taste. Add a pinch of salt. Use enough flour to mix as stiff as you can stir with a spoon. Shape about four inches long and bake in a quick oven. After a few trials you will learn how stiff to make them.

A FEW HINTS

From Farm and Dairy.

The popular and probably the better way to improve the dairy herd is to inject better blood by purchasing a good sire. The more expensive way is to buy the cows. Under the former method, it is only necessary to purchase the bull.

* * *

The extremely hot weather of the past few weeks has resulted in dry pastures in many sections of the country and the milk flow has dropped off greatly. It is the wise cow keeper who works against such a situation by growing some kind of soiling crop. There are few few farms, however, where fodder corn is not available, and there is no better time to make use of this feed than during the season when pastures are short and cows are dropping off rapidly in their milk flow.

* * *

If a temporary loss in the amount of milk for market was the only consideration it would not be such a serious matter. This is not the situation, however. A cow that decreases greatly in the milk flow because of a scarcity of green feed at this time of the year cannot "come back." The fall rains bring an abundance of green feed later on, but the cow is not in a position to make a profitable use of it unless her milk flow has been kept up during the dry period.

THE IDLE ACRES

From Farm and Dairy.

O. E. Berns, Minnesota

Have you an idle acre on your farm? If so, why not at once put it to some use—if for no other reason, that it may work no injury to yourself or to your neighbor? Every such acre, in a settled community, is an accuser, branding its owner—so says a contemporary—"as either thoughtless, wasteful or shiftless; possibly all three." On any such acre, weeds may grow sufficient to "seed down" a township and to increase the labors of the whole farming population.

The broad areas of uncultivated land, which form so large a percentage of thousands of farms, are a standing indictment of our systems of landownership and taxation, as unreasonable and unjust. No man should be entitled to hold more land than he can fully cultivate or make otherwise useful to the community; as, for instance, in the growing of timber trees or in the maintenance of a well-stocked fish-pond.

Idle land should be so heavily taxed that nobody could afford to keep it out of use—it must be "Cultivate or sell!" But instead of observing this just rule, we punish with heavier taxation the farmer who improves and enriches his land, and let off, with only nominal taxation, the owner of idle acres.

BUTTER AND CHEESE FOR EXPORT

From Farm and Dairy.

The battle of the grades, which has been going on for some years in several of the Australian dairying states, has neither been lost nor won, but it has been suddenly terminated. Regulations are being formulated by the Commonwealth Department of Trade and Customs which will make the grading of butter and cheese for export compulsory. The grading will not only be compulsory, but it will also be necessary to brand the boxes with the official classification fixed by the official grader.

The export trade of the Commonwealth is, for a time at least (for better or worse), to be conducted under a system of compulsory grade marking, and it will be necessary for the dairying industry in each state to adjust itself to new conditions. Dairy education becomes not only important, the total imports of all kinds of butter for the year ended June, 1910, are 210,964 tons, and 210,676 tons for 1909.

THE MARKET

From Farm and Dairy.

Toronto, Monday, August 14.—Trade in wholesale circles is normal. In some quarters where business will be affected by the result of the fight an reciprocity there is a tendency to stand still and await the result. Apple dealers, for instance, are very slow at making deals for their apples until they find out whether or not they will have an opportunity to dispose of this year's crop in the markets of the Eastern States. The action of the United States railways in reducing freight rates on fruit from Oregon to points in the Canadian West has made the possibility of free entry to the United States markets of particular interest to Eastern apple dealers, as the reduced rates will make it harder for them to compete with Oregon apples as points west of Winnipeg. One prominent apple dealer stated to us recently that free entry to the New York markets would mean more to him than the loss of the entire Western market.

There were very few changes in quotations on farm produce last week. Wheat is stronger with coarse grains and mill feeds unchanged. Cattle prices are practically unchanged. Hogs are still scarce.

Call money rules here at 5½ to 6 per cent.

FINE RECEPTION FROM A SMITH AUDIENCE

Mr. Stratton's Meeting in Middleton's School House Was Largely Attended and Remarks of Different Speakers Found Favour With the Representative Gathering Present.

Again the company of Kings and queens. This time it was George and Mary that beamed down on Mr. Stratton's candidature. The place was Middleton's school house.

Somehow or other, the pictures of kings and queens have a habit of gracing little red schoolhouses, probably because kings and queens are interested in children as the rising hope of their sovereignty, and probably because they are sure to hear there the latest election talk. Electioneering on the side lines means that the little red schoolhouse is a forum for both political parties.

Time's Revenge on Sir Charles.

At all events King George and Queen Mary's counterfeit presentments listened last night to the most recent development of that maxim: "that we help the Empire when we help ourselves." It was Sir Charles Tupper who enunciated that maxim when he was excusing Canada for not contributing directly to Imperial defence; a burden that was afterwards cheerfully assumed by the Liberal Government. Sir Charles, being a statesman of the older school, put it in longer words than are used here, but it amounted to the same thing.

The whirligig of time is an amazing thing. It has put on Sir Wilfrid Laurier the duty Sir Charles was unwilling to shoulder, but on the other hand it has awarded him a prize Sir Charles was very anxious to get—reciprocity in natural products with the United States. If that stout old retired statesman, Sir Charles, now taking his ease in smoking jacket and slippers, in far-off England, writes an occasional letter to the London Times, knocking reciprocity, it's just because he has always felt that an Opposition's part is to oppose. It's a simple case of sour grapes, because the Liberals got it first.

An Ideal Meeting.

Chairman Mahood presided over one of the best meetings of the series. It was a meeting to warm the cockles of a candidate's heart. It filled the little schoolhouse to overflowing. It included boys and girls, young men and maidens, and their fathers and mothers. For reciprocity is very much a farmer's question, and the farmer's household is interested in it from grandchild to grandfather. The meeting at Middleton's, like all meetings in the country, gave cards and spades to any city meeting in thoughtful and intelligent attention. In the matter of good manners, too, a country audience can put it over the town. If any come to scoff, they do it quietly in their own heads, and do not disturb the speaker. There isn't a rumbler or a grumbler in the whole outfit.

Candidate Stratton satisfied the evident desire of this kindly-disposed meeting for mountains of information by going over as much of the ground as he could, in an hour and a half. Of course, no candidate can get away from the salient facts and figures of the subject. He has to tell the same story everywhere; but, if, like Mr. Stratton, he can give it each night a new turn, he makes the job of the reporter, who has to chase him round, a real pleasure.

Last night, Mr. Stratton went into a few of those little personal matters, which are the human touches in an election campaign, and mighty interesting for that reason.

The Rewards of Duty.

"This will probably be my last campaign," said Mr. Stratton. "I have served you faithfully for twenty-five years, and after the next session of Parliament is finished I think I will have earned the right to do what seems best with my remaining years. The first time I was a candidate I had a majority of 32. The last time I ran for the Legislature I had a majority of 1,200. The first time I ran for the Dominion I had a majority of 333. I have always considered these substantial majorities as the reward of duty done. It pays to be honest and straight with the electors, and do what they want you to do. When William Manley German and Lloyd Harris went counter to the opinion of their constituents and bolted on reciprocity, what happened? Their nominating conventions split. German got a half-hearted support. Harris caught cold first from the chill he felt at the convention and Mr. Preston was finally chosen. My nominating convention was unanimous. That's what you get for playing straight and sticking to your principles."

"One thing," continued Mr. Stratton, "you must always bear in mind. It is important to elect a good member—a member as big in ideas as the country he represents. It takes some member, I can tell you, to keep up with this Canada of ours. Why, Canada is so big that you could set down 22 United Kingdoms in it and then have a margin. You know the two candidates in West Peterborough. Enough said. I leave that thought with you."

The Farmers' Bank.

Another personal matter Mr. Stratton chose to handle was the Farmers' Bank, which he did with a best of frankness that raised the audience to cheers.

"What have I to do with it?" asked Mr. Stratton. "I am president of a Company which, on the security of good, honest farmers' notes, loaned a sum of money to the Farmers' Bank, which the Bank misapplied. I have less real connection with the Farmers' Bank difficulties than the man in the moon. The Judges have said that they didn't know a more unjust and disgraceful thing than the subpoena that was served on me. I went to Toronto, sat all day in court and neither I, or my lawyer, had a chance to open our mouths. At the conclusion of this solemn farce Colonel Denison said: "There seems to be absolutely nothing against you, Mr. Stratton," and the case was discharged.

"Why, asked Mr. Stratton, warming up, "don't they bring back the real villain in the play—Dr. Beattie Nesbitt. You can't hide a man weighing 275 pounds, with a nose like the Doctor's, in a handbox. Why don't they bring him back? Why, because he could tell where the money came from. I can assure you I don't know. If I had known anything you may be sure Whitney, and Hanna, and Gamey and that bunch wouldn't have rested until it was brought out. My speech and the records of the Court show that I didn't know anything about it. When I left the parliament buildings in Toronto I said to my successors: "The books are here, the papers are here, the men are here that have worked with me in my department. Do what you like." And they have never done anything. Why, I repeat, don't they bring Dr. Beattie Nesbitt back? He is the one man, outside themselves, who knows what they don't want to be told."

The Favoured Nation's Scare.

Coming to the real question—reciprocity—Mr. Stratton compared the haste which the Conservatives used, when they were putting the tremendous C. P. R. transaction through, which amounted to a gift of $100,000,000 without consulting the electors, with the fight and tussle and delay they are putting up now against the first bit of tariff legislation for the farmer in a year of Sundays.

Appositely he compared the blue ruin editorials in the World, the News, and the Mail and Empire with their market reports, which, not being at liberty to lie, showed that prices for farm products ruled generally higher in the United States than in Canada.

Mr. Stratton took the favoured nation's scare and twisted its tail. He showed just how much these fourteen nations that get a selling benefit in our market are favoured. How much would you think? Well, take our volume of trade as covering the circumference of a silver dollar, the favoured nations get about as much as would stick, without falling off, on the head of a pin. Who's afraid of silk and cotton from Switzerland? Sweden doesn't send us one thing affected by the agreement. Spain sells us tropical fruits, which don't come into the agreement at all. Russia exports to us chiefly furs for rich people. Norway sends us a few fish to eat in Lent. Denmark doesn't include a single pound of butter in her consignments to Canada. Columbia has never sent us anything that the reciprocity agreement would help. We have no trade whatever with the little Jerk-water republic of Bolivia. Austria-Hungary sends us laces and other flummeries that do not figure in the reciprocity schedules. Nobody fears that the soft, flabby, southern Argentine wheat will ever compete in the Canadian market with our world-beating hard stuff. And as for far-off Japan, who imagines that she will ever ship hay, barley, and cereals to North America?

Brotherhood Links West and East.

A new point scored by Mr. Stratton was the effect of reciprocity in linking West and East, and making a more united Canada. It was the touch of nature that makes all men kin!

"Who," Mr. Stratton asked, "started this agitation, but the West? And what is the West? The salt of the West is the young man from Ontario. The old farms in Ontario couldn't support all the boys and some of them had to pack up and go to a new country. All that most of them took away from Ontario was their railway ticket, our blessing, a stout heart, and a pair of willing hands. They went out there not, perhaps, under as hard pioneer conditions as their fathers and grandfathers—they didn't have any forests to cut down—but they had special difficulties of their own—long distances, few railways, and terrible solitude. The country has grown. They have prospered. But they want a fairer deal. This is the first thing they have asked of us since they left here—fifteen, twenty-five years ago. Don't take my opinion about reciprocity, or anybody else's. Write to your sons and brothers in the Northwest and see what they think."

Mr. Stratton's appeal led up naturally to the next speaker, Mr. Robert Harstone.

A Voice From The West.

Mr. Harstone is, originally, a Peterborough man, but he has been, off and on, as farmer, rancher, dry goods merchant and land agent in the North West for the last twenty-five years. He makes a trip over that big territory, from end to end, three times a year. He knows prices and conditions in the best way—he has lived with them and been helped or hurried by them. Naturally, he is an ardent advocate of reciprocity; just as ardent, in fact, as F. G. Haultain, ex-Premier of the Northwest Territories, another old Peterborough boy, who swung himself and the Conservative party in Saskatchewan—and they didn't need much swinging—over to reciprocity. When that good thing for the West came along, John Herron of Macleod, Alberta, was another Conservative that climbed up on the reciprocity hand-waggon. He couldn't get the nomination any other way. In fact, as Mr. Harston said, you can scarcely the Northwest with a fine-tooth comb, and not dig up a sensible farmer on either side of politics who isn't in favour of reciprocity.

The candidate met Mr. Harstone on the street in Peterborough yesterday afternoon and asked him to speak at Middleton's.

"Why," said Mr. Harstone, "I never made a speech in my life".

"That doesn't make any difference. You're full of the subject. Just stand on your feet and let your tongue wag a little and what you know will come out."

Mr. Harstone followed this recipe for public speaking, and to be quite accurate, spoke for one hour, by the clock, which is not bad for a first attempt. The fact is, reciprocity confers a sort of Pentecostal gift on its exponents. Such was the fire of the apostles.

Some of the Scarecrows.

"Don't be afraid of scarecrows on the fence," said Mr. Harstone. "This is the farmer's business. Who opposed it first, certain bankers and financiers in Toronto. The first bolts came from Toronto. They took the ground that banks and such could be trusted to trade with the United States and not become disloyal, but not the farmer. Some of these men bought produce right here in Peterborough years ago, and then they spoke for reciprocity. But their interests are different now."

We have the best wheat in the world, but we have to take the prices the combine buyers at Winnipeg, and other grain centres offer for it, on an average of six cents a bushel less than we can get in the United States. What's more, we have great difficulty in getting the right grades for our wheat. If we had free access across the line we'd very soon right that wrong. What's more we need the north and south grain trade to pull down the east and west freight rates. The convenient, near market will soon bring the long haul to time.

Mr. Harstone has no fears for the Ontario horse market in the West. The horses that come into the Northwest from Montana," said Mr. Harstone, "are ranch horses, not broken, and worth $75 and under. They can never compete with your superior horses from Ontario."

The meeting wound up with three rousing cheers for the King, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and the candidate.

Candidate Stratton satisfied the evident desire of this kindly-disposed meeting for mountains of information by going over as much of the ground as he could, in an hour and a half. Of course, no candidate can get away from the salient facts and figures of the subject. He has to tell the same story everywhere; but, if like Mr. Stratton, he can give it each night a new turn, he makes the job of the reporter, who has to chase him round, a real pleasure.

Last night, Mr. Stratton went into a few of those little personal matters, which are the human touches in an election campaign, and mighty interesting for that reason.

The Rewards of Duty.

"This will probably be my last campaign," said Mr. Stratton. "I have served you faithfully for twenty-five years, and after the next session of Parliament is finished I think I will have earned the right to do what seems best with my remaining years. The first time I was a candidate I had a majority of 28. The last time I ran for the Legislature I had a majority of 1,200. The first time I ran for the Dominion I had a majority of 333. I have always considered these substantial majorities as the reward of duty done. It pays to be honest and straight with the electors, and do what they want you to do. When William Manley German and Lloyd Harris went counter to the opinion of their constituents and bolted on reciprocity, what happened. Their nominating conventions split. German got a half-hearted support. Harris caught cold last from the chill he felt at the convention and Mr. Preston was finally chosen. My nominating convention was unanimous. That's what you get for playing straight and sticking to your principles."

"One thing," continued Mr. Stratton, "you must always bear in mind. It is important to elect a good member—a member as big in ideas as the country he represents. It takes some member, I can tell you, to keep up with this Canada of ours. Why, Canada is so big that you could set down the United Kingdoms in it and then have a margin. You know the two candidates in West Peterborough. Enough said. I leave that thought with you."

The Farmers' Bank.

Another personal matter Mr. Stratton chose to handle was the Farmers' Bank, which he did with a heat of frankness that raised the audience to cheers.

"What have I to do with it?" asked Mr. Stratton. "I am president of a Company which, on the security of good, honest farmers' notes, loaned a sum of money to the Farmers' Bank, which the Bank misapplied. I have less real connection with the Farmers' Bank difficulties than the man in the moon. The Judges have said that they didn't know a more unjust and disgraceful thing than the subpoena that was served on me. I went to Toronto, sat all day in court and neither I, or my lawyer, had a chance to open our mouths. At the conclusion of this solemn farce Colonel Denison said: "There seems to be absolutely nothing against you, Mr. Stratton," and the case was discharged.

"Why, asked Mr. Stratton, warming up, "don't they bring back the real villain in the play—Dr. Beattie Nesbitt. You can't hide a man weighing 275 pounds, with a nose like the Doctor's, in a handbox. Why don't they bring him back? Why, because he could tell where the money came from. I can assure you I don't know. If I had known anything you may be sure Whitney, and Hanna, and Gamey and that bunch wouldn't have rested until it was brought out. My speech and the records of the Court show that I didn't know anything about it. When I left the parliament buildings in Toronto I said to my successors: "The books are here, the papers are here, the men are here that have worked with me in my department. Do what you like." And they have never done anything. Why, I repeat, don't they bring Dr. Beattie Nesbitt back? He is the one man, outside themselves, who knows what they don't want to be told."

The Favoured Nation's Scare.

Coming to the real question—reciprocity—Mr. Stratton compared the haste which the Conservatives used, when they were putting the tremendous C. P. R. transaction through, which amounted to a gift of $100,000,000 without consulting the electors, with the fight and tussle and delay they are putting up now against the first bit of tariff legislation for the farmer in a year of Sundays.

Appositely he compared the bloo ruin editorials in the World, the News, and the Mail and Empire with their ancient reports, which, not being at liberty to lie, showed that prices for farm products ruled generally higher in the United States than in Canada.

Mr. Stratton took the favoured nation's scare and twisted its tail. He showed just how much these fourteen nations that get a selling benefit in our market are favoured. How much would you think? Well, take our volume of trade as covering the circumference of a silver dollar, the favoured nations get about as much as would stick, without falling off, on the head of a pin. Who's afraid of silk and cotton from Switzerland? Sweden doesn't send us one thing affected by the agreement. Spain sells us tropical fruits, which don't come into the agreement at all. Russia exports to us chiefly furs for rich people. Norway sends us a few fish to eat in Lent. Denmark doesn't include a single pound of butter in her consignments to Canada. Columbia has never sent us anything that the reciprocity agreement would help. We have no trade whatever with the little jerk-water republic of Bolivia. Austria-Hungary sends us laces and other fummeries that do not figure in the reciprocity schedules. Nobody fears that the soft, flabby, southern Argentine wheat will ever compete in the Canadian market with our world-beating hard stuff. And as for far-off Japan, who imagines that she will ever ship hay, barley, and cereals to North America?

Brotherhood Links West and East.

A new point scored by Mr. Stratton was the effect of reciprocity in linking West and East, and making a more united Canada. It was the touch of nature that makes all men kin.

"Who," Mr. Stratton asked, "started this agitation, but the West? And what is the West? The salt of the West is the young man from Ontario. The old farms in Ontario couldn't support all the boys and some of them had to pack up and go to a new country. All that most of them took away from Ontario was their railway ticket, our blessing, a stout heart, and a pair of willing hands. They went out there not, perhaps, under as hard pioneer conditions as their fathers and grandfathers—they didn't have any forests to cut down—but they had special difficulties of their own—long distances, few railways, and terrible solitude. The country has grown. They have prospered. But they want a fairer deal. This is the first thing they have asked of us since they left here—fifteen, twenty-five years ago. Don't take my opinion about reciprocity, or anybody else's. Write to your sons and brothers in the Northwest and see what they think."

Mr. Stratton's appeal led up naturally to the next speaker, Mr. Robert Harstone.

A Voice From The West.

Mr. Harstone is, originally, a Peterborough man, but he has been, all and on, as farmer, rancher, dry goods merchant and land agent in the North West for the last twenty-five years. He makes a trip over that big territory, from end to end, three times a year. He knows prices and conditions in the best way—he has lived with them and been helped or hurned by them. Naturally, he is an ardent advocate of reciprocity; just as ardent, in fact, as F. G. Haultain, ex-Premier of the Northwest Territories, another old Peterborough boy, who swung himself and the Conservative party in Saskatchewan—and they didn't need much swinging—over to reciprocity, when that good thing for the West came along. John Herron of Macleod, Alberta, was another Conservative that climbed up on the reciprocity hand-waggon. He couldn't get the nomination any other way. In fact, as Mr. Harston said, you can search the Northwest with a fine-tooth comb, and not dig up a sensible farmer on either side of politics who isn't in favour of reciprocity.

The candidate met Mr. Harstone on the street in Peterborough yesterday afternoon and asked him to speak at Middleton's.

"Why," said Mr. Harstone, "I never made a speech in my life".

"That doesn't make any difference. You're full of the subject. Just stand on your feet and let your tongue wag a little and what you know will come out."

Mr. Harstone followed this recipe for public speaking, and to be quite accurate, spoke for one hour, by the clock, which is not bad for a first attempt. The fact is, reciprocity confers a sort of Pentecostal gift on its

Some of the Scarecrows.

"Don't be afraid of scarecrows on the fence," said Mr. Harstone. "This is the farmer's business. Who opposed it first, certain bankers and financiers in Toronto. The first hollow came from Toronto. They took the ground that banks and such could be trusted to trade with the United States and not become disloyal, but not the farmer. Some of these men bought produce right here in Peterborough years ago, and then they spoke for reciprocity. But their interests are different now."

We have the best wheat in the world, but we have to take the prices the combine buyers at Winnipeg, and other grain centres offer for it, on an average of six cents a bushel less than we can get in the United States. What's more, we have great difficulty in getting the right grades for our wheat. If we had free access across the line we'd very soon right that wrong. What's more we need the north and south grain trade to pull down the east and west freight rates. The convenient, near market will soon bring the long haul to time.

Mr. Harstone has no fears for the Ontario horse market in the West. The horses that come into the Northwest from Montana," said Mr. Harstone, "are range horses, not broken, and worth $75 and under. They can never compete with your superior horses from Ontario."

The meeting wound up with three rousing cheers for the King, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and the candidate.

ATWOOD'S BIG FEAT

Special to The Examiner:

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y., AUG. 24.—Harry Atwood, the daring aviator, on the St. Louis to New York record-breaking biplane trip, performed a sensational feat here, sweeping down like an eagle towards the Hudson river and passing under the city bridge, just five feet above the water. This is regarded as the most hazardous feat ever attempted by aviators in the United States contests.

BIG FIRE AT BUFFALO

Special to The Examiner

BUFFALO, N.Y., AUG. 24.—Fire, which threatened for a time the whole of Buffalo's waterfront, destroyed the Wilkinson elevator at the foot of Washington street, last night. The damage will be $150,000.

Style in Glasses

There is no reason why persons with defective vision need disfigure their faces by wearing glasses of unsightly shape, entirely out of harmony with the contour of their features. There is style in glasses just as there is style in everything else to wear. There is one style of eyeglasses that is "just the thing" for your face. If you can only find it. And we know we can help you to do it, as we have ... glasses of ... all the improvements in appearance and ease grinding. We will take pleasure in helping you select a mounting to suit your features that will be becoming, comfortable and common. We are now showing many of the newest ideas in patents, and we are selling a lot of them. We can adapt these to suit any features. When you have tried all other eyeglasses unsuccessfully, come to us, we will guarantee to fit you to your entire satisfaction. We have every modern appliance for accurate Eye-sight Testing, and all the work, from the examination of the eyes to the finished lenses and fitting of glasses is done under our personal supervision.

All our work is guaranteed.

THURSDAY, AUG. 24, 1911

IS IT OPPORTUNISM?

Some of the Conservative anti-reciprocity - Borden-Bourassa - Monk - Nationalist-British-Born party papers, are quoting Hon. A. G. MacKay, leader of the Liberal opposition in Ontario, as saying: "I think the Conservative party has reason to be proud of the high class of man who is their leader to-day. I think Mr. Borden is a pretty high type of a man and a pretty safe sort of citizen to whom to entrust power, should there be a change of government." With this The Examiner largely agrees. Personally, Mr. Borden is an estimable gentleman. In this respect, however, Mr. MacKay, the Liberal leader, and The Examiner, are considerably ahead of prominent members of Mr. Borden's own party. Time after time, prominent Conservatives have tried to knife Mr. Borden, and the only reason he wasn't deposed from the leadership, was because there was no other Conservative to take his place. Mr. McBride, of British Columbia, refused "the job" and others who were anxious for it were not wanted.

Only the last session the party boot was raised to kick out Mr. Borden. "Kick-out" is not a very polite phrase; but it pretty well expresses the spirit behind the party "kickers." Mr. MacKay has said more of Mr. Borden as a man than, for instance, Mr. William McLean, of the Toronto World would be willing to say of him as a leader.

Mr. Borden is in Peterborough to-day, and he has been received with the respect due to a prominent Canadian citizen.

We can approve the man more than his mission—the citizen more than the company he keeps. Nobody can object to Mr. Borden seeking to win power by legitimate appeal to the issue he has forced upon the electorate at this time. But his alliance, practical and tacit, if not openly declared, with Mr. Bourassa and his pals, the Nationalist anti-British, anti-imperial, empire-wrecking party in Quebec, who hate Laurier for the exactly opposite reason of the ultra-loyal Laurier-hating Conservatives of Ontario, lends itself to a good deal of explanation. Mr. Bourassa and his ultra-montane, anti-imperial allies in Quebec hate Laurier, because he is too-British, and the Conservatives of Ontario—some of them—hate Laurier because he is not British enough.

Mr. Borden has not publicly repudiated, the evident political alliance with Mr. Bourassa and all that he stands for. Conservative candidates in Quebec are coming out as supporters of Mr. Borden, and sympathisers with the "Nationalist" movement; and Mr. Gilbert who, carried the bye election in Drummond and Arthabaska, by the most vicious anti-British appeals ever uttered in Canada, is again in the field as the candidate of the Conservative opposition and of the "Nationalists."

Mr. Borden, so far as is known, has not repudiated the unholy alliance with the "Nationalists" of Quebec.

Neither has he repudiated the still-hunt, underground, race and creed campaign being conducted in West Peterborough, in the interests of his candidate, a campaign which Mr. Burnham "had not intended to discuss publicly, on the platform"—only in the underground, sewer way. Does Mr. Borden approve or disapprove of these methods? He should either endorse them and their author, Mr. Burnham, or repudiate them and their author, and he should do the same in respect of "Nationalism" and Mr. Bourassa, who is cooperating with Mr. Borden, by helping to destroy Laurier, in Mr. Borden's interests.

One cannot escape the conclusion that Mr. Borden, the estimable gentleman in private life, and Mr. Borden, the political leader, are as much at variance in the real life of Canadian politics, as Stevenson's "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde are in the realm of literature.

As a private gentleman, Mr. Borden still justifies Mr. MacKay's kindly estimate of his character in that capacity; but as a leader and a politician, he has developed qualities that cannot be said to harmonize with high ideals of statesmanship.

An opportunist is defined as a public man who places less dependence upon principle and legitimate political warfare, than upon converting opportunity to his advantage, regardless of consistency or the harmony and integrity of citizenship.

TWO TONICS.

A strong cause is a good tonic. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, is carrying on a whirlwind campaign. He is seventy years of age, yet he still has the buoyant spirits of a boy, and the energy and physical endurance of a man in the prime of life. He is delivering two or three addresses a day and is still strong and fit. He is backed by a good cause and by a solid assurance that "the old cock will win." Mr. Borden, a much younger man and with a naturally more robust physique, is said to be pretty well tired out, so much so that at Owen Sound he fell asleep in the parlour car as he was waiting for the train to start for Toronto. But Mr. Borden hasn't, like Sir Wilfrid, the tonic of a good cause and certain victory to brace him—his tonic is too weak; or his friends and advisers have put too much of, Billy-McLean's Bourassic acid in the mixture—to make it work well.

HOW THE FARMER WILL GAIN.

It is a pleasure to see a Conservative authority in the witness box testifying to the higher price of farm products, in the United States market, which is, therefore, a good market for the Canadian farmer and a good word in favour of reciprocity, which opens this market free of duty to farm products only.

The Montreal Gazette, the chief organ of the Conservative party in the Province of Quebec, gives, in its issue of Tuesday, these quotations from various market centres:

	Toronto.	Buffalo.
Top cattle	$6.20	$7.85
Top veals	$7.35	$9.25
	At Local Ontario Points.	At Buffalo
No. 2 red winter wheat	84c	98c.
Malting Barley	67c.	$1.24
Oats (No. 2)	40c.	43⅝c
	Montreal.	New York.
Eggs (top)	22c.	30c.

The figures taken from the Montreal Gazette, which makes a specialty of market reports, are presumably accurate. Their significance cannot be beclouded by any amount of false argument on the part of anti-reciprocity orators and writers.

REMEMBER WHAT HAS MADE THEM SO.

When the Conservatives talk loudly of the manner in which they have stood by the manufacturers of this country, let the electors ask them under what policy have the manufacturing interests of Canada been developed.

It is not a very distant stretch back to the days of 1896 and the preceding years, when business stagnation and industrial depression overspread the Dominion. The people of Peterborough readily recall the conditions which existed at that time, and the depression which was all too prevalent in this district and the country in general.

It's the trade policy of a nation that creates prosperity. The Liberals went into power in 1896 and the next year, when the tariff adjustment trade proposals of the government were introduced by Mr. Fielding, the Conservatives at once took issue, contending that their adoption would be ruinous to Canadian industries. "A deeper wrong," declared Sir Charles Tupper, the then leader of the Opposition, "was never inflicted on Canada," and he went on to say that "far from rejoicing at it from a party standpoint, I deplore from the bottom of my heart the ruin which is going to be inflicted on the best interests of Canada and its industries."

Did the prediction of the Conservatives come true? Were the industries of this country ruined? Take a look at them anywhere—in Peterborough, if you choose. Answer the query yourself.

The industries of this country are prosperous to-day. Remember what has made them so. It's the fiscal policy of the Liberal party.

A CHILDISH PLAINT.

Ottawa people have a great respect for Mr. R. L. Borden personally, but that respect receives something of a shock when one finds him getting off rubbish like this at the meetings he is addressing in Ontario:

"There is no precedent in constitutional history for the contempt shown for public opinion by Sir Wilfrid Laurier in dissolving Parliament in the face of a charge implicating the honour of not only one of his Ministers but of the entire Government. Scorning decent public opinion, the Government dissolved Parliament."

The people of Canada know that Mr. Borden and his party were clamouring for a dissolution; they pretended to be anxious for the elections; every day and every night in the House they taunted the Government with being afraid to meet the electors; they did their very best to make an election absolutely necessary by refusing to permit the business of the House to go on. In doing this they were within their constitutional rights in the absence of any method of closure such as at Washington or Westminster. But when the Government accedes to their demand and brings on an election it is childish for Mr. Borden to round on Sir Wilfrid Laurier for having done just what he and his party insisted upon.

The Conservatives could not have both a general election and a continuation of the Parliamentary inquiry into the Oliver case. The Government was willing to give them either. They got the one which they seemed to be most anxious for. And as to the implication of the honour "of the entire Government" there is only one court of trial, the people, and the Government by ordering an election went to trial at that court.

Such language as that of Mr. Borden at Harriston brings out clearly the rank opportunism of the Tory cause and the weakness of their case.—Ottawa Free Press.

SOME CONSERVATIVES AND RECIPROCITY.

An interesting incident that came within his experience in Ontario the other day is being told by Mr. A. R. MacMaster, the well-known Montreal K.C., as the best definition of the issue before the country that has yet been made. He was talking to a veteran postmaster in Glengarry County who had been a life long and enthusiastic Conservative: "I suppose you are going to vote for reciprocity?" he asked.

"Well, I'll tell you, Mr. MacMaster," replied the old man. "My brother has been accusing me of turning my coat, but I say to him, 'What do we support—a party policy or a party name? When you and I voted shoulder to shoulder for Sir John A. Macdonald in 1891, what did we vote for? It was for reciprocity, and I am going to vote for it now.'"

There are a good many like the postmaster, and there are a good many in Peterborough and on the lake front counties, where they can grow the best barley that finds the best market in the world in the United States, which is now opened to Canadian barley by the removal by the reciprocity agreement of the duty of 30 cents per bushel.

Word comes that all along the north shore of Lake Ontario the farmers are quietly preparing to put part of their acreage in barley.

They are not saying much about how they are going to vote, but they are counting on having barley to sell across the lake next year.

The case is like that of the minister's wife who was upstairs packing the trunks while her husband was praying for guidance about accepting a call to a larger church.

There is as much politics in the lake counties as anywhere else, if you stir it up, and a farmer who votes Tory as a life habit isn't keen about announcing any change in view. This time, however, he sees that it is the farmer's turn. So he prepares his field for barley.

There are other counties not touching lake Ontario. Simcoe county is one of these. The Conservative farmers in Simcoe county are not afraid either, of holding up their hands for reciprocity.

A man, a Conservative farmer, and a stalwart, or he wouldn't have been elected a delegate, rose up in the convention that nominated Mr. Haughton Lennox, and aired his views in favour of reciprocity, and when he wasn't very warmly received, he told the convention that it hadn't heard the last of him and reciprocity. The result is that Mr. Thos. Hummell, a Conservative champion of reciprocity, at the request of a large degation of farmers, has come out as a candidate against the straight—by the way is "straight" the right word?—Conservative candidate, Mr. Lennox.

The Liberals of Simcoe, if they are wise, will not put up a candidate, but will back the reciprocity candidate, and thus cut out Mr. Lennox's work for him.

JUVENILE FEDERATION

The Juvenile Federation, a branch of the Ancient Order of Foresters, met last evening in the Collegiate Institute. There was an unusually large attendance of delegates from the Juvenile branches of the Order.

The Permanent Secretary's report as to the membership and finances of the Federation was satisfactory.

The Permanent Secretary's recommendation that the levy for management be increased from 10 to 20 cents per annum was, after considerable discussion, adopted.

A strong resolution, recommending the incoming Executive Council to formulate a plan for the development and extension of the Toronto Branch of the Order at the earliest opportunity was unanimously adopted.

The revision of the present, or the preparation of a new, ritual, was left in the hands of the newly elected Executive Council.

A LUMBERMAN'S OPINION

"I was troubled with palpitation of the heart and sleeplessness," writes Mr. Wm. Pritchard, Lumber Inspector, Lumsden Mills, Ont., "and used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with very great benefit, as my whole system was strengthened and built up." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food forms new, rich blood and restores the feeble wasted nerve cells.

PROPERTY COMMITTEE MET LAST NIGHT

That two tablets be placed in the Public Library, one to commemorate the gift of the late Mrs. Nicholls, who donated the site for the building and the other to fulfil a similar purpose as regards Anderw Carnegie, who donated the funds for the erection of the building, was the unanimous decision of the Property committee, which met last night.

Those present were Ald. Duncan, His Worship Mayor Morrow, Ald. Morgan, Ald. Graham and Ald Bradburn.

The milk question was also subject to some discussion. It was moved by Ald. Graham and seconded by Ald. Morgan that the minimum standard of butter fat for milk be placed at 3 per cent.—Carried.

A report was received from the Medical Health Officer, Dr. McPherson, giving the prevailing fixed standards as they concerned other cities. A number of them were 3 p.c. and others ranged a few points above that figure.

Robert Wilson, caretaker of the city buildings was granted two weeks' leave of absence.

Moved by Mayor Morrow and seconded by Ald. Bradburn, that the chairman be instructed to have the grass cut and trimmed in King edward park.

Moved by Ald. Graham, seconded by Ald. Bradburn, that a suitable hedge be placed around the grounds of the Public Library and that grass seed be supplied for use in seeding down the grounds surrounding the building.

GOOD POSITIONS

The Peterborough Business College is a worthy link in a chain of Seven Business Colleges, located in the cities of London, Peterborough, Welland, and the towns of Orangeville, Walkerton, Wingham, and Clinton. Owing to its high-grade work it is affiliated with the Commercial Educators' Association of Canada. It is freely admitted that owing to these connections, its students get the very best positions. Fall openings are on Aug. 28th, and Sept. 5th, but at this school each student is instructed privately at his or her own desk; students may enter any day. Many students study all at home, and others partly at home and finish at the College. As Spotton Colleges are the largest trainers in Canada, and have thirty years' experience, it would be well for young people to get their training there. Last year Mr. Spotton trained over 1,200 young people and placed them in good positions. What he has done for thousands of others he can do for you.

As Hon. George P. Graham put it at Brockville; "Did you ever hear of the removal of taxation on food increasing the cost of living?"

THE CANADIAN NATIONAL EXHIBITION

The Canadian National Exhibition of 1911 fairly bristles with special attractions. The Coronation Procession, an exact reproduction of the London pageenant, features the bill, but it has a close competitor in the Festival of Empire, with its hundreds of troops in all the varied uniforms of the service and its twelve military bands to furnish the necessary music. The aquatic events, too, are important, comprising two international yacht races, an eight-oared race between the all-conquering Argonauts of Toronto and a picked crew from the crack New York clubs, a single scull race between Butler—champion of America, and Scholes, winner of the Diamond Sculls at Henley, war canoe races, and motor boat races.

Add to these the acres of exhibits, the machinery in motion, the horse races and athletics, the vaudeville and fireworks, and the thousand and one other attractions of the Big Fair, and it must be admitted that two weeks' solid enjoyment have been arranged for the hundreds of thousands of visitors.

6 new houses, now being built on Western Ave Subdivision for wise men who want homes of their own instead of rent receipts.

Many young men are buying our lots as the safest and by far the most profitable investment for their savings.

Proof—28 months ago a man bought 2 lots at $180 paying $5 per month, he is now paying small balance and getting his deed, and the market value of his lots to-day is $300 which may be justly considered all profit, because the $5 would be spent if not locked up in this way. Wage earners should follow this example if you want to save money. Cut prices for balance of this month. Call to-day.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

THERE is a girl in our town who stands to-day with one foot in the grave because of overwork.

She had a widowed mother and younger sister to support, and has worked very hard as a stenographer for eight years. And to-day, as she faces death, she says, "At least I am not to blame for the condition I am in. I had to do it. And I've done all I could. No one could have possibly done any more."

Much as I honour the girl, deeply as I grieve for her, I differ from her about that.

She could have done more.

Others have done more.

Now, please, before you get indignant at my hard-heartedness, listen to what I have to tell you about another girl.

This second girl has been helping to support a large family of younger brothers and sisters ever since her father lost his position several years ago. She, also, is a stenographer, and according to pretty reliable accounts, works as hard as the first girl, if not harder.

And she is not broken down, nor anywhere near it. Why?

Well, the first girl thought she gave everything to her people.

The second girl really gave everything.

The first girl gave all her strength.

The second girl gave all her strength, and in addition gave the care and self-restraint that kept the source of that strength still good.

The first girl used to come home from her work tired out and eat her dinner without resting. Sometimes after dinner she would sit down and embroider or read until late at night. Other times she would go to a dance or the theatre. She almost never took any healthy exercise, and seldom got enough sleep. In the morning she would get up with barely time to get to work, bolt her breakfast and run for the train. She often went without lunches to save money for some luxury.

The second girl usually walked to and from work for the sake of the exercise. When she reached home she would rest for a few minutes before eating. After dinner she usually went for a walk. She tried to be in bed every night except Saturday at half-past ten. If she went to a dance or to the theatre, it always had to be Saturday night. In the morning she got up at half-past six, which gave her time for a set of exercises, a cold sponge and a good breakfast. Sundays, she often went out into the country, and almost always, winter and summer, spent a good part of the day out of doors.

Of course, I honour the first girl, but I honour the second even more.

There are men and women everywhere who think they are showing the highest possible devotion to their families if they work themselves to death for them.

But they are not.

There is a still higher devotion, and that is to so live, to save and husband and care for one's self as to be able to keep on living for them.

Don't you think so?

Ruth Cameron

SANG AS HE DIED IN JERSEY CITY HOSPITAL

NEW YORK, AUG. 22.—After living mysteriously for two years in a boarding house in Harrison, N.J., William Barcas, an Englishman, who had an unusually good tenor voice, which was heard every Sunday in a choir of a Fifth avenue church, died yesterday in a Jersey City hospital. It is reported he seemed to be indifferent as to his fate even when he knew the end was near. A letter he received from his son a few weeks before his death appealing to him to return to his home is the only clue the police have to help them in their effort to find the man's family.

All the time he resided in Harrison, Mr. Barcas was an enigma to those who came into contact with him. Much of the time he avoided company and seemed to be in a melancholy mood. He was employed for a time as clerk in a steel plant at Harrison, and the only other known employment was that of a soloist in the New York church. He never mentioned the name of the church. Once he said the church was in Fifth avenue.

A few weeks ago Mr. Barcas grew more morose than ever and passed most of his time in the Harrison cafes. Last Monday his condition became so alarming that the local authorities took him to the Jersey City hospital. For two days he entertained the physicians and attendants with solos. Afterward his health failed rapidly and he became violent before his death yesterday morning.

Among the papers found in Mr. Barcas' room last night was a letter written to him by his son and signed Jack. According to the letter the son is thirteen years old and lives with his mother at the Barcas homestead, 34 Chatsworth road, Bournemouth, England. The letter read, in part:

"Dear Papa,— I can't understand why you did not send the money for the bicycle as you promised. Why are you so cruel to mamma? You are breaking her heart. We have all been so unhappy since you left home and want you to return. It is not you that has caused all this worry and trouble, but it is that accursed habit. I wish you would quit for our sake and come home again."

Mr. Burnham Backs Down

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Mr. Burnham is evading my challenge. He insists on appointing clergymen as judges, and he desires four. He is not willing to accept a layman whose official position renders him above suspicion. Besides, I was willing to let a fair-minded Protestant act as sole judge, but he refuses. He wants clergymen, but why, is inconceivable, as it is pretty well known here that Mr. Burnham does not frequent churches, even on Sunday, except very, very, very, occasionally. But, if he wants clergymen for his two, let him appoint them, and if he wants four judges let there then be four, but I do not wish to drag clergymen into this affair. For my judges, therefore, I am willing to choose laymen. I shall ask Mr. G. N. Gordon, Barrister, a Protestant, and Mr. John O'Connell, of the Cordage Company, to act for me. I would not be afraid, however, to leave the decision to any fair-minded Protestant, such as T. F. Matthews, or E. A. Peck, because it is my opinion Mr. Burnham knows as well as I, that there is no such secret vigilance committee in existence. This is not the first time Mr. Burnham has made a false statement.

He pretends to not know me, but I assure him there are many prominent men in this city who do. He probably does not know that I am a Conservative in politics, (or that I was foolish enough to vote for him last election) thinking he was a truthful man, and a representative Conservative. But I am sorry to say that now I believe him to be neither one nor the other. His principles, if he has any, are neither Conservative nor Liberal. He is a disturber of the peace and harmony which has, for so many years, existed in this city. So, now, Mr. Burnham, name your bank manager and your judges and put up your $100.00. Mine are ready.

Dennis Dillon.

COME BACK TO ERIN

Alternately oppressed by tariffs, pampered by politicians, and almost ruined by charitable patronage, a brighter day seems at last to have dawned for the village and homestead industries of Ireland. Within the last few years Ireland has made progress, and she is by no means the "distrissful counthry" of the bad, old Coercion days. New life blood has been poured into working, agricultural Ireland, and a race of happy, healthy small owners is growing up, thanks to the Land Purchase Act of the last Government. Trim, well-built cottages are now replacing the rough, thatched hovels, a movement fostered by Mr. Bryce's excellent Labourers' Cottages Act; and now that the Irish peasant has got both land and a comfortable dwelling, Mr. Birrell's work in following up this good beginning is enabling Paddy to enjoy all he has got. Co-operation, too, in agriculture, nurtured and spread under the aegis of the Royal Irish Industries Association, has shown the small holder the road to a more comfortable existence, and his children no longer look to emigration as the sole hope of rising in the world. Village and countryside alike have begun to share the rise in economic well-being, not only in the vicinity of the six great towns, but away far West, amid the mountains of Galway, or in the fastnesses of Donegal and Kerry, where you may see many a charming old lady with her spinning wheel turning the native wool into the yarn from which the famous Irish homespuns (and they are really "home" spun) are made. It is worthy of note that according to the recent census of production no "shoddy" is manufactured in Ireland. The friends of Ireland give two reasons for this. First, the Irish peasant doesn't want to cheat—he is proud of his work; and secondly, if he wanted to cheat he doesn't know how. Possibly the same explanation obtains in the case of the lace industry, which during the last few years has taken a new hold of the young womanhood of Ireland. Their devotion to the classes is wonderful. Some of them walk five or six miles there and back again when class is over. The teacher superintends and helps correcting the mistakes of the work done at home and explaining the new patterns. The girl who can work a great variety of patterns is more of a heroine than if she were worth her own weight in gold.

Both lace and homespuns are largely adjuncts to agriculture. Side by side with these, however, there are arising new industries, which, while occupying a man's whole time, still keeps him living in the country. Few at this time of day need to be told of the great soap-making industry at Donaghmore, Co. Tyrone, where soaps of world-wide renown are made by McClintons, under the Celtic cross erected by St. Patrick himself. Less widely known are the famous hand-made carpets from Dun Emer, near Dundrum, Co. Dublin, and Donegal, whose products rival in beauty and durability the products of the ancient East. Then there is the homespun industry of Donegal and County Kerry, the Connemara flannel, which enables the Galway peasant woman with a hooded cloak of this woolly material dyed a rich black and with a scarlet petticoat showing underneath, to present a study in vivid colour not often seen out of Spain.

Even in the linen trade, with its 34,000 power looms aggregated into big factories in smoky towns, the village worker has a share. For, despite the perfection of the machine, the work of the hand loom weaver still carries the palm for durability, and the products of the 600 hand weavers scattered through Down and Antrim are eagerly sought after, and obtain the highest prices. Of late years the north of Ireland has been made the centre of an industry in which sportswomen are keenly interested, that of knitting the coats and caps that are worn by the open-air girl.

Perhaps the most remarkable revival of Irish industry has been in the horn trade. Comb-making in the eighteenth century was one of the greater trades carried on in Dublin and its vicinity; indeed, to this day so great was its fame that a comb stamped "Corne D'Irelande" fetches the highest price in Paris, where they are highly prized. Of the six hundred firms in the trade at the early part of last century only one is in existence to-day. But this one proprietor bids fair to succeed where the others have failed. For the first time the refuse from the making of combs has been turned to account, and now comes forth from the factory in form of beautiful paper-knives and bead muff-chains; the old secrets of dyeing have been preserved, and beads of a perfect onyx design are made and sold readily for as many shillings as the refuse formerly sold for pence. The best augury for the future is the growing resolve of the Irish people to work out their prosperity by their own efforts.

Eczema Worse in the Spring

The Blood is Watery—Difficult to Get the Healing Process Started.

But Whatever the Cause You Can Relieve the Itching and Heal the Sores With

Dr. Chase's Ointment

Salt rheum and eczema are usually worse at this time of year because of the sudden change of temperature and the watery condition of the blood.

It is not necessary to refer to the suffering caused from the intense itching nor to the tendency of these ailments. The essential point is how to bring about cure, and if you have been reading the cures reported from time to time in this paper you will already know that there is nothing like Dr. Chase's Ointment as a cure for eczema, salt rheum, psoriasis and every form of itching skin diseases.

This ointment stops the itching almost as soon as applied, lessens the discharge from the vesicles or blisters, cleans out the morbid growth and stimulates the process of healing.

Because other treatments have failed, you may feel discouraged. But in Dr. Chase's Ointment there is a cure for you. We know this because of the reports we have received from so many thousands of cases.

For instance, there is the case of Mrs. Nettie Massey, of Consecon, Ont., who had psoriasis or chronic eczema so bad that almost the whole body was covered with sores, and three doctors failed to cure her. One doctor said she could never be cured. Write to Mrs. Massey about her case.

ALLURING AGE

Some of our great men (says the "Sketch") are looking forward to the time when they will be done with rivalry and ambition. One of these is Lord Rosebery, who dearly loves a garden, though he does admit that the library looking out on it will be the greater delight. Sir Edward Grey the Foreign Secretary, is another. He, too, wants a garden and a library and a river flowing "not too fast, nor yet too slow."

Lord Kitchener also thinks graciously of age. Although his energy is limitless and his love of work the passion of his life, those who know him best say there are moments when he looks forward to the time when he has accomplished his ambitions and duties, and when nothing more will be expected of him beyond growing orchids and seeing that his trees are pruned at the right moment.

SIGNS OF KIDNEY TROUBLE.

In the early stages kidney trouble is known by backache and urinary disorders. Later come dropsy, stone, rheumatic pains, and perhaps Bright's disease. But don't wait for these. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills will help you in a few hours. Their direct effect is on the kidneys, but the liver and bowels will clear away the pains and aches and make you well again.

A Number of Delinquents Appear in Police Court This Morning on Various Charges—Fined $10 For Exceeding Speed Limit—Will Appeal Case.

Dr. Frederick appeared in the police court this morning on a charge of exceeding the speed limit. Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for the defence.

P. C. Kidd, who laid the charge, asserted that the defendant was travelling about 40 miles an hour when he passed him on Friday evening last on Charlotte street.

"It would be a physical impossibility to drive an auto along Charlotte street at 40 miles an hour, without doing considerable damage to the machine," said the defendant.

Mr. Gordon for the defence, contended that a physician should be accorded special privileges as regards speed limits, where it is a case of life and death.

Dr. Frederick, when put in the box, stated that he had received an urgent call by telephone to attend a patient on Albert street. The nature of the case demanded his immediate presence. As his speedometer was out of order he was unable to note the speed at which he was travelling He did not think it would be over 20 miles an hour.

Miss Lena Darrah, the young lady who sent the call, was the next witness. She testified to having sent in the telephone message urging the doctor to hurry.

Mr. Gordon based his defence on the strength that the defendant was warranted in exceeding the speed limit where life or death was concerned. But his Worship remained obdurate to the appeal, saying that he would not be a party to establishing a precedent in a case where the safety of the public was concerned. He therefore imposed the minimum fine of $10.

The case will be appealed.

Robert Anderson was charged with being drunk and disorderly in a public place. He pleaded guilty to the charge. A fine of $2 was imposed.

A local blacklister apepared on a charge of being under the influence of liquor in the Dominion Cafe last night. A friend of the accused also appeared on the same charge. They were arrested by P. C. Meagher about 7:30 p.m.. Mr. Gordon appeared for the defence. Several witnesses were called, among whom was Lathe Indian list in February. fied to having placed the accused on the Indian lis tin February.

Judgment was deferred until further evidence could be secured.

Six months each in Central Prison was the sentence meted out to two beardless youths named Ernest Lewes and James Wright. They were charged with stealing the sum of $30 from one James Rivera of Minden, who visited this city a few days ago.

The prisoners have a bad record.

The trial of John Doig for receiving stolen goods was deferred for one week, to Sept. 1st. A small army of witnesses were on hand, but were not called.

NOT A SINGLE LINER IS LEAVING LIVERPOOL CAMPANIA CREW STRIKE

Special Wire to the Examiner

LIVERPOOL, AUG. 24.—Although the city press and the big newspapers all over England are calling on the tramways to reinstate the strikers, and avoid further trouble with transportation employees, the local tramway company is obdurate and some 250 men are still out.

Prospects seem brighter for settlement this afternoon, when, at 3 o'clock, there will be a conference at the dockyards. The men are still holding up the Trans-Atlantic traffic. The men of the Campania are going out this morning, thus adding to the number of strikers of this class. Not a single liner is leaving Liverpool these days, and nobody knows when they will leave. Canadian, as well as United States steamers are tied up here. The situation altogether is still threatening the whole transportation systems of England.

HAY FEVER SIMULTANEOUS WITH BLOOM OF GOLDEN-ROD

The "goldenrod" is in bloom, and to that fact is attributable the appearance of a malady commonly known as hay fever. There are a number of cases of this complaint through out the Province at the present time. and the victims try all sorts of remedies to relieve them of their sufferings.

To the Woods.

The course generally taken by the hay fever victim to obtain a cure, or relief, is to pack his grip and his himself to the woods. Even the medical profession are not immune from an attack of this kind. When a prominent Toronto doctor was talking about the disease yesterday, he remarked that he had just received a message from a fellow-practitioner in St. Catharines, stating that he had received his yearly visit from this unwelcome guest, and that he was packing up to go to Quebec, as he always does when the attack comes on. This is the only way he can obtain relief, as all his medical skill cannot enable him to prescribe a medicine that will give any relief.

The medical profession are at a loss to account for the cause of this ailment, but the prevailing idea is that certain flowers which bloom about this time of the year are responsible, and the most glaring offender along this line is the "golden-rod."

Pollen-Laden Breeze.

This flower is not seen much around the city, but abounds in some localities throughout the country, and the pollen from it will carry for miles in a breeze. If you happen to be subject to attacks of hay fever, and get one breath of the perfume from this flower you are immediately seized with a fit of sneezing, that is the first warning of your impending troubles. After that they come thick and fast in a few minutes. Your eyelids become inflamed, your nostrils are irritated, and you feel generally as if some one were tickling the base of your brain with a feather. When this stage is reached you are seized with an uncontrollable desire to sneeze. sneeze, and then sneeze some more. until your eyes feel as if they were being shaken out of your head.

Help Wanted.

After these preliminaries the victim settles down to devise some plan for relief, which is seldom found. The best prescription a doctor can give you is a change of air. This does not mean that you must board the first transcontinental passenger train that comes along, or book passage on an ocean liner, but, as one medical man explained, city dwellers find relief and often complete cure by spending a few days in the country, while the ruralist is apt to find the same relief by a visit to the city.

A peculiarity of the malady is its accuracy of recurrence every year. and once you fall a victim to it you can look for its return on almost the same day in the years to come, and relief will come as regularly on time as the disease itself.

What might be termed mental suggestion will sometimes bring on a sneezing fit and pave the way for an attack of hay fever. One doctor, who has a large practise in the city, states that he has known cases where an attack has been brought on by the odour from roses and that in a case of this kind once the victim has been subjected to the disease, the sight of an artificial rose will cause a recurrence of the tickling sensation and subsequent disorders.

Serum That Failed.

German scientists have worked for years on possible cures for this medical enigma and for a time the claim was sent broadcast that a serum had been found which would wipe out the scourge. Little is heard of this serum now. As there is a difference of opinion concerning the cause, so there is disagreement as to the proper relief measures. Some hold that a highly nervous condition is the cause, and treat the sufferer as they would one with nervous prostration. Others lay the blame on certain flowers as aforesaid, but there is only one thing that they are unanimous on and that is that the malady exists, and while it lasts the victim suffers untold tortures until relief comes of its own accord, which is generally with the first frost.

MANY REGISTRATIONS ON THE FIRST DAY

As the result of the registration in the city of Peterborough yesterday, 431 names were added to the voters' lists. Registration was brisk throughout the day and there was an especially big rush in the evening. Those eligible for registration have this evening and Friday and Saturday in which to get their names on the list. The figures for yesterday are as follows:

No. 1 Ward—Louis Sprys shop, 101.
No. 2 Ward.—Council Chamber, 87.
No. 3 Ward.—Police Station, 113.
No. 4 Ward.—Wm. Lee's shop, 67.
No .5 Ward.—Old town hall, 63.

A.O.F. ELECT OFFICERS

The latter part of yesterday and a portion of to-day was taken up by the election of officers. Following are the results:

H.C.R.—E. Ramsey, Montreal.
H. S. C. R.—W. R. Woodstock, Toronto.
H. C. T.—H. C. Wilson, Toronto.
H. C. M. E. — Dr. L. Seacourt, Brantford.
H. C. S. W.—A. Webber, Winnipeg.
H. C. J. W.—A. Martin, Hamilton.
H. C. S. B.—H. McPherson, London.
H. C. J. W.—J. R. McWilliams, Peterborough.
Auditor—F. Abbots, Meaford.

The discussion of the report of the committee of the state of the Order, was resumed this morning. The Chief Ranger suggested that the books of the Order be examined when necessary. This suggestion was unanimously adopted. It was also decided to appoint a representative at Winnipeg to take charge of the work in the Western Provinces.

The election of the Laws and Judiciary Committee and the selection of the next meeting place of meeting of the High Court, will take place this afternoon.

A number of Toronto and other delegates, who are staying at the Montgomery House, say that it is one of the most patriotic hotels in town, it being the only one to raise the Union Jack.

A SCOTTISH MOUNTAIN ADVENTURE

Particulars have come to light of an adventure of a Pitlochry lady and gentleman who lost their way in the mist on the Perthshire hills on a recent Sunday night. It appears that they left in the course of the afternoon to make the ascent of Beny-vrackie, some 3,000 feet high. Slight mists prevailed, but it was not till the return journey was being attempted that the fog descended so thickly as to make it practically impossible for the pair to proceed, especially as they were strangers to the district, and were unfamiliar with the route. The night was accordingly spent in proximity to a large rock, and a weary vigil it proved, with the vaporous mists for a shroud, amid the eerie silence of the mountain solitudes. When dawn broke the wanderers attempted once more to make their way to Pitlochry, but by this time they had quite lost their bearings, and, taking an opposite direction, moved along Glenbrera-chan, ultimately finding themselves in Cluneska, six miles from their proper destination. They were, owing to the rugged character of the moor traversed, fortunate in reaching there without mishap.

Meanwhile their friends had become alarmed at their prolonged absence, and on Monday morning Mr. J. H. Dixon, scoutmaster of the local troop of Boy Scouts, was communicated with, as well as the police. Arrangements were made for a search party of Boy Scouts and others turning out, but happily these were countermanded, as the missing pair had reached their own place of abode shortly before ten o'clock. They were little the worse of their untoward adventure beyond suffering from cold and being soaked to the skin by the penetrating fog.

A KEEN FISHER

Of special interest amongst the coast birds of the United Kingdom, as comprising, together with the gannet, the only British representatives of the pelican family, are the common cormorant and the green cormorant. The latter is often called along the west coast the scart, while on the Cornish coast it is known as the shag. A head relatively small, and naked behind the eyes and at the root of the beak, and a dilatable membrane beneath the lower jaw, showing incipiently what becomes exaggerated in the pelicans, are common characteristics of all three species. The common cormorant is a slightly larger bird than the scart, measuring in length, when full grown, about thirty-four inches. In colour it is of a blackish-green metallic hue, with back, scapulars, and wing coverts more bronze-green, with a grayish tinge, the feathers margined with greenish-black. In the full breeding season are developed a crest, white lines on the neck, and oval patches of white on the lower flanks, which, seen when the bird is flying, account for the saying among fishermen that he carries a watch under either wing. A more permanently striking feature of the cormorant is the appearance of its eyes, which are emerald green, and these, together with its long flexible neck, give it a snakish look.

Either on account of its strange appearance of character, the cormorant seems from early times to have been a favourite bird for poets to draw similes from. Ovid, for instance, tells how Aesacus, a son of Priam, leaping into the sea after the nymph Hesperia, who was changed into a bird, was transformed into a cormorant. Its appearance must have struck Milton as suggestive of something evil, for in "Paradise Lost" he presents the picture of the author of all mischief flying up—"and on the Tree of Life" sitting—"like a cormorant." Shakespeare, however, discloses some true knowledge of the bird, which he makes use of as a type of insatiability.

Cormorants dive in a different manner from the gannet, which latter, closing its wings in mid-air, plunges downward with a splash into the sea. The cormorant, when intent on fishing, swims on the surface with its head under water, and from this attitude it will suddenly and silently vanish from sight, making its reappearance after some time at a distance, it may be said, of sixty or seventy yards from the spot where it disappeared. Under water it uses its wings as well as feet, the tail serving as a sort of rudder. In the London Zoo they have now a tank with a glass front where these movements of diving birds such as the cormorant can be easily studied. Easily trained, the cormorant has been pressed into man's service, and formerly it was kept for sport in the same manner as hawks. In the reign of Charles I. there was an official who held the position of "Master of the Cormorants." The birds used to be taken to the water hooded, and when fishing was to commence the hoods were removed and ligatures fastened round the lower parts of their necks to prevent the fish caught being swallowed. Their catch they were made to abandon to their keepers, being rewarded afterwards by a share of what they had earned. In China the custom of using cormorants for fishing is an old-established one, and the birds, a different species from the British breed, are every now and then allowed a turn at fishing for themselves.

BOURASSA ANNOUNCES HE WILL SUPPORT A CONSERVATIVE

MONTREAL, AUG. 24. — Henri Bourassa, the Nationalist leader, stated this morning that he would support Oliver Asselin, nominated by the Conservatives in the St. James division of Montreal, and he believed he would be a strong candidate against reciprocity. Bourassa stated positively that he would not run in any constituency himself for the Dominion house.

FIREWORKS A FEATURE OF PETERBOROUGH EXHIBITION

The directors of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition have made arrangements for two big displays of fireworks in connection with the evening performances on the last two nights of the fair. The fireworks exhibition given last year proved most popular, especially with the children, who were unanimous in pronouncing it the best feature of the show. The directors wisely, therefore, have decided to give an even more elaborate display than last year, and no doubt this feature of Peterborough's great exhibition will be looked forward to with a great deal of interest.

CHICAGO FIRM WANTS TO BUY CANADIAN HAY

LONDON, ONT., AUG. 23—The following letters were sent by a Chicago commission house to Mr. J. H. Fairbank, ex-M.P., of Petrolea, whose farms are the largest in Lambton county:

"Dear Sir,—We are advised by the railroad company that you are in the hay business, and would ask you to name us price on any part of ten cars, each No. 1 timothy, No. 2 timothy and No. 1 clover mixed hay, delivered Chicago, shipment in sixty days, you to ship it in bond, you to take care of the duty. As soon as the reciprocity bill goes into effect we believe we can do considerable business in your territory on hay, and would like to get started with you at once. (Signed) Bridge & Leonard, commission merchants."

Second letter:—"Dear sir,—Possibly we will do business with you in any event, but certainly will if the reciprocity bill passes your Parliament. We are surprised to hear that there is any opposition to it in Canada. (Signed) Bridge & Leonard.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

At the Grand Opera House, last evening the advent of the theatrical season was inaugurated with "The County Sheriff," a comedy-drama of ranch life. The plot of the drama consists mainly of the experience of the Sheriff, with Thomas Dayton, a cattle hustler. The Sheriff is aware of Dayton's bad practices, and the cattle thief accordingly seeks to rid himself of that official.

Mr. William Innis was truly fine as Dayton, though his was a very difficult role. He never allowed a single weariness to creep into his acting and his sonorous voice was heard to advantage. Mr. Jack Whiteside, as the Sheriff, was also good, and the other members of the cast gave creditable interpretations of their various roles. It was a Western melodrama, along conventional lines.

The audience was both large and appreciative.

POLICEMAN SHOT BY BANDITS

Special to The Examiner:

WINNIPEG, MAN., AUG. 24.—Police Constable Traynor is dying this morning as the result of bullet wounds received during a spectacular duel on a street car last night between the police and a couple of bandits, named Frank Jones and Harry Kelly, in the thickly populated part of the city. The affair caused a great sensation, and it took a dozen policemen to eventually arrest the young desperadoes, who will be charged with murder.

LEADER OF THE OPPOSITION HERE

Mr. R. L. Borden, leader of the Opposition, arrived in Peterborough at noon to-day and is registered at the Oriental.

No News Of Missing Tug

Special Wire to The Examiner.

MIDLAND, AUG. 24. — Returning searchers, this afternoon brought no news of the tug Martin, and it is now all most certain that she was dragged to the bottom with all on board, with the barge Albatross on Monday night. Captain Dean and those on board the Albatross escaped in small boats, but nothing has been heard of Captain George Vent and his wife, also Richard Melia, James Hook and Charles Oliver, all of Midland, and four or five others aboard the Martin. It is believed they have found watery graves in the stormy Georgian Bay.

Frost Did Little Harm

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, AUG. 24.—Reports this morning from independent sources in the west, indicate that the recent frost was too light to affect the crops and harvesting is proceeding merrily in most sections, with the prospects, generally speaking, of a good average, if not an exceptionally good crop.

BRIDAL SUPERSTITIONS

Many and curious are the customs regarding brides. In Switzerland a bride will permit no one, not even her parents, to kiss her upon the lips on her wedding day. In parts of rural England the cook pours hot water over the threshold after the bridal couple have gone in order to keep it warm for another bride.

The pretty custom of throwing the slipper originated in France. An old woman seeing the carriage of her young King—Louis the Thirteenth—passing on the way from church, where he had just been married, took off her shoe, and, flinging it at his coach, cried out, "'Tis all I have, your Majesty, but may blessings go with it."

There is an old superstition in Germany against marriages in May.

A favourite wedding day in Scotland is December 31st, so that the young couple can leave their old life with the old year, and begin their married life with the new one.

The Italians dislike wedding gifts that are sharp or pointed.

One pretty marriage custom is that of the bride immediately after the ceremony flinging her bouquet among her maiden friends. She who catches it is destined to be the next bride.

CANOE RUN DOWN OCCUPANTS ESCAPED

Two local young men were the victims of an unpleasant incident last night. While out on the Otonabee River, enjoying a canoe ride, they were overtaken and run down by the excursion steamer, "Manita." Their frail craft was cut in two amidships and they were forced to swim ashore.

The accident happened about 7.30, near Rye's boathouse. It is understood that the Navigation Company will make good the loss sustained by the owners of the canoe.

MAKES PLEA FOR CARDIN

Sir Wilfrid Holds a Big Rally in Sorel—Replies Again to Monk and Bourassa

LEMIEUX'S PLANS

Sorel, Que., Aug. 24.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier at his meeting here yesterday made it quite clear that the Liberal candidate(Mr. Arthur Cardin, had the unequivocal support of the Government. Five thousand people attended the meeting, which was marked by great enthusiasm, the Prime Minister being frequently cheered.

Hon. Mr. Lemieux outlined the program he would follow as Minister of Marine and Fisheries and Naval Affairs. He would deepen the St. Lawrence channel to thirty-five feet, and improve the light and buoy service. He aimed at making Montreal the "New York of Canada," not only the outlet for Canada's west, but the outlet for the grain of the whole American continent.

Sir Wilfrid alluded to Canada's prosperity and the reasons why Canadians should feel proud of it and their country. But the Liberals had a policy which would augment still further the country's prosperity, that of reciprocity with the United States. The Opposition until February last had favored reciprocity, but now they had changed their coats and cried: "Let well enough alone"; a cry that was very flattering to the Liberal Administration.

"The Liberal party," he continued, "is the same as it always was, but the Bleu party, where is it? We hear the name no longer. They call it Tory, Castor, Nationalist. Mr. Bourassa said at Lachine that the Nationalists were not a party. Perhaps when I said they turned their coat I was too severe. Perhaps they have no coat."

Sir Wilfrid has suffered little from the past few strenuous days, speaking with fire and force, especially when he referred to Messrs. Bourassa and Monk. The Premier heartily endorsed the candidature of Arthur Cardin, who was chosen by the Liberal convention here in place of Adelard Lanctot, the late M.P. Mr. Lanctot was in town, but did not attend the meeting.

In discussing reciprocity, the Premier laid much stress on the markets which would be opened to the farmers, quoting prices for hay and vegetables in Montreal and in American cities, to show that, with the duty removed, the farmers would profit by selling to the latter. Referring to the Opposition, he ridiculed the hybrid alliance, which, he said, had but one thought, that being to beat Laurier.

On the navy question he spoke at length, emphasizing the fact that service would be entirely voluntary and had always been intended to be so.

Burglars at Chesterville.

Chesterville, Ont., Aug. 24—Burglars during the night looted four stores, getting away with upwards of $300.

From the jewelry store of W. Lauchien alone one hundred rings, twenty watches, and other jewelry, amounting to almost $400, was taken.

In the store of Sauler and Cassel man they smashed all cash registers, and fitted themselves out with clothing. Razors and knives were also taken in large quantities.

WRECK OF A BARGE

Tug C. C. Martin Is Also Believed to Have Been Lost With a Crew of Ten People on Board

CAUGHT IN GALE

Byng Inlet, Aug. 24.—The barge Albatross of Midland, Captain Dean, foundered in the Georgian Bay, off French River, on Monday night, and it is feared that the tug C. C. Martin of Midland, Capt. Vent, which had the barge in tow, has gone to the bottom also. The tug carried, besides the captain and his wife, a crew of eight. What gives ground for the apprehension that the Martin has become a prey to the waves, is the story brought by those on board the barge, who reached Byng Inlet safe yesterday morning after enduring the hardships of a night and a day adrift on the bay in small boats during one of the worst gales that ever blew.

The shipwrecked party include Capt. Dean, his wife, his niece, Mrs. Alex. Buckanan of Moose Jaw, her two children, a two-year-old girl and a two-months-old baby boy; Miss Clementine Labelle, another niece, of Ottawa, and one sailor named Joseph St. Peter. They were brought up the river by Capt. Louis Lamondie, lighthouse-keeper, whose wharf they were able to make Tuesday night in an exhausted condition, and at whose hands they received all possible care. They had not had a bite to eat for thirty-six hours. The thirteen-foot yawls in which they had been buffeted about in a raging sea were more than half-full of water, and the condition of the party was most pitiable.

The story of the shipwreck in brief is that the barge sprang a leak and was fast sinking, when all on board managed to pile into the small yawl before the vessel sank. She was in tow of the tug so she settled, and this circumstance leads Capt. Dean to believe that in foundering she drew the tug down with her.

"I could not get the tug to notice our signals," the captain says, "otherwise she might have altered her course and pulled us out of the trough, in which our timbers were being pounded in. She did not know, I fear, the sinking state of the barge in time to cut adrift and save herself."

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

The remains of two more victims of the Porcupine forest fires have been found in the woods.

Canal traffic shows a falling off for July, chiefly on account of the decline in ore shipping.

Fully one thousand retail grocers and their friends of Port Huron were in London yesterday spending their annual excursion.

The Government steamer Earl Grey, while proceeding to Murray Bay to take on the Governor-General and party, collided with a tug below Quebec.

Constable Trainor was shot in the lung and Constable Brown was fired at fifteen times by three housebreakers, whom the officers were trying to arrest in Winnipeg yesterday afternoon.

An operation was performed yesterday by Drs. Raymond and Grinda on Prince Jaime, the second son of King Alphonso and Queen Victoria of Spain, for the relief of a nose and throat affection.

Bees Invade Grocery.

Ottawa, Aug. 24.—A curious incident occurred here yesterday when a swarm of several thousand bees, supposed to belong to the experimental farm, attacked a grocery store owned by Geo. Hopper, in the centre of the city, a couple of miles from the farm, and took possession.

Several children were stung, and business had to be suspended while the bees sampled everything sweet in the place. Rev. G. Watt Smith, of the First Congregational Church, who is himself an apiarist, finally succeeded in luring the visitors into a large box, solving the problem for the storekeeper.

Died Suddenly.

Brantford, Aug. 24.—Dr. Almon A. Babcock, for 14 years a prominent dentist of this city, died suddenly here yesterday from epilepsy, to which he was subject. A widow and two children survive.

CLIFFORD IS UPHELD

D. R. A. Members Approve of His Style of Shooting—He Says Kitchener Thought Well of His Method

OFFICERS ELECTED

Ottawa, Aug. 24.—There was not quite as large an attendance as usual at the president's luncheon at the D.R.A. building, Col. Burland of Montreal presided.

In responding to the toast to the King's Prize winner, Private W. J. Clifford took the opportunity of defending his position in shooting which had been condemned at the meeting the night before. I am afraid that you are going to steal this position from me. I certainly could not do the same again in any other position. An organized bunch got in at last night's meeting and condemned my position. I feel as if I had not won the King's Prize at all, but had stolen it, in the light of last night's action."

"No! No!" came from the listeners.

"Of course, I realize that the contortions that some of the competitors go through is unsportsmanlike, and I think if there was a regulation which would compel the competitor to grip the rifle with his left hand, it would mend matters. Lord Kitchener commended my position, and I think it is pretty queer that the riflemen here go up against it like that."

Lieut.-Col. Helmer did not think that any reflection on or criticism of Clifford was meant the night before. He thought that Clifford's position should be satisfactory. He said that if the rules changed, however, to allow that position, but debar using the sling with both hands, it would be much better. Too many men, he said, take the recoil on the sling or on the ground. Private Clifford takes the recoil on the shoulder. The meeting seemed unanimous in the opinion that Clifford's position should be allowed.

The officers elected for the ensuing year are: President, Lt.-Col. Sharwood, C.M.G., Ottawa; first vice-president, Lt.-Col., Davidson, 8th R. R., Quebec; second vice-president, Major McDobbie, St. John, N.B.; third vice-president, Major Hayes, London; secretary-treasurer, Mr. Frank Beard, Ottawa; auditor, Capt. Bell, 43rd Regiment.

The members of the council were left to be selected by the executive with the exception that Lt.-Col. Ross' name was added to the Ontario list.

At Tuesday night's meeting of competitors it had been decided, by a majority vote, to ask council to prohibit vote, to ask the council to prohibit marksmen from letting the butt of the rifle rest on the ground while shooting. This is the position that Private Clifford, who won the King's Prize, uses, and is also used by many other members of the D.R.A. There was a big vote on the question, and the room was about equally divided. However, the chairman ruled that the majority was in favor of doing away with this position. It was also decided to do away with the figure target entirely.

A feature of the meeting so far has been the success attending the sailors of H.M.C.S. Niobe and the cadets.

After the chairman, Lt.-Col Tilton, had congratulated Pte Clifford on his Bisley success, Col.-Sergt. Perry, 8th D. C. O. R., Vancouver, who won the King's Prize some years ago, explained that he was Canadian-born, although papers had represented Clifford as the first native to win the prize.

Goodall Had Revolver.

St. Catharines, Aug. 24.—When examined yesterday by Constable Tuford, Bernie Goodall, charged with threatening to kill Annie Block of Beamsville, was found to have in his possession a revolver loaded with cartridges, which were of the same kind as one received by the girl in a letter.

Good Crop Weather.

Winnipeg, Aug. 24.—Weather bulletins from widely diverse points in the western provinces substantiate the forecasts of Tuesday night in so far that ideal weather for grain-ripening and harvesting obtains. Warmth is once more general, and the depression which followed in the wake of Sunday's storm is largely dispelled. A fairly accurate estimate of the damage caused by the week-end storm is now obtainable and it appears damage was very largely confined to the immediate path of the windstorm. In this route cutting had been mostly completed and the resulting loss by storm is not more than five per cent.

A Jamaican Museum.

Kingston, Jamaica, Aug. 24.—A commercial museum will be established at Jamaica for the purpose of bringing the resources of the island more prominently to the notice of foreign markets.

More Haitian exiles, some of them unfriendly to President Leconte, are arriving here. One of them, who is an adherent of former President Simon, was obliged to wrap himself in a Spanish flag to escape the violence of a mob that threatened him as he was about to leave Haiti.

Never Saw the Will.

Kingston, Aug. 24.—In a statement to the lawyer looking after her interests, Mrs. Abbie George, widow of the late Joseph George, says that she never saw the will of her husband, which has just been found under sensational circumstances. She not only never saw the will, but never heard of it being in existence.

Lost 250 Chickens.

Kingston, Aug. 24.—P. D. Lyman, a well-known poultry fancier, reports that he has lost 250 chickens this summer through "growing light," one of the most fatal diseases among pigeons and chickens. The disease appears to be caused by varying extremes of weather.

INQUEST ADJOURNED.

Wilkie Murder Case Retold In the Coroner's Court.

Toronto, Aug. 24.—Coroner Graham resumed the inquest into the death of Mrs. Ellen Wilkie, who died after an alleged assault by her husband, yesterday afternoon, at which time the evidence of Constable Smith and Miss Lillie Reynolds, daughter of deceased, was taken.

The constable said that on hearing cries of murder he rushed into the house and found Wilkie standing at the foot of the stairs with his hand on Mrs. Wilkie's throat. He separated them and Wilkie proceeded to the back yard. Meanwhile his wife requested the constable to take charge of her husband and offered to go to the station and lay a charge of assault against him. She put on her coat and then said she could not go then. A moment later she dropped to the floor and died almost immediately.

Miss Reynolds said she arrived home shortly after 6 o'clock on the night of the tragedy and found her mother and stepfather in the back yard. Presently the mother came into the house and Wilkie went away on his bicycle.

About 7.30 the stepfather came back. At this time the woman was sitting on the front doorsteps. Her husband told her to go inside, and on refusing to do so he proceeded to drag her in by the hair. A row ensued, and shortly afterward the Italian, Perry, came in. Mrs. Wilkie tried to defend herself by striking at her husband, but missed him and struck the Italian. Perry struck her back, and then Wilkie seized her by the throat.

At this point the woman cried out, and Policeman Smith entered and separated the combatants.

The hearing was adjourned.

CORNER-STONE LAID.

Lieutenant-Governor Officiates at Hamilton Function.

Hamilton, Aug. 24.—Lieutenant-Governor Gibson before a fair-sized crowd yesterday afternoon laid the corner-stone of the Hamilton new public library building, which, when completed, will cost close to $200,000. Of this sum, $100,000 has been contributed by Andrew Carnegie and the balance will be raised by the public library board.

The Lieutenant-Governor in his remarks referred to the question of the distribution of wealth, which he admitted was very unequally distributed. It would be difficult to collect from each person his equal share of wealth required for the establishment of such institutions as the public library, the corner-stone of which he laid yesterday. His honor added that he hoped that some method more utopian than that prevailing to-day for distributing wealth would be eventually discovered.

Other speakers of the occasion were John Milne, chairman of the public library board; Judge Hardy, chairman of the Brantford public library board; John M. Brown, trustee, and H. B. Whitton, trustee, and the talker of the public library in this city.

The library, when completed, will be known simply as the Hamilton public library, and Mr. Carnegie's name will not be officially connected with the institution. A memorial bust of the city's benefactor will, however, be erected in the building.

His Neck Was Broken.

Cornwall, Aug. 24.—John Lawrence, the 11-year-old son of Elias Lawrence, who lives near Spencerville, was found dead the other day in a pasture, with a heavy gate on top of him. It is supposed that the boy climbed on the gate and that the hinges gave way. His neck was broken.

Contemplate!

Do not weigh anything in a second, but take a second thought when a druggist or dealer asks you to accept a substitute for DR. FOWLER'S Extract of Wild Strawberry.

This preparation has been on the market for over 65 years, and so far as we know has never yet failed to either relieve or cure the worst case of DIARRHOEA, DYSENTERY, COLIC, CRAMPS OR PAINS IN THE STOMACH, CHOLERA MORBUS, CHOLERA INFANTUM, SUMMER COMPLAINT, OR ANY LOOSENESS OF THE BOWELS.

Mrs. A. J. McLellan, London, Ont., writes:—"It is with much pleasure I write to say that I have used Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry with great success. Last summer my little boy, 18 months old, was attacked two or three times with Diarrhoea, but each time, after one day's dosen, he was all right again. My husband was also taken bad one night. The next day three doses cured him. I always insist on Dr. Fowler's being given me."

If you want to be on the safe side, ask for Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, and insist on getting what you ask for.

The original is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont. See that our name is on the wrapper. Price 35 cents.

WHAT ABOUT RUGBY? PETERBOROUGH'S CHANCES

What about Rugby?

This question is prompted by the announcement that the Hamilton Tigers, champions of the Big Four last year, will have their first practice of the season on Saturday.

Peterborough, for the first time in many years, was not represented by a team in fast company last year, but surely there will be something better in store for the local rugby fans this coming year. If the enthusiasts would get together in the near future, something might be accomplished towards giving Peterborough a team in the O.R.F.U. this season. There must be enough material in town from which to round out a pretty fair team. The Collegiate Institute has developed some promising juniors and one would look for some material among all the old country people now living in Peterborough. Of course the Canadian rugby is considerably different from the English rugger, but the fundamental principles are the same, and each game requires speed, sureness and accuracy in catching, and the ability to kick and tackle well. Ottawa dug up in Stronach, an old country player, one of the cleverest outside wings ever seen in Canada, and there may be plenty of such material if it is looked after. Any movement that will fill in the hiatus in local sporting circles between the baseball and hockey seasons would no doubt be eagerly welcomed.

AQUATIC CHAMPIONSHIP MEET ON SEPTEMBER 9th

The Peterborough Aquatic Championships will be held on Saturday, Sept. 9th, under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A. This was the decision arrived at by the committee last evening.

There are as good paddlers and swimmers as can be found anywhere in the country righe here in Peterborough, and it is the intention of these Aquatic Championships to bring them out. With this object in view the committee announce the following programme for the opening meet, which, while not complete, by any means, will at least be a step in the direction of giving aquatics the place they ought to have in Peterborough.

Programme.

100 yards' swim, any style, City Championship; open to all.

50 yards' swim, any style for Junior City Championship, 16 years and under.

Single blade canoe, Championship.

440 yards' swim, any style.

220 yard swim, any style, Junior.

Canoe fours.

Life Saving copetition, for the handsome "Wm. E. Lech Shield".

If a suitable place can be secured for a spring board the above programme will be supplemented by some fancy diving.

It is the intention of the committee in charge to hold the above sports at some convenient part of the Canal or river, that will afford a good view for spectators.

Any further information may be secured from Physical Director Thompson, at the Y.M.C.A.

JIMMY CALLAGHAN WILL BE IN SATURDAY'S GAME

Jimmy Callaghan came back. Jimmy Callahan of the Chicago White Sox, has already accomplished this feat this season and now his near name-sake, Jimmy Callaghan, third baseman last year with the T. A. S. team, is the second come-back, having returned on Tuesday night from Pittsburg, where he has been playing ball with a fast semi-pro team. He was immediately signed up by the Petes for Saturday's game against Happy Brydie's Pets and will cavort around the short-field position. Manager Brydie was not caught napping, however, and when Geo. Minorgan of the Grand Trunks of Belleville dropped into town on a short visit to his home here, the astute manager of the challengers grabbed him off before the Peterboroughs could get their hands on him. Manager Brydie has consented to do the receiving on Saturday, and Rahmel will slant them over, while the Regulars will have Greaswell and Gonter in the points. Altogether it looks like a real battle Saturday afternoon.

PAPKE BEATEN

NEW YORK, AUG. 23.—The sporting experts are certain to-day that Billy Papke is another who has gone away back. He made a disgraceful showing against the very ordinary Sailor Burke last night. General opinion was summed up by the Marquis of Queensbury, who said:

"It was very stupid; in fact, too rotten to talk about."

Burke beat him with consummate ease on points. Papke blocked and clinched incessantly, while Burke did the greater part of the leading. The champion, so-called, did not show a trace of the knockout wallop that put Ketchel, Dave Smith, and Jim Sullivan to sleep. He seemed afraid to stand up and take chances with the Sailor.

It was a disappointing bout to all those patrons of boxing. The crowd hissed and booed continually after the first two rounds.

Burke went to his man at every stage of the fight, and while he did not show any scientific work, he belaboured the Illinois pugilist, which earned for the Brooklynite a hearty round of cheers as he left the ring with scarcely a mark on his body.

Electric Restorer for Men
Phosphonol restores every nerve in the body to its proper tension; restores vim and vitality. Premature decay and all sexual weakness averted at once. Phosphonol will make you a new man. Price $3 a box, or two for $5. Mailed to any address. The Scobell Drug Co., St. Catharines, Ont.

HE HAS GREAT CONFIDENCE

LONDON, AUG. 23—Because of the great showing Bombardier Wells has been making in his early training, and the evident amount of superfluous flesh the champion is carrying the betting against Wells' chances of defeating Johnson in their fight here on Sept. 30th, to-day dropped from 20 to 1 against to 5 to 1 against.

The supreme confidence of the former lance-corporal is infectious, and his friends are much impressed. He will open a camp at Putney on Sunday, having finished his theatrical engagements as he is billed for "two a day," for three weeks. He will try to make his camp a social centre, and, as he thinks he does not need much condition, most of his training will be road work on the Bois de Bologne.

GOTCH WILL WEIGH 204

CHICAGO, AUG. 23. — Frank Gotch now weighs 207 pounds. He will weigh 204 on the mat on Labour Day. On the former occasion he only weighed 197 lbs. Bookmakers are now taking 4 to 5 Gotch, and 6 to 5 Hackenschmidt. Hack has a blistered knee and a lame back.

BASEBALL

A LONG-DISTANCE VIEW.

New York Telegram: Now that Kelley's team is once more on their home ground they may perk up again, and in the last weeks of the campaign may make trouble for Rochester. So far this year Toronto has won nine and lost five games with Rochester, while Montreal has taken nine out of sixteen from the Broncos. It is just barely possible that these teams may win enough from the leaders in the last few weeks to give either Baltimore or Toronto a chance to take first place, but considering the fast clip at which Rochester has been playing lately, the two Canadian aggregations will have to "go some" to get more than an even break in their future games with the champions. Baltimore, although the team started poorly in the North may return South and go through that section like a hurricane, which is about the only factor which will give them a chance for the championship.

BEN HOUSER STAR IN WEST.

Cleveland Press: Ben Houser is the best first baseman in the American Association. He has starred for Indianapolis and if he had more aggressiveness and ambition he would be one of the game's best. A left-hand batter, Houser has no trouble with the southpaws. He has a good arm, and throws around the infield accurately. He is over six feet in height, and throws with his left hand. He has speed, and is a fairly good base-runner.

BANKING ON McCONNELL.

New York Telegram: Hal Chase's pitching troubles are not likely to be so difficult next season. If George McConnell can pitch as well in the American League as he does in the Eastern, and if the men now on the staff are in the form shown in 1910, the Highlanders should have a strong staff. Chase's one year as a manager must have taught him many lessons as to handling pitchers, and perhaps next year he will be able not only to look out for his pitchers, but for all of his team, to better advantage.

The umpire scouts overlooked this indicator man. The following is a sample of his work:

The Atlanta Deppens and the Birmingham Gold Dusts, negro baseball teams, were playing a game in Atlanta. In one inning the Gold Dusts had the bases full with no outs. An ebony hued batter stepped to the plate. The pitcher sent the sphere to the catcher.

"One ball," called the negro umpire. Again the pitcher got busy.

"Two balls!" raised the umpire.

After the third ball pitched the man with the indicator shouted:

"Three balls!" Once more the sphere went across the plate.

"Fo' balls, yo' out!" shouted the umpire. The batter was highly indignant.

"What!" he yelled. "Me out? Whah yo' git dat, niggah?"

"Now, look a-year man," said the umpire. "Yo' gotta be out. Dey ain't no room fo' yo' on de bases."—Atlanta Journal.

Sam Crawford, who has been out of the game for several days from the result of a foul tip which struck him in the face in practice, returned and did the heavy stick work for the Tigers.

Firstbaseman Myers, formerly of Boston, with Toronto for a week last season, is playing first base for Jersey City.

Tim Jordan had a good day with the bat, with two singles and a homer.

Wyatt Lee forced in the winning run at Rochester yesterday with a base on balls—literally forced the champions to take the game.

Pitcher Peterson played second base for Providence yesterday, and Buffalo won in a romp.

It is expected that Hans Wagner's injured leg will be strong enough for him to play in Toronto.

The Pittsburg Pirates, contenders for National League pennant, will play at the Island a week from Thursday.

Larry Schafly worked out with the Toronto team to-day in practice.

Your old friend Pat White, the burlesque comedian, than who there is no better, has $1,000 to say the Leafs will finish no worse than second.

Bob Hall, the former Oriole and Newark infielder, and later with the Buffalo club, has been given his unconditional release by Manager Geo. Starlings of the Bisons.

Our grandchildren will be talking about the pennant race of 1911 in 1975, it's so excitin'.

For ten innings the Giants and the Cubs flew at each other's throats, while McGraw flew at the umpire's throat. The Giants triumphed, but McGraw got the axe.

Marquard, whom the sport writers panned unmercifully as an $11,000 "con" beauty, is proving to be worth about 'steen million iron men to the Shadow Dwellers under Coogan's bluff.

Senator Walter Johnson is pitching so well these days it's almost impossible to say anything unkind about that $7,000 salary. He licked the White Sox 7 to 4.

But it is not impossible to ask if Ping Bodie is honestly a real, regular fence-buster. Ping struck out the only three times he faced the Washington speed merchant.

Sherwood Magee has turned his attention from hitting umpires to clouting the ball, a homer, a double, and a single being his contribution for the day.

Del Gainor proved he was back in the game by lacing out a swell single in the eleventh, and thus the Tigers sunk their claws in the Yankees' hide.

The Boston Hustlers will again do their spring training at Augusta, Ga.

Outfielder Jones of the Boston Nationals, has been sold to Memphis, of the Southern League.

Pitcher Killilay has won four of the five games he has pitched for the Boston Red Sox.

Manager McAleer plans to have his Washington team do its spring training at home next year.

"Scoops" Carey is doing good work with the Pirates, and making a hit with the Pittsburg fans.

During the Boston Red Sox' last stay at home they lost three out of five games to St. Louis, and won four out of five from Detroit.

Eastern fans are eager to get a slant at Marty O'Toole, the $20,000 pitcher, who has joined the Pittsburg team.

"Nap" Lajoie is doing great work with the stick and crowding Ty Cobb for the battling championship of the American League.

Now that the Tigers are playing at home, Detroit fans figure that there is nothing to it but first place for the Jennings crew.

Cleveland, instead of the White Sox, gets "Buddy" Ryan, of the Portland team. Ryan is the fielding, batting and throwing sensation of the Pacific Coast League.

The White Sox are a little leary of the Athletics. When the Sox play in Philadelphia they spend their spare time cutting open baseballs used on the Quaker lot, trying to find some phoneys.

Chief Meyers of the Giants, complains that Pitcher McIntyre's spit ball resembles a sprinkling cart when it floats over the plate. The Chief says that he will wear a rubber veil when he next faces the Cub pitcher.

The YOUNG FELLOWS' BARBER

Gentlemen—At 144 Simcoe St., rear of Payne's Drug Store, you will find one of the most up-to-date and best run tonsorial parlours in the city. The new proprietor, Mr. Percy Lynch, has had wide experience in some of the best shops on this and the other side, besides a local reputation as a high class workman. The famous Stark system of Face Massage and Shampoo is something new in Peterborough and is used exclusively. One trial will convince you that up-to-date methods bring you greater results for your money than the old-time way. Young fellows want to look just right, and one call will bring you back again, as the service is without equal in the city. A high class barber is employed and Mr. Lynch guarantees everyone prompt attention and careful work regardless of time or numbers. One trial is solicited, the work will do the rest.

OBITUARY

W. J. PRESTON.

Mrs. Jamieson, London street, today received word of the death, in Moose Jaw, of her brother-in-law, Mr. W. J. Preston. The deceased was a former resident of Toronto and was well known in Peterborough, having frequently visited this city.

JOSEPHUS GILES.

One of the best known and most highly respected residents of North Monaghan passed away last night in the person of Mr. Josephus Giles, whose death occurred at 9 o'clock at his home, "Fair View," after an illness of eighteen months. For forty years the late Mr. Giles had lived in the township and had earned the esteem and affection of the community. He carried on the business of market gardening, which naturally brought him into close touch with the citizens of Peterborough, and among them he enjoyed the same respect as accorded him by his neighbours in North Monaghan. He was sixty-five years of age and was born in Cobourg, Ont. When he was only one year old, his parents moved to Peterborough, where Mr. Giles resided for over twenty years, finally moving to North Monaghan, where he permanently located.

He was a member of the Christian Science church.

He is survived by his wife and a family of three sons and two daughters, George J., of Edmonton Alta., Mrs. Jas. Akey, Peterborough, Miss Erminia, Clifton E. and Manson at home. The funeral will take place on Saturday afternoon from the family residence, "Fair View," North Monaghan at 2.30 o'clock to Little Lake cemetery. Service at the house at 2 p. m.

WEDDING BELLS

CAMPBELL—BROOKS.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized yesterday at the residence of Mr. T. J. Brooks, Sherbrooke street, when Miss Lottie Brooks was united in wedlock to Mr. Henry Campbell. The ceremony was performed by Rev. G. W. Henderson, there being only the immediate relatives and friends present.

The bride was attended by Miss Ola Tompkins of Lindsay, and the groom by Mr. George Stinson of Peterborough. There were many friends present from a distance.

The bride was the recipient of many beautiful presents. Mr. and Mrs. Campbell will reside in the city.

WHITE—MENZIES.

A quiet but very pretty wedding was solemnized yesterday afternoon at 18 Stewart street, when Lilian May Menzies, daughter of the late Mr. Archie Menzies, was united in the bonds of holy matrimony to Mr. Frank L. White, of Havelock, by the Rev. Mr. Carpenter. The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. Jack Menzies.

The splendid display of useful presents was symbolic of the esteem in which the couple were held by their friends and relations.

After a dainty wedding repast had been participated in, the happy bridal couple left for Vancouver and on their return will reside in Havelock.

POST CARD COLUMN

WHY NON-UNION LABOUR?

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Why should the Whitney Government turn down the painting of the Normal School from union labour to non-union labour? Why should the work be taken out of the hands of old, tried and reliable friends, and be given to those who do not employ union labour? Perhaps Mr. Burnham will explain to the working men to-night why this insult has been extended to union labour.

Yours truly,
Painter.

WHY NOT PAY?

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Mr. Burnham states to the Peterborough Review that the statements made "that he did not pay his debts when a candidate at the last election" are untrue.

Well, so far as this is concerned, Mr. Burnham may not have hired the horses himself, but certainly the livery men are complaining that they were not paid for the horses that were used on behalf of Mr. Burnham last election.

The Sometimers that were promised to be paid by some of Mr. Burnham's supporters, and who worked on Mr. Burnham's behalf, were not paid, and promises that were generally made to the workers of Mr. Burnham have not, up to the present time, been fulfilled, and those having rigs in the city that were promised pay, that worked for Mr. Burnham, state they have not, as yet, been paid.

There could be money found for the detectives and spies and for the buying of information, but money was not obtainable to pay the legitimate debts of looking after the election for Mr. Burnham.

The public will not be put off with quibbles.

Yours truly,
One Who Knows.

Post Card Column of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I see by the Examiner of last night that the Forester delegates are complaining about there being no flags displayed in Peterborough. The commission, no doubt, is not due to any lack of knowledge of the fitness of things, but rather to the fact that the people of Peterborough having so many of them each year never notice excursions or conventions and would probably not be aware of the presence of the Foresters here, is not for the newspapers. However, there is a good deal of justice in what the visitors say and a little courtesy, such as hanging out a few flags, does not cost very much and at this same time is appreciated.

Yours,
PETERBOROUGHIAN.

THE QUEEN OF FLOWERS

A novelty which quickly sprang into popular favour at the bygone Scottish Fairs was the rose. Baskets full were to be seen for sale, and at a penny each the beautiful blooms found their way into many homes. Where a flower is seldom seen. The rose is one of the most distributed of flowers. It is scattered over a great part of the world between the twentieth and seventieth degrees of north latitude, and is found in both the Old World and the New, though so far no native roses have been found south of the Equator. Sir Joseph Hooker found seven kinds of wild roses in Palestine, and the damask and cabbage rose are grown everywhere in Syria. Wild roses grow abundantly in India, Tibet, Abyssinia, and Mexico. Our common Burnet rose, or Scotch rose, may be found in the Himalayas and almost every part of Northern Africa, Europe and Asia, and the dog-rose extends north to Siberia. In literature the rose has always had a prominent place. In Persian poetry and sacred history references to the rose are numerous; it was greatly beloved by Arab writers, who made it the subject of graceful legends; and it played an important part in the works of the poets of India, who never tired of singing its praises as the symbol of beauty. In the fiction, more than in the poetry, of the East it occupied a high position, and dear friends and lovely women were compared to it. The poets of Greece and Rome constantly refer to it in their writings. In the poems of chivalry and allegory the rose formed the centre theme of many of the finest pieces of literature of the day, notably in the thirteenth century allegory, the "Roman de la Rose."

In Germany the best known legend connected with the rose was the "Legend of the Rose Garden of Worms." At the close of the fourteenth century mediaeval religious writers placed the flower in the abode of the blest. In time it became the symbol of the Virgin and Christ, and also of martyrdom; and, later, St. Bernard made it the image of Christ in His Passion.

In Alsace customs connecting the flower with May Day observance have a special place in the national poetry; in the ballads of Denmark it exercises a magic influence which is not attributed to it in German and Latin literature. Turkish versifiers disguise their love under various versions of the allegory of the Rose and the Nightingale. The rose is also an emblem of death and misfortune, and a popular superstition in many countries connects roses flowering out of their season with disaster to the owner. The red rose especially is regarded as a sign of death, particularly if it flowers in autumn or winter. The literature of Northern Europe represents roses as spread on the dead and planted on their graves and it is a popular superstition that the flowers which bloom are reincarnations of the souls of the departed.

FINDS HER HUSBAND

Montreal Woman Tracks 77-Year-Old Swimmer Through Reading of His Prowess

A WONDERFUL FEAT

Montreal, Aug. 25.—Through seeing a despatch in a local newspaper about Captain Jack Williams of Montreal, a man of 77 years of age, who had performed the remarkable feat in St. Louis, Mo., of swimming a distance of thirty-three miles, Mrs. Catherine Williams of No. 69A. St. Maurice street, had been at last informed of the whereabouts of her husband, whom she had given up as dead.

Four years ago Captain Jack Williams, an athletic old man, well known locally for his remarkable abilities as a long-distance swimmer, and as the swimming instructor at the Grand Trunk Boating Club, left Montreal for Detroit by way of Toronto. His wife, whom he had left well supplied with money, and the house rent paid in advance, did not worry much when she heard nothing from him for several weeks. But when the weeks became months and the months years, she became satisfied that he had died without being able to communicate with her.

For several years past she has been supporting herself by washing, but the infirmities of old age are coming upon her and her power to work is decreasing as is her old age. Her husband, she thinks, is making money by his swimming and she will now seek to obtain his help.

Burned to Death.

Cornwall, Aug. 25.—Miss Mabel Bailey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Bailey of Maxima, across the river from here, was the victim of a horrible accident at her parents' home. Miss Bailey and her mother were preparing supper with an alcohol stove, the fluid exploded, setting fire to her clothing, and she rushed from the house by the front door, a human torch. At the sound of the explosion, Mrs. Bailey rushed into the house, having heard her daughter scream, and proceeded to extinguish the flames, which were burning the curtains, but was not aware that her daughter's clothing was on fire. Miss Bailey threw herself on the grass on the lawn in an effort to put out the blaze, and neighbors rendered what assistance lay in their power.

Physicians were sent for and found the unfortunate girl was horribly burned from the ankles to the body and her arms nearly to the shoulders. Miss Bailey lived for twelve hours and suffered terribly.

Both Murdered.

St. Catharines, Aug. 25.—The inquest at Beamsville into the death of Edna Comfort and her child, who were found drowned in Beamsville reservoir on July 5, ended yesterday, when the jury returned a verdict to the effect that both mother and child were murdered, though the verdict did not state by whom or in what manner. No new evidence was taken at yesterday's session, Crown Attorney Brennan informing the jury that Detective Miller had followed up every possible report and rumor which had reached his ears, but to no avail. The jury retired at 3 o'clock, returning with the verdict two hours later.

Summer Hotel Burned.

Clayton, N.Y., Aug. 25.—The Hotel Frontenac, the largest in the Thousand Islands, was laid waste by fire Wednesday night. It is owned by Charles Goodwin. The structure was built about twelve years ago at a cost of $360,000. It is situated one mile from Clayton, and is the most fashionable hotel in the islands.

Several of the guests, it is said, were restrained by force from leaping from upper storey windows and were whisked down the stairways in safety. Guests who fled half-clad from the burning hotel, wrapped themselves in raincoats and bath robes, and went to other parts of the islands.

Steamer Hard Aground.

Cornwall, Aug. 25.—The steamer Riverside of Brockville is aground in Bergin Lake, above Mille Roches, and the water in the lake will have to be raised before the boat can be released. Tugs have been at work all day but have been unable to help the boat. The Riverside was chartered by the Beaver Lacrosse Club of Mille Roches to run an excursion from Cornwall to Ogdensburg yesterday, and was on her way to Cornwall when the accident happened. Her bow is about 18 inches out of water, and it is expected that some difficulty will be experienced in floating her. The excursion had to be cancelled.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Sugar has advanced by ten cents per hundred pounds.

Canada's trade returns continue to show large increases.

The Duke of Sutherland arrived in Montreal on his way west, where he has bought large tracts of land.

Hamar Greenwood, M.P., sailed for Canada on the Empress of Britain yesterday, for a short trip to the Pacific coast.

The Liberal convention for Ste. Anne's division, Montreal, last night nominated J. C. Walsh, prosecutor, to oppose Mr. C. J. Doherty, sitting member.

Manoel de Arriaga, a lawyer and Procurator-General in the Provincial Government, was yesterday elected the first President of the Republic of Portugal.

George Annett of St. Thomas, a G.T.R. brakeman, was instantly killed at St. Thomas yesterday afternoon. He jumped to the station platform and slipped.

Charles Norman, who fell down a stairway at the Tecumseh House, London, on Wednesday night, succumbed to his injuries yesterday. His skull had been badly fractured.

The British steamer Warwickshire, passing Perim, Arabia, signalled that all of the thirty passengers and crew who were missing from the steamer Fifeshire, had been saved.

Except in Bangor, Wales, the anti-Jewish outbreaks have ceased. Public meetings have been held at Tredegar and other towns, at which citizens enrolled themselves as volunteers to help keep order.

While 3,000 men, women and children stood by, Peter Carter, a negro, was burned to death on a brush pile in the main street of Purcell at five o'clock yesterday afternoon. He had attacked a farmer's wife.

B Wilkens, K.C., Kingston, yesterday received a telegram from the Dominion Government, stating that they had adopted the model of new ballot boxes he had made, and that they would be used at the next election.

Three daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Schmidt, Chamberlain street, on the outskirts of Port Arthur, were burned to death in a fire which destroyed their little house Wednesday. Two other children narrowly escaped the flames.

Where is Mona Lisa?

Paris, Aug. 25.—M. Drioux, the examining magistrate, who is conducting the inquiry into the disappearance of Leonardo Da Vinci's great painting, "Mona Lisa," is at last in possession of a clue, which he hopes will prove the starting point of a more profitable investigation. A Parisian official has come forward with the information that on Monday morning last he saw a tall, stout individual, who appeared greatly agitated, carrying a large, panel covered with a horse blanket. The man jumped on the 7.47 express for Bordeaux as it was pulling out of the station. As the station is a few minutes' walk from the Louvre, the time corresponds with the time the picture is believed to have disappeared from the museum.

Another report that the picture had passed through Belgium is also being investigated, but the evidence in this instance is not so circumstantial as the Bordeaux clue. A thorough search is being made of the Louvre, which has been closed for three days for that purpose.

A BIGGER MAJORITY

Sir Wilfrid Predicts a Greater Victory Than Ever in Great Speech at Terrebonne Yesterday Afternoon

WARNS CONSERVATIVES

St. Jerome, Que., Aug. 25.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Hon. Mr. Lemieux invaded the enemy's country yesterday afternoon and addressed a meeting in St. Jerome, a Terrebonne riding represented in the last Parliament by Mr. Bruno Nantel. Terrebonne County was not kindly to the Liberals in 1908, but if yesterday's meeting is an index, September 21 will see a triumph for the Prime Minister and his candidate, Dr. Desjardins. A large crowd listened attentively to the speakers. Sir Wilfrid was as young and vigorous looking as ever, and made a ringing speech.

"Believe me, we will have a greater majority this election than ever; all the signs point to it. I feel that justice and truth will triumph again," declared the Premier.

During his address Sir Wilfrid startled his audience by announcing that, if defeated in the coming elections, he would retire at once and forever from public life and would not lead the opposition in the next Parliament. "Rest to me is sweet now," said the Premier, "and if defeated not a word of reproach will pass my lips." Sir Wilfrid stated that if he was twenty years younger, he would continue in Parliamentary life regardless as to whether Liberals or Conservatives gained the victory, but that at his age, and with his record, he considered that he had well-earned a rest.

It was Sir Wilfrid's reply to the statements that have been circulated by the Nationalists that led up to his announcement. After characterizing the story of compulsory naval service as a baseless lie, he referred to the charge that he sought imperial honors. "No king," he said, "can give me the honor that I want prize, the love and respect of my countrymen." The popular verdict which he had already so often gained, Sir Wilfrid continued, was that which he considered the highest honor.

It was strange to hear the Premier speak of age and frailty, for he stood erect and firm as ever, and his voice was clear and resonant despite his many ardent speeches, while his young colleague, Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, made a brief address owing to hoarseness, which he has contracted during the past few days. Sir Wilfrid spoke for thirty-five minutes.

The Premier, in making his address, realized that there were many Conservatives in the audience and at one time addressing these, warned them not to be led into an alliance with the Nationalists, whose policy was ambiguous and led nowhere.

Sir William Whyte to Retire?

Winnipeg, Aug. 25.—The Tribune last night says:

"A rumor is current to-day in Canadian Pacific Railway circles that Sir William Whyte will, in the course of a few days, announce his retirement from active management of the railway system in Western Canada. The persistency of the rumor leads to the belief that it will be confirmed within a few days.

"Sir William will continue his relations with the company in a capacity similar to that occupied by Sir William Van Horne. The name mentioned in connection with the rumored vacancy is that of G. J. Bury, now general manager of western lines."

Frost Damage Light.

Winnipeg, Aug. 25.—The frost danger has, temporarily at least, passed eastward, for all over the west Wednesday night higher temperatures prevailed. The lowest was recorded at Calgary, where 34 degrees above was the minimum.

Excepting Emerson, where it registered 27, all other points stayed above 40. Present forecasts and indications promise still warmer weather and a successful gathering of the crops is again in prospect. Damage from recent cold, wind and rain is now known to be very light. In most of the sections where crops were beaten down, they have already gained strength and are standing almost erect again.

In Search of Painters.

Winnipeg, Aug. 25.—One hundred prominent Western Canada business men will visit the chief industrial cities of Great Britain during June next year. This was definitely decided at a directors' meeting of the Winnipeg Industrial Bureau yesterday. Leading financial and commercial men representing all western cities will be invited to accompany the Winnipeg party, covering six weeks itinerary abroad.

Lost Nearly $10,000.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Aug. 25.—Under Sheriff Belier said last night that warrants had been sworn out for the arrest of the members of the gang that operated a fake pool room at Lewiston recently, where many Toronto men were fleeced. Warrants were sworn out by a man who is said to have lost nearly $10,000. The whereabouts of the gang are known and arrests are expected shortly.

ALL HOPE GIVEN UP

Midland Tug C. C. Martin Has Not Been Heard From—Only Chance is That the Crew Got Ashore

TEN DROWNED

Sydney Inlet, Aug. 25.—The worst fears as to the fate of the tug C. C. Martin of Midland would seem to be only too well grounded. That the vessel is lost, with all on board, is the general belief, although some persons, in discussing the probabilities, are not unwilling to hope, if not believe, that the tug has gone ashore on some island, and having no yawl, the crew are unable to make their plight known, and must await the succour that will come later on from some quarter or another. This view of the situation is, however, hardly borne out by the facts as known. The Martin had in tow, in a tremendous sea, a big barge and the barge sprung a leak and foundered, sinking so quickly that those abroad the tug had no time to cut the tow-line and thus save their craft being dragged down with her consort.

The persons on board included Captain George Vent and Mrs. Vent. They have four children, Richard Mollie, single; Robert Hook, Ernest Wright, Charles Oliver; W. Martin, F. Mosquirm, P. Passerme. It is thought there was another man on board.

The story of Captain Dean, master of the barge Albatross, is to the effect that the tug was laboring terribly, with lights out, and that the distance which separated the craft, 250 feet, was too great for communication, even with the megaphone, so loud was the roar of the tempest. He tried in vain to signal the tug before he and his fellows on board the sinking barge climbed into their little yawl and cut adrift. Into this thirteen foot boat, a mere shell, seven people piled, braving a sea running mountains high. With but two oars and they not mates, with only a frail girl using a tin pail to bail, the seven weathered the furious gale and were saved. The staunch little tug, built to stand a sea, new and well equipped and manned, was, it is believed, not equal to the fury of the storm, and sank into the depths, blotting out nine or ten lives.

Constable Will Die.

Winnipeg, Aug. 25.—Harry Kelly and Frank Jones, the young bandits who participated in a spectacular street battle Wednesday with a score of policemen, were yesterday remanded pending the fate of Constable Traynor, who fastened five bullets in a bullet penetrated his bowels.

Bandertsmen have been taken off of independent posts of entrance to the town to aid the farmers in gathering harvest help, and the country is being overrun with desperate young men. Firearms was fired upon repeatedly only a week ago by a young highwayman from the fields, and he was unarmed. The police commissioners are contemplating changing the tradition al policy of sending officers on patrol without firearms.

Murderer on His Wedding Day?

Rushville, Ind., Aug. 25.—Wm. Lee, who is accused of murdering his parents and younger brother and then firing the house, it is said, ran out of the house at the time of the fire rally dressed and spread the alarm. He claimed that he was awakened by the blaze and barely escaped, not having time to rescue the others.

Investigation has done out that Lee and his father had quarrelled frequently over money matters. William was expected to wed Miss Myrne Taylor, daughter of a wealthy farmer.

Jay Riders, Beware!

Montreal, Aug. 25.—Chief of Police Campeau has furnished his special constable squad with stop-watches with which to time the speed of those who drive their automobiles at too rapid a rate through the city streets.

Twenty-five policemen and five lieutenants have been furnished with these time-recorders and have been told to go out and do their duty in this particular matter.

The chief's action has been prompted by the increasing number of complaints received at his office and also by the inability of his men to judge the speed of a fast-moving machine with an ordinary timepiece. It has been impossible heretofore for an officer to swear as to the actual rate at which a car has been moving, and of course this has made convictions for this offence hard to secure.

Engine Breaks Down.

Nyack, N.Y., Aug. 25.—Harry N. Atwood is working on the broken engine of his aeroplane on the crown of a hilly meadow near the Hudson River here. Otherwise this is to be the finish of his flight from St. Louis. The young Boston aviator last night said he hoped the most embarrassing predicament of his long journey.

His biplane is in an awkward box out of which only a south or southeast wind can help him, he says. It rests near a haystack on the small sloping meadow, 200 feet above the Hudson and about 2,000 yards from the water. Almost behind him is the Rocky Hook Mountain, rising 600 feet, and to the south and east nearby apple trees and some tall locusts make it a difficult place to take wing.

Girl is 4n a Trance.

Montreal, Aug. 25.—Doctors and police are equally baffled by the mystery of the young and unknown girl, found apparently asleep on a St. Catherine street car at 11.30 yesterday morning.

All efforts to rouse her have proved futile, and for fourteen hours she has remained in a state of coma. The doctors say she was neither intoxicated nor drugged, and believe now that she is in a trance or prolonged sleep. There was nothing about the girl's clothes to identify her.

Murder Over Dollar Bill.

Buffalo, N.Y., Aug. 25.—A quarrel over a dollar bill led to the murder of John Orans, 37 years old, an inmate of the almshouse here yesterday. Chris T. Nolan, 30 years of age, another inmate, is charged with the murder. It is alleged Nolan beat Orans to death with a walking stick. He is believed now to be in Hamilton.

Style in Glasses
There is no reason why persons with defective vision need disfigure their faces by wearing glasses of unsightly shape, entirely out of harmony with the contour of their features. There is style in glasses just as there is style in everything else to wear. There is some style of mounting that is "just the thing for your face" if you can only find it, and we guide frequent visits to the leading factories, and have access to all the improvements in shapes, styles and lens grinding. We will take pleasure in having you select a mounting to carry your lenses, and will be pleased to submit same and assure. We may have drawings some of the newest ideas in mounts, and we are adding a few of these. We can adapt these to suit your glasses. When you have tried all other places without success, come to us, we will guarantee to fit you to your entire satisfaction. We have every modern appliance for examining eyes, including Retinoscope, Trial Lenses, and all else work. Both the examination of the eyes by the latest methods and fitting of glasses is done under our personal supervision.
All our work is guaranteed.

BULLETS AND ARROWS

A Short Story.

Because it was such a fetching costume Nannie bought it, though she hated even the sight of a gun. Howard Hinman raised his eyebrows when the bill came.

"There must be some error here," he said mildly. "Theresa makes a charge for a shooting dress. I thought you disliked hunting."

"I do," admitted Nannie, "but the jacket had such cute little pockets."

Her father smiled.

"We must see that you are provided with a gun to match it," he suggested.

Nannie shuddered.

"If you do, I know that I shall kill myself with it," she warned. "Anyhow, I won't take it with me. I'll pretend to have forgotten it."

Mr. Hinman smiled. In his quiet way he was an inveterate tease and Nannie had not been at the Gables a week before there arrived by express a dainty rifle with a Diana carved on the stock and gold damascening upon the barrel.

It was such a handsome toy that Nannie could not resist the temptation to show it, whereupon three men of the house party insisted upon organizing a hunting expedition, though she was warned not to shoot anything but squirrels in the closed season.

It was significant of the situation that each of the three men proposed a party of two rather than a crowd, alleging that more than two might disturb the game—which was perfectly true, since love, not squirrels, was the game.

Dick Ralston, Harry Post and Bob Hecker had been rivals for Nannie's favour since her debut in society and she found the situation too pleasant to alter by distinguishing one by special approval. For two seasons she had queened it over the three, while Dan Candless looked on and grieved.

He had loved Nannie since she had been a child, but he was not as wealthy as her other suitors. He did not shine in society and he felt the hopelessness of his love.

He had come up to join the house party at the Gables for a couple of weeks, but he found only fresh pain, for the other three had been there two weeks before his arrival, and already they had made plans for every day that occupied Nannie's entire time.

He had made no effort to induce her to alter her plans on his account, and he had taken to long walks in the woods with only nature for his companion.

Nannie was as miserable as he. She could not very well confess that she had purchased the shooting suit merely because she had looked so well in it, nor would she admit her terror of guns. Desperation gave her courage and one afternoon she dismissed her court on the plea of a headache, and when they were safely off to the lake she slipped from the house with the rifle and made for the woods.

For half an hour she tried to force her courage to the point of discharging the weapon. She knew that if she could only get used to the noise it would be all right and she could redeem herself. But each time as she raised the gun her nerves failed her and she shudderingly dropped it from her shoulder again.

At last she raised the gun, shut both eyes and fired.

The smoke was clearing away as she opened her eyes again and there, not fifty feet away, was Dan Candless, stumbling toward her. Even as she looked he pitched forward and on his white shirt she could see an ugly red stain already showing through the linen.

With a heartbroken cry she sped toward him. She had not heard him coming. She was not even pointing at that path, but the gun must have wavered after she shut her eyes. In that moment she knew it was Dan, whom she still loved just as she did before she had become a society bud and belle.

She sank upon the soft moss beside him and sought to raise him. He lay face downward and his stillness frightened her. It was only a moment counted by time, but it seemed years before he at last raised his head.

"I guess I must have hit a stone," he said uncertainly as his hand went to his head. "I remember tripping over a root and pitching forward. Have I been this way long?"

"I don't know," she sobbed. "Dan, I've killed you. Don't die, Dan. I love you, dear. I want you to live for my sake."

"You love me?" The gladness in his voice moved her almost to tears.

"I've always loved you," she admitted, "but I didn't know it until I saw that I had killed you."

"But you haven't," he insisted. "I stumbled over that root there."

"There's blood on your shirt; I saw it," she insisted. He threw back his coat with a laugh.

"Those are berry stains," he explained. "I had some in my pocket and I forgot and lay down on a plank to get a drink out of the brook. I mashed them and some of the juice trickled down on my shirt."

"I'm so glad," she said with a sigh.

"So am I," he said. "If you had not thought you had shot me I never would have known that you still cared. I thought it was one of the other fellows and I was trying to take my medicine."

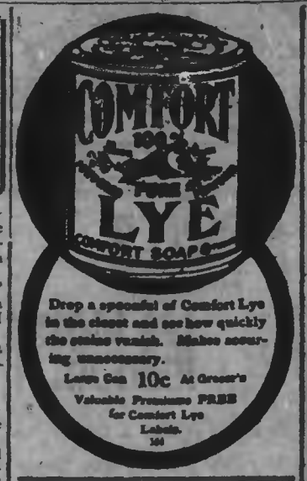
He rose to his feet and for a moment held her in his arms. Then he went to where the gun lay neglected in the grass.

The sun was low as the two crossed the lawn of the Gables.

"What's the bag?" demanded Ralston from the porch.

Candless held up two squirrels that he had shot. "These," he said with a laugh. "There was another killing, but that doesn't score."

But Ralston guessed from Nannie's face and went off to make Post and Hecker as miserable as himself. The heaviest bag had been made with Cupid's arrows instead of a rifle.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.



BRAINS IN DUPLICATE

Facts About the Curious Working of Your Thinking Faculties

Have you ever thought of how your brain works? Most people imagine that their brains work as a whole, but modern science says this is not so. The newest theory is that the brain is for all the world like a big department store. When ribbons are wanted it is only the ribbon department that is concerned. Similarly your brain has innumerable tiny niches, corresponding to your various accomplishments and branches of knowledge, from billiard playing to reading French. When you start to study a foreign language, or a musical instrument, you are literally carving a new niche in your brain.

The brain is like a big department store in another way—a store supplied with water-pipes running to each department. In the brain these are represented by a maze of tiny arteries carrying blood. Just as the water-pipes on one particular floor might burst and ruin the goods in that department alone, so if the walls of an artery in the brain are weakened by poisoned blood, the blood may burst through and ruin that particular niche. Many a man has risen in the morning to find that he has, say, forgotten how to read. Or if the damage is less wide, he may have forgotten how to read his own language, and still be able to read any other language he knows. This might also happen as the result of an accident. You might lose the use of a small part of your brain, and yet have the rest of your faculties intact.

Even in the niches there are fine sub-divisions. The various parts of speech, for instance, are arranged in a language niche like books on a shelf. And just as the books on a shelf may be squeezed so tight that none of them will come out, so a tumor on a language shelf may jam all the grammatical parts of speech so that the patient is dumb. It is known that on that shelf the verbs are placed first, the pronouns next the prepositions and adverbs next, and the nouns last.

The reason is that our verbs are the things we learn first, long before nouns. A baby sees long before it knows it sees. The nouns that we learn last, and so forget soonest, are people's names. That is why old people have such bad memories for names.

Everybody, it is now known, has two brains. They sit side by side, and are exactly alike, but while the niches in one are crammed with various sorts of knowledge, those in the other are blank and empty. A right-handed man thinks with the left side of his brain, a left-handed man with the right. The only use each of us makes of our dummy brain is to control the movements of the opposite side of the body—the weaker side. It knows nothing. It learns nothing. You could have it cut away without lessening your mental power. Many a man has had this done.

Only a child can teach it. A man with his utterance niche ruined struggles in vain to use the reserve one. It is too old to be taught. But many a child has been struck dumb and has taught its other brain. It has, however, to start all over again with "Mamma" and "Dadda," even at the age of nine or ten.—Answers.

Are You Anaemic or Bloodless?

If So, the Spring is a Most Trying Time for You.

Your Hope Rests in Getting the Blood Rich and Red by Using

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Shortness of breath and fatigue with slight exertion, failure of the vital organs to properly perform their functions, and pallor of the gums and eyelids, are among the indications of anaemia or bloodlessness.

The blood is thinner and more watery in the spring than at any other season, and for this reason the person who is subject to anaemia, or lack of blood, suffers the most.

You must increase the number of red corpuscles in the blood, and this can best be done by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This great restorative treatment does not merely stimulate the organs to renewed activity, but cures by building up the system. For this reason its benefits are both natural and lasting.

Sleeplessness, indigestion, neuralgia and sciatic pains and weakness and irregularities of the vital organs become a thing of the past when Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is used.

It is only natural that you should get strong and well when this building-up treatment is used, for it supplies to the blood in condensed and easily assimilated form the elements which go to form new, rich blood.

Your digestive system has failed to extract sufficient nutrition from the food you eat, and hence the necessity of such direct nourishment as is supplied to the blood by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

"And this our life, exempt from public haunt
Finds tongues in trees, books in the running brooks,
Sermons in stones, and good in everything."

I THOUGHT of the exiled Duke the other day when I found a lesson in a piece of toast.

It was at a Sunday night supper at a friend's home. In the absence of her maid she had made the toast herself and it was so absolutely different from ordinary toast that every one of the guests spoke of it.

You see the point was this. The toast wasn't merely passable. It was JUST RIGHT. It was made over just the right kind of fire. It was browned just enough. The butter was put on at just the right moment and in just the right quantity.

Now thinking of the matter casually, you may be inclined to say that toast is toast, and doesn't vary very widely, but really, if you had eaten this toast I feel convinced you would admit that there was as much difference between it and the common or garden variety of lukewarm, half-burned-on-the-outside, half-cooked-on-the-inside toast, as there is between a landscape attempted by a student in his first year of art school and the same landscape painted by a master.

It seems to me that that toast was a work of art because it was a product of the same passion for perfection that stands behind all great artistic expressions.

And the lesson, of course, is that any every-day task, the ironing of a dress, the darning of stockings, the cleansing of silver, the keeping of books, may also be a work of art if the doer of it be only inspired with the passion for perfection.

Between work poorly done and work well done, is a long road. It slopes gently upwards and many people travel along it.

Between work well done and work absolutely right in a shorter road, but oh, very steep and rough, and few people ever enter upon it.

But those few who do take in their hands the staff of a passion for perfection and climb this steep and thorny road find many splendid things on the mountain tops to which it leads.

For the man who works for money there is gold and success and sometimes fame.

For the woman who works for love there is soul satisfaction.

All things worth climbing for, I think.

Don't you?

DEPARTMENT OF RAILWAYS AND CANALS

Branch Line of Railway from Guysborough to Sunny Brae Through Country Harbour Crossroads with an Extension from Country Harbour Crossroads to Deep Water of Country Harbour.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Tender for Guysborough-Country Harbour Line," will be received at this office until 12 o'clock on Friday, September the 15th, 1911, for Section No. 1 of the above line of railway, comprising that portion extending from Guysborough to Country Harbour Crossroads and from the latter point to Deep Water Country Harbour.

Plans, profiles, specifications and form of contract to be entered into can be seen on and after the 15th instant at the office of the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa; at the office of the Chief Engineer of the Intercolonial Railway, Moncton; and at the office of the Board of Trade of Halifax. Forms of tender may be procured from the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals or from the Chief Engineer of the Intercolonial Railway.

Parties tendering will be required to accept the fair wages schedule prepared or to be prepared by the Department of Labour, which schedule will form part of the contract.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind that tenders will not be considered, made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and in the case of firms, unless there are attached the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm.

An accepted bank cheque for the sum of $120,000 made payable to the order of the Minister of Railways and Canals must accompany each tender, which sum will be forfeited if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work, at the rates stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective contractors whose tenders are not accepted.

The cheque of the successful tenderer will be held as security, or part security, for the due fulfilment of the contract to be entered into.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

By order,
L. K. JONES,
Secretary.
Department of Railways and Canals,
Ottawa, August 12th, 1911.

Newspapers inserting this advertisement without authority from the Department will not be paid for it.

HOW TO TREAT A WIFE

A Scottish Judge's Remarks on This Subject

In a Glasgow divorce action the decision of the case, his Lordship said, depended on the standard of conduct on the part of a husband towards his wife which would entitle the wife to judicial separation. A husband was bound in law to treat his wife as a gentleman should or to put it otherwise, reasonably, considerately, and sympathetically, with the result that if he failed to do so his wife could get judicial separation from him, then in this case it was clear that the pursuer would be entitled to the remedy she asked. From the first she was not treated with reasonable consideration. Instead of humoring her and making allowance for her and paying her special attention, the defendant seemed to have kept up his bachelor habits, with the result of mutual unhappiness, for which, although not without provoking language and unreasonable expectations and exactions on her part, he seemed to have been mainly responsible. But to succeed in her demand it was common ground that the pursuer must prove treatment on the part of the defender which had produced substantial injury to her health, mental or physical. His Lordship found no such evidence. He thought it right to add the hope that the parties would, in their own interests and for the sake of their child, now resolve to let bygones be bygones. Nothing had happened on either side, or on the part of the relatives of either party, to prevent the resumption of conjugal relations. Nothing was to be gained on either side by going further with the action.

Did Well in Prison

"Penal servitude must be a healthy state of things," remarked the Recorder of Birmingham to a prisoner, "or you would not look so well on it after thirty-six years of it." The man was ordered to be imprisoned for one day.

He Was Jilted

A man of 75, who sued a woman of 53 at Swaffham, Norfolk, for the return of $25 and some furniture, said that after he had entrusted the money and things to her, with the idea of getting married, she jilted him and married another.

BAD TEETH AND DISEASE

Dr. Erskine Young, of Liverpool, contended at the British Medical Conference that bad teeth contributed to anaemia, tuberculosis, appendicitis and enteric. A little scholar in Liverpool, he said, told him that she cleaned her teeth every morning with "salt and dust from the chimney." What better dentifrice, asked Dr. Young, could there be than chloride and charcoal.

Taxicab Drivers

Medical examinations are now necessary before taxicab drivers can qualify for the renewal of their licenses.

Stitch in the Side

Bending down to a sitting posture several times in succession is an excellent remedy for "stitch" in the side.

THE HUMAN BODY HAS ITS HALO

Dr. Kilner Says This Spiritual Cloud, Though Invisible, Is a Reality

Is your halo on straight? No? You don't know? Then go to Dr. Walter J. Kilner, let him place you in a dim mystical light and look at you through the curious glass cell of his filled with a weird blue liquid, and he can tell you in a minute all about your halo.

Don't laugh. It is a cold, solemn scientific fact. Dr. Kilner, a reputable physician, formerly in charge of the electrical department of St. Thomas's Hospital in London, has discovered the human aura and has written a heavy scientific treatise about it

It exists. Every human being has his halo, or nimbus, or phantom, or aura, or whatever you choose to call it—a spiritual cloud that surrounds the body, that is invisible to the ordinary eye, but that, under circumstances, can be seen.

Dr. Kilner describes how he sees the aura. First, the patient is stripped naked, for such coarse material things as clothes, mind you, will impede this subtle, spiritual essence. Then he is placed in a dim light, about eight feet from a window covered with black serge. Behind the patient is a black or white screen—usually a black one.

Then the observer takes his position. He must have just enough light to be able to see the patient after his eyes have become accustomed to the darkness. Having ascertained that he can barely make out the outlines of the patient, the observer selects a small glass cell filled with a mysterious, deep blue liquid, and he looks through this liquid at a fairly bright light for half a minute. At the end of that time some alteration will have taken place in his eyes. The observer now stands in front of the patient and looks through another cell of the same kind, but with a much paler tint.

The observer looks through this paler cell at the patient for several seconds. Gradually a faint cloud is observed to envelope the patient. To well-trained eyes the cloud is for the most part blueish in tint. This cloud completely surrounds the body to a distance varying according to the health and peculiarities of the patient. After death it vanishes entirely.

In cases of disease the outline of the cloud curves in, as though it were shrunken in the neighborhood of the diseased parts. Epileptics and those persons afflicted with hysterics have the halo developed more on one side of the body than on the other.

Dr. Kilner believes that diagnosis by halo will become a very important part of medical practice in the future. All the doctor will have to do will be to look at the patient's halo to find out where he is sick.

Not only does the human aura's shape and intensity change with the health of the body, but its color varies also. Dr. Kilner has not gone so far yet as to determine what the various colors indicate. He leaves that to the future. But sometimes he sees blue and grey in the aura and sometimes yellow or green. He has, however, noticed that in cases where a colored patch is seen in the aura, it is usually found to be over some tender or painful part of the body.

The aura, as described by the doctor, is of a three-fold nature. First there comes a dark space next to the skin and fitting it like a glove. This, Dr. Kilner calls the "etheric double." At the outer edge of this comes the second aura, which is not luminous, nor can it be seen by rays ordinarily visible to the eye. When the operator's eye has been trained or stimulated by looking through the blue "spectranrine" fluid, it is seen as gently striated or granular.

Outside of this comes the third aura or nimbus. It is faint, entirely structureless, "capable of being illuminated, but not luminous," says the doctor.

Dr. Kilner has not yet succeeded in taking any photographs of these auras. He has decided that their vibrations "lie outside of the ordinary visible spectrum."

LIVING THE SIMPLE LIFE

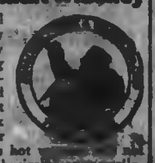
The Queen of Italy With Her Children Is in the Northern Mountains

The beautiful Italian Queen is spending her summer in the wonderful mountains of Northern Italy. Here, in the hills, Helena lives the simple life with her children, who accompany her on all her walks. Queen Helena's domestic virtues are well known. Lately she has been trying to arouse among ladies of the Roman aristocracy a little enthusiasm for the nursing profession, which she holds to be woman's special mission. Just before she left for the mountains she visited Rome's largest hospital, the Policlinica, situated just outside the city gate, known as the Porta Pia. Here, in company with the Duchess of Ascoli, she went through the various wards and gave kind and cheering messages to many of the patients.

Keep Healthy and Vigorous

Loss of appetite, lack of energy, quickness to tire are not, as you think, a natural result of hot weather, but are really symtoms of a disordered physical condition. They show to a trained mind that the organs of the body, from many causes, are not properly performing their respective duties—the stomach may easily digest some kinds of foods and reject others—the kidneys, or liver, may be slightly or greatly out of order—and any one, or all of these conditions, may be responsible for a debilitated system.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey



taken as directed will quickly put every organ in the body in perfect working condition. The stomach, heart, liver and kidneys will adjust themselves and work in harmony to your better health, and the hot weather will not inconveniences you physically.

All liquor dealers, or direct, $1.00 per bottle. Be sure you get the genuine; substitutes and imitations are injurious. Medical booklet, containing rare common-sense rules for health and testimonials, also doctor's advice, sent free to anyone who writes.

Finally, the Queen asked to see the new nursing-school attached to the hospital, and showed the deepest interest in the students and their work. It is likely that the Queen's energetic action will lead to the founding of a home for trained nurses under the auspices of a committee of society women—a long-felt want in the Italian capital.

NAPOLEONIC IDEALS

Prince Victor's Manifesto to the French Nation

In view of the crisis among French Royalists particular interest attaches to an account in the "Figaro" of a conversation which a representative of that paper had with Prince Victor Napoleon. The Prince begins by saying frankly that men were mistaken when they credited him with a blind and systematic species of opposition. He would never join in intrigues which would compromise the nation's interests and paralyse the action of the French Government abroad. Yet it must be admitted that trouble was rife in many quarters, and that authority was lacking.

He thinks, and many politicians, he says are of the same opinion, that Parliamentarism has reached its last phase. The Prince recalls the situation with which the first Napoleon dealt, and of the attitude of the Second Empire towards the social crisis, when it allowed to the working class the right of coalition, which the Republic of 1848 had refused. What France now needed, Prince Victor continued, was a Government of concord and of action, with no more quarrels of parties and coteries.

It was such a Government that the Party of Appeal to the People wished to give to France. It was much keener for reform of institutions than for a change of the personnel. He had not a staff around him anxious for places and favors; he had no cupidity to satisfy. Reaction was never a solution, and the very name of Napoleon was a programme.

"I claim no dynastic right. I am a son of modern France. I remain faithful to the traditions of the French Revolution—sovereignty of the nation, civic equality, liberty of conscience, social progress. I have as little to do with Jacobinism on the Left. I should like to see all the persecutions cease, and never be followed by others. France, who would reject a master, awaits a leader, and it is for her alone to select him freely. The party of the plebiscite is not for revolution, but for evolution. Whatever conception one may have of it, the Republic ought to have at its head a Government that governs."

The Prince concluded by saying that he firmly believed that France would soon return to the great principles represented by the name of Napoleon, which alone could assure order and progress.

German Educational Reform

German education is going through an era of reform at high pressure. The first decade of the present century brought the opening of public schools to girls, whereby they were enabled to rise to the highest academic training. This extension of education was attended by several internal reforms, which pay due regard to the exigencies and changed aspects of modern life.

Strong Healthy Women

If a woman is strong and healthy in a womanly way, motherhood means to her but little suffering. The trouble lies in the fact that the many women suffer from weakness and disease of the distinctly feminine organism and are unfitted for motherhood. This can be remedied.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

Cures the weaknesses and disorders of women. It acts directly on the delicate and important organs concerned in motherhood, making them healthy, strong, vigorous, virile and elastic.

"Favorite Prescription" banishes the indispositions of the period of expectancy and makes baby's advent easy and almost painless. It quickens and vitalizes the feminine organs, and insures a healthy and robust baby. Thousands of women have testified to its marvelous merits.

It Makes Weak Women Strong. It Makes Sick Women Well.

DEAF AND DUMB WEDDING

How the Minister Proceeded With the Ceremony in England

By means of the sign language for the deaf and dumb a wedding has been solemnized in the cathedral at St. Albans, Herts. The bridegroom was William Thorpe, who is hopelessly deaf and cannot speak very distinctly, and the bride was Lily Broughall, who is both deaf and dumb. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. F. Gilbey, of St. Saviour's Church for the Deaf and Dumb. The bridegroom is a tailor and also a skilled French polisher. His bride is a clever dressmaker. The whole of the prayer-book service was read by Mr. Gilbey, who translated the words into the finger sign language. He delivered the charge very slowly, first saying a sentence and then repeating it in finger movements. When the time came for the couple to reply, "I will," the bridegroom uttered words indistinctly and the bride nodded and made finger signs. The bridegroom repeated his marriage vow, and the clergyman spelt out the words on his fingers to the bride, who had to repeat the vows on her fingers. Upon placing the ring on the bride's finger the bridegroom, by finger signs, repeated the explanatory office with the bride nodding and smiling. After the ceremony the register was signed by bride and bridegroom, who left the cathedral to receive the congratulations of their friends. This is the first wedding of its kind that has taken place in St. Albans Cathedral during the past forty years.

INCIDENT AT BISLEY

Three Royal Engineers in an Army Balloon Had a Narrow Escape

A thrilling incident was witnessed at Bisley where three men had a narrow escape from being shot to death. A party of three Royal Engineers—Sergeant Squire, in charge, Sergeant Barnes, and Corporal Sewell—left Aldershot in an army balloon at 5.30 on a free run. They arrived at Bisley at 6.10, and came down within a short distance of the Pirbright range, and bumped along for about 150 yards, finally landing within forty yards of the Stickledown butts, where firing was in progress. The balloon came down with a rush from a height of 4,000 feet, and had it not been for the presence of mind displayed by Sergeant Squires, who clung to a tree, a fatal termination to the incident would without doubt have occurred. There were about forty pounds of ballast in the car when it ascended, an amount inadequate for the number of men carried.

WARD OFF HAIL STORMS

Elaborate Wire Arrangement to be Placed on Eiffel Tower

With the object of safeguarding Paris from the ravages of hailstorms an immense protection against hail is to be erected on the summit of the Eiffel Tower. It is claimed that the elaborate wire arrangement will dispel the electrical influences producing hail. Should the apparatus prove effective two more will be installed on the Pantheon and Montmartre. It is estimated that the losses of French farmers every year by hailstorms amounts to not less than $30,000,000.

Popular Belief as to the Origin of a Fire in Surrey

A fire, believed to have been caused by the sun's rays, broke out on Nicham Common, Surrey, about one hundred yards to the south-east of the Blue House Bridge. AMERICAN HOTEL FOR LONDON "ANCIENT PAINTINGS" SPURIOUS

SAYS AMERICANS CAN'T MAKE SAUCE

Frank Words by Critic of Proposed Skyscraper Hotel in London.

PREDICTS ITS FAILURE

Table d'Hote and Service, He Declares, Cannot Be Up to English Standards.

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday.

THE progress of Mr. Fred Harry, managing director of the chain of Plaza hotels in America, to add another link by the erection of an American skyscraper hotel in Hyde Park Corner is worrying professional providers of pabulum and jam here.

One of these wiseacres, stirred no doubt by the arrival of Mr. Harry S. Black, president of the United States Realty Corporation—the company which is to provide the funds for the erection and equipment of the Plaza-Park Hotel here—returns to the assault on this American invasion by declaring emphatically that because the Ritz-Carlton has been successful in New York does not follow by any means that an American hostelry can succeed in London.

It seems, if we credit this last critic, that the chefs of America's leading hotels and restaurants do not know how to make sauces, and therefore any foolhardy Americans who dares to compete with "all British" chefs—imported here from Paris, Vienna and Berlin—is foredoomed to failure.

One modern English Brillat-Savarin further says that because Americans do not appreciate sauces they never have been able to urge a chef to his utmost. The native American palate, it appears, has never demanded from a chef the one thing that ennobles him—the ability to concoct a delectable sauce.

"The good bedside creation of an Apostle," according to this English authority, "has no more interest for the ordinary American than a piece of mutton boiled."

Him, to the doctor who points his sight to high heaven, said, "There is hope"; as, according to a writer in the Standard, Pierpont Morgan visited New York to prepare the first dinner given at the Ritz-Carlton, and thereby began New York's education in the higher delights of dining out.

Moreover, Americans who have been nurtured with oysters fresh-opened, with mutton soup to which the delicate taste of the vegetable is preserved rather than lost in a sea of grease, who have afforded pinched shad done to a turn, who have revelled in slices of delicious sugar cured Virginia ham, who have munched the real green corn from the cob, instead of pecking maize that can be classified as "first aid to the dentist;" who have assisted at the disappearance of fresh, phlebitic spears of giant asparagus, instead of shrivelled up things that sell at two shillings and sixpence the bundle; who are gross enough to appreciate a diamond backed terrapin and who feel that the toothsome canvasback duck is some dinner bird will be shocked to learn that they know nothing about the delights of the table—that in short they are gastronomical savages.

In dining à la carte, it appears, you Americans have made yourselves laughing stocks. But London is going to teach you how to "enjoy the table d'hote, where you put yourself into the hands of the chef and he introduces you to the higher spheres of kind art!"

The critic is talking of Americans and it is, therefore, easy to understand to whom he is referring when he says:—"A person who has no expert knowledge of the capacities of a kitchen, when left to himself, will order perhaps a rump steak, boiled potatoes and some greens. But, when the responsibility is on the shoulders of the chef, as it is whenever a table d'hote meal is served, then a man's epicurean adoration begins. That is why London knows so much of the delights of real dining and New York knows so little."

One quotes, however, in fair English to admit that "Paris, with some important assistance from Switzerland, has taught mankind what to eat. We have retained the lesson," he continues, "and now we are passing on our knowledge to New York."

"But," says he, "there is another great factor in the matter of successful dining besides the production of the food, and that is the service. And in service nobody can teach us anything. In that department we are unable to instruct the world, and particularly America."

Perfect service, according to this British critic, is the secret of the success of the London restaurants in New York.

Oh, come and listen to the—Expert!

"An American waiter is obsessed with the idea that he is just as good a man as the customer he is serving. He desires to give constant demonstration of that fact. He is officious and frequently he is sentimentally offensive. Thereby he demonstrates his independence and raises himself socially. The waiter in England is not worried at all by his position in society. The idea never has occurred to him that a restaurant is the place to proclaim his independence. To wait is his profession, and he considers it his business to make himself just as good a waiter as he can. Such is the class of waiters that are being employed by the Londoners who have gone to New York to show America how to conduct hotels. New Yorkers are realising and are welcoming the difference."

In view of the indisputed fact that "English" waiters in London hotels are as scarce as white blackbirds and that this service is performed by men trained in France, Germany, Switzerland and Austria, the foregoing declaration should certainly be taken seriously.

In concluding his lecture the prophet says, "There is no hope for a New York hotel in London, because if it deviates from the London demands its success and service is will fail. If it does not it will be an English hotel not an American Annual Exodus to the North from London an Interesting Sight.

TARTANS IN EVIDENCE

Though Scotch Bird Is Preferable for Table Best Sport is in England.

(Special Despatch.)
London, Saturday.

THE great annual exodus to the north for the worship of "St. Grouse" is over. For the last week the three great London stations, King's Cross, St. Pancras and Euston, from which trains run to Scotland and Yorkshire, have been at their busiest. Many well known personages have been among the travellers—many noted shots—but this annual exodus is an interesting, even an amusing sight, well worth studying.

Examine the motley crowd at "runners." The first to catch the eye are the Scottish "gentlemen" of ancient Highland lineage. Ballos, the stranger may presume, from their native heather, they are so elated at the prospect of returning to it that already they have donned the kilt, or at least are sporting the tartan in necktie, vest or hatband. They easily outdo in patriotic fervor that Highland chieftain who, whenever he returned to Scotland, used, at the moment of crossing the border, to change his Saxon trousers for the masculine petticoat of his native Pitlochry.

The eyes accustomed to tartans tell that these "bold Gegis" are wearing the tartan of the royal house of Stewart, the split year eyeballs red and black check of Rob Roy, the yellow and black of Macleod, or the Joseph's kilt of the chief of the Clan Chattan. Some are more modest and are content with the sombre tartans of the Campbell and Sutherland clans, or even the dark plaid of the Black Watch. So much the natural eyesight tells you. But look again and you will see that few of them are real Scots. The real Scot as a rule is content to travel in knicker suit of homespun tweed. Kilted Costumers they are for the most part or "somethings in the City," who, going North as shooting guests, think it "the thing" to dress in the kilt, and who are glad when they reach their destination to change the kilt for the more comfortable knickers and hose, for the Highland heather has a way of making itself felt on the bare legs of the Sassenach.

KING OPENS "THE TWELFTH."

King George opened "The Twelfth" on the Yorkshire moors of Lord Ripon, and is now having some good sport on the famous moors of the Duke of Devonshire. Opening the season on the Yorkshire moors has been a custom with the King for the last ten or eleven years. There is a tradition, of course, that Scotland is the home of grouse, and that it provides the cream of the shooting that is to be had in the United Kingdom. As a matter of fact, though there is certainly more shooting to be had in Scotland than in England and Wales put together, and though the Scotch grouse is preferable for the table, the best sport is to be had in England. And of all the English centres of grouse shooting Yorkshire stands out pre-eminent, as viewed in the light of its results. King George, keen sportsman as he is, has known this fact, and lived up to his knowledge. In fact, the moors around his Highland home, Balmoral Castle, have never been famed for their grouse, and when he goes there it is more to indulge in his favorite sport, salmon fishing with a few days' deer stalking.

At Studley Royal, where the King shot with the Marquis of Ripon's party on the 12th and 14th, the coverts were as usual well stocked, and with the two best shots in England of the party, the host and his royal guest, big bags were the order of the day. Lord Ripon is so marvellous a judge of flight that he has been known to bring down a rocketing pheasant to his feet without moving a step from his position.

Among Americans owning moors are Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Martin, who always entertain big parties at Balmacaan. Admiral D. Beatty, whose American wife is one of the most popular of hostesses, has, as usual, a party at Inverewald for the grouse shooting, and the forest also affords some very good deer stalking. Mr. C. W. Cobbe, of New York, who is tenant of Beaudesert Castle, did not make a start on the 12th, but had a party later. The Duke and Duchess of Roxburghe opened the shooting at Floors Castle at the end of last week, and they have also invited a party to Byrecleugh Lodge, Berwickshire, a fine moor, where about one thousand brace are killed annually.

GOING TO THE DURBAR.

Even Lady Strafford is going to the Durbar at Delhi in November with her husband, Mr. Kennard, who is a noted sportsman and has done much tiger shooting in the Indian jungle. Mr. Kennard has a houseboat on one of the Kashmir rivers. Mrs. Spender-Clay, the only daughter of Mr. William Waldorf Astor, is also visiting Delhi for the Durbar.

The King and Queen have made very few changes at Balmoral from what it was during the last reign. Their youngest children will occupy the very same nurseries as those used by the family of the late Queen Victoria. They are quaint rooms, right in the top of the house, with barred windows, which have been enlarged to satisfy Queen Mary, who likes her children to have plenty of air. In the suite is a toy room full of dolls, horses and playthings used by King Edward and his brothers and sisters. The most interesting of these are stowed away, carefully labelled, in glass cases. It is said that when King Edward visited Balmoral he always went up to look around this room, so full of memories.

Their Majesties are expected to stop for about six weeks at Balmoral every autumn. Queen Mary is fond of breathing fresh air, while the King and his sons are never happier than with a gun or a fishing rod in their hands.

The King and Queen are to make a special journey from Balmoral to London at the beginning of October to take leave of the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, who are leaving for Canada on the 7th of that month. On the eve of the departure the King is to give a farewell dinner at Buckingham Palace, at which all the members of the royal family will be present, with the exception of the Princess Royal and her daughters.

The Duchess of Connaught is well known as a charming hostess, and both she and the Duke intend taking part in the winter sports. They are hardly an abundance of suitable dresses made for them in England.

WARNS AGAINST "OLD MASTERS"

Mr. E. Macdonald Maguire Finds Many Spurious Paintings for Sale in England.

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday.

MR. E. MACDONALD MAGUIRE, art dealer, of New York city, was sitting in the smoking room of a leading hotel here about ten days ago, and he was in rare good humor, as he had acquired some choice paintings for the New York market. He was telling an English friend about his good fortune in purchasing an old master for a song—he is a good singer—when a man sitting at a table near by, overhearing the conversation, joined in the talk with the declaration that he knew of a collection of masterpieces that could be acquired for a reasonable outlay.

Now, Mr. Maguire cut his wisdom teeth some years ago, but (as he himself said) he never overlooks a chance, and the result was a visit to a house near London where sixty-one "old masters"—count them, sixty-one—were found in the home of a "banker," who, paradoxical as this may seem, was in need of cash.

"I looked over these chefs-d'oeuvre (how do you like my French?)," said Mr. Maguire, "and I found that the majority of the 'old masters' hadn't arrived at voting age. But there were two pictures that rather pleased me, a Van Dyck and a Rembrandt, so I invited another 'country gentleman' to visit the house with me the following day. He took one look and then said, 'Come on, Mac, time is money,' and we left.

"The moral of this story," said Mr. Maguire, "is that Americans who come to London bent on buying 'old masters' should steer clear of those private collections that are arranged especially for gentlemen from New York, Chicago, Pittsburg and other money centres who have plenty of cash but no experience as collectors. Of course if they insist on investing in 'old masters' that are painted, while you wait they will get—the experience.

"This game of trapping the wealthy man who wishes to collect some masterpieces and a few ancestors has developed into a fine art. So expert are the imitators that even experienced dealers are at times deceived, and, if that be so, you can figure out what chance the novice has.

"Why," continued Mr. Maguire, as he flicked the ashes from a "two and six" cigar, "I have known of cases where the imitations have been so clever that even the original artist was deceived and thought they were his own work. Wealthy Americans would do well, therefore, to patronise only reputable dealers when they wish to obtain paintings, and when they visit the sales of great collections they will be wise indeed if they enlist the aid of an expert before parting with their money."

As a matter of fact, there are at least a dozen of these spurious collections housed in different parts of London, and the disciples of Mr Maguire should serve as a warning to others, who, unlike him, have no expert knowledge of pi-

Enlargement of Heavenly Bodies on Horizon Only an Optical Illusion

PHOTOGRAPH OF THE SETTING SUN.

LUMINOUS LINE MADE ON THE PHOTOGRAPHIC PLATE BY THE MOON RISING ABOVE THE HORIZON

Mons. Flammarion Answers Question by the Evidence of the Object Glass.

[Special Despatch.]
Observatory of Juvisy, Saturday.

It is indisputable that the sun and the full moon appear to us much larger when they rise or set than at a certain height in the heavens, two or three times larger perhaps in diameter, in a really enormous proportion. But this enlargement is only apparent, due chiefly, as we have said, to the surbased vault of the heavens, which enlarges the projection of angles from the zenith to the horizon.

But are there other causes? In particular does the atmosphere produce the effect of a magnifying glass, as Mons Saint-Saëns imagines?

I have wanted to verify the facts once more, as the ideas of an observer such as he is deserve most special consideration. Already the fact that the measurement of lunar craters or spots on the sun is not affected by the height of the disca above the horizon, except for the well known correction for refraction, which does not change the horizontal diameters at all and "lessens" the vertical diameters, furnishes a lasting demonstration of this absence of real enlargement. But another demonstration, simpler and still easy, can be given by photography.

To judge directly whether the sun and the moon are larger when they are in the vicinity of the horizon on account of an optical phenomenon due to the atmosphere acting in the manner of a magnifying glass is it not the most simple way to photograph them?

This is what we have done at the Observatory of Juvisy. Thanks to the well known ability of Mons. Quénisset, several of these photographs have been successfully taken in spite of the reddish color so little photogenic. Here is their evidence:—

The first photograph, reproduced above, was taken of the sun near its setting in five successive exposures about two minutes apart. One sees that there is absolutely no enlargement on approaching the horizon. Others were taken higher up, which gave the same result. The discs flatten out in consequence of refraction as the sun descends in the west, but the horizontal diameter remains the same. The second photograph represents the moon rising in the sky and depicting itself in an uninterrupted trail of light in the apparatus, which remained open for two hours. It will be noticed that this trail seems rather to grow larger on account of the intensity of light, which increases with the clearness of the atmosphere. There is also an effect due to the deformation caused even by the best object glasses. The real image remains the same. Conclusion:—In reality the sun and the moon are not two or three times bigger at the horizon than in the higher parts of the heavens, as they appear: they are not even enlarged a quarter, a tenth, or any fraction whatever. There is here, therefore, only an optical illusion.

On account of the parallax of the moon and of its greater distance when it is at the horizon than when it is at the zenith, greater by the entire length of the semi-diameter of the earth, it really presents itself as smaller at the horizon than at the meridian by one-sixtieth, or half a minute of arc. This variation is contrary to the apparent variation. It is not perceptible by our eyes.

Is the apparent enlargement influenced by other causes than the geometrical form of the firmament?

The red color of the sun at the moon at the horizon, in contrast with the foggy bluishness of the aerial strata, the vague aspect of an atmosphere semi-transparent and without definite boundary, have perhaps something to do with this illusion. The variations of transparency of the air may play a part that is not to be neglected, but always optical, producing effects of contrast for our retina. The apparent changes of size and the differences of visibility of which the ingenious observer speaks may have still other causes. Is not the aspect of Port Said due to an effect of mirage?

But, in fact, it appears well demonstrated that the enlargement of the full moon and of the sun at their rising and setting, as well as that of the constellations at twenty or thirty degrees above the horizon, is not real, but only apparent.

I have been written to from another source as follows:—

"The sun and the full moon seem to us larger at the horizon simply because we see better what is before us. Almost everything that presents itself directly to our sight is little separated from the level of our eye and is situated at distances relatively small above or below the plane of the horizon. Our faculty of sight being much developed in this direction, objects seen thus appear nearer and consequently larger than in any other position they may occupy in regard to us."

This explanation may be disputed. A tree that has fallen and lies on the ground appears larger than when it is standing. The Eiffel Tower, if placed horizontally on the ground would appear larger, for it would be necessary to walk the length of 300 metres to go over its entire extent.

This question has always attracted the attention of observers, and I have at hand a historical commentary on this subject which contains no less than two hundred articles! "Adhuc sub judice lis est!"

VERY DANGEROUS NOW TO BE ALIVE

Health Hints in English Papers Bar All Kinds of Food and Drink.

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday.

ALL the English papers, because of the hot wave, are full of health hints now, and after reading the injunctions of the doctors one is ready to indorse the statement of an English newspaper writer that it "is really dangerous to be alive."

Readers are told that tea is a poisonous alkaloid which produces chronic dyspepsia and also acts as an irritant on the nervous system. Coffee, it appears, is even more deadly, while alcohol is said to be a poison in narcotic form, no matter in what way it is taken. Even when diluted it ruins the digestive organs, and—tell it not in Glath!—is a certain cause of obesity in middle age.

Now watch the fat men climbing the "water wagon."

Beers and stout, these doctors tell us induce gout, rheumatism and Bright's disease; red wines are indigestible; white wines upset the functions of the liver; whiskey causes hepatic cirrhosis; brandy aggravates all forms of kidney complaints; gin, if persisted in, produces lunacy, and ordinary water—watch the fat men hopping off the wagon!—is dangerous, not only because of impurities and harmful germs that it may contain, but also owing to natural salts and minerals in solution, because it gives rise to painful kidney affections.

Shall we indulge in coal, sweet milk? Nay, nay, brother. Aesculapius declares that milk is full of countless millions of bacteria, and fruit, owing to the system of handling it, is swarming with germs.

Starch, we are told, is the fountain and source of all illness: sugar causes gout, diabetes and rheumatism; meat charges the body with various well defined poisons; fish produces leprous troubles; shellfish are a fruitful source of ptomaine poisoning; cooked vegetables produce gastritis; uncooked vegetables and salads have the same tendency; eggs are indigestible, while spices and condiments are condemned as simply irritant poisons.

ONLY FIVE ARMS AMONG FOUR MEN

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday.

Golfers will be interested in this story. Two caddies were recently summoned by telephone by Colonel McAullese, of Pittsburg, and Mr. E. F. Kean, an American friend, with instructions to report at the tee of the Sunbridge Park Golf Club. When the players arrived they found that both caddies were one-armed, and, as Colonel McAullese is also minus an arm, there were only five arms in the group of four

POST-CORONATION AMERICAN INFLUX

Greater Than Ever Before in England in August Owing to the Previous High Prices.

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday.

ACCORDING to the English press, there are more Americans in London now than ever before in August. The latter part of this unexpected invasion is made up of Americans who, avoiding the high prices of Coronation month, spent the summer on the Continent, but who, now that hotel accommodations may be had at normal rates, are spending a few days in London sightseeing before starting home.

Every channel steamer from French and Continental ports is crowded to its limit by homecoming Americans who wish to see a little London, and the hotels in the Strand and the West End are reaping a rich harvest of "American dollars." At the larger hotels more than seventy-five per cent of the visitors are Americans, and even the smaller hotels and apartment houses are full of business-looking Jonathans and smartly dressed, bright eyed Jonathanesses.

The managers of fashionable restaurants, who have been in the slough of despond since the Coronation rush, are smiling once more as their tables are filled by pilgrims from the land of "I guess," who want only "the best, in a hurry," and who are willing to pay for it. Shopkeepers, too, are wearing the smile that will not come off until our "kin" have returned across the sea. Purchases are not as large nor so lavish as in former years, but this is due, of course, to the fact that their Continental sojourn, bent of the desire to teach London hotel keepers a salutary lesson, has left the visitors with depleted purses. The hotelmen will never forget that lesson and you can stick a large, bright pin in the prediction that the next time there is a "new" in England prices will be "right."

American sightseers are out in full force every day, monopolising the taxicabs and the tops of the 'buses, and at night every street in the West End is full of alert, eager eyed parties from New York and the "Nine Mile." Places of amusement, too, are doing a thriving business because of the invasion, and the banking departments of the principal tourist offices are working overtime to meet the demands of the visitors, who are not only overrunning London but spreading prosperity throughout the university towns, the Shakespeare country and the nearby river resorts.

"We have never before experienced such a rush of American travellers at this time of the year," said one of the men from Cook's yesterday. "It is really unaccountable, unless it is due to the growing popularity of London as a summer resort.

"Some of our visitors are part of the crowd that kept away during the coronation scare, but many others are here for the first time, and seem to have come to stay. This is evidenced by the demand for suitable home sites and residential properties in London and the countryside. So you see the Coronation scare only delayed results a little, and rumors are notably good at verifying the inevitable."

That last statement is the coolest thing in England just now.

The YOUNG FELLOWS' BARBER

Gentlemen—At 144 Simcoe St., rear of Payne's Drug Store, you will find one of the most up-to-date and best run tonsorial parlours in the city. The new proprietor, Mr. Percy Lynch, has had wide experience in some of the best shops on this and the other side, besides a local reputation as a high class workman. The famous Stark system of Face Massage and Shampoo is something new in Peterborough and is used exclusively. One trial will convince you that up-to-date methods bring you greater results for your money than the old-time way. Young fellows want to look that right, and one call will bring you back again, as the service is without equal in the city. A high class barber is employed and Mr. Lynch guarantees every one prompt attention and careful work regardless of time or numbers. One trial is solicited, the work will do the rest.

Flag Theiefist at Ottawa.

Ottawa, Aug. 25.—An American pleasure yacht, the Edgada III., owned by George Thomas, Jr., a Philadelphia millionaire, who is here with his family on a cruise, was found to be flying the American flag yesterday without also carrying the Canadian flag.

The matter was brought to the attention of the authorities by employes of the Militia Department whose building overlooks the canal basin, in which the yacht was lying. Mr. Thomas hoisted the Canadian flag on request, explaining that he was ignorant of the regulations. There was no unpleasantness.

An interesting point about the incident is that the complaints were referred from one to another by a score of Government and civic officials before they found the proper man to take action, the lockmaster.

Charged With Manslaughter.

Montreal, Aug. 25.—On a coroner's warrant, charging him with manslaughter, Phileas du Rocher, 86 Lagauchetiere West, was arraigned before Judge Lanctot yesterday morning and pleaded not guilty. Enquete was fixed for August 29.

Du Rocher was allowed out on bail, two bondsmen of $5,000 each furnishing the security for the man's appearance. It is understood that the men represent the company for whom Du Rocher was employed.

The warrant is the outcome of the death of Joseph Goudreau, employed as stevedore by the Thompson Line, who was working under a hoist when a bar of pig iron fell from the carrier, striking him on the head, causing injuries from which he died on Wednesday. Du Rocher, as foreman of the gang, was held responsible for not using the necessary precaution to safeguard the men employed about the ship, from accidents.

May Strike In Berlin.

Berlin, Aug. 25.—Labor troubles are making their appearance at many points in Germany, and the general belief is that men have become discontented with their present conditions since the success of the British railway strike.

The cigar workers are discussing what they call the inadequate rate of wages paid to them.

The dockers of Bremen yesterday decided to refuse to unload British vessels on which strike-breakers are employed.

The Saxon employers of metal workers have decided to lock out 60 per cent. of their men on Aug. 26.

Found Body In River.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Aug. 25.—The body of an unidentified man, 30 years old, was taken from the upper river yesterday. The body had evidently been in the water a week. Nothing was found that would aid in his identification.

To Reinstate Men.

London, Aug. 25.—The municipal street railway committee at Liverpool yesterday deciding to reinstate the strikers, thus ending the labor troubles in that city.

It took the committee nearly three hours yesterday afternoon to make up their minds to yield to the demands of the strike committee that no discrimination be shown against the strikers returning to work.

Sixty-eight thousand men, who are still on strike at Liverpool awaiting yesterday's decision on the part of the street railway committee, will now return to work.

SUFFERED THREE YEARS

Mr. Morse's Indian Root Pills cured his Kidney Trouble

There are few diseases that cause more acute suffering than Kidney Trouble, and Mr. F. A. Thomas, of Sudbury Ont., is one of those who know it. He writes:

"For over three years I suffered from kidney disease. First I thought I had sprained my back, for suddenly the pain would catch the small of my back and it would be impossible for me to straighten myself up for several minutes. A dull ache across the kidneys was always present, my urine was thick and cloudy, and passing it caused a burning, scalding pain. Tried medicines, but they failed. I was advised to try Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills, as they had cured my wife years before. A few boxes effected a complete cure. I now enjoy the blessings of good health, which is due to this remedy."

Don't neglect kidney trouble—it's too dangerous as well as too painful. That old, reliable family remedy, Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills, has cured thousands and will cure you. It is equally effective in curing constipation and its attendant evils, biliousness, indigestion and sick headaches, and in purifying the blood. 25c a box at your druggist's. 10

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 24.—There was a fair enquiry from foreign buyers for both old and new crop of Manitoba spring wheat, but as the prices bid showed no advance, business was impossible. A fair trade continues to be done in oats, and prices are fairly maintained. American No. 2 yellow corn was offered in store lots to arrive at 69c afloat and car-lots ex-store sold at 70c. There was no change in flour, prices being steady under a good demand. Feed flour came in for attention to-day, and sales of pound lots were made at $1.80 per bag. The demand for shorts is heavy, while bran is easier and steady. The trade in butter, cheese and provisions is good.

PETERBOROUGH FRIDAY AUGUST 26 1911

MR. STRATTON'S SERIES OF SUCCESSFUL MEETINGS CONTINUED AT FRASERVILLE

Rousing Rally Held Last Night With a Big and Representative Crowd in Attendance---Reciprocity is a Winning Issue in That Section All Right.

The Hon. J. R. Stratton held a very successful and enthusiastic meeting at the Orange Hall, Fraserville, last night, which was very largely attended by the residents of South and North Monaghan and of the Township of Otonan.

Mr. George A. Renwick, the well known cheese maker, presided as chairman. Mr. Renwick pointed out that on account of the fact that the United States imposed a duty against Canada of 5c. a lb. upon cheese, the Canadian cheese producers were practically and completely shut out of that market, and that the entire surplus quantity of Canadian cheese had to be exported to the English market in competition with cheese produced in Holland and Denmark and other countries. The English market, after all, is only a limited market of forty-five millions, whereas if cheese entered the United States free of duty, Canada would have an additional market of ninety million people, out of which our competitors in Europe would be shut out by the United States tariff wall which would still exist against them. The English market is frequently glutted and over stocked with cheese and down comes the price. The larger market would create a healthy and continuous demand, giving the producer a steady price for his cheese and a wider market would prevent the middle man from soaking the consummer from 7c. to 22c. a lb. for the same cheese that he only paid from 8c. to 11c. a lb. for.

Mr. Stratton dealt very fully with the Reciprocity issue and pointed out that the removal of trade restrictions and the breaking down of trade barriers, especially in natural products, always worked to the benefit of the producer, whether he be farmer or working man. Both are the great producers of wealth. For instance the manufacturers of the Dominion of Canada to-day import from the United States over one hundred million dollars of their raw material free of duty. That helps to place the Canadian manufacturer upon the ground floor. If it is to the advantage of the Canadian manufacturer, that one hundred million dollars a year of his raw material should be purchased from the United States and brought into Canada free of duty, why should it not be to the advantage of the Canadian farmer to sell one hundred million dollars worth of his product free of duty in the United States and bring back the gold which will enable him to purchase more goods from the Canadian manufacturer and thereby give increased employment to the Canadian mechanic and working man, and at the same time develop a healthy home market.

If Sir John A. Macdonald, during the whole of his life, tried to obtain free trade in natural products with the United States, and if Sir John Abbott, Sir John Thompson and Sir Charles Tupper and all the old veteran leaders of the Conservative party, tried to obtain free trade in natural products with the United States, what possible objection can there be to the Canadian people giving it an honest trial? The rank and file of the Conservative party cannot believe that their former great leaders were short sighted men. They, in their day, did their best to bring about Reciprocity, without success. Why not give it a fair trial?

Mr. R. R. Hall, in his speech, drew special attention to the hard times that existed before the Laurier administration took office, and the immense development that had taken place ever since. This was owing to the fact that trade barriers were removed and larger markets were obtained and increased prosperity followed. The Canadian population is increasing, and still larger markets must be found. This larger market of ninety million people lies right at our door. It is impossible to think that the Canadian people will adopt the Chinese principle of not trading with foreigners. The Englishman, the Irishman and Scotsmen are natural born traders, and are always in search of larger markets. This market of ninety millions can be obtained by the Canadian people simply saying "yes."

Mr. T. A. Kelly, the Liberal candidate for Durham, also spoke briefly.

ANNUAL CHEMONG REGATTA WAS A GREAT SUCCESS

Big Crowd and Splendidly Contested Races While Dance in the Evening Was a Fitting Climax---J. L. Hopwood Captured the Kawartha Challenge Cup.

"The best yet" was the verdict rendered at the conclusion of yesterday's big regatta at Chemong Park and it was undoubtedly a popular one. The prettily decorated Yacht Club House, packed to the limit with interested onlookers and surrounded by the high bank, seating those who could not gain admission to the Club's verandah, made a very striking background to the scene of yesterday's activities. Two excursion-loads, one from Stoney Lake, and the other from Sturgeon Point, as well as the usual contribution from the city, helped to make possibly the largest regatta crowd in the history of Chemong Park. At two o'clock the lake, swept by a breeze which could not have satisfied better had it been made to order, was dotted with craft of all kinds. A capable committee handled the various events in good order, and this task was made easier than usual by the spectators, who kept well off the course, and by the entries who showed, without exception a sportsmanlike spirit and a desire to win. The feature event was the dinghy race for the Kawartha Challenge Cup, won by Mr. Jack Hopwood, who was accompanied by Mr. Harry Greeaman. A field of five contested this event, second place going to Vincent Eastwood, Jr., a 15-year-old mariner.

The canoe sailing race went to Harold Matthews, with Bob. Langford a close second. The duck race and greasy pole manoeuvring were alone well worth the time and money expended. The former event, patented by Mr. Cyril Hill, is one that will no doubt be introduced at all the regattas next season. At any rate is will be a fixture in all future events of this kind at the Park.

A live duck was liberated some distance from the shore and it was immediately pursued by a band of eager swimmers. It was finally captured by Mr. Edwin Houten, who took for his pains both the duck and the prize going with the event. The greasy-pole-walking stunt had a classy field of entries who convulsed the crowd with their ludicrous attempts to bring home the bacon. After several of the youthful aspirants had taken the water, Master Ormie Cavanah, the young brother of Peterborough's old defence man, took a long slide and grabbed the flag. There was little fouling, except in the duck race, and only one or two upsets took place during the afternoon. The winners were as follows:

Canoe sailing—1, H. Matthews; 2. R. Langford.

Open Sailing—1, J. Eakins, 2, J. Hopwood.

Dinghy race (Kawartha cup)—1. J. Hopwood, 2. V. Eastwood.

Boys' Single Canoe—1, O. Cavanah. 2. V. Eastwood.

Ladies' Single Canoe — 1, Miss Knowlson; 2, Miss Flavelle.

Ladies' Single Skiff—1, Miss Knapman; 2, Miss B. Ray.

Men's Single Canoe—1, A. Nicholls; 2, J. Conway.

Men's Single Skiff—1, J. C. Acton. 2. D. Prosser.

Mixed Tandem Canoe—1, Miss Knowlson and Mr. Wallace.

2. Mr. and Mrs. Boy.

Ladies' Swimming, (handicap)—1. Miss Jean Eastwood; 2, Miss Marjorie Ball.

Boys' swimming—1, Ed. Houten: 2, O. Cavanah.

Crab race—1, H. Hill; 2, H. Warner.

Gunwale race—1, H. Warner; 2. H. H. Wallace.

Duck race—1, Edwin Houten.

Men's tandem canoe—1, Warner Bros.; 2. Flavelle and Wallace.

Ladies' tandem canoe — Misses Knowlson and Flavelle; Misses Dean and Cummings.

Men's Single Canoe (open)—1, Harold Hill; 2. J. Conway.

Motor boat, (open)—1, G. C. Boyd. 2. Mr. Hopkins.

Motor boat, (handicap)—1, Goodwin; 2. G. C. Boyd.

Walking greasy pole—Ormie Cavanah.

In the evening a dance was held in the pavilion and a large crowd patronized the affair. The 57th Band led by Mr. Gliddon, supplied music for the dance, and also during the afternoon, in the park.

The Committee desires to thank the cottagees and merchants of this city and the Village of Bridgenorth whose generosity and cooperation made this splendid regatta possible.

As Hon. George P. Graham put it at Brockville: "Did you ever hear of the removal of taxation on food increasing the cost of living?"

WILL GIVE ADDRESS

Hon. Geo. P. Graham, Minister of Railways and Canals, Will Speak in the Grand Opera House on Thursday Night

A TREAT IN STORE

Hon. Geo. P. Graham, Minister of Railways and Canals, will visit Peterborough on Thursday evening next, Aug. 31, and will address a mass meeting of the electors of the West and East Ridings in the Grand Opera House. Hon. Mr. Graham is one of the best known and most popular members of the Government, an earnest, well-informed, eloquent and convincing speaker, whose message to the people of Peterborough County will carry with it the weight of speech from a man who knows what he is talking about, and he will be given a warm reception in Peterborough. Hon. Mr. Stratton and Mr. F. D. Kerr, the candidates in the West and East Ridings, respectively, will also address the meeting.

30-Day Syl-la-bic Shorthand means we can have you working 4 to 6 months earlier, besides saving one-half the fees. Moon College, 282-286 Yonge street, Toronto.

RUTHERFORD TO RETIRE

Special to The Examiner:

EDMONTON, ALTA., AUG. 25.—Hon. A. C. Rutherford, named by a section of the Edmonton Liberals, as a candidate for the Commons against Hon. Frank Oliver, will not be nominated at the nomination meeting on Sept. 14. That Hon. Mr. Rutherford has withdrawn from the contest is learned from an authoritative source.

GOOD POSITIONS

The Peterborough Business College is a worthy link in a chain of Seven Business Colleges, located in the cities of London, Peterborough, Welland, and the towns of Orangeville, Walkerton, Wingham, and Clinton. Owing to its high-grade work it is affiliated with the Commercial Educators' Association of Canada. It is freely admitted that owing to these connections, its students get the very best positions. Fall openings are on Aug. 28th, and Sept. 5th, but at this school each student is instructed privately at his or her own desk; students may enter any day. Many students study all at home, and others partly at home and finish at the College. As Spotton Colleges are the largest trainers in Canada, and have thirty years' experience, it would be well for young people to get their training there. Last year Mr. Spotton trained over 1,200 young people and placed them in good positions. What he has done for thousands of others he can do for you.

PREMIER AT OTTAWA

Special to The Examiner.

OTTAWA, ONT., AUG. 25.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier will address a large meeting of the electors of the district at Rockland on the afternoon of Monday, Sept. 18, and will also speak at a mass meeting of the people of Ottawa, to be held in the arena that evening.

THE DOCTOR'S QUESTION

Much Sickness Due to Bowel Disorders

A doctors first question when consulted by a patient is, "are your bowels regular?" He knows that ninety-eight per cent. of illness is attended with inactive bowels and torpid liver, and that this condition must be removed gently and thoroughly before health can be restored.

Rexall Orderlies are a positive, pleasant and safe remedy for constipation and bowel disorders in general. We are so certain of their great curative value that we promise to return the purchaser's money in every case when they fail to produce entire satisfaction.

Rexall Orderlies are eaten like candy, they act quietly, and have a soothing, strengthening, healing influence on the entire intestinal tract. They do not purge, gripe, cause nausea, flatulence, excessive looseness, diarrhoea or other annoying effect. They are especially good for children, weak persons or old folks. Two sizes, 25c. and 10c. Sold only at our store.—The Rexall Store, McDermid and Jury.

PRODUCED CLOTHING

Trial of Henry Clay Beattie Marked by "Exhibition" of Blood-stained Garments and Gun With Which Woman Was Shot

PRISONER UNMOVED

CHESTERFIELD, COURT HOUSE, VA., AUG. 24.—The fight for the life of Henry Clay Beattie, jr., began today in real earnest, when the story of Beattie's midnight automobile ride with the blood-dripping body of his dead wife across his lap was related by Thomas E. Owen, uncle of the murdered woman, to whose home her body was taken.

Beattie, attentive, quiet, and interested, was in a more serious mood than usual. But his stoical calm was undisturbed by the gruesome story told in a simple, straightforward manner. Owen plainly felt bitter toward Henry Beattie, and he sparred and fenced with Attorney Smith for the defence. Not even the blood-soaked garments that Beattie wore the night of the killing disturbed the prisoner's calm. But he eyed Owen throughout his testimony with serious attention.

Heard His Cries.

Owen declared he was seated in a window when the automobile returned.

"I heard a voice shouting from away down the road," he said. "I recognized it as Henry Beattie's. He was shouting: 'My God! My God! They've killed Louise!' When I reached the car I found her body in a heap on the floor at the bottom of the front seat. It was so badly cramped that we had trouble getting it out of the car."

A ghastly recital of the condition of the murdered woman's body followed. Through it all Beattie gazed steadily at the witness and listened with rapt attention to his testimony.

Counsel led the witness through a lengthy description of Beattie's appearance when he brought his wife's body home.

"Would you recognize the clothing he wore?" asked Gregory.

"Yes."

A big cardboard box was brought in, and the spectators craned their necks as Gregory produced the blood-soaked clothing worn by Beattie on the night of the murder, which Owen promptly identified.

Shotgun Produced.

Owen likewise identified the shotgun as the one which Paul Beattie said he purchased for his cousin, and with which Henry Beattie said the murder was done.

As the gruesome relics were handled by the lawyer and the witness, Beattie sat with a glaring stare, fixed on Owen. He did not once glance at the blood-clotted clothing or the gun. No emotion moved the tense muscles of his face, even when Detective Scherer, sitting within a few feet of him, snapped the trigger of the gun. Going back to the scene at the Owen house, the lawyer asked: "Did you notice the conduct of the accused?"

"He was not very excited," declared Owen. "But he was kept away from the room where he had placed his wife's body. He wanted to get in, but we did not let him. He asked me for some whiskey, and I gave him some."

Owen declared that a half pint bottle which he gave Beattie disappeared entirely, although he saw him take but a single small drink. Owen reviewed the story of the killing as told by Beattie, outlining at length Beattie's explanation of the appearance of a "tall, dark, bearded man," who held him up in the road. He described the wound across Beattie's nose, which Beattie declared was the result of the highwayman's striking him with the butt of the gun.

CHESTERFIELD, VA., AUG. 25.—That Henry Clay Beattie brutally murdered his wife in his automobile and then dragged her to the side of the road, all because of his love for pretty Beulah Burford, was what the prosecution sought to prove this morning in continuation of the trial of the wealthy Beattie. Several detectives told of the impossibility of Beattie's story, that she was shot at from the roadside.

PREPARING FOR WAR

Special to The Examiner

PARIS, AUG. 25.—After a close conference for two hours and a half the French Cabinet framed instructions for Ambassador Cambon, regarding Germany's aggressions in Morocco. Just how the Kaiser's Government will take this ultimatum time alone will tell; but it is no secret that both nations are making active and open preparations along the frontiers for war. Meanwhile there is a feeling of greatly strained relations between the two countries.

PECULIAR SITUATION

Conservative Nominee in Welland Withdraws and it Will be a Fight Between German and the Nominee of Liberal Party

CAMPAIGN NEWS

Special to The Examiner

WELLAND, ONT., AUG. 25.—As a result of the peculiar situation created by the withdrawal of William Munas, of Thorold, nominated as the Conservative candidate in Welland, it is quite likely that W. M. German the Liberal M. P., last session, and an anti-reciprocity man, may be returned unopposed. The constituency is strongly against reciprocity, but the Laurier supporters hope to name the man at the convention this afternoon who will be able to run strong against German. It will be a warm session, as many of German's friends hope still to hold it for him.

KINGSTON, ONT., AUG. 25.—Political matters here are as serene as if no election was in prospect. Both parties are quiet and waiting to see what the other will do. No conventions have been called, and while names are being discussed by the people no announcements are likely to occur before the first of next month. The campaign, if such is necessary, will be short and sharp, and possibly under present weather conditions will be most satisfactory. In Frontenac candidates Edwards and Fair are at it with vigour. Mr. Fair has issued a letter to the electors, pointing out the advantages of reciprocity and he hopes to secure a very large vote in the country, where there is not one incorporated village.

In Lennox and Addington Mr. Vrooman, the Liberal candidate, is putting up a strong argument against Mr. Paul, and this constituency is a very close one.

The Strike Is All Over

FRANCO-GERMAN SITUATION TO-DAY

Special to The Examiner:

PARIS, AUG. 25.—All France is nervous to-day, while its Cabinet is considering its ultimatum to Germany regarding the Moroccan controversy. It is felt this is the critical hour in the history of both countries and a misstep might embroil all Europe. The Cabinet went into session early this afternoon and as the members stepped into the room the gravity of the situation was written on their faces.

LONDON, AUG. 25.—Despatches state the seriousness of the situation as felt there, and Marine Insurance has gone up another notch.

FIVE PERSONS KILLED

Special to The Examiner:

ROSEBURG, ORE., AUG. 25.—Five people were killed and twenty hurt when a large bridge being built over the Umpqua River, collapsed, falling sixty feet.

NEW OCEAN LEVIATHAN

Special to The Examiner:

STETTIN, GERMANY, AUG. 25.—With a length of seven hundred feet and breadth of ninety feet, and a height of one hundred feet, the New Hamburg-American liner 'Imperator' is being built here. It will be the longest and greatest ship afloat, and will accommodate five thousand people of all classes and one thousand of a crew.

Chief of Police Thompson and Fire Chief Howard were presented with honour badges by the High Chief Ranger.

Mr. W. J. Vale, chairman of the Laws and Judiciary committee, at the request of the delegates, withdrew his resignation as chairman. The result of the elect ion was as follows:

W. Douglas, Owen Sound.
J. Haggart, Hamilton.
W. Richards, London.
H. Chick, Toronto.
W. J. Vale, Toronto.

The proposal to abolish the Laws and Judiciary committee was defeated.

Some Convention Notes.

Chief of Police Thompson and Fire Chief Howard attended the sitting of the High Court, Ancient Order of Foresters, yesterday, and each made a neat address of welcome to the visitors.

A presentation of a pretty silk Union Jack was made to the newly elected High Chief Ranger.

Speeches were made and the whole assembly sang heartily, "For He's A Jolly Good Fellow."

Three hearty cheers were then given for Chief Thompson, Chief Howard and Ald. Morgan. The latter was unable to be present.

O.R.A. SCORED FOR ITS CRITICISM OF PRIVATE CLIFFORD

Riflemen Say That a Grievous Wrong Has Been Done King's Prize Man and That the Association is Degenerating ---Receives a Heavy Grant From Government.

OTTAWA, ONT., AUG. 25.—The Citizen, edited by Colonel Morrison, D.S.O., comes out with a scathing arraignment of the Dominion Rifle Association, for its criticism of Private Clifford, because of the rest position which he uses with his rifle when shooting. It says that a grievous wrong has been done the young King's Prizeman, and that the Dominion Rifle Association is rapidly degenerating from a military sporting organization. It says it is time for a reorganization of the Association, which receives a heavy grant from the Government.

Appreciated Services Of The Late Superintendent Resolution Passed

At a recent meeting of the Water Commissioners the following resolution was passed.

"The Commissioners having learned that Mr. Wilson Henderson, Superintendent of the Peterborough Water Works System, had passed away, they take this early opportunity of placing on record an expression of their deep sorrow at the sad event, and of their appreciation of his faithful service to the City during the period of over twenty-six years, a service ever characterised by efficient painstaking, and thorough work. His integrity was never for a moment doubted. His skill and large experience were of inestimable value to the Commissioners, by whom he was held in the highest esteem and unreservedly trusted; and they acknowledge the great loss they and the City have sustained in his death. The Commissioners also desire to convey an expression of their deep sympathy to his widow and the members of his family in this their great bereavement.

"Further resolved, as a mark of respect to the departed, a wreath be ordered to be placed on the casket, and that the Chairman attend the funeral at Oshawa, on behalf of the Commissioners.

"Also resolved that a copy of the above resolution be sent to Mrs. Henderson."

A report was read from Dr. McPherson, regarding the sanitary conditions at Stoney Lake, and the pollution of the waters north of Peterborough.

A letter was read from the A. R. Williams Company, re sale of old pumping facilities.

It was moved by Mr. Moore, seconded by the chairman, that the Secretary be authorized to write A. R. Williams Company to the effect that the pumps will be sold together or separately at $1,500 for each set, including the wheels.

The balance of the account due the Bishop Construction Co., $1,633.36 in all, was ordered to be paid.

The folowing accounts were presented and ordered to be paid:

The Story Of A Liberal Fund From American Sources Foundationless

OTTAWA, AUG. 24.—In order to counteract the assertion that the American trusts are furnishing sinews of war with which to fight reciprocity in Canada, a story has been sent out from Conservative headquarters here to the effect that it is known that the Liberals are in receipt of a campaign fund from American sources. The story can be definitely and positively denied.

The organized opposition to reciprocity at Washington came from the American trusts, and if these trusts are still spending money in order to bring about the defeat of the agreement, it is going into the Conservative campaign fund and not the Liberal. There was no organization at Washington to push reciprocity through Congress, the weight of public opinion and the President's influence being sufficient to secure its passage.

It will be recalled that on the day the agreement passed at Washington the correspondent of the New York 'Sun' announced that the anti-reciprocity lobbyists would transfer their operations to Canada. That they did not turn up in a body in Ottawa is true, but there are reasons to believe that the American trusts did not abandon their efforts to keep the agreement from coming into effect.

That funds furnished by the American trusts are being used in this campaign by the anti-reciprocity forces is the firm conviction of those who are fighting for the cause of wider markets for the products of the Dominion. With the announcement that the Hon. Robt. Rogers intends to stay out of the fight the long list of provincial Conservative ministers who were going to fight behind Mr. Borden, but who have decided not to do so, is complete. The list of those who proposed to enter the Federal lists as candidates included Premier McBride, of British Columbia; Attorney-General Bowser, B.C.; the Hon. Robert Rogers, Manitoba; the Hon. Clifford Sifton, Mr. Henri Bourassa, and the Hon. W. J. Hanna, Ontario.

The Hon. Robt. Rogers was in Ottawa when the Conservatives decided to fight reciprocity to 'the bitter end,' and it is said that he was the strongest advocate of that policy. Mr. Rogers' final decision not to run is looked upon here as a practical admission that he does not expect Mr. Borden to win.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 25, 1911

THE GAME OF MISREPRESENTATION.

The Toronto Telegram is still attempting, in company with lesser, but not less unscrupulous, journalistic and political lights, to deceive its readers into the belief that the reciprocity agreement wipes out the tariff on manufactured goods. Here is one of the Telegram's attempts at deceit: "'If I am returned to power,' said the Liberal Premier, 'I promise that within three months you will see the trade barriers between Canada and the United States swept away.' Nice lookout that for Canadian manufacturers and merchants, many of whom will find their saving and livelihood swept away, too." Of course Sir Wilfrid was speaking of the duties on natural products, such as are affected by reciprocity. No one proposes to wipe out the duties on manufactured goods. They are needed, and must be retained for revenue purposes, even if for no other reason.

WAS SIR JOHN THOMPSON A TRAITOR.

When Parliament was dissolved in 1891, Sir John Thompson, Minister of Justice in Sir John Macdonald's Government, issued this address to the electors of Antigonish:

"At the election which will take place on the 5th day of March, I will be a candidate for re-election as a member of the House of Commons for the County of Antigonish.

"The Government, of which I am a member, is appealing to the country with a policy which we believe will be heartily endorsed by a great majority of the electors. We have made to the Government of the United States, through the Government of Great Britain, proposals for reciprocity in trade, which we have good reason to believe will result in an arrangement by which the markets of the United States will be reopened to the products which our people desire most to send there.

"A fair measure of reciprocity is what we desire, and we have no doubt that that can be obtained without undue sacrifices.

"I respectfully ask your support and votes, and I pledge myself to serve the best interests of the country, if I should be honoured by a renewal of the confidence which was reposed in me at the last elections, and for which I shall be forever grateful. I remain, gentlemen, your obedient servant,

"JOHN D. THOMPSON."

"Antigonish, Feb. 24, 1891."

Will some ingenious Conservative please explain why the "fair measure of reciprocity," which was so desirable in 1891 is now become a national menace, and a sinster attempt to destroy Confederation? Or was Sir John Thompson a traitor?

AN "IF" THAT IS IMPOSSIBLE.

After accepting and acting upon Hopeful Jones' policy of "Whoop, Bill, whoop!" a good many Conservative papers are beginning to take a day off to figure where they are to get that Borden majority in the new House. The most courageous calculation we have seen is that of The Mail and Empire, which regards seventy seats as a possible Conservative total from Ontario. A more moderate way of putting it is that of The Stratford Herald, which has bright hopes of office "if Conservatives are able to get a majority of thirty-four in Ontario." To cheer the party on The Herald says that "in Ontario the reports from all over the Province are most encouraging. Liberal forecasters concede a Conservative gain of five in Ontario, but that the gain will not be less than ten is generally predicted. Conservatives hope to do better than this, but a gain of ten would make the next deputation of Ontario stand: Conservatives 60, Liberals 26."

We venture to say that The Herald can produce no Liberal forecaster who concedes a Conservative gain of five in Ontario. The best information we have been able to gather warrants the belief that the Liberal party will do better in Ontario than in 1908, and that the Liberal strength will be in the vicinity of 40 seats out of 86.

But accepting The Herald's figures as to Ontario, there is no possible chance of Mr. Borden winning. Here is the very best that the Conservatives hope for in the various Provinces:

	Con.	Lib.
British Columbia	7	..
Alberta	2	5
Saskatchewan	1	9
Manitoba	8	2
Ontario	60	26
Quebec	20	45
Nova Scotia	7	11
Prince Edward Island	1	3
Yukon		1
	106	111

On these figures Mr. Borden could not take office. Even the 20 seats given to the Conservatives in Quebec are for the most part Nationalist, and on reciprocity several of Bourassa's candidates are taking ground for the agreement and will vote for it if elected.

Now take the Liberal estimates, not those of extremists, but of moderate men in touch with the campaign:

	Lib.	Con.
British Columbia	2	5
Alberta	6	1
Saskatchewan	9	1
Manitoba	3	7
Ontario	38	48
Quebec	48	18
Nova Scotia	14	4
New Brunswick	10	3
Prince Edward Island	4	..
Yukon	1	..
	134	87

This very moderate claim gives Laurier a majority of 47 in the new House. It may very well be close upon 60. Many Liberals in touch with the Ontario campaign say that the two parties will divide the Province: 48 to 43. Quebec Liberals do not concede a net gain of seven to the Nationalist-Conservative combination. In Nova Scotia a total of 15 Liberals to three Conservatives would be no surprise. New Brunswick once returned a solid Liberal delegation.

Looking at the situation with rose-coloured spectacles, The Stratford Herald's "if" is an impossible one. Mr. Borden will not get a majority of 34 in Ontario; he will not carry the country, and he stands a very good chance of coming back to Ottawa with a smaller following than he had in the last House.—Globe.

BORDEN-BRODER-BURNHAM MASS MEETING LAST NIGHT

More Mottoes and Flag Waving Than Arguments and Facts.

The Borden-Broder-Burnham meeting last night was only a partial success. It drew a big crowd to the Opera House but gave it nothing much to carry away.

Mr. Borden's voice was in very bad shape, and he was obviously tired from his great effort in Toronto the night before. He did not overwhelm his audience with an avalanche of figures nor did he even bear very hard on the loyalty cry. He outlined his leading arguments or rather statements, which are already familiar to newspaper readers, and let it go at that. He was through in less than an hour. But a man with a throat sore enough to choke at any argument he is obliged to swallow does not like to speak long.

Chairman Kendry ventured no further into speechmaking than a brief prophesy, such as we would expect from the chairman, as to who would be the member-elect for East and West Peterborough on the night of September 21st. Nobody can prevent a chairman from whistling to keep his courage up. Candidate Sexsmith gave vent to some universally accepted conclusions on the moral influence of women on men who have votes, but did not go into the question on which the election is being foughtout. Candidate Burnham uttered some pretty sentiments about charity to the poor, kindness to the old and infirm, and watchful tenderness toward the young and innocent, with which no one could possibly disagree, but he did not tackle Reciprocity.

BRODER THE FAVORITE

The audience stirred uneasily and shuffled its feet until Andrew Broder came along and put it in good humour. AAlthough Mr. Broder was brought down from Dundas as leading suport to Mr. Borden, he walked off with the star part. He made the one hit of the evening with his Abe Lincoln drawl, and something of the rugged Abe Lincoln look, and the funny stories he told, with their neat political application. He amused the audience very much, but he did not convince them. As one man said: "Andy Broder's seech is like a railway resturant sandwich—thin bread on the outside and a slice of meat still thinner in the middle. It's just the shadow of a meal, but it's tasty enough when you're hungry, and leaves you wanting more." By which rather far-fetched simile he possibly meant that Mr. Broder begins and ends his speeches with funny stories but puts a little serious stuff in between.

Mr. Broder put some good jokes over last night. He pitched good ball for one innings, so to speak. He is more dependable as a pinch player than Henri Bourassa, who is a home-grounds pitcher, and cannot be used outside Quebec.

MOTTOES, FLAGS AND MUSIC

The mottoes were interesting. One of them was "Canada for the Canadians." Everybody will assent to that but the Reciprocity people go it one better and say, "and as much in addition of the United States market for food products as we can get." Another motto was "Sexsmith, the Farmer's Candidate." There was no motto indicating Mr. Burnham's merits as a lawyer candidate.

The entertainment committee had distributed a number of small Union Jacks on the platform and amongst the audience, and at the proper moment, which was just after Mr. Borden had made his peroration, a well organized spontaneous burst of loyal enthusiasm was pulled off, which consisted in everybody rising and waving a flag. The orchestra rather jarred the dignity of this proceeding by playing "He's a Jolly Good Fellow." Obviously the right tune was the one the band had been playing outside—good old "Rule Britannia," for which every man, woman and child in Canada, Liberal or Conservative, reciprocity or anti-reciprocity, will wave flags, and cheer for as long as he has a throat left.

MR. BORDEN UNBURDENS HIMSELF

Mr. Borden was of course the great attraction, and he must have been encouraged by the presence of so large an audience. It was a great gathering, for it made history. It gave Canada a new Prime Minister, the chairman, the candidates and the address presented, and even Mr. Borden himself in a more modest way, insistnig that after the 21st of September Mr. Borden would be Prime Minister of Canada.

Mr. Borden was in good spirits, but he showed the effects of his tour. He began by apologizing for the state of his voice—it was the equivalent of noble scars—he had "worn it out in a good cause." But his voice though husky was good enough for the speech he made; not that it was not a fine, gentlemanly, oratorical effort, a good deal fuller of platitude and stately common-place than convincing arguments. He did not evoke much enthusiasm, but was listened to attentively, not to say patiently.

The speech of the Conservative leader was disappointing. It merely measured up to what was to be expected of the Prime Minister of the immediate future. He did not indulge in much argument upon the main issue which his policy of obstruction had thrust upon the country prematurely. Invective and rather loose assertion took the place of argument. In the matter of argument Mr. Broder rather eclipses his leader.

He, of course, spoke a good word for the candidates, Mr. Burnham and Mr. Sexsmith—"Mr. Burnham is in the field to win." Mr. Borden knew he had put "his shoulder to his wheel," and Mr. Sexsmith was equally a certain winner. Mr. Borden's "sure thing" in East and West Peterborough naturally led up to the "sure thing" in the country. He and the Conservative party felt a "fatih, hope and confidence they had not felt in the last fifteen years." His prophecy of sweeping victory was received with cheers, which would have been moderated if the audience had paused to recollect that on the eve of the election of 1908 Mr. Borden predicted a sweeping victory, but he lost the game by 45 points. But he is not to be blamed by taking to himself a little prophetic comfort—kindling one little spark in the gloom—if only in his mind.

"In this contest," said Mr. Borden, "the destiny of the Empire is in the balance." Then the flag wavers "got busy." Each of the faithful on entering the hall had been presented with a small flag, and as Mr. Borden rocked the Empire in the balance, these were wildly waved, in a way reminiscent of a school room on "Empire Day." A loyalty that needs such outward and visible signs of existence is not much superior to the real thing cherished in the heart.

Mr. Borden condemned the Liberals for dissolving Parliament while a charge against Hon. Mr. Oliver was pending—it had no "constitutional precedent." The charge might have been investigated if Mr. Borden had not forced a dissolution. It was charged that Mr. Oliver had some $60,000 to his credit in a bank. It was held to be a crime that a Minister of the Crown had had so much money. He had no business to have so much money, though he might have made it by buying a corner lot in Edmonton one day and selling it the next. When Mr. Sifton was a Liberal Minister, Mr. Borden and his friends darkly hinted that he got "rich" too "quick." Now, that he is opposing Reciprocity the slate is cleared. Every man, Minister or layman, who has 60,000 in the bank did not come by it dishonestly.

The thought of Mr. Oliver making a big profit in real estate in the glorious and prosperous west, may have led Mr. Borden into the best passages of his speech. No public speaker, even on the Liberal side, could have presented a more eloquent and glowing picture of the growth and prosperity of Canada under Liberal rule, than Mr. Borden did last night. He took a high flight or oratory in painting the glories and growth of the Canadian west. But he stopped short of the full truth. He did not say that the Conservative party in power—from 1870 to 1896—found the west a wilderness and—left it a wilderness. It was only when the Liberal Government came into power that the West found itself. Immigration was poured in, the breath of energetic administrative life was breathed into the dry bones. It is to the Liberal Government that we owe the west as it is to-day. We Liberals thank Mr. Borden for his really eloquent tribute to the splendid effects of Liberal Government, not only in the west, but all over Canada, which Mr. Borden said was "on the full tide of prosperity," and we should therefore "let well enough alone."

Mr. Borden chastened Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Sir Wilfrid had said, according to Mr. Borden, in 1899, that Canada had centred its hopes on British trade. We would be "independent of the United States." This was a case of "sour grapes." Like all the Conservative leaders since Confederation, Sir Wilfrid Laurier sought to get Reciprocity. But the United States curtly refused and in a moment of pique Sir Wilfrid said he was done with offers of Reciprocity; any overtures must first be made by the United States. And they were so made. Uncle Sam sent delegates to Ottawa, and the present excellent Reciprocity agreement is the result.

Sir Wilfrid had said that we had a "free open market" (in food products) with the United States and a big market. Mr. Borden thought that Britain was our best market. He wanted to know how the United States' market could be "free and open" when they had 500 millions of producs for export.

Mr. Borden should know, and doubtless knows that the United States is rapidly reaching the limit of production, that population is overtaking supply and that the export of natural products is rapidly diminishing.

As to prices, Mr. Borden said that prices were lower in the United States than in Canada—"farmers in Canada generally get better prices." This seems to be misleading. Any farmer in the audience could, if he spoke the truth, have told him that for the bulk of farm products covered by the reciprocity agreement, the prices were appreciably and profitably higher in the United States.

There was not, Mr. Borden suggested, much of a market for Canadian food stuffs in a market that was overflowing with its own products. If we "tried" Reciprocity we should "lose the British market." Mr. Borden did not explain how we should lose the British markets by sending produce to a country that does not want it, or where there is no market and no demand.

"The Liberals were afraid to change the National Policy," but they did change it; they changed the tariff so as to encourage the manufacturers, and replace the manufacturing and general stagnation of the Conservative regime for the buoyant porsperity we have had since the Liberal Government came into power.

Mr. Borden falsely charged the Liberals with the contemptible work of trying to make the working man believe that the farmer is his enemy. He set up a man of straw for the pleasure of knocking him down with sounding and ponderous platitudes. "Suppose," said Mr. Borden, "all the industries were wiped out, the farmers would feel it." Suppose Halley's comet should strike the earth mid-ship wouldn't we all feel it? And there is as much prospect or danger of one as of the other. Mr. Borden waxed eloquent over the disasters that would come to Canada if our industries were wiped out, idle work men—starving families, and the abomination of desolation generally. Though he did not say it in so many words, by the conncetion of ideas and of his discourse, Mr. Borden plainly sought to convey the idea that all these disasters would come from Reciprocity. This was hardly a candid and disingenuous attitude to be assumed by a man who "will be prime minister next month," and he the pioneer in purifying politics and inaugurating honesty in political discussion as well as in administration.

"A system of protection that does not save the home market for the farmer is no protection." With Reciprocity we still have the home market, the British market, and the United States market. Mr. Borden knows that with Canadian production increasing far faster than population Canada's home market cannot consume Canada's production any more than a farmer cannot eat all he grows on a 200-acre farm.

"Reciprocity leads to unrestricted reciprocity—one tariff for both United States and Canada, and that made in the United States. How will it be when the United States' trusts get control in Canada?"

Reciprocity means reduction in duties on farm products, and low tariff is not a "culture" in which the trust microbe thrives.

"You can't," said Mr. Borden, "link yourself to a giant without his having something to say about the unlinking." He (the giant) can speak for himself, and so can Canada. The reciprocity agreement specifically provides for independent tariff control. It says:

"It is distinctly understood that we do not attempt to bind for the future the action of the United Stsaes or the Parliament of Canada, but that each of these authorities should be absolutely free to make any change of tariff policy or other matters covered by the agreement that may be deemed expedient."

The favoured nations boogey of Mr Borden loses much of its terror when these treaties can, if we wish it, be "denounced," as the treaties with Belgium and Germany were "denounced" in the interests of the British Preference, which Mr. Borden and his flag-waving followers opposed, and still oppose.

"Reciprocity within the Empire is good enough for us." This impossible sentiment set the flag wavers frantic; but some of those who shouted loundest should have paused to think that "Reciprocity within the Empire," means Chamberlainism, means taxing the bread of their brother working man in the Old Land, a policy which the British people have "turned down" in three general elections.

Mr. Borden tortured the Taft phrase, "parting of the ways," into an annexation threat. Mr. Borden knows that if he reads the context, he will see that this refers to trade matters and not to political relations.

In conclusion, Mr. Borden said "we will follow in the same path as that of the past forty years—the path of unity."

Does he mean to say that his political alliance with the Bourassa "outfit" in Quebec, the declared enemies of everything British—the apostles of the race and creed cry—will promote unity? Does Mr. Borden think that the underground sewer-pipe race and creed, and harmony-destroying still hunt pursued in West Peterborough by his candidate, Mr. Burnham, whom he patted on the back last night, and called a "good boy," is promoting the unity Mr. Borden speaks of as desirable? The flag that was waved last night stands for more than lip loyalty and eve service—it stands for equal rights of citizenship, for freedom of speech, and liberty of conscience. To wave the flag over a candidature such as Mr. Burnham is waging, as secretly as possible is to prostitute the noble emblem that floats in the world.

MR. BURNHAM'S SPEECH

There were just two guesses as to what Mr. Burnham would do when he had to make a speech to a mixe daudience. He might be expected to (1) say nothing in particular, (2) open his month and put his foot in it. He justified the first half of the expectations—he said nothing in particular.

Like all the other speakers, Mr. Burnham began by congratulating the ladies and telling them the indisputable truth that they can do what

BEST PITCHING FEATS OF YEAR IN EASTERN

To date there has been but one no-hit game played in the Eastern League. This contest took place in Jersey City Sunday afternoon, June 25, with Addison Brennan of Buffalo, just obtained from Philadelphia, turning the trick against the Skeeters. Brennan came very near pitching an absolutely perfect game, a hit batsman spoiling the record. But 28 Jersey City batsmen faced him.

Pitchers Bedient of Providence and Bumpus Jones, of Jersey City, have both pitched one-hit games. They have both been made against Newark. Eleven two-hit games have been pitched to date. Holmes and McConnell figured in them. Sline, of Providence, and Justis, of Jersey, have held the Hustlers to two hits.

No-Hit Game.

Brennan, Buffalo, against Jersey City, at Jersey City, June 25.

One-Hit Game.

Bedient, Providence, against Newark, at Providence, June 14.

Jones, Jersey City, against Newark, at Newark, July 19.

Two-Hit Games.

Sline, Providence, against Rochester, at Providence, May 5.

Burke, Montreal, against Jersey City, at Montreal, May 12.

Holmes, Rochester, against Buffalo, at Rochester, May 27.

Dygert, Baltimore, against Newark, at Newark, July 7.

Dygert, Baltimore, against Newark at Newark, July 13.

Rudolph, Toronto, against Jersey City, at Toronto, July 29.

Justis, Jersey City, against Rochester, at Jersey City, August 9.

Holmes, Rochester, against Providence, at Providence, Aug. 12.

JACK JOHNSON CALLS WELLS A 2 TO 1 SHOT

LONDON, AUG. 24.—Jack Johnson gave a sparring exhibition at Earlscourt this afternoon. Thousands watched the big black champion flash his golden smile as he went through his paces. To-night Johnson starts on a motor trip towards Paris, giving numerous exhibitions along the route.

"I expect Bombardier Wells to make a good showing when he meets me in the ring," said Johnson, "but I don't believe that he is anything better than a 2 to 1 bet. I expect to pick up a little money on the side if Wells backers want to lay some odds."

BEN SIMPSON TO COACH HAMILTON TIGERS

HAMILTON, AUG. 24.—The football bug is already on the wing here. The Hamilton Tigers will begin brushing up for the season on Saturday. Manager "Davey" Tope has called the first practice a little earlier than usual so as to afford plenty of time for sifting the surplus material the club will have to choose from this year. The "wise owls" who predicted after the failure of the Tigers to lift the Dominion championship last year, that there would be a scarcity of players this season, have another guess coming.

The Tigers, as usual, will have a fast back division, with Tommy Stinson, for years the star of Montreal's half-back brigade, as its backbone. Stinson is popular here and will likely captain the team. Both the Smiths, "Kid" and George, will be out, also "Dutch" Burton, Art Moore and McKelvey, an Intermediate half, who proved a sensation with the Cubs last season.

The wing line, the one spot where the Tigers were weak last season, will be strengthened up with material from the Intermediates and new men, one of whom, Broderick, an Englishman, who is a big built fellow, quite a sprinter and a chap who has had considerable experience in fast company in the Old Country, will likely play outside.

There is talk of a professional coach again, but old Ben Simpson will likely be depended upon for anything required in that line.

LINE-UPS FOR TO-MORROW'S GAME AT RIVERSIDE

There is absolutely no admission charge to to-morrows game at Riverside Park between Happy Brydie's Pets and Bill Shaw's Demons, otherwise the regulars of the Peterborough Midland League team. As will be seen from the lineups given below. Manager Brydie has an all-star cast to do battle with, and he promises to make good on his boast that his team will give the Petes the battle of the season. With Rahmel and Cresswell on the slab, it should be a pitcher's battle and each has a strong team behind him. Manager Brydie has persuaded Chris. Graham to get into the game and he will play first base for the Petes. Charlie Ray is slated to handle the indicator. The game will start sharp at 3 o'clock, with the following line-up:

Brydie's Pets—Rahmel, p.; Brydie, c.; Graham, 1b.; Flaherty, 2b.; Morgan, s.s.; Dickie 3b.; Guerin, Patterson, Rose, Kirn, outfield.

Shaw's Demons—Cresswell p.; Gonter, c.; O'Brien, 1b.; O'Hearne 2b.; Callaghan s.s.; Murphy 3b.; Shaw, W. O'Brien, McFadden, Craig, outfield.

BASEBALL

Jimmy O'Hearne, second-baseman of the Peterborough Midland League team, was in Wellington yesterday, playing for Bill Wilder's Wellington team, against the Grand Trunks of Belleville. The Railway men won out 10 to 4.

INDIANS VS. CHEMONG.

A match will be played between the above teams on Tuesday next at Sturgeon Point on the occasion of the Baptist Memorial church excursion.

BOXING

Will Stop the Nonsense.

NEW YORK, AUG. 24.—The State Boxing Commission will be asked to prohibit farces in the future such as took place in the Fairmont Club ring last night, when Joe Jeannette experienced boxer, was pitted with Dummy Maxson, a joke fighter. It lasted fifty seconds, and Maxson was put out with three smashes to the stomach.

In on the Pie.

NEW YORK, AUG. 24.—The fight clubs in Manhattan and the Bronx, which have filed their $10,000 bond with the State authorities, and will be chartered by the State Fight Commission between now and Monday, are the Madison, National, Twentieth Century, Madison Square and Fairmont. It is said the Madison Square, which is backed by a powerful combination of politicians, will get the cream of the bouts.

Morris and Flynn.

NEW YORK, AUG. 24.—Carl Morris, the Oklahoma white hope, was about town seeing the sights to-day. To-morrow he will go into training in New Jersey for his bout at Madison Square Garden with Fireman Jim Flynn.

Must Cancel a Bout.

MILWAUKEE, MIS., AUG. 24. — Promoter Frank Mulkern has ordered Packey McFarland to cancel the match he has scheduled with Lee Kelly, for St. Louis, on Labour Day. Mulkern told McFarland he would have to cancel this bout or his match with Ad. Wolgast, lightweight champion, billed for September 15, at Wilwaukee, would be called off.

NEW YORK, AUG. 24.—The date for the Knock-out Brown-Matt Wells fight in Madison Square Garden has been definitely fixed for Sept. 1.

OTTAWA ROUGH RIDERS WILL HAVE GOOD TEAM

Ottawa Free Press: The perceptible tinge of fall in the early morning air these days has set the rugby footballers in motion, and there is already some show of activity locally. Captain Eddie Phillips of the Ottawa Big Four team, predicts big things for the Ottawas this season.

"This boy, Robertson, who played with R.M.C. last year, is one of the best men playing in the back field, I am told. He is coming out with us, and we will have quite a few of the younger element with football experience to try out. Dunnitt, one of our oarsmen, has played the English game in the best of company, and we look to him to show us well. I think we will only need to fill about four places this year. McCann looks an ideal outside wing, and if Ryan gets back we will have a crackerjack pair to go down under punts. They are both fast, crowded with brains and elegant tacklers."

Murray Kennedy will likely be missing from the team. And fears are held out that Charlie O'Neill may not be able to take his regular position at quarter. The latter fact would prove a serious blow to the team, as O'Neill has been the best quarter seen in an Ottawa uniform since the days Alf. Smith was diving through holes in the line.

George Church has announced he is through, but if he doesn't play he will probably be one of the leading coaches. He is well versed in football knowledge.

Phillips, from the tenor of his remarks, will appeal to his men to adopt more aggressive tactics this season than in the past. As he put it himself: "Some of our fellows will have to dirty their hands this year." Which is the right dirt. There was too much soldiering last season, and a very perceptible evidence the players were not on their toes. Varsity licked Tigers last season principally through the reason they beat the Big Four fellows to it when it came to starting new scrimmages. The ball was frequently heeled out before the Hamilton line had formed up. The greatest contrast between Big Four and Intercollegiate ball in 1910 was the predominance of pepper on the part of the students.

Ottawa is anxious to get her first game on the league schedule at home with Montreal or Argonauts. Failing this, they will try for their opening game in Hamilton. Tigers will most likely finish the season here.

BASEBALL AVERAGES

A St. Louis man has figured out a system of keeping baseball averages which is intended to make the figures show more clearly than they do at present just what a player's value to a team is. His plan is to score by bases instead of simply by hits.

There is great interest among both players and fans as to the batting averages, and all players would rather get four hits in a day than have a good dinner that night. It is feared that many athletes would prefer to get three or four hits than to have their side win the ball game without any hitting assistance from them. Hitting is the delight of the athlete and the fat batting average his greatest pride. But under the present system of computing the averages a single with two men out and no one on bases counts just as much in figuring the percentages as a home run with the bases full.

TO MAKE AVERAGES SHOW PLAYER'S MERIT

The idea is to dope out the averages so as to show more plainly than they do now just what actual execution toward winning a ball game a batter has done.

The St. Louis plan, which is endorsed by Harold Lanigan, the sage of sport and stage, is to count, in figuring a player's batting average, the number of bases which he makes himself on his hits, as well as the number of bases which he causes others to make. The base is taken as a unit, not the hit. For instance, a player making a single with no one on base would be given one point, as he has gained one base. But if there is a runner on first when he makes his hit and the runner advances to second on the biggle, the latter gets credit for two bases. If the runner got to third on the hit, the batter would get three bases, one for getting to first himself, and two for advancing the runner from first to third. A player making a home run would get four bases, provided the bases were empty when he sent out his drive. If the bases were full he would get credit for ten bases, four for himself, three for the man who went home from first; two for the runner who scored from second and one for the runner on third.

A player making a sacrifice hit would be given credit for the bases advanced by the runners who moved up on his successful bunt. A man who singled and stole second would get credit for two bases, the equal of the batter who made a two-bagger with the bases empty. A batter working the opposing pitcher for a base on balls would get credit for one base. If there was a runner on first when he drew his pass he would be given two bases, for he not only reached first himself, but forced the preceding runner down to second, the same as if he had made a hit.

A somewhat similar system is suggested in providing for pitchers' averages, which at present are unfair to the twirler with a weak second division club. As it is now a pitcher who holds the opponents to three or four hits and one run and loses his game by a score of 1 to 0, is charged with a defeat just the same as the man who gives a dozen bases on balls and is knocked all over the lot. Good pitchers with inferior clubs have not the slightest chance to stand high in the records.

CAN'T SHOW TRUE WORTH

Men like Rucker, Johnson, Keefe and Gaspar, who are tied up with second division teams, cannot show their true worth in the averages for they are bound to lose a lot of well-pitched games on account of the weakness of their support.

In the proposed system the work of a pitcher is figured on the base system also, just like the batter. That is, the bases actually made off him are computed, counting all those made on base hits, bases on balls and any other points for which he is responsible. In this way really good pitching will show in the averages, and the first-class man with the poor club will have a chance to stand up alongside the pitcher who is lucky enough to be with a winning team. There is a good deal of merit in these suggestions, and they will be considered at the next meeting of the Baseball Writers' Association.

MEETING OF A.O.F. BROUGHT TO SATISFACTORY CONCLUSION

The morning session of the High Court of the Ancient Order of Foresters was devoted to the report of the Laws and Judiciary Committee which was eventually passed with a few alterations.

A motion to instruct the Executive Committee to make a present to W. J. Vale, P.H.C.R., in acknowledgement of his 25 years' faithful service as chairman of the committee, was passed.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the Mayor, Council and City Officials of Peterborough for the many courtesies extended to the delegates. A vote of thanks was also given to the School Board for the use of the Collegiate, and similar recognition was made to Court Stanley for the generous hospitality shown the delegates during their stay here.

It was decided that the report of the Committee arranging the financial aspect of the old age pensions be submitted to the subordinate Courts, not later than May 15th, 1913; also in future the District Rangers' report must be in the hands of the permanent secretary not later than July 15 preceding the High Court meeting, so that they could be printed and in the hands of the delegates on time for the annual meeting.

The thanks of the High Court were tendered to Mr. F. G. Butt, Superintention of Organization, for his strenuous efforts to advance the interests of the Order.

The High Court elect were duly installed by P.H.C.R. W. J. Vale, and the Court closed with the usual ceremonies.

In conclusion, the delegates desire to express their satisfaction of their visit to Peterborough and appreciate very highly the many courtesies which were extended to them.

POST CARD COLUMN

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I trust you will excuse me for taking up the space in your columns, but I have been thinking over the present question which is before the public, and feel convinced more than ever, the advisability of the working classes taking advantage of the chance held out to them of procuring cheap food.

We know that if the working man will put aside all racial and creed argument, and allow his own thought to reason out the case before him, he will see that every liberty which he at the present time enjoys was procured for him by the Reform party on a Liberal platform. Let us look back to the time when, under the Conservative Government, in England, the sunlight, which is God's free gift to man, was taxed. Perhaps some will say that is an impossibility; nevertheless we had it in times past, "the window tax." Then again, let the common people, such we were called, think of the time when the "tongue," which we have, was not allowed to express the thought of the mind. Again, the man who has not given it a serious thought will say this was never so. But it was until the Reform Party procured free speech, and we have some of the "old stagers" amongst us who well remember the time when if they did not salute the Squire or Parson it was not an unusual thing for them to lay a stick over their back. Then the question comes was this ever so. If the so-called working (common people) will look back into the past, they will find every statement I have made, is true. And he will console himself by saying we are living under different times; the working classes are more intelligent. If this is all so true who allowed him to develop his intelligence, who but the Reform Party. The Conservative party said, this is a common thing which must be kept under the rule and subjection of the Crown and Aristocracy, the landed gentry, to be content in the position which he is placed in.

His intelligence was allowed to develop by a Reform party, who said Our people shall be educated, to speak and think and act for themselves. I am sorry to say we have still a few amongst us who fail to avail themselves of the freedom procured for them and still adhere to the old bondage of serfdom. If every Scotsman would think of their National Bard, poor Robbie Burns, when he said "Had I to be yon Lordling's slave, or born to be his hind, why was an independent wish e'er planted in my min?" they and every right-thinking person would use their independence and vote for the party that has made the "common people" a free people, to enjoy light-thought, speech, and gave them a cheap paper to express the same in. Sir, I vote not for Stratton or Burnham, but for the right party.

FOUNDATION STONE LAID 73 YEARS AGO

Under the heading, Aug. 25 in history, the Toronto Globe to-day has the following:

1838.—On this date the then Lieutenant Governor of Upper Canada, Sir George Arthur, laid the foundation stone of the court house of the Colborne district. This structure was erected in what is now the city of Peterborough, which was then a backwoods village of a thousand people. The court house was completed in 1841 and two years later there was opened the first branch of a chartered bank. The first physician had come to the village in 1830, and the first lawyer in 1833. The first store of any consequence was started in 1827, and soon afterward the first school house was erected on part of the present site of the Collegiate Institute. Two Presbyterian churches were put up in 1834. In 1835 a new Roman Catholic church edifice was begun to replace an old one, and in 1837 there was established the first Peterborough newspaper, The Backwoodsman and Peterborough Sentinel. The site of Peterborough is in the Township of North Monaghan, which was surveyed in 1818. In the survey a reserve was left as a site for a future town, which was laid out in 1825. The first dwelling house on the site was the home of Adam Scott, who established a combined grist and saw mill and the original name of the village was "Scott's Plains." The present name, suggested by the name of Peterborough in England, was given to it as a compliment to Hon. Peter Robinson, who gave the settlement a start in 1825 by bringing out some immigrants.

Only Sober Men Wanted

Competition is too keen and life is too strenuous for an employer to keep on his pay roll men who are not in mental or physical condition to perform their duties. Every line of business is closing its doors to "Drinking" men. If you are a drinking man, it may be your time next. Better stop drinking at once. Orrine, the standard remedy for the liquor habit, will help you. By the aid of Orrine thousands of men have been restored to lives of sobriety and industry, hence they have become worth more to their employers, and best of all they've made their loved ones happier.

Orrine is a simple home treatment. No loss of time from work while you are taking it. Start to-day. You will be surprised at the results. We are so sure that Orrine will benefit you that we say to you that if after a trial you fail to get any benefit from its use, we will give your money back.

ORRINE is prepared in two forms, No. 1, secret treatment, a powder, absolutely tasteless and odourless, given secretly in food or drink. ORRINE No. 2 in pill form, is for those who desire to take voluntary treatment. ORRINE costs only $1.00 a box. Write for Free Orrine Booklet (mailed in plain sealed envelope) to ORRINE COMPANY, Orrine Building, Washington, D.C. Orrine is recommended and is for sale in this city by Wm. Madill.

ANTI-VACCINATION CREATING TROUBLE IN MONTREAL

Special to The Examiner.

MONTREAL, QUE., AUG. 25.—"Citizens! awake! awake! refuse to be vaccinated; your health and your liberty are imperilled." Fifty thousand circulars bearing the above inscription, in bold type, over the startling warning against the evils of vaccination are now being distributed broadcast throughout the city by the newly-formed Anti-vaccination League of Canada. Chief of Police Campeau has given orders that the circulars be suppressed and the distributors arrested. The Chief claims that the circulars, which are printed in both French and English are liable to inflame the minds of more ignorant citizens and cause disturbances.

A Simple Treatment that Will Make Hair Grow Now Sold in Canada

U.S. CRICKETERS MEET ALL CANADIAN TEAM

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, AUG. 25.—When the United States cricketers meet the All-Canada team at Rosedale this afternoon, the Canadians won the toss and went to bat first, commencing operations with Wallace of Montreal and Reed of Rosedale.

BAD COLD IN THE CHEST

"I am happy to tell you that I used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, and was promptly cured of a very bad cold in the chest," writes Miss Josephine Gauthier, Dover South, Ont. You can depend on Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine to relieve and cure all inflammations and irritations of the throat and bronchial tubes.

Permanently Disqualified

Examiner Special:

OTTAWA, AUG. 25.—At the Rockliffe rifle ranges the Ontario team won the London Merchants Interprovincial match to-day, with every other province competing. The Ontario score was 746 out of a possible 900. Sergeant Battershall of Winnipeg won the grand aggregate, with Lieut. Steele of Guelph, second, and Captain C. Rowen of Guelph, third.

A considerable sensation was caused here this afternoon when a bulletin was posted permanently disqualifying Major W. R. Edgar, of the 24th Grey Horse, Woodstock, from competing in "W. R. A." matches for contravention of rules. The allegation was that Edgar attempted to induce the Register Keeper to accept an extra series of tickets after he had put on the possible of five bulls. Major Edgar denies it.

Twelve People Reported Killed

Special to The Examiner:

ROCHESTER, N.Y., AUG. 25.—It is reported here that a train loaded with the Grand Army veterans went through the trestle, near Manchester, N.Y., and that 12 persons were killed and many injured.

SUNDAY AT OSTEND, BELGIUM

It was late when the boat drifted slowly between the outstretched arms of the two piers whose vivid head lights alone revealed their close proximity. A thick fog overhung the English Channel. The coast line was invisible save for a shimmer of light dimly seen through the grey. On shore the streets were enveloped in fog. The outside cafes were deserted, and an unusual quietude prevailed; only the booming of a warning gun from an incoming ship filling the air with a sudden alarm.

By morning the fog has lifted, and the Channel, reclaimed from the nightmare of mist and glass-like stillness, tosses wanton white caps on the beach. Phantom buildings of the previous night assume normal shapes, windmills in neighbouring fields whirl madly in the breeze, and the streets are early thronged by a holiday crowd. Released from slumber at the first sight of the sun, the little Belgian town is again its frivolous, wide-awake self. Alive with bathers, the scene on the beach is full of animation; the gay costumes, the yellow sands, and the azure sky combining to form a perfect kaleidoscope of colour.

A few hours later the Kursaal opens its doors, and thither flocks the well-to-do world—French and Belgian mondaines in gorgeous confections; straw-hatted Cook's tourists; Cockneys week-ending in Belgium; noisy Milanese students and children by the score, attended by quaint-looking bonnes in Flemish dress. The whirr of the roulette wheel no longer sounds in the great mirrored salon, and the joys of "petits chevaux" are banned. But the crowd still contrives to amuse itself waltzing to the strains of the famous Casino orchestra, or, in more dilettante fashion, sipping "cremo de menthe" in the oriel windows of the cafe overlooking the Channel. From the Place d'Armes, a few streets off, the blare of a brass band echoes from time to time. Here, in the Market Square, the bourgeois and country folk are assembled, celebrating in simple fashion their weekly fete day. In the open fronted cafes the more opulent sit at ease round beer-barrel tables, retiring every now and again to replenish their glasses and plates by slipping a coin into the dumb service bar and opening a drawer of the big crystal jars, from where on receipt of ten centimes, a greasy-looking ham sandwich slides, switchback style, on to the extended plate. Close round the bandstand the country people are gathered, making way occasionally for a hilarious couple footing it to the music—the women in snowy white mutches and wooden sabots, their comely faces glowing with soap and hearty enjoyment; the men, equally happy, but less picturesque, in shiny black suits and flaring ties. All too soon the performance comes to an end, and the gate of the bandstand is opened. The performers descend, and headed by a stalwart youth bearing the national flag, form into line. In state the procession marches once round the square then turns up the narrow Rue de la Chapelle, where the flags extended from the window create a continuous triumphal archway of black, yellow, and red.

With the approach of dusk the roads are thronged with villagers homeward-bound. On the Plage the hum of voices and of music still lingers; the English mail boat arrives at a typical pleasure resort alive with light-hearted tourists.

SERENADED THE FIRE DEPARTMENT

Chief Howard and his men were awakened from their slumbers during the "wee sma hours of the morn" by a representative gathering of the A. O.F., who had taken this form of expressing their thanks for the Fire Chief's kindness during their stay here. Choice Havana cigars with a few songs and speeches was their principle stock in trade and these they distributed to advantage.

The speakers made many kindly references to the efficiency of the brigade and complimented them on their able performance at the demonstration which was given in Central Park on Wednesday, at the conclusion of which three hearty cheers were given for Chief Howard, the firemen and Ald. Morgan.

A SPLENDID TRIP

A large number of the visiting delegates to the High Court, A.O.F., spent a very enjoyable evening yesterday on the placid waters of the beautiful Otonabee river per the Bessie Butler. The Indian village of Hiawatha was visited.

On the return journey a vote of thanks was accorded the Hon. G. R. Stratton, M.P. and Mr. J. H. McClellan, the superintendent of the Trent Valley Canal by whose kindness the splendid government steamer "Bessie Butler" was placed at their disposal. The Street Railway wharf was reached about eleven o'clock.

The visitors voiced words in admiration of the city, both from a commercial and from an excursionists point of view, while the Otonabee was thought to be the picture of excellence.

SKIN SOFT AS A CHILD'S

"I was a great sufferer from eczema and salt rheum for years," writes Mr. John W. Haas, Lunenburg, N.S. "Five years ago three boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment cured me and the old trouble never returned. My skin is soft as a child's now, and I shall always say a good word for this Ointment."

PAINFUL ACCIDENT

Mr. Harry Noyes, the G.T.R. section foreman, met with a nasty accident this morning, while working with his men, on the track some distance south. Shovelling on the exterior of the track, he turned to work upon the interior when, simultaneously, one of his men turned and plyed his pick in that portion of the earth chosen by Mr. Noyes. In doing so, his pick struck the foreman's hand, inflicting a nasty gash. The wound was immediately dressed and Mr. Noyes is again on duty.

BORDEN-BRODER-BURNHAM MASS MEETING LAST NIGHT

they please with mankind; but—N. B.—Mr. Burnham is a bachelor and all the other speakers were married men.

Mr. Burnham complained that the arguments of his opponents lacked the arguing quality. A strange complaint, from a debator who has never yet delivered the facts or quoted the figures which he might be supposed to have in his brief against reciprocity. The truth is that Mr. Burnham doesn't like to muddle his head with facts and figures. He prefers the softer spots of an argument, where his emotions will pass for thoughts and his prejudices for opinions.

Settling down into his anecdotage, Mr. Burnham told a couple of stories in which it was somewhat difficult to find the point. But that may have been the listener's fault. Somehow or other Mr. Burnham's manner of logic leaves us with the notion that there is no real difference between Sunday morning and the Nichols Oval.

The bearing of Mr. Burnham's stories, which he carefully explained, was that reciprocity in natural products with the United States was an experiment that left a bad taste in the mouth.

"Our opponents," said Mr. Burnham, "neglect the great sentimental question connection with the British Empire. Our hearts turn fondly to the old land, to the old flag that has braved a thousand years the battle and the breeze. And Canada will be the last of Great Britain's colonial allies to haul down that flag. This policy of the Liberals tends to throw Canada into the hands of the great giant to the South." And that was as far as the Candidate got into a real discussion of the question at issue.

"Not," added Mr. Burnham as a postscript, "that I would call the Liberals disloyal. They are as loyal as we are." Which was downright honest and real fair play in J. H. Burnham and the solemn truth besides.

Mr. Burnham passed to the state pension system for the aged and infirm, the system as they have it in England, not the government annuity system as they have it in Canada, which encourages thrift and does not tend to pauperise the people. He chided the Government for not falling in wholly with his plan and, setting aside for it "some of the millions that the grafters are stealing from us year by year."

"I make this a plank in my platform," said Mr. Burnham. As it was the only plank he produced the meeting gathered the idea that he would concentrate on it when he got to Ottawa, although there are several other matters of equal importance to be attended to. Although it is a passably good plank, the chances are that Mr. Burnham's drowsy benevolence could not get very far with it among the 215 highly practical men in the House of Commons. One man of action, in these charitable affairs, is frequently worth a hundred dreamy philanthropists.

STUNG TO THE QUICK

"The Examiner has sneered at me as only the Examiner can," said Mr. Burnham. "Not that it has sneered any more than any newspaper on either side sneers at election time, but it has sneered just the same. It has said that I lived a useless, dreamer's life. I am driven to desperation. I am forced to the last ditch in my own defence."

Everybody sat back and gripped their chairs. Surely somebody was going to get it. But it was a limp sort of desperation after all. It lasted only four minutes by the watch, and it amounted to this, that there were other people in West Peterboro who did good deeds besides J. R. Stratton.

"I had the honor," said Mr. Burnham, "of assisting in founding the Children's Aid Society in Canada. I got it, like most of our good ideas, from England. It has been a great success. For every light Mr. Stratton has placed on the canal I have placed a precious little child in a good home."

And the more credit to J. H. Burnham for doing it. It shows that neither political party has a monopoly of kind hearts. Mr. Burnham qualified his confession of virtue this way: "They say I have little energy. To which I reply that when a ship strikes a rock it is better for that ship if it had not had so much energy."

Mr. Burnham's speech was remarkable for what it did not say. The invisible choir of dark spirits of social and religious strife—No Temere, Hommage and Protestant Protective Association—which have been travelling about with him for the last three weeks, though the side lines did not show their heads on the platform—Mr. Burnham "had not intended to deal with these on the 'public platform."

ANDREW BRODER'S MERRY QUIPS

Andrew Broder, the farmer member from Dundas County, appeared as advertised. Br. Broder is Exhibit A in Mr. Borden's guarantee of good faith to the farmers. Mr. Broder is the only live farmer in captivity that will give a sustained performance against reciprocity in public on the stage. Mr. Broder has not always been of the same mind, for when he heard Mr. Fielding explain the agreement in the House he had warm praise for many phases of it. But soon after he changed his mind and expressed such a complete reversal of opinion that it looked like swallowing himself. But that is neither here nor there. What Andrew Broder uttered last night are probably his final opinions on reciprocity in natural products with the United States.

Stripped of its funny stories, of which one cannot speak too highly, Mr. Broder's speech was rather bare of serious arguments. He argued away the benefit Canada had derived from her reciprocity treaty with the United States from 1854 to 1866 by saying that during the period from 1854 to 1857 the Crimean War took place and Canada got war prices for her food in Europe, while from 1861 to 1865 the American Civil War was raging and Canada got war prices for her food in the United States.

The fact remains, however—and Mr. Broder did not answer it—that the little Canada of that time with its sparse population and primitive facilities for transportation and a market only half as big as the United States offers to-day, had twenty per cent. the best of the bargain. Sir John Macdonald, who didn't like to see a twenty per cent. advantage get away from him, tried for reciprocity as soon as he got into power after Confederation; he tried for it again in 1879, and he was trying for it in his last campaign in 1891 and kept trying for it till he died. And his Conservative successors, between 1891 and 1896, did the same thing.

"But," said Mr. Broder, "if Sir John were alive to-day he wouldn't do it again."

THE NINETY-MILLION MARKET

Having argued away the benefit, Mr. Broder proceeded to argue away the ninety-million market. By eliminating the women and children, who are not buyers, and leaving out thirty million people down South and sixteen million black people, and a few other sections of the population which the reporters couldn't catch—for the press arrangements for hearing the speeches were very bad indeed—he scaled the ninety-million market down to nine millions and let it go at that.

The fallacy of Mr. Broder's position is that though women and children may not buy, they still have mouths to be fed, and black people must eat as well as white.

Another thing Mr. Broder said was that Canada would only get a long price for her products when the United States had a short crop. The answer is that the United States has a short crop right along, because her population has exceeded her food production.

Mr. Broder put the usual platform apprehensions through their paces—that Canadian products would lose their identity, that the British market once lost could not be picked up again in a day, that trade would run north and south instead of east and west, that the Ontario horse market in the west would be demoralized by Montana importations, that the bigger country would rule the price, and that reciprocity was an entanglement which the United States, having taken great trouble to accomplish, would not let go without a struggle. All these fears have been fully answered elsewhere, and it only remains to take note of Mr. Broder's concluding remarks.

"The men who are at the helm to-day," said Mr. Broder, "are trying to imitate the men who laid hard and deep the foundations of Canada. But they are doing it ignobly."

This is where a majority of the people differ from Mr. Broder. They think that Laurier's Government has been doing fairly well and that the imitation is perfectly good. The Government that does its best to imitate the Fathers of Confederation cannot be far wrong.

It was a good speech of the Andrew Broder kind. He delivered it with conviction as if he did not merely argue it as a prospective Minister of Agriculture in a Borden administration.

Candidate Sexsmith said among other things: "I do not see how higher prices for the farmer can mean cheaper living for the consumer." This simply proves that there are some people who cannot understand a universal blessing like the sun that shines for all, the rain that falls on the just and the unjust alike, and reciprocity in natural products, which includes in its round of benefits something for everybody.

Algebra.
The art of algebra, which is defined as the computation of numbers by general symbols, arose in the fourth century.

A Long Lived Countess.
Jeanne Fitzgerald, countess of Desmond, passed away when she was 145. At the age of 140 she traveled from her home in Ireland to London to urge some claim against the government. Sir Walter Raleigh once said, "I myself knew her." Lord Bacon mentions that she had thrice renewed her teeth.

African Rivers.
All the rivers of Africa have remarkable peculiarities. They seek the ocean that is farthest away from their source. Their course is always broken by falls, and their mouths are stopped by numerous sand banks.

Grindstones.
If a grindstone be left exposed to the sun the side kept uppermost by the weight of the handle will harden and the wheel will be ground out of a true circle.

England's Great Seal.
The great seal of England is a silver pair of dies, which are closed to receive the melted mass, poured, when an impression is to be taken, through an orifice left in the top. The impression of the seal is six inches in diameter and three-quarters of an inch thick.

The Earliest Almanac.
The earliest printed almanac of which we have any record was that of George von Purbach, who lived in Vienna in 1460.

Handball.
Handball was the chief exercise of the young Spartans, and the Athenians so highly esteemed the sport that they erected a statue in honor of Aristonicus on account of his skill in it. Romans of all ages and degrees found much pleasure in the game in the olden time.

He prayed each night for hope and health
And freedom from disaster,
He prayed each night for joy and wealth,
But never did he pray
For strength to put away
The faults he failed to master.

He prayed each night for happiness
And for a high position,
He prayed each night to have success,
But never did he kneel
To pray the Lord for zeal
To better his condition.

2 new houses, now being built on Western Ave Subdivision for wise men who want homes of their own instead of rent receipts.

Many young men are buying our lots as the safest and by far the most profitable investment for their savings.

Proof—$8 months ago a man bought 2 lots at $180 paying $5 per month, he is now paying small balance and getting his deed, and the market value of his lots to-day is $600 which may be justly considered all profit, because the $5 would be spent if not locked up in this way. Wage earners should follow this example if you want to save money. Cut prices for balance of this month. Call to-day.

To Rent 2 small farms with buildings and orchards, adjoining the city.

Houses for sale and to rent, more houses wanted.
